FORMER BROWNWOOD MAN ELECTED HEAD EAST TEXAS SCHOOLS

(Brownwood Daily Bulletin)

Larue Cox, reared in this city, son of Jim Cox, has been elected superintendent of the Jacksonville city schools for two-year term, succeeding Supt. J. J. Montgomery, who has resigned. Mr. Cox has been serving as principal of the Jacksonville high school, and his promotion to the superintendency was by unanimous vote of the board of trustees.

Larue Cox was born and reared here, receiving his preliminary education in the public schools here. He attended Howard Payne College, secured a teacher's certificate and then taught and attended summer school until he was able to secure his A. B. Degree at Howard Payne in 1922. In August of the same year he was married to one of his chaste mates, Miss Lena McCorkle, of Santa Anna.

Last August he received the M. A. degree at the University of Texas, having done the work required for the degree during the summer sessions of the University. During the world war Mr. Cox served two months in special training at A. & M. College, six months at San Antonio, four months in France and four months in England. While in Scotland he was on detached service and had the privilege of attending the University of Glasgow for three months. He is an active church worker and influential in the church circles of Jacksonville.

Some Side Lights On School Bond Election

On Wednesday of next week, the voters of the Santa Anna Independent School District will determine whether they are in favor of a better school and community progress or prefer to drag along in the same old ruts and let the town drift backward. The editor expressed himself last week, therefore, in this issue, we are quoting largely from others. Mr. H. F. Alves of Austin, with the State Department of Education, representing the High School division, was in Santa Anna this week inspecting the physical properties of the Santa Anna schools, and, although, he complimented the work that is being done in the schools, he could hardly see how such work could be done under the circumstances the facility is forced to work. "How much better it would be under more adequate facilities." Not only is the facilities but the room is entirely too limited. This fact is brought out by the number of students now attending High School, compared to the number attending two years back. We only have 134 in the High School this year, compared to 194 two years ago. Can you account for having 60 less in the High School department than we had two years ago, unless it is directly attributed to the lack of facilities? We say no. More than 200 pupils would now be in the High School in Santa Anna if the room and other facilities were available here. The best way to kill a community is to curb, restrict and kill its school possibilities. In the language of Mr. Alves who was here to inspect the school and report his findings to the committee on Classification and Affiliation, which will become official, is found the following:

"The buildings now in use lack the facilities for a modern High School program. Although an effort has been made to brace the walls, they are apparently continuing to move outward. This can be clearly seen in the large cracks in the supporting walls." Now this is not bunk—it's a fact. He further states that "It is doubtful in my mind, that the minimum physical requirements for classification are being met. It seems that the only avenue of procedure is new buildings; otherwise, it will be necessary to report conditions to the Committee on Classification and Affiliation for final action. It appears to us that the patrons of the school do not realize what it means to have 23 points of affiliated credits to their record. It will take several years hard work to re-establish these credits after they have been withdrawn."

In talking with a local real estate dealer recently, we inquired of him to know why some more of the people who have recently come into possession of money as the result of the oil fields nearby, did not buy homes in Santa Anna and move here to live. We have natural gas for fuel, electric lights, good stores, banks, etc., and the reply was promptly made—people with money are looking for places to live where they can educate their children in creditable schools. Now is this worth anything to us? Every family that moves to a town adds property values to the town, and every family that moves away from a town takes away property values, and the depreciation in our scholastic the past two years should be sufficient to open the eyes of all and convince them that Santa Anna is losing instead of gaining by not having a more adequate school building.

There is no argument against good schools. The bunk that is being used to defeat the issue next Wednesday is an outrage and should be curbed. Santa Anna's educational system is forced to stand still until a new building is provided. Property values are always enhanced by building of good schools. Not a citizen will suffer from the voting of these bonds, but it means a great deal to the future of the present rising generations. The opportunity is yours, and that old bunk about leaving bonded indebtedness for our children to pay is worse than bunk. We are not creating debts for our children to pay, but instead, we are voting bonds upon our own property in order that we may better prepare the present and rising generations, your children and mine, to go out in life and meet life's problems, and we believe, when they grow up and develop into manhood and womanhood, and assume the responsibilities of life, they will look back upon the deeds of their parents with much favor and extend to them expressions of thanks rather than to condemn their actions, at least, we believe the more intelligent ones will.

Citizens Make Rabbit Drive North of Town

The editor accompanied J. W. Parker, W. H. Thate, Jack McCandles and others out north of town Wednesday, where we joined the citizens in the Mayo community in a rabbit drive. Being limited for time, we could not spend the day, but what was the use to come home before noon when the good women and children of the community assembled at the Wheeler tank just east of the Mobley home and spread a dinner sufficient for an east Texas camp meeting. We estimate from 80 to 100 present at the noon hour, which was really enjoyed by all. We do not know how many rabbits were killed, but R. E. Mobley, J. P. Newman, Dave Banks, W. L. Moseley, A. T. Stiles, John Vinson and several other good citizens in the community will not need any more meat before summer.

She was laid to rest in Midway cemetery, near Abilene, beside a seven-year old daughter, Mildred, who died August 23, 1921. The pastor of the First Methodist Church of Abilene conducted the services. ## Diversified Crops

ALL EXPERTS agree and experience proves that diversified crops insure the farmer against the ruinous failure of the single crop.

Plant your acres with a variety of crops and protect the family from financial stringency.

WE SHOULD by no means be wholly dependent upon the cotton crop. Staples are necessary. We should be more of a self-sustaining section.

We are always glad to confer with you, and make available the facilities of this Bank in furthering the individual interests of every farmer.

