

Gable And Harlow Co-Star In Picture At Ritz Theatre

'Red Dust' Is Week's Opener In R & R House

'Life In The Raw' Dominant Note Of Stirring Drama

One of the most anticipated productions of the new movie season comes to the Ritz Theatre Sunday and Monday with the co-starring appearance of Clark Gable and Jean Harlow in "Red Dust" filmation of the Wilson Club play. Gable, who still retains his title as the screen's most popular male star, and Miss Harlow of the sensational platinum tresses, first appeared together in the racketeer melodrama, "The Secret Six," the story of which was told in a large American city.

Picturesque Locale

In "Red Dust," the locale is the picturesque region of Cochiti, China, with Gable playing a hard-boiled plantation foreman who has forced himself to become completely brutalized in an effort to drive the treacherous and treacherous natives.

To Miss Harlow falls the role of Vantine, born to the tropics, hard-boiled, perfectly at home on the plantation and equal in strength and animal pugnacity to the men. It is when the beautiful wife of an

Successful Calamity In City One Day

George Arliss: Veteran Of Every Type Of Play, Is Star

A new George Arliss picture, "The Successful Calamity," is the main picture public and "A Successful Calamity," his latest Warner Bros. triumph, playing Thursday at the Ritz Theatre, promises to excel all of its excellent predecessors in popularity.

The story deals with an American family of great wealth and a great financier, the young and lovely wife and her two grown children, all of whom find themselves so busy with the pleasures and duties imposed upon them by their money and position that no time is left for the enjoyment of their family life.

In an attempt to remedy this unhappy situation the father announces suddenly that he is ruined. Amazing and far-reaching complications which he little expects, result immediately. The delightful comedy unfolds against the most luxurious settings ever devised for a picture of this type. It is presented with a cast so excellent that every bit part is played by an actor or actress of considerable note.

"A Successful Calamity" is adapted from a highly successful story play of some seasons back, written by Clara Kummer, John Adolph, who directed George Arliss in "The Millinery," "Alexander Hamilton," "The Man Who Played God," "All-American," and at the bottom is George Arliss as he appears in "The Successful Calamity." The Stuart-Arlen picture will be at the Ritz Friday and Saturday. Arliss will appear Thursday only.

Although the entire program is dominated by the characterportrayed by Arliss, the supporting cast is even more noteworthy than previous ones seen in Arliss pictures.

Mary Astor, one of the loveliest and most capable of the screen's leading women plays the part of the young and susceptible wife of the financier. Evelyn Knapp, who played with Arliss in "The Millinery," is seen again as his daughter in this picture. William Janney, promising youthful screen and stage actor, is the son, Grant Mitchell, himself, the featured player in many lesser productions, has the important role of the Wilton Butler. David Terrance Hardie, Hilda Hamilton, Fortunio Bonanova, Randolph Scott and Marr. Kinnell are featured players.

'All-American', With Richard Arlen And Gloria Stuart, Is Featured By Full Team Of Outstanding Grid Men

Church Activities For Coming Week

Last year Universal made a football picture. It was a classic. It was called "The Spirit of Notre Dame," and it set a new standard for moving pictures combining a popular form of athletic event. It blazed a trail.

This year Carl Laemmle, Jr. declared that he would produce a football picture which in every way would excel "The Spirit of Notre Dame." Back in the summer he started planning for this picture, which is to play at the Ritz Theatre Friday and Saturday.

In planning "The All American," Carl Laemmle, Jr. determined that he would do something which had never been done by anyone else before. He would assemble and present a team made up of the All American selections of the All American Board of Football, the best of All-American players had ever been assembled in one place before. No such team had ever played a football game. But that is exactly what happens in "The All American." Not only that, "The All American" is the first football picture of 1933. All American stars play in it.

Clark Gable and Ernie Jones. All in all, there are twenty-eight men who have been named All America by this board of last resort, composed of coaches Warner, Alexander, Harper and Christy Walsh. Of course, these All American players had been selected from the best of the movie hero to play on the team. This movie hero in "The All American" is John Darrow, but the hero and featured player of the production is Richard Arlen, who played last year in "Touchdown." After seeing him perform in "The All American," Hollywood is about to classify him as a football player. If Arlen is wise, he will refuse to play any more football pictures, or that is the only thing that Hollywood casting directors will ever put him in Universal, borrowed him from Paramount of this most exciting role.

