"He Profits Most Who Serves Best"

Why A Mother's Day?

Editorial exasperation is sometimes the result of so many "days and weeks" of special observance by a considerable number of people or classes of people. Some of these special occasions, however, worthy, arise from selfish motives, or are the work of propagandists. Everybody knows that or should know it. But a selfish motive often works to the advantage of more people than the circle of movers.

We can see no impure motive behind Mother's Day which is usually scheduled for the second Sunday in May. To say that the flowers that the florists sell, or the candies that the confectioners sell, render this event in the class of the commercialized is small argument. The day needs no defense because mother doesn't. In truth, commercialism, as such, need no defense. More power to the high-pressure flower and candy salesman for Mother's Day. A merchant who induces a son or daughter to send a remembrance to mother is doing good and is worthy of his hire.

There is a definite reason for Mother's Day even in sentiment alone. It makes our lazy editors dig and write sweet things. It makes wayward children write letters. It causes poets to sing and muse to muse. Indeed, with-out Mother's Day, or a spiritual prod of equivalent force, the writer would not be writing, nor the printer printing nor the reader reading.

Then there is something in a Mother's Day—a world of blessing in a mother; a great debt to be paid.

Perhaps it cannot be paid in fondling care, material support or kind words that can be heard and felt and known; perhaps it can be appreciated in retrospect—paid only in memory. Either condition warrants consideration. True devotion knows no distance, no lapse of time, no material condition. Love is a stature of the heart, and the heart is universal. If it isn't a flower, a letter, a material token, let it be a good deed—backed by a good deed—all for mother, on this second Sunday in May. We have with us always a mother or a mother's loving memory. There is no time when there is no mother. She is eternal as she is inevitable. That's why a Mother's Day. The lack of proper credit to the one who suggested it is compensated for in the thought that all mothers make it possible for universal observance.

BYRD ET AL SPUDED IN ON CHEANEY SATURDAY

Precinct Convention To Be Held Saturday

Both the Democrats and Republicans will hold precinct conventions throughout the state Saturday at 2 o'clock in the afternoon. All interested parties are urged to attend.

One More Surprise

Included in our mail Thursday morning was an invitation to the editor personally, to attend the Commencement Exercises of the State Secondary Agricultural School at Lineville, Alabama, Tuesday, May eighth, with a card enclosed from Miss Era Belle McDaniel. For a moment we were lost to know who the young lady was, but on second thought and closer examination of the card we found it was from a young lady we have never seen. The young lady seems to be graduating with honors and is in line for congratulations, to her, we extend, and will state that we will exert an effort to go. The occasion and premises would bring back to mind many pleasant memories of days gone by. The old stomping ground and limited temple of knowledge has certain facinations held very dear to us. Would that it were possible we could be present for the happy occasion.

Blanton Opens Campaign

Congressman, Thomas L. Blanton, who has represented this district in Congress the past twelve years, opened his campaign in Abilene, his home town Tuesday of last week for the nomination to the United States Senate. Judge Blanton made a forceful speech to a large hearing of friends, said to be 1,200 or more. The speaker said, "I have vital issues to present to the voters of East Texas and they will listen. If West Texas will do her part by me I will take care of the rest, I am of Texas and for all Texas." In our opinion, Mr. Blanton will speak in every part of the State during the next few weeks, and he knows his onions.

The Queen bee mates' only once. After she takes her honeymoon the husband dies. That's surely convenient.

GIVES SHOWER TO STORM VICTIMS

On Monday May 1st, the W. M. S. of the Baptist Church gave a Shower honoring Mrs. Tucker Newman and Mrs. F. S. Barton, who lost their homes in the recent storms. After an interesting contest, Master Julian Kelley brought a telegram announcing the arrival of the Steamship "Love" in port Santa Anna laden with gifts for Mrs. Newman and Mrs. Barton. Capt. Bill Bob Garmes anchored his ship, and requested that they unload the cargo. Mrs. Hardy Stewardson, daughter of Mrs. Barton received the gifts for her mother, who is still confined to her bed. Delicious refreshments, consisting of punch, sandwiches and angel food cake were served to a host of friends.

R. L. NEWMAN HAS BROKEN LEG

We learned with regret last Saturday of the misfortune of our good friend, Tucker Newman, whose horse fell with him Saturday morning while riding about the place, inflicting a broken leg as the result. Mr. Newman recently lost his home in a tornado, and was working heroically to rebuild and make other repairs. Well, Tucker, we all undergo an endurance test some time during life, and we expect you are now undergoing yours. Keep in mind that saying, "When it rains it pours, but the darkest hours are just before day."

GRAMMAR SCHOOLS TO ENTERTAIN WITH MAY FETE

The beautiful lawn just south of the Stafford Baxter home will be the scene of much gaiety and many flowers, Friday evening, May 11th, when the Grammar School will stage an entertainment with a May Fete. The Queen of May, Bess Ene Shield, with all her court, is entertained by the seasons by Mother Goose, Cinderella, and Robin Hood. All the Princes and Princesses will be there; Maurice Bond, Gus Rouch, Helen Martha Zackery, Charles Chambers, Martha Belle Harvey, William Mitchell, Christine Brannan, Wyatt Smith, Mary Strand Dilling, Vernon Rowe, Alene Burden, Tom Lupton, Beth Barnes, Vernon Ragsdale, Era Crye, J. D. Merritt, Angie Louise Watkins, John David Harper, Hettie Williamson, Clovis Fletcher, Catherine Kramer, Seth Ford, Annie Lupton, and Billy Barnes. The Queen is crowned, then the whole court is entertained by Mother Goose, submitted by the smaller children, the seasons, Spring, by the second grade; Summer, by the fourth grade; Autumn, by the third grade; and Winter by the first grade. The fifth grade will give the fairy tale "Cinderella," followed by "Robin Hood" by the sixth grade which closes the program. In this month of youth and flowers, youth will entertain us. They promise a royal time. The admittance only fifteen and twenty-five cents should be accompanied by a flower. If the proper results are to be had, the children state. "Life is young and sweet," the children say, and they intend giving the older heads their viewpoint, too. This entertainment will take place at 8 o'clock, Friday evening, May 11, and the public is invited to attend.

