Revival At Baptist Church To Begin Sunday

Posters and other forms of advertising have been posted this week, advertising a revival meeting to begin next Sunday at the Baptist Church.

Rev. R. E. Day, pastor of Bryan, Texas, will do the preaching and Mr. T. D. Carroll of Fort Worth will direct the song and devotional services. The two are said to be strong men and promise to be of great service to the church.

The meeting will continue for two weeks, and the public generally is invited to attend.

Not Getting The Money

Wichita Daily Times: The Anti-Saloon League's appeal for a $25,000 fund to be used in pre-convention fights against presidential candidates resulted in only $2,922 being raised. The Senate committee investigating the campaign expenditures there were two $1,000 contributions and the rest came in small amounts.

There are several conclusions that might be drawn from this: One is that Wayne B. Wheeler's ability as a money-raiser is not possessed by his successors. Another is that those who usually support the league financially aren't sympathetic with its efforts in the pre-convention campaign. A third is that as a result of the Kresage affair and other mistakes, the league is losing its place as the chief agency of the prohibition cause.

Whichever of these, if any, is the correct conclusion, the fact remains that the drive was almost a complete failure as far as Borah's "conscience" is concerned.

SANTA ANNA GIRL MARRIES SAN ANGELO MAN

Miss Hallie Louise Simpson, accomplished daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Simpson of this city was married to Mr. Clarence Russell Webb of San Angelo last Thursday. The marriage being performed in the Adolphus Hotel in Dallas.

A few close friends attended the wedding, the ceremony being pronounced by Bishop Moore. Immediately after the marriage the contracting parties left for Colorado for a brief vacation. They will be at home in San Angelo after July 10.

The Santa Anna News joins its friends in extending best wishes to the young couple.

Frank T. Woodward, employee of the Cameron Lumber Company, stationed the past two years at Fort Worth, is here for a few days, visiting with his mother and other relatives, while enjoying a vacation. He will leave soon for Midland, Texas to take charge of a yard for the company.

Observe Independence Day

Next Wednesday, July 4th, is a national holiday, and by all means should be observed as such. 152 years ago, the Great Declaration of Independence was signed and a new nation launched, which has proven to be the greatest nation in the world to its age, and people throughout its domain should reverently celebrate the nation's birthday.

After writing the above, we have learned that a petition has been prepared and is being circulated among the business men of the city, and being freely signed, to the effect that they will close their places of business next Wednesday and observe the day. Good!

Connally To Speak In Coleman July 7th

Hon. Tom Connally of Marlin, outstanding member of the Texas delegation in Congress and candidate for the United States Senate is selected to speak in Coleman, Saturday, July 7th, at 2:30 p. m. Mr. Connally is a forceful speaker and his discourse will be interesting. He will also speak in Brownwood, Thursday at 8 p. m.

Brady Fire Equipment Doubled

From the Brady Standard, we learn that Brady has practically doubled her fire equipment. The city has ordered a new $13,500 fire truck and equipment. Brady is a progressive town and we join with Editor Schwenker in rejoicing over the new addition to the fire department.

Prof. R. H. Cornelius To Sing At Trickham Sunday

The Santa Anna News has been requested to announce that Prof. R. H. Cornelius of Fort Worth, will sing at Trickham next Sunday afternoon, beginning at 1:30. The public is invited to attend.

Prof. Cornelius will also begin teaching a music class at Trickham, Monday, to continue for three weeks. Announcements have been sent out for several days and a good class is expected to enroll. Homer T. Goodignon of Santa Anna, Texas, is the secretary and will appreciate hearing from any one interested in attending the school. Prof. Cornelius is a good instructor and this community is fortunate to have him teach a school in our midst.

A grade crossing just will not stand for being double crossed.

Business Houses To Close July 4th

We the undersigned, citizens and merchants of Santa Anna, do hereby agree to close our places of business all day the Fourth of July, same being Wednesday of next week.

Boy Scouts To Have Good Program

The best Boy Scout camping program in Texas is what they are saying about the program for camp Tonkawa, the Chisholm Trail Council. Boy Scout Camp which opens at Lieders, July 30 and continues through August 12.

The Camp Tonkawa scout program is arranged so as to interest all classes of scouts, tented, second and first class and merit badge scouts. Experienced adult leaders including some of the best scoutmasters in Texas will guide the activities.

Scoutmaster W. T. Harris, one of the most experienced archery experts in Texas will have charge of archery, the making of bows and arrows and target practice. Scoutmaster Wm. Lee Kincaid of the winning Jamboree Troop, 1928, will direct the Camp activities and will be assisted by several Eagle Scouts. Scoutmaster, Bob Harvey, after a year of additional experience in Y. M. C. A. work in New Mexico is returning to Abilene to become a member of the camp staff.

Little Chief, Many Talents, Ralph Harp will again direct the Indian dances and Indiancraft and will be assisted by a crew of blood-thirsty "Indians" who know how to dance the Scalp Dance until your scalp feels uncomfortable.

Judge Jim Stinson, of Abilene will direct the Camp Tonkawa presidential election and will be with the boys several days.

The West Texas Baptist Sanitarium will furnish two trained nurses who will be on duty at all times. Big Chief East-um-Heap, Scout Executive Ed Shumway will be camp director and this is an assured fact that the program will be full of pep and real scouting activities.

Let us send our scouts to receive the scout training that awaits them at Camp Tonkawa.

CORRECTION

Due to an oversight the following topic was left out of the article on "The Public Library" last week: Mrs. G. A. Blasig, who was the principal speaker of the evening gave a very interesting account of the organization of the "Public Library" at Brady which has recently been made a county library. Mrs. Blasig is a very forceful speaker and those who did not hear her missed a treat.

Mr. and Mrs. K. W. Campbell have returned to their home in Flop after an extended visit with the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. B. A. Creamer. Miss Viole Creamer accompanied them.

Drafted Men Refuse To Serve On City Commission

The Citizens' ticket, named last week for officials to serve the unexpired term of the present commission which has resigned, refused to serve, and others had to be drafted. The ticket as it now stands, is as follows:

For Mayor, G. W. Faulkner; Commissioners, J. B. Lowe and J. Ed. Bartlett.

The election will be held Saturday in the City Hall. This is a strong ticket, composed of good men, we think, well suited for the duties incumbent on them.

The Truth About Farm Relief

Political prophets predict that the farmers will hold the balance of power in the coming presidential election. They will, the politicians will hold the power, and the farmer will hold the balance of it.

Some say the middle-west farm states will decide the issue in favor of the party that promises them the most. But to erroneously depend upon the "farm vote" to decide an issue is to depend upon fallacious reasoning, because there isn't and never was a truly farm vote.

The farmers by their inherent nature and independence of thought and action do not vote in droves nor herd like sheep. The farmer thinks for himself, and remember, there are a lot of farmers.

If the farmers would cooperate they wouldn't need any relief. That is, they wouldn't have needed the relief they need now. They would have already brought about their own relief. The farmer suffers by the same independence in which he finds a satisfaction of superiority.

If the ballots of all the farmers could be laid out on a table, their votes of the past twenty years would look like a hen with dirt feet had been scratching for something to eat for her brood.

Who thinks there is a farm vote is kidding himself. There should be no farm vote as such, but there should be a business vote, because the farmer is strictly a business man and he should vote as a business man and votes. When a so-called farmer becomes an agriculturist engaged in the most important secular business in the world—that of producing what the world needs, he will force recognition.

The Republican Ticket

The Republican ticket is a strong one undoubtedly the strongest the party could put out. Neither Hoover nor Curtis were the choice of the politicians. Hoover is in no sense a party man, he carried Michigan as a candidate for the Presidency on the Democratic ticket. If he is elected President the party will not control him, which may or may not be a good thing. This country is governed by parties and the only way party responsibility can be placed is for the party in power to support party measures.

