Twenty-Five Million Containers of Food For Farm Tables

College Station — That many farm families of Texas have taken effective steps to keep the wolf of hunger from the door this winter is evidenced by figures showing 25,675,114 containers on pantry shelves. These figures have been secured in response to a questionnaire sent out to the Extension Service agents by Miss Lola Blair, Extension Specialist in Nutrition, and represent a return of only about half the number sent out, and therefore are considerably less than will be the total when all returns are in.

"Every county reporting indicates an increase in the amount of food conserved over last year's figures, just as last year's figures were larger than those of the year before," states Miss Blair. "We interpret this to be the effect not alone of the depression, but of the growing familiarity of the women with the use of pressure cookers, automatic sealers and canning recipes that give satisfaction in quality products, together with increased information and therefore interest in what constitutes an adequate diet to preserve the family health."

"The 4-H pantry demonstration club women have been working on for the past two years includes this information and each demonstrator makes, at the beginning of the year, a good budget as her guide for the feeding of her family for the year. The next step is to produce the food, gardens and orchards are planted, meat animals, dairy cows and poultry are raised and the canning is planned definitely to supply vegetables, fruits and for use during the unproductive months."

"Storage, too, and organization of the pantry, and the making of menu and recipe files, all are a part of this demonstration and it is most interesting to see the different ways the demonstrators work out their problems. In West and North Texas many cellars are in use for storage and only a week's supply is brought into the kitchen at a time. Sometimes heat and cold by being lined with insulated material. And sometimes it is just open shelves built in the kitchen, but wherever located it is a source of great pride and comfort to the family that owns it and of great interest to those who see it."

The Chairman of Agriculture Committee of Texas Banker's Association, Mr. W. B. Lee, thinks so well of this type of work that he had a pantry put on display in his bank so that all the bank's customers could have the benefit of the "live at home" idea worked out in this way. And many other banks in different parts of the state have done the same thing. This has helped to spread the idea in a very effective fashion.

Mrs. Oder Honored By Local W. C. T. U.

The Womens Christian Temperance Union will meet at the Cumberland Presbyterian church Wednesday, November 4th at 3 o'clock. The following program will be rendered with Mrs. Seth Risinger leading.

Song: Lead on O King Eternal
Scripture Lesson: Leader
Echoes from the State Convention—Mrs. Oder
Some Accomplishments with the Army and Navy—Mrs. Paul Van Dalsem

Current Events—Mrs. T. R. Sealy
All members are urged to be present and visitors are always welcome.

The ladies of the Union entertained Wednesday afternoon of this week in the home of Mrs. Paul Von Dalsem the occasion being a miscellaneous shower for the president, Mrs. A. L. Oder.

The house was beautifully decorated with white streamers and sprays of Sarsaparilla vine, and cut flowers. There were two very interesting contests, one on nations and one of romance. A quartette, composed of Miss Josie Baxter, Mrs. Goen, Mrs. Van Dalsem and Mrs. Risinger sang the Temperance Rally Song. Then an express wagon decorated and labeled W. C. T. U. water wagon was pulled in with its load of gifts. There were milk bottles and water bottles on the front and trailing away behind on the floor were the "wine and beer" bottles. (Statistics show an enormous increase in the use of milk since prohibition has been in force.)

The gifts were opened by the surprised honoree and passed around to be viewed and admired by the guests, after the recipient had spoken words of appreciation.

Jesse Goen rendered several solos on the accordin that greatly enlivened the occasion. The refreshments consisted of doughnuts, for which Mrs. Van Dalsem is justly famed, and fruit punch.

The honoree was taken to the lovely lawn where pictures were taken of her and her gifts, of flowers and then a group picture was made of all present. Standing on either side of the honoree in this picture were Mrs. M. L. Hooper, our oldest member and Mrs. M. L. Womack, whose mother was a crusader.

The whole affair was one of happiness and merriment and twenty-seven registered in the guest book.

Mrs. Haynie Voss, Mrs. Goen, Mrs. Seth Risinger and the hostess were largely responsible for the success of this delightful occasion.

Methodist Ladies Enjoy Social

Mesdames C. B. Verner and H. L. Voss were hostess to the Methodist Missionary Society, Monday afternoon at Mrs. Verner's home. The decorations carried the Hallowe'en idea, Black cats, witches, and pumpkin faces were tastefully placed in the living room. The cover for the dining table was hand embroidered in the Hallowe'en colors, and a bowl of Golden cosmos placed in the center.

After the program on Current Africa, which was led by Mrs. Hart, assisted by Mesdames Blue and Gray, a very pleasant social hour was spent in contest, fortune telling, etc.

Refreshments of Potato pie topped with whipped cream and hot coffee were served to the following guests:

Mesdames A. S. Hart, T. P. Sealy, Leman Brown, W. H. Thie, P. P. Bond, P. B. Snook, Sherman Gehrett, R. L. Todd, Tex Golston, Jim Harris, Hardy Blue, R. J. Marshall, and W. T. Gray.

Noah Beery has gone "straight" The man who has played more villainous "heavies" than any other screen actor is finding unusual enjoyment in his featured role in "Homicide Squad" because instead of playing the role of crook, he apprehends them.

The expression "the villain still pursued her" and Noah Beery have been synonymous in screendom for the past twelve years. However "Homicide Squad" finds the veteran actor a persistent police officer who tracks a band of hijackers for months and finally brings their leader to justice by employing extraordinary means to produce a confession of guilt of murder and robbery.

