

Court To Decide Vote Contest Jurisdiction Samuel And Martin Insull Indicted

Extradition Of Brothers Not Settled

Embezzlement, Larceny And Larceny By Bailee Are Charged

CHICAGO, (UP)—Three true bills, charging Samuel and Martin Insull with embezzlement, larceny and larceny by bailee were returned by the grand jury.

CHICAGO, (UP)—Prosecutors went before the county grand jury Tuesday for the announced purpose of obtaining criminal indictments against Samuel Insull, Sr., and his brother, Martin Insull in the Insull utility debacle which cost investors hundreds of millions of dollars.

State's Attorney John A. Swanson said the action was started because the two men paid no attention to the requirements they return to the United States from Europe voluntarily for questioning. Swanson announced he would seek indictment against the Insulls on charges of embezzlement, larceny and larceny by bailee. Chicago lawyers for the Insulls refused to discuss attitude of their clients toward extradition.

CHICAGO—Indictment of Samuel and Martin Insull was to be signed Tuesday before the county grand jury, State's Attorney John A. Swanson announced. The prosecutor added that if the indictments are voted, he would seek immediately to have the two men extradited, Samuel Insull from Paris and his brother, Martin, from Ontario.

Charged Profit

Announcement of the contemplated action came after the state attorney had earlier made public an alleged transportation in which he charged Samuel Insull obtained $374,000 through improper appraisal of a block of stock figuring in an exchange of securities. His statement follows:

"Tomorrow I shall present to the grand jury some of the matters already developed by my investigation into the Insull affair. I shall seek the immediate indictment of Samuel and Martin J. Insull.

"The Insulls have not replied to my telegrams and cables requesting their voluntary return.

"If they will not return voluntarily, then I shall use every means given to me by the law to bring them back."

The deal disclosed today occurred Jan. 4, 1929, when Swanson said various Insull securities in exchange for stocks of Insull Utility Investments, Inc., appraised on the books at $9,765,908.

Portfolio. The portfolio Insull gave included Middle West Utilities, preferred stock at $2,660,534; Middle West common at $1,147,442; Midland Utilities Class A referred stock at $16,492; Peoples Gas Light and Coke company stock at $1,315,440 and 1,000 shares of Insull, Son and company, Inc., the entire capital stock, valued by Insull at $1,250,000.

"In the above portfolio of stock," Swanson stated, "there was included."

The fact is, we never overlook the truth that "Nature in the Raw is Seldom Mild"—so these fine tobaccos, after proper aging and mellowing, are then given the benefit of that Lucky Strike purifying process, described by the words—"It's toasted." ## GIVE YOUR SCISSORS THIS DAILY EXERCISE!

Madam! Do you know that it's clever to be a clipper? Here's a habit you can readily cultivate, and you'll find many of your best friends following it.

To become a clipper at one clip, so to speak, just see that the shears are handy when you sit down to read your newspaper. As you spot an advertisement of something that interests you... especially some time that you want to examine when you're shopping next time... clip out the notice and take it with you.

The merchants who advertise with us are glad to have you ask for specific merchandise. And sometimes it's helpful to refer to the advertisement when you're right in the store.

At all events, a clipping pinned to your shopping list helps you to remember this particular errand. It simplifies and shortens a shopping trip so much to know what you want and where to get it!

CALL of the WEST

By E. S. MONTGOMERY

CHAPTER XII

Dona walked softly into her father's room and bent over him. He was sleeping soundly, his breathing regular and even. With a cool firm hand she smoothed his pillow and then stood looking down at him. He was all she had in the world of close kin. A little catch came into her throat as she remembered how near she had come to losing him. With soulless steps she returned to her chair on the porch.

A gorgeous mountain sunset was flaming in the western sky and the wooded reaches of Folly Mountain were shrouded with purple haze. The chill of night was creeping up from the canyon below laden with the heavy fragrance of balsam and spruce. On any other night Dona would have given herself over to the beauty and spice of the night. Now she was worried about Dudley.

