GLENROSE BOOSTERS HERE FRIDAY EVENING

A caravan of Glenrose boosters are due to arrive in Santa Anna about 6 o'clock today, (Friday), said to be 35 in number. The boosters will be escorted to the park on the West Santa Anna Mountain and served a luncheon by the Retail Merchants Association.

Santa Anna Ford Stolen In Dallas Last Week

Last week Mrs. W. T. Verner, son Cecil and daughter, Miss Hazel, were visiting in Dallas. One night they drove to town and parked the car, to find upon their return the car was gone. So far, the car has not been heard from; however, Dallas officers were advised immediately and went to work to recover the car.

Mrs. J. M. Lane

Saturday morning, May 16, the Death Angel entered the home of Mrs. J. M. Lane and claimed her life. Mrs. Lane came to Coleman county with her husband in 1890 and settled near Santa Anna, since which time she has made this her home. Her husband preceded her to the grave 10 years. She leaves 7 children to mourn her death, namely: W. C. Lane, Kerens; V. O. Lane, Abilene; J. S. Lane, San Antonio; R. B. Lane, Winters; L. J. Lane, Santa Anna; Mrs. Beatrice Smith, Iowa Park; Mrs. B. F. Helton, Haskell County. All were present at the funeral except J. S. Lane and Mrs. B. F. Helton, who could not be reached.

Funeral services were held Sunday at the Christian church, conducted by Pastor Oder. Interment in City cemetery.

The large concourse of relatives and friends and the beautiful floral offering was attested of the high esteem in which Mrs. Lane was held by those who had known her during her life in this community.

The News joins other friends in extending sympathy to the bereaved.

Mrs. D. J. Barnes accompanied Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Pool of Coleman to Dawson county last week, where her daughter, Miss Lucille, taught school the term just ending. Miss Lucille accompanied them home.

MEMORIAL DAY— METHODIST CHURCH

On May 31st there will be a service at the Methodist church at 11 a. m., in honor of all War Veterans. Those of the Confederate and Federal veterans of the Civil War are invited. Spanish American Veterans of the Spanish American War will be urged to attend. Our last Veterans, are own boys of the World War and the American Legion are asked to come in honor of their great works.

J. Hall Bowman, pastor.

Former Santa Anna Boy Making Good

One of the prominent factors mentioned in last Sunday's Dallas News among the members of the Cotton Exchange, was Chas. L. Tarver, who was reared in Santa Anna and graduated in the Santa Anna school. He is a son of H. S. Tarver, who opened up the first Lumber yard in Santa Anna, under the name of Compton & Tarver.

Another Ford Stolen Last Saturday Night

When P. O. Nicholson went for his Ford car Saturday night to return home, he was greatly surprised to find some one had stolen the car and left him to walk. Cards have been mailed to different points and the Sheriff's department are trying to find it. City Marshal J. M. Martin also has a good touring car found just east of town last week without any owner.

PUBLIC UTILITY MEN DISCUSS ADVERTISING

At the annual convention of the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World held in Houston last week there was a two-day session of the Public Utilities Advertising Association. This meeting was attended by several hundred public utility advertising men and executives.

Subjects discussed included costs and results, better copy, keeping an organization abreast of its advertising, and good will and institutional advertising.

Mr. Hargraves, photographer for the West Texas Utilities Co., was here this week and took a number of photos of local scenes for the company. An effort will be made to secure a number of the scenes to use in advertising literature for Santa Anna. Mr. Hargraves was assisted in the work by G. F. Barlett and W. M. Riley.

LATEST NEWS FROM THE COURT HOUSE

John Trammell Appointed Sheriff

At a Call Session of the Commissioners' Court, Monday, May 18, discussion was had on the appointment of a man for sheriff to fill the unexpired term of Dick Pauley, deceased. The applications of Fred Henderson, Coleman; Joe Box, Rockwood; J. F. Slaughter, Coleman; Lester Gray, Coleman; J. M. Martin, Santa Anna; T. L. Stafford, Coleman; J. C. Welch, Santa Anna and W. R. Hamilton, Coleman, were received and discussed, and the Court asked J. A. Trammell of Talpa to come before the court and after a discussion and vote upon the matter. Mr. Trammell was unanimously appointed to fill the place of Mr. Pauley.

The Court approved the bond of J. A. Trammell, as Sheriff in the sum of $5000.00, with Walter C. Woodward, S. H. Gray, D. A. Paddelford and R. V. Wood as Sureties.

At the Regular Session of the Commissioners' Court, the motion was made and duly seconded to raise the salary of the County Judge to the same basis as the County Commissioners' under the new law recently enacted by the Legislature. When the vote was taken on the matter, J. S. Gilmore and Geo. Stinson voted "for" and R. D. Kinney, and Geo. Pauley, voted "against" the motion, and the County Judge voted off the tie "for," said motion and in accordance with the order the County Judge's salary will be raised to $150.00 per month.

At a meeting of the Commissioners' Court Wednesday, the Court decided to call an election to determine whether or not the Court would pave the county property around the Courthouse square.

T. L. Stafford of Coleman and Lindsey Sewell of Coleman have been appointed deputies to serve under Sheriff J. A. Trammell.

SHERIFF DICK PAULEY DIES OF WOUNDS

Sheriff Dick Pauley of Coleman county, died Saturday evening of gunshot wounds received Friday shortly after noon, when he attempted to arrest two negroes who were riding a freight train. The negro who did the shooting gave his name as being John Smith, and his age 23 years.

According to information received here, Sheriff Pauley was called to the Santa Fe yards in Coleman after a brakeman on a freight train had been unable to eject two negroes from a box car. One of the negroes drew a knife and a gun when approached by the trainman, who immediately sent a call to the Sheriff's office. After reaching the scene, Sheriff Pauley gave chase to the two negroes, and while standing on top of a refrigerator car, was shot in the neck, and fell from the car to the ground. Both negroes fled, but in a few moments, one of them, unarmed, was captured. He disclaimed responsibility of the trouble, and when taken before Sheriff Pauley was declared not to have fired the shot. He was placed in jail.

Poses were formed with Sheriff McWilliams of Runnells county among the leaders, he having been in Coleman on that day attending Court, and in two hours after the shooting he had bloodhounds there from Runnells county, which were put on the trail and pretty soon the negro was captured. Sheriffs from Brown, McCulloch and Concho counties, with their deputies, all made fast runs to Coleman, and joined the posse, which it is stated, had at least 1,000 members. The negro was captured about 4:30, two miles down the Creek, east of Coleman. He came out from under a cliff and surrendered to the officers, thus saving his own life and possibly the lives of some of the posse. He was carried before the wounded sheriff and identified, and then placed in jail at Coleman, but later both negroes were removed from the jail at Coleman to a neighboring jail for safe keeping, and plans made to call a special session of the grand jury to indict the negroes and give them a speedy trial.