Richard Arlen is best depicted by a strong cast of moving picture players. They include two of Universal's beautiful actresses, Gloria Stuart, who is forging to the front more rapidly than any other player in Hollywood, plays the leading female role. It is her third production in six months. She had a splendid role in "The Old Dark House," and in "Air Mail." Both of these pictures were completed before "The All American," but "The All American" was rushed to the screen as rapidly as possible to meet the demand for football pictures while the football fever is at its height. The other is June Clyde, who played a clever role in "Back Street."

Good Mexican Luncheon Given Thursday Club

Mrs. G. R. Porter entertained the members of the Thursday Luncheon Club with a perfectly delicious Mexican luncheon with the cooperation of Mrs. Jack Ellis, who with Mrs. Garland Woodward was a luncheon guest of the club.

The tables were spread with red Mexican covers and centered with vases containing red roses and dahlias. The place cards were Spanish dancing girls.

The menu consisted of chili, enchiladas, frijoles, Spanish rice, cake and Mexican candy.

Mrs. Primm made club high and Mrs. Williamson guest high. Both received Mexican pottery vases.

The bridge players were: Mmes. J. L. Webb, C. S. Blomfield, Wayne Rice, Fred Primm, M. M. Edwards, A. E. Service, Harvey Williamson and W. B. Clare.

Sherlock Of Old Returns In New Garb

Detectives may come and detectives may go, but Sherlock Holmes, apparently goes on forever. Despite the success of some of Holmes' more recent imitations, the great figure of Conan Doyle's imagination continues to hold his place against all comers in the hearts of the reading public.

The head of any public library will verify this assertion, and will add that there is a steady demand for Doyle's stories that depict the thrilling adventures of the famous sleuth.

A new "Sherlock Holmes" comes to the Queen Theatre Sunday, Monday and Tuesday with Clive Brook in the title role and Miriam Jordan portraying the leading feminine role. Mrs. Jordan was from the English stage and recently won

Lucky Thirteen Club Assembles At Mrs. Henry's

Mrs. E. W. Henry entertained the Lucky Thirteen Bridge Club with a harvest party. Harvest baskets were tallies and formed covers for the score pads. The table covers harmonized with these lovely colors.

Mrs. Talley made high score for members and received a felt table cover. Mrs. Woody made high for guests and received a fruit bowl. Mrs. Underwood was consoling with a silhouette picture for low score.

The guests and members were: Mmes. Emil Fahrnkamp, C. P. Woody, Alton Underwood, L. G. Taylor, O. R. Boulenger, Hugh Duncan, W. W. Lutton, A. Schmitzer, Hayes, The Stripling, J. B. Wolten, Geo. Oldham.

Mrs. Keaton will be the next hostess.

Holt Stars In Queen Picture

Wednesday And Thursday Marks Appearance At R & R House

The oldest and the most thrilling game known to man is brilliantly immortalized by Jack Holt in his latest Columbia picture, "This Sporting Age," an inspiring story of sportsmen and thoroughbred showing. Wednesday and Thursday at the Queen Theatre.

Considered by its devotees the first among the three great sporting partnerships between man and horse—the other two being steeplechase hunting and racing—polo is not only the sport of kings, but the best possible training in horsemanship and leadership.

Holt, himself, trained for years as an expert polo player and considered one of the finest polo players in Southern California, brings to his role as a Captain of Cavalry, who obtains a berth on the United States team for the international matches, a vigor, sincerity and an adventurous spirit which makes "This Sporting Age" the greatest of movie sports pictures he has made to date.

The picture is a thrilling story of the origin of the sport in the international polo matches at Montevideo in 1927.

In addition, "This Sporting Age" features a screen play by an expert, "Promising Good Reading," Mrs. Deane talked on the subject of school education, the First Right of Childhood.

The officers made their report and the treasurer reported $59.52 in the treasury to begin the school year. Mrs. H. S. Paw was elected first vice-president to take Mrs. Woodward's place.

Mrs. Mann and Mrs. Smith's names offer the attendance prize monthly.

Mrs. Freland, representative of the Barbara Gould societies under the auspices of Cunningham and Phillips, closed her appointment in this city Saturday noon and left this morning for Smith.

Mrs. Freland was unable to see a great number of women who called late in the week for appointments, because her time was filled. She desires to say to these women that she was sorry not to be able to see them and ask that they call early when she returns next year. She wants to make as good friends with them as she has with her other customers.