Sweigin came out of his office heavily chilled, his lips numbly numbly across the porch floor. Dona greeted him with a winning smile. The timber boss grunted and his loose mouth spread in a wide grin.

"Want a little company?" he rumbled. Dona shook her head. "I'm glad to see you," she said, and took to the hills. He hasn't come in yet. Sweigin turned and looked at a chair toward him and a sweater on his back arm. He had a sweater to take care of himself if he stays in here. Now a good time to get him in.

"But Mr. Sweigin may have been attacked just as he was. He may be—Dona looked at Sweigin's side impatiently. "You must look for him!" "I'll try to get for all this here stuff," he let his little eyes close. "Father will see that you all get well," Dona could not help but shrivel under the creeping caress of his gaze.

Sweigin noted this and his smile returned. "What's this boy friend worth in cold cash, being as I have to be paid?" His thin throat cut as he spoke.

"He means a lot to me, Mr. Sweigin, and I did not mean to set a money price on what you have done. Father and I owe you more than we can ever pay." Dona thought to conceal her natural dread for the timber man who was staring boldly at her.

Sweigin arose deliberately to his feet. "I don't owe you to get paid in an office," he spoke slowly, "I ought to leave that tenor for you to do as you please out of the way. Then you could tie to a real man. Sit. He bulged one eye at her.

"Not a word about a man my wife and I have used," he looked at Dona gravely. "I have no other thing to do but to follow the law."

he hunted and I intend to prove I'm right about it."

"What is your Mea? Tell me," Dona urged.

"No, Watson, the matter must work out all details and weigh every clue before unraveling the crime."

You're very unsatisfactory and very mysterious, Mr. Sherlock. I shall reward you by leaving. Dona nipped down from the rail. Dudley was on his feet instantly. "As, be a split! Let's sit out here for a while. It's only a little after eight."

I have to get some rest. I had may need me at any hour and I didn't get much sleep last night."

Dudley looked into her eyes affectionately. "You have had a rough time in the past 24 hours. Well, run along to stumberside."

Dona was busy caring for her father for the next three days and nights, impatiently for Sweigin and his posse to capture Bill. Sweigin did a great deal of thundering at his men. He threatened and badgered them but they registered little progress.

Asper was sitting on a porch chair on the third afternoon. Dona peered on the top step looking away into the blue of the mountain peaks. She was eager to be astride her big roan and out into the hills. It seemed to her that even Sweigin was afraid to meet Bill and have to cut with him. Asper stirred and spoke.

You'd better check your ax and your gun, he said, he had read in the paper that a man had been killed in that fire-eating room would you know?

Dona smiled faintly in a way that said, "I don't know."

Not a bit just promise to stay away from the breaks and from the creek country."

Dona arose and went to the door. She looked at the clock. It was 10:30. The roan was in the corral. Maya was in the yard with her husband and she was in the office, saying that she would be home in a few minutes.

Blind Man Dies When Home Burns

FARMERSVILLE—James Madison Craker, 74, who was blind, lost his life early Sunday morning in a fire which destroyed his home at Lavon, 12 miles south of here.

Mrs. Craker was rescued through a window by Henry Burley, a negro. Mrs. Craker had returned to the building after agitating the neighbors in an effort to save her husband blindfolded by flames and smoke, the woman was unable to locate him, although he several times answered her calls.

The cracking of flames awakened the aged couple. Craker told his wife to arouse the neighbors, which she did. When the neighbors arrived it was impossible to enter the house and save the man. His body was recovered by members of the Farmersville fire department which responded to the alarm.

Mr. and Mrs. Craker had been residents of Lavon community for a number of years.

Texas Plays Missouri At Columbia, Mo.

S M U Plays Owls; Ponies Have Yet To Score A Touchdown

GLOOM IN CAMPS

A. & M. Take On Brethren; T. C. U. Vs. Arkansas At Ft. Worth

By MERRILL E. COMPTON
 United Press Staff Correspondent
 DALLAS. (UP)—Crestfallen were four of the seven southwest conference football teams as practice for the all important conference games began.