TO SPEAK HERE SATURDAY

Judge T. P. Perkins of Mineral Wells, candidate for Congress, requests the Santa Anna News to announce, he will speak in Santa Anna Saturday, May 5th, at 4 o'clock p. m. at which time he will discuss some of the issues he is making the race for the nomination for Congress in this district.

Some Rat-Killing

We have heard of lots of rat killing time but it remains for Dick Gray to take the cake with the one he pulled on Monday. He moved his chicken house and turned a bunch of dogs loose on the spot and got the sum total of 244 grown rats in the drive. There was a number who escaped but they got most of them at that. He only moved the house a short distance at a time and kept the dogs busy for several minutes on each move. Those in the nests and not full grown were not counted in the total. We wonder who will now top his record.

Another Successful Singing Convention Recorded

The Quarterly singing convention advertised last week to convene at the Cumberland Presbyterian church Sunday afternoon was another successful convention. Among the singers from out of town who added zest to the convention were: Mr. Frank White and family from the western part of the county, Hugh Murrell of Shield, Prof. G. W. Bobo of Brownwood, one Mr. Davis, who represented himself to be from "Punkin-Center" in Mills county, introduced his quartet, composed of four teenagers, all of whom are under ten years of age, who rendered a special, well worth hearing. Several others were out of town, one Mr. Huggins was a good singer. Mr. R. L. Brooks and other members of his good family from Bangs enjoyed the convention.

Time Comes Again To Swat The Fly

The United States Public Health Service sends out through the Associated Press the following which is of interest. At this time. Spring is a season of relaxation and rejuvenation, but it brings its peculiar responsibilities. One of these is the house fly. The two most important ailments transmitted by flies are typhoid fever and the diarrhoea diseases of children. These and other diseases may be transmitted in two ways, by mechanical transference by the mouth and nose. Flies which inject germs into the victim by biting. However, a relatively unimportant, since the blood sucking varieties are not so numerous in the United States as the house fly type. The stiff hairy parts of a house fly are particularly adapted to the mechanical transference of contagion. Contaminated with filth in places where conditions are especially favorable to the development of germs, it carries them to the food and drink consumed by man. It has been suggested that the slogan "Swat The Fly" be amended to read, "Fight the fly by destroying its breeding places and screening it out of the house."

FRESHMAN CLASS PICNIC

A number of teachers in the Santa Anna High school accompanied the Freshman class and several of their parents out to the Richardson crossing on Home Creek Tuesday, where they all enjoyed a nice afternoon picnic. Several games were played and a luncheon spread in picnic style was one of the closing events of the afternoon. It was estimated that a box of soda crackers mysteriously disappeared, and several small children reported two of the main principals in the party were seen eating at intervals during the afternoon.

THE PIONEER BELLES

Mrs. Fred Turner was hostess to the Pioneer Belles on Thursday afternoon. The house was very artistically decorated with spring flowers. As it was time for the annual election of officers, a business meeting was called first and the following officers were elected: President, Mrs. H. W. Kingsbury, Vice, President, Mrs. B. F. Rothermel, Secretary, Mrs. Wallace Kirkpatrick. Needle work and conversation formed the diversion for the afternoon. At a late hour delicious refreshments of wafers, salad on lettuce leaves, cherry pie topped with cream and iced tea, was served to the following guests: Mesdames W. R. Kelley, L. W. Hunter, B. F. Rothermel, Sam Harper, Robert Kirkpatrick, W. B. Harper, A. L. Oder, T. T. Perry, W. T. Vermer, J. W. Collier, Wallace Kirkpatrick, S. L. Weaver and the hostess. The next meeting will be with Mrs. Ed. Wallace.

Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Brasher and family of Rule are visiting in the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. I. Brecliffe this week.

Air Cures For The Deaf

Col. John K. Scott, 64 year old Civil War veteran, has been deaf for many years. But the other day a friend took him for an airplane ride from Gettysburg, Pa. to Washington, and when the ride was ended he discovered that his hearing had been restored. He was so delighted, news disseminates that he fainted and shouted with glee. There have been other stories of deaf persons who regained their hearing after airplane rides. Cannot some medical research organization provide funds for an exhaustive investigation of the possibilities of this as a regular treatment? It is important to know whether we have not stumbled upon a new cure of great value.

High School P. T. A. Organized

At the P. T. A. meeting last week the following officers were elected. Mrs. J. R. Gipson, President; Mrs. A. L. Oder, 1st Vice-President; Mrs. Jack Woodward, 2nd Vice-President; Mrs. Will Hall, 3rd Vice-President; Mrs. G. W. Faulkner, Secretary. There was an interesting meeting, a good attendance and much planning for the future. Concrete walks, grassy lawns, and growing trees will probably result. There will be another meeting Tuesday afternoon, May 8th, at four o'clock, and a large attendance is very much desired. A good program has been arranged. Mrs. P. P. Bond, Mrs. E. H. Wylie and Mrs. Leman Brown discussing important subjects.

Nutrition Work Progressing In School

Miss Wolf, the Red Cross Nutrition teacher in instructing classes in the grade schools every Wednesday. Children have been weighed and measured, and special care placed on having under-weights set up to normal. Many under weights are found in the grades. Teachers are cooperating in this work and Miss Wolf desires that the parents be interested and attend the adult classes given every Wednesday afternoon from four to five at the High School building, room 203. The classes are free to everyone desiring to come.

