EARLY SENDING OF CHRISTMAS MAIL URGED

SPECIAL SERVICE FOR COLEMAN COUNTY BAPTISTS

Dr. W. R. White, Mission Secretary, Will be Speaker for the Occasion

The ladies of the county have planned a special Mission Rally to be held at First Baptist Church, Coleman, Monday morning December 1, at 10:00 o'clock. Dr. W. R. White, the State Secretary of Mission, will be the principal speaker.

While the service is fostered by the County W. M. U. it is for all, men as well as women. There are not enough returned Foreign missionaries to cover the State so Dr. White is helping in this great program of spreading missionary information. All the Baptists who possibly can do so are urged to attend this special service. The general public is cordially invited. Dr. White surrendered for foreign mission work but while he waited for us to raise the money, he passed the age limit. He is missionary in spirit and practice and it will do your soul good to hear this humble servant of the Lord.

County News

FARM LADY WILL DEVELOP A FLOCK OF 300 HENS

One hundred and ninety-four eggs per hen per year does not satisfy Mrs. J. C. Hunter, poultry demonstrator in the Rockwood community, even though it is fifty above the Poultry Calendar standard and resulted in a net profit of $1.45 per hen. Mrs. Hunter expects to develop a flock of 300 egg hens and have enough to surpland cotton as king of the family's destiny.

Mr. and Mrs. Hunter have named their attractive 150 acre farm "Move-no-more" and are practicing diversification. A nice home orchard occupies one hillside, an irrigated garden is on a protected slope and a nearby berry patch, this year proved a better cash crop than cotton, as it yielded 230 gallons of berries that brought $81.30.

NO CLUB WOMAN'S FAMILY WILL GO WITHOUT MEALS

No home demonstration club woman's family is going hungry this winter because of the drought and general depression is the conclusion of Miss Helen Swift, district home demonstration agent, who spent Saturday in Coleman county after a swing around her district which took her into many of the counties where general conditions have been reported very bad.

The habit of canning all surplus fruits, vegetables and meat on farms is one that has proven its value this year, she said, and pantry demonstrators who made canning budgets at the beginning of the year and worked them out, using what they were able to raise and trading with neighbors and friends, exchanging commodities, have assured the families ample supplies of appetizing foods.

While here Miss Swift visited demonstrators with Miss Gerty Brent, county home demonstration agent, among them the pantry of Mrs. F. E. Sampson in the Brown Ranch community.—Coleman Democrat-Voice

Lions Club Enjoys Musical Program By Coleman Visitor

Extra to the regular routine of business at the weekly luncheon Tuesday, the Lions Club was entertained with some splendid music furnished by Miss Bill Gideon and Miss Veoma Roquemore of Coleman.

The club plans to cooperate with the American Legion and other civic and community organizations to spread Christmas cheer during the ensuing holidays and a committee will be appointed at the next meeting to look after a budget for that purpose.

In as much as the American Legion plans to give a community Christmas tree, the Lions will cooperate with them, and assist in the forming of a charity fund for the benefit of those who are not able to attend the Christmas tree. A committee will be appointed to work with others in the town to raise a fund to purchase needed supplies to be distributed on Christmas Eve.

A special entertainment program will be furnished at the next week's meeting and all the members of the Club are urged to be present.

Mrs. J. D. Norwood and son of San Antonio came up after her mother Mrs. F. Miles who is going for a visit for awhile.

MRS. P. C. CLARK

Mary Jane Legatt was born August 13th 1851. She married P. C. Clark on July 24th 1866. He died in 1902. To this union eleven children were born, seven of whom survive. All were present at the funeral except two. She also leaves 22 grandchildren and 11 great grandchildren to mourn her going. She died at her home north of Trickham, November 21st and was laid to rest in the Trickham cemetery, after funeral services had been conducted at Trickham church, conducted by Rev. A. L. Oder, assisted by Elder J. P. Sadler of Bangs. Mrs. Clark had been a member of the Church of Christ for forty years.

FORMER SANTA ANNA WOMAN HONORED

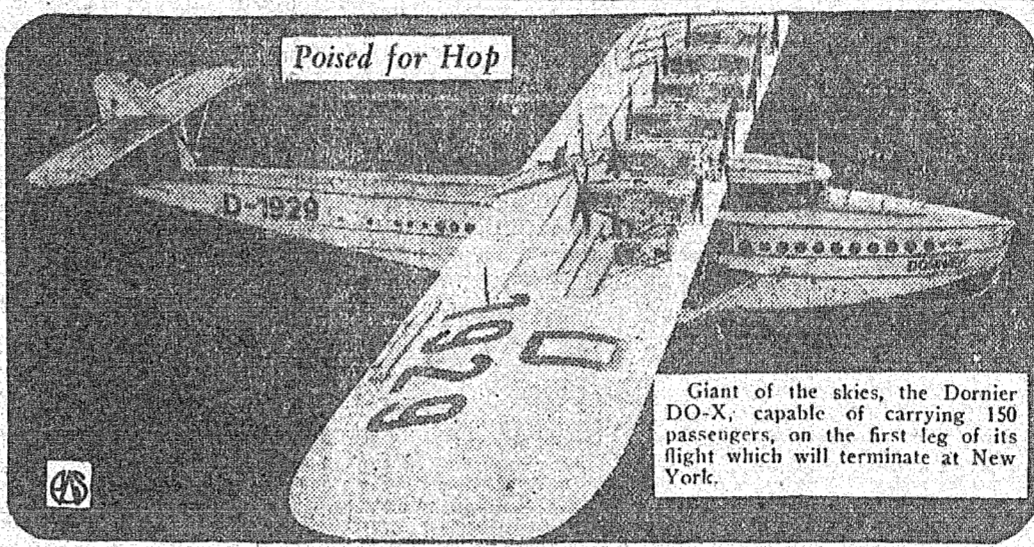

Mrs. B. T. Withers, who formerly lived in Santa Anna, where her husband was the Supt. of the Schools, was recently the honor guest at a dinner given by the Alpha Delphian Chapter, at the Hilton Hotel, in San Angelo. This was in recognition of her recently published book of poems entitled "Red Birds." This affair was given during the State meeting of Parent Teacher's Association and a number of prominent women of this organization was present, as well as many San Angelo women. Suggesting the name of the book, "Red Birds," a motif of red and white was carried out in the luncheon appointments. After dinner, Mrs. Withers told the guests about her book, reading a number of the poems. She was presented with a beautiful Bouquet of red flowers. While a resident here, Mrs. Withers furnished poems for many occasions giving proof of her ability. Here is hoping that her "Red Birds" may fly to very distant parts, bringing her much remuneration, as well as satisfaction.

Mrs. Parker Honored on Birthday

Mrs. S. J. Parker, celebrated her 73rd birthday Tuesday Nov. 25th and she was honored with a surprise party by her children and close friends.

Each one remembered her with a token of love and a big turkey with all the "fixins" was served at the noon hour. We all wish Mrs. Parker many more such happy days.

R. C. Lowe of Haskell visited his mother this week.

CITY FEDERATION OF CLUBS FORMED

Two representatives from each woman's organization in the city met Tuesday afternoon in the library rooms to organize a City Federation of Women's Clubs.

It is hoped that by the united effort of the various church societies and clubs, to do a great deal of worth while civic and benevolent work.

The following officers were elected: Mrs. C. P. Petty, Pres.; Mrs. J. L. Boggus, First Vice-Pres.; Mrs. Clifford Verner, Second Vice President; Mrs. V. Van Zandt, Sec. and Treas. Meetings will be held at four o'clock the third Tuesday afternoon in each mo.

Ross Kelley and Jack Bible returned from Mason Co. with 3 nice Bucks.

J. W. Johnson and son came in from a hunt with two nice Bucks.

Enlists in Navy

Mr. and Mrs. Polk and son, where Leon enlisted in the Navy last Wednesday, had a narrow escape when a car coming from behind cut in to quickly and hung their front bumper, turning them into a ditch. The car was badly smashed on one side and Mrs. Polk received several severe bruises.

Leon, is now stationed at San Diego, for preliminary training.