Deepest in gloom perhaps was Southern Methodist Mustangs, conference champions last year, who emerged from a game with Texas Tech Saturday night at Lubbock, beaten 6 to 0.

Other defeats of the week-end: Texas Aggies, defeated by the Texas State Aggies at Tulane 26 to 14, after Captain Nollie (Papa) Felts of the Greenies had been benched on charges of having played professional baseball.

The University of Arkansas, Tallenders of the conference race last year, beaten in the last quarter by a fighting eleven from the Missouri School of Mines, 20 to 19.

Texas Longhorns, whipped in Memorial Stadium before 7,000 loyal Texans, 13 to 6, by Centenary College of Shreveport.

Three southwest conference football games, the greatest glory going to Rice Institute of Houston. The Owls in a steamroller attack in the last minutes of the game, scored a field goal against Louisiana State University, and were on the way for another touchdown when the gun ended the game with Rice atop, 10 to 8.

The game served two purposes: It averaged the 3-to-3 tie game of the Texas Christian University and L. S. U., and it served notice to conference members that Rice this year will make its strongest bid for the championship.

Their victory overshadowed the 55 to 0 victory of T. C. U. over Daniel Baker of Brownwood and that of the Baylor Bears in their opening contest of the season against St. Edwards, by a score of 32 to 0.

Rice has never won a conference title nor have they defeated Southern Methodists whose team they play Saturday here.

Unofficial records of the Rice-L. S. U. game make the Owls heavy favorites over the Mustangs. Line plays, netted the Owls 172 yards against the Louisiana Tigers, they completed three passes for gains of 36 yards, had three incomplete passes and none intercepted.

The Mustangs have not scored this year, having played 0 to 0 tie game with North Texas State Teachers college in their opener.

A victory for the Owls over the Mustangs should be the tonic that will carry them through the season and to the championship.

Significant, too, was Texas Christians' victory over Daniel Baker in that it demoralized the playing abilities of that team as compared with the Texas Longhorns.

Texas met and defeated the Hill Billies, 26 to 0 in its first game of the season. The Longhorns played under wraps and their new shift was given its first test. But the victory was in no way as impressive as the Christians, who rolled over Daniel Baker's goal line almost at will, scoring one touchdown in the first period, two in the second and fourth, and three in the third quarter. One try for point failed.

Arkansas, tied 0-0 by Hendrix College, in its first game of the year, has showed little power and should be disposed of easily by the Christians when they meet Saturday at Fort Worth.

The other conference teams this week play non-conference eleven games traveling to foreign ground for their games.

The University of Texas squad will move to Columbia, Mo., where they play the second of a series with the Missouri Tigees.

Missouri fans will be calling upon the Tiger eleven to avenge the 31-to-0 trouncing they took from the Longhorns last year and to impressively open their home schedule. Missouri, now coached by Frank Corvide, Notre Dame's all-American quarterback in 1929 and 1930, lost 27 to 0 to Northwestern at Evanston, Saturday but the big ten school was forced to use its three stars—Captain Pug Reintner, Dick Penel and George Potter—to corral and curb the unruly Missourians.

Texas Aggies take a breather, playing Texas Arts and Industries on their home field.

Baylor travels to New Orleans for a flicker light game with Loyola of New Orleans to be played Friday night.

Mustang-Westerner Game Main Item On This Week's Schedule For Teams Of District Three

Unbeaten and unscared upon through the first week of inter-district competition the six teams of District Three prepared for even stiffer engagements over the weekend, with one conference game providing the high point of an interesting schedule.

The Sweetwater Mustangs, winners over the Abilene Eagles by the surprising score of 29 to 0, will move against the Lubbock Westerners, another power in the 1933 state interscholastic race, and if successful will have branded themselves as strong contenders for not only the district but the state crown. The status of Ney Sheridan is still in doubt, and the star redhead may be in Hennig's lineup Friday night.

