

FREE ADMISSION LECTURES

NO CHARGE OF ANY KIND TO BE MADE AT SHORT COURSE HERE

"Equal to any ever given on the chautauqua platform." That is the expressed opinion of many people who have heard the lectures that are to be given at the agricultural short course to be held in Santa Anna at the high school, February 16th and 17th. Despite the high standard of the lectures, demonstrations and motion pictures, no admission charge of any kind will be made at any of the meetings. The short course is to be held for no other purpose than to help the people solve their many problems of the farm, the home and the community—to not only interest them but to encourage and inspire them as well—and everybody, men, women, boys and girls, from town and from country, will be cordially welcomed at every session.

New thoughts, new ideas based upon scientific experiments and investigations conducted by many agricultural colleges, and upon practical experiences of "dirt farmers" everywhere, will be presented in the belief that they will be of help to us in meeting the difficulties that we are constantly encountering.

And these facts, important to us all, will be presented by men and women who are numbered among the best agricultural lecturers and demonstrators in the country in a manner that is interesting, fascinating, gripping.

Local committees are preparing a program that will include discussions of the farm and the home problems that are most common in this community.

The schools have been especially invited to co-operate in the meeting. Farmers and business men are urged to make this their short course. They will be benefited much more than they now realize. All women—housewives, club women, teachers; the women on the farm, the women in town—will be greatly interested and greatly helped if they will attend as many of the meetings as possible.

They will be particularly benefited by hearing the talks of Miss Grace Marian Smith—farm girl, farm woman, rural teacher, city teacher, extension worker for the U. S. Department of Agriculture during the war, and able lecturer and writer on household and other subjects relating to women's work.

H. S. Mobley and John M. Hannon will have prominent places on the program. Mr. Mobley is a practical farmer and a nationally recognized leader in agricultural progress. His talks on "The Educational Use of Knowledge" and Communities Are Made of Folks" linger long in the memories of those who hear them.

Mr. Hannon has talks that will be helpful and useful.

HATCHERY NAME IS SELECTED

A committee of four selected the name "Robertson's Service Hatchery" from the ninety five names submitted for the naming of Santa Anna's new hatchery.

Mrs. Lola Lightfoot wins the fifty baby chicks as a reward for sending in the name selected.

A popular name was Mountain City Hatchery as it was sent in by seven different contestants.

Mr. Robertson wishes to thank each one who sent a name and invites every one to come in and visit with him.

He has an incubator running and will be ready to sell baby chicks at an early date.

CURTIS COLLINS HONORED

A turkey dinner at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Curtis Collins was enjoyed by all the guests, last Thursday evening. The dinner, which was in honor of Mr. Collins' birthday, was followed by several games of 42. The evening was enjoyed very much and the guests went away wishing Mr. Collins many happy returns of the day.

The guests were: Mr. and Mrs. McMinn and daughters, Mr. and Mrs. Will Ferguson and three sons, Mrs. Ferguson, Miss Coker, Mrs. Kingsberry, Miss Ruby Harper, Mr. and Mrs. Matson, Mrs. Comer Blue and Miss Bill Collins of Lometa.

Agricultural Thoughts

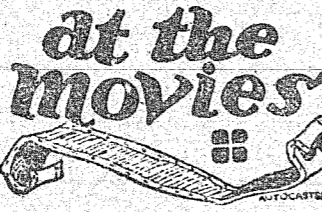

By J. M. Binion, Instructor Vocational Agriculture

Farmers in general should tighten up on the farm business. It is possible for small leaks to sink some big ships and a small stick thrown into the ocean can start a wave that will bring destruction to things in its path. Benjamin Franklin said "A penny saved is a penny made," and we are prone to forget how true it is.

There are numerous small leaks on most farms and it takes a man that is alert and always looking for them to stop them. They will not stop of themselves but instead grow bigger and if left alone will sink the farm.

Some of them are leaks in feeding, rust and decay, leaks in use of time, leaks in use of labor, household leaks, leaks in use of machinery, leaks in the health and well being of the body, mind, and soul, and hundreds of others.

Check up on the leaks on your farm and stop them. Remember it's the little things that count.

Hoot Gibson in the Concentration Kid will be the chief attraction at the Queen Theatre Friday and Saturday. In this western Hoot rounds up a gang of law-breaking trouble makers and finds himself a sweetheart.

One of the biggest pictures of last year will be shown the first of next week. "GOOD NEWS" is a college feature with an all star cast. There are five or six song hits used in the picture and when Dorothy McNulty and Billy Taft start doing a collegiate dance even the oration portraits of the Roman gladiators on the blackboard sway with the rhythm.

Mid-week shows have been discontinued for a while.

EXPERT ATTENDS FARMERS MEETING

V. R. GLAZNOR POULTRY EXPERT LECTURES HERE TO THE FARMERS

Through the co-operation of B. T. Vinson, local grocer and dealer in feeds, Ross Horick, field representative of the Purina Mills, O. Ray Brown, banker and County Agent, C. V. Robinson and Vocational Agricultural teacher, J. M. Binion, V. R. Glaznor, Poultry Specialist of the Purina Feed Mills lectured to farmers and farm women last Friday night at his store.

J. M. Binion had charge of the program which was taken up in the most part by Mr. Glaznor, who talked on how to keep poultry going at a profit at the present low prices of 12-1-2 cents per dozen for eggs. At the present prices of both eggs and feed he pointed out that a hen would have to lay 13 eggs to pay for her feed and that every egg above the 13th egg per month would be a profit egg. The number of profit eggs he pointed out depended on three things: The man or manager, the hen, or factory, and the feed, or raw material. Each of these three items was thoroughly explained.

Mr. Glaznor is one of the outstanding poultry men of the United States, now being associated with the Purina Mills, but who was formerly with Texas A. and M. College as a poultryman. He made his lecture from a very practical standpoint and followed it up by a moving picture strip on poultry care.

County Agent Robinson talked to those present for a few minutes about drouth relief and then every one was served domesticated rabbit sandwiches, furnished by Mr. and Mrs. O. Ray Brown, and coffee.

The meeting was very interesting and Santa Anna was fortunate in having Mr. Glaznor speak here.

Chevrolet Production Is on the Increase

December production of the Chevrolet Motor Company was 64,018 cars and trucks, more than twice the 26,000 units built last December and by a wide margin the biggest twelfth-month in the company's history. W. S. Knudsen, president and general manager, announced the last of the week.

Employment of the company, which has registered consistent gains since the introduction of the 1931 models in November, stood at 32,101 for the week ended December 27, a gain of 347 over the previous week. Mr. Knudsen stated. During the current month the employment figure is expected to climb to 40,000 men, Chevrolet's normal operating force.

December is the second successful month to register a new high production figure, November with an output of 45,000 Chevrolets exceeding all previous Novembers. The January schedule calls for the manufacture of 70,500 units and the tentative figure set for February, despite the short month, stands at 70,400 sixes, according to the Chevrolet executive.