Womans Missionary Society

The Methodist Womans Missionary Society met with Mrs. T. R. Sealy as hostess Monday, Nov. 24th. This was the hour for their Bible study and Social meeting.

A very interesting round table discussion of Jesus as our Ideal, in temptation, persecution, service and prayer was led by the Bible instructor. Then came the social hour which was spent in very friendly conversation, also some plans were made for the coming months work. The hostesses then called the ladies into the dining room where the articles for the Holiday Institute "at Laredo, Texas" were arrayed on the table, this was a nice assorted collection of table cloths, sheets and towels. This box valued at $20.00 will be packed and sent at once.

Refreshments of fruit cake, hot chocolate topped with whipped cream, nuts and mints were served to mesdames, Leman Brown, P. P. Bond, W. H. Thate, H. W. Kingsberry, W. L. Mills, Roger Hunter, J. J. Kirkpatrick, P. B. Snook, C. B. Verner, H. W. Blue, H. L. Voss and Mrs. T. R. Sealy.

Fire Destroys Home in Live Oak Community

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Parish living near the Live Oak community, six miles south of Santa Anna was destroyed by fire, starting in the kitchen flue, Thursday morning.

Carl Williams and Virgil New-Davis mountains with two fine man have returned from the large Black Tail Bucks.

Linoleum rugs, cheap, for cash—Mickle Hardware Co.

Albert Loudermilk Home Damaged by Fire Thursday

Fire of unknown origin partly destroyed the Albert Loudermilk home yesterday morning. Mr. and Mrs. Loudermilk were away at the time. What house hold things that were not burned were practically ruined by the water.

Feed Crop Burns

J. C. Ferguson, farmer living nine miles south of town in the Line community, had the misfortune to lose 3000 bundles of maize by fire, Saturday afternoon, when his little niece playing with matches set fire to the stack.

This is the second disaster of the kind that we have had in this territory, recently. John Pearce, had his barn to burn on his place recently between Santa Anna and Coleman. He too was well stocked with feed as he had about the best feed crop made around here. This was the second barn to burn on this place in two years.

Funeral Services Held For Mrs. Bob Stephenson

Miss Sarah Minnie Roach was born at Holland, Texas, May 23, 1877. She was converted at the age of 15 years under the preaching of Major Penn, and united with the Baptist Church. She held membership here at death. She was married to Sam Rushing in 1907, making her home at Lometa. Mr. Sam Rushing died in 1911.

She was again married to Mr. Robert M. Stephenson July 9, 1914, making her home in Santa Anna since that time. She was a tender mother to her two step-daughters. She died Saturday night at 11 o'clock.

She is survived by her companion; her father, J. H. Roach, Lometa; six sisters: Mrs. H. T. Pace, Ft. Worth; Mrs. H. V. Seal, Lampasas; Mrs. Fred Gully, Marion, La.; Mrs. Ben Coleman, Lometa; also two brothers: H. F. Roach, Bellwood, Ill.; L. D. Roach Goldwalthe, Texas. Also two stepdaughters: Mrs. Oscar Cheney, and Mrs. Jodie Baker both of this city. Also other relatives and a host of friends.

The funeral services were conducted at the Baptist Church Monday morning with the pastor Rev. Hal C. Wingo, in charge assisted by Rev. C. L. Oder and Rev. Jas. I. Patterson.

TODD'S DAIRY TO INSTALL NEW EQUIPMENT

Todd's Dairy, which has been located on the J. D. Sparks place for some time, will be moved the first of the year to the C. A. Crump place, where Mr. Todd and his son, John Allen, will remodel the houses and dairy barns and install the very latest in electrical equipment, making it one of the most modern and sanitary plants in this part of the State. They will welcome visitors as the dairy is open for inspection at any time.

SON OF FORMER RESIDENT LOST IN ARIZONA

Hope for Doyle J. Bird, 25 year old Santa Fe brakeman of Temple, employed at Winslow, Arizona, for the past several months who has been lost in the White Mountains for two weeks has been abandoned.

More than 250 people and several airplanes took part in the search for Mr. Bird, hope was held out until Tuesday, but the below zero weather makes his fate almost certain.

Bird was hunting in the mountains with Scott Clark, another Temple man. They separated, Clark to "backtrack" and Bird, made a short cut to the road, hunting as he went. He was heard to fire two shots and after that was lost.

Doyle Bird, is the son of Ted Bird, a former Santa Anna farmer and the nephew of J. F. Simmons who lives north of the Mountain.

COMPASS BRIDGE CLUB FORMED

A group of Ladies met Wednesday Nov. 12, with Mrs. C. R. Petty and organized the Compass Bridge Club of which Mrs. Petty will be score keeper.

The members are Mesdames Jodie Baker, Aubrey Childers, Willie Gibson, Holcomb Joiner, G. A. Ragsdale, Petty and Miss Fay Childers.

Team No. 1 composed of Mesdames: Gibson, Ragsdale Mitchell and Miss Fay Childers won high score.

Refreshments were served to members and Mrs. Mitchell and Mrs. Melton.

The club met Wednesday Nov. 19, with Mrs. G. A. Ragsdale, Mesdames Ragsdale, Gibson, Joiner and Petty won high score.

Refreshments were served to the members and Miss Mary Adams of Abilene. The club will meet with Mrs. Jodie Baker next week.

Bill Jack Garrett Drowned in Jim, Ned

A picnic party made up of P. P. Bond, Ford Barnes, S. W. Childers, Dr. L. O. Garrett and their families and several friends had their fun and thanksgiving turned into one of deepest sadness and the entire community is grief stricken because of the drowning of Bill Jack, the little nine year old son of Dr. and Mrs. L. O. Garrett. After a hearty dinner, the children of the party were playing along the banks of Jim Ned Creek, on the Ernest Weaver ranch, when Bill Jack, slipped from an eight foot bank into the water and having on heavy clothing was unable to swim in the icy water. Screams of the other children brought the older people to the scene and the little fellow's body was rescued by Ford Barnes and Capt. Sam Collier.

First aid treatment was rendered and a 14 minute drive was made from the ranch into the hospital, but to no avail.

POSTAL SERVICE DEPENDS ON THE COOPERATION OF PUBLIC

Extreme Care in Wrapping and Addressing Insures Safe Delivery

The Christmas holiday rush is rapidly approaching and the kind of service the public may receive at the postoffice depends somewhat on the cooperation the public may give the department. During the Christmas period the postal business increases several hundred percent and this great increase is handled largely by the regular force.

If an individual's business should increase 50 per cent overnight, think what his responsibility would be in properly handling the same and then remember this is about what happens at the postoffice during the Christmas holidays.

The intentions of the local postoffice is to properly handle the business of every patron. Any unsatisfactory service at the office at any time should be immediately reported to the postmaster.

Christmas packages, parcels and cards should be mailed at the earliest possible date. All mail should be plainly and legibly addressed giving the street and number, box number or general delivery and if rural mail should give the route number. No postage stamps or Christmas or New Year stickers should be placed on the back side of the parcels and not on the address side. The address side should have nothing placed there except the proper address and the return card of the sender which should contain the name and proper address of the one sending the package. Further touch on mailing as follows:

All parcels should be insured as there is no satisfactory way of tracing an ordinary parcel if lost in the mails. Letters containing money or important documents should under all circumstances be sent by registered mail. The matter of tracing or finding a lost letter containing money is very difficult.

All packages and parcels should be very thoroughly packed, wrapped and tied with heavy twine. Strong heavy paper should be used for outside wrapping.

The air mail service is being wonderfully improved and now advances the delivery of mail considerably to practically all parts of the United States and in many instances to Mexico, South America and other foreign countries.

CONSTRUCTION WORK ON TEXAS GLASS FACTORY STARTED WED.

Foundations were being started Wednesday morning on the Texas Glass Factory property East of the Rose Gin lot. A large sheet iron building will be erected immediately.

Fire proof brick are being hauled to the grounds and construction of the units will be under way at an early date.

Santa Fe work crews have been in town for a week, and good headway has been made on the siding from the Santa Fe right-of-way to the Company property.

Mrs. Frankie Adams and daughter Francis Louise returned home from Abilene Sunday, Mrs. Adams having finished the Library training course she was taking at the McMurry College.