The San Angelo Bobcats, unimpressive in a 13 to 0 win from Balinger, take up the District's colors against Abilene, and hope to continue where the Mustangs left off. The Big Spring Steers meet the Roscoe Plowboys Tuesday noon in a desperate attempt to snuff a little volatility and excitement before embarking for a contest with the Amarillo team, reputedly ideal for football and the high school pep squad ready to take the field for the first time this afternoon. The game will be a two hour scrimmage yesterday afternoon. Bristow, who will test all of his experiments this afternoon, tried shift after shift during the long workout, shifting Mike Roberts and Fred Martin, linemen, to the backfield, and then back to the forward wall again, and in general seeking to learn his strongest combinations.

Not starting lineup was issued by the Big Spring mentor, but the following were expected to be in the game at the whistle: Coots and Cordell, ends; Roberts and Sanders, tackles; Smith and Martin, guards; Dyar, center; Schwarzenbach, quarterback; Koberg and Townsend, halfbacks; Richbourg, fullback.

ROSCOE—Their first battle—scoreless tie with the Winters Blizzards here Friday—out of the way, Winters revealed the Plowboys will take on two hard games this week. Tuesday they were scheduled in Big Spring against the Class A Steers, and Friday they engage the strong Stanton team on the latter's field. The game with Big Spring was arranged Saturday, and did not appear on the Plowboys' original schedule. Friday's game with Winters revealed the need of lots of hard work, however, and the two battles this week will assure them of getting it.

Suffers Broken Collar Bone
 The Plowboys will have to get along without the services of one of their regular tackles for the next month or so. J. D. Stewart, who started at the right tackle position against Winters, went out with a broken collar bone in the first quarter and will probably play no more until the game with Snyder on Nov. 11. Gene Rayburn, regular left end, also has an injured knee, but probably will be able to play. If not, Wilson Harbeck can handle the position satisfactorily. C. E. Long, starting quarter, may not be able to play this week due to a shoulder injury.

Fans are hopeful the squad will get by the Big Spring game without further injuries, although the Bovies are known to have a rough and tumble club. The squad apparently has a good chance to go far in Class B circles if they can keep enough men out of the hospital to play the season out.

Pyote Defeats Monahans, 26-0
 PYOTE—The Pyote Panthers defeated the Monahans Tigers, 26 to 0, here Friday afternoon. The game was played in the mud.

Midland Defeats Stanton 20 to 0 In Monday Game
 MIDLAND—Stanton was blanked by Midland, 20 to 0, here Monday. Lewellen and Halman were Midland's mainstays.

Roscoe Presents Opposition For Bristow's Grid Charges

Local fans will have their first opportunity to witness the 1933 edition of the Big Spring Steers in action this afternoon when Obie Bristow's charges meet the Roscoe Plowboys in a final, desperate attempt to secure a more polished attack and stronger defense before the Bovies embark Friday afternoon for Amarillo for a game with the Blizzards' reputedly strongest team in the state district.

WHY BE A TOTAL ABSTAINER?

By William Brady, M. D.
 An Indiana high school girl writes that her class is studying prohibition, and in order to carry on an intelligent conversation on the subject she would like me to give her some reasons why she should be a total abstainer. As a No. 1 as far as I know, has as yet brought forward any fair or reasonable excuse for the use of alcohol as medicine or beverage by any layman, young or old.

The effect of alcohol is depressant to the body, from first to last. I am speaking now of the use of alcohol as medicine or as a beverage, in ordinary doses as used by laymen who regard it as necessary, beneficial or warranted for such use.

An ordinary beverage dose of alcohol makes the heart beat faster and with less force—a weak heart is more rapid than a strong or normal heart—and diminishes the blood pressure by relaxing surface arterioles. This flushes the skin, "warms up" and "stimulates" it. At the same time the ed, because of the excessive dissipation of body heat from the flushed surface and the weakened circulation, and the victim is therefore less capable of enduring exposure to extreme cold—polar explorers know the danger in using alcohol under such circumstances.