Sheriff Pauley was about 40 years of age and was serving his second term as sheriff of Coleman county. He was one of the most popular officers in Texas.

He leaves a wife and one son, Russell, the latter having gone last week to San Diego, Calif., to enlist in the Navy. He was wired at once of his father's condition and returned home Monday.

Funeral services were held at the Baptist Church in Coleman Tuesday afternoon and the remains were carried to Valera, his former home, for burial. The Masons took charge after the funeral and buried him with Masonic honors. Several from here and other parts of the county attended the funeral.

The News joins the many other friends of Sheriff Pauley in extending sympathy to his wife, son and other bereaved.

Christian Aid Society

The Christian Aid Society met with Mrs. Edd Baxter Monday afternoon. Mrs. C. F. Freeman led the devotional.

There was an interesting contest on Bible questions and a puzzle, the answer being names of our church members.

This charming home was even more charming than usual with decorations of pansies and other flowers. The refreshments consisted of molded fruit salad, sandwiches and iced tea, were passed by Dorothy Baxter and Velma Oder, assisted by Mary Lynn Baxter and Sarah Catheryn Bleyins, and "Bill Williamson with the gallantry of a Chesterfield" passed the pins for the Pansy plate favors.

Mrs. Grady Adams and children were Brownwood visitors Saturday.

A. & M. SHORT COURSE LAST WEEK IN JULY

College Station, May 20.—Farmers should begin now to make their plans for attending the annual Farmers' Short Course which is always given the last week in July. At this time the entire faculties of the great state agricultural college will be devoted exclusively to giving the farmer and his family an intensive course of one week in some branch of his farm enterprise. The school is divided into a large number of short courses covering every phase of farming, so that the farm man, woman, boy or girl may choose for his week of study any division of the subject in which he feels that he needs training or information. There will be a great number of instructors and nothing in which any group of farm people may be interested will be neglected in the courses of instruction offered.

Wilmot Bowden, in the U. S. Navy, and on the S. S. Medusa out from San Francisco, Calif., sent his mother, Mrs. Kathryn Bowden, a copy of the Honolulu Star-Bulletin, printed in Honolulu, Territory of Hawaii, dated April 28. The volume contained 204 pages and featured a welcome greeting to the Fleet.

F. W. Turner Director in West Texas Chamber of Commerce

Fred W. Turner, Sr., was notified last week of his election to the important and responsible duties of Director in the West Texas Chamber of Commerce. This honor came to Mr. Turner unsolicited and is a recognition of his valuable services as a commercial citizen of the worth while kind. Mr. Turner is a very loyal citizen to his home town and also his state.

First Grade Party

Miss Hilda Harrell entertained her room, a division of the first grade with a lawn party Wednesday, on the beautiful grass lawn at the Stafford Baxter home. Games, contest and crowning of a queen were part of the amusement features, spreading of the lunch and eating picnic style also furnished entertainment for the little folks.

See the Fats and Leans play a sensational game of base ball next Wednesday. Root for the winners.

MEMORIAL DAY

Patriotic organizations are preparing for Memorial Day. It is a sad commentary on American patriotism that this responsibility falls to the lot of those who suffered the most when our common country was in danger.

Rather should those who are enjoying the freedom that was won by patriots, assume the burden of keeping alive the spirit that Memorial Day engenders. To patriotic societies belong the credit for sustaining such a national holiday.

And a nation whose wars have been fought mainly by volunteers should have a day set aside annually to honor the patriotism of its citizens.

Memorial day has been an evolution of the people. It would not exist but for the volunteer armies that have mainly fought the battles of the United States.

This country has never had a standing army on the European basis. We have no conscription law that sends every able-bodied man into camp for at least two years, continuous training. Even in the civil war volunteers filled all quotas for the first two years of the tremendous conflict, and to the end formed the great bulk of troops in the field.

No disparagement of the regular army is meant, but it has often been comparatively small and is but a handful now. Our volunteers have been the chief reliance in times of war, and no national contest has ever ended with unsatisfactory terms of peace. The citizen soldier has never failed to make his mark.

No other country has the counterpart of Memorial Day because no other has such a record of freely offered service in army and navy. When men leave the vocations of peace to bear arms wherever they might be directed to go, and for a slight money compensation compared with what they give up in occupations of gain without danger, they are not alone in making the patriotic sacrifice.

American women, fully share in the volunteer spirit. In the sorrows that war brings on, they bear the keenest of the suffering. When women advise sons and husbands to enter the army, the proof of love of country is unsurpassed.

All people meet on common ground in the anniversary. American men, women and children are in fellowship with what the day implies in the nationality that, powerful as it has become, is yet but in its infancy.

THE VANISHED POMPS OF YESTERDAY

EDWARD, the seventeen-year-old son of my next-door neighbor, was in a state of mind. He was going to take his "girl" to a party, and was a good deal humiliated because the family did not own a coach or a limousine, and the journey from her house to the scene of the social angle—a distance of four or five blocks—would have to be made in an open car.

"It's rotten luck to have to take a girl that way," he complained to his mother, all sympathetic as mother's always are. "I don't know what she'll think. All the other fellows have closed Packards or Marmons, and I have to go in an open Buick." It was indeed a cruel fate.

It was not thus when I was seventeen. We went in style then. I was to take Hattie Barlow to the Fourth of July celebration in Mink Grove. She was a mighty pretty girl, and she was thirteen. It seems a little young now, as I think it over, but that fact never occurred to me then.

I made elaborate preparations for the event. I washed the lumber wagon and swept it out carefully. I made a fresh cushion for the spring seat, and tied a new ribbon on the long buggy whip I carried. I trimmed the manes and tails of the mules I was to drive and brushed and curried them until their coats shone like ebony, though I didn't know much about ebony then.

We went in the morning so that we could be part of the parade which was headed by the local band and led by Taylor Rowlett riding a spirited bay horse and wearing a beautiful red sash made of shiny paper muslin. It was some parade! I remember that Hattie wore a white shirtwaist and a bright blue silk skirt that her aunt had sent her from Boston. Her hat was white with a band of yellow daisies around it, and as I said, she was mighty pretty.