When production of the new 1931 models got under way, employment in the manufacturing division of the company was 26,000, Mr. Knudsen stated. Since that time old employees have been added gradually, and with nearly 10,000 more scheduled to get back to work in January, all regular employes will be back on the job.

Bell County Man Buys Coleman County Cattle

Among the recent visitors to Santa Anna was Maclin Robertson of Salado, Texas. Mr. Robertson is a former breeder of registered Hereford cattle, but for the last few years has devoted his time to other lines. He came to Santa Anna looking for breeding stock to re-establish his registered herd. While here he selected a load of cows and calves from the herd on the Gill Ranch, Whon Texas. The cows he secured were all Texas-bred so he selected the young Polled Sire Debitola 10th to go with them. Debitola 10th was a young bull bred in Kansas and purchased by the Gills for use in their own herd.

In selecting these cattle Mr. Robertson obtained a variety of bloodlines by securing the get of thirteen sires. He was partial, however, to the blood of Randolph 789899 and secured eleven daughters and several grand daughters of this great bull.

The new owner shipped these cattle to his ranch on the line between Bell and Williamson counties.

Christian Education Meeting at Bronwood

Sunday, February 1st an all-day meeting will be held at the First Methodist church in Bronwood for the purpose of studying the new plan for Christian Education in the church. Several cars are to go from here, after the morning service. Those who attend will enjoy the following program:

Afternoon Session—Rev. J. D. F. Williams, presiding.
Devotional—Rev. P. T. Stanford.
Organization—Rev. J. D. F. Williams.

Extension Work and Special Days—Rev. D. L. Barnes.

Leadership Training—Mrs. Hal Cherry.
Schools and Colleges—Rev. J. M. Perry.

After each of these addresses time will be given for general discussion.

Special music by Weatherford Male Quartet.

West Tex Utilities Company Continues to Expand

The 1930 construction program of the West Texas Utilities Company, involving a considerable expenditure, including many important projects according to information received from the general offices of the company at Abilene. Facts released concerned new construction only, and did not include regular maintenance work.

It was pointed out that although general business conditions during the past year were most unfavorable, the company continued in its policy of building to meet future demands, and thus provided employment during a time of dire need.

The largest single project completed during 1930 were the 25,000 horsepower steam-generator unit installed in the Concho Generating station at San Angelo, together with the necessary enlargements and improvements in the physical structure, and the Nasworthy Dam, also at San Angelo, which will furnish an adequate supply of water to meet the future growth and development of that territory. The Nasworthy Dam impounded 10,500 acre-feet of water, and inundated approximately 1,400 acres of land. According to information released, the new Nasworthy Lake is of sufficient size to be included on the new state maps.

The expansion program of the company, carrying the benefits of electric service to new cities, towns, communities and rural homes, necessitated the building of over three hundred miles of high tension transmission line—further spreading the network of trunk transmission lines through-out the forty-eight counties served by the company.

Eleven substations were completed during the year, and enlargement and improvements were made on many others. New local offices were erected in six cities: Memphis, Matador, Stratford, Dumas, Eldorado and Rankin. Improvements and additions were made on physical property at other points, and warehouses and ice sales stations were built.

Many miles of distribution system, rural electric lines, water and gas mains were installed. Expansion into new territories added several towns to those already receiving service from the company, and at the close of 1930, 120 cities and towns were receiving dependable electric service—distributed over a network of more than 2,500 miles of transmission line.

In addition to the new construction briefly reviewed in the report, repair and maintenance crews were busy throughout the year, strengthening and improving service in all parts of the properties.

The statement pointed out that the West Texas Utilities Company would continue in its progressive program of expansion and development throughout 1931.

The tower of the magnificent Chrysler building was most effectively used to proclaim the spirit of Christmas. In the top-most stories, after the rest of the offices were closed, certain windows of the building were left lighted to form a cross, beautiful against the blackness of the night.

But the height of something or other, anything you want to name, in fact, is the singing of Christmas carols from the 85th story of the Empire State building. This was done Christmas day.

FARMERS UNABLE TO ATTEND ON ACCOUNT OF MUDDY ROADS

Due to the rain and muddy roads there was a slight decrease in attendance at the regular meeting of the farmers evening school last Monday night. The 15 who were there had a very good discussion on the keeping of poultry accounts and the culling of poultry. Live birds were on hand to demonstrate the proper way in which to cull should be down.

The meeting next Monday night will be given over to keeping Dairy records as well as to other livestock records and a short film on dairying will be shown.

The meeting will be held at the high school beginning at seven p. m.

High School P.-T. A.

The High School division of the P.-T. A. met Wednesday, January 21st at the High School. There was a nice representation of members. The Junior class gave a very entertaining program. A play on "Thrift" as one of the numbers was very enjoyable as well as instructive. Bro. Womack gave a most interesting talk on thrift as that was the theme for the afternoon.

When the business was taken up it was voted to send a gallon of milk a day to the undernourished children of the Grammar school; to co-operate with the other organizations as requested by the Federation of City clubs, to furnish pads for the hospital, to donate a sum to buy books for the High School library, in order to meet the requirements of the State. The club adjourned to meet in February.

Quite a few Santa Anna people attended a singing at Paul Jivens in the Plainview Community, Sunday night.

Next Tuesday night, Feb. 3, is regular meeting night of Jack Laughlin Post, American Legion. Every member is urged to be present and bring a Buddy with him. There will be something interesting discussed and every experienced man should come out and join in the discussion.

There are several bills pending before the present Congress in regard to payment of the Adjusted Compensation Certificate and the Post Commander has something to say in regards to this COME! And bring some Buddy.

The Interscholastic League

The Interscholastic League is merely a training school which is thoroughly beneficial—not in one way but many. What ever is entered, one should enter to gain the benefits of it,—not to win fame. It teaches one to be a good loser as well as winner, and acquaints one with his ability and gives him self-confidence. Every eligible boy or girl should enter at least one event. Be it declamation or track. A good winner has reached the first milestone in his life—one step on the ladder to his distant goal in life. It not only benefits one as mentioned above but it helps one in his school work. It also creates in the student a desire to strive harder for the goal, despite all obstacles which are in the way.

CHILDREN LOVE TO READ

The state demands it and the P. T. A. has decided to aid in supplying more books for the library.

If you have any old books that you will donate to this cause, your name as the donor, will be placed in the book and put in the library.

If you have books that you will sell at a reasonable price, we will gladly pay you for same.

All books must meet the state requirements of Bulletin 241. For information call 384-63 or 62.

All books will be promptly called for and classified.

THE BULLETIN BOARD

The bulletin board is an object which every school should have. It is a daily reminder and it is helpful in many ways. Although many students neglect looking at the bulletin board, it often has important announcements which absorb only a few minutes to read and which, had they been neglected, would change the whole course of the day. It should be the daily duty of every student to read it and once the habit is formed, one will not easily forget it. It should be stressed upon the mind of the student that the bulletin board is for his benefit and that he should make the best use of it.