On the other hand, Senator Curtis is a strict party man. He stayed away long enough to vote for the McNary-Haugen bill but when the President vetoed it, Curtis like a loyal party man, voted to support this veto.

Each of the candidates are men of the humblest walks of life and without wealth or family prestige have become the outstanding men in their party.

It is a strong ticket and one that is a challenge to the Democratic party. Will that party rise to the occasion? It can do it, it has men who can appeal as strongly to the American voter as the republican ticket, and with the record of the G. O. P. the cause of Democracy should triumph. But the appeal must be made to the consciences of the people, both in the platform and the candidates.

A Letter From China

C. P. O. Box, No. 1234
Shanghai, China, May 23 1928
Dear Editor:

I have just read articles by missing link seekers. In one was reproduced a photo—an ape's foot, much like a human foot. The author said it proved our ape ancestry. Recently I handed a snap-shot of an islander with a tail nearly four inches long. Another proof! But a few years ago I saw in Japan, a stuffed cat with a human face—a strong proof that we sprung from cats! So what are we to think? The articles amused as they said believers in their theory were of "up-to-date," "modern" minds. But their "new" ideas seem like plagiarisms. These "superior-minded" men say we, came up from the monkey and are even in some sense divine! The Chinese of old say a monkey—excepting his face—became not only a man but also a god! He his temples and is worshipped in China. I enclose a monkey-god.

The Chinese say he was hatched by gentle zephyrs, from a stone egg on a rocky mountain, to be a delight to the upper-god. But, alas, he was a trouble maker. He was ambitious and his exploits caused him to be acclaimed king of the animals and to "eat strong" Trip-Low-Wang; he got an iron rod which he could expand at will to span the sky or contract so as to—fit his ear-magic wand! Eu-ti taught him how to fly and how to change himself into 72 different shapes. What he could not do is hard to say. But as he gained in power, and his friends said "he was worthy to rule in heaven, he wished to do so. Many kings made leagues with him and celebrated it with feasting. But our monkey got drunk and while he was unconscious was taken to hell. He awoke, overcame the powers of hell and escaped. He was accused to Yoh-Wang who thought to keep the monkey quiet by bestowing upon him the title "Heavenly Horse-keeper." He was pleased, but learning it was an empty title, he, in fierce anger, smashed heaven's gate and overturned the throne. The upper-god called upon the host of heaven and hell to overcome the monkey but in vain. After the monkey's victory the upper-god, in flight, conceded monkey's demands, made him a god, conferred upon him a real title, and allowed him to live in heaven in a grand castle. But monkey-god was not godly! He would steal, steal and eat the peaches of everlasting life and from Lao Chun's palace, stole and ate his pills of immortality. Doubly, immortal, proud of his powers, he constantly mocked the gods. He became unbearably overbearing. A great conference was called in heaven to which the monkey-god was summoned. The monkey-god even tried to mock the self-existent one. "I have heard that you are a great jumper, is it true?" asked the Buddha. "I'll bet you can't leap out of my hand. If you do I'll make you the king of heaven." The monkey eagerly answered: "I can turn over 108,000 li in one summersalt, why shouldn't I leap out of your hand?" Then the monkey-god turned a superser to the five white pillars—limits of the universe—and wrote his name on one, to show he'd been there and turned a summersalt back in triumph. "Didn't I turn out of your hand?" asked the monkey-god. "See what you wrote on my finger—one of the pillars!" The monkey-god gazed amazed. Buddha seized him under a mountain, fed him with hot irons to punish him for his many sins and said: "After a number of years a monk named Dang Sen will come and free you. You shall follow and guard him as he goes for the books of Buddha from the Western Paradise." Years sped, all came true, monkey reformed, became true to his title. "The holiest in the heaven," and people began to worship him.

We teach my Brownies not these myths but the truth as given in the Bible. God's word for it satisfies us. Chinese teachings do not enable nor make life any better in China but where God's word holds sway is goodness, safety and life. Pray that the Chinese may know the Bible, and know Jesus—Christ—God and man as their own precious Savior. With kindest regards, Yours in Christ's glad service, Rev. H. G. C. Hallock

Oil Operators Treated To Chicken Dinner

Last Friday at the noon hour, W. A. S. Cobb, who moved to Coleman some few months back from his good farm in the Plainview community, and W. L. Alford, another good citizen of the Plainview operators, treated several oil operators and a few interested guests to a chicken dinner at the Serreca Cafe.

The feed was a goodwill banquet, served to the men by Messrs Cobb and Alford, making good a promise of several weeks ago when the drilling block on which a well is now being drilled was being made up. The well is being drilled on the H. Albert Shaw farm, by Sherwood B. Owens of Brownwood. The block consisted of about 1800 acres, including the Cobb and Alford farms. When the leases were signed, Mr. Cobb promised as soon as the well spudded in, he would treat them to a chicken dinner. The promise was fully carried out last Friday. The following were present and enjoyed the spread:

- W. A. S. Cobb, Coleman; W. L. Alford, Santa Anna; H. G. Hurlbut, Brownwood; W. R. Watker, Coleman; A. B. Phillips, Fort Worth; J. H. Edwards, Brownwood; E. A. Bigbee, Brownwood; C. W. Woodruff, Santa Anna; S. M. Coleman, Brownwood; Sherwood B. Owens, Brownwood; Sam Cobb, Coleman; Bill Alford, Santa Anna; Bryan Patterson, Brownwood; J. H. E. Barbour, Brownwood and J. J. Gregg, Santa Anna.

A. O. Newman To Locate Here July 1st.

A. O. Newman, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Tom Newman of the Live-oak community, who has been engaged in the practice of law at Bowie, Texas, the past three years, will move here next week and set up a law practice here.

Mr. Newman was reared in these parts; graduated in the Santa Anna High school in the spring of 1916, received his A. B. degree from Howard Payne College in 1921, taught school in Dublin 1921-22, in Odessa, High school 1922-23, he finished his law course in the State University in 1925 and received his L. L. B. Degree, since which time he has been engaged in the practice of law at Bowie, Texas, in partnership with Home B. Latham and Newman.

Mr. Newman also has been appointed City Attorney for Santa Anna, and will have office space in the new City Hall. We congratulate Mr. Newman upon his choice of Santa Anna to establish himself in business according to his ability and join with his other friends in extending to him a welcome to our city.

Brownwood Mayor Dies In Accident

W. D. McCulley Thrown to Curb From Rear End Of Fire Truck

BROWNWOOD, June 25.—W. D. McCulley, age 55, mayor and city manager of Brownwood, was killed instantly early tonight when he was thrown from the rear step of a fire truck he was riding enroute to a fire. The truck was struck by a Mr. Wiley, Brownwood mechanic. The impact hurled Mayor McCulley to the street, his head striking the curb.

Two firemen, Tom Taylor and Jimmie Pike also were injured but not seriously. It is stated, Wiley escaped unharmed.

The accident happened at the corner of Main Avenue and West Anderson. The fire truck, driven by Tom Taylor, ran past a red traffic signal at the intersection and Wiley was driving across under a green signal. Police indicated that Wiley would not be prosecuted had much as he was running a green light. Brownwood traffic lights are not arranged to allow all lights to be turned on red during a fire or other emergency.

McCulley had served as mayor and city manager for the past two and one-half years, having been re-elected this spring to serve his second term.

Mr. McCulley was fire chief of Brownwood for many years, resigning that position to run for mayor and city manager. Since becoming mayor, McCulley had made many runs with the local firemen, and had continued to be active in their work. He had attended the firemen's banquet each year and had announced plans for a big entertainment for the fire boys at Lakewood swimming pool, owned by him, for Friday night, June 29. In addition to owning Lakewood swimming pool, Mayor McCulley owned extensive land and other real estate in and near Brownwood.