The average newspaper ought to hire a boy, whose sole job would be to open and throw into the wastebasket the propaganda mail.

Why Storms Increase At Night

It is an interesting fact, according to the Weather Bureau of the United States Department of Agriculture, that the winter cyclones moving northeastward in the United States, and doubtless similar storms also in other parts of the world, increase in size and intensity more rapidly by night than by day. This is because the cool section of a cyclone area is relatively clear and the warm section cloudy. At night therefore, the clear section gets colder or at least colder than it would otherwise be, owing to the great loss of heat from the surface by radiation, while the clouded side more nearly maintains its temperature. During the daytime, on the other hand, the clear side warms up by means of the sun's rays while the clouded portion again changes but little in temperature. During the night therefore, the temperature contrast between the warm and cool portions of the cyclone becomes more pronounced, and during the day less and less so. Furthermore there is greater interference to the flow of the colder air during the daytime, owing to thermal convection caused by the sun's rays; than at night, when there is no such convection. Hence, owing to the greater temperature contrast at night than during the day, and less obstruction to wind movements, the cyclone normally grows, or tends to grow more rapidly at night than during the day.

Whom High School To Close This Week

The editor acknowledges receipt of an invitation from the graduation class at Whom, to attend their graduation exercises Friday night, May 4th. Five splendid girls make up the graduation class and we now make a bid for them to come to Santa Anna next year for their Eleventh grade work. The members are: Misses Alta Featherston, May Oia Stuart, Louise Cooper, Juanita Bible and Jewel Jones. They have for their motto—"Finished Yet Beginning"; Class Flower—White American Rose. Class Colors—White and Blue. Mr. Price is Superintendent of the school.

Mrs. John Potter has authorized her mail changed to Abilene. We regret to lose this good woman and wish her much pleasure in her new home. Miss Alma Zyne, niece of Mrs. Potter is living with her.

Does He Believe In Advertising

There was a man, who said he did not believe in advertising. He is a married man. When he was young and gay he had a sweetheart.

She became his wife. He is happy now. But why and how did he get her?

He advertised. Not in magazines or joining a Longshore Club. But he advertised just the same.

He showed off at picnics; did stunts of physical skill where she could see.

His trousers were always pressed when he went courting.

His tie of the latest hue and pattern.

He talked of big brave things in her presence.

He told her of the little home they would acquire, and how it could be done on his salary.

By the time she answered yes, she knew who he was, where he was and what he was worth financially and morally.

By his advertising, her attention was directed to him, she was convinced of his value.

She simply answered his ad.

Both are happy now, and both have profited by the transaction.

He simply let her know what he had to offer.

Advertising is simply letting the world know what you have to offer.

Newspaper advertising is the best way to do that.

Advertising in the home newspaper is the best particular way of doing it—Eagle Lake Headlight.

Boston Texans Organize Club

(Boston Herald)

Texas natives of Great Boston celebrated the Lone Star State's Independence Day last night by gathering at the Hotel Burnside to form the Texas Club of Boston. The affair, a dinner dance, was arranged by the University of Texas Club in Massachusetts and about 20 were present.

Officers were elected as follows: George H. Clifford, president; Alvah John Shaller, Stow, vice president; Mrs. Emile Barrier, secretary; and Douglas L. Thornbury, treasurer. Mr. Shaller organized the meeting and at the next session it is hoped to have several hundred present. Yesterday was San Jacinto Day, the day on which Texas celebrates the serving of Texas from Mexico.

Mr. Shaller, mentioned above is the husband of a Santa Anna girl, who was Miss Annie Phillips. Mr. Clifford the president elect also has friends living in Santa Anna.

Miser Who Shaved With Tallow And Knife Was Rich

PHILADELPHIA, April 23.—When he was alive, Paul Schell, 79, wore old clothes held together with strings and old wire, did without socks, neckties and handkerchiefs, and shaved himself with a knife and tallow for soap. He seldom spent money.

People thought him a queer. Soon after his wife died, 25 years ago, neighbors almost forgot his name. They were used to calling him the "miser."

"The miser" did nothing to break the legend that grew about him and the house in which he made his only home. He often boasted:

"I can make a wash boiler of soup for 15 cents that feeds me for a couple of weeks."

Schell was last seen alive on April 1st. Twenty-seven days passed before he was missed. Last Saturday police broke into his house and found his body sitting in a chair.

With "the miser's" death the legend of his hidden wealth grew stronger. Slightly incredulous police were forced to guard the house, and yesterday began search for what they did not expect to find.

The legend was true. In a dilapidated safe, police found $20,000 in faded currency, stocks and bonds worth about $200,000, and mouldy deeds to valuable real estate. Behind pictures other stocks and bonds were found, and pinned to the back of a five-year old calendar on the kitchen wall, police found an additional $500 in bills.

While the treasure hunt is on today, a search is to be started for Schell's relatives who may share $250,000 the fortune of "the miser."

SUCCESS

Agreement is not always success, while rejected failure often is. The most successful men are not necessarily the ones holding attracting public attention. The best and most useful women are not the bright butterflies of fashion on the stage whose press agent incessantly flaunts their pictures and their petty doings before the public.

The unlauded men and women who are quietly attending to their own little duties, every day contributing something substantial to general industry, prosperity and progress, rearing children in habits of useful work and right living and supplying examples that elevate the moral and intellectual level of their men and women of real influence little communities—these are the power.

Success is their sin, the fullest measure.

They now follow a delusion, is that they shrink and pitifully the shining so-called success of self-absorbed men and women.

They have only the husk of life's golden grain.