THE FAMILY DOCTOR

By JOHN JOSEPH GAINES, M.D.

HEREDITY

Thinking people evolve theories, based on a more or less extensive period of observation; but theories are not always facts. It is a common deduction among people to believe that, because a parent was afflicted with a certain disease, his child or children were in line for the same terrible calamity; and, many discredit themselves in this belief.

The fact is, the TENDENCY, not the disease, may be inherited. Human tissue differs in certain families, much as the plants about us differ in individual texture. Certain woods decay quicker than others; this is true of the human structure as well.

Perhaps the most tenable theory today is, that mental disorders are strongly hereditary. Within a certain limitation this seems to be true; yet, it does not always prove out that insanity is positively hereditary; I have known several instances where parents that died insane, left children of brilliant and lasting mentality. Dear reader, if you have had the regrettable fact of an insanity among your immediate ancestors or near relatives, the very best thing for you to do is, to forget it right now! In other words, you may work an unspeakable harm to your own sensitive nervous system, by torturing yourself constantly with the thought of when you must in all likelihood, go the same way!

Your tendency, if any, can be overcome by self-discipline. Do not over-tax a delicate nerve structure. Your nervous system will last for full time, if you do not urge it beyond its strength to bear. The sheet on which I am writing may outlast the strongest sole-leather, if it is taken care of for what it will stand.

The overcoming of tendency is possible always. Keep away from the causes of break-down, whether it be body or mind. Worry is one of the most potent causes of insanity. The man with a "tendency" musn't worry—remember that, and, live out your full expectation.

Handfuls of Sunshine for Brooder Chicks . . . Baby chicks raised in brooder batteries, or anywhere without the sunlight that builds strong frames and healthy bodies, need something to take the place of that sunshine. Something that will give them precious Vitamin D. Blue Tag Brooder Starter is concentrated sunshine to brooder chicks. For it contains cod liver oil tested for Vitamin D.

Everything depends on the start. If chicks have the right kind of feeding at the beginning, they grow into big, strong, saleable birds, or healthy, high-production layers. They start with healthy digestive organs. That means they can resist disease. And that means more money out of every batch. Start them and keep them on Blue Tag Feed.

The Life-Blood of Industry

The work of the newly-organized Texas All-State Committee will have a stimulating effect on West Texas industry. It will not only increase the production of manufacturing plants already located in this vast empire, but will bring new factories and new capital into the territory.

For efficient and economical operation of any business relying upon motive power for its production work, electric current supplied by the ever-ready, dependable transmission line system is an absolute necessity. In no other way can the manufacturer be assured of a constant, flexible supply of energy.

When new industries locate in West Texas, they will choose the towns in which transmission line service is available. The West Texas Utilities Company . . . with its three major generating stations, twenty-two auxiliary plants, and over 2,500 miles of transmission line . . . is rendering dependable electric service to 120 prosperous cities, towns and communities in West Texas, the "Land of Opportunity." It is furnishing them with the very life-blood of industry, so necessary to permanent growth and development.

The Agricultural Course Will Be Of Interest To Everyone In The County

Agricultural Course Will Be On Corn, Poultry, Dairying, Live Stock, Etc.

The average reader outside of Washington would probably be surprised, in the midst of current discussion of political affairs, if he were told that there is not even an outside chance that there will be a third party movement in 1932.

Yet that is precisely true. This was definitely indicated in the statement by Sen. Norris, Nebraska, in declining an offer to head such a movement. Yet the Lucas-Norris controversy has equal importance in indicating that there will be a serious battle for the republican nomination in that party's next national convention.

The western progressives are sure to unite in a vigorous attempt to nominate one of their number. They will have many more senators and congressmen with them in an effort to gain control within the party than they would if they tried to oppose the eventual nominee with a third ticket.

Few experienced political observers in Washington, however, feel that there is no danger of President Hoover not being re-nominated by his party. For one thing the tradition of giving a president a second term is almost as strong as that which prohibits a third term.

For another, the president is in control of the party machinery and the 1912 Taft-Roosevelt convention battle showed that it is next to impossible to secure enough votes to defeat a presidential bid.

Finally, most of these prominent here think that general conditions will be considerably better by the time the conventions are held, and that this will consequently rebound to Mr. Hoover's favor, just as the depression caused a swing away from him.

This being the case, the attention of the majority here is turned toward the possible democratic nominees. Upon the man that party nominates depends the attitude of the insurgent republicans. Only three democrats have been very prominently suggested, Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt of New York, Owen D. Young of that state and Gov. Albert C. Ritchie of Maryland.

Each of these, it is conceded by everyone, is a real possibility for the nomination, and outside of them there are few who even suggested. Roosevelt would undoubtedly carry far weight with the west than either of the others; on the other hand both Young and Ritchie have large popular followings.

In any event, the convention year promises to be far livelier than any since World War days, and with the outcome far more uncertain than in the 1928 election.

Of six states out of 48 which showed an increased rural population in 1930, as compared with 1920, three were of the New England group, census bureau final figures show. Even Massachusetts' urban population dropped from 94.8 to 90.2, while New Hampshire's declined to 58.7 per cent from 63.1 and Rhode Island's from 97.5 to 92.4.

Of the other states, two, Delaware and Maryland, were in the South Atlantic section, and one, Arizona, in the mountain section. The Delaware urban decline was from 54.2 to 51.7, that of Maryland, 60 to 59.8, and that of Arizona, 35.2 to 34.4.

American wheat production will be on a domestic basis in five years, provided there are no radical changes in conditions, Chairman Alexander Legge of the farm board, said in a press conference here the other day.

Feeding 12 pounds of grain a day to cows before calving time had little more material influence on their condition than feeding four pounds a day to similar cows had, it was found in an experiment at the agriculture department's Beltsville farm near here.

In another experiment it was discovered that apportioned feeding of 31 Holsteins for 83 cow-months and 40 Jerseys for 163 cow-months resulted in an average daily production by the former of 35 pounds a day and by the latter of 21 pounds daily. The Holsteins declined in milk 8.2 per cent a month and the Jerseys 9.3 per cent. The system therefore appeared to provide sufficient nutrition, judging from weight gains and milk declines.

BUSINESS TRAINING TODAY'S GREAT CALL

There are many educational centers in America, but one of the most unusual of them all is Tyler, Texas. The city in the heart of East Texas is the capital of the entire South when it comes to practical business education.

It is made so by The Tyler Commercial College and School of Business Administration, an institution that has been famous now for more than a generation as the school where young men and women secure the priceless training that brings success in Business. The great cry from the world of present-day business, the call for trained minds, is answered here.