Sweetest Girl in Hollywood "Sweetest Girl in Hollywood" is the universal title bestowed upon Mary Brian by all and sundry in the film capital. It never got her a thing. Hollywood doesn't crown sweetest girls. No rivals were jealous of her sweetness, her beauty or her popularity. The casting directors gave her only sweet young things to play. Mothers went away from the theatre raving about her charm and loving devotion. But no "it" campaign started about her, no newspaper editor signed her up for sex-appeal stories, no love-lorn youths tries to commit suicide for her sweet sake. After all, Mary Brian was the sweetest girl in Hollywood, and that was all.

But Mary Brian is from Texas. It was that old Texas spirit that got her where she is, and thirty million American girls would like to be in her shoes. But not Mary. She realizes that there is something that she has not achieved yet, and she is going right after it. That is the reason that she is playing a totally different role in "Homicide Squad."

The First Talkie Though Leo Carrillo, famous stage actor, is generally considered a recent recruit to motion pictures, he was actually the first to appear before the microphone when Warner Brothers inaugurated the talking picture. Carrillo was selected to play the leading role in "At the Baseball Game," a short reel which was the first story of the talking

School Dismissed Thursday and Friday

All teachers in the Santa Anna public schools will attend a five-county teachers' Institute at Brady, Thursday and Friday of this week. The State law requires that all teachers attend an institute of not fewer than two days and Santa Anna teachers are taking advantage of the meeting held in Brady.

Among the educators who will address the teachers are: Dr. J. L. Henderson of the U of Texas; Mrs. J. W. Trapp of Daniel Baker College; President Thomas H. Taylor of Howard Payne College; State Superintendent of Public Instruction, S. M. N. Marrs; Secretary of Texas State Teachers Association, R. T. Ellis.

The social features will be provided by the active Brady Chamber of Commerce, Carl A. Blasig, Manager. Teachers will be guests of this organization at a theatre party on Thursday evening. "Guest cars" will be provided to take teachers anywhere in town during their stay.

MRS SHOCKLEY MARKS ENTIRE STOCK DOWN

The "Slashed Prices Sale" that Mrs. G. J. A. Shockley has had on for the past two weeks will continue for several days. Mrs. Shockley wishes the women of Santa Anna to know that she especially invites them to visit her store this week and take advantage of the almost "give away" prices that mark her ready-to-wear. For several years she has served the female interests in the town and will continue to give the best service that they can get anywhere, at low prices. She has a high grade line of quality merchandise that even the most discriminating shopper will appreciate, and there are bargains that the most economical shopper could desire. She asks that you come in and compare prices, quality and style.

Why not buy where the quality is better in articles sold no cheaper elsewhere. adv.

HE QUIT TRYING TO MAKE MONEY ON HIS FARM

Clyde Man Decided to Get Living Out of His Land, And Made More Than Ever

Clyde, Oct. 17. — "Last year I quit trying to make money farming and started to living," said M. M. Edwards. "And now I have discovered that I am making money, for the first time. I have more money than I ever had before. Prices on what I produce are cheap, but so is everything else cheap."

Edwards farms on 400 acres south of Clyde. He owes a small balance on the place but has money out, drawing interest, that will more than meet his payments as the federal farm loan association calls for them. Here is his own story of what he has done the past 12 months:

"I raised 9,000 bushels of grain. I bought 100 heifer yearlings at $10 around and turned them loose on the grain. They grazed all winter at no cost. This spring and summer I sold them as coming two-year olds at $30 around. The $20 profit per head more than paid the cost of producing the grain crop, and I have stored every bushel in my barn."

"On 70 acres this year I have raised 35 bales of cotton. Hoing and five plowings with hired labor cost me $150 and picking $129.50. I figure to sell the crop at $1,000, and you can figure the profit yourself. Labor was a dollar a day—I paid my neighbors $1.25 to help them along."

"We milk five cows and sell enough milk and butter to meet the grocery bill. We have a year's supply of fruit and vegetables stored away in jars. My wife, two children and I live comfortably, and so far as we are concerned, there is no depression. We pay for everything as we go."

Mr. Edwards had to terminate this interview because, he explained, he was returning to his neighborhood to buy 100 lambs at $3 each.

"I am buying cheap cotton seed to feed altogether 500 lambs and cows this winter," he said. "That's where my 9,000 bushels of grain is going—into livestock." —Abilene Reporter-News

SNOPSIS

Six people, Horace Johnson (who tells the story), his wife, old Mrs. Dane, Herbert Robinson and his sister, Alice, and Dr. Sperry, friends and neighbors, are in the habit of holding weekly meetings. At one of them, Mrs. Dane, who is hostess, varies the program by unexpectedly arranging a spiritualistic seance with Miss Jeremy, a friend of Dr. Sperry and not a professional, as the medium.

At the first sitting the medium tells the details of a murder as it Sperry learns that a neighbor, Arthur Wells, has been shot mysteriously. With Johnson he goes to the Wells residence and they find confirmation of the medium's account. Mrs. Wells tells them her husband shot himself in a fit of depression.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

Believing then that something might possibly be hidden there, and could see some small objects lying there. Sperry brought me a stick from the dressing-room and with its aid succeeded in bringing out the two articles which were instrumental in our careers as private investigators. One was a leather razor strop, old and stiff from disuse, and the other a wet bath sponge now stained with blood to a yellowish brown.