The Library Association has been serving the Lions Club during this month. They wish to thank all who helped to make the dinners a success.

Mrs. H. W. Murphy of New Hobbs, New Mexico visited with her sister - in - law Miss Leta Murphy last week. They spent the week-end in Brownwood.

TO THE MOUNTAINEER TEAM

It's no loafer's game. Figures silhouetted against a fading sunset. Night approaches like a dark phantom ever pursuing the fading rays of day. Behind this darkness comes a still darker night. Yet they stay, why do they not go? Longer cloak them still deeper in their blackness. They clash ten times, fifty times, a hundred. Then they start their retreat as the sun's last rays fall. They are going now, a tired and weary group they are, but in each heart hope gleams as an ever shining star.

Who are these lads of such manlike proportions, who stick to a game of endless hours of tiring exertions? They are the football men, the men who fight many battles, whose courage and gameness will preserve on the field the age-old traditions of their school.

F. F. A. Weiner Roast

Last Wednesday night the F. F. A. Chapter invited the Pep Squad Girls to a weiner roast. The crowd gathered at the High School building at seven o'clock and left for an old rock house out east of town. Soon after arriving there, weiners were roasted and eaten. Games were then played and everyone had a great time. About nine o'clock everyone returned home as it was a school night. —Reporter.

THE YELLOW JOURNAL

This column should be earnestly dedicated to the Freshmen. They have worked faithfully to earn the title of "Freshman," and ye editor takes great pleasure in dedicating this—The Yellow Journal—to the Freshmen.

There's so much news this time that we're taking it in installments. Well, here goes—

A poor little fish, Annie Louise Watkins, was very broken-hearted the other night when her ideal senior, Andre Smith, accompanied a very compromising Junior home from the weenie roast. Step right this way, folks! She needs your sympathy!

The little Van Zandt, Ernest has at last found a girl that pleases him, meet Alberta Banks.

Besse Evans and Morrell Dick, still looks bad.

Neal Oakes has been airing around with Hettie Fae Todd.

Our sympathy is extended.

For heaven's sake, for the Mountaineer's sake, and for our gentle reader's sake, won't someone around here besides the staff members turn in some news for the Mountaineer? Here we've got just gobs of scandal but it's all on the ones who help put this paper out, and we can't run it. Snap into it, someone, before we turn this column into an explanation of why and how the whale swallowed Jonah, or start publishing paper dolls for the Freshman.

Billy Ford Barnes seems to be walking around in a trance. (For definition, see Webster's Dictionary) when asked what's wrong, he only looks at you rather dazed and says:

"Where can she be, Where can she be, Someone go find Irene for me."

We think that he means Irene McCreary, but for facts consult Billy.

Thelma Lowe seems to have an ingrowing disposition this week. Who is he, Thelma?

J. D. Pieratt and Woodrow Neal became so unruly in General Science Class the other day that Miss Land had to make them be quiet. Afterwards she made the remark, "Why teachers so crazy? We wonder just what she meant by that?"

Richard White says that he is disappointed with Santa Anna High School, he says he can't keep the girls away from him in the daytime and can't keep the boys from going with his girls (rate the plural) at night.

JOKES

Clovis. "Did you ever ride a horse bareback?"
Audas. "No, I always wear a shirt."

Mr. Turner. "I've finally paid the last installment on our baby carriage."
Mr. Scarborough. "That's fine. How's the baby?"
Mr. Turner. "All right. He graduates from high school this year."

Mr. Scarborough. "I just broke this bottle of sulphuric acid."
William Foley. "That's what you might call a compound fracture."

Becky Turner. "Can you beat it? That's father coming down the stairs."
Alton Brandon. "Yes, and I'm going too, good night."

Miss Hays. "My cakes are always made with three-fourths ingredients and one-fourth luck."
John E. "Yeh, hard luck."
Mrs. Scarborough. "I wish you would pep up. You're getting as old and dusty as a—"
Mr. Scarborough. "Your birth certificate, dear."

Bookie. "So your father gave you a quarter because you asked him an unusual question?"
Fred. "Yes, one he could answer."

Mrs. Bartlett. "What's your name?"
New student. "Didn't you see my name on that paper I handed in?"
Mrs. Bartlett. "Yes, that's what aroused my curiosity."

William Earl. "Say, William, your glasses are dirty."
William Foley. "Thanks, my eyes are so bad I couldn't see it."

Mrs. Scarborough (in solid Geometry class) now class that proposition could have been proved in half a minute by the watch.

Garland Close. "What would you give for a cold in the head?"
Slime R. Hunter. "Not a cent. You can have it."

Neal. (after getting job at store). "Will you pay me what I'm worth?"
Mr. Thate. "I'll do better than that. I'll give you a small salary to start with."

SANTA ANNA PLAYS COLEMAN

SANTA ANNA PLAYS COLEMAN

As we already know, the Mountaineer team played their last game Friday Nov. 21. The results was a victory for Coleman. There is only one statement that can be made concerning that game. Santa Anna was not lacking in her pep and enthusiasm. Our boys played as they have never played before. It is that old Santa Anna High determination, going that just can't be turned back! Some of the boys played their last game on the home gridiron Friday. We hate to lose some of our best players but we're looking forward to next year. Never say die! Don't give up team! We'll down those Blue-cats yet!

MRS. A. L. ODER, Columnist

Trip to San Antonio

Dear Column Readers—Shortly after "taking my pen in hand to write you a few lines" last week Mrs. Stafford Baxter invited me to join her on a trip to San Antonio, so we were off at once and some things which we had intended for our column did not appear.

But our little trip down one day and back the next was so enjoyable that I must tell you something about it. Of the numerous trips made to the Alamo City, I can truthfully say the most beautiful. Sometimes the scene would be green pastures of grass, mesquite, live oak trees and cactus, numerous contented cows and sheep, and then dense woodlands. Oak in all the gorgeous colorings of Autumn. Other trees in their gayest hues. The red shumac adding to the vividness. Its black berries lending a "french chic" as Mrs. Baxter put it. The entire trip was punctuated by our ejaculations, because of the indescribable beauty of the scenery. The winding roads, led us by hills and dales, and the winding streams and massive piles of rocks added attractiveness to the pictures. Surely a landscape painter or a nature poet, could have found much material for their use.

We noticed numerous cars along the road, and coming from the pastures, with their quota of wild deer and turkeys. The towns through which we passed seemed to be doing quite well in a business way, people all going about their work as usual. San Antonio seemed as active as I have usually seen it. Preparations for Christmas was under way most all over the city. The great Evangelist, Gypsy Smith is in a revival there, with large throngs of people attending the services. San Antonio is a place of perpetual charm to me, with its old missions, with its old life and costumes intermingling with the new. She celebrates her two hundredth anniversary next year. Elizabeth Barrett Browning said she had love, life and Italy, there fore she should be happy, and so I feel that anyone who has Santa Anna and her good neighbors as a regular blessing and San Antonio as an occasional treat should be satisfied.

Thanksgiving

The season of Thanksgiving, established by our Pilgrim fathers, is upon us again. While we should be thankful and express our thanks daily, the setting aside of a special day for praise and expressions of gratitude was a wise one. Of late years, the attendance at our Thanksgiving services would cause us to doubt that we are really thankful for the good things of life. Football games, and similar diversions have practically crowded out the spiritual features of this day. We have many reasons to be grateful. We are not able to count our blessings they are so numerous. If Thanksgiving dinners are not so bountiful as formerly; let us rejoice that we are not in the bread lines, Thanksgiving being strictly an American institution, we should try to keep alive the early traditions. As much as possible on this occasion, the food should be in keeping with that used by our forefathers; leaving French and other foreign dishes and new fangled fads for other occasions. It would not be amiss here to state that our next governor is urging that we use Texas grown foods as much as possible at all times, which is a splendid suggestion.