The big school at Tyler is really more than an institution. It is a whole group of complete schools, for each of its general courses is really a school in itself. The School of Radio, the Telegraphy School, the Junior Business School—these and others are quite separate from the General Business School and the Private Secretarial School. Here is a Great College that not only trains students for practical business positions, but even singles out specific business fields and centers every effort upon complete specialization.

Each of these main schools at Tyler Commercial College and School of Business Administration issues a catalog of its own, and young men and women who know that training for business is the order of the day will do well to write for one or another of these books. They are free. They have been prepared for the information and guidance of young people everywhere—and the big student body at Tyler gives ample evidence that young people almost everywhere recognize the importance of their various messages.

"SEE HOW WRONG YOU'VE BEEN"

In England I talked with some celebrated economists, who were very gloomy. They said the fundamental trouble with the world goes deeper than war debts or unemployment. It is the shortage of gold.

Gold is the measure of all values. When the gold dollars are few each dollar buys more wheat and copper and cotton and labor. So the price of all these commodities goes down, ruining the producers in the process. If the shortage becomes much more acute, so these wise men argued, it will overturn all wage scales and debt settlements, and result in economic chaos.

As I know nothing about economics (and, between ourselves, I often wonder whether the economists know very much), this scared me.

The next day I was talking with Ambassador Dwight W. Morrow, who was in London as one of the delegates to the Naval Conference. I told him what I had heard.

Instead of replying directly, he took down from the mantle-piece a copy of the autobiography of Lord Comer, and turned to a passage which read something like this:

"When I was a young man I proposed to keep a diary, but my wise old uncle advised against it. Instead of recording what had happened, he said, I could employ my time more profitably by writing down on a piece of paper what I felt sure was going to happen. Then, he said, put those notes away, and a year or five years later get them out and read them over, and see how wrong you have been. This will teach you to be cautious."

What shrewd advice this is! All of us could profit by it. I know that if I had written down my own private forecast at the beginning of each year and filed it away it would have saved me from making a number of costly mistakes.

Also, the record would make rather encouraging reading. It would show that a considerable amount of unanticipated good luck has come into my life.

And that many of the bad things which I predicted for myself and the country have never actually happened.

FORD SMOOTHNESS

The new Ford has more than twenty ball and roller bearings

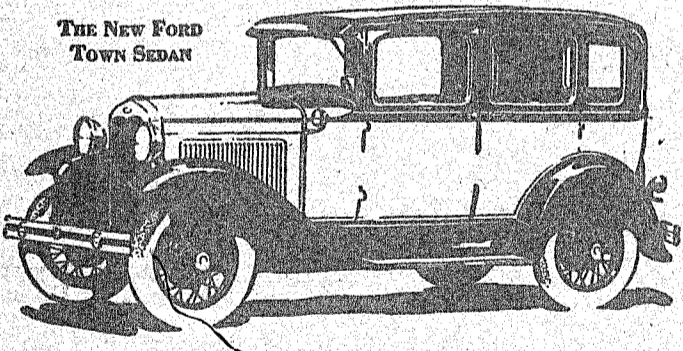

EVIDENCE of the high quality built into the new Ford is the extensive use of ball and roller bearings. There are more than twenty in all—an unusually large number. Each bearing is adequate in size and carefully selected for the work it has to do.

At some points in the Ford chassis you will find ball bearings. At others, roller bearings are used regardless of their higher cost. The deciding factor is the performance of the car.

The extensive use of ball and roller bearings in the new Ford insures smoother operation, saves gasoline, increases speed and power, gives quicker pick-up, decreases noise, and gives greater reliability and longer life to vital moving parts.

Other outstanding features that make the new Ford a value far above the price are the Triplex shatter-proof glass windshield, silent, fully enclosed four-wheel brakes, four Houdaille double-acting hydraulic shock absorbers, aluminum pistons, chrome silicon alloy valves, three-quarter floating rear axle, Rustless Steel, the extensive use of fine steel forgings, and unusual accuracy in manufacturing.

OVERPRODUCTION ON THE FARM

In some parts of the country farmers have taken seriously the warning of the Federal Farm Board against overproduction. In other parts they have paid no attention to it, and have sowed more winter wheat than last year.

It will take a long time, before farmers are so well organized and information about crop conditions and production so well understood by all of them, that they will not plant too much. But it is as true as anything ever said from a pulpit that the principal trouble with agriculture, insofar as agriculture can do anything about it, is that too many farmers are growing too much of the same commodity, not only in America but all over the world.

Chairman Leage of the Farm Board pointed out the other day that Nebraska has cut down the winter wheat acreage twelve percent. If all of the other wheat-growing regions did the same thing, and kept their spring sowing down in the same proportion, the result would certainly be vastly larger returns for every wheat grower. But every farmer who plants as much to wheat this year as he did last year is reducing his own income and causing all of the other wheat-growers to lose also. Nobody makes any money on wheat when it is as low as it has been for the past year; everybody would make money on it if there were only half as much of it grown and in the market.

Missouri and Arkansas have some excuse for sowing more winter wheat than a year ago. The drought hit those states harder than it did most of the rest of the wheat country, and much of the winter wheat sown there is for pasturage for livestock. Wheat-feeding to cattle and hogs has proved a very successful and profitable way of using up the surplus. But all of the efforts of the Government to stabilize the production of the staple crops and to organize their marketing on an orderly basis will be futile until all farmers, everywhere, get into the habit of working together toward the same end. And that end is smaller crops of everything with higher prices per unit of production.

Better five dollars an acre profit from a hundred acres than a dollar an acre loss from five hundred acres.

MAIN STREET LOOKS AT BROADWAY BY ERNEST CAMP JR.

New York has been called, in song and story, a "great, cruel city without a heart." But that statement was a hard one to believe during the Christmas season. In homes, prisons and charity lines, thousands were fed and given clothing. All New York participated in the spirit of Christmas. Never before was the need for help so evident, and never before has the city been so generous in making Christmas a merry one for those who were unfortunate enough, but certainly deserving, to have one of their own.

The Municipal Lodging House served Christmas dinner to 8,100 jobless men and women. At three Salvation Army stations, thousands of needy men, women and children ate turkey dinners made possible by contributions of the public. The leading newspapers of the city waged intense relief campaigns, and several are continuing to maintain food supply trucks to feed those in the breadlines which form daily.

CHILDREN MADE HAPPY

One newspaper alone fed 15,000 families, representing 35,000 persons. Special Christmas parties were held at many institutions, prisons, veterans hospitals and churches. Sailors at Brooklyn Navy Yard were hosts to 150 children, and other children in the district were entertained on various ships. Restaurant proprietors gave generous meals free of charge to the hungry and in similar ways hotels brought cheer to those who most needed it. In the toms and other city prisons and in Sing Sing, routine was forgotten for the day while prisoners enjoyed holiday dinners and unusual privileges.

The spirit of Christmas giving reigned, and some charities laid foundations for a program of relief which will be effective for the year around.