"She is lying, Sperry," I said. "He fell somewhere else, and she dragged him to where he was found."

"But—why?" "I don't know," I said impatiently. "From some place where a man would be unlikely to kill himself, I daresay. No one ever killed himself, for instance, in a open hallway. Or stooped shaving to do it."

"We have only Miss Jeremy's word for that," he said, "I don't let's bring in that stuff if we can help it."

We stared at each other, with the strop and the sponge between us. Suddenly he turned on his heel and went back into the room, and a moment later he called me, quietly.

"You're right," he said. "The poor devil was shaving. He had it half done. Come and look."

But I did not go. There was a carafe of water in the bathroom, and I took a drink from it. My hands were shaking. When I turned around I found Sperry in the hall, examining the carpet with his flash light, and now and then stooping to run his hand over the floor.

"Nothing here," he said in a low tone, when I had joined him. "At least I haven't found anything."

How much of Sperry's proceeding with the carpet the governess had seen I do not know. I glanced up and she was there, on the staircase to the third floor, watching us.

She came down the stairs, a lean young Frenchwoman in a dark dressing gown, and Sperry suggested that she should have an oplate. She seized at the idea, but Sperry did not go down at once for his professional bag.

"You were not here when it occurred, Mademoiselle?" he inquired.

"No, Doctor. I had been out for a walk." She clasp her hands. "When I came back—"

"Was he still on the floor of the dressing-room when you came in?"

"But yes. Of course. She was alone. She could not lift him." "I see," Sperry said thoughtfully. "No, daresay she couldn't. Was the revolver on the floor also?"

"Yes, doctor. I myself picked it up."

To Sperry she showed, I observed, a slight deference, but when she glanced at me, as she did after each reply. I thought her expression slightly altered. At the time this puzzled me, but it was explained when Sperry started down the stairs.

"Monsieur is of the police?" she asked with a Frenchwoman's timid respect for the constabulary.

I hesitated before I answered. I am a truthful man, and I hate unnecessary lying. But I ask consideration of the circumstances.

"I am making a few investigations," I told her. "You say Mrs. Wells was alone in the house, except for her husband?"

"The children."

"Mr. Wells was shaving, I believe, when the —er— impulsive overtook him?" "There was no doubt as to her surprise. "Shaving? I think not."

"What sort of razor did he ordinarily use?" "A safety razor always. At least I have never seen any others around."

"There is a case of old-fashioned razors in the bathroom."

She glanced toward the room and shrugged her shoulders. Possibly he used others. I have not seen any."

"It was you, I suppose, who cleaned up afterwards."

"Cleaned up?"

"You washed up the stains?" "Stains? Oh, no, monsieur. Nothing of the sort has yet been done."

I felt that she was telling the truth, so far as she knew it, and then I asked about the revolver. "Do you know where Mr. Wells kept his revolver?"

"When I first came it was in the drawer of that table. I suggested that it be placed beyond the children's reach. I do not know where it was put."

"Do you recall how you left the front door when you went out? I mean was it locked?"

"No. The servants were out, and I knew there would be no one to admit me. I left it unfastened."

But it was evident that she had broken a rule of the house by doing so, for she added: "I am afraid to use the servants' entrance. It is dark there."

"The key is always hung on the nail when they are out?"

"Yes. If any one of them is out it is left there. There is only one key. The family is out a great deal, and it saves bringing some one down from the servants' rooms at the top of the house."

But I think my knowledge of the key bothered her, for some reason. And as I read over my questions, certainly they indicated a suspicion that the situation was less simple than it appeared. She shot a quick glance at me.

"Did you examine the revolver when you picked it up?"

"I, monsieur? Non!" Then her fears, whatever they were, got the best of her. "I know nothing but what I tell you. I was out. I can prove that is so. I went to the pharmacy; the clerk will remember."

"I know, monsieur, he will tell you that I used the telephone there."

I told her that it would not be necessary for her to go to the pharmacy, and she muttered something about the children and went up the stairs. When Sperry came back with the oplate she was nowhere in sight, and he was considerably annoyed.

"She knows something," I told him. "She is frightened."

Sperry eyed me with a half frown.

"Now see here, Horace," he said. "Suppose we had come in here, without the thought of the seance behind us? We'd have accepted the thing as it appears to be, wouldn't we? There may be a dozen explanations for that sponge, and for the razor strop. What in Heaven's name has a razor strop to do with it anyhow? One bullet was fired, and the revolver has one empty chamber. It may not be the custom to stop shaving in order to commit suicide, but that's no argument that it can't be done, and as to the key—how do I know that my own back door key isn't hung outside on a nail sometimes?"

"We might look again for that hole in the ceiling."

"I won't do it. Miss Jermey has read of something of that sort, or heard of it, and stored it in her subconscious mind."

But he glanced up at the ceiling nevertheless, and a moment later had drawn up a chair and stepped onto it, and I did the same thing. We presented, I imagine, rather a strange picture, and I know that the presence of the rigid figure on the couch gave me a sort of ghoulsh feeling.