Pork and Panic

Texas Topics

Mr. Hoover's radio appeal to the voters of California, Washington and Oregon provides concrete evidence of what his campaign has come down to. He undertook to explain to the people of the Pacific Coast what "our members" have done for them and so he told them:

That the National Credit Corporation and the Reconstruction Finance Corporation at one time advanced more than $150,000,000 to certain of their banks:

That loans have been made to twenty-four building and loan associations and five mortgage concerns:

That the Farm Board advanced $31,298,000 to California co-operatives:

That the Federal Government has spent $100,000,000 on public works in California;

That it has spent $45,000,000 in Oregon;

That it has spent $50,000,000 in Washington;

That the Reconstruction Finance Corporation has authorized advances to great projects like the San Francisco-Oakland Bridge in Northern California and the Colorado River water project in Southern California which will finally cost upwards of $400,000,000.

Mr. Hoover feels that he is entitled to ask that its gratitude be expressed at the polls. Although he did not quite commit the Federal Government to the whole of the $400,000,000 mentioned in the last item, the net impression is that he has looked out for his neighbors on the coast to the tune of three-quarters of a billion dollars of the taxpayers' money.

This naked exploitation of a national program of emergency relief for partisan purposes makes Mr. Garner's postoffice bill look like small change, and disqualifies Mr. Hoover or any other Republican who does not disavow it from saying another word about the Garner pork barrel. In this appeal Mr. Hoover has treated the whole vast emergency program as a pork barrel and has fully justified the fears expressed in Congress last winter about giving the Administration virtually unlimited access to the national credit.

Out of respect for his office and for Herbert Hoover's many great services to the American people I do not propose to add to the bitterness of the campaign by characterizing this performance. But this much must be said: The money which Mr. Hoover says he provided and for which he asks his reward is the money of the whole American people. It was obtained on the understanding that it would be administered in a non-partisan spirit, and on that basis it was voted by both parties. I know no reason to doubt that it has been administered in a non-partisan spirit. But I cannot understand le legislature will be one of the best in many years. He was discussing the ability and capacity for work of the membership.

"There have been some comments that many of the newcomers are young," he added. "But that is not a handicap, if they come with the purpose to work, to take their responsibilities seriously. . . . A man of that type advances more quickly than one whose mind is closed to new ideas."

Beaumont port representatives have been given to understand by the railroad commission that potential truck competition, as well as actual competition, will be considered in granting log rates on cotton shipments to ports by rail.

The practical difference at Beaumont is that under this view, the business people there do not have to buy a fleet of trucks and set up a trucking business in order to get the rail rates to a point where cotton will flow to the port. Their objective is to handle the cotton legitimately due to go to that port from its natural traffic area.

The Beaumont interests are now pressing for early decision of its cotton rate case, heard back in August, and have pointed out that within a limited time the cotton-producing season will be over for a whole year.

Sen. W. A. Williamson, San Antonio, insists that members of the legislature can't be seated for new terms until the beginning of the January regular session, since a statute fixes the time for their qualifying. . . . Others believe that if the legislature is in session Nov. 22, it will be a session of emergency sessions against whom no election contest is pending can present himself and claim his seat.

extend far beyond operations in time of war, their scope embracing the relief of human suffering in all its various forms and over which it may be encountered. Acceptance by the Red Cross Society of the wider responsibility dates from 1919 when, on the initiative of Henry P. Davison, chairman of the War Council of the American Red Cross, the Red Cross societies of France, Great Britain, Italy, Japan and the United States founded the League of Red Cross societies with permanent headquarters in Paris. Today 40 independent national societies are members of the league, while Red Cross organizations exist in 61 different countries. Membership in the league is wholly voluntary. The league has no political, racial or religious taints. Its purpose is the development of the Red Cross movement as an agent of humanity, the intensification of Red Cross activity and the provision of facilities for increased cooperation of Red Cross societies with each other and with other organizations pursuing similar aims.

APPEAL—

It is not the desire to see a man go into the governor's job who has been elected here, but the desire to see a man who will mean a decisive victory for Democracy. Roosevelt will be elected by the largest majority of any president.

I intend that a dollar which rates three times as much wheat, four times as much cotton, three times as much pork, to buy as it would an honest dollar. It is a dishonest dollar. I hear the tollers of the highway, the time he eats bread of such a nature that it is not fit to eat. It is an expansion of the dollar based on existing gold stocks. It is the senator's solution of the problem.