The victim's judgment is impaired. He becomes more or less garrulous. His emotions are less restrained by higher intellectual control. He becomes more reckless, more abrupt, less reasoning or calculating about his behavior, manners, reputation, honor. He enters upon an adventure, a quarrel or escapade lightly, whereas in his normal state he would hesitate or decline to get into such a mess. His higher faculties are temporarily inhibited or dulled. He may commit offenses or even crimes which in his normal condition, he could not commit.

Remember, I am still speaking of the effect of an ordinary beverage dose of alcohol.

The individual's reaction time is invariably slowed by alcohol; it takes him a mile too long to react in an emergency, so that he drives into a wreck where, in his un-intoxicated state he could avoid the accident by quick action. Here is a clear point which the law, unfortunately, often fails to consider. Under the law it usually is necessary to prove that the individual was "drunk," and that means incapacity far greater than the mere intoxication by a beverage dose of alcohol.

The victim himself cannot and will not recognize his depression by the beverage dose. On the contrary he obstinately believes he is stronger, braver, better, more competent mentally and physically, when the alcohol is acting. It is difficult for the casual observer to recognize the subtle changes that come from the beverage dose. But they are precisely as I have described, and until some one can controvert these scientific observations (not my observations, but those of the scientific authorities) (total abstinence is the only sensible course for anybody who is not a fool.

Relief Application Forms Are Received By Judge Debenport

Forms for making application for relief under the provisions of the recently enacted highway bond assumption measure have been received by Judge H. R. Debenport.

Work in ascertaining the amount Howard county will be due under the bill has been held up pending the arrival of the forms, according to Judge Debenport. The judge said Monday he was uncertain as to how long it would take to fill in necessary information. He has already searched records for information revealing the amount Howard county expended on roads now state highways.

It is not yet known whether the state board will consider the Gregg street viaduct a part of highway No. 9 under the bridge-bond assumption clause of the bill. If such is the case it will mean approximately $29,000 more to the county, said Judge Debenport.