Woman's Husband Returns

After 34 Years Absence

The papers recently reported a man who returned to his family after an absence of thirty-four years. For twenty-seven years his wife had worked in a laundry to keep the home together and rear their children. Now that the children are all married he has returned, like a knight of old he came laden with costly presents for the family. Let us hope that with the costly presents he also brought a bulging

Prunes Stuffed With Fudge

Nellie Ryder Gates in the Farm Journal gives a recipe of prunes stuffed with fudge which she says is sent across the continent and arrive as soft and creamy as when started. Use large fancy prunes. Soak overnight and just bring to a boil. Remove the stones cool and stuff with the following mixture. Melt two squares of chocolate and one teaspoon of butter together. Add one and one-half cups of confectioners sugar, one half cup of finely chopped walnuts, one teaspoon of vanilla. Stir a little boiling water in, to make it the right consistency to handle, form into ball large enough to fill the prunes plumply, dredge in powdered sugar and pack tightly in boxes.

VERY LATEST

By Mary Marshall

It is not enough this season to have the neckline of your dress look smart, it must be becoming and flattering as well, and in many of the new dresses this necessary combination has been achieved by means of a draped scarf collar attached to the dress.

Actually we need expect no general change in the lines or general arrangement of the new necklines. There are V-necks, both deep and shallow, round necks, surplice necklines and bertha necklines in the new dress. And just at present fashion seems to be much occupied in working out the problem of skirt lengths and contemplating a possible elaboration of sleeves to be much concerned over any marked change in necklines. The important thing is to find the collar arrangement that is feminine and becoming.

The sketch today shows a collar sure to be becoming, easy to make and easy to attach to any frock old or new. The diagram shows the pattern.

The recently organized Woman's Christian Temperance Union of Santa Anna has had an encouraging number of new members added since the organization. The first Wednesday afternoon of each month has been decided upon as the regular meeting time, the place being the different churches.

The next regular meeting will be at the Cumberland Presbyterian church, Wednesday afternoon December 3rd at three. A good program is being arranged. All the women of Santa Anna and the surrounding country are urgently invited to attend these meetings.

Dr. Josephine Morrison and Misses Allie Pearce and Mattie Ella McCreary spent last weekend in San Antonio.

GAMES COME AND GO—REFRESHMENTS STAY

It is no longer "to bridge or not to bridge"—it's simply whether it will be auction or contract. Just now, the vogue for some of the older games has been revived and you'll find young things and old bent double over the chess or cribbage board, or even in a study over the familiar games of Flinch, Rook or Bingo.

Games may come and games may go—the refreshments go on forever! Every guest is a hungry guest and it isn't a party unless we eat. Fashions in food, however, change as often as do the games and this particular year of 1930 finds party dishes less numerous, less rich than yore (can it be the new silhouette?) but more festive, daintier, of greater variety and choice. Neither are changing styles in methods of preparation far behind the calendar. Party food is easier to make now—the hostess be praised—for Mrs. Mod-ernage makes her head save her hands and feet by using directions and recipes and ingredients that are modern too.

The decorations usually consist of flowers and such clever notes as gas-filled balloons in groups of one, two three or more attached to the tables to mark their rank. Black and white parties, with food to match are given, and the Godey craze has swung full-fledged into the card party, with tallies, prizes and cards all in the Godey-print mood. Airplanes provide the motif for some of the successful entertaining, and the movies have inspired a "star" bridge.

The familiar use of the four suits as decorations aid in the food still leads in popularity however, and many of the recipes carry but the idea of the trumps. Here are recipes from popular hostesses whose parties are always successful.

All Trump Sandwiches
12 slices bread, 1-2 half pound soft butter, 3 oz. cheese, 12 pecans or walnut meats, 2 tbsps. cream or rich milk, 1 canned pimiento.

12 pitted dates.

Cut thin slices of bread in oblongs to resemble playing cards. Spread lightly with softened butter and then with cream cheese which has been rubbed to a paste with cream. Make the "spots" on the cards with diamonds or hearts cut from canned pimiento and with clubs or spades made from nut stuffed dates cut in slices. Makes 2 dozen small sandwiches.

Grand Slam Salad

1 envelope quick setting lemon gelatine, 1 cup boiling water, 1 cup grapefruit juice, 2 dozen after dinner mints, watercress, Few drops vegetable coloring. Sections from 1 no. 2 can of grapefruit, 1 cup diced cucumber. Sour cream or cheese dressing.

Dissolve the gelatine in the boiling water. Drain the juice from a No. 2 can of grapefruit and add it to the cooling liquid. Add a few drops of coloring and enough after dinner mints to flavor the mixture delicately. Cool.

When the jelly is of the consistency of egg white, fold in the grapefruit sections which have been cut in halves with scissors and the diced cucumbers from which the seeds have been removed. Pour into one large or several small molds. When firm unmold on salad plates and surround with a wreath of watercress. Serve with sour cream or cheese dressing. Six servings.

FARM SICKNESS

Agriculture has been sick all these many years. An insidious disease has been sapping its life blood since the middle 90s. The germs were there before that time but we can see the decline in vigor during the life of a generation. Bankers, merchants and farmers should make a careful note of the following facts, give them their due place in the diagnosis and then we may be able to find the remedy.

According to the Federal Census of 1890 out of the 228,126 farms listed for Texas, 53 per cent were owned, and nearly 95 per cent of 119,093 were owned free of mortgage debt. That was a good record for a southern State.

Ten years later (1900) decline in health was evident. While the number of farms had increased to 352,190, the per cent of owned farms had fallen 50.3 and the percentage free from mortgage debt had gone down from 94.1 to 76.6. No one noticed this sign of disease or if they did, made no effort to check it.

In 1910 it had grown worse. The number of farms had increased to 417,770 but the owned farms had fallen to 47.4 per cent and those free of mortgage debt were down to only 66.7 per cent.

In 1920 this creeping disease was still more evident, but no effort made to check it. Only 46 per cent of the 436,033 farms were "owned" and of these 32.4 per cent were free of mortgage debt.

The 1930 Census while not yet complete will show less than 40 per cent owned and less than 50 per cent of these owned free of debt. In the whole realm of economic facts it will be hard to find a harsher indictment of our intelligence.

To sum up so that a busy man can understand. In 1890 out of 228,126 farms 119,093 were free of mortgage debt. In 1920 out of 436,033 farms only 105,490 were free of debt, a loss of nearly 14-

000 farms in 30 years. It will show still worse when this census report is made. Add to the above symptoms of a deadly disease the fact that the debt per farm increased from $900 in 1890 to $3,000 in 1920 and this year will be near $4,000 per farm.

The cause of all this? It is very simple and easily recognized and a remedy found if we have the courage to undergo the pain. It is a major operation but must be done to save the farmer and society itself. Farm land and town lots are too high in price and must be lowered by direct taxation on land values only.

We have steadily piled taxes on goods, credits and services and the farmers are the one large group that has to pay with no means of passing such taxes on.

We have exhausted all possible kinds of artificial relief for the farmer. Suppose we get off his back and see how that works.

THINGS ARE LOOKING UP

From what we hear from different parts of the United States, it is New York City that is deepest in the slough of despond right now, while in almost every other section the sunshine is beginning to shine through the clouds of business depression.

It has been a tough year; there is no denying that. What with the financial slump that began more than a year ago, and this year's wide-spread drought, and the tumble in the price of wheat and cotton, and the shutting down of factories, we haven't been through such "hard times" year since 1921. But it has its compensations, by comparison with previous similar situations. Commodity prices have not gone up but have come down. Most of those thrown out of work had something ahead to tide them over.

The main thing the matter with the country right now is timidity. The head of a big bank said the other day: "Our bank has more money in it right now than ever before, but where is it? It is mostly in time deposits, drawing interest, or in savings accounts. People are hoarding instead of spending. If everybody would spend even ten percent of what they have saved up, it would start the wheels of industry going again speedily."

And we hear that the "Buy Now" movement, which started a few weeks ago, has spread around the country and that people everywhere are beginning to take the dimes out of the savings banks and the dollars out of the checking accounts and buy the commodities which are for sale everywhere at bargain prices.

This is going to be a "useful" Christmas, from all indications. People generally are planning to give as Christmas gifts things which are not merely ornamental or luxurious, but such useful presents as new things for the home. That is all to the good, for it puts money circulating in channels where it is most needed.

Some smart fellow proposed a few weeks ago that everybody ought to spend ten cents a day that he had not intended to spend. That sounded foolish to some, but a lot of people have taken it up, and the accumulation of dimes thus started on their merry way is beginning to show its effect.