Democratic fight, but a fight between special interests and the people. If the Republican have contributed one piece of constructive legislation for the benefit of the masses, I am not aware of it," he said. Under Republican administration, inherent value of real estate had sunk to a new level, Robbins told the crowd.

"You won't have to talk much to make me believe the Republicans are largely responsible for the depression," he declared, "and the president didn't start it." Foreign countries altogether. Concluding his confession, "I am not enthusiastic for Mrs. Ferguson nor have I been, but I am willing to yield to the majority and support the nominees of the primary."

C. P. Rogers, a director of the Ferguson campaign in this county, admonished his listeners to "go to the polls, see that your neighbor goes and vote all the Democratic tickets without a scratch." Rogers explained he had always yielded to the majority opinion of the primary.

"You will not find on your ticket the name of Franklin Roosevelt and John Garner," he said in explaining that presidential electors would be chosen so in turn vote for the national Democratic standard bearers, "but when you vote for these electors continue to vote for the ticket without a scratch."

They talk of electing a Republican governor. Why such a wild dream never before came to the people of Texas. A Republican ticket.

It is not the desire to see a man go into the governor's job who has been elected here, but the desire to see a man who will mean a decisive victory for Democracy. Roosevelt will be elected by the largest majority of any president.

I intend that a dollar which rates three times as much wheat, four times as much cotton, three times as much pork, to buy as it would an honest dollar. It is a dishonest dollar. I hear the tollers of the highway, the time he eats bread of such a nature that it is not fit to eat. It is an expansion of the dollar based on existing gold stocks. It is the senator's solution of the problem.

the Republican vote, the disgruntled Sterling men and forty or fifty thousand bought highway votes." He reiterated his belief that the highway commission should be elective instead of appointive. "I'm glad Jim is going to be governor, that's one of his plans. And you can't fool us old Ferguson men. We know who will be governor. Jim is the greatest friend of the masses."

Stone quoted a letter of condolence on the death of his sister from Ferguson and commented with, "That's the kind of a man Jim is. He'll stick with him until he's frozen over." He predicted a 300,000 majority for Mrs. Ferguson.

Roberts ended the meeting with a warning. "If we don't cram our votes into the ball box, we may be worse fooled than we think. It is amazing the money Republicans are spending in big cities to gain votes."

HOME TOWN—

for his wife, the Democratic nominee, up on "5,000 Federal jobs in Texas."

That is typical of Jim Ferguson because upon his political forehead is stamped indelibly now and forever the Dollar Mark. Politics to him is not a high calling necessary to the proper conduct of a Democratic government. It is a low-grade racket through which he may fare more fully off the fruit of the land, the "poor people" notwithstanding.

Suppose election of Roosevelt and his associates on Federal jobs in Texas. How much do you reckon Jim Ferguson would have to do with selection of the persons who would receive those jobs? Anyway, as we have said above, whether Mrs. Ferguson is named governor or not, she has nothing to do with the thing.

We believe in voting frank and honest about these things. This writer will vote the ticket that he believes in, but with the sincere hope that loyalty to his party will never again make it necessary for him to cast a ballot for one such as Jim Ferguson.

Our ballot will be all-Democratic for two or three reasons. We will vote the whole ticket in spite of the fact that because of the nominee for governor, hoping by that vote to help hold the Democratic party in this state together that she may be a sufficient strength in the future to throw off the pernicious and malicious leeches which now threaten to sap her life's blood. We will vote the ticket straight because, after all is said and done and in spite of temporary disuses which may afflict the party, the party is the only efficacious vehicle for proper conduct of a democratic government. And, speaking frankly, we will vote the ticket straight because we happen to edit a "democratic newspaper." There will be a lot more elections before we die, we hope. And, we've got an idea that some day it might be very nice to be able to look back upon a record of unflinching party loyalty and a matter of policy to be perfectly plain.

Orville Bullington's vote is going to be the largest any Republican has received in Texas since the Civil War. He is going to carry the vote. His election would mean the Democratic party's in this state. It may be a little late for that party to utter dress departed there from time to time because of presence in Texas of that political genius, James E. Ferguson.

But in spite of Ferguson and his Democratic party, the Democratic party will have more chances to one not serve more than two years. Their methods while in office are too rank to fool a majority of the people. It is only when they are out of office and in position to shoot those in office with information, and their old reliable stand-by—dissemination of prejudice—may take advantage of unenlightened state of the public to pose once more as Shepherds of the Blind Flock that they can cause 50.5 percent of the voters to wear their mask.