Austin, Texas, March 21.—A day full of entertainment has been arranged for the parents of University of Texas students who will be visiting on the campus on Dads and Mothers Day, Monday, March 28. Following the registration in the morning of the dads and mothers present for the day, members of the Cowboys and Orange Jackets will escort them about the campus to various places of interest. ### NEW COLLEEN MOORE WINS NEW FANS

Coleen Moore is adding to her army of followers here by an appearance in golden curls and an entirely different type of role in "Twinkletoes," which comes to the Queen Theatre Monday and Tuesday. The star never appeared to better advantage, nor in a more dramatic, gripping and colorful story, than in "Twinkletoes." Her love for a Limehouse pugilist and for her father, her combination of innocence and sophistication, and her golden curls give us a new and doubly fascinating Colleen Moore.

March 21, is supposed to be the beginning of spring, but this time it was nipped in the bud by the return of winter. Considerable ice was visible Sunday, Monday and Tuesday, and the chances are the fruit crop is killed again this year.

Mrs. Sam Collier visited relatives in Coleman Tuesday.

cert on the night of March 28, Dyke said.

An invitation to come to the University of Texas campus for the observance of Dads and Mothers Day has been extended to parents of University students by President W. M. W. Splawn.

MY FIRST BATTLE

I was brought up on a cotton plantation in Mississippi. My father was a large slaveholder, and, with the custom of those times, as a boy, I learned to ride a horse and shoot a gun. Father died several years before the War between the States.

When about fifteen years of age I was sent to the Kentucky Military Institute, a few miles out from Frankfort, Ky., and with one year of training I became pretty proficient in military tactics. Subsequently I was sent to the University of Virginia, and was there when war was declared between the North and South. When the University closed, my mother urged me to come home, but I did not heed her command. Youth like, when the 17th Mississippi Regiment, commanded by Colonel Featherston, with other Mississippi regiments came thru Charlottesville on their way to the front, I joined the "Vindicators," Co. H, of the 17th Mississippi Regiment, a company from my home.

The 17th, 18th, 21st and 13th Mississippi Regiments, with the 8th Virginia and a Virginia battery, commanded by Captain Rogers, and other forces I do not remember now, were ordered to Leesburg, thirty miles north of Manassas on the Potomac River, near Ball's Bluff, to protect our main army at Manassas from a flank movement by the Yankee forces. Our command, under General Evans, was stationed at the town of Leesburg, we were thoroughly drilled. I was a gangling, long-legged boy at that time, nearly six feet tall. It was my ambition to be in the front rank when drilling and on dress parade for the admiration of the girls and the people of the town.

We were having a great time with the good people of Leesburg, but in the first days of October, one of those hazy, autumn days, report came that a large force of the Yankee army was crossing the Potomac at Ball's Bluff, about two miles east of Leesburg, to make a flank movement on our main army at Manassas. Then it was that General Evans ordered our army to meet the attack of the Yankee forces under General Stone. About 2 o'clock in the afternoon the 17th Mississippi double-quick to the battlefield and went into action. There had been heavy fighting before the 17th arrived. We formed a line of battle and went into action through a grove of timber, over the wounded and dead. The cannonballs began to cut the limbs off the trees over our heads, the Minie balls were chipping the bark from the trees, and men were going down along the line, and I must say I got a little weak in the knees; the glory of the dress parades rapidly departed. It came to me that I had been some kind of a fool wanting to be in the front rank. I would have felt more comfortable in the rear rank with some one in front of me. I was not prepared, either physically or mentally, for such a change in life. A fellow's mind is never so active, as when brought face to face with a life-and-death proposition. I could hear the barking of the dogs and crowing of the chickens back home. Then my conscience hurt me for not being a dutiful son and obeying my mother. I knew then the Lord had made a mistake if he intended me for a hero. I never expected to see the sun rise again.

The smoke and the crash of the guns was terrific as we advanced, firing as we went forward, driving the Yankees back. Soon we came to a sedge field, I suppose it was three or four hundred yards wide, but at that moment it did not seem over one-half the distance. Sedge fields have lost favor with me ever since. When we reached the edge of the field, Colonel Featherston gave the orders to lie down, which was obeyed with great alacrity; no lizards ever got closer to the ground than we did. The only consolation that came to me in those moments of distress was that the other boys in the command were enjoying the same tribulations. The Yankees had fallen back and formed line of battle. Then came the order to "fix bayonets." I knew then the days of my transgressions were at hand. I could not understand why our fool officers could not have carried us around some other way; but there was no time for thinking then, for came in rapid succession the order "Forward, charge," then the command that made Featherston famous: "Drive the Yankees into the Potomac or into hell!"

You have heard of the "Rebel Yell," haven't you? When we swept across that field, no wild Indians ever gave out a more bloodcurdling yell than we did. It was "Hark! from the tomb," "Hail, Columbia, Happy Land!" When the charge started, a stream of flame from the Yankee lines for-ed on the opposite side of the sedge field greeted us, and many of our boys went down. No man could live in the middle of that sedge field. But we went in on them and routed them, and then it was we paid them back twofold.

When we routed the Yankees and they were in full retreat, I began to get fighting mad. We poured volley after volley into their forces as they attempted to recross the Potomac in their barges, and the river was full of dead and drowning men. The commander of Yankee forces, General Stone, was killed on the battle field. Over three thousand surrendered to the Confederate forces. It was a most glorious victory for the Confederates.

We were heroes all, after the battle.

When we first went into battle, I saw the brave commander of the 18th Mississippi, Colonel Burt, being carried off the field fatally wounded. Following the reorganization after the first year's service in Virginia, I returned to my home in Mississippi. The war was just getting under good headway, my reputation as a most valiant soldier in the battles in Virginia had preceded me, and I was elected second brevet lieutenant in a battery of artillery that was being organized in my home community. After a year and a half as an officer in the battery, the officers above me being disabled from wounds and otherwise, I became commander of the battery.