I had two dollars and a half to spend. We stayed all day and had lunch in the grove, and rode the merry-go-round, and ate ice cream, and popcorn, and everything; but dinner we ate at the Martin house, the big hotel in town. It was the first time I had ever eaten at a hotel and it cost me twenty-five cents each for the dinner, but there were no tips. We didn't start home until after the fireworks. We drove slowly, and the moon was shining and the night birds were calling and, as I think I've said before, she was mighty pretty, and I was very happy amid the splendor of it. But it's all vanished now, though Sir Frederick Hamilton didn't have a thing on us that night!

WORK AND SUCCESS

INFER from the tale as given in Genesis that Adam's job in the Garden of Eden did not involve a great deal of hard work. Weeds and orchard pests had not yet developed, and about all he had to do was to give the garden the once over. It was only after he got mixed up in the apple incident and was thrown out, that he came up against hard work. And yet possibly that was the best thing that had ever happened to him, for hard work has done more to bring a man out of the kinks, put him on his feet and give him a start toward success than any other agency known to the human race.

A friend of mine who has grown stoop-shouldered and bald-headed in the practice of law, and whose bank account has increased as his hair has thinned, said to me once when we were talking on this subject of hard work. "If any man wants to get ahead in his profession he will have to work as hard as he can some of the time. If a lawyer expects to get anywhere, he'll have to work as hard as he can all of the time."

And, it's the truth. Whenever I've thought that anyone I knew had attained fortune or fame or position of trust without hard work, and had held these possessions for long, I had only to look into the facts, to go back to the beginning of things to find the contrary. Only today I was talking to a man, successful, prominent, and prosperous. His clothes were beautifully tailored and his hands were soft and white. Now as old age is coming on he is living an easy life.

He told me that he had started out at fourteen with nothing but a strong body and an alert mind. He had worked as a ditcher, as a farmhand, in a lumber yard, he was familiar with all sorts of the sweatiest toil. He had gotten where he is now through persistent and regular work. I'm sure that's the way the majority succeed, and the way is often not a short one, but it is flower-bordered often, and at the end one usually finds happiness and satisfaction.

There are few things in the world which most of us strive more strenuously to avoid than hard work, and yet there is nothing else which is more likely to bring us what we most desire. There is no other disease so hard to cure as laziness, and nothing that gets us less.

Will New "Cut-Out" Law Of Texas Be Enforced?
(Dallas News)

To The News.

The Thirty-Ninth Legislature passed a law prohibiting the use of "cut-outs" on automobiles, motorcycles and all other motor vehicles, and requiring the use of mufflers on all such vehicles and that law has been signed and approved by Gov. Ferguson and is now in full force and effect. The law makes it an offense to use or operate any motor vehicle over the public highways or streets of Texas, which is equipped with what is ordinarily known as a "cut-out," or to operate such vehicles over the highways and streets of the State, which is not equipped with a muffler. The penalty fixed is rather heavy. The law provides a penalty by way of fine of not more than $10 nor more than $100 or confinement in the county jail for not more than ten days or by both fine and imprisonment.

The design and purpose of that law is twofold. It is intended, in the first place, to eliminate the noise nuisance created by the use of "cut-outs" and in the second place, to eliminate the dust nuisance created by the use of these "cut-outs" on the public highways. The laws that have been in force in most cities heretofore on this subject merely made it an offense to use a "cut-out," but the present law makes it an offense to own or operate any motor vehicle equipped with such a device. All persons who have these devices on their cars or vehicles should remove them at once, and should they fail to do so they are liable to punishment as above stated.

County Attorneys and other officers of the State charged with the enforcement of the law

Popular Jokes of Grandmas Day

The fresh young traveling man put on his most seductive smile as the pretty waitress glided up to his table in the hotel dining room, and remarked:

"Nice day, little one."
"Yes, it is," she replied, "and so was yesterday, and my name is Ella, and I know I'm a little peach and have lovely eyes, and I have been here quite a while, and I like the place, and I don't think I'm too nice a girl to be working here. If I did I'd quit the job. My wages are satisfactory and I don't think there is a show or dance in town tonight, and if there was I wouldn't go with you. I'm from the country, and I'm a respectable girl, and my brother is the cook in this hotel and he is a college football player and weighs two hundred pounds. Last week he pretty near ruined a twenty-five-dollar a-week traveling man who tried to make a date with me. Now, what'll you have—Roast Beef, Roast Pork, Irish Stew, Hamburger or fried Liver?"

To be a big man, the dimensions must apply to the mind and not to the waist band.

If there's a law for the rich and one for the poor, what's the other 2,000,000 for?

ought to notify citizens in their respective counties of the existence of such law, to the end that no person shall be subjected to punishment on account of his lack of information concerning the law and to the further end that the people of the State may at once get the benefits of this law in the elimination of the noises and dust nuisance. This is my purpose in calling attention to the law. W. S. Moore, Senator, Ninth District, Gainesville, Texas.

Are You Easy

The days of the picturesque outlaws of frontier days are past. Great crowds of bandits no longer roam the Western plains, but people of that type still operate, and we sometimes feel with greater profit.

The editor of a netby exchange tells of how two attractive young ladies, sold so called advertising for a church program and charged the merchants there about six prices. Then to cap the climax neither the women nor the program ever appeared again in the town.

There are directories, special community books, and advertising grafts of all kinds going the rounds of small city merchants. The ideas are all as old as the hills, but they seem to work.

And the surprising part of it all is this.

The merchants who pay tribute so readily to these grafters, are usually the very ones who think advertising in a local paper costs too much money. They will pay ten, fifteen, or twenty dollars to get their names in a program that at best will have a circulation of three or four hundred, and then refuse to spend five dollars for a newspaper ad that will be read by thousands.

Whenever there is a program to be published that fulfills a community need, your local printer will put it out, see to it that it is circulated, and charge you about half the price asked by these outside grafters.

Lower First Cost and Upkeep

There is a double economy in the Ford Car that materially lowers the cost of motoring for the millions of Ford owners today.

First—a Ford Car is the lowest priced on the market—the least expensive car the automotive industry has ever produced.

Second—it costs less to operate and maintain. Fuel consumption is low—you get high mileage from tires. Repairs and replacements are infrequent, and charges, even for the labor involved, are small.

The Ford Weekly Purchase Plan makes it possible for anyone to buy a Ford on the easiest of terms. You may pay for your Ford out of your regular earnings. Ask any authorized Ford dealer about the details of this plan or write us direct, using this coupon.