TWELVE MILES OUT

One colored gentleman, however was not satisfied with the quality of Christmas cheer being dispensed (in bottles) in New York. He announced his distrust of holiday liquor and said he was going out where gin was gin and not varnish or words to that effect. He accordingly set out in a row boat, his destination being twelve miles out. But his nautical career was cut short by a police launch which overtook the lone sailor off Governor's Island and brought him back. Although he did not exactly achieve his goal, to him must go the credit of proving that the man who would walk a mile for a certain cigarette is surely a piker.

THEME SONG

The musicians themselves did not know it, but everyone, in the crowded church did. The minister, preaching the sermon, was telling the Christmas story. He described that night in Bethlehem when the heavens opened and the angel choir began to sing. Just then he stopped, and the mellow strains of a German band, playing in a distant street, broke the silence with "Silent Night, Holy Night." He paused with hand upraised until the band finished the song. As he resumed, the instruments could be heard, very faintly now, playing "Hark! The Herald Angels Sing." The perfect theme song, unknowingly, but beautifully, rendered.

POETICAL CHRONOLOGY OF 1930

(By Leola Christie Barnes)

In these verses I'll endeavor to make clear The principal happenings of the past year. The curtains first unroll on a wedding in Rome; Prince Humbert of Italy, takes into his home A daughter of Belgium, Princess Marie Jose. January eighth was the auspicious day. On January twenty-first, England's king Opened the Naval Conference, peace to bring.

Chinese rebels and nationalists rash, On February the fourth, at Pingla clash. On February the twenty-sixth, you know, Two thousand rebels took Santa Domingo. On March the eighth, in our own country land, Howard Taft died—an ex-president grand. Astronomers make a planet discovery, On the thirteenth, at Lowell Observatory.

On April eleventh, in a riot in Bombay, Twenty-two Hindus were killed in Ghandi's affray. On the twentieth on the Island of Leyte, A typhoon sent fourteen cities to their fate. By fire, three hundred convicts were taken away, In Ohio Penitentiary, the next day. On May the fifth, an earthquake and tidal wave Sent six hundred in Burma to their grave.

American golfers on the sixth of May, Winners over the British, in a golf affray. The twenty-second saw the first television work In theatre production, Schenectady, New York. An aviatrix, Miss Johnson, from England, alone Flew to Fort Darwin, Australia; a flight of her own. May the twenty-third. On thirty-first of May, Bob Jones took the amateur golf prize away.

From Brazil, more than thirteen thousand of miles away, The Graf Zeppelin reaches New Jersey, on last day. June eighth, Roumania, Carol II King proclaimed; On the twelfth of June, Helen as queen he named. June the seventeenth, Bolivia joined the nations, Whose lands are laid low by riotous desecration. On nineteenth, New York offered the nation's welcome word To explorer of Antarctic: Admiral Byrd.

Allied Powers their twelve years occupancy took away From the glad people in the Rhineland, on June's last day. July third, Nanking armies the rebellion crush; Losing five thousand men, to fifteen thousand hush. On the seventeenth, in Arizona State, Began the construction of Boulder Dam great. A noted novelist and psychist, that same day, Sir Conan Doyle of England, passed quietly away.

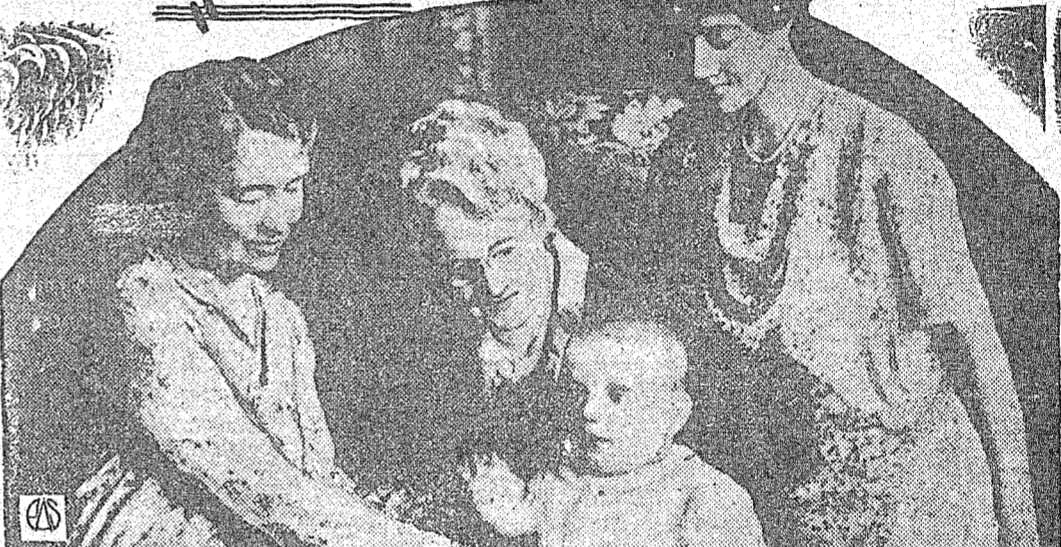

Arriving for a tour of America, next day, Zara Agha, the Turk, hundred-fifty-six, they say. The twenty-third, in Southern Italy, an earthquake Killed thousands, destroyed whole cities and homes, by its shake. On August the eighth, our official relates Over hundred, twenty-two million in United States. Twenty-second, Balloonist Andree of Sweden was found, For thirty-three years frozen on White Island's icy ground.

We hear rebels attack Lima, Peru, the next day. September second, arrive Coste and Bellonte. Next day, Santo Domingo is struck by hurricane, Forty million property loss, and four thousand slain. The next, revolutionist Argentina infest. On ninth, United States wins International Polo. On eighteenth of September, wins yachting cup. Ho. Ho. October fourth, revolution breaks out in Brazil. Eighth, Philadelphia Athletics give baseball world thrill. China's civil war on the eleventh was ended. Twenty-fifth, Giovanna with King Boris III was blended. November second, Abyssinia, Selassie I Emperor named; A descendant of Solomon and Queen Sheba, he claimed. December eleventh, a plot to overthrow Spain was revealed.

Twenty-fifth, an earthquake caused Japan to lament. On December third, Hoover, to Congress did present A budget, that all peace time budgets exceeded; While Congress was working on relief fund needed. Fogs on December fifth, from Meuse Valley arise From which, scores of Belgium's people mysteriously dies. Four days later, one hundred, ten million, the house passes; And the Senate appropriate for relief of masses.

December tenth, to Frank Kellogg, an auspicious day; He received the Nobel Peace prize at Oslo, Norway. The eleventh, sees Albert Einstein, already again In America. The next day, revolt starts in Spain. Seriously, rebels hold border city in awe; The sixteenth saw Spanish cities under martial law.