"Big money" is not timid. One large financial house announced the other day that it had clients ready to invest anything from a million dollars upward. They didn't want to bother with trifles worth less than a million, but they would buy into anything profitable in million-dollar units.

The ones who are holding back are the ordinary folks like us. But if we believe in the future of the United States we can prove our faith by beginning again to spend our money for necessities and a little bit more, and when we are all doing that the "hard times" will be over.

Moving the Turkeys

The Thanksgiving turkey harvest has brought thousands of dollars to those communities that have had the enterprise to grow the turkeys. Despite the fact that early efforts were made to "fix" prices at very low levels the growers have been receiving from 15 to 16 cents a pound, which is only a few cents lower than the prices of last season. The increased production this year is resulting in larger gross returns and the growers seem to be happy.

At all turkey storage and shipping points the Thanksgiving turkey trade has given employment to several hundred pickers and has been a big factor in relieving the unemployment situation.

More Road Money

As an aid to employment the Federal Government has made available at once the highway building allotments for the year 1931 to such States as are ready and able to match Federal allotments. Texas' share will be $10,488,476, and this State will be ready to match it, and can do so to advantage, as its building plans are already made for some time to come.

Governor Moody has made announcement that he will request the Highway Department to specify use of local labor as far as possible in making road contracts, and to use man power where it can be done. Huge machines used in excavating and road work have displaced much man power.

Make it General

Audit of the State Confederate Home has disclosed alleged extravagance and irregularities, and has caused several officials of the institution to tender their resignations. The irregularities charged were poor business methods in handling warrants and affidavits and in accounting for inmates' funds. Extravagancies consisted in employing more help than needed, some of the employees working in the superintendent's quarters without authority of law; failure to keep adequate check on supplies for personal and family use; serving meals at State expense to those not entitled to them; using State-owned automobiles for other than State business; wrongfully securing railroad passes. It is possible that somewhat similar conditions might be found in other State departments and institutions; at least there have been whispers of the kind. Some officials do grow careless in the handling of State business.

Business Administration
 Which reminds that Governor

Sterling is repeating the fact that his administration is to be conducted like a big business with every attention to efficiency and economy. If so, there will soon be some changes in many public places. So much politics has crept into State affairs, so much petty trading in public positions that the cost of government has grown out of all proportion to the services rendered the State. The opportunity confronting Governor Sterling are great, but great efforts are going to be required to use them to public advantage.

Use University Lawyers

Representative Bob Long, who is on a committee that has been investigating University affairs, says the University needs an attorney to devote all his time to its law business. Even then, it would be a big job for one man. The University has a law faculty, composed of men who teach others how to become lawyers—all able men, no doubt. Why not give this group the extracurricular duty of serving as a law cabinet for the University? They are hardly too busy to take on this extra work, and it should make them better law teachers to closely contact big modern law problems.

SEVENTH GRADE NEWS

The class is studying hard to get on the honor roll and we wish to make good grades in examinations, we hope no one will be disappointed.

For health we have been studying Tuberculosis primers which are published by the State. Some of the girls are interested in volleyball with good results and many of us are trying indoor base ball.

In spelling we have been having spelling matches in which everyone takes part and all of us have a great time. We have been studying "Independence Bell" in reading and all the pupils call it the "wish poem" because everyone wants to see it badly.

Almost everyone in the room is going to enter some phase of Interscholastic League work and many have already started to work.

We are glad to receive Mineola Price of Dublin into our happy group and we all hope she will feel at home.

GIRL SCOUTS OF TROUP NO. 1

Girl Scouts of Troupe No. 1 held a business meeting last Wednesday p. m. there were several new members added to the troop. Scout Bess Inez, demonstrated artificial resuscitation.

Members of Troup No.1 wish to thank the Lions Club for the wonderful donation. Also want to thank the school board for the use of Scout room.

Speaks For Crazy Water

Thought Hopeless Yet He Lived to Tell His Story

Three weeks ago today, I came to the Crazy Water Hotel on a stretcher from the city of Lubbock, Texas, with what the doctors called Typhoid Spine, and they told me that there was no medicine that would cure me. I started drinking Crazy Water and taking baths, and on the 12 day after arriving, I took to the wheel chair and on the 17th day I started walking on crutches and can now walk without them, so I feel if Crazy Water will do that for me I cannot say enough for it.

MAIN STREET LOOKS AT BROADWAY BY ERNEST CAMP JR.

New York—Elections are hazardous events in this amazing town. During the balloting here on November 4, four policemen were taken off their regular "beat" near a certain department store and assigned to duty at a nearby voting booth.

Hardly had the balloting got under way when in rushed a young woman, greatly excited, and summoned two of the police to the store. A couple of burglars had looted the place.

A unique method was devised for flashing to New Yorkers the returns on election night. The public was told to watch the huge searchlight atop the 38-story Empire State building, tallest in the world.

When the great white beam moved back and forth from a vertical to a northerly direction, Roosevelt was leading for Governor. When it oscillated from vertical to southerly, Tuttle was running ahead. When the beam finally ceased moving, it would point steadily north or south, indicating who had won.

The funniest story going the rounds concerns a wild party given down in Greenwich Village. It was a costume affair, and among the guests was a man named Caesar who came attired in the flowing toga of a Roman senator.

After an evening of revelry, the story goes, Caesar awoke in the misty hours of Sunday morning and sleepily looked about him. To his vast alarm he found that he was lying flat on his back with a wooden surface above him.

It was evidently a coffin—until he kicked out wildly and discovered that he had been left alone, lying under a table. Still trembling with fright, he rushed to a window, leaped out and lit a streak for home.

At this point his flight was arrested by a policeman who, passing by, grew suspicious at the sight of one fleeing through a window at such an hour of morning.

His costume in comic disarray the captive hiccupped his story to the cop's doubting ears. Finally, however, the latter decided to believe the yarn and let him go.

"Run along the copper said, turning to walk away. Then, on an afterthought, he called to the retreating figure. "Say, you didn't tell me your name."

"Caesar," came the prompt reply from the one in flowing robes. It was too much. Without another word the copper collared him and hustled him off to the station house.

"What's in a name?"

Dominick Pacelli was "taken for a ride." He managed to escape with his life—but also three bullet wounds in his head. He went to a Newark hospital, was treated, and told he could go home. But this he refused to do, insisting that he be assigned to a room. He lay there all day Monday.

Shortly after dark, two men drove up in an automobile. They parked the car in front of the hospital and walked in at the main entrance. They walked down the main corridor and up the stairs to the second floor.

Two shots rang out. Nurses screamed. Patients grew hysterical. Two men, one waving a smoking pistol, waved back the crowd and escaped into the street. And, in the room on the second floor, Pacelli lay dead in his bed.

Torough, these gangsters.

Finding the night life of Manhattan a bit wearing, a friend and I went apartment-hunting in one of New York's most peaceful looking suburbs.

"Yes, were going rural," we explained to everybody, with visions of pigs and chickens and green fields and cows grazing out in the great open spaces.

But we found that the "country" near New York sizzles even hotter than Manhattan at dusk. In the particular village we investigated, one of the quaint provincial pastimes consists of going out in the streets during a party and shooting out the street lights.

Charming, don't you think?

Washington, Nov. 27—"Come into the kitchen."

That's the title of one of the papers of the Home Economics Bureau, but it isn't necessary to tell the farm wife that the invitation isn't aimed at her, or shouldn't be. Rather, it is science which has been missing from the kitchen for too long. Strangely enough, this fundamental of all activities of man has been one of the last for science to discover.

The fact that the Home Economics Bureau itself is only seven years old shows this. Yet, after only seven years, when the home economics expert visits your home now, she is backed by the experience and intelligence of 60 specialists and experts at Washington.

And back of them, in turn, is a vast store of human knowledge which they are gathering and putting in form for practical use in the home.

Everything that can be discovered regarding every problem of the home—that's the prime aim of these experts, virtually all of whom are women themselves. Especially is this work significant for the farm home, for its other main purpose of existence is to find out just how useful and economical each agricultural product is for food, clothing and other domestic use.

The Bureau is thus a sort of connecting link between the farm home itself and the production which goes on around it.