Like that soldier under Gaius who found a shining bag filled with pearls and cast away the pearls but carefully preserved the bag, these self-absorbed ones are spurning true riches, real success, to hug to their heart things that are empty and worthless.

HE MADE IT WORK

The thirteenth day of May will be the thirty-first birthday anniversary of radio. On that date in 1897 a rich young Italian, Guglielmo Marconi, then contemptuously called the "wireless crank," sent an intelligible message across the Bristol Channel in England, demonstrating that the mysterious electric impulse which he and his preceptor, Professor Hugi, had partly trained could be used for practical communication across bodies of open water spanned by neither bridge nor wire. It was not many months later that ship-to-shore communication was a practical success. Radio, most phenomenal of all modern marvels, was in full career.

That historic event thirty-one years ago was not, of course, the very first germ of radio. Back in the first decades of the nineteenth century, more than a hundred years ago, the famous, French physicist, Dr. Jean Baptiste Biot, had made what can now be recognized as the first recorded radio experiment. His broadcasting station was no electric giant. It was merely a small electric machine like those which once decorated offices of physicians. His receiver was no intricate assemblage of tubes and coils. It was, instead, nothing more mysterious than a pair of frog legs. He discovered that the legs of the frog jumped automatically when energized by an electric current, and that when his machine produced electric sparks the legs suspended at the opposite side of the room, jumped. His writings do not disclose whether he saw in his discovery a future means of communication.

After Biot came Heinrich, Hertz and Popoff and Sir Oliver Lodge and Rhigi and a score of others. All before Marconi. But it was the young Italian, who made the thing work.

FOG AIRPLANES' WATERLOO?

Developments and events in aeronautics have occasioned in this country in recent months more than ordinary interest in the future of air transportation. The subject is on the tongues of the multitudes and is being linked with some of the nation's largest industrial organizations. It is obvious that the public has been convinced that passenger and freight lines will come before another decade expires.

Europe now has her regular air lines while this country, California and Florida have passenger air lines, the Ford interests are operating a fleet of freight planes and the United States government has established an extensive air mail system. But formidable obstacles still stand in the way of regular passenger service by air in the United States.

It is not that the passenger carrying plane is not as highly developed in the United States as it is in Europe nor is it that capital and initiative is lacking here. But for atmospheric and geographical handicaps passenger air service would be already established here.

Unlike those sections of Europe over which one may travel by plane, many sections of the United States are made unsafe for air travel by their ruggedness, isolation and unfavorable atmospheric conditions. To the aviator these are serious matters.

Fogs cancel flying dates for European passenger planes and until man invents a fog-penetrating searchlight the future passenger plane of this country will not guarantee their schedules. Railroad transportation is made highly hazardous by fog, and air travel impossible.

WHAT NEWSPAPER ADS DID

It was only a few years ago that the retail stores in towns and the smaller cities did the bulk of their week's business on Saturday. While the other five business days might have paid expenses the merchant depended upon the Saturday sales for the major portion of his week's profit. Needless to say that the average merchant would have been exempt from excess profit taxes in those days.

The newspaper is given credit for the discovering of the possibility of scattering the Saturday peak load over the six business days of the week and it was newspaper advertising which has achieved the present more equitable distribution of the week's business. Saturday is still the merchant's busy day, but now he is only a little less busy on the preceding five days.

This is only one of the many services performed for business by newspaper advertising. It is irrefutable that a great part of the increase in business experienced by the retail stores generally in recent years has been created by newspaper advertising. Newspaper advertising has been the "Aladdin's Lamp" of the retail merchant. There are still isolated towns where one may see for himself what "might have been" the nation over if newspaper advertising had never been—Exchange.

Idol Head Found; Is Carved From Stone

(Cross Plains Review)

A head, suppose to be a part of an idol, carved from stone, was found last week near Pioneer by A. C. Billingsly. The head, which is about the size of a small child head, was brought to the State Bank here by Mr. Billingsly, who dug it up accidentally, but failed to find other parts of the statue after a lengthy hunt. All the features of the face are distinct and shows remarkable skill. Evidently the idol (if that is what it is) was carved by an ancient race, long before Columbus landed on American soil. Probably some scientist would say the head was made by a certain prehistoric man a million years ago, and give the details just how it landed near Pioneer. What a wonderful opportunity for some scientist to make some history. Well, the head was carved by an artist, and a magnificent crown crowns his handiwork, which suggests that it was intended for an idol god.

EMBALMS SNAKE

An undertaker in his line of duty, is called on almost daily to embalm the body of some man, woman or child who has died, but only once in a lifetime is an undertaker called on to embalm a snake.

A call was received at the McInnis Funeral Home late Friday night or early in the hours of Saturday morning from the John Francis Shows, showing here this week, to embalm a huge boa-constrictor that has just died at the carnival grounds.

Undaunted by the peculiar call an ambulance was sent for the snake and he was brought to the embalming room, laid out on the "slab" and embalmed. He was returned to the owner this morning. The snake was the largest owned by the John Francis Shows, was 18 feet long and said to have weighed 300 pounds. McInnis said he charged them "snake prices" for the job.

A knocker is a fellow who causes a booster to exist.

Setbacks

When Abraham Lincoln was a young man he ran for the legislature in Illinois and was badly swamped.

He next entered business, failed, and spent seventeen years paying the debts of a worthless partner.

He was in love with a beautiful young woman to whom he became engaged, and then she died.

Later he married a woman who was a constant burden to him.

Entering politics again he ran for Congress and was badly defeated.

He tried to get an appointment in the U. S. Land Office and failed.

In 1856 he became a candidate for the Vice Presidency and was again defeated.

One failure after another, bad failures, real setbacks. In face of all of this he eventually became one of the nation's greatest men, if not the greatest.