It seemed, revolutions made a nation in style, As the majority have had them quite a while. We've been reading of Congress, in session for days, Busy discussing different methods and ways To assist our nation in her national woes; A sure remedy for which, it seems nobody knows. But, on December the twentieth, it was decided That three hundred eleven million be provided. As the curtain goes down, let us always remember The year's grande finale, on twentieth of December.

HOW THE GOVERNMENT HELPS

One hundred and sixteen million dollars for public works, forty-five millions for the relief of farmers who were affected by the 1930 drought—that is the sum which Congress has put into the President's hands since December 1, as a further effort toward getting money into circulation and getting men back to work. That ought to help a lot. Many important Federal highway projects have been held up because the states concerned were not in a position to appropriate their share. Under the new appropriation Federal money will be lent to the states, in addition to what the Federal Government pays as its share. It is definite now that the largest road-building program of any year will be carried through in 1931. The trouble with public works as a means of relieving unemployment emergencies is that they cannot be begun instantly.

Until money has been appropriated by Congress. State ment Legislatures or municipal governments, the preliminary plans cannot be drawn. Everybody knows that the building of even a simple house takes a great deal of preliminary time in selecting the lot and drawing the plans before the hauling of materials to the job can commence. How much more time it takes to start work on such a project as the Hoover dam few of us realize. Engineers have been at work for a year on the plans, and are only just now ready to get bids for materials and work. It will be several months before actual work, in the sense of employing any considerable body of workers, can be begun.

The BEST Gray Hair Remedy is Home Made

To half pint of water add one ounce bay rum, a small box of Barbo Compound and one-fourth ounce of glycerine. Any druggist can put this up or you can mix it at home at very little cost. Apply to the hair twice a week until the desired shade is obtained. It will gradually darken streaked, faded or gray hair and make it soft and glossy. Barbo will not color the scalp, is not sticky or greasy and does not rub off.

Fourth Installment

Maggie Johnson, whose father is a letter-carrier, is the domestic drudge of the humble home where her mother does little except bemoan the fact that she has "seen better days" and her sister Liz, who works in a beauty shop, lies abed late. Maggie has to get the family breakfast before she starts out to her job in the Five-and-Ten-Cent store.

There's a new boy at the Five-and-Ten, Joe Grant. He tells Maggie that he has been assigned to work as her helper in the stock room. He seems rather dumb, but Maggie helps him through his first day at the store and shares lunch with him in a cubbyhole of a place that belongs to a mattress factory next door to the Five-and-Ten.

Joe knew that Maggie was falling in love with him before Maggie discovered it. But he was a little slow in discovering that he, in turn, was falling in love with Maggie. But he admitted to himself that his admirator for her was growing, and the girls in the store began to notice something different about her.

"None. Doesn't know a darn thing about cooking," Joe confessed.

"Don't your father help her none any?" Maggie asked.

"Never. The old man is no more use around the house than a paper monkey!"

"Joe. I do think that's pretty hard on you! Who makes your bed?"

"Oh, anybody. Last night I had dinner with some friends of ours named Russell," Joe volunteered.

"And did she give you a good dinner?"

"Oh, yes—she cooks all right. An odd look came into Joe's eyes. "Her daughter was there."

"Daughter? An' her husband?"

"No. Mill—Milly's not married."

"The daughter ain't?"

"None."

"Just a little girl, huh?"

"Nope. Milly's about—nineteen."

"I guess she's pretty, ain't she?"

"She's beautiful."

But he told himself that he must stop his teasing, when he saw her suddenly daunted face, the gallant efforts she made to appear quite herself.

But he saw that her colour had ebbed and that the little hand that steadied the boxes was itself unsteady.

He felt oddly shaken. He returned to his own business filled with a wretched sensation that he must somehow make this up to Maggie. Yet—hang it!—the very making up would carry the matter further, and it had gone far enough.

He shook himself physically. He could not shake the thought away. He unlucky—would the roadster parked a few blocks away, and the comfort of one of the State's most beautiful homes back of the roadster. He unlucky—a Merrill playing at work, here in one of the stores he would largely own some day!

More bewildering still, he was beginning to like this play work.

But oddly, unexpectedly, there were moments when the Mack filled his soul with deep content. Joe revelled in the rush and hurry, the absurdity and yet seriousness of everything that went on in the Mack. Even Smith and Fleming sometimes took Joe into their counsels, as they wondered importantly to and fro.

Joe's championship of Maggie helped her from the very beginning—an obvious fact that made her still more his abject slave. On a dismal, early January day Maggie first appeared in what might have been called her normal form, he heard the congratulations that the busy girls flung at her from all sides, and congratulated himself that he was partly responsible at least.

She had done no more than electrify everyone by discarding magnificently, and without permission, the disfiguring ticking apron. That was all. But the effect was astonishing.

Everybody looked at her, said, turning scarlet.

"No, you might call them nice girls," Joe conceded, "and you might call them smart girls. But, no, you'd hardly call them young ladies."

"Like school and lib'arians," said Maggie.

"Yep. I guess school teachers and librarians would be young ladies all right," Joe laughed. "Leave it to you to think a thing like that!" he said.

"My aunt was a school teacher, Joe," she said, "Joe, how would a person who wasn't a lady get to be one? Somebody helped her from the very beginning—an obvious fact that made her still more his abject slave. On a dismal, early January day Maggie first appeared in what might have been called her normal form, he heard the congratulations that the busy girls flung at her from all sides, and congratulated himself that he was partly responsible at least.

She had done no more than electrify everyone by discarding magnificently, and without permission, the disfiguring ticking apron. That was all. But the effect was astonishing.

Everybody looked at her, everybody praised her, and the packing-room boys went down like a row of ten-pins.

It was on this same day that she said to Joe, with a carefully careless air:

"I'll bet, if you fell in love, Joe, it would be with a regular young lady, wouldn't it?"

"How do you mean, regular young lady?" Joe asked.

"Well, I mean—you know, a nice—sort of smiling—" Maggie floundered—"I mean—" she began again desperately—"mean, for instance, that there are lots of girls in this store that you couldn't call young ladies!" she must of commenced, once you know."

"Well, reading the backs of newspapers and magazines about manners, for one thing."

"That helps a lot, and to be always looking for the right way to do things, to be quiet and gentle and listen to the way nice persons speak. And then, of course, there's always the rule that a lady puts the feelings of others before her own—thinks of others first."

"Nice things all join together, don't they Joe?" she said in deep thought.

Again she floundered. "I guess I couldn't!" she said hastily, shrinking back, gallant, and he saw she was trying to save his feelings. "You don't have to tell me, Joe," she said.

"Maggie, I not only believe you could, but I believe you will!"

"Well, if you say so," she almost sang, and she rattled joyously away.

On the next Sunday he went to see her.

He reached the Johnson cottage in the neighborhood of three o'clock.

He had to wait a few, cold, wet, silent minutes before footsteps, audibly approaching thru the house, notified him that he had been heard.