The Detroit driver who was fined because he could not spell "stop" was not so much worse than a lot of drivers who may be able to spell it but have no idea what it means.

Cotton Classing Course That Spells Success

Men of all ages are coming to T. C. C. to take high grade course.

In the South the man who links his future with cotton—either as a planter, grader, buyer or broker—need have no worries about the future if he makes it a point to know his business. Fortunes are made every year by men who have taken the pains to study cotton—men who can quickly and unerringly detect the seemingly slight difference in various samples which may make a great deal of difference in their worth.

Realizing just how valuable to the people of the South a real cotton classing course would be, Tyler Commercial College, several years ago, instituted just such a course. It met with instant favor and it continues to be one of the most popular short courses offered at this big institution. Men from far and near, young and old, come to T. C. C. by the hundreds to learn Cotton classing and go forth a few weeks later with a knowledge that means either greater success in cotton farming, or a good position as graders and buyers.

Men from every type of work that has anything to do with "King Cotton" enroll for this course. Farmers take it in order that they might know, when selling their crop, that they are getting full value for it. Buyers take it that they might complete their knowledge of cotton business. Young men enroll to fit themselves for graders and buyers, since there is always a heavy demand for trained men.

While the course is so arranged that the actual cotton classing work may be taken, alone—men of some experience have completed this part of the course in three weeks or less—it is advisable that all who can do so take the complete course. This includes Business Arithmetic, Business Writing, Rapid Calculation, Business Law, Spelling, Grammar, Correspondence and keeping of certain sets of books pertaining to certain phases of cotton classing, buying and selling. To the man who expects to rise in his work, the knowledge will fit him to accept higher responsibilities when they come. Without it, he would be lost in an executive position.

$3,000.00 Jobs

If you are interested in fitting yourself to step into a $3,000.00 job and many trained cotton graders are earning this much or more—wouldn't it be a wise move on your part to arrange to take up this course with as little delay as possible? The course is open the year round. You can start any time but every minute you delay, you are postponing the day you can begin your work.

There is a large interesting book describing this work and a combination of all the work done in America's greatest Business school. If you are interested, fill in the coupon below and send it for the book, "Achieving Success In Business." It is free.

As You Like It Club

Mrs. Cecil Walker was hostess to the As You Like It Club on Tuesday afternoon. The house was beautifully decorated with flowers and pot plants. The diversion for the afternoon was 42. There were six tables. Mrs. Stafford Baxter and Mrs. P. P. Bond tied on winning the game. They drew to decide who the winner should be and Mrs. Bond drew the prize which was a beautiful pepper and salt set. Delicious refreshments of pressed cream and angel food cake were served to the guests by the hostess. This was one of the most enjoyable meetings the club has had.

ALONG LIFE'S TRAIL

By THOMAS ARKLE CLARK
Dean of Men, University of Illinois.

THE OTHER MAN'S MONEY

WE HAD always thought Morton very generous as a boy when we were together in the high school. He had the other fellows at the house a good deal and entertained them much more elaborately than most of the rest of us could do. He sent us beautiful presents at Christmas time and was more than ordinarily attentive to his teachers.

It was interesting to learn later that all these things in no way affected his allowance. He was given a certain amount each week to spend upon himself; his entertainment of his friends, his contributions, his gifts on birthdays and at Christmas time, and all the little extras which the rest of us paid out of our spending money, Morton's mother furnished the money for over and above his regular allowance. He made no sacrifice, he gave up nothing in showing such generosity to his young friends. It was somebody else's money he spent so freely in such cases. He was in fact pretty tight when it came to letting loose of his own money. He spent it carefully, in a selfish, niggardly way.

It was the same way later on when he went into business. Whenever anything was on the firm Morton spent with a generous hand. If he asked anyone to dinner it went into his expense account.

It is a test of a man's character to spend another man's money wisely and economically, much more so than to spend his own.

"I shouldn't do it," I heard Foster say not long ago when some fellows were trying to persuade him to go on an expensive trip. "Father works hard for the money he is sending me, and he asks no questions. I should be man enough to play the game squarely."

He felt that he was spending another man's money and that he was under obligations to conserve the other man's interests.

Shattuck spent his own money very freely. He had earned it himself, he said; it was his own, and he could do what he pleased with it, and he pleased to spend a good deal of it. His point of view was quite different when it came to spending the money of the corporation of which he was treasurer. He had no padded expense accounts. This was a trust which he felt he should care for, guard carefully, account for punctiliously. His honor and his reputation were at stake in spending the other man's money.

"THE PEOPLE'S STORE"

It is not the automobile owners alone that are interested in good roads but every citizen of this state who expects to go from place to place, wants hard road beds the year around to go on, and the just and fair way is to have the burden bear upon all alike as near as it is possible to do. If good roads are to be had it will take money and it is up to the tax payer and property owner to find the way to get the money. Speechless banquets are now in order. The real enemies of the courts in this country are not anarchists. The real enemies are the technicalities of procedures that make a lawsuit a sporting event between opposing attorneys instead of an enterprise to see that justice is done.

It is hard for us to decide whether Dr. Frank Crane's statement that "The best thing in life comes unexpected upon you," or the old negro preacher's philosophy, "Blessed is he that seeketh nothing, for he shall not be disappointed," is more nearly correct. Most of us practice the old negro's preaching, but would be glad to know that Dr. Crane's philosophy may yet prove true in our lives.

A gentleman from Texas moved to a location in the suburbs of Salem, Ore., and spent $50,000 on a modern filling station, store and camp grounds. The minute you meet him you "know" he is from Texas before you hear his genial voice and see his kindly smile. When he hands you his card, you are glad you met a man from Texas. The card reads:

"The Lone Star Service Station, 1198 North Capital Street. Drive right up in your old tin lizzie—lift up the seat and we'll get busy; our laughing gas is sure some fuel—it smiles at miles and kicks like a mule. Your tank's half full—what will it be? Shall we fill her up or only three? How about water and a little oil—better take some—see the engine boil? What about tires? Don't you need a tire—further ahead they'll charge you higher. If there is anything else you need today, buy it before you drive away; if you don't want to buy, just say hello, and give us a smile before you go. We are always glad to see you here and give you a laugh for a souvenir."

Seniors Entertained

Miss Francis Vinson entertained the Senior class of the Santa Anna High school at the City Lake Friday evening. The class was chaperoned by Miss Kate Phillips and spent the hours roasting marshmallows and having a good time in general. Wilbourn Weaver and Tom Sealy were wrestling on the tank when Wilbourn had the misfortune to fall off the dam and break one bone in his right arm, thus marring to a certain extent the pleasures of the evening.