But it can't last forever. We can be thankful for that.

Simple Ways of Saving On Your Gas Service

- Correct temperature should be maintained by the aid of thermometers or thermostats, to keep the temperature of gas and injurious to health. A thermostat is a device for the automatic regulation of temperature. Thermostats on gas appliances regulate temperature by controlling the flow of gas to the burners. The correct temperature for living rooms varies somewhat with individuals and conditions, but it is generally considered to be about 65 to 68 F.
- Many families can save gas without inconvenience by using fewer rooms during cold weather than at other times.
- A cooking utensil should be ready to be placed over the burner before it is lighted, and the gas should be turned off when cooking is completed.
- When water has come to a boil, the fire should be turned down or the vessel moved to a smaller burner, and just enough gas should be supplied to keep the water boiling. Water cannot be made hotter than boiling, consequently violent boiling does not hasten cooking. It causes needless evaporation of water and thereby wastes fuel.
- Consuming utensils should be covered whenever practicable.
- No more water should be heated than is needed.
- The careless waste of use of hot water should be avoided, and faulty hot-water faucets should be repaired immediately.

CHAPTER XI

Asper walked fully 15 minutes at the corral before Dudley arrived. Malloy rode away at a trot without looking back or saying a word regarding his destination or when he would return.

Dudley came riding in at a trot. He was spotted and snuffed as though he had just come from his room. The old timber king's anger almost choked him as he watched his son-in-law slide from his saddle.

"Where have you been?" Asper demanded.

Dudley looked at his father-in-law in a surprised manner.

"I got here just as soon as I heard about it," he protested. His face flushed as he met Asper's glare.

"You are a fine one! Come along with me. I've been waiting for you." Asper gripped Dudley's arm and propelled him toward the main building.

"Is the hurt bad?" Dudley asked anxiously.

"If you get like a man she'll pull through," Asper snapped.

Dudley's eyes showed a great deal of concern and he seemed to be very nervous. "You have the doctor with her?" he asked.

"The doctor will stay with her all night and so will I," Asper demanded.

Dudley hesitated for a moment. Dudley entered the room and went straight to her side. He was looking down and his eyes were then dropped to his knees beside her.

Taking one of her slender hands in his, Dudley's eyes were fixed silently upon the pretty smiling lips. A queer light came in his eyes as he bent forward, but he did not speak.

Before noon the young lady had opened her eyes and looked around. The familiar surroundings of her room brought her back to what had happened. Asper got up and smiled down at her. He mentioned to Asper what was standing beside an open window. Instantly the old timber king was at the bedside. Dona smiled up at him and stretched out her hand. Asper pressed it gently as he bent forward.

"Sorry dad," he murmured.

"Never mind. You are all right and I'll get that fellow 'Wall' Asper's big jaw shut tight," Asper's big jaw shut tight. "I must tell you something else." She started as though to get up.

The doctor lifted a warning hand. "That will be all of the talking for this morning," he said as he motioned Asper away from the bed. The medic did not intend to take any chances with his patient.

Asper backed off. "I'll be in after dinner and have a little talk with you. Better go to sleep now."

Dona laughed softly. "I'll be up this afternoon, Dad."

The doctor smiled, but without a trace of irritation.

"Where is Dad?" Dona asked, as though she had remembered him for the first time.

"He'll be in in a minute," Asper promised. "I'll like out and tell you you are awake."

Dona held out a hand weakly. "First tell me what happened to the man?" There was real concern in her eyes.

Asper cleared his throat and looked at the floor.

"He was killed," Dona faltered. Asper brightened suddenly as he remembered that Malloy had ridden out on an errand of his own making. "Malloy went out to get him and that boy can sure take care of a horse."

"Malloy is a good fellow, Dad," Dona murmured.

The doctor stepped outside and Asper followed him. "She ought to go back to sleep and rest an hour more before Winters talks to her," the doctor said gravely. "She will be sitting up tomorrow. I never saw more vitality." He shook his head and went back to his room.

The big man took Dudley was no when in a wall. But his door was closed. Asper waited over and looked in. Dudley was standing before the mirror, smoothing back his hair. He was as fresh as a newly-washed rose. Asper started disapprovingly. Dudley dropped the brush he had been running through his hair and stepped forward.

"Has she wakened?" he asked.

Asper nodded. "She says you'll have to wait until she has had another sleep of an hour or two. She's pretty excited and wants to talk. When you do see her don't talk about this business."