Miss Elizabeth Johnson admitted him. For want of any guidance,—for Liz, after a shout of "Maggie! Man here!" had almost immediately disappeared into what later proved to be her bedroom door,—Joe had followed the little hall into an empty dining room smelling of rotting apples and dust, and had put his head in at the kitchen door—

LEARN TO JUDGE QUALITY IN MEATS

With a little practice the housewife soon can become able to judge the quality of meat to a helpful extent. Meat animals vary as to breed, age, sex, size, and condition. This naturally results in different grades of meat. The feed on which the animal has been raised also has a strong bearing on the quality of the meat which it yields. For example, meat from a steer which has been fed practically nothing but grass and forage will not be so choice as that from a corn and silage fed steer.

Beef

The thickness of the lean meat and the depth of the fat are general indications of quality in all kinds of meat. Choice beef has a smooth, uniform outside covering of clear white fat. The lean should be firm with a fine, texture of light red color. It is finely marbled; that is, there is a mixture of fat through the lean flesh. The medium grades are slightly darker in color and the marbling in the lean flesh is not quite so pronounced. The percentage of bone to meat is higher in the plain grades than in the better ones.

Veal

Veal should be less firm than good beef, and pink in color, rather than red. The fat should be almost clear white and the lean less marbled than that of choice beef.

Pork

Pork should be a dark pink and the fat less firm than that of either beef or lamb. It should cut easily and the fat should be smooth and pure white, and not so hard as beef.

Lamb

The lean part of lamb should be a pale or light dull red and quite firm. The fat should be creamy white and firm. All meats should be firm to the touch and elastic.

HERE'S HELP FOR LAUNDRY DAY

No longer do we have "madonnas of the wash-tubs" for wash day is not the gloomy patience killer it was of yore. Methods are easier, equipment is improved and the blundering materials most of all, have been so improved as to chase away the "blues" from "Blue Monday."

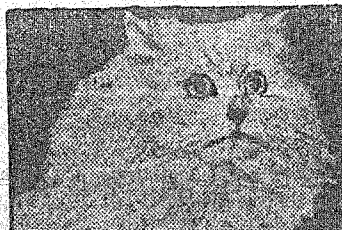

According to statistics there are nearly three million washing machines in use in the country, and more than 7,000 power driven laundries doing business. Mrs. 1931 lets the laundry do a large part of her washing, but always she will, herself, do the nicest napsery and the daintiest garments, for she knows it is not the original cost but the care of them that counts. It's the restoring of the original texture and gloss and finish to the linens, the laces and cottons that is important—and this is an easy matter if, after proper washing, the careful use of laundry starch is employed, giving a gloss and finish not only to the linens, but to the less costly materials, crash, Indian head, mercerized materials.

Of course, proper starching will keep the clothes clean longer, too—by reinforcing and protecting the very structure of the material, it will be able to keep dirt from entering the fabric, and likewise, make stains removable.

Before washing new napsery, examine it carefully to know the quality you are trying to retain. Pure linens, the daintier garments need only a trace of starch; the heavier materials and the mercerized fabrics need more. For those things we want starched more stiffly, a cold water starch is usually employed, one of the finer grained starches, being appropriate. For the light-starching, the hot water starch is best, using a coarser grained product or even bulk starch.

Laundry Directions
Nearly all home-makers know the procedure of laundering napsery. General directions may be of interest to the novice housekeepers. First, mend, if necessary. Then remove any stains according to the particular method required. Rub spots with a good soap or in a soap solution. Soak the white articles in tepid water which contains a soap solution. Do not soak colored napsery. Soase up and down in the water, then rub only those parts which are greatly soiled. Rinse in several waters until the final one is clear. Use a small amount of bluing in the last water. Wring then starch, using the amount necessary to restore the original texture. Wring again, pull into shape, being careful not to stretch the corners, and dry. Iron while slightly damp. If you want to retint the materials, add a small amount of tint to the starch solution.

REMOVING STAINS
For fruit, coffee, punch stains,

First Prize Cat
"Lady of the Moon," a shaded silver cat which won first prize at the Atlantic Cat Club show in New York.

etc., stretch the spotted portion tightly over a bowl and pour rapidly boiling water through, from a kettle held a foot and a half above it.

For chocolate, follow the same procedure, but first moisten with cold water and borax. For blood stains, use soap and cold water; for ink and iron rust, use oxalic acid diluted with an equal amount of cold water; put on with a medicine dropper, rinse again and wash.

Cream stains or any grease stains should be removed as soon as possible. If sponging with soap and water is not effective, try washing in baking soda solution or use a cleaning fluid.

Stains in cloth which has been starched will usually come out more quickly than in unstarched materials; and the boiling water method is usually efficacious, for it dissolves the starch and the stain comes with it.

Cream Dressing

Two and a half tablespoons of mustard.
Eighth of tablespoon of white pepper.
One tablespoon of salt.
Two tablespoons of tarragon vinegar.

Attends a Japanese Theater Party

Three-quarters cup of cream.

Method: Mix and sift the mustard, white pepper and salt. Moisten them with the vinegar and add two tablespoons of the cream. Beat the rest of the cream until it begins to stiffen; fold in the first mixture until ingredients are thoroughly blended, and continue beating until the mixture is stiff.

This is a stiff dressing.

Lemon Jelly

One box gelatine soaked in one pint cold water. Add juice of three lemons and one orange, an inch of stick cinnamon and one pint of hot water. Bring to boil, strain and mould. Serve with custard and whipped cream.

PRESIDENT FRASER TO INSPECT WORK ON NEW W. O. W. CHAPEL AND SANCTUARY

Woodmen of the World Chief to Confer With Texas Officials on Head Camp Meeting at Mineral Wells.

A. Fraser, president of the Woodmen of the World Life Insurance Association will be in San Antonio soon to formally inspect the construction work on the new chapel and head sanctuary, being erected by the W. O. W. on the Memorial Hospital grounds. Fraser will leave Omaha Saturday for his trip to Texas and while in San Antonio, he will confer with W. O. W. leaders in regard to the Head Camp meeting to be held at Mineral Wells, April 1 and 4. Mr. Fraser will be the principal speaker at the Head Camp meeting.

Font From Italy

It is in Italy that only Mr. Fraser purchased a beautiful font for the chapel. The beautiful font was purchased in an old church in Rome. It is made of Carrara marble and is of the type known as a "fontaine" from Rome. It is being shipped from Rome during the coming month. The font will be formally dedicated at the time of the dedication of the chapel, the date of which has not yet been set.

Though not the largest, nor the most beautiful to be erected in Texas this year, the W. O. W. chapel and head sanctuary will be one of the most interior and interesting structures in the city.

It is located on a corner of the main street, which is the center of the Woodmen of the World. It has been a landmark for many years. The members of the Association who have been admitted to the order, is

Tiffany Art Windows

For west wall of the north of the chapel contains a large original Tiffany Art Glass window, one of the features of the building. The chapel is separated from the nave by a modified Gothic arch. In the chancel there are choir seats, organ console, and the key board for the operation of the chimes.