When you think of a series of setbacks like that doesn't it make you feel small to become discouraged in life, just because you think you are having a hard time?

Work On Gas Plant Will Begin Soon

(Cameron Enterprise)

The Enterprise is reliably informed that the material for the Cameron natural gas plant was ordered from Pittsburg, Pa. by telephone and wire and it is now hoped that the work will be completed during the month of June and July, or thirty days sooner than was announced in the Enterprise last week.

DID YOU EVER STOP TO THINK

(By Edson R. Waite)

That railroad trains follow a fixed track and cannot turn aside to avoid accidents.

That this fact is well known to all motorists, although many of them pay no attention to it.

That they should realize that safety at crossings depends chiefly upon caution on the part of the motorist.

That the motorist who drives across railroad tracks without looking for approaching trains is just foolish.

That when they try to beat trains across they are worse than foolish—they are crazy.

That it does not pay for the automobilist to take chances.

That the way to avoid trouble is not by taking chances.

That taking chances may cost them their lives.

Taking chances may cost an accident that a life time cannot repair.

Texas and Texans

By Will H. Mays

Texans Should now Texas

In an address to the South Texas Press Association at San Antonio, Gov. Dan Moody struck the keynote to the present greatest need of Texas when he said that in his opinion the most urgent duty confronting Texas newspapers today is to picture Texas that the people of the state may come to know the real Texas in a way to love it as they should. Patriotism is born of love, and love comes from knowing that which is loved.

Texans are not lacking in patriotic appreciation of the government of their State, but there is a need for a zealous passion for the State of a kind that will get the strongest support of every citizen in every effort for advancing the interests of Texas as a whole. We need to be aroused from a sort of lethargy into constructive activity of the kind that built up Florida and that is energizing California.

We can't reasonably hope to interest people from other States in what we have here in Texas until Texans themselves become more interested than they are now. Every Texan should be so keenly appreciative of Texas as a whole, so thoroughly informed as to what we have and what we expect to have in this State, that he will seek every opportunity to give his store of information to others.

This is a wonderful Texas in which we live, a glorious Texas, but most of us do not have our eyes opened on our own state to it. Our horizon is not proportioned to the vastness of the things about us. It is up to the press, as Gov. Moody so well pointed out, to awaken our own people to what we have and what we hope, and then the people will be glad to carry the message of Texas progress to the outside world.

Provincial Tendencies

The size of Texas is so staggering that most of us find we can not know it by traveling over the State. To attempt learning Texas in that way would not leave us time for our own affairs, much as we would like to see the state. Therefore, we must study it through the press, and we must learn of its progress through a newspaper study of what is going on throughout the State, if we would know it at all. Unless we do this we are likely to become almost provincial, as sectional in our views and our prejudices as the mountaineer, hedged in by surrounding mountain peaks. The tendency of men is to oppose, even fight the things they do not understand, to become tribal-minded where the vision of the knowledge is limited. When, but not until, Texans in some way are brought to know Texas, are they likely to be found standing and working together for a greater Texas. It is this educational work among our own people that Gov. Moody commended to the press as the most essential step in the development of the State that it needs to take.

Taxing Growing Timber

Very few Texans have made a study of reforestation or know anything much about it, though most of us think that unless something is done to replace the vast amounts of timber that are being destroyed constantly, the country will soon be without timber. Those who live away from the timbered area of the State give little thought to the value of the timber industry. Those who live in the timber sections of the State wonder how long the trees will provide the needed lumber.

The Texas Forestry Association is organized and working to conserve and rehabilitate our forests land, but find it difficult to interest Texans as a whole in its efforts. But we need to study the timber problem seriously. Leonard Tillotson, chairman of the legislative committee of the association, is a man of strictest integrity and unselfish in his love for the welfare of the State. He thinks to promote reforestation, lands upon which there is growing young timber should not be taxed until it is cut for marketing. Taxation measures of that kind have been adopted in other States with the result that land owners have been encouraged to plant parts of their lands to young trees and to await their growth.

Virgin Forest Gone

Mr. Tillotson presents some interesting facts showing that deforestation has been more marked than most. Texans have thought, he says that of the 14,000,000 acres of original virgin pine forests in Texas, only about 1,200,000 acres remain uncut. Of the pine timber acreage cut over approximately 2,000,000 acres have a fair stand of second growth trees and 1,500,000 acres have a poor stand of young growth, while of the remaining acreage that has been deforested some have been placed in cultivation and the remainder is usually regarded as practically idle land.

He says that the owners of the vast acreage of lands are unable under present taxation conditions to bear the expenses of reforestation and to wait the required 20 to 40 years for any returns, the present policy of State, county and local district being to levy taxes against both the land and the growing young timber.

Constitutional Amendment Needed

Arguing a constitutional amendment to make possible enactment of laws to encourage private land owners to grow timber, but so far there has not been a realization of the great and constant loss of a kind to secure the submission of such an amendment to a vote of the people. Texans need to make a close study of our timber as a resource of the State that needs safeguarding.

North Texas Trucking

Most Texans seldom think of the Red River section of North Texas as given over to truck growing for the markets. However, interests are turning to diversification from cotton and corn growing. The Avery community near Clarksville has recently shipped five cars of radishes, spinach and turnip greens and now cars are being loaded with turnip greens for the northern markets. Later tomatoes and potatoes will be shipped out by the carloads. The summer truck crops give promise of the best returns. Gradually other North Texas towns will follow the example of the Avery community as they see that profits are being made by growing and cooperatively marketing vegetables and small fruits.