The house was an old one, and in the center of the high ceiling. Continued on page 3

ing a plaster ornament surrounded the chandelier. Our search gradually centered on this ornament, but the chairs were low and our long distance examination revealed nothing. It was at that time, too, that we heard some one in the lower hall, and we had only a moment to put our chairs in place before the butler came in. He showed no surprise, but stood looking at the body on the couch, his thin face working.

"I met the detectives outside, doctor," he said. "It's a terrible thing, sir, a terrible thing."

"I'd keep the other servants out of this room, Hawkins."

"Yes, sir," he went over to the sheet, lifted the edge slowly, and then replaced it, and tip-toed to the door. "The others are not back yet. I'll admit them, and get them up quietly. How is Mrs. Wells?"

"Sleeping," Sperry said briefly, and Hawkins went out.

I realize now that Sperry was—I am sure he will forgive this—in a state of nerves that night. For example, he returned only an impatient, silence to my doubt as to whether Hawkins had really only just returned and he quite missed something downstairs which I later proved to have an important bearing on the case. This was when we were going out, and after Hawkins had opened the front door for us. It had been freezing hard and Sperry, who has a bad ankle looked about for a walking stick. He found one, and I saw Hawkins take a swift step forward, and then stop, with no expression what-ever in his face.

"This will answer, Hawkins."

"Yes, sir," said Hawkins impassively.

And if I realize that Sperry was nervous that night, I also realize that he was fighting a battle quite his own, and with it personal problems.

"She's got to quit this sort of thing," he said savagely and apropos of nothing as we walked along. "It's hard on her, and besides—"

"Yes?"

"She couldn't have learned about it," he said, following his own trail of thought. "My car brought her from her home to the house-door: She was brought in to us at once. But don't you see that if there are other developments, to prove her statements she—well, she's as innocent as a child, but take Herbert, for instance. Do you suppose he'll believe she had no outside information?"

"But it was happening while we were shut in the drawing-room."

"So Elinor claims. But if there was anything to hide, it would have taken time. An hour or so, perhaps. You can see how Herbert would jump on that."

I said irritably to him, "I intend to go home, it is 1:30 in the morning."

But as it happened, I did not go into my house when I reached it. I was wide awake, and I perceived, on looking up at my wife's windows, that the lights were out. As it is her custom to wait up for me on those rare occasions when I spend an evening away from home, I surmised that she was comfortably asleep. And made my way to the pharmacy to which the Wellses' governess had referred.

The night clerk was in the prescription room behind the shop. He had fixed himself comfortably on two chairs, with an old table cover on his knee and a half empty bottle of sarsaparilla on a wooden box beside him. He did not waken until I spoke to him.

"Sorry to rouse you Jim," I said.

He flung off the cover and jumped up, unsetting the bottle which trickled in a stale stream to the floor. "Oh, that's all right, Mr. Johnson, I wasn't asleep, anyhow."

I let that go, and went at once to the object of our visit. Yes, he remembered the governess, knew her, as a matter of fact, The Wellses' bought a good many things there. Asked as to her telephoning, he thought it was about nine o'clock, maybe earlier. But questioned as to what she had telephoned about, he drew himself up.

"Oh, see here," he said. "I can't very well tell you that can I? This business has got ethics, all sorts of ethics."

He enlarged on that. The secrets of the city, he maintained loftily, were in the hands of the pharmacies. It was a trust they kept. "Every trouble from dope to drink, and then some," he boasted.

When I told him that Arthur Wells was dead his jaw dropped, but there was no more argument in him. He knew very well the number the governess had called.

"She's done it several times," he said. "I'll be frank with you. I got curious after the third evening, and called it myself. You know the trick. I found out it was the Ellingham house, up State Street."

"What was the nature of the conversations?"

"Oh, she was very careful. It's an open phone and any one could hear her. Once she said somebody was not to come. Another time she just said, 'This is Suzanne Gautier. 9:30, please.'"

"And tonight?"

"That the family was going out—not to call."

FIFTH INSTALLMENT

When I told him it was a case of suicide he remarked, philosophically:

"A lot lot of people get the bug once in a while, they come in here for a dose of sudden death, and it takes watching. It's a matter of the point of view," he continued more cheerfully. "And and my point of view just now is that this place is darnd cold and so's the street. You'd better have a little something to warm you up before you go out, Mr. Johnson."

I was chilled through to tell the truth, and although, to tell I rarely drink anything I went back with him and took an ounce or two of villainous whiskey, poured out of a jug in to a

THE WORKER OF THE LAND

Under the wonderfully stable government which has been set up in Czechoslovakia since the war, the industrial workers have a greater sense of security than in any other country, including our own.

When this new nation was formed out of territory which used to be a part of Austria, a little more than twelve years ago, its people chose for their president professor Masarik of Columbia University, New York. A native of what used to be called "Bohemia," he had been laboring for years for his country's independence. When his people finally were liberated by the Treaty of Versailles and he became their leader, he surrounded himself with strong, intelligent men and began to work out a system where every man in the nation should be independent.

One of the first things the new nation did was to take over all of the huge estates, many of them owned by citizens of other countries and divided them up into small farms, which were sold or rented to families which had never been able to hold land before. The next thing was to organize the industries of the nation, with the result that Czechoslovakian efficiency is famous throughout Europe. President Masarik merely took American experts over there and had them show the manufacturers of that country American methods.