Although the bureau has three main divisions, two of which are those devoted to economic studies and to food and clothing, perhaps the best concrete instances of the practical nature of its work lies in the division of foods and nutrition.

There are few rural communities which have not, at one time or another suffered to some extent from pellagra; quacks and fakers for years preyed on the rural population with so-called cures for this trouble, when all the time the trouble lay mainly in the absence of those invisible substances called vitamins.

In this case, it was vitamin B which was missing, and a peculiar type of vitamin B at that. It is only recently that it was discovered some foods containing this vitamin had what are called "antineuritic" properties, while others with the same vitamin could prevent pellagra.

As a result of its specialized contact with new developments the Bureau took full advantage of this discovery to classify the foods which had one or the other or both, of these kinds of vitamin B. As a result, wheat germ and yeast were found to contain both; white corn had the antineuritic type; so did rice polishings. Other foods are classified at the Bureau not only according to this type of vitamin, but according to all the others.

Other vitamins are vitamin A, which is essential for growth, health at every age, and for successful reproduction; vitamin C which must be present in your food to some extent if scurvy is to be avoided; vitamin D, which wards off diseases as rickets; and vitamin E, the anti-sterility vitamin.

This information is ready for anyone who will write the Bu-rean. It will tell you that orange juice, lettuce, carrots, raw collard raw green peas, spinach, concentrate tomato juice, liver are good or excellent sources of all these vitamins, among other foods.

Not only that, but it can tell you what amount of each food every type of person should have during the week. And in the economics division, the Bureau will help budget the expenditures for these foods.

But vitamins, essential as they are to growth and well being of everyone are an insignificant part of the actual food. This contains varying amounts of fats, protein, carbohydrates and the other substances necessary for life. These, too, the Bureau has carefully studied for the home manager; and one of the most recently completed of its studies is one on the composition of fresh fruits, shortly to be followed by a similar study of vegetables.

The fresh fruits study shows some surprising things. For instance, outside of such tropical fruits as avocados and mangoes, the fruit which has the most fuel value is the lowly persimmon, which has 640 calories to the pound. Calories are merely terms of measure for the body heat contained in food.

Other fruit which have a large amount of calories are prunes, papaws, scarlet haws, bananas, and Delaware grape juice.

Other things the Bureau has done with foods include:

Proof that claims of certain manufacturers that Japanese green tea was valuable as a source of vitamin C are false;

Discovery of the exact point to which ham, pork beef and other meats should be cooked to insure utmost palatability.

Data indicating that wheat germs should be preserved separately and added to white flour at the time of making bread, to solve the controversy over the virtues of whole wheat flour;

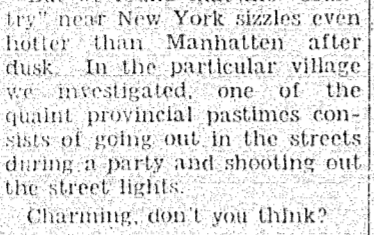

Revelation that rice polishings formerly thrown away at the mill are a valuable food, rich in vitamin F, and can easily be prepared for later use.

Some of the other activities of the Bureau, and its relation to the office of education, the Federal Board for Vocational Education, the Farm Board and the Extension Service, in making rural homes better places to live in, will be described later in this column.

COOPERATION FOR THE SMALL FARMER

Most of the public discussion of the Federal Farm Board and its work thus far has centered around the problems of the large scale growers of staple crops and livestock. The small farmer, growing a few potatoes, several cases of eggs, a small amount of fruits, must have wondered, if he thought about it at all, where he fits into the new scheme of things.

How can the small farmer get the benefit of the cooperative marketing plan on which the Farm Board is based? Is there anything in it all for him?

Naturally, the Farm Board began with the largest and most pressing problems. It is getting down to the small grower now, and the work of organizing these small farmers into local commodity cooperatives is beginning. It is going to take a lot more time, and there are doubtless many farmers whose operations and locations will enable them to join with their neighbors in organizing the marketing associations. But those who can and will do so are the ones who will get the most out of the new system.

For the information of farmers interested in the marketing of fruits and vegetables the Board has issued a pamphlet of instructions for organization. It is called "Bulletin Number One," and will be sent free to anybody who writes for a copy to the Director of Information, Federal Farm, Washington, D. C.

This Year in Washington BY RADFORD MOBLEY

Washington, Nov. 27—"Come into the kitchen."

That's the title of one of the papers of the Home Economics Bureau, but it isn't necessary to tell the farm wife that the invitation isn't aimed at her, or shouldn't be. Rather, it is science which has been missing from the kitchen for too long. Strangely enough, this fundamental of all activities of man has been one of the last for science to discover.

The fact that the Home Economics Bureau itself is only seven years old shows this. Yet, after only seven years, when the home economics expert visits your home now, she is backed by the experience and intelligence of 60 specialists and experts at Washington.

And back of them, in turn, is a vast store of human knowledge which they are gathering and putting in form for practical use in the home.

Everything that can be discovered regarding every problem of the home—that's the prime aim of these experts, virtually all of whom are women themselves. Especially is this work significant for the farm home, for its other main purpose of existence is to find out just how useful and economical each agricultural product is for food, clothing and other domestic use.

The Bureau is thus a sort of connecting link between the farm home itself and the production which goes on around it.

Although the bureau has three main divisions, two of which are those devoted to economic studies and to food and clothing, perhaps the best concrete instances of the practical nature of its work lies in the division of foods and nutrition.

There are few rural communities which have not, at one time or another suffered to some extent from pellagra; quacks and fakers for years preyed on the rural population with so-called cures for this trouble, when all the time the trouble lay mainly in the absence of those invisible substances called vitamins.

In this case, it was vitamin B which was missing, and a peculiar type of vitamin B at that. It is only recently that it was discovered some foods containing this vitamin had what are called "antineuritic" properties, while others with the same vitamin could prevent pellagra.

As a result of its specialized contact with new developments the Bureau took full advantage of this discovery to classify the foods which had one or the other or both, of these kinds of vitamin B. As a result, wheat germ and yeast were found to contain both; white corn had the antineuritic type; so did rice polishings. Other foods are classified at the Bureau not only according to this type of vitamin, but according to all the others.

Other vitamins are vitamin A, which is essential for growth, health at every age, and for successful reproduction; vitamin C which must be present in your food to some extent if scurvy is to be avoided; vitamin D, which wards off diseases as rickets; and vitamin E, the anti-sterility vitamin.

This information is ready for anyone who will write the Bu-

rean. It will tell you that orange juice, lettuce, carrots, raw collard raw green peas, spinach, concentrate tomato juice, liver are good or excellent sources of all these vitamins, among other foods.

Not only that, but it can tell you what amount of each food every type of person should have during the week. And in the economics division, the Bureau will help budget the expenditures for these foods.

But vitamins, essential as they are to growth and well being of everyone are an insignificant part of the actual food. This contains varying amounts of fats, protein, carbohydrates and the other substances necessary for life. These, too, the Bureau has carefully studied for the home manager; and one of the most recently completed of its studies is one on the composition of fresh fruits, shortly to be followed by a similar study of vegetables.

The fresh fruits study shows some surprising things. For instance, outside of such tropical fruits as avocados and mangoes, the fruit which has the most fuel value is the lowly persimmon, which has 640 calories to the pound. Calories are merely terms of measure for the body heat contained in food.

Other fruit which have a large amount of calories are prunes, papaws, scarlet haws, bananas, and Delaware grape juice.

Other things the Bureau has done with foods include:

Proof that claims of certain manufacturers that Japanese green tea was valuable as a source of vitamin C are false;

Discovery of the exact point to which ham, pork beef and other meats should be cooked to insure utmost palatability.

Data indicating that wheat germs should be preserved separately and added to white flour at the time of making bread, to solve the controversy over the virtues of whole wheat flour;

Revelation that rice polishings formerly thrown away at the mill are a valuable food, rich in vitamin F, and can easily be prepared for later use.

Some of the other activities of the Bureau, and its relation to the office of education, the Federal Board for Vocational Education, the Farm Board and the Extension Service, in making rural homes better places to live in, will be described later in this column.