He is survived by his wife and two children, Mrs. Conley McCulley of Waxahatche and Duncan McCulley, a student at Texas A. & M. University Medical school at Galveston, and five brothers. McCulley was a member of the Presbyterian church.

Alderman J. E. Smith becomes mayor pro tem until an election can be held.

Federal Bank Of Houston To Aid Dairy Farmers

Houston, Texas, June 21.—“The Dairy industry in this State was long neglected, but is now receiving some encouragement, and should receive continued support and encouragement from credit sources,” said M. Gosselt, President of the Federal Intermediate Credit Bank of Houston, when interviewed today.

“The many creeks and river bottoms covered with bermuda and other nutritious grasses the various forage crops raised, good roads and easy access to the markets, should make the dairy industry a profitable business.

“The greatest handicap in the past has been the lack of facilities for financing. Commercial banks, as a rule have not catered to such loans.

“Following the organization of the Federal Intermediate Credit Bank, we suggested a plan of monthly payments on dairy loans, and a company organized in Houston for the purpose of rediscounting eligible loans with the Bank adopted our suggestion and while it confines its operations to Harris and adjacent counties, it has steadily increased its volume of such business until now, it is thought, the dairy industry in the immediate vicinity of Houston is satisfactorily financed, and it is our hope that other sections of this District may extend their service along similar lines to the industry throughout the State.

“Dairy loans made through local companies and rediscounted with the Intermediate Credit Bank of Houston have nearly tripled in the last four years. This places the Intermediate Credit Bank of Houston near the top, if not at the top, of the list of 12 such banks. Since organization it has discounted approximately three-quarters of a million dollars of dairy loans. It is one of the most satisfactory forms of credit to farmers where the local lending agency pays careful attention to the details of the loan and the collection. In fact, it is the only amortized loan which we make to date. Probably that accounts in a way for its popularity, for the dairyman finds it easy to acquire a few additional cows, or indeed to build an entirely new herd under the arrangements worked out, when adopted by the local lending companies, such as agricultural credit corporations, livestock loan companies and banks, utilizing the facilities of the Intermediate Credit Bank of Houston.

“The loans are repaid by monthly installments, extending for 18 to 20 months. Each month the borrower pays a sufficient part of the loan so as to wipe it out entirely within the given time. In addition, of course, the borrower pays interest on the loan, which does not at present exceed 7 percent. Of this amount 4 1/2 percent is paid to the Intermediate Credit Bank when the farmer's notes are rediscounted with it.

“Ordinarily, loans are made up to 50 to 75 percent of the value of the dairy cattle which the farmer purchases. However, where the dairyman already owns a number of good dairy cattle and the mortgages is placed over the newly purchased animals, as well as those originally owned by the borrower, a higher percentage of the purchase price of the newly added animals is some times advanced. The local lending company also endorses the paper when it rediscounts it with the Intermediate Credit Bank.

“The loan lending company finds it desirable to make sure a farmer is so-called ‘dairy-minded’; that is to say, that he understands dairy cattle and is willing to feed and milk them.

“DEATH RAY” INVENTED BY GERMAN SCIENTIST KILLS BY MERELY TOUCH OF NEW FORCE

Berlin.—An invisible “death ray” capable of instant destruction of any living thing it touches has just been invented by a young German scientist, Erich Graichen, the ray emanating from a vacuum tube, is so fatal in its effect that the inventor confessed to Universal Service his dread if turned against humanity as a weapon of war.

The purpose of the invention Graichen declared is to isolate and split atoms. A gigantic tube producing a powerful ray could play havoc with a country and cause one kilogram of coal to explode with the force of ninety billion horsepower.

Agents of the foreign governments; Mexico and Chile, have asked Graichen whether he is willing to sell the invention, the Mexican agents inviting the German to come to Mexico as the guest of the government and work in a government laboratory. The inventor, despairing of receiving aid from the German government, whom he first approached, has advised the Mexican agents that if the Mexican government will guarantee him a livelihood for five years he will leave Germany.

“One of the biggest electrical concerns however is seeking to buy the patent and save it for Germany. Negotiations are starting next week.

Graichen's ray which has not yet been officially designated by any name, is produced by an electrical current of 160,000 volts passing through a vacuum valve of quartz glass containing an anode and two cathodes. The valve, mounted on an insulated pedestal, must not be touched during operation.

The ray is the product of Roentgen or X-ray, cathode rays and light rays. The tube is 15 centimeters high and 30 centimeters wide. During broad daylight the ray is invisible, but in a darkened room slight greenish agitation of the atmosphere such as is seen above a hot stove is seen.

Graichen has produced the ray at 15 feet and potent to kill at that distance.

“I am afraid under present inadequate conditions to build a larger valve for it, would likely destroy everything in the laboratory” said Graichen. “The object of my invention is really twofold. I want to isolate and split atoms so as to be able to draw on unexpected sources of energy. Take coal for instance. Not every bit of coal is consumed today. There is considerable wastage but if the atoms were split every bit of coal would be consumed. My second purpose was to find a cure for cancer. By modifying the ray I will be able to kill cancer tissues, eradicating them completely and instantly.

“The ray as a weapon of war is not my purpose, but I shudder to think what would happen if used against people.

Shun The Peddler

The summer season, now at hand, brings with it an economic ill that annually takes a toll of thousands of ill gained dollars. It is the itinerant peddler, the house to house door bell ringer and those of his kind who travel from place to place plying their trade and imposing on the credulity of the unthinking, offering bargains in this and that which most always turn out to be inferior merchandise sold at higher prices or in short measure. It is well to beware of these fellows and the plausible stories they tell to engage the interest and confidence of their prospects.

They are of many varieties and with as many kinds of merchandise to sell.

Inferior articles of many kinds are peddled about hither and yon during the summer months. The automobile has been a great aid to this kind of chicanery, for after he has lured a few gullible prospects a day's journey will take him far away and beyond the reach of the buyer who discovered that he has been victimized.

What better insurance can be than buying from the home town merchant? If for any reason, the article proves unsatisfactory, he is ready and willing to correct the trouble and satisfy his customer. Not so with the peddler—

The World Is Growing Better Every Year

I heard a preacher recently say that the world seems to be going to the dogs, or words to that effect. But the preacher is laboring under a mistake. One of the oldest bits of history is recorded on a bit of clay taken from the ruins of Babylon, in which an aged official who lived somewhere around 2000 B. C., laments the passing of the virtues of the “good old days.” Every age has produced its lamenters who have sung the same sad sort of calamitous song. A good deal of that sort of talk is on now but it is mostly talk. And while the human race is far from perfect, and the world needs improving in many ways, we are bound to admit, if we know anything at all about history, that the world is better today than ever before.

When in the world's history did ever a nation display more devotion to an ideal than did the World War? When did any people ever produce a man who could dare and endure like our present-day hero Lindbergh?

The trouble with asking questions and learning is everybody looks as if you were so ignorant.

There are so many people who really need sympathy it just isn't right to waste any on yourself.

Making Shopping Easy

This is truly the age of advertising, and ever expanding advertising. One who counts himself among the “common people,” on reading the advertisements in his newspaper remarked that it is dangerous to the purse to read the advertisements too carefully because you can not even scan them without finding something you want and at a price and of a quality you cannot afford not to take advantage of.

It can not be charged against newspaper advertisements that they force upon the public unwanted merchandise. They do, however, inform the public where their merchandise wants can be fulfilled and at the lowest cost. Newspaper advertisements have eradicated the nit and miss and the hurry and scurry from shopping.

From India

An account of a sandstorm in India and other items of interest from Miss Lena Boyd who is now on the Atlantic, homeward bound.