But the most important variation from the American system is a provision whereby every industrial worker will eventually have at least one acre of land surrounding his home. This has been accomplished in many of the industrial centers and it is only a question of time when it will be the rule throughout Czechoslovakia. The avowed purpose is to refuse employment to any man of a family who will not agree to live on one of these tracts.

An acre of land means little in America. In Europe, where the whole family is accustomed to outdoor manual labor, it means the cultivation of every square inch, and at least a living for the occupants. In times of industrial depression the factory worker has his land to fall back on, and is in no danger of starvation from unemployment. And in good times he can save and invest a very large percentage of his earnings in the factory.

There are several lessons we could learn from a closer study of some of the smaller nations of Europe. The principal one which all of them have to teach, however, is that you cannot separate the mass of the people very far from the land without subjecting them to unnecessary risks. And the next one is that when ever worker is a landowner there is no danger of a revolution.

SANTA ANNA vs PAINT ROCK

1st Quarter
 Santa Anna downed those Paint Rock Indians like the Mountaineers of old downed the Indians, but in a different way. Paint Rock started the game with a kick off of 40 yards. Ward made a run around left end for 28 yards, Red cutback over right tackle for 5 yards, Bull went over center for 25 yards, Spence went over left tackle for 7 yards and Red cutback over center for a touchdown. Spence went over center for the extra point. The score was then 7-0 in favor of the Mountaineers.

 Myers kicked off for 40 yards. Paint Rock went over left tackle for 2 yards, but they made no gain around left end. Their pass was intercepted by Spence. Ward completed a pass of 40 yards to Wheeler for a touchdown. Santa Anna kicked the goal for the extra point. The score was then 14-0 in favor of the Mountaineers. Myers kicked off for 50 yards. Paint Rock went over left guard for 8 yards. They made no gain over right tackle but made 2 yards over left tackle. They punted for 10 yards. Red went around right end for 20 yards. Bull over left guard for 8 yards, Spence over right tackle for 10 yards, Bull over center for 15 yards, and Bull over left guard for a touchdown. We failed to kick our goal. The score then stood 20-0 in favor of the Mountaineers.

2nd Quarter
 Ward went over left tackle for 15 yards, Red around right end for a touchdown. Bull went over center for the extra point. 27-0 in favor of the Mountaineers. Myers kicked off for 40 yards. Paint Rock made four plays in their next rally but didn't budge an inch. Red ran around left end for 5 yards, Bull over center for 3 yards and Ward no gain around left end. The ball went over to Paint Rock. Paint Rock lost 2 yards on their first play and only gained one yard of it back in the next three plays. They punted for 20 yards. Brandon made 3 yards over left guard. Ward failed to complete a 25 yard pass to Wheeler. Ward made two right end runs in succession with a total of 47 yards. Bull plowed through the line for another touchdown. We failed to kick our goal. The score was then 33-0 in favor of the Mountaineers and the Indians were still going when the half was up.

Myers kicked off for 48 yards. Paint Rock after three unprofitable plays punted 30 yards. Red made 18 yards on a right end run. Ward lost 5 yards on a left end run but he made that up in the next play by completing a 30 yard pass to Wheeler. Spence went over center for another touchdown and Bull went over left guard for the extra point. 40-0 Santa Anna.
 Myers kicked off for 40 yards. After three unsuccessful plays Paint Rock punted. Traylor blocked the punt, then picked it up and ran for a touchdown. Red kicked the goal, making the score 47-0 in favor of the Mountaineers. Myers kicked off for 36 yards. Paint Rock made no gain around right end. They tried an incomplete pass of 15 yards, then punted 30 yards. Red ran around right end for 26 yds. Spence over left tackle for 10 yards. Ward failed to complete a 25 yard pass to Wheeler. The ball went over to Paint Rock. The Indians must have awaked when they got what it was all about. Paint Rock made 40 yards around right end. They made 8 yards on four more plays then punted 25 yards.

2nd Quarter: Last Half:
 The Mountaineers worked pretty hard for the next touchdown. Spence went over right tackle for 18 yards, Red went over right tackle for 20 yards, Ward went over left tackle for 7 yards, Bull over left guard for 17 yards, then Red made three more runs over right tackle for a total of 31 yards. Spence went over left guard for a touchdown and Bull plowed through the line for the extra point. The score then was 54-0 in favor of the Mountaineers. Myers kicked off for 56 yards. Paint Rock completed a 25 yard pass. Paint Rock over left tackle for 5 yards, and for 2 yards over center. The ball went over to Santa Anna. Red made 20 yards around left end and Ward completed a 40 yard pass to Wheeler for a touchdown. We failed to kick our goal. The game ended with the score of 60-0 in favor of the Mountaineers.

 That was the first game of the season that the Mountaineers really took charge of. We feel real proud of our boys and hope that they will do equally as well in their next four games.

The Line up:

HAPPINESS

Happiness, as defined in the dictionary, is the state of being happy. It is essential; the nation, the school and the home depend upon it. Happiness has been adequately discussed by Edgar A. Guest in the following: "Happiness is the one thing in life you can't afford to postpone. It is like the manna of old. Enough for to-day is all that life measures out to us. There may be more tomorrow, but today's supply isn't going to keep. You can't store it in the ice box. "When it comes to getting joy out of this life, not one of us has a minute to waste. It is folly to postpone a single smile. The habit of frowning grows and the habit of whimpering becomes increasingly hard to break. The time to be happy is now. The best of life is happiness. Give it a chance; let it shine through."