HIS GOOD POINTS

Death came and removed one of the well-known men of the community. With hushed voices the people spoke of him. Without exception they told of his good characteristics.

Many of those who uttered these complimentary remarks were busy finding fault during his life. But after his death they seemed to feel that there was a great deal of good about the man that they had neglected to mention all these years.

Scarcely a week or month passes that we don't witness just such an occurrence. Even a man's enemies and opponents find much that is good to say about him after he passes on, because there is generally a guilty feeling—a feeling of horrors due that have been withheld. When he is dead they say he was either public spirited or he minded his own business, easy going and good hearted or a thrifty citizen, a fine fellow to meet or a good fellow after you got to know him well.

His faults are forgotten and his virtues remembered—but unfortunately when it is too late for him to know or appreciate.

So wouldn't it be a happier world if we would all strive to see a few of a man's virtues during his life. We can always find plenty of good things to say about him after he is gone. Why not think of a few of those good points while he is still alive?

Two Kinds of Students:

There are two types of people in the world, who, with equal degrees of health and wealth, and other comforts of life, become, the one, happy and the other miserable. This arises very much from the difference in views in which they take things, persons and events.

Wherever men may be placed, they may find conveniences and inconveniences. In every climate they will find good or bad weather. In every person they will find good or bad qualities.

Those who are disposed to look on the better side of life look for the good and better things. Those who are unhappy think and speak only of the contraries. They not only offend people, but they cast a gloom over all those who are around them.

There are students in some schools who fail to see the better part of student life. They fail to get in harmony with the ideals and principles of their school. You can never hear this sort of student say a good word for his school. The habit of not boosting for our school can be broken if we only try. Get the idea of adjusting yourself to your environment. It is just what a person wants to make out of his surroundings. He can either see the good or the bad; he can enjoy the pleasant or see the unpleasant. It is up to him to see what he will make out of it. Which of the two persons have we patterned after? Let us be able to say our school is the best yet.—High School News in The Milford Weekly.

Advertising Keeps Money at Home.

In an address to the Austin Kiwanis Club, Thomas K. Kelly, editor of Kelly's Magazine, stated that "small order houses get more orders from Texas than from any other state in the union, and if this continues they are going to be some new merchants in this state in the next few years, and more merchants now in business won't be selling goods to them." He called attention to the fact that the small order houses spend 10 per cent of their gross sales every year in advertising, adding, "I will make a bond right here that if retail merchants will spend only 2 per cent of their gross sales in advertising each year, putting that advertising into their local papers regularly and backing up that advertising with good merchandise at reasonable prices, the business will show up satisfactorily every year." That is a strong statement, but it is in line with the experience of every merchant who is making a success of his business. Why not try it? So many have succeeded that way, that it is no longer an experiment.

Truthfulness and Salesmanship Necessary.

Newspaper space alone will not sell goods. The advertising must be given thought and must tell attractively what the merchant has for sale. Said Mr. Kelly: "Tell your message about the goods you have through the newspapers and tell that message truthfully and give the public the news value of that advertising and you will see your business grow at an astounding rate. There is more to it than that, though. The school system and the penitentiaries and insane asylums, have to be given priority over schools in legislative appropriations. Of course there must be courts to try criminals and to settle disputes and the public has to bear the expense. It is necessary to confine the criminal and the insane. But it does not seem to occur to those in authority that if the state would give the right attention to the education, the health, and the general welfare of the youth, there would in a few decades be much less need for asylums and penitentiaries. The system is wrong that gives maximum attention to punishment and mental treatment and minimum attention to prevention of crime and insanity.

Emphasizing the Wrong Things.

There is something wrong in government when a state has to pay more to maintain its courts than it pays for the school system and when the penitentiaries and insane asylums, have to be given priority over schools in legislative appropriations. Of course there must be courts to try criminals and to settle disputes and the public has to bear the expense. It is necessary to confine the criminal and the insane. But it does not seem to occur to those in authority that if the state would give the right attention to the education, the health, and the general welfare of the youth, there would in a few decades be much less need for asylums and penitentiaries. The system is wrong that gives maximum attention to punishment and mental treatment and minimum attention to prevention of crime and insanity.

The Railroads and the Busses.

Railroads are complaining at the competition of the bus lines in both freight and passenger business, and are endeavoring to create a sentiment for stricter regulation of the motor transportation business. Still the figures show that the roads are making more money than they have ever made despite this new competition at which they are complaining. It seems that the railroads would do well to recognize the fact that motor transportation would never have become popular unless the public had been made to feel the need of it; that it merely meets a demand that the railroads are not satisfactorily filling. The railroads have been too slow in delivering their shipments, especially the local shipments, and the trucks have profited by that slowness. Rates in some cases may have been too high for local shipments, and to these delivery charges have to be added. The railroads are themselves to blame if they have encouraged competition through their slowness, their overcharges, and their indifference to the public good.

The World Moves Rapidly.

Twenty years ago one would not have thought it possible for motor trucks and busses ever to become competitors of the railroads. The automobile was then regarded as rather an expensive fad for the rich. Today it is the most universal means of travel. In a few years the airplane may be just as popular. Already it is being used much for hurried trips, mail is being transmitted by plane, and airplane express and freight shipments are being made. When we think of the automobile, the airplane, and radio, we wonder just what will be the next development in speed.

Bringing the World Together.

The best result obtained from international conferences like that of the advertising men in Houston is that people of many nations come to know each other and to have sympathetic feeling for the people of the whole world. Most of the misunderstanding in the world is due to ignorance of the problems confronting others. When people come together to discuss their affairs, differences are nearly always forgotten.

Some Papers and Prohibition

A good many newspapers and periodicals that harp daily on what they characterize as "the failure of prohibition" were among the outspoken opponents of prohibition in the days when the corner saloon flourished and the American brewery was a going concern. These papers, or many of them, have wanted prohibition to fail. And the reflection is inevitable that of the press if the country had given cordial support to the prohibition acts—if it had upheld prohibition because it was the law of the land and not sneered at because the laws themselves did not meet with the editorial approval—there would be a different order of things in the country today. The prohibition law is entitled to respect because the citizen owes that duty to his government and society, and he owes it in the matter of every law. Those he thinks he has the right to violate as well as those he contends the other fellow should respect.