Butter and Egg Marketing

A report from Lockhart says that, because of the cooperation plan of marketing butter and eggs there, eggs are selling for ten cents a dozen more than they usually bring at this season. Yet some people hesitate to cooperate in marketing their products. Where there is efficient and honest management in cooperative marketing movements, prices are invariably better and losses are fewer.

The Ministers Wife.

(Brownwood Bulletin)

A California pastor has resigned because members of his congregation criticized his wife as a flopper. She wears short skirts and bobbed hair, uses a wee bit of rouge now and then, and admits that she "loves life". The conservatives of the church thought such conduct on the part of the pastor's wife was unbecoming, and they made so much fuss about it that the pastor quit.

Pastor's wives are entitled to a great deal more of sympathy than they get. Ninety-eight and forty-four one hundredths percent of every conversation is always on the qui vivie, looking for something in the conduct of the pastor's wife about which to complain. If she dresses neatly and wears a new hat now and then, she is charged with extravagance and with wasting the substance which the people give the preacher. If she wears old dresses and hats, and uses no powder on her nose, the congregation says she is too trifling to "fix up", and everybody is ashamed of her. If she takes part in the work of the church, she is accused in trying to "run things". If she doesn't she is falling down on the job, and is a tremendous handicap to her hard-working husband. If she is friendly with a few members of the congregation, she is accused of catering to the well-to-do and neglecting the rest. If she treats everybody alike, she is cold and uninterested in the welfare of the people. And so on and on. The average congregation feels, when it employs a pastor and agrees to pay him a nominal salary, that the services of the pastor's wife have also been engaged, without pay, and that she must do a full day's work every day. She is expected to please everybody, to avoid even the semblance of error and to possess in happy combination all the virtues that have ever been assigned to woman in all her glory.

As a matter of fact, the preacher who becomes pastor of a church soils his services and not his wife to the church. If he is worthy of his hire, he earns all he gets from his congregation, and he is entitled to a private wife and a private home, and his wife is entitled to all the privileges and pleasures that are enjoyed by any other woman. Nobody can blame the California pastor for giving up his job. If his wife suits him it is his business.

THE PRACTICAL HOME GAME

One of the most useful things in the effort to build up fine towns and keep people contented there particularly the young people, is to provide games that will interest them. One of the one of the most practical sports for the purpose is lawn tennis courts, you do a lot to make life pleasant there.

To play baseball, you have to get a team of players working together, and then they have to find games with competing teams. It takes 18 players to make a complete ball game, but lawn tennis can be played with two, three or four, so it becomes a much simpler thing for young people to go in for than baseball.

Also baseball calls for a good size playground or field, while tennis can be played on a small lot, and many back yards are big enough for it. Golf takes even more space, and calls for a large field, and usually considerable money has to be spent in developing to get it right. But a tennis court is not necessarily expensive and a great many home grounds and vacant lots in Santa Anna would be an ample place for it.

The people of any neighborhood could not do any much finer thing for their young folks, than to lay out one or more tennis courts and form a little neighborhood tennis club. There the people can get an inexpensive amusement that is one of the best athletic sports ever devised.

It makes people happy and healthy, quick in mental and physical action. It promotes friendships, teaches the children how to play according to rules, and act like gentlemen and ladies. It is a wonderful sport for community life. More tennis courts should be made.

WHY MEN FAIL

There is a cause for everything. Nothing ever "just happens." If a man is promoted to a better job, there is a cause. If a man loses his job there is also a cause.

There are many causes that lead to failure. Here are a list of the most common causes:

Finding fault with the other fellow but never seeing your own.

Doing as little as possible and trying to get as much as possible for it.

Spending too much time showing up the other fellow's weak points and too little time correcting your own.

Slandering those we do not like.

Procrastination—putting off until tomorrow something that we should have done day before yesterday.

Deceit—talking friendly to the other fellow's face and stabbing him in the back as soon as he turns around.

False belief that we are smart enough to reap a harvest of pay before sowing a crop of honest service.

Egotism—the belief that we know it all and no one can teach us anything.

Last but not least, lack of the necessary training and education to enable us to stand at the head in our line of work.

Look over this, check yourself by it. If none of these causes for failure apply to you, then you are to be congratulated, because you are a success. — Hill's Magazine.

"I Want A Job!"

"I want a job!"

The head of the electric lighting concern looked up from his desk and saw a gangling boy of seventeen facing him with a look of quiet determination that carried conviction.

"But I do not have any position that you could possibly fill and right now, I'm so driven—"

"I want a job," interrupted the boy with an old smile that did not detract from the serious determination of his general expression. "And I'm willing to work six months without a cent of pay."

"Well that's rather a new one," exclaimed the owner of the lighting plant, but—

The boy was looking for that but caught it on the fly.

"You see it's this way sir," he interrupted. "I've just finished at the manual training school and I've made up my mind that electric lighting is the thing for me and that I'm going to be started in it. It has a great future and I want to understand and make it my line."

His eyes were kindling with enthusiasm when the ink at the desk opened with another "But—"

He did not get an inch beyond the depressing qualification, for the boy shot into the sentence with—

"I'll work for nothing and keep just as careful hours as your foreman or any one else on your payroll. You've got a good plant sir, and I can see that it is bound to grow a lot within the next three years. Electric lighting has just begun. It's the best business to get into in the world and I'm going to learn it from the ground up. No pay for six months."

"But I don't see how I can possibly use you," responded the man of the plant. "Although I am bound to say that I like your grit and I think you are on the right track and—"

"Just give me the job," cut in the boy, "and I'll find something to do that will help you. There is always something to be done around a plant like yours that a boy who has had a little mechanical training can find to do—work that needs to be done. Here are some references from my instructor, and two or three from business men who know me—"

"Look here, suddenly said the man at the desk. "You certainly do want a job and you are going to get it. I can see that right now. When you first spoke, you reminded me of somebody and I couldn't think who. Now I know. When I was a boy we had a dog that used to go out and hunt coons all day by himself. If he treed a coon he would start to gnaw the tree down and keep it up until someone would go and hunt him up and chop the tree down. You have a sort of a family resemblance to that dog. I'll give you a letter to the superintendent."