No event in the life of any man will ever rise above the trials, hardships, and dangers that came to a Confederate soldier. The years I served in the Confederate Army will always stand out as the most eventful period of my life, and I hope to record my experience in other battles, such as the second battle of Corinth, Chickasaw Bayou, siege of Vicksburg, battle of Selma, Ala., and other minor engagements, for the readers of the Veteran, if agreeable.—Calvin B. Vance, in the Confederate Veteran.

We can recall several old women of an earlier day who smoked a pipe and some of our flappers are taking up smoking because they think it is up-to-date.

The privilege to think as you please does not carry with it the additional privilege of doing as you please.

A GREAT NEW BUSINESS

One of the newest sciences which we have with us is the science of advertising. And advertising has really come to be a science. It is no longer conducted in a haphazard way. Men of brains and ability, have studied it and have evolved plans which bring about the greatest amount of good through advertising, benefit to the public as well as to the advertiser.

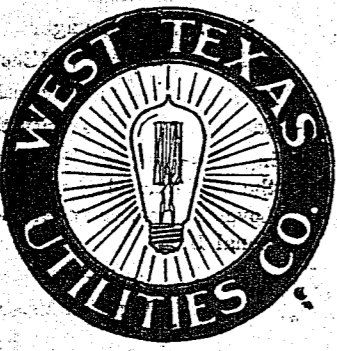

It is pleasing to know that men everywhere are beginning to appreciate the great part for good which advertising plays in our everyday life. That we do not yet fully appreciate this good, however, is evidenced by the fact that only a small percentage of the potential advertisers avail themselves of its assistance.

In a recent address, President Coolidge pointed to the fact that we are still apt to place too low an estimate on the subject of advertising. Many of our great transportation systems impress us when we come in personal contact with them, the President said, but we have not yet come to appreciate the great business which greets us through the advertising pages in the newspapers and periodicals of the country. Yet even the most casual examination must point out to us, the President added, that advertising has now become a great business.

By creating a demand and stimulating business advertising tends to reduce prices and the cost of living. It raises, too, the standard of the products which we buy. It brings therefore, greater prosperity to the advertiser and greater satisfaction to the buyer. There is no longer any doubt about its general benefit. But, as yet, few of us realize its tremendous importance.

Wife Takes Vinol Feels Fine Now

"I was weak and had no strength. Since taking Vinol, I feel fine now and do my work again."—Mrs. G. Barnesberger. The very FIRST week you take Vinol, you begin to feel stronger, eat and sleep better. Vinol is a simple, strengthening iron and cod liver compound in use for over 25 years by weak, nervous women, run-down men and sickly children. Contains no oil—pleasant to take.—S. H. Phillips, Druggist.

DISSATISFIED CUSTOMERS

No business institution dealing with the general public ever existed that did not, at some time or other, have a dissatisfied customer. Human nature is pretty much the same the world over, and no man or institution has ever yet attained that pinnacle of perfection where he or it has been able to please all of the people all of the time.

This company is no exception. Time rolls by, and, in the daily stress of effort to render one hundred per cent satisfactory service, occasionally something goes amiss and a dissatisfied customer appears. Either his service has not been as he thinks it should have been, or his bill is more than he thinks is justified by the service he has received.

While a dissatisfied customer is to be regretted, and always counts as a black mark against the cherished record for good will and friendly relations with the public, this company also tries to impress upon the men and women in its employ that a dissatisfied customer, wherever he makes himself known, is also an opportunity—an opportunity for closer personal contact and an opportunity to demonstrate that this company actually does practice what it preaches; that honest and efficient service rendered at a fair and equitable price is its paramount task and responsibility.

The men and women employed by this company are just ordinary human folks like all of us. And like all of us they are not infallible. They work hard at their jobs and they are trying earnestly all of the time to avoid mistakes. But mistakes occur, and when they do the company is just as anxious as the customer who has suffered by that mistake that it be corrected, and corrected quickly and satisfactorily.

Many times, again, dissatisfaction on the part of the customer is due to misinformation or lack of information about the company and its services. And here again the company is honestly anxious to clear up the difficulty by careful, courteous and complete explanation.

If the man or the woman in the employ of this company to whom you go with your troubles does not meet you in this attitude, then that man or woman is not the kind of employee the company thought he was when it entrusted him with the responsibility of carrying out its policies and its ideals.

IN THE PUBLIC SERVICE

Where does private gain leave off and public service begin? The answer is, they are both interwoven into the fabric called achievement. Under our complex mode of living it would be difficult to define the relationship between what a man owes to himself and family on the one hand, and what he owes to society or to his community on the other.

The Communist will tell you that the common pot is the only scientific basis of existence; that unless all go into a communal house, sit at a communal table and eat out of a communal bowl, there is no equity in the institution of government. But where he fails is at the inception of his argument. The communal house must first be built, the table organized, and the spoon-portion distributed according to the effort each has put forth to entitle him to share it.

The correct analysis of the rewards due human effort lies in the proper reckoning of human ability, judgment, prudence, virtue and mental and physical work. One man becomes ever so successful so far as acquiring wealth, and yet not leave to society or to posterity anything by which to advance the cause of civilization or the comfort and convenience of generations to come. Another may have given his best to mankind—have left a monument of good works—without having accumulated sufficient to give himself a decent burial. Both are in service; but the one in his own selfish interest, while the other is in that of the public welfare.

It is not how much we make, but how much we serve; not how much we speak, but how much we love; not how much we save, but how much of ourselves we give, that determines whether our names go down as having fulfilled the destiny that was ours. Where is reward but in service? Whether king or slave, every man gives to the world only as much as he wills and works. In humble stations, or in great capacities of power and influence, the ratio of success and failure never varies, nor fails to register itself upon the chart of life. Private enterprise may well represent public aspiration if it so engages itself that what it does, how it deals and why it exists measures true to the interests of those it serves. One's calling, if in honest endeavor and legitimate fields of action, is always in the public interest, because it is by the combined efforts of all that the world moves.