Our last week's work in India was marked by one of the worst sandstorms I ever witnessed.

With a party of other Missionaries I started out walking ten miles, against a stiff wind, the sand being deep in some places and we were rather tired upon our return.

The next day being Sunday, we planned to go in two parties, half going in a car, half walking to two nearby villages, for our time was short and we wished to visit all the villages up this way as there would not be another chance. But by 11 o'clock we had to give up all, as the wind and sand were so bad.

We decided to have a quiet sabbath at home and have a little service for servants and ourselves at 3 p. m.

It wasn't a very "quiet" sabbath, for that turned out to be the worst sandstorm we have ever experienced in camp, where the sand poured into the tents. We were camped right in a very sandy plain.

We couldn't even hold services at 3 and it got worse toward sunset instead of dying down as we expected it to do in Texas.

It was so dark in the tents in mid-afternoon we couldn't see to read, as we had to keep flaps closed. There was nothing to do but rest in bed. We could have no night meeting. With difficulty we cooked a little food. Fortunately I had cooked some sweet potatoes, beets, and carrots and as they were covered were free from dirt.

We had been having warm weather before coming to camp, so I left blankets at home even without my sweater. When the storm had calmed it became quite cold, and we felt as if we were nearly frozen.

All of us had to take to our dressing gowns. We even had to wear them during the day, but the people think we have very pretty, long, soft coats. Last night I had to wear mine over my shoulders to meeting, and the girls kept smoothing it; some said it was velvet, others wool. It was just heavy wooly cotton. They were sorry to see a big velvet patch on it where it was mended where a stray dog chewed it.

Third day in Red Sea, May 17th. We are due to reach Port Sall three ports, so we'll do that. It was Sunday. We reached Arden last Monday night. Arden is France, and Switzerland, but we counted a part of Bombay, don't mind that as we still have strange to say, being a five day voyage from Bombay. But it belongs to Great Britain. So we were able to use our left over stamps from there.

We've had a good voyage most of the time, a quiet sea—occasionally the wind blows hard, causing the boat to rock some, but it has not affected me. Only the first day I felt a little headache, but after that felt fine.

I love the sea—the wind blowing over the waves is nice.

Three more women and I sleep on the top deck—the roof you might call it; covered with canvas where the life boats are kept.

Those who like, have sport up there during the day—tennis, quarts, etc. It's very breezy at night, and we have to almost clutch to the floor to stay on.

My three cabin mates sleep in the cabin, trying to keep cool under two fans. Reminds me of ourselves—the Lord desiring to give us his best, and we are satisfied with the least—I can't stand the stuffy cabins. This is a nice boat, so clean and comfortable, with good food. The Stewards are Italians, and are so polite and accommodating.

We are second class; about 50 passengers—there must be twice as many in the first class. Only two women in our class smoke—one Irish the other Italian. But in first class so many smoke—the elite! I'm glad we're not over there. We have a much nicer crowd, more sensible. Our cabin mates are all nice Christian girls and refined, though very dark skinned. Last Sunday there was a short Church of England service in the first class music salon and we went. No wonder they are worldly, their religious leaders are such—the minister evidently is a spiritualist. That Sunday night he went to the Cinema (movies) along with the rest of them. He drinks whiskey, smokes cigarettes and dances.

It's not so warm in the Red Sea as we expected the breeze is good. We stopped at Arden eight hours unloading cargo, but no one got off as there is plague. Nothing of interest to be seen there anyway.

At first we intended going on a boat that required three days to Venice, paying six pounds each from our own pockets, but at Bombay we learned we could take a slower boat (eight days) from Alexandria, Egypt to Venice without the extra cost and it goes by Greece, stopping at two or three ports, so we'll do that. It cuts short our trip through Italy, but Monday night. Arden is France, and Switzerland, but we counted a part of Bombay, don't mind that as we still have plenty of time and as long as we are on a boat we don't have to pay hotel bills. We have a trans-Atlantic sailing from South England on June 23, on the big "Mauratonia," arriving at New York on June 28 or 29.

We are not going to Rome as it is too far south to do so conveniently. We've seen a lot of flying fish, and several times have seen schools of porpoises—we like to see them jump out of the water and back again. One kept alongside the boat for about a hundred yards.

There is a swimming pool on this vessel, but I don't go in. In the gym are two electric horses, two bicycles, a canoe, and a punching bag. Every morning I go five hundred meters on a bicycle. They are attached to the floor and register on a dial. I also take a ride on a horse—it's good exercise and sport.

PRESBYTERIAN MISSIONARY SOCIETY

The Missionary Society of the Presbyterian church met at the home of Mrs. W. R. Kelley for the regular lesson.

The leader, Mrs. Kelley, led the devotional; the lesson being selected from the 19th Psalm.

Mrs. C. Oakes, Brown, McClellan, and Kelley discussed interesting articles on the problems of the Philippines.

In these interesting lessons we invite you to meet with us.

WARFARE WITH INDIANS ON THE UPPER NUCES.

The part of Southwest Texas through which flows the headwaters of the Nueces and Frio rivers, was the home of several warlike tribes back in the sixties and seventies. It was a hunter's paradise. Native streams were beautiful, and teemed with fish, while the hills and valleys afforded wild game of every description. Naturally the Indian tribes who had had this happy hunting ground for so many years, resented the intrusion of whites, and armed conflicts continually took place between the two races.

J. E. Watkins, a pioneer of Southwest Texas, is well acquainted with many of the old Indian fighters of that part of the State. Mr. Watkins repeats some of the stories as told him by these old Indian fighters, in the Santa Anna News Monthly Section, which will be issued July 6th.

A TALE OF TWO CITIES

How two cities, with only a 30-foot width street separating them, get along so well will be told in the Monthly Magazine Section of the Santa Anna News to be issued July 6th.

These two cities are Texarkana, Texas, and Texarkana, Arkansas. One street only separates the two cities, with a combined population of over 30,000.

They set a good example of co-operation and friendliness to one another which other cities, though miles apart, could well afford to follow.

This line is to fill this space.

HOW SHE RELIEVED HIM

"Have you given him anything or done anything to relieve him?" asked the young doctor, who had ridden far into the the backwoods to see a patient in the dead of a stormy night.

"We, I, no, doc—that is to say nothin' to speak of," said the wife of the patient. "I had him soak his feet in 'almost' billin water with a lot of mustard; in it, an, I clapped a red-hot plaster on his chest, an' another one on his chest, and I've put a couple of blisters I hand in the house under his arms, and a bag o' cracked ice on the back of his neck, and, had him to drink a pint o' ginger tea with a dash o' rum in it jes' as hot as he could swallow hit, and I followed that with some yarb bitters one o' the neighbors sent over, an' I had him take five or six pills out of a box I got one day from a man that come along with medicine to sell, and he's had three or four spoons o' Quaker's pain killer an' one o' these sideltz powders, but I didn't feel like as if I ort to give him much o' anything or try to do much for him, until you come an' see what you think ailed him."—Exchange.

July Forth Preparations

One reason why in past years there was so much disturbance and serious mischief on July 4th in many communities was that the townspeople of such places took no interest in having a celebration of the better type. The tradition has been established that there were to be doings on that day to please the young people, and if nothing was arranged in the way of a pleasing public celebration the younger element would have their own kind of a good time, which was commonly a lawless one.

The birth day of the American nation is a big event, and if it is passed unnoticed it suggests some lack of public spirit.

The boy who is training to win the footrace is not apt to sit up all night exploding fireworks and menacing the town with his bonfires. And the good old customs of the Fourth of July orations should not be neglected. Some good speaker is always willing to talk about this grand country.