When a fortnight later, he called at the plant the foreman remarked—

"Say that boy you sent here is the oddest duck you ever saw. He takes his job as hard if he were drawing profits or his salary instead of working for nothing a week and paying his own carfare."

"Why his aunt died the other day and he didn't come for two days, but sent a substitute and paid him out of his own pocket. He's the first man on the job in the mornings and the last to leave at night. From the minute he gets here in the morning he is as busy as a boy at a circus. That boy is certainly fond of his job."

"A little testing department would save you money," said the boy, "and it would not cost much either. You buy a lot of material first and last and I've found out that some of it isn't up to the standard. They're working considerable off on you."

"How much will it cost, asked the owner of the plant?"

"Initially the boy drew from his pocket a list of the items needed in the equipment of the testing laboratory. He had it all ready, waiting for the question.

"Get it and go ahead," said the man, after he had glanced at the list.

The day the boy's gratuitous service was up, he re-appeared and said, "My time is up, sir."

"But you stay," was the quick answer, "and the salary you get is going to cover the unpaid time in which you have been serving me."

And it did. That wasn't so very long ago. The electric lighting plant grew until it was big enough to be "absorbed." It has been absorbed several times since that boy who struck for a job saw that he was the one man who couldn't be spared. They saw that he knew his old shoes. They played him for a favorite and today he would buy out the man who gave him his first job—buy him out, several times over! He is the head of a big electric lighting corporation and gets a salary of twelve or fifteen thousand dollars a year besides profits in a half dozen thriving businesses

Any boy who has the stuff in him will win out. You couldn't keep him down if you buried him under a skyscraper. There are plenty of boys who are waiting to accept a position and always will be! But when it comes to a plain job—in which they have a chance to make good without regard to pay—they are so scarce they are in danger of being captured for exhibition purposes in museums.

Nothing can stand against a boy of this kind. The give-me-a-job boy is sure to be distributing jobs sooner or later and generally it's sooner—The Lone Star.

KICKING

George Bulletin's Horned Frog Sleepy
(Brownwood Bulletin)

Two Months Saturday!

That's how long George, The Bulletin's horned frog, has been sealed in an air tight container without food or water.

And he's still alive—and kicking—kicking because he's getting tired of being looked at. Every few days George's rest is disturbed by some curious person who wants to view his rugged countenance.

On February 23, George, who was found by George, Barlow, Brownwood youth, was sealed in an air tight container for a period of one year to test the claim that the animals—or reptiles, their status doesn't seem to have been definitely settled—can live for an indefinite time without air or sustenance.

The test was begun after a frog was taken from an Eastland building in which it is said to have slumbered for 37 years.

The force of water going over Niagara Falls is washing it away at the rate of one-thirtieth of an inch a year. Congress should investigate this at once.

"I want a job!"

The head of the electric lighting concern looked up from his desk and saw a gangling boy of seventeen facing him with a look of quiet determination that carried conviction.

"But I do not have any position that you could possibly fill and right now, I'm so driven—"

"I want a job," interrupted the boy with an old smile that did not detract from the serious determination of his general expression. "And I'm willing to work six months without a cent of pay."

"Well that's rather a new one," exclaimed the owner of the lighting plant, but—

The boy was looking for that but caught it on the fly.

"You see it's this way sir," he interrupted. "I've just finished at the manual training school and I've made up my mind that electric lighting is the thing for me and that I'm going to be started in it. It has a great future and I want to understand and make it my line."

His eyes were kindling with enthusiasm when the ink at the desk opened with another "But—"

He did not get an inch beyond the depressing qualification, for the boy shot into the sentence with—

"I'll work for nothing and keep just as careful hours as your foreman or any one else on your payroll. You've got a good plant sir, and I can see that it is bound to grow a lot within the next three years. Electric lighting has just begun. It's the best business to get into in the world and I'm going to learn it from the ground up. No pay for six months."

"But I don't see how I can possibly use you," responded the man of the plant. "Although I am bound to say that I like your grit and I think you are on the right track and—"

"Just give me the job," cut in the boy, "and I'll find something to do that will help you. There is always something to be done around a plant like yours that a boy who has had a little mechanical training can find to do—work that needs to be done. Here are some references from my instructor, and two or three from business men who know me—"

"Look here, suddenly said the man at the desk. "You certainly do want a job and you are going to get it. I can see that right now. When you first spoke, you reminded me of somebody and I couldn't think who. Now I know. When I was a boy we had a dog that used to go out and hunt coons all day by himself. If he treed a coon he would start to gnaw the tree down and keep it up until someone would go and hunt him up and chop the tree down. You have a sort of a family resemblance to that dog. I'll give you a letter to the superintendent."

When a fortnight later, he called at the plant the foreman remarked—

"Say that boy you sent here is the oddest duck you ever saw. He takes his job as hard if he were drawing profits or his salary instead of working for nothing a week and paying his own carfare."

"Why his aunt died the other day and he didn't come for two days, but sent a substitute and paid him out of his own pocket. He's the first man on the job in the mornings and the last to leave at night. From the minute he gets here in the morning he is as busy as a boy at a circus. That boy is certainly fond of his job."

"A little testing department would save you money," said the boy, "and it would not cost much either. You buy a lot of material first and last and I've found out that some of it isn't up to the standard. They're working considerable off on you."

"How much will it cost, asked the owner of the plant?"