UPTOPIA AND SANTA ANNA

Utopia, the mythical country where all was beautiful and perfect; where government was administered 100 per cent impartially, booze and all; where citizens forgot their creditors as readily as they forgot their debts; where husbands never whipped their wives if their wives saw them coming first; and where motorists got out of their cars to help pedestrians across the streets—O boy, that was the place! But it was in a book, and first in the mind and imagination.

After all, wouldn't you rather live in Santa Anna where a little sense is left to worry about? Where, if the officials don't run things to suit us we can put them out and put in others that won't do half as well? Where, if there were no rain, there would be no flowers; if no tears, no smiles; no weaknesses, nothing to conquer; no strength, nothing to pattern after; no temptation, nothing for which to credit righteousness?

What most of us are working for is to make Santa Anna as nearly like Utopia as possible, knowing that we shall never quite make it that, and feeling that we shall never quite want it that. When we get to the point that community aspiration compares in intensity with personal ambition, we will be striving for the goal and getting somewhere. The community will never quite represent either the best or the worst among us; but there is a general average that will always make its influence felt. Raising the standard of this general average will have good results.

From the 16th Century we find Sir Thomas Moore declaring a visionary Utopian country of perfection; and even as far back as Plato and Plutarch this ideal was given treatment in the making of ancient history. But for our part we're glad Santa Anna isn't Utopia, that is, we're glad she hasn't "arrived." And just so long as she tries to get there; just so long as the struggle is zestful; so long, as there is still plenty to do and somebody is either doing it or doing at it, the victory will take care of itself.

With such a hopeful and healthy condition there's always something more to live for, strive for, work for, hope for, get mad about, kick at, boost up, sit down on, show up, prove out, help along and shout about. And that's the only kind of Utopia worth living in. So between Utopia and Santa Anna we'd choose Santa Anna.

LEISURE TIME

Agitation for a five-day week is increasing. Thomas A. Edison projected on his eightieth birthday that the practice would be adopted eventually by industry.

The tendency for years, with the development of labor-saving machinery, has been toward shorter working hours, with the result that the average American has more leisure time than ever before in history.

Leisure time can be made a blessing or a curse. If leisure time is employed—at least a part of it—in self-improvement and harmless recreation, shorter working days and weeks will be a progressive step. But if leisure time is not devoted to healthful exercise and mental development, no good can come of it.

Most any man who is serving a sentence in a penal institution could supply substantiating evidence. In the vast majority of cases, the law violator and all types of offenders against society have too much leisure time.

Leisure time must be put to good use. It must be utilized in developing character and doing constructive things that will benefit the individual and make him a better citizen.

If every moment of leisure time is wasted in pleasure-seeking and in creating expensive habits, that are not in keeping with one's income, the present-day tendency toward shorter hours will become a curse instead of a benefit, as intended.

What has become of the good old days when women never bought spring hats until spring?

The Get Together Meeting

The members of the Methodist church had a social meeting at the church on Wednesday evening. The following splendid program was rendered.

Song—By Choir.
Duet: "More Like the Master" Misses Grace and Eureka Pleasant.

Address: Helpfulness and Encouragement—Rev. A. D. Porter.

After the program a pleasant social hour was enjoyed. The ladies of the Missionary Society served refreshments of hot tea, cake and sandwiches. More than eighty guests were present. Out of town guests were Rev. A. D. Porter and wife of Brownwood.

One mustn't expect too much in this old vale of tears and laughter, a fact of which we are well aware, but in our moments of extreme optimism we do hope to live to see the day when Prohibition enforcement will be on such a plane that it won't be natural to wonder every time an administrator resigns how much he got away with, in cash, quarts or both.

REVIEW—STUDIES IN THE CHRISTIAN LIFE

GOLDEN TEXT—If ye love Me keep My commandments—John 14:15
PRIMARY TOPIC—What Jesus Wants Us to Do
JUNIOR TOPIC—The Christian Way of Living
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—What It Means to Be a Christian
YOUNG PEOPLE'S AND ADULT TOPIC—Marks of a True Christian

The following methods of review are suggested:

I. A Descriptive Essay Method.
Each member of the class should be assigned to the task a week ahead of the preparation of an essay on the topics involved in the quarterly lessons, as for example: What constitutes a true Christian. Following Christ. The prayer life of a Christian. The Christian and his Bible. The home life of a Christian. Christian stewardship. The Christian and the missionary obligation.

II. The Question Review Method.
The teacher will prepare a list of questions dealing with the various phases of the quarterly lessons. These will be written on slips of paper and the members of the class will draw them. As examples of questions note the following: What does following Christ involve? What is the Christian's responsibility as to his Bible? What is the Christian's obligation as to stewardship? What are the duties of the members of the home? What is the Christian's obligation as to the evangelization of the world? What is the Christian's hope? Is Christ coming again? Will there be a resurrection of the body?

III. The Summary Method.
This method can always be used to good advantage with the advanced classes. The outstanding fact or facts should be grasped and the principal teaching of the quarter's lessons stated. Suggestions?

Lesson for January 2.
Jesus first calls men to be His disciples. He then calls them to have fellowship in His service. Those who receive this two-fold call will walk as He walked.

Lesson for January 9.
The one who really follows Christ shall be hated and opposed. Having fellowship with Christ, he will love his enemies, do good to those who hate him, bless them that curse him, pray for those which spitefully use him.

Lesson for January 16.
The Bible furnishes the Christian with full knowledge of God and man's obligation to Him. The only way to be able to stand firm and true in the coming perilous times is to be thoroughly grounded in the knowledge of the Scriptures.