BEATERS DOWN BLUECATS

Ballinger Bearcats downed the Coleman Bluecats 12-6 Saturday afternoon on the Fair Park gridiron in Coleman. The Bluecats showed some real fight and some say it was only luck that the Ballinger boys beat them. Anyhow Santa Anna fans who attended the game say that the teams were very evenly matched. Had those Bearcats, Mountain

HISTORIC MUSEUM CLUB

We received some more articles Thursday from Mrs. Blanton for our museum and we were very glad to get them. We now have a large picture of Santa Anna before it was settled which was painted with very much art and skill by Mrs. Blanton, some arrowheads that we have collected from different people, and a number of other small articles. As you all know, we can not have a museum without something in it. Although we have these articles mentioned above, we need many others to have a worthwhile museum. We will appreciate anything that you will let us have. If you have anything that you wish to let us have, please notify Mr. Lock, Carl Flores or Helen Turner, Reporter.

S-A-H-S ENROLLMENT

An accurate account has been taken of the enrollment in each class and the following report is the result:
Freshman—58
Sophomores—37
Juniors—43
Seniors—53
Post Graduates—4
This shows that the Freshmen have more students enrolled than any other class. It also had the same number on the Honor Roll as the Seniors. What an honor for the Freshmen!

JUNIORS

Last Friday in chapel Nowlin Myers president of the Junior class and a foot ballplayer was chosen by the student body as Fire Chief of Santa Anna High School. Everyone feels safe as long as Nowlin is Fire Chief for he is capable of the position. Seth Ford, another peppy and loyal Junior was chosen as one of the floor Captains. Seth is very quick and level headed and is sure to make a good floor Captain. When he is really serious about anything (which is very seldom) he is hard to be beaten.

Last but not least, comes Robert Dempsey, the only Junior on the honor roll. Robert was a member of the class last year and he has never missed the honor roll yet. The Juniors can always count on him.

S-A-H-S HOLIDAY THURSDAY AND FRIDAY

Monday morning from ten to tenthrty o'clock, when the classes had assembled in their respective home rooms, the ring of applause sounding from room to room marked the place where the news was being given of a holiday Thursday and Friday. The first three classes applauded, leaving the seniors in wonder, but not for long. When Mrs. Bartlett, the sponsor, gave the announcement it was several minutes before the last echo had died away, which proves though the seniors may be the last they are never least.

S-A-H-S SANTA ANNA vs. BALLINGER

Next Friday, October 30th, the Santa Anna Mountaineers will play the Ballinger Bear Cats at Winters. We don't know how bad we will beat Ballinger, but if we beat them just a little bit we will be well pleased. Always stand by your team, you never can tell what they might do.—Reporter

LOOKING SANTA ANNA'S FUTURE GAMES

Using some real professional brains, a Mountaineer fan put on his thinking cap and figured out the seemingly accurate "dope" (using the Paint Rock game as a basis) Ballinger beat Paint Rock 36-0. Santa Anna beat Paint Rock 60-0. Looks as if Santa Anna might give the Ballinger Bearcats a let down next Friday. Bangs beat Paint Rock 33-0. Santa Anna beat Paint Rock 60-0. Looks tough for Bangs! Santa Anna will probably leave them dragging behind a score of about 27-0.

Coleman beat Paint Rock 44-0. Santa Anna beat Paint Rock 60-0. Looks like those Bluecats might get their tails pulled! From all clear reasoning, "that good old Mountaineer line" will have the Cats all bunged up running over them about 12-0. Of course this isn't an exact method, but it usually works out correctly. The Paint Rock team was used for a basis merely because it was the only team which had played all three towns. As for the Santa Anna-Melvin game, that remains to be seen. Let's keep up our characteristic grin and good spirit, Mountaineers, let's show the district who the champions are! Forget those first three games—"A bad beginning is a zip of an ending!"—Yea Mountaineers, let's keep going!

S-A-H-S

YES OR NO

Do You Know?
That our Mountaineers pounded the Paint Rock Indians?
That a two day holiday will be welcomed with open arms at the end of this week by the students?

That variety is the spice of study halls?

That the pep squad is constructing a splendid formation for the game Friday?

That eight Marys have been enrolled this year?

That the Scribblers are progressing rapidly in the art of writing news?

That Santa Anna will soon become voice conscious due to the splendid instruction Miss Louise Gray is giving the Choral Club plus talent displayed by that organization?

FOOTBALL PARTY

Friday night, October twenty-third, a peppy bunch of Mountaineers met at the home of Miss Mary Alice Mitchell to celebrate the victory over Paint Rock's Indians. Games of forty-two, and dominoes were enjoyed by a group and dancing and singing was also enjoyed by some. Punch was served before they left, rejoicing over their victory over Paint Rock.

Gloves, Gift Items, Handkerchiefs, slips, Children's clothes, pajama suits, House Dresses, Perfumes, Blended Powders, Jewellery, Creams, and lotions; Every thing for Millady—at Low prices.—Mrs. G. A. Shockley.

A bit of verse by John Kieran was found in the Fort Worth Star Telegram this week which is very expressive in it's simplicity.

THE SCRUB

Give him a headguard. None to spare?
Then weave him a wreath for his tousled hair;
He has won that wreath, by all that's fair.
He has plunged and tackled and played the game;
He has gone in battered and limped out lame;
He has lifted his school to the heights of fame.