A Kansas editor has noticed that when a man finds fault with his local newspaper the chances are that he hasn't an advertisement in it; five to one that he never gave it job work and three to one that he has an imaginary grievance against the editor that amounts to nothing, and even more that he never did anything to assist the editor to make it a good paper, and 40 to 1 that he is anxious to see it when it comes out.—Exchange.

Vacation Thoughts

At this time of the years this is a nation with but a single thought—vacation.

Independence day will find vacation day in full swing. And during the succeeding two months a large percentage of the people of the United States will have their annual summer furlough from the cares and the labors of making a living.

For some the vacation will be a week, or perhaps only a day. A large number will drop their tools for fifteen days. A few more fortunate ones will extend their playtime over a month, two months or three months.

The vacation is an all-revealing barometer of prosperity of a community. There is no county in the world where wage earners and workers for small salaries can afford the luxury of a vacation trip, which is expensive and enjoyed at the additional expense of loss of earnings during the period of absence from work.

American workers are so little the slaves of that machine called industry and business and have so little craving for gold for its own sake that they collectively forfeit hundreds of millions of wage and salary for the sake of a vacation tour or sojourn.

Since the war the vacation has approached universality among salaried workers in the United States. Most office and store employees get a week or fifteen days with pay. But the fact that he gets no pay while away does not deprive the skilled wage earner of his motor trip, plunge in the surf or camping party.

You've heard that old one about "Hell's Broke Loose in Georgia". Well, the same thing's happened in Houston this week.

Apparently, the middle-west's hope for relief is from the wets, who want good corn.

Texas and Texans

By Will H. Mays

Seeing The Convention.

A novel feature of the Democratic convention building at Houston is the walkway through the back of the hall, elevated so that it affords a view of the hall and through which those without convention seats are allowed to parade leisurely to obtain a view of a great convention in action.

The considerate arrangement is much appreciated by thousands of Texans who went to the convention as visitors, but in the hope of being privileged to look in on the delegates while at their work.

"Looking For Losses"

The State Highway Department has called in the help of the Attorney General's Department, it is said in an effort to catch minor employees suspected of having cheated the State in the laying of road topping. The State pays contractors so much a square yard for laying topping a given thickness, and an inquiry is being conducted around the possibility that less than the agreed amount of composition has been laid.

Fighting Orient Sale.

This is a selfish old world—a greedy old world. Officials of the paper railroad from San Angelo are planning to oppose the purchase of the Orient by the Santa Fe on the ground that such purchase would decrease the revenue of the proposed road should it be built.

The claim is that the Orient, as an independent road, would be a feeder of the proposed new line, but that if acquired by the Santa Fe the business would go to that road.

Citrus Industry Grows.

That the citrus industry in the lower Rio Grande Valley is growing rapidly is shown in the estimates made by Federal officials that 2,500 cars will be required to handle next year's crop.

Statistics gathered show that the Southern Pacific and Missouri Pacific roads moved 1154 cars by freight in the last season and that 190 cars were shipped by express. In addition to this, the equivalent of 200 carloads, it is estimated, moved out of the Valley in trucks, mostly to points in Texas.

The expected increase for next season will come mostly from new orchards coming into bearing and from the complete recovery of the old trees from the damaging freeze of two years ago.

Volunteer Cotton

The first bale of cotton for the year in Texas was from San Juan, but was said to be volunteer cotton—grown from the stubble of old cotton left in the fields from the previous year. Even so it was only a day ahead of that which was produced from this year's planting in the Brownsville section.

However produced, first bales are merely announcements to the world that the Texas cotton crop for the year is on the way to market, and that as a consequence an era of business activity and prosperity may be expected.

Profitable Touring

Farmers of the Winter Garden District, finding a little leisure time, propose a huge caravan to visit the irrigated section of Texas, Arizona, New Mexico and California to study irrigation and diversified farming as practiced in the localities to be visited.

In California they will make a special study of the citrus industry and grape culture, and dairying and poultry raising, as well.

In this there is a suggestion to farmers in other parts of the State. Instead of spending vacation period, following the laying by of crops, in doing nothing or in purposeless tours why not organize parties having similar interests and make a study of those interests as handled in other sections of this and other States?

That "Etex" Label

East Texas makers and growers of worthwhile products are beginning to see the value of the "Etex" label that is used to indicate that the products are up to the high standard required by the East Texas Chamber of Commerce on products put out by those licensed, to use the label. Numerous letters of inquiry are being received from all over the country in regard to the label, and there is an increased demand for goods bearing it.

Chain Stores Increase

Chain stores are increasing in numbers and in the amount of business done. They are spreading from the cities and towns to the smaller villages and are handling almost all kinds of merchandise. It is a trend in modern business that must be met by merchants everywhere. A new chain of grocery and meat stores to operate in the Southwest and to be known as the Southwest Stores has been announced. Its plans are to do a $8,000,000 business the first year.

American Legion Fund

San Antonio is raising a $100,000 fund with which to entertain the American Legion meeting in September. Nearly 135,000 letters have been sent out to all parts of the United States and foreign countries setting forth the attraction of San Antonio as the convention city. Thousands of posters and folders advertising the convention have been mailed. Fully 50,000 Legionnaires are expected to attend the convention, thousands of whom will come to Texas by automobile, many of them to look for new homes in the State that offers so many opportunities for the homeseeker.

Every Texas community should co-operate with San Antonio in making this convention a real Texas event.

Pecan Crop Good

Although the pecan crop will again be short in some parts of Texas, taking the State as a whole, it will be above the average unless the pecan borer or other pests do unexpected damage.

The pecan crop brings a large revenue to the State, which would be much larger if only the growers had an efficient organization for handling it.

Truck Growers Co-operate

Starting with a small local organization formed by a local teacher of vocational agriculture last year, Denton truck growers have found organized marketing so helpful that the membership has grown to over 100, and these have co-operated in planting large acreage in melons, tomatoes, potatoes, cucumbers and other crops to their mutual advantage in both buying and selling.

The Social Power Of Music

What good is music to a community. It is like asking what good is music to the individual. Music is the great leveler—the universal language. A home without music is a home where something is lacking. A community without music is a community without the power to socialize itself. A municipal or town band is one of the greatest assets known to the modern world. A school, college or other institution without an orchestra or band is an institution lacking in one of the finest things in life.

The radio, instead of decreasing the desire to perform music for one's self, has increased this desire. It has brought back the old songs, the old standard melodies and folk songs that have been lost a to world seeking the new things. But the radio and phonograph have also shown the way for young and old people to learn an instrument.

One of the greatest things any community can do is to support a community band or orchestra. A boy or girl who masters an instrument of music, whether it be the flute, drum, the cornet, violin or piano, has learned the art of self-control and in turn can master the harsher situations of life. When you see a boy playing in the town band you know he has learned to co-operate. He knows what harmony and exemplifies that virtue in later life. He is, above all, accomplishing, and that is what education is for. He is engaged in work and play at the same time. In truth, his work is play. Search the records of history, and you will find that the boys of the band turned out-right in the great majority of cases.

The greatest benefit of all has not been mentioned. It is that those who perform music receive more good from the act of performing than those who listen. Learning by doing is more lasting than learning by being.

But the band is a college, in which one may enter without a lot of preliminaries. It is the great university of early life, where the boy or girl learns the world of cooperation, of harmony, of doing good, of pleasing others, and above all, of doing the things for himself and for himself.

When you say a kind word for group music, you boost for a community band or orchestra. And when you give a dollar toward helping support such an organization, you have done a wonderful thing for your home, community, and for the youth of your community.