Lesson for January 23.
Jesus, though divine, resorted much to prayer. If he needed this fellowship, how much more do His followers need it.

Lesson for January 30.
Followers of Jesus may expect temptations, but divine help is available for every need.

Lesson for February 6.
To every believer has been given certain talents such as gifts for service, knowledge, time, money, to be used for the honor of His Lord. A time of reckoning is coming at which reward will be given for fidelity, and judgment meted out for infidelity.

Lesson for February 13.
The home is the oldest and most important institution in the world. The most effective way of making strong and pure the church, society and the nation is to make the home Christian.

Lesson for February 20.
The subject of the kingdom is under solemn obligation to permeate society and let his light shine so that the heavenly father may be glorified.

Lesson for February 27.
Every believer has two natures—the flesh and the spirit. The only way to overcome the flesh is to be filled with the Spirit.

Lesson for March 6.
The Lord permitted persecution to fall upon the church to cause the disciples to be scattered in order for the widening of the testimony.

Lesson for March 13.
Christ has imposed upon every disciple the obligation of witnessing for Him to all the nations of the world.

Lesson for March 20.
The Christian's hope is the personal return of Jesus Christ to take him to His heavenly home. When Christ comes, the body of the believer who has fallen asleep will be resurrected and living believers will be caught up into glory with Christ.

Harder to Do Right
There never has been an age where it was not harder to do right than to do wrong. Just as there has never been a time when it was not harder to swim upstream than down.—Herald of Gospel Liberty.

Let Your Light Shine
A light under a bushel, besides being hid, will go out in a short time for want of air. Unless our lights shine for others, they will soon perish in ourselves.—Herald of Gospel Liberty.

SEIBERLING ALL-TREAD TIRES

The Seiberling tire was designed by C. W. Seiberling, formerly head of the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company.

The Seiberling tire was originally built with the idea of lengthening the road life of tires, of saving money for motorists, by making the same tire investment give more miles.

Seiberlings are the most adaptable tire on the market—they were then, and they are now. The explanation lies in the quality that was designed and built into them.

On city streets or country roads, without flinching, without failing, Seiberlings do all they are expected to do—and more. The flexible construction of the tires (designed for lower air pressure) and the utility of the tread are the basis of Seiberling quality. Seiberling is first by merit.

The tuff tread rubber from bead to bead and the long protecting side bars put it in a class by itself. Its appearance tells its own story of ability to conquer every kind of road, to resist abrasion in ruts and at the curb, pulling through mud, sand or snow, resist skidding on slippery pavement.

Seiberling Prices

Nobody ever got something for nothing. The lowest priced tire is not the cheapest. The cheapest tire is the tire that requires only a reasonable outlay, and gives miles and miles of trouble-free service. Quality plus reasonable price equals economy. Seiberling prices are like that. Seiberling is the most economical tire you can buy.

We have just received a large shipment in sizes from 30x3 to 40x8. Balloon and High Pressure tires, all priced to sell.

CORN BORER CONTROL

The signing of the corn borer control act by President Coolidge marks the opening of one of the most intensive campaigns ever undertaken against a plant pest. The act appropriates $10,000,000 to be used in clean up activities in infested areas to be found in five states.

Among other things, the act allows for money to be paid to farmers having the pest on their farms for co-operating in following control measures. Some objection to this provision has been voiced on the ground that a farmer with infested fields should do all within his power to prevent the borer from spreading.

Viewed from another angle, the farmer who suffers this misfortune should not be penalized, but should have the assistance of the government in halting its progress. This insures the full co-operation of all farmers in infested areas. Were this bounty not assured, it is easy to conceive of some farmers assuming the attitude of not helping to stem the pest. They might assume that inasmuch as the corn borer had done as much damage as it could to them, they would not feel obligated to help some other region which might not be infected if they used control methods. This is a narrow and selfish view, but undoubtedly some land owners would take this view.

The bounty is not to pay for crops destroyed, because none is to be damaged by following government regulations. Under the act farmers are merely to be reimbursed for labor costs incurred above the cost of normal farm operations.

A Birthday Party

Mrs. I. Shield entertained with a birthday party on Tuesday afternoon in honor of her little daughter, Annette's seventh birthday. There were a number of Annette's little friends present and a very merry time was had by these little people with their games. And too, a beautiful birthday cake was served with ice cream, sandwiches and potato chips to the youngsters, which was greatly enjoyed by the following guests: Marion Baxter, Margery Pope, Irene Stiles, Lela Ruth Traylor, Annetta Kirkpatrick, June Kirkpatrick, Mary Jo Jones, Martha Belle Harvey, Vesta Evans, Helen Turner, Mary Southern Garrett, Charlie Woodruff, Margaret Mobley, Gail Collier, Gene Adams, Bettie Joe Martin, Augusta Bond, Lora Gladys Pope, Annette and Bess Inez Shield.

At Queen Theatre Friday, 1st.

Next Friday is laugh night at the Queen Theatre. Douglas MacLean will be seen in the role of chief merry-maker as the hero of a brand new Paramount farce-comedy with the popular title of "That's My Baby." Picturegoers who love to exercise their smile muscles will have plenty of opportunity to do so while watching MacLean trying to woo a girl, though handicapped with a strange baby, who persists in calling him "Daddy." Speed is the keynote of "That's My Baby." There isn't a dull moment in the entire production; in fact, the complications pile up so thick and fast that the laughs come in bunches. Besides the baby, who sticks to him like glue despite all his heroic and screaming funny efforts to get rid of it MacLean has many other trials to contend with.

JIM KECHUM'S LAST STAND

The killing of Jim Kechum, well-known cattleman, and three of his friends by Indians near the headwaters of the Main Concho River, in Southwest Texas, is one of the outstanding tragedies of frontier history. The four white men, well armed, were trapped in an arroyo but fought to the bitter end against overwhelming numbers. This story will be published exclusively by the Santa Anna News April 1, in its monthly Magazine Section.