He has made his school team fast and strong;
He has put the tackles where they belong;

He has taught the forwards where they are wrong
And the sum of his aches and all of his pains
Is shown as the fleeting season wanes

In the way the school backfield gains,
Thus it has been for years and years;
The big team hero gets his cheers;

The lot of the scrub is three long jeers.
And that is the reason—foolish dream!

That I nominate, though you laugh and scream,
The scrub for the star football team.

The sitting however was totally without value. There was difficulty on the medium's part in securing the trance condition, and she broke out once rather petulantly, with the remark that we were interfering with her in some way.

I noticed that Sperry had placed Arthur well's unobtrusively on his table, but we secured only rambling and non-pertinent replies to our questions, and whether it was because the Well's mater did not come up at all I found a total lack of that sense of the unknown which make all the evening sittings so grisley. I am sure that she knew we had wanted something, and that she had failed to give it to us, for when she came out she was depressed and in the state of lowered vitality.

"I'm afraid I'm not helping you," she said. "I'm a little tired, I think."
She was tired. I felt suddenly very sorry for her. She was so pretty and so young—only twenty-six or thereabouts—to be in the of forces of relentless. Sperry sent her home in his car, and took a pacing the floor of his office.

"I'm going to give up, Horace," he said. Perhaps you are right. We may be on the verge of some real discovery, but while I'm interested that it interferes with my work, I'm frankly afraid to go on. There are several reasons."
"Be—ulyt—t atn wlo, thignqof"
I argued with him. There could be no question that if things were left as they were, a number of people, would go through life convinced that Ellnor Wells had murdered her husband. Look at the situation. She had sent all of the servants and the governess, surely an unusual thing in an establishment of that sort. And Miss Jeremy had been vindicated in three points; some strains had stated, it to be, and Arthur had certainly been shaving himself. "In other words," I argued, "we can't stop, Sperry. You can't stop. But my idea would be purely scientific and not criminal. Also, in other words," he said, "you think we will discover something, so you suggest that we compound a felony and keep it to ourselves!"

"Exactly I said drily. . . It is of course possible that my nerves were somewhat unstrung during the days that followed.

I wakened one night in a terrific thump which shock my bed, and which seemed to be the result of some one having struck the foot board with a plank. Immediately following this came a sharp knocking on the antique bed warmer which hangs beside my fireplace. When I had sufficiently recovered my self control I turned on my bedside lamp, but the room was empty.

But on Thursday night of that week my wife came into my bedroom, and stated flatly that there were burglars in the house.

I got out of bed and went down the stairs, but I must confess that I felt the moment darkness surround me, considerably less trepidation concerning the possible burglar than I felt as the darkness itself. Mrs. Johnson had locked herself in my bedroom, and there was something horrible in the black depths of the lower hall.

We are old fashion people, and have not yet adopted electric light. I carried a box of matches, but at the foot of the stairs the one I had lighted went out. I was terrified. I tried to light another match, but there was a draft from somewhere.

The second match went out before I had time to glance about. I was immediately conscious of a sort of soft movement around me, as of shadowy shapes that passed and repassed. One it seemed to me that a hand was laid on my shoulder and no lighted, but instead dissolved into the other shadows around. The sudden striking of the clock on the stair landing completed my demoralization. I turned and fled upstairs, pursued, to my agonized nerves, by ghostly hands that came toward me from between the spindles of the stair-rail.

At dawn I went down stairs again, heartily ashamed of myself. I found that the door to the basement had been left open, and that the soft movement had probably been my overcoat, swaying in the draft.

Sperry, I believe, told Herbert Robinson of what we had discovered, but nothing had been said to the women. I knew through my wife that they were wildly curious and the night of the second seance Mrs. Dane drew me aside and made me promise I would tell her all I learned, after it was all over.

Miss Jeremy did not come to dinner. She never ate before a seance. And although we tried to keep the conversational ball floating airily, there was not the usual effervescence of the Neighborhood Club dinners. One and all, we were waiting, we knew not for what.

I am sorry to record that there were no physical phenomena of any sort at this second seance. The room was arranged as it had been at the first sitting, except that a table with a candle and a chair had been placed behind a screen for Mrs. Dane's secretary. There was no other chance. Sperry had brought the walking stick he had taken from Arthur Well's room and after the medium was in trance he placed it on the table before her.

The first questions were disappointing in results. Asked about the stick, there was only silence. When, however, Sperry went back to the sitting of the week before, and referred to questions and answers at that time, the medium seemed uneasy. Her hand, held under mine, made an effort to free itself, and, released, touching the cane. She lifted it and struck the table a hard blow with it.

"Do you know to whom that stick belongs?"

A silence. Then: "Yes."

"Will you tell us what you know about it?"

"It is writing."

"Writing?"

"It was writing, but the water washed it away."

Then, instantly and with great rapidity, followed a wild torrent of words and incomplete sentences. It is inarticulate, and the secretary made no record of it. As I recall, however, it was about water, children, and the words "ten o'clock."

"No. Certainly not. No indeed. The water washed it away, all of it. Not a trace."

"Where did all of this happen?"

She named without hesitation, a seaside resort about fifty miles from our city. There was not one of us, I dare say, who did not know that the Wellises had spent the preceding summer there and that Charlie Edingham had been there, also.