What Will You do When You are Fifty

The problem of what to take up as a life's work is a lot more complicated for the young man or woman today than it was for their grandfathers. There are so many more professions and businesses now, so many more new sciences and industries that offer greater opportunities than the old and crowded kinds of work.

And of all the modern fields of activity, half industry, half science, radio stands at the top of the list for opportunity. Realizing this many young men are asking the question, "How can I enter radio?" To answer this question Tyler Commercial College and School of Business Administration, at Tyler, Texas, have added radio to their courses. From the beginning, the Radio School of T. C. C. has been a success, having this fine old school back of it and profiting from the experience of more than a quarter of a century of steady growth.

Graduates of the Radio School of Tyler Commercial College and School of Business Administration sail the seven seas as Radio officers. Many who prefer to stay on land find positions in more than six hundred land stations. The fact that graduates of this radio school are always in demand at good pay is largely responsible for its growth.

Young men who are interested in this fascinating profession should write Tyler Commercial College and School of Business Administration, Tyler, Texas, for

BIGGER AND BETTER

THE NEW CHEVROLET SIX

Strikingly beautiful, fleet and smart
—a masterpiece of Fisher styling

Never has the superiority of Body by Fisher been more strikingly exemplified than in the Bigger and Better Chevrolet Six!

With the added advantage of a lengthened wheelbase, Fisher designers have achieved in the new Chevrolet an impressive degree of smartness, comfort and luxury.

Inside and out, scores of refinements stamp this car as a masterpiece of modern coachwork. Radiator, headlamps and tie-bar form an unusually attractive and distinctive ensemble. Mouldings sweep back in an unbroken line to blend with the smart new body contours. And new color combinations lend a new individuality. Interiors, too, are exceptional. The new mohair and broadcloth upholstery is smartly tailored. Seats are wider and more luxuriously cushioned. A deeper windshield and wider windows give better vision. And beautiful new modern fittings lend a final note of charm.

Many mechanical improvements are also evident in this Bigger and Better Six. Among these are a stronger frame; easier steering; a more durable clutch; a quieter, smoother transmission; and important engine refinements.

The Bigger and Better Chevrolet Six is now on display. See it today—drive it! It is the Great American Value!

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Lesson for November 30

ZACCHAEUS THE PUBLICAN, A BUSINESS MAN CONVERTED

LESSON TEXT—Luke 19:1-10. GOLDEN TEXT—For the Son of man is come to seek and to save that which was lost.

PRIMARY TOPIC—A Man Who Thought Jesus Would Not Care.

JUNIOR TOPIC—A Man Who Righted His Wrongs.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—How Religion Changes One's Life.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Making Business Christian.

I. Jesus Passing Through Jericho (v. 1).

Jericho is noted as the strong-hold of the Canaanites, which was suddenly delivered into the hands of Israel in response to their faith (Josh. 6), and also for the faith of Rahab which saved her from destruction with the city (Heb. 11:30, 31). It was thus noted as a city where faith and unbelief played against each other. It was fitting that Jesus should pass through Jericho. Faith and unbelief again were manifested. Two notorious sinners, Rahab and Zacchaeus, were saved at Jericho.

II. Zacchaeus Seeking Jesus (vv. 2-4).

1. His object (v. 3). He sought to see who Jesus was. Though perhaps prompted by curiosity, he earnestly sought Jesus.

2. His difficulties (vv. 2, 3). (1) His infamous business (v. 2). He was a tax collector for the Roman government. The very fact that a Jew held such an office under the hated Romans would make him extremely unpopular. Then since he was rich, it was evident that he had practiced extortion in collecting the taxes. Many men and women have a hard time in coming to Christ because of their questionable business relations.

(2) His shortness of stature (v. 3). He was too small to crowd his way through to Jesus, and being hated by the people they had thrust him aside.

3. His penitence (v. 4). He ran before the multitude and climbed up into a tree. What he lacked in stature he was determined should be made up by the height of the tree. Though Zacchaeus' legs were too short to enable him to see Jesus they were long enough to run past the crowd and enable him to climb the tree.

III. Jesus Finding Zacchaeus (vv. 5, 6).

While Zacchaeus was trying to see Jesus, Jesus was looking for him. This is always the case. When desire is stirred up in a heart to see Jesus, Jesus is seeking that one. When Jesus saw him he commanded him to come down from the tree and declared his intention to go home with him. Zacchaeus got more than he expected. Jesus called him by name. He did not utter a word which would humiliate Zacchaeus. Jesus knew his heart's desire and dealt accordingly with him. All souls who earnestly seek Jesus shall be found of him. How wonderful his grace, that regardless of one's past life, Jesus will receive him as a friend and enter into fellowship with him! Zacchaeus quickly repented. He came down and with joy received Jesus.

IV. Zacchaeus' Conversion (vv. 7-10).

His conversion was sudden and thorough. He was converted before he had reached the ground.

1. What the crowd said (v. 7). They said just what they say today when sinners come to Christ. They call to mind the man's former sins. They also reproached Christ, saying that he had gone to be a guest of this notorious extortioner, the tax collector. That for which they reproached Jesus was his guise. His supreme mission was to save sinners (v. 10).

2. What Zacchaeus said (v. 8). His conversion was thorough. It took hold upon his heart. His new life began with resolution and restitution. He dedicated half of his goods to the poor. The man who a little while ago was a grafter was now a generous giver. His conversion got hold of his pocket-book. His determination to make restitution wherein he had wrongly exacted taxes shows the genuineness of his conversion. While God forgets the past of a sinner when he comes to Christ, the sinner who is converted will seek to right all wrongs, be they unkind words or unrighteous deeds. Sorrow for sin is not enough when restitution is possible.

3. What Jesus said (v. 9, 10). "Today is salvation come to thy house." The publican was now a child of God, a son of Abraham. Salvation is a present reality when one receives Christ.

B. Y. P. U. Meets at 6:15. We are having splendid attendance at our B. Y. P. U. but feel that the Union could be a blessing to many more if they would but come and be a part of it. We invite all serious minded young people who feel a need of preparation for living a more effective and satisfactory Christian life.

Looking forward to our revival meeting we should all begin to put more emphasis upon our prayer life. Come to regular mid-week prayer meeting next Wednesday night at 7 o'clock.—Ira C. Wingo, Pastor.

WEST TEXAS UTILITIES CO.

Ablene, Texas, November 27.—A higher than estimated crop-yielding, unusually good grazing conditions for cattle and sheep raisers, and splendid prospects for 1931 are indicated in the monthly Business Conditions Survey conducted by the West Texas Utilities Company, according to a report from the general offices of the company here.

The report, information for which is obtained from the District Superintendents of the nine individual operating districts, covers some forty-nine West Texas counties, and includes approximately 45,000 square miles of territory.

As a general thing cotton and feed crops will average approximately 60 per cent of normal production. Trade and collections vary in the different localities, but a general average would indicate considerably improved business and trade conditions.

Late October rains have made it possible to plant considerable acreage of wheat and other small grains throughout the territory, with excellent prospects for a good crop. Even if the Spring season should fail, farmers are assured of an abundance of exceptionally good grazing land. More than double the amount of wheat acreage has been planted than ever before.

Stockmen are in an especially optimistic mood, saying that conditions look better for them than in many years.

Outstanding in the month's survey were the reports of the territories surrounding Dalhart and McCamey. The Dalhart District indicates a larger production per acre, and a considerable increase in acreage under cultivation. The territory around McCamey seems to be undergoing a transition from a purely oil locality. Several thousand acres of land have been fenced and over 10,000 head of sheep and 2,000 head of cattle have been shipped in to stock the ranches. Grass is in good shape, and the new stockmen feel confident that their project will prove successful.

The survey indicates that everyone is looking forward to a prosperous 1931, and a general feeling of optimism pervades throughout the territory served by the company.

THE FAMILY DOCTOR JOHN JOSEPH GAINES, M.D.