TEXAS AND TEXANS
(By Will H. Mayes)

Normal Cotton Acreage

Apparently there is little prospect of any considerable reduction in cotton acreage this year, and there are indications that the planting may be slightly larger than last year. This means that, unless the acreage yield is small, the prices can not be expected to advance very much, if any, and they may go lower than a last year's low level. Neither is there any good reason to hope that other staple farm crops, such as wheat, oats, corn, sorghum, and potatoes, will be higher than last season. The supply of all these are likely to exceed the demand. The farms are producing more than the cities and foreign countries can use with their limited buying power, and since it seems impossible to organize farmers effectively, the situation for the farmers is anything but encouraging. A similar condition in any other business would mean bankruptcy.

The Farmer's Hope

Fortunately the farmer who is not already weighed down with debts that must be paid has on his own farm the means of self-preservation if he will only use them. He can plant and harvest with a view to making his farm produce the living for his family first of all, marketing only the surplus above living expenses. But to do this he should begin right away. He should have a garden sufficiently large and well enough cultivated to supply his family, not only with the green foods as they ripen, but with canned garden products for all the year. But little capital is required for this. He should have an abundant dairy and poultry supply for his family, and enough for steady sales through the year with which to buy such things as the farm will not grow and the family clothing to pay taxes, interest and the inevitable little expenses. He should have some hogs, and, where possible, at least a few sheep and goats. An orchard, well tended, will in itself almost feed a family. Berries are easily and cheaply grown. With the family provided with an these things, the farmer can grow cotton on his surplus land with the feeling that whatever he may get for it, it is that much above the operating expenses of the farm and is, therefore, profit.

Bungling Legislation

If the people could only know just how legislation is usually passed, they would not call legislatures deliberative bodies. There has been much in the papers about relieving the cotton situation by the passage of a bill in Congress to classify the carry-over cotton, much of which is of such low grade as to be untenderable, and thus take it off the market, and reduce the surplus by that amount. It looked like a good measure, and many members of both houses of Congress gave great publicity to the fact that they favored it and were thus proven "friends of the farmers." But although the bill was passed, it contained no appropriation for paying for the work of classifying the carry-over cotton, and, of course, was ineffective. Everybody in Congress appeared to think that the cotton would just classify itself or that the cotton speculators might do it to relieve the cotton growers. A great joker, that, which our $10,000 a year "guardians of the people" let go by.

Rural Club Women Work

The home demonstration agents in the different counties of Texas have proven over and over again that they are worth many times their cost to the counties employing them. They have taught and enthused the farm people, and especially the farm girls, until farm life is improving as it never has before. In most counties farm homes are now much more attractive and comfortable than they were before these agents began their work, and farmers wives and daughters are much better dressed. In the practical things much has been taught through active demonstrations. This is especially true as to preserving and canning. Clothing contests have wrought wonderful improvements in designing and in sewing. Weaving, rugmaking, basket making, and the finer arts have been taught, and have added to the pleasure and the zest of life. The government has never done a greater service to the people than that being rendered in Texas and other states through these well-trained home demonstration agents.

Canning Home-Grown Foods

Miss Maggie Peach—a good, wholesome name—county demonstration agent at Marshall, says that through the twelve organized women's and girls' clubs in Harrison county, more than $13,000 worth of food that would otherwise have gone to waste, has been conserved the past year. Here are the figures and certainly the food could not be bought for anything like the $13,000; 11,611 quarts of fruits and vegetables; 3,633 quarts of meat and fish; 5,351 quarts of jellies and preserves; 305 quarts of fruit juices; 2,059 quarts of pickles; 1,270 pounds of fruits and vegetables dried; and 3,470 pounds of meat cured. This was the recorded work of the twelve clubs, and does not include the work that has been done through their influence over neighbors and others not belonging to the clubs, according to Miss Peach. Canning is only one of the numerous activities in which Miss Peach and other county demonstration agents are engaged.

Some Onion Plants

It is estimated that 18,000,000,000—look at the figures again—onion plants will be shipped from growers in the Texas Winter Garden this year. Should they all grow that would allow about 180 onions for the year for every man, woman and child in this country, or an onion for each every other day. By no means are all the onions in the gardens of the country grown from plants either, as thousands of gardeners plant the seeds. Have all the onion-eaters of the world moved to this country?

Factories Increasing

San Antonio announces that 28 factories have located in San Antonio during January and February, and the Express enumerates them. Some of them are small concerns, but a number will spend several thousand dollars in buildings and equipment. Together they will give employment to many laborers, and will bring increased wealth to the city. Texas needs right now a million factory employes to use the surplus products of its fertile farm lands. Every Texas Chamber of Commerce should center its energies for the next few years in increasing local manufacturing plants of every kind.

Crazy Hotel Opened

The million dollar "Crazy" Hotel at Mineral Wells has been opened. It will be a valuable asset to Mineral Wells, the noted health resort, and to the State. It is named for the famous "Crazy Well," at which it is located, but that there is something in a name is shown in the fact that this writer was invited to attend the opening banquet and to pay $5.00 each for his banquet tickets for himself and his wife.

CITIZENS ENDORSE SCHOOL BONDS!!

A number of our citizens have set forth, below, in signed statements, the reasons that have impelled them to announce themselves in favor of the high school bonds. Some of these, at least, are your friends and we believe you will take interest in reading what they have to say. We could easily have gotten three times this many testimonials, had we had the time and space for them.