Given a lavish setting in the whirl of modern social life, "Cheaper to Marry," Samuel Shipman's big New York stage success, was filmed by Robert Z. Leonard and the result, regarded by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer official as one of the most dramatic pictures of the year, will be seen at the Queen Theatre on next Monday and Tuesday, 25 and 26.

Brilliant social events in the luxurious surroundings of New York hotels and clubs, intimate glimpses into the life behind the doors of an exclusive women's athletic club, and thrilling scenes in the stock exchange all go to make the film version of the play an unusual picture.

Threading through the picture is a powerful story of the age-old war of the sexes, which comes to a startling and realistic climax.

Jim Knight, played by Lewis S. Stone, one of the finest actors of America, wages a bitter fight in conventions and loses. Matrimony, the film discloses, is the best and cheapest policy.

The cast is an exceptional one. Besides Stone, it includes Conrad Nagel, Paulette Goddard, Marguerite de la Motte, Louise Fazenda, Claude Gillingwater and Richard Wayne.

Miss Duval, former French dancer in Ziegfeld's "Follies" is seen in her first big screen role since "Monsieur Beaucaire," the Valentino film in which her characterization of Madame Pompadour won wide acclaim. She is the mistress of Jim Knight while Nagel and Miss de la Motte play opposite each other for the first time in their careers. Be sure to see this picture.

Stick to it, Boys!

With the close of the school year comes the annual temptation to the boys to give up future attendance at school and go to work.

We have for years past noticed a very undesirable feature in the attendance at the public schools in the higher grades and that is the presence of more girls than boys. Why is this? Where are the boys? They leave school, many of them, in their early or middle teens, as soon as they are able to get a position as clerk in some store or office, under the impression that they are wasting time by remaining in school longer. The average boy thinks that if he gets some job that enables him to earn a few dollars a month, while his classmate sticks to school three or four years longer, he has just so many years the start of his companion who remains in school. This is not true. The boy who remains in school and acquires a thorough education lays a foundation that will surely, other things being equal, enable him to pass his classmate who left school three or four years earlier. Don't make up your mind to quit school at the end of this term if you can possibly arrange to go on and finish the course.

And, remember, young man, that you are the architect of your own future. Rely upon your own strength of body and soul. Take for your star, self-reliance. Don't take too much advice—keep at your helm and steer your own ship, and remember that the great art of commanding is to take a fair share of the work. Think well of yourself. Put potatoes in a cart over a rough road and the small ones go to the bottom. The journey upon which you are starting is over a rough road. Rise above the envious and jealous. Fire above the mark you intend to hit. Stay in school as long as you can, and learn all you can.

When a half-baked citizen gets well done, he usually awakens to his responsibilities.

Beautify the Roads

French national highways are famous the world over for their trees. Stately elms line them for miles, forming an arch of green under which the delighted motorist passes.

These tree lined highways have become a French national institution, almost as important as the palaces at Versailles, the Eiffel Tower, or the Louvre.

We in America ought to imitate this French method of beautifying the country. But it is not a job for some organization—for some crowd especially interested in the project. It is rather something to which every property owner should give some thought.

Start a row of trees in front of your homes if you are living on an important highway. Add a few each year, and take note of the results. Passing motorists will pause for an admiring look. Some of them may like the looks of your place better because of the effect created by the trees, and may even inquire if it is for sale. Of course you may not want to sell, but you may know by this that trees add to the value of your property.

"I wish you would call your readers' attention," writes one of the Santa Anna News subscribers, "to the value in beautifying the countryside through which motorists from other places passing through would get a favorable impression of Coleman county. They that I would like to see beautified. I have a vision of a long row of trees along the sides of our main road. People from other places through would get a favorable impression of Coleman county. They would talk about our county back home after the summer tour, and that would be the best kind of advertising."

Let's start a tree planting campaign as a community project.

Mrs. Jennie Garrett is back at her post in the Adams Mercantile company, after being laid up for several weeks recuperating from injuries received in an automobile accident.

The Most Interesting Family I Have Known

The most interesting family I have ever known is one of seven people who live on the farm joining ours. It is a jolly, easy-going, old-fashioned family consisting of father, mother, two sons and three daughters.

The first thing noticeable is their courtesy toward each other; but all who enter their home are treated with this same courtesy, the poorest and richest alike.

They work in unison and each one shares the responsibilities as well as pleasures. I heard the father say one day that he thought several changes about the premises would be good.

"I think so too," agreed the wife, let's move the hen house on the south side of that slope and turn—"

"Wait, Mother, we're going too fast. Those youngsters will want a hand in the planning," interrupted the father.

"That's so," said Mother. "We'll wait until after supper when all are together. Then no one will miss the pleasure of helping us plan."

I have often wished I could have been at that family conference. However, I learned a valuable lesson from the part I heard, namely, to allow and expect each member of the family to share the joys, responsibilities and rewards of each problem.

They have all learned business principles together, planned everything together and gone at it systematically. Each seems to expect more of himself than of others and has learned not to criticize the actions of others.

You might think such quiet people would have little ambition but they accomplish much more than a blustery family could.

The children have been given good educations, each turning his knowledge back to home and to helping the others. Up-to-date comforts, amusements and means of culture are in the home, for they believe in play as well as work. The girls have been taught cooking and sewing as well as the regular school subjects, which gives them an interest in helping their mother.

The family is one of poise and self control and seems to know the right thing to do and say on all occasions. They take an interest in community affairs as well as home ones and are good citizens in every sense of the word.

Knowing that family has been a real inspiration to me.—Mrs. George W. Smith, in The Progressive Farmer.

My Favorite Stories

By IRVIN S. COBB

Nothing Doing in the Fish Line
Some people insist that measuring class by class, the lowest order of human intelligence in America is found among Key West sponge fishermen. Others hold that the group place at the foot of the column properly belongs to a certain order of theatrical producers. As proof of the value of their contention they point to the story of the theatrical manager, who, on being told that a play brought him by a certain dramatist was based upon one of Charles Dickens' novels, said:

"Well, you get hold of this fellow Dickens and bring him around to lunch tomorrow and we'll get his ideas and fix up a contract."

In the same connection there frequently is cited a remark by Wilton Lackaye, who once expressed a desire, which he said he feared would never be gratified, to play the part of Jean Valjean in a stage adaptation of Hugo's Les Miserables. A friend spoke up:

"Isn't there a manager in town who can produce it?"

"There isn't a manager in town who can even pronounce it," said Lackaye.