(Continued from Page One) objections of M. M. Crane, attorney for Governor Sterling. Crane asked the court to set in motion the machinery necessary to gather evidence of fraud and illegality in the August 27 primary election. He alleged in the governor's petition that upwards of 50,000 illegal or irregular votes had been cast for Mrs. Ferguson and that he was the legal nominee. Crane also alleged that the court should inquire into the propriety of the election and that the governor should be held liable for the election. Crane also alleged that the governor had used the name of the state highway department, of which Sterling formerly was chairman, and that thousands of other voters were influenced by promises of reward. Luther Nickles and Ocie Spear, attorneys for Mrs. Ferguson, challenged the right of the district court to enter any orders providing for taking of testimony. Crane had proposed that special commissioners be appointed to take testimony in the counties where illegals were alleged for presentation in the trial. Not Filed in Time In claiming the suit was not filed in time, Spear stated the governor's petition was based on charges of fraud and illegality in the election proper. He stated a suit contesting the election itself must be filed within five days. The suit was filed within nine days, counsel for the governor having dismissed their original action filed the day Mrs. Ferguson was nominated at the Lubbock convention. Spear asserted the governor's attorneys had filed the suit under the statute providing only for a review of the legality of the certificate of nomination issued by the convention, which may be filed within ten days, and that they could not maintain an action contesting the election itself because they were not within the five-day limitation. When they dismissed the original petition, it went out forever, Spear stated. The new petition must be considered as a contest of the legality of the certificate of nomination and their petition does not contest the legality of the certificate issued to Mrs. Ferguson by the convention. Therefore, we contend, there is no suit pending since they do not attack validity of the certificate. Crane, however, took the opposite view and stated the petition was filed in ample time. He planned to present his argument on this point tomorrow. Crane will make the position he indicated, that a contest involving the certificate of nomination necessarily involves the election that preceded issuance of the certificate. Challenge Power Spear and Nickles attacked the power of any court, including the supreme court, to interfere in an election until it was completed, taking the position that the election will not be complete until after the results of the November 8 election have been certified. They also stressed what they contended to be another bar against any action of the supreme court, a provision of the constitution dealing with contests involving constitutional officers, such as governor, that states: "Contested elections for either of said offices, shall be determined by both houses of the legislature in joint session." This provision, the defense argued, constituted an insurmountable bar to jurisdiction of the district court. Spear cited several decisions that held the supreme court had the right to interfere until the election was complete. Crane interrupted with the statement this referred to the primary election that was completed August 27, in this case. Time Element Vital In opposing presentation of the plea in abatement, Crane stated that the time element was the life of this contest, and that any delay would prevent a final decision before the November election. He argued the defense would not be injured if the commissioners were appointed and started gathering evidence and Judge Robertson later should decide he did not have jurisdiction. Crane urged that the plea be argued while the special commissioners were working. The defense countered with contentions that before the court could issue an order appointing commissioners, it first must decide the assault on its jurisdiction. Crane estimated a large portion of the evidence could be gathered within ten days, stating it merely would be necessary, in many instances, to interview election officials to ascertain if they were furnished certified copies of poll lists and if they signed their names on the back of the ballots. Judge Robertson asked how many commissioners would be needed. Crane said eight or ten. Robertson then proposed the "disinterested persons, if any could be found in a case like this," be appointed as commissioners. This caused an outburst of applause that resulted in the threat to clear the room. "What good would it do us to contest if the procedure was delayed to such an extent by argument on special pleas that it would preclude us from offering the facts in the election?" Crane asked. Defense attorneys opposed appointment of the commissioners, saying they could not attend hearings of the commissioners and present their special pleas to the court at the same time. "If the argument is extended, we might just as well admit this case now," Crane stated, adding that delay would be fatal to trial of the contest. In contending that Sterling did not have sufficient legal interest, Nickles argued that all votes cast for Mrs. Ferguson must be taken into consideration in determining the candidate that received a majority, and that he had no right to contest because of Mrs. Ferguson's alleged ineligibility to hold the office. Judge Robertson, in opening the case today, indicated a desire to postpone further action, in his court until the supreme court had acted on the mandamus, stating it was possible the high court decision might render further proceedings in district court unnecessary. This met with instant objection from Crane, who stated the supreme court had advised attorneys against using a pendency of the mandamus action as a reason for delaying the district court trial. Judge Robertson took Spear and Nickles to task for criticizing his injunction, issued at 1:30 a. m. Thursday, restraining certification of Mrs. Ferguson. Judge Robertson stated the "processes of this court may be put in operation at any hour of the day or night." He pointed out that although the injunction had been in force several days, the defense had made no motion to modify or dissolve. Poison Trial Is Started At San Angelo

Bob Long Charged In Attempt On Ranch Foreman

SAN ANGELO—Bob Long, also known as Joe Long, for many years a cowboy in the San Angelo and Big Spring sections, went on trial in 119th district court here Monday morning on a charge of attempting to poison Holland Mayes, foreman of the Cit Clark ranch in Sterling, Tom Green and Coke counties. Motion for an instructed verdict of acquittal was to be presented early this afternoon by Long's attorneys, B. W. Smith and W. A. Anderson. The state charged in the previous trial at Sterling City that Long mixed a quantity of strychnine in a drink of water which Mayes tasted but did not swallow. The defense contention is that Long intended to take the poison himself. A mistrial resulted at Sterling City when the case was tried in 51st district court. Glenn R. Lewis, 51st district attorney, is again prosecuting the case in the local court. Continuation was granted in the case of E. J. Davenport, charged with swindling in connection with the case.

GIVE YOUR SCISSORS THIS DAILY EXERCISE!

Madam! Do you know that it's clever to be a clipper? Here's a habit you can readily cultivate, and you'll find many of your best friends following it.

To become a clipper at one clip, so to speak, just see that the shears are handy when you sit down to read your newspaper. As you spot an advertisement of something that interests you... especially some time that you want to examine when you're shopping next time... clip out the notice and take it with you.

The merchants who advertise with us are glad to have you ask for specific merchandise. And sometimes it's helpful to refer to the advertisement when you're right in the store.

At all events, a clipping pinned to your shopping list helps you to remember this particular errand. It simplifies and shortens a shopping-trip so much to know what you want and where to get it!