The Price Is Too High

There are thousands buying a few hours of pleasure for the price of a lifetime of regret, writes a young man who is held in one of the Texas state prisons. Addressing a Brownwood man who had befriended him, providing certain articles of apparel that are not issued to prisoners by the state, this young man says:

"One here has plenty of time to think, not only of the future but the past. The desire to be shown' is apparently an inherent characteristic of the average human, and the ability to profit by the experience of others is a rare accomplishment. Experience is a great teacher, but some times the price one must pay seems too much. There are few if any who would enter a store and purchase a garment without first asking the price, but there are thousands buying a few hours of pleasure for a lifetime of regret. For sooner or later in some way or another, one must pay for his transgressions. If one would just devote a few minutes to contemplation in time, then no doubt one would be saved much trouble and worry and grief."

There are few who enter crime deliberately. The first offense usually is impulsive; deliberation comes afterwards, when one realizes that he has already forfeited his right to freedom and all its privileges. Desperation next follows, all too often. Obviously, if every man and woman who is tempted to violate the criminal law would first consider the cost, there would be fewer violations; for the testimony of thousands of prisoners is exactly like that of this young man whose observations are given here. A lifetime of regret is indeed too great a price to pay for a few hours of pleasure; and the regret is not the only punishment one must suffer when paying the penalty for violations of the law. The penal institutions of this state are governed by humane principles, but they are not merely places where one may sit and regret—they compel one to do hard labor, wear coarse, sweat-stained clothing, eat coarse common food, and associate with persons whom the state believes to be unfit for decent people to associate with. The price of pleasure bought with crime is so great that the wonder is that any young man would be so foolish as to agree to pay it.—Brownwood Daily Bulletin

VALERA CITIZEN REMEMBERS PRESIDENT LINCOLN

Valera, June 26—One of the two surviving neighbors of Abraham Lincoln lives in Valera. The former neighbor of the president, when Lincoln lived in Springfield, Ill., is J. T. Nixon, who despite his 78 years, is vigorous and active. His father died only four years ago at the age of 96.

The Valera citizen remembers Lincoln clearly as he was 13 years old when the Great Emancipator died. Nixon was born in the 17th district, who spoke in Valera.

then with only five houses in the town.

His home is in Valera but he owns a good farm more than a mile away, on which is being drilled, offsetting a big gasser. The pioneer walks back and forth between his home and his farm daily and takes a keen interest in the progress of the well. A few nights ago he sat up a little later than his usual hour for retiring in order to hear an address by Judge R. N. Grisham, candidate for Congress from the 17th district, who spoke in Valera.

Your Buick Dealer stands back of the USED CARS he sells

Your Buick dealer's good reputation in the community is worth far more to him than the profit he makes on any car transaction.

He is the head of an established business and he knows that in order to get more business, he must please his present customers.

He carries a representative stock of used cars, including both used Buicks and cars of other makes—and he represents them honestly.

Aviators are supreme: they rise above other motorists' troubles.

Buy your boy tools. Always let him find out what he won't be when he grows up.

We understand the Republicans are figuring on changing the song to "The Side-steps of New York."

"When do we eat?" is a clever phrase, but "Why do we eat so much and often?" is a more sensible one.

It takes a lot of wind to blow a comet, but you have to add a lot of nerve to perform on a saxophone.

We will stand for any kind of a dry plank so long as we are assured that the majority on the committee are sober when they write it.

So far as we can learn, everybody is dead set against war, but nobody is ready to believe that the other fellow is willing to quit fighting.

It's a wonderful world. Any time an American feels unsafe as to his life of prosperity, he can always go to some place like Nicaragua and get protected.

An Effective Helper

Statistics show that about 7 per cent of automobile operators are careless. It is the reckless 7 per cent which are responsible for the ever-increasing number of deaths and injuries on our highways. When the public will co-operate with the State motor vehicle authorities and police by reporting all flagrant traffic violations, it will assist materially in reducing the number of reckless drivers. The average motorist is careful, law-abiding citizen, but there is an element on our highways who have no respect for law or order. These should be deprived of the privilege of using our highway.

MISS AMELIA EARHART, the first woman to fly across the Atlantic, has participated in a feat of daring. She, with her companions, Wilmer Stultz and Lou Gordon, tend to close the apt of spectacular flights, and get all future aviators off the front page.

A peculiar psychology, coupled with a big gamble, prompt men and women to start over continents and oceans in air. Flushed with the success of the great Lindbergh, they have proved trans-oceanic flights a fact and translated Lindy's mysterious miraculous accomplishments into reality. Aviation now only awaits planes large enough to haul us all.

Other towns, like Santa Anna have their usual run of young men who claim they can't get anything to do in a neighborhood town the other day a drug store was chiding some of his loafing guests because they did not go to work and as usual the excuse was given that they could not get a job. He then told them that it was easy to get work and to show them, how easy it was, he got him a rag, a cake of soap and a pan of water and went to the next door, and promptly got a job to clean the windows. When he finished the job another firm gave him a job of cleaning some show cases, and in a little less than one hour he had earned a dollar and fifty cents in a town where the boys said there was no work to be had. There is always plenty of work to be done. The trouble with most boys is that they want to start at the top of the ladder with top wages rather than at the bottom and work up.

VISIT TO MOTHER'S GRAVE IS CAUSE OF UNITING DALLAS MAN AND SISTER AFTER SIXTY YEARS

Marcus Heaslip, who figures in the following story appeared in The Dallas Morning News, is father of E. J. Heaslip of Brownwood.

(From Dallas News) The sage who said truth is stranger than fiction might as well have based the statement on the fact that a grave brought two persons together after sixty years, during which each thought the other dead.

One of them is Marcus Heaslip, for twenty-one years a proof-reader on the Dallas News. The other is Mrs. Della Fero, his sister, of Niagara Falls, Ontario. The grave is thousands of miles from Texas and but a few miles from Niagara. It is in a little country churchyard in the Vanadlian countryside near St. Catharines, Ontario.

Sixty years ago there was no such grave. That was when Marcus Heaslip was a young man living of the small town in which he lived. That was when Mrs. Fero was a young girl. One day Marcus left his home and went to St. Catharines where he apprenticed himself to become a printer.

Connections Lost. Thereafter, in the manner of newspaper folks, he moved from town to town and from city to city, working in Toronto, Detroit, Boston, Chicago and then he came to Dallas, and definitely settled down.

In the meantime, his sister married. Their mother died, and the connecting link between the two was broken.

Through the years both made futile attempts to find the other.

Mrs. Heaslip and daughter went to Ontario and looked for Mr. Heaslip's sister, but were unsuccessful. Sister and brother wrote all over the United States and Canada, but their inquiries were futile. Mr. Heaslip last year was in the city of Niagara Falls, possibly only a few blocks from his sister's home, but he had long since given her up for dead.

Sexton Tells Address. Then he went to his mother's grave near St. Catharines. He spoke to the keepers of the "little cemetery of his quest for his sister. Months later an old woman was standing beside the same grave. She talked to one of the attendants and he told her of the man that had stood there and in the near future for Niagara Falls and induce her to return to Texas with me for an extended visit, at least."

Every newspaper man tries to print the truth about events and the home town reporters are especially anxious to have names and initials and events exactly right, but if you will take a list of a score of your own personal friends and write down their names spelled correctly, give their middle initial without error, adhering strictly to the truth and without being censored by any of them or their friends and we'll find you a place in the Hall of Fame. Errors will occur. We find them in every newspaper every day which we pick up. There is no automatic machinery which can prevent errors in a newspaper. A newspaper is an open book where every error glares from the pages. The error cannot be hidden under "seller's unders." There is no such account in a newspaper office. But the home town newspapers on the job day and night, fair weather and foul, in season or out of season, boasting the home city, prating unceasingly everything and everybody within its bounds. There's nothing else in all the world that will show the good in mankind, and pass over the bad, so often and so easily as the home town newspaper.

Foolish People. It is surprising people are as dull as they are. Widows in tonight every day by every incident in life. In all the timesome talk that goes on in all the millions of newspaper columns, no excess is made for folly; everybody is wise, and talks it, and acts foolish.—E. W. Howe's Monthly.