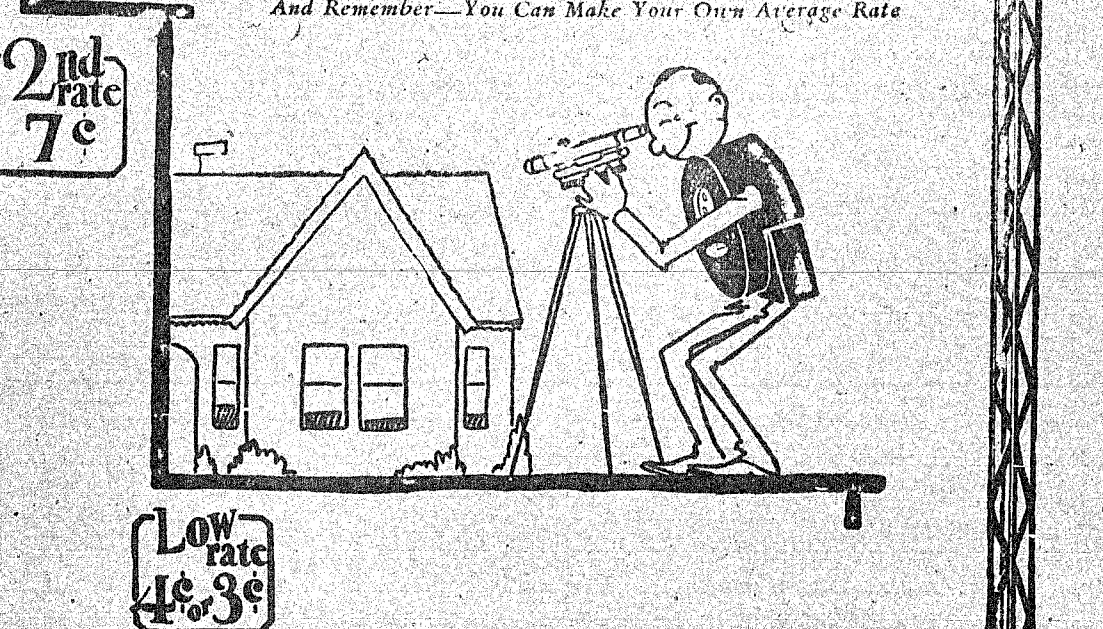

ASTHMA The picture of a suffering asthmatic is most striking. The patient cannot lie down; he sits up, leaning slightly forward, laboriously, sweats cold, clammy drops, can talk with great difficulty. The attack may simulate death, though not as a rule dangerous at the time. The family physician will be able to tell whether it is labored breathing of heart disease; or whether the patient has serious kidney disorder. True asthma is of bronchial origin and attacks when the patient is run-down from worry, or from some hidden diseased process. Changes of season may induce asthmatic attacks. I was called "on the run" to see my first asthmatic, whom his companions thought was dying sure enough—a fat old German who himself was frightened within an inch of his life; I gave him three or four deep whiffs of chloroform, which stopped the attack almost instantly—and it made for me a reputation as if I had performed a miracle! This attack was due to spasmodic contraction of the lesser bronchial passage on a damp, chilly evening; the chloroform at once stopped the spasm, and breathing returned to normal. A point that determines the true asthmatic state is, the patient inhales quickly and easily, but cannot exhale; the air gets out of the lungs with great difficulty and slowly; the sufferer feels that his lungs will burst from air in them which cannot get out! Of course, a physician should be called for the asthmatic sufferer; there is no valuable "family remedy," though certain leaves, burned in a metal plate, give off a smoke which is often effective in quieting the spasm and drying up the load of mucous exudate which lines the tubes. Such "cures" do not remove the cause, of course—that is left for the doctor to combat. A hypo of morphine and atropine usually dismisses the attack, but is a habit former. The asthmatic should carry tablets of "Luminal" and use as the physician directs.

The Way of Life BRUCE BARTON

A friend of mine who still under three-and-thirty has made a fortune, and I asked him how he did it. "I've been to your office several times," I said, "but you seem seldom to be there." "No I don't go to the office every day," he answered. "A good deal of the time I just sit and look out the window and think." "When I make a decision I go out and put into effect, and a little more than half the time I have had the good luck to be right. When I find I have made a mistake, I sit down and say: 'Now what did I do wrong? Were my facts inaccurate, or did I draw bad conclusions? How am I going to avoid that same mistake again?'" I knew another man who owned a small but profitable business. He was methodical in his habits. On a certain day of each month he stayed away from the office, and everybody in his employ knew that the old man was "thinking". From breakfast time until sun-down on such a day he would sit before an open fire or on an open porch, without pen or pencil or paper, or records or reports, and quietly think. He attributed his modest success to his unvarying habit. Henry Ford remarked to me once that "thinking is the hardest job there is", and added that he could get plenty of doers but not enough thinkers. Most of us know from our own limited experience that thinking is hard, and we have insulated ourselves against it by a restless and noisy environment. We are afraid to be found in a small audience, terribly afraid to be alone. Our unwillingness to take trips, or to retire, is not dictated so much by loyalty to the job as it is by the haunting fear that, removed from the protecting clatter of daily activity, we shall have "too much time to think." Emerson tells the story of "a man who on his death bed called to him his profligate son and left him large possessions, only exacting of him the promise to spend an hour every day alone. The son kept his word and became a wise and good man." In another passage Emerson remarks that "the gods and the wild beasts are both of solitude; thought makes the difference between the solitude of the gods and that of the lion." Solitude and thought are responsible for the considerable fortune of the young friend whom I quoted at the beginning. I pass on this recipe free to all. I have not been able to apply it myself. —having been too busy.

Brown Ranch News

By Beatrice Yates

To the cheers of a crowd of basketball fans the "Cowboys" of Brown Ranch, and the Crews team fought a hard battle Saturday night on the Valera court. The game was refereed by Mr. Younger of Valera and Mr. Gasset of Santa Anna. At the end of the game the scores were even 17-17. Three minutes were then given the teams to determine the winner. When the whistle sounded the expiration of the three minutes, the scores were 18-18. Three minutes more were given. During that time Crews made two free pitches and the Cowboys only one. The game ended with a score of 19 and 20 in favor of Crews.

The Cowboys have received their new blue and gold suits. They are trying to live up to their colors.

O. S. Yates had as guests the larger part of last week, his sister and brother, Ruic and Cleo Yates of Waco Creek commu-

ity. Kate Lou Abernathy of East Rock has come to spend the winter with her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. M. C. Abernathy. We are glad to welcome her into our home.

Miss Dolby Zide of Oklahoma City is visiting in the Lewis home. Mrs. Laverne and Ruby Joe Lewis were guests of Suste Mae Lawrence Sunday.

Miss Mary Lou Smith and Miss Mary Middlebrook spent the week-end in Coleman with Mr. and Mrs. Edd Hector.

Sunday was our regular preaching day. Our Pastor, Brother Gilbert, brought with him a minister from San Antonio, who preached Sunday night.

The chapel program rendered by Miss Smith's room was enjoyed immensely by the school general and the many visitors. We are glad to have the visitors and cordially invite them to the chapel exercises each Monday morning.

Twin boys arrived at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Basket Monday morning; not visitors but come to stay.

We are hoping that the coming holiday will be observed by all as it was originally intended. We have scores of things for which to be thankful; therefore let us give thanks to the One Who is responsible—the One "from whom all blessings flow."

"MEN WITHOUT LAW"

During the late war a great friendship develops between Buck Healy and Manuel Del Rey. Buck rescues Manuel during a heavy barrage and gets him safely to a hospital. The boy dies before the armistice is signed, however, and Buck returns to his home in Gunsight, Arizona, alone.

Learning that his young brother, Tom, has fallen in with gangsters, headed by Murdock, he sets out to find him. In the process, he is caught and imprisoned by the gang leader, Murdock, who also gets possession of an invitation from Del Rey, Senior, inviting Buck to visit him. Murdock impersonates Buck, robs the ranch and is about to abduct his daughter, when Buck in one grand and thrilling coup, completely annihilates him and wins the hand of the beautiful daughter.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Woodward and Mrs. Wallace Kirkpatrick, left Tuesday for Alpine, Mr. and Mrs. Woodward to visit with their daughter Miss Mary Leila, who is attending Sul Ross College and Mrs. Kirkpatrick to visit with her daughter Mrs. Henry Newman and family.

Frank Crum and C. A. Walker were hunting in South Texas the first of last week.