Without any desire to take part in the controversy over the respective merits of the theatrical managers and the Key West sponge-fishers, I herewith submit, for what it may be worth, an incident which happened a few months ago in the office of a prominent producing manager, whose name is a household word in every actor's home. To him there came an experienced playwright bearing the script of a new piece which he had just finished.

"I don't want you should read it to me, now," said the manager. "Just tell me what it's like."

"Well," said the playwright, "it's a historical drama in five acts. I call it 'The Dauphin.'"

"For why do you call it that?"

"Because it's based on the story of the Lost Dauphin."

"I don't want it," said the manager emphatically. "It wouldn't go. The public wouldn't never stand for a play about a fish."

ADVERTISING AIDS PROGRESS, HE SAYS

Value in Achieving Share in Economic Good Things of World Related.

Houston, Texas, May 10.—The Kingdom of God on earth can be brought nearer reality by advertising, provided advertisers "wrap the material things in the covering of great unifying and nobling ideas," Congressman Charles Aubrey Eaton of New Jersey declared in an address before the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World here Sunday afternoon.

"While we are selling things of the material kind, we must sell also the imperishable things of the spirit," he declared. "Thus only can the art and science of advertising continue to be the beautiful handmaiden of human progress leading the weary feet of all nations forward along convergent paths until by and bye we shall reach the sunlit land of human understanding, complete co-operation, friendship and peace, which will mean the dawning of the Kingdom of God on earth."

One Common Problem
"Human society throughout the civilized world," continued the speaker, "is now grappling with one supreme, common problem. This problem, briefly stated, is how shall the masses of men everywhere, who produce by the toil of brain or brawn, achieve the same participation in the economic resources of the world that they already have achieved in the political, intellectual and spiritual resources of the world."

Having achieved in some measure full political and religious participation of the good things of life," this economic participation is the great central question agitating every civilized society, he said.

America, which, he pointed out, had achieved the widest distribution of wealth ever achieved by any society, has made "great advance in solving, by a very simple method, the innate evils of the so-called capitalistic system."

Make More Capitalists

"We propose to cure the evils of capitalism," he said, "by making more capitalists; and at this moment the great reassuring fact is that a vast majority of our people have acquired joint ownership in the Nation's wealth by savings deposits, life insurance policies and purchase of stocks, bonds, lands, homes and of more or less permanent commodities."

"Three great outstanding movements today, looking to a more complete participation of all the people in the economic resources of the world, so far as America is concerned, are, first, development of the representation system in the larger industries; second, the rapidly increasing numbers of people of all classes who, by thrift and wise investment, are acquiring ownership in public utilities, industries, railroads, banks and other forms of economic service; and third, the growing movement for co-operative marketing among farmers which has as its objective the bringing of agriculture to the level now occupied by manufacturing industries."

Congressman Eaton said that world progress at the present moment takes the form of a conscious or unconscious effort on the part of masses of men in most of the civilized societies to achieve a more complete share in the economic good things of the world. How can advertising, he asked, be used as a means to advance this world progress?

"Advertising, as understood today, is simply the bloom and fragrance which guides the honey bee to the sources of its life supply," he continued. "It is a safe, simple, comparatively inexpensive method of bringing the gap between the producer and the consumer, greatly to the profit and convenience of both."

Friends will regret to learn of the death of Mrs. Floore, wife of Elder W. H. Floore, who made their home in Santa Anna ten years prior to moving to Houston seven years ago. Mrs. Floore died at her home in Houston last Sunday.

The Last Days of School

"And still the wonder grew

That one small head could carry all he knew." Goldsmith's wonder over the village schoolmaster can well be applied to the graduate these days. For with dreadful finals completed, bothersome note books handed in, school parties to enjoy, with perhaps a Commencement speech to memorize—a Senior's head is surely full to overflowing.

"Just rushed to death" is the way one graduate put it. The days can be easily counted now—and each one is brimming over with important things to do.

And in just a few more days you will have passed—in your high school graduation—another of the milestones which mark life's achievements, after this you may go on further in educational pursuits, or register in the school of practical experience.

In either case, we hope that the success for which you strive, will be yours. It is our sincere desire to be of service to you at this time, and to help make these days pleasant memories.

SAUL BEGINS HIS GREAT CAREER

LESSON TEXT—Acts 9:20-31.
 GOLDEN TEXT—"I determined not to know anything among you, save Jesus Christ, and Him crucified."—I Cor. 2:2.
 PRIMARY TOPIC—How God Saved
 Saul From Danger.
 JUNIOR TOPIC—Saul Preaching in Damascus.
 INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOP-IC—Saul a Bold Preacher.
 YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOP-IC—Courage in Witnessing for Christ.

I. Saul Preached Christ in Damascus (vv. 19-22).
 1. Saul's Fellowship With the Disciples (v. 19).
 After Saul was baptized he remained certain days with the believers in Damascus (v. 19). How beautiful to think of the transformation which took place—the one who was so passionatly bent on their destruction was now enjoying fellowship with the disciples.
 2. Straightway Preaching in the Synagogues (v. 20).
 Saul, like every one who is really converted, begins to tell of the newly found Savior. As soon as he is saved he goes to save others. His message concerned the deity of Christ. His doctrinal belief is summed up in six words, "He is the Son of God."
 3. The People Amazed (v. 21).
 They knew that the very one who had been the ringleader in persecuting the Christians in Jerusalem, and had come to Damascus for the express purpose of bringing them bound to the chief priests, was now passionately advocating that which he had so vehemently sought to destroy. When a man is saved there ought to be such a change as to cause the people to notice it.
 4. The Jews Confounded (v. 22).
 Saul retired into Arabia for three years. During this time he was taught the full truths of his ministry (Gal.
 1:17-18). Saul increased in spiritual strength and confounded the Jews, proving that Jesus was not only the Son of God, but their Messiah.
 II. Saul Escapes From the Jews (vv.
 23-25).
 He used the Scriptures with such skill that the Jews could not answer him. Finding that the argument was against them, the Jews took counsel how they might destroy Saul. So intent were they upon killing him that they watched the gates of the city day and night that they might take him.
 When this became known to the disciples, they let him down at night in a basket by the wall.
 III. Saul Visits Jerusalem (vv.
 26-29).
 This journey to Jerusalem was in strange contrast with the one from Jerusalem to Damascus. The one was as a leader of an important expedition under the authority of the Jewish officers with the prospect of a place of distinction in the council of the Jewish nation. Now he is an outcast, disowned by his countrymen, and fleeing for his life. These are the outward circumstances, but he knows the fellowship of the Lord Jesus whom he once hated.
 1. Suspected by the Disciples (v.
 23).
 The believers at Jerusalem had not heard fully about Saul's conversion.
 They knew nothing of his sojourn in Arabia, and his preaching at Damascus after his return. Therefore they regarded him as a spy. "Part of the penalty of wrongdoing is the difficulty of restoration in the good opinion of honorable men."
 2. Barnabas' Confidence in Saul (v.
 27).
 Barnabas was a man filled with the Holy Spirit (Acts 11:24) and therefore able to discern the reality of Saul's conversion. He was in reality a "son of consolation" and here showed his kind spirit.
 3. Saul in Fellowship With the Disciples (v. 28).
 He was not content merely to visit with the brethren. He spoke boldly in the name of the Lord Jesus Christ.
 IV. Saul Sent to Tarsus (v. 30).
 A conspiracy similar to that one at Damascus was formed against Saul.
 When the brethren knew of it they sent him to Tarsus. Saul's life was in danger everywhere except among the Gentiles. He now is back to the place of his birth. The first and best place for one's testimony is in his home. Saul's conversion was typical of the conversion of the Jewish nation.
 Their eyes will be opened by a personal revelation of Jesus Christ to them, and when they accept Him as their Savior and Messiah, they will go forth as witnesses to the Gentiles.