"Do you know that Arthur

Wells is dead?"
"Yes he is dead."
"Did he kill himself?"
"You can't catch me on that, I don't know."

Here (the medium laughed. It was horrible. And the laughter made the whole thing absurd. But it died away quickly.

"If only the pocketbook was not lost," she said. "There were so many things in it. Especially car-tickets. Walking is a nuisance."

Mrs. Dane's secretary suddenly spoke. "Do you want me to take things like that?" she asked.

"Take everything, please," was the answer.
"Car-tickets and letters. It will be terrible if the letters are found."

"Where was the pocketbook lost?" Sperry asked.

"If that were known, it could be found," was the reply, rather sharply given. "Hawkins may have it. He was always hanging around. The curtain was much safer."

"What curtain?"
"Nobody would have thought of the curtain. First ideas are best."

She repeated this, following it as once before, with rhymes for the final word, best, rest, chest, pest.

"Pest!" she said. "That's Hawkins!" And again the laughter.

"Did one of the bullets strike the ceiling?"
"Yes. But you'll never find it. It is holding well. That part's safe enough—unless it made a hole in the floor above."

"But there was only one empty chamber in the revolver. How could two shots have been fired?"

There was no answer at all to this. And Sperry, after waiting went on to his next question: "Who occupied the room overhead?"

But here we received the reply to the previous question: "There was a box of cartridges in the table-dresser. That's easy."

From that point, however, the interest lapsed. Either there was no answer to questions, or we got the absurdity that we had encountered before, about the drawing room furniture. But unsatisfactory in many ways as the seance had been, the effect on Miss Jeremy was profound—she was longer in coming out, and greatly exhausted when it was over.

She refused to take the supper Mrs. Dane had prepared for her, and at eleven o'clock Sperry took her home in his car.

I remember that Mrs. Dane inquired after she had gone. "Does any one know the name of the Wallace's butler? It is Hawkins?"

"I said nothing, and as Sperry was the only one likely to know and he had gone, the inquiry went no further. Looking back, I realize that Herbert, while less cynical was still skeptical, that his sister was non-committal, but for some reason watching me, and that Mrs. Dane was in a state of delightful anticipation.

My wife, however had taken a dislike to Miss Jeremy and said that the whole thing bored her. "The men like it, of course," she said, "Horace fairly simpers with pleasure while he sits and holds her hand. But a woman doesn't impose on other women so easily. It's silly."

"My Dear," Mrs. Dane said, reaching over and patting my wife's hand, "people talked that way about Columbus and Galileo. And if it is nonsense, it is such thrilling nonsense!"

SOME COLD PREVENTATIVES

It is estimated that 12,000 deaths occur each year in the United States as the result of bronchitis and its complications. So the common cold stands well up in the list of the causes of death and should be taken more seriously than usually is.

While colds are due to infection, there are certain other factors which seem to act as predisposing causes. Among these are prolonged exposure to cold, getting wet or chilled, and breathing air that is too dry, overheated or impure. During the changeable weather of fall and spring, and during those seasons when we spend much time indoors, colds are most prevalent.

Efforts at prevention should begin during the fall and should include measures to protect our selves against unfavorable weather conditions as well as take care to make indoor conditions as healthful as possible. Unless the weather is too disagreeable, spending as much time as possible out-of-doors in the fall, winter and spring helps to harden one and increase his resistance. But dress for it!

Right Clothing Important
By shivering through a cold fall afternoon while you are watching a football game you probably lower your resistance instead of raising it. You should wear an overcoat or sufficient wraps. Over dressing while indoors also makes you more susceptible to a chilling when you go out into the cold air. Remove your overcoat while you are attending indoor amusements or athletic contests.

Good Ventilation Necessary
Houses and buildings should be well ventilated and comfortably warm, and the air should contain sufficient moisture.

Much can be done to prevent spreading the germs of colds and pneumonia by covering the nose and mouth with a handkerchief when it is necessary to sneeze or cough.

All of this is old, but it should be recalled at the time of year when colds and pneumonia begin to be more prevalent.

THE U. D. C. CHAPTER

The chapter did not meet Friday on account of the funeral. Our chapter sends in a very fine report to the convention this year. Ten markers have been placed at the graves of the old soldiers. Through the aid of the chapter two pensions have been granted and the chapter has assisted in supporting the Public library. Flowers have been sent to the sick.

The chapter asks the help and cooperation of all its members for this year.

RUBBER AND LEATHER HEELS

"Pick up your heels" is an expression which is used as often as ten times in one day, by the teachers. A student will invariably make a terrible noise while walking if he does not have rubber heels. Most of the shoes have leather heels, and will naturally make lots of racket on a wooden or concrete floor.

Several students have had to remain in the ninth period for not "picking up their heels." It is rather amusing to sit in the study hall and watch the students tiptoeing around. It looks as if they might be trying to slip up on something. If a person does not wish to tiptoe, then it will be advisable to buy slippers with rubber heels for school.

S-A-H-S ST. WAPNIA

St. Wapnia is a word that helps us to remember the members of the president's cabinet. Every letter stands for an office. S stands for Secretary of State; T for Secretary of the Treasury; W for Secretary of War; A for Secretary of the Army; N for Secretary of Navy; I for Secretary of Interior and A for the Secretary of Agriculture. The Secretary of Commerce and Secretary of Labor are lacking. The History class finds the word very helpful.