If our boys and girls are to be educated we must pay the price. I am willing to make the sacrifice. HARDY BLUE

It will cost me a few dollars extra, in the way of taxes to give the children of this district the kind of high school building they deserve, but I will cheerfully make the sacrifice, believing that the money could be spent in no better cause. MRS. J. R. GIPSON

Santa Anna has fallen behind all our neighboring towns in educational equipment. Let us delay no longer, but join the ranks of those who are willing to pay whatever is necessary to give our children the best. W. E. BAXTER

If the American government ever perishes it will be thru ignorance of its citizenship. I believe in the enlightening and civilizing power of education. I am for the bonds. DR. J. E. POWELL

Meet me face-to-face at the ballot box March 30 and let us give to the children of this district that which we have already too long denied them—a modern fireproof high school building, properly furnished. G. W. FAULKNER

Unless the District votes these bonds our school will lose its affiliation. That means its ruin. We cannot afford to lose our school. A first-class school is a good business proposition. SERA KIRKPATRICK

The school children of this district are entitled to the best. I am going to vote for the bonds. SAM H. COLLIER

I am willing to tax myself in order that the children of this district may have the best possible school facilities. A. R. BROWN

Our present high school building is dangerous, unsanitary and inadequate in every way. I am going to vote to replace it with a modern, fireproof, well-lighted, well-equipped structure that will do our school children justice. W. H. RAGSDALE

If I failed to vote for the school bonds I should always feel that I had not done my duty by the boys and girls of this district. MAY BLUE

If there is a man in this district who is thoroughly satisfied with our present high school building I want to see the color of his eye. Let's have a new building. I. WILLIAMSON

The children of this district need an adequate high school building and need it NOW. A few years and it will be too late, so far as they are concerned. I am for the bonds. W. R. KELLEY

A public school education is the birthright of every American child. We cannot afford to deny them the best we can give them. I am going to vote for the bonds. V. L. GRADY

America is prosperous because it is more enlightened. More enlightenment will bring more prosperity and more happiness. I am for education and progress. GEORGE M. JOHNSON

I am for the school bonds because there is no denying the fact that we are in sore need of a new high school building. A. M. TURNER

On election day, March 30, I shall have the privilege of doing the school children of this district a great service, by voting to give them the kind of high school building they deserve. I realize that it will cost me money to do so, but it is well worth it and I am going to vote for the bonds. My children are all grown. D. J. JOHNSON

I have always believed in education and enlightenment. I still believe in it and I am going to vote for the school bonds. R. R. LOVELADY

I know what my duty is in regard to the school bonds and I am going to do it. My vote is for the bonds. J. W. PARKER

I know we need a new high school building and I know that it is my duty to vote for it. I am not going to dodge the issue. I am for the bonds. FRED BATTLE

The finest investment in the world is the money we spend in preparing our children for good citizenship. No dollar intelligently spent in this cause has ever been lost. I am for the school bonds. J. FRANK TURNER

I am for the school bonds because I believe that the progress and prosperity of this nation depends upon the intelligence of its citizenship. R. J. MARSHALL

Adequate school facilities are imperative if we are to have the best results in educational work. I am for the bonds and better citizenship. G. A. SHOCKLEY

A farmer without implements or a carpenter without tools would make a very poor showing at his work. Even so, good equipment is necessary for firstclass work in the school room. I am for the bonds. R. E. CRUM

If we are to have a first class school we must pay for it ourselves. No one is going to donate it to us. I am going to vote for the school bonds. MRS. S. H. PHILLIPS

I feel that it is my duty to the children of this district to tax myself for their enlightenment. There is nothing else for me to do. I am for the bonds. J. W. LEWIS

I am for the school bonds because there is no doubt that we need a new high school building and need it badly. J. O. MARTIN

The hope of our country is in our boys and girls. I believe in preparing them for intelligent citizenship. I am for the bonds. R. L. LOWE

Our present high school building is badly lighted, poorly ventilated, dangerous and entirely inadequate in every way. I am going to vote for the bonds. STAFFORD BAXTER

I am for the bonds. Our present high school building is a shame upon us and an imposition on the children of this district. W. DuBOIS

Give the children of Santa Anna Independent School District the best that is to be had in housing, equipment and instruction. That's my ticket. E. R. PURDY

Ignorance is one of the most expensive things in the world. I am for the bonds. W. T. WHEELER

There is no use beating about the bush. Everybody knows we need a new high school building. Let us come clean and give the children that which we all know they need, and let us not give it to them grudgingly, as of necessity, but gladly, as of a great privilege. C. A. WALKER

I earnestly maintain that our children are entitled to the best we are able to give them in the way of education. I am for the bonds. J. E. WATKINS

I am for the bonds and an adequate building because in such a building our children will be more comfortable, healthier, and more apt in applying themselves to their studies. LEMAN BROWN

As a citizen of Santa Anna and a former President of the School Board, I have been asked to publically give my reasons why I am in favor of voting for the School Bonds for the erection of a modern High School building in Santa Anna.

On all questions of public interest to any community, I feel that any citizen has a right to form an opinion on the question at issue, regardless of whether he be rich or poor, educated or non-educated, and that he should do so, but, at the same time, he should expect to allow this same special privilege to every other citizen without bearing any malice, or hold against them any ill will, because their opinion on the question at issue does not agree with theirs, and neither should they try to change opinions by using friendship, political or financial prestige to force them to change theirs.

It is my honest and conscientious opinion that renditions will have to be raised in Santa Anna if this bond issue carries, but I do not believe the amount of actual money paid out for increased taxes will at all seriously handicap anyone, for the benefits to be derived from this modern high school, by helping the town to grow, will undoubtedly off-set, by many fold, the increased payment in taxes, for the more property a person owns in town and in the school district, the more they will be benefited by the improvement of the town and I feel confident that if we do not get this school building so that our school can grow, our town will, necessarily go backward.