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By Rev. P. B. Fitzwater, D. D.
Dean, Moody Bible Institute of Chicago
(62, 122, Western Newspaper Union)

Lesson for July 1

THE EARLY LIFE OF SAUL

LESSON TEXT—Deut. 6:4-9; Phil. 2:4-6; Acts 22:3, 27, 28.
GOLDEN TEXT—Remember also thy Creator in the days of thy youth.
PRIMARY TOPIC—The Story of Saul as a Child.
JUNIOR TOPIC—The Boyhood of a Great Preacher.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Saul's Training and Service.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Influences Shaping Saul's Early Life.

1. Israel's Responsibility With Reference to God's Laws (Deut. 6:4-6).
Central truths to be taught (vv. 4, 5).
(1) Unity of God. "The Lord our God is our Lord." He is God alone, therefore to worship another is sin.
(2) Man's supreme obligation (v. 5).
God should be loved with all the heart, soul and might, because He is God alone and supreme. This being the first and the great commandment, we know what is man's supreme duty.
2. How these truths are to be kept alive (vv. 6-9).
The place of God's Word is in the heart. In order that it may be in the heart: (1) "teach it diligently to thy children" (v. 7). The most important part of a child's education is that given in the home in the Word of God. How sadly this is neglected today! (2) To talk of them in the home (v. 7). This is the right kind of home life. How blessed is that home where God's Word is the topic of conversation. (3) Talk of them when walking with our children and friends (v. 7). (4) Talk of them when retiring for the night (v. 7). The last thing upon which the mind should rest before going to sleep should be God and His truth (5) Talk of them when rising in the morning (v. 7). How fitting that God should speak to us the first thing when we awake! (6) Bind them upon thine hand (v. 8). This was literally done by the Jews, even to the wearing of them in little boxes between their eyes. (7) Write them upon the posts of the houses and on the gates (v. 9). Such a remembrance of God's words would create a spiritual atmosphere most desirable.
II. Saul's Ground of Confidence (Phil. 2:4-6).
He had everything a true Jew started in.

1. Circumcision the sixth day (v. 1).
This was the literal requirement of the law for those born under the Abrahamic covenant.
2. "Of the stock of Israel" (v. 5). This shows that he was a true Jew, related to the chosen people by blood and birth.
3. Of the tribe of Benjamin.
Benjamin had always remained loyal to the national customs. The first king of Israel, whose name he bore, was of Benjamin.
4. "Hebrew of the Hebrews" (v. 5).
This showed that he was of Hebrew parentage and not a proselyte.
5. Touching the law, a Pharisee (v. 5).
The Pharisees were of the sect most zealous for all the rites and ceremonies of Judaism.
6. "Concerning zeal, persecuting the church" (v. 9).
He proved his zeal by positive effort to stamp out that which was threatening Judaism.
7. "Touching the righteousness which is in the law, blameless" (v. 6).
So exactly had he conformed to the outer requirements of the law that he was consciously blameless.

11. A Sketch of Saul's Life (Acts 22:3, 27, 28).
In this sketch he gives us a glimpse of his birth, education and citizenship.
1. His birth (v. 3).
Though born at Tarsus, a city outside of Palestine, he had been brought up in a strict Jewish home, Tarsus was the capital of the province of Cilicia. It was a city of prominence because of its commerce and culture. It was one of the three principal universities of that period.
2. His education (v. 3).
Born out of Palestine, he was sent to Jerusalem for his education. This fact shows that he belonged to a zealous family of Jews. His teacher was the great Gamaliel, a doctor of the law and the leader of the strict sect of the Pharisees.
His citizenship (vv. 27, 28).
He was by birth a Roman citizen because Tarsus was the capital of a Roman province. In the providence of God the great apostle to the Gentiles was given the prestige of a free-born citizen of the empire. While he was religious, he was at the same time patriotic. He was loyal to his country and proud of his citizenship.

Feeding For Eggs

There is no question but what both egg production and growth is greatly influenced by the ration fed. Many factors and ingredients enter into a well balanced ration. On most farms, the greatest part of the ration consists of grain, mill feeds and by-products. Careful poultry feeding research has developed the fact that the use of animal protein, such as meat scraps, fish meal or milk in a ration, consisting only of stable-grain used for many farm flocks, will increase egg production about one-half and at the same time greatly decrease the cost of producing eggs. In extensive feeding tests it was found that the flock fed only whole and ground grain, laid on an average of 85 eggs per hen per year and went into an early moult. The other pen fed ordinary grains supplemented with meat scraps produced an average of 150 eggs per hen per year. Here is a difference of about 85 eggs in favor of the pen fed some animal food along with the whole and ground grains. Animal food of some kind seems to be necessary in all good rations for both laying hens and growing chicks.

New York City Eats Live Poultry
Each year the City of New York requires about 12,000 car loads of live poultry, weighing something over 200,000,000 pounds, valued at over $60,000,000. About 30 percent of New York City's population is composed of Jews, which requires its poultry to be koshered or killed in accordance with the rites of the Jewish religion, hence the great demand for live poultry. (Bear in mind the figures—just given are only for live poultry. New York City consumes almost as many car loads of dressed poultry and turkeys.

Average Hen Lays 60 Eggs
According to the census, the average farm hen lays less than 50 eggs a year, and most of these from March to June, when prices are lowest. If you have a flock of mongrel hens the chances are good they belong to the 60 egg class. There is only one way to make such a flock profitable and that is, to put all of them into the soup bowl. Study of egg price show that in April, prices are lowest, they began to go up in July or August, by September they have gone up in price a great deal and by December, the price is as a rule the highest. Here then there is a great opportunity to increase the egg production of our farm flock, especially fall and winter egg production. The ability to lay is inherited. I believe that I am safe in saying that the average flock of White Leghorns will produce better than 120 eggs a year. This is twice as many as the average farm hen. A well bred flock of White Leghorns, or any other breed will produce 180 eggs per hen per year. This is three times as many as the mongrel hen. In figuring profit, however, the well bred hen laying 180 eggs is at least ten times as profitable as the 60 egg hen. The well bred hen lays many of her eggs at least around 90 to 100 when they are up in price. Well-bred hens are profitable investments. Poorly bred hens are money losers.

Guarding Against Summer Diseases

Every change of season brings a new set of problems for those who take an active interest in building up and maintaining their health. We are informed by the United States Public Health Service, Public Health Officers and workers who have studied the subject have found a tendency to identify themselves with certain seasons.
Among those which cause the most concern during the spring and summer are the intestinal upsets ascribed to improper food and milk. They can be avoided, the investigators believe, if adequate care is taken with the diet and in the safeguarding of milk and food supplies. Infantile paralysis, one of the most mysterious and dreaded of diseases, also becomes more prevalent during the hot weather, and parents are advised not to allow their children to visit or play with other children who are ill. Typhoid is another of the important diseases which tend to increase during the summer and fall. Although it becomes quite widespread, public health officers are convinced that it can be prevented by strict attention to the maintenance of cleanliness in food, milk and water supplies and protection against flies. Vaccination also is recommended. Among the common communicable diseases measles is most likely to give trouble during the

HAROLD LLOYD BREEZE IN WITH NEW COMEDY, "Speedy"
Just when everyone is beginning to think there is nothing new in comedy, Harold Lloyd pops up with a new picture, and explodes the idea. He does it with a bang in his latest pathos-quake "Speedy", in which he gives one of his best characterizations, as well as providing bigger and better laughs than we have had since he issued "The Kid Brother". See this new comedy at the Queen Theatre next Monday and Tuesday.