The walls of the nave, which is in traditional English chapel style, are surfaced with a rough textured plaster. The windows are number colored stained glass in diamond pattern. The roof is supported with rough oak trusses and all rafters and other framing members are exposed. The sanctuary is lighted by three art glass windows with a grained, vaulted ceiling.

Outdoor Services

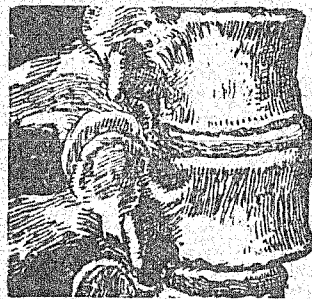

At the intersection of the two open cloisters is the tower, which forms at its base a room nearly twelve feet square with walls of Ashlar stone and a high vaulted ceiling. The tower and cloisters connect with the main portion of the building to form an open court which is lighted so that religious services or chime recitals may be conducted outdoors during the summer months.

Special landscaping will be one of the features of this most attractive structure.

"The chapel will be a universal church," said President Fraser.

Business IS SLIGHTLY OUT of JOINT

Farming is the backbone of business and when the crops fail business gets out of joint. We are interested in having a prosperous year and believe better farming methods as taught at the Short Course to be held at the High School on February 16th and 17th one of the surest ways to bring this about.

We are going to attend.

Wants to Sell Her Mule for $30

Mrs. Corra Harris, famous novelist of Cartersville, Ga., says she's going to keep her dog but she wants to sell her mule. She advertised it in the local paper thus: "Black mare mule, weight 1300 pounds. Fond of radishes, will bite when urged to do so. Barks only twice a year, beginning of each working season; small dose of peppersauce administered makes her go like house afire. Never has told her age, but reckoned 13 years old."

PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH

Four people were received into the church last Sunday Morning. May they have the encouragement which they will need along the pathway of life.

There was a good interest in the service last Sunday. Always we have interest and loyalty. If you are not going elsewhere, come and join with us. Come and see and hear and worship and very likely you will come again.

Come to prayer meeting and Bible study on Wednesday evening. We were delighted with the fine Union service held at the Baptist Church last Sunday night. There was a large congregation most excellent singing and a very friendly spirit of Christian fellowship. There will be union service next Sunday night.

Next Sunday morning opportunity will be given for people to unite with the church. The subject for the sermon will be: "They were Amazed at the Preaching."

Your presence will be helpful.

Would Forgive Debtors

My Best Girl

way.

Ma Johnson, a heavy, wollen kiamono tied about her ample form with dragged tassels, was in the rocker.

At the sink stood a nondescript, forlorn little figure that Joe could not for some minutes at all identify with the gallant picture he had formed of Maggie's father.

Behind the table and between the sink and stove was Maggie. She looked at him delightedly and said: "Well, what do you know! I never heard you ring. If it isn't Joe Grant! Joe have you had dinner?"

"Just up from the table. Hello Maggie," Joe said, grinning. "This is my mother, make you acquainted with my father; Pop this is Joe Grant," said Maggie. Ma was evidently not favorably impressed by Maggie's friend.

"I didn't know you expected a caller, Maggie."

"I didn't, Ma. Sit down, Joe. You don't have to finish those if you don't want to, Pa. I hate to have you—take off your apron."

"Sometimes—my father—kinder helps me, Joe," she stammered, with her gallant smile.

"I don't mind wipin' 'em one bit, Maggie," her father's mild voice said surprisedly.

"I'll help you," said Joe, putting his hat and coat on a chair in the corner of the kitchen and helping himself to a dish towel.

"When we haven't a maid we eat our own," said Mrs. Johnson. "So it don't come easy for me to put up with this sort of thing."

"I see," said Joe nodding. He sat down on the edge of a chair and cleared his throat and said politely:

"Mrs. Johnson, if you've no objection could Maggie go out with me for a while?"

"Why, I haven't no objections Mrs. Johnson said discontentedly, after a moment. "Maggie isn't nothin' but a child, Mr. Grant, an' her father an' I don't want her to get no silly notions into her head."

"Temporarily—temporarily she has accepted a position in a—well, in a five-and-ten," said Ma.

"I know, I work there myself, Mrs. Johnson."

"I've no doubt you do! An' I've no doubt it's a real nice place an' all that," conceded Ma loft-

ly. "But it isn't Maggie's sort of place. To put the whole thing in a nutshell—"

Mrs. Johnson was resuming briskly, when Joe's opportunity to discover whether she was really capable of this elision was destroyed by Maggie's abrupt reentrance into the kitchen, and in another minute they were out in the dull, cold, wintery Sunday street, and she was dancing along at his side.

"Want to go to a movie, Maggie?"

"Oh, I'd love it!"

"How about The Highwayman?"

"Oh, Joe, no! That's a sixty-cent show. There are lots of nice little ones over on Chelsea Avenue here for twenty-five."

They were at the window, he put down his money. But there were nothing left on this Sunday afternoon but loges, at a dollar a chair. Maggie's face fell and immediately her eyes widened and she caught at his arm.

"Joe don't be a fool! Two dollars! It isn't worth it!"

But he saw her give a little bounce of sheer excitement and felicity as they went in past the mirrors and marble columns and red boundary ropes, and he thought it was. Their seats were in the very front of the balcony—deep, comfortable seats, with wide arms.

It was pleasant, somehow, to have that earnest little fragrant baby face come close to his in the dark, and that fuzzy aureole of gold brush his cheek, and that eager little whisper reach his ears.

Joe kept his handsome head bent close to hers, and leaned his shoulder even closer.

Her face was beaming with satisfaction and wet with tears when they came out into the chilly dusk.

In parting he presented her with an enormous box of sweets.

"Oh, Joe Grant! Oh, Joe—two pounds! Oh, thank you—thank you!"

"Oh, hush," he said. "Now run in and I'll watch you until you're inside the door."

She fled up the path, tried the knob of the porch door, called a joyous "Good-night and thank you!" into the dark, was silhouetted against a gush of red light, and then was gone.

Joe walked two blocks to his car, raving at himself.

"Gosh, what a fool I am! What on earth did I do that for?"

Millicent Russell, sitting next to him at dinner, was a pretty girl. From a point an inch or two below her armpits, to a point an inch or two above her knees, she was packed into a tube of spangled satin. Her arms were heavy with links of gold and platinum, her legs looked bare, if they were not actually so, her feet were elevated dizzily upon pinnacles of gold leather. Her cheeks were smoothly and brilliantly rouged, her lips stiff with grease, her eyebrows shaved into two startling, inky arcs.

Millicent's breath was thick of alcohol and nicotine, her eyelids coloured with blue oil, were lowered with fatigue and boredom, and she had no more hair than her brother had.

"I thought you had to go to prison to get a clip like that!" said Joe.