It is with malice toward none and charity toward all that I have made these statements. T. RICHARD SEALY

Seeing from the above that we are compassed about by such a cloud of witnesses who are willing and anxious to testify to the imperative need for better school facilities, let us lay aside any mercenary considerations, that might lead us to turn our backs upon the school children—our school children—of this our own district, and vote upon this momentous question according to the dictates of our consciences fully assured that we can make no mistake in doing that which is right.

Respectfully submitted for your earnest consideration, by

WHAT'S DOING IN WEST TEXAS
(By West Texas C. of C.)

McCamey—Construction is under way by the Orient Railroad on additional storage trackage. When completed, the car capacity of the Orient's yards will be increased 175, making a total capacity of 1,010 cars.

Midland—The local light company and properties was sold recently to the Texas Power and Light Company. Another move of immediate importance to the town was sale of the Curtis property to Clarence Scharbauer. Scharbauer plans to erect a modern five room hotel on the property.

Sweetwater—At the suggestion of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce, Judge W. C. Crane has suggested the name of Tonkawa Hills for a picturesque wooded range extending toward Buffalo Gap. The name suggested would perpetuate a tribe of friendly Indians who aided the pioneer Texas plainsmen against the Comanches. Manager Wade has been asked to lend support of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce in securing legislative designation of the name "Tonkawa Hills."

Chillicothe—Five new brick buildings are being erected by Wofford Brothers, west of the Touchstone & Lincoln Motor Company. The contract, let to J. K. Stuckey, calls for a modern fire proof tile and concrete building to be 115x80 feet. This makes a total of 13 brick and concrete business houses to go up in Chillicothe in the last three years.

Jeff Davis—The Jeff Davis County Chamber of Commerce has been organized with more than forty paid members. A membership of 75 is expected before complete organization. One of the first official acts of the newly formed body was to take out five memberships in the West Texas Chamber of Commerce.

Wichita Falls—Scores of towns are already sending in their names promising to bring large delegations to the annual convention of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce to be held here May 16 and 17. Active interest in the part to be played in the mammoth pageant of nations is displayed. Lots are to be drawn by the various towns who will send delegations to see what nationality they will represent in costume, colors and flags in the huge pageant.

Lefors—Contract has been let for the construction of a modern sanitary water and sewer system here, and work has already begun.

Slaton—Plans for installing a new modern battery plant or flashlight system for improved telephone service in Slaton are announced by officials of the Southwestern Bell Telephone Company, Dallas.

Crosbyton—Crosbyton promises to rival Baird as banner district convention city. Plans underway for the South Plains District Convention to be held here April 7 indicate a record attendance.

DEATH WINS

The eyes of the people of the country were turned recently toward a little room in a hospital in Evanston, Ill., where for more than 108 hours man held a slight edge in a battle with death, which eventually won. The patient, a young salesman stricken with Landry's paralysis, was kept alive with "borrowed life" pumped into his body by fifty-seven friends who volunteered.

When paralysis first attacked the patient's lungs, the doctors found that by applying pressure to the abdomen in steady beats a faint spark of life could be maintained. They soon tired in their endeavor to prolong the young man's life and his friends came to take up the task, two at a time, in 15-minute shifts.

Though lacking in some of the spectacular features, the attempt to save life in this manner was similar to the attempted rescue of Floyd Collins from a Kentucky cave a few years ago. This episode gripped the imagination of people and hourly bulletins describing the rescue attempts were eagerly sought after.

The point of similarity is that death won in both cases, as it always will in the end. Man has devised many ingenious ways, as illustrated in the Evanston incident, to prolong life, but able and wise as scientist and surgeon may be, death can not be cheated of its toll eventually.

PRACTICAL KNOWLEDGE

It is predicted in a book by Henry Ford that a year's work on the farm can be done in eleven days with machinery. Hearing of this prediction, a farmer asks how Mr. Ford proposes to produce a litter of pigs in eleven days. He might also inquire how a crop of corn, wheat or oats could be raised in eleven days.

There are many ways farmers might increase their income. Farmers will not gain much practical knowledge from men like Ford who never ran a farm, nor from Thomas A. Edison, whose inventive genius is not in the direction of making things grow in the earth, or of reproducing animal life.

Both these men work with other elements. They are recognized as successful men. They are in truth benefactors. Accomplishment in one's own line of endeavor, however, does not qualify one for becoming expert in every other.

So many men make this mistake. They believe that they are endowed with some sort of supernatural power to impart information on any subject, no matter how technical, if they have succeeded in their own speciality.

Farmers should seek knowledge in farming from men who have practical experience as farmers, and from those who have by actual use of a theory proved that it can be made to work. Men in other lines of endeavor do this, and farmers are doing it more than ever before.

WHAT AMERICANS HAVE AT STAKE IN MEXICO

Whenever the controversy between the United States and Mexico is discussed, one question is almost sure to arise: "What is the value of American properties in Mexico?" The question is seldom answered correctly, says the New York Times. Judging from what one hears, the average American thinks that oil is about 90 per cent of the American interests concerned in the serious situation which has come about as a result of the promulgation of the so-called Alien Oil and Land laws of Mexico. But this is far from the truth. As a matter of fact, in the total of American-owned Mexican properties and concessions less than 25 per cent is related to the oil industry. The principal American property holdings in Mexico, and their total value, will be published in the monthly

Ice Cream Freezers

Pure Ice Cream is not only whole some and delicious but it also has great food value. And when you freeze your own cream, it costs no more than many other foods, that are less appetizing and less nutritious.

If you are going to buy a new freezer this year, get it early and enjoy its tempting product all the season thru.

Get a HIBBARD FREEZER in any size to suit your needs. These freezers are built of Virginia white pine, with rustproof frames. They turn out a smooth, well-beaten velvety cream that will make your mouth water.