Dudley laid a hand on the older man's arm. "I'll be very careful," he said.

Asper and Dudley went down to the corral to see if the roan had been brought in. Malloy was not to be found but a young helper was on hand.

"Did they find the roan?" Dudley asked.

The boy nodded toward a saddle that lay on the ground at the door of the harness room. "Had two bullet holes in him and didn't get far," he explained briefly.

"Dead?" Dudley spoke nervously.

The boy nodded and went on working at a cinch he was repairing.

Asper said nothing, but he (Continued On Next Page)

An Outdoor Living Room

The R. V. Harts Have One A Millionaire Would Be Proud To Own; And It's All Homemade

Everybody has heard, read and knows the tale of Johnson and probably listened to talk of outdoor shacks by the hill on Burness living rooms but few have seen them. The Hart yard ran up to one—that really means up the side, and so the house was in to its name.

Big Spring has many attractive city and down on everything. A and some even unique back yards retaining wall was the only solid and it has one supremely noble but a plain wall is just about outdoor living room. This belongs usually as a clay hill.

to R. V. Hart of 804 Johnson street. When the Harts, father and son, this living room was for Mr. and Mrs. Hart and decided on a back wall they planned Mrs. Hart first place in the result had to do all the work themselves yard contest conducted by the that is, haul the rocks, sand and West Texas Chamber of Commerce and build the garage of merce.

The first necessity of such a garden spot is privacy. The Harts this and buying parts to advance obtained it by building walls on three sides of the back yard. When the back yard into the place of they improve their home as they beauty it now is.

The back wall was the start of studding with rock, this gives them the whole thing. As everyone in attractive uneven fish and

A flagstone wall, 18 inches high, shows the water, and separates the lawn from the terrace. The border of the lawn is made of concrete and also made of concrete. The Harts is experimenting with another year.

Next year she will build a beautiful and comfortable work for her dear scheme. The hill will not be touched until the year 1933. A flagstone wall, 18 inches high, shows the water, and separates the lawn from the terrace. The border of the lawn is made of concrete and also made of concrete. The Harts is experimenting with another year.

This yard is an asset in every respect. Grass has been planted in the alley and Virginia creeper is growing on the outside of the wall that towers above the ground. The trees will be planted in the alley along the wall to give more shade in the afternoon.

"The yard that Mr. Hart has planned, about 1933, or will have by the time he completes the den on the top of the garage. He wanted to it 45 loads of rock 7 1/2 of gravel and sand with concrete and cement. He was worked out in his spare time for the last 10 months.

He had had a millionaire and had paid a landscape designer and hired men to have it done. It would have cost him ten times the amount he has had for the outdoor exercise. He has had his face developed by the sun that has led him to take a course in the subject this year at Tech. The yard can not be measured in terms of dollars or of expended energy. And if anyone thinks it hasn't been fun, they had better ask Mr. and Mrs. Hart talk about it or see it in their plans for the future.

Governor To Decide Sums Of Salaries

New Law Gives Executive Right To Fix All Amounts

By RAYMOND BROOKS AUSTIN—About 800 state officials and employees have just had it drawn upon them in full force that the incoming governor in January will, under a law of the past year, write down the amounts the governor is willing for each to be paid during the next two years, and this is to be done before the legislature begins work on the appropriations bills.

That was the heritage left them by the new budget law, in which the budget-making power is taken away from the board of control and put in the hands as far as vital control over the amounts is concerned—in the hands of the incoming governor.

The budget law requires the state auditor to report on the prospective revenues under existing statutes. It requires the board of control to make investigations and recommendations. It provides that the retiring governor shall recommend the amounts of each salary and other appropriation item. But then it directs that the incoming governor shall be an appropriation bill to be laid before the legislature.

In that, it confers the power upon the governor to warn appointments and the legislature that if the pre-expressed judgment of the governor is not complied with, the executive blue-pencil can strike out the salary or other item entirely.

The result will be that the legislature will meet without finding the state budget ready for action.

The present law authorizes the incoming governor, before inauguration, to sit in on any hearings on the budget, but by order of the board of control or the retiring governor. The board of control had held its hearings this year before the governor had been chosen.

Gov. Sterling has not indicated the purpose of holding supplemental hearings.

State Auditor Moore Lynn has reported on the prospecting of an expended 1931-32 appropriations, but not on the prospective revenues.

Board of control estimates were made without regard to the probable adoption of the homestead exemption amendment. Its estimates have not been made public.