ONE OF MAN'S BEST FRIENDS

The bat that for centuries has been spoken of as one of the despised creatures has now come forward as man's best friend, because it so relentlessly destroys the malaria mosquito, the greatest enemy of mankind. The mosquito is the bat's principal food.
San Antonio has now built 3 bat roosts, or "homes" for bats, in order to reduce the ravages of malaria fever in certain outlying districts.
The usefulness of the bat, its habits and characteristics, will be told in the July 6th issue of the Santa Anna News Monthly Magazine Section.
A radio announcer says that everybody ought to have two tooth brushes. Well, everybody ought to have at least two bristles left in the one they are now using.

BROKEN HOMES

Edith Johnson in the Houston Post Dispatch, says that one generation of mothers could put an end, practically, to serious domestic discord, divorce, broken homes, abandoned children.

"By training their sons to be good husbands and their daughters to be good wives, they could make this world a near-Eden."

"Ninety-five per cent of the quarreling and bickering among the married could be eliminated by education in childhood and adolescence. Mothers could prevent more disappointment and misery in domestic relations than courts and judges can ever cure."

Her suggestion is that mother should rear her daughter to be the kind woman she would like to have her son's wife be and that mother should rear her son to be the kind of man she would want her daughter to have for a husband.

To this should be added the timelier observation that these same mothers who are really and truly the conservators of morality should see to it that the fathers of their children, both men and women should be people who entertain wholesome views regarding marriage and the obligations it entails.

The mother of a family who properly rears her sons and daughters is a person truly great.—Exchange.

An Immense Pelican Captured Near De Leon

Harry and Curtis Rodgers captured a very large pelican at Onion Valley, Sunday, May 27. The bird for some reason was unable to get into the air and the two boys chased it into a corn field where it turned on them and showed fight. It was stunned by a light blow on the head with a stick. It apparently had not been injured by being shot.

The big bird had a wing spread of almost eight feet and stands about three feet high; in fact he can stretch his neck a good deal higher than that. His color is white with long black wing tips, beak fully a foot long with a big yellow pouch under his throat, webbed footed and short tail.

The Rodgers boys have been feeding him fish, crawfish and other similar foods. They will attempt to sell the bird to a zoo in some Texas city.—De Leon Free Press.

The Gossiper

Old Sister Gossip number one, Who started each scandal in town, To number two says, listen, Hun, I saw Sal Jones speak to Joe Brown, And number two says, don't write down, Dear number three, just what you think, When Mrs. Jones and Mr. Brown Shook hands today, they both did wink, Then not stopping to get her hat Number three bursted out the door, She vowed she'd never rest till that Had reached dear Gossip number four, She found her waiting for some news, To carry on to number five, She says, I'm sorry, but excuse me, It's true as sure as I'm alive, That pretty Mrs. Jones, the vamp Today while walking down the street, Met Mr. Brown and kissed the scamp, Now don't you think that's getting sweet, I hate to talk about a friend, That I have known these many years, I knew she'd come to some bad end, For men she seems to hold no fears, I'm sure there's more between that pair, Than any of us yet have seen, I, for one, think it is unfair, That God made Mr. Jones so green, Some one should go quick as they can, And break the news to Mrs. Brown, Maybe she'd kill her worthless man, Or else go down and shoot old Sal Jones down, The Gossip travels like wild fire, And each one adding to the flame, Until they've crowded into the mire, A sister's character and name, And from the man, like thieves they stole, His bosommate's confiding love, And shut a light out of his soul, A precious gift, from God above, It's too well known there is no gain, To which Gossipers may aspire, For every one in this domain, Knows a Gossiper is a liar, Tho they've been here since time began, Some of us still will give them heed, Pure womanhood, innocent man, Are the main things on which they feed, Remember this, dear Falsifier, As you press onward with the feud, That God has classed the thief and liar, With fallen men and women lewd, Another thing the Master said,

This on your mind I pray ye keep, Don't lie on the living or dead, For "as ye sow, so shall ye reap", There's many things the Father hates, And says he'll punish them with fire, And one of them the scripture states, Is just common Bare-Faced Liar, If you would do a worthy deed The erring people do not gore, But follow this, the Saviors creed, And plead with them, to sin no more. —John Holder.

Prolonging The Honeymoon

June is drawing to its close. The newly married couples, one by one drift back from their honeymoon trip. They drift back from their honeymoon trips, but not necessarily from their honeymoons. For why need the honeymoon pass quickly? Given mutual understanding, consecrated by a great love, there is no reason why the honeymoon cannot go on indefinitely. In fact in many cases it does. Who has not seen couples in middle life whose whole beings seem to be wrapped up in each other? In the ardent admiration of the young couple has given place to the clear, burning light of pure love. Deep rooted sentiment is needed by the married, so that they can overlook the faults which are inevitable in human character; They overlook faults. They learn to tolerate the quick word or the angry gesture. Where the honeymoon passes quickly and fades into the drab of an everyday futility, there marriage has been a failure. Happily most honeymoons last a long time, many of them a lifetime. It is well that this is so, else society would fall apart. The lengths of a mile varies in different countries, and also in different means of transportation.

They Dared And We Ought To

July 4, 1776, will always remain one of the eloquent dates in American history. Something happened then that was heard the world around, the echoes of which have kept on resounding. Our forebears who participated in the momentous event were very human, possessing foibles, eccentricities. To use a scriptural phrase, "they were men of like passions" with us. The inspiring thing is they nobly dared. To be sure, there was nothing like unanimity among the leaders of that generation which announced the Declaration of Independence, fought the Revolutionary war and framed the Constitution. The controversial spirit was rife the debates were often acrimonious; vital and far reaching issues were decided by narrow margins. There was a good deal of wrangling, and confusion, but happily no chaos. The main point is they nobly dared. Amidst the many tokens which serve to ruin us what happened 152 years ago in Philadelphia, we do well to remember the adventuresomeness of it. Without the daring spirit, the audacious mind and the willingness to take sublime risk, there would have been no Declaration, no Constitution, no newly born nation, with lusty voice and growing limb. They nobly dared and lo—this America! It was Wendell Phillips who said that to be as good as our own fathers we have to be better; to do as they did we have to do more; to go as far as they went we have to go further. Well said, and in this year of our independence, one hundred and fifty-second, it becomes us nobly to dare. Some people marry for better or worse while others marry so they can get some sleep. Even if a loaded truck hasn't the right of way never knock it off the road with a light car.

Who Is Educated

Who is educated? What is an education in the truest sense of the word? Webster defines an education as "the acquisition of knowledge, skill, or discipline of character, the totality of the qualities acquired through individual instructions and social training, which further the happiness, efficiency and capacity for social service of the educated."

Too many people look on an education as a cut-in-and-dried proposition. They regard it as merely acquiring knowledge and absorbing information. They pour over books and try to get academic credit for every hour spent in the classroom; they master certain portions of the world's knowledge—and then after going through this process call themselves educated persons.

Several outstanding men in the field of education have made a list of the characteristics of an educated person. As curious as it may seem, the word "knowledge" has been left out in the opinion of nearly all these educators. In their estimation, obtaining an education is more comprehensive than pouring over books and acquiring knowledge; it is not a cut-and-dried proposition; it is more than knowledge of the intricacies of mathematics, science, and several foreign languages.

What, then, is an education? One of the most important characteristics of an educated person is a gentle and refined manner. The girl who has gone through four years in college can feel that she has been successful to a large degree if she can put herself in the ranks of the refined if she can have the air of a cultured person, and if she can feel that her nature is as gentle and as cultured as that of a lady, in the real meaning of the word.

The really educated person has an appreciation for the beautiful, whether it be in a poem, in music, or a sunset. To be educated a person must not only appreciate beauty, but he must seek it, and recognize it whether it be a lily in a dung hill or the work of a Rembrandt.—Baylor College Belts.