"Initially the boy drew from his pocket a list of the items needed in the equipment of the testing laboratory. He had it all ready, waiting for the question.

"Get it and go ahead," said the man, after he had glanced at the list.

The day the boy's gratuitous service was up, he re-appeared and said, "My time is up, sir."

"But you stay," was the quick answer, "and the salary you get is going to cover the unpaid time in which you have been serving me."

And it did. That wasn't so very long ago. The electric lighting plant grew until it was big enough to be "absorbed." It has been absorbed several times since that boy who struck for a job saw that he was the one man who couldn't be spared. They saw that he knew his old shoes. They played him for a favorite and today he would buy out the man who gave him his first job—buy him out, several times over! He is the head of a big electric lighting corporation and gets a salary of twelve or fifteen thousand dollars a year besides profits in a half dozen

Let us tell you more about both

Our service is always courteous—always expert. When people tell us it's the same quality as Goodyear tires, it makes us mighty proud and happy.

Behind this World's Greatest Tire is our standard Goodyear Service. We take pleasure in seeing that you get the extra mileage that has been built into this superlative tire. Over 168,000,000 pounds of rubber went into Good years last year. 50 per cent more than used by any other maker.

Think of this—Goodyear Tires travelled over 75,000,000,000 miles last year. Good year Tires are made to sell at fair prices—no cut rates, no cut quality, no selling dodges. We don't need sales "deals" to sell Goodyears. They sell because they do what the greatest tire company in the world says they will do—outperform any other tire on the road where performance is the only judge.

MORE CARS RUN ON GOODYEAR TIRES THAN ON ANY OTHER KIND

In these days of plainly marked prices on merchandise our "bargaining instinct" is disappearing. We don't need it. We buy $10 shoes, $8 hats, $50 suits, "Haggling" never occurs to us. The article is made to sell for so much. We pay it. Why then must tire-selling have trade discounts, special sales, introductory offers, direct-to-consumer bargains—anything to make the sale? The intelligent buyer will not ignore the most convincing sales argument in the whole tire business. This

EXPLORER DISCOVERS STRANGE WILD RACE

New York—A visit to a strange land in the mountains of the state of Colorado is reported to have discovered a "new" race of wild Indians. The explorers, who were on a hunting trip, found the race in a remote part of the state. The race is said to be a mixture of Indian and Spanish blood. The explorers were surprised to find the race in a state of such backwardness. The race is said to be a mixture of Indian and Spanish blood. Excellent Comedy Cast Assembled for Lorelei

With a record group of comedy players assembled, "Gentlemen Prefer Blondes," will be at the Queen Theatre Monday and Tuesday.

Heading the cast is Ruth Taylor, a comparatively unknown screen actress who was chosen for the role of Lorelei Lee, blonde gold-digging heroine, after a nation wide search. Another girl of the same status plays her girl friend, Dorothy, the brunette wise-cracker. She is Alice White, former script clerk who turned actress and has appeared in less than a half dozen pictures.

THE SMALL TOWN PAPER

It isn't a great metropolitan sheet. Its pages are simple and few. Its make-up at times is a bit incomplete. And its news not aggressively new.

But it stands for the topnotch in interest at least. And all that is fair is renown to the schoolmarm and housewife, the farmer and priest. And every last soul in the town.

In somebody's Bible that's yellowed with years. Is kept with a heart-breaking pride. The story that flowed with the editor's tears. Of somebody's baby that died, record still runs.

And in old family scrapbooks the that's working the pulse again. And thunders with praises that echoed the guns. Of boys who remembered the Marine.

Each step of the journey through years upon years. It has laughed with its readers and wept. Their weddings, their babies, their triumphs, their fears. Are lined in the annuals it's kept.

And through all its wise cracks and "locals" galore. Are often a curious blend. Why, when it goes in at the lawlest door. It isn't The Press—it's a friend.

The big city is modern and fine. It's long on appeals to the eye. But here's to the weekly—your paper and mine. That tugs at the heartstrings instead. Instead—Publishers Aux.

Many community plans get all worked out except the details. The "details" is the money to finance them.

"Ill Winds"

They told us in 1916 how much good the Liberty bonds might do us. Now we know. Millions of them have given the country some very exciting head-lines. When Liberty bond-holders fall out, newspaper readers get their due.

New Funeral Home Locating Here

C. B. Guyger of Bangs, who became identified with the business interest in Santa Anna first of the year, buying the Dry Goods stock of the former Adams Mercantile Company, and establishing a nice Dry Goods store here, associated with M. Johnson of Brownwood, is opening a new Undertaking parlor and funeral home in the Matthews building just north of the old Shield hotel on West Main Street.

A combination hearse and ambulance will be kept ready for service, and a complete line of caskets and funeral supplies will be kept in stock. The business will be in charge of the C. B. Guyger Dry Goods company, who are moving their Bangs store here the first of June. It is our understanding, the two Guyger families will also move here the first of June.

MISSIONARY SOCIETY ENTERTAINS

Mrs. B. R. Wagner was hostess to the Missionary Society Monday afternoon.

Numerous games were played by the guests. Perhaps "Gossip" was the most humorous of all. A very pleasant afternoon was enjoyed and Mrs. Wagner in her kind and congenial manner proved to be an ideal hostess.

At a late hour, bountiful refreshments of waters, salad, pickles and iced tea were served to the guests.

Those present were: Mesdames Lemna Brown, R. Sealy, Sam Harper, J. S. Barnes, D. J. Johnson, J. W. Collier, P. F. Bond, Frank Turner, W. T. Verner, T. T. Perry, Roy McFarland, Will Hall, William Thate, Bob Gardner, Elmer Easley, A. C. Watson, S. L. Weaver, R. J. Marshall, G. F. Bartlett and B. E. Wagner.