New York Consumed Over Six Million Dozen Eggs from Petaluma

New Yorkers consumed six million dozen Petaluma eggs during the first three months of this year, according to the shipping records on file at the offices of the American Express Company, Petaluma & Santa Rosa Railway and the Northwestern Pacific lines. This huge shipment of fancy Henney Whites went direct from this city to New York markets in refrigerator cars operated by the three transportation companies.
 In January of this year, 127 cars of eggs went east, the shipment comprising over 500 cases to the car or 15,000 dozen, or a total of 1,905,000 dozen for the month. In February of this year, 2,010,000 dozen of choice eggs were shipped to Gothamites from Petaluma railway sidings.
 This shipment required 67,000 cases which filled 134 full length refrigerator cars. The March business with New York buyers totaled 2,080,000 dozen of eggs which were also shipped east in 69,500 cases of 30 dozen capacity. The New York business so far this year is far in excess of the first three months of 1924,
 the records show, while indications point to a yearly business of more than treble the amount for the whole of last year, when the producers disposed of over 667 cars of eggs on the New York market.
 And while the demand for Petaluma eggs on the New York market has been increasing each month of 1925, the local poultry-man has also been receiving a much higher price for his produce this year than in 1924. For the first three months of 1925,
 eggs brought an average price of 36 cents per dozen on the New York market as against an average price of approximately 32 cents in 1924, bringing Petaluma district poultrymen over $2,160,000 of New Yorkers' money so far this year.
 So from present indications, local egg producers will receive close to $10,000,000 during 1925 for their egg shipments to New

Man Wanted

Under this heading, Motor
 West offers the following:
 Wanted—A man for hard work and rapid promotion, who can find things to be done without the help of a manager and three assistants.
 A man who gets to work on time in the morning and does not imperil the lives of others in attempt to be first out of the office at night.
 A man who is neat in appearance, and does not sulk for an hour's overtime in emergencies.
 A man who listens carefully when he is spoken to, asks only enough questions to insure accurate carrying out of instructions.
 A man who moves quickly and makes as little noise as possible about it.
 A man who looks you straight in the eye and tells the truth every time.
 A man who does not pity himself for having to dig and hustle.
 A man who is cheerful, courteous to everyone, and determined to make good.
 If interested, apply, any hour, any where, any place, to any one.—The Manufacturer.

This is Your Home—Think of the Children

Wealth is not money. Wealth is that collection of comforts which we gather about us as we go through life. It may be both material and immaterial, but it is necessary to happiness while money is not. With wealth we build homes. With wealth we make houses comfortable and the wealth that we produce ourselves brings far more happiness to our homes than any wealth that we may purchase from others with money we get by toil. Toil for money is slavery, but toil in the production of wealth for use in our own homes is delight. Therefore, buy nothing that you can make with idle time. To buy that which idle time can produce is to become a slave, though only for a little while; and if the purchase is made from some other section then you are slaving for people who have no interest in you, whom you do not even know, sending away to other sections the wealth you produced at the cost of so much toil, and receiving only a poor bargain in return—besides supporting a lot of carriers, clerks, stenographers etc., in the meantime. Keep your wealth and your money among your home people and among those who do likewise whenever possible.—Brady Standard.

The BULL'S EYE

Editor and General Manager WILL ROGERS

An Unknown Historical Fact

DID you know that George Washington, the adopted Father of our Country, just before he got on the Ferry to cross the Delaware for the Photographing of that now famous Picture, Did you know that he smoked two sacks of 'Bull' Durham while he was waiting for the Ferry? (things were just as late in his War, as they were in our last one). Now I have never heard of this 'Bull' Durham episode before, neither have I ever heard it denied. So if it's never either been affirmed or denied, there is no reason to disbelieve that it's not true. 'Bull' Durham originated in Virginia, and Washington lived in Virginia, and he was a great man to patronize home industries. And as Washington was the best man of his day, and Durham the best tobacco of its day, there is no plausible reason to doubt that these two most excellent Institutions didn't readily recognize the good in each other and get together.

Will Rogers

SIXTY-FIVE YEARS AGO!

In 1860 a blend of tobacco was born—'Bull' Durham. On quality alone it has won recognition wherever tobacco is known. It still offers the public this—more flavor, more enjoyment and a lot more money left at the end of a week's smoking.

Our Opportunity

We believe in boosting. The editor is of the opinion that boosting is merely the expression of the loyalty of the citizens of the community. But boosting, too often mere boasting, can accomplish little without intelligent direction.

In addition to boosters Santa Anna needs thinkers—men who are ready to do a little brain work to help the growth and development of the community along scientific lines.

"As a first step in getting industry into a town," says a man who has spent his life dealing in industrial property, "I suggest an industrial survey of the community. This survey should be broad—it should first accumulate all the facts about industry already operating in the community—then it should study into all the factors that make the community an ideal location for one kind of manufacturing and bad for another. And above all no attempt should be made to secure the location of a factory that is doomed by unfavorable location to failure. For it is better to have no new industry than industry that is bound to fail."

Such a survey was once made in community where there were a number of machine shops. And the job was far from complete before results were attained. It was found that many machine shops were buying drop forgings from outside the city. A study showed that there was a sufficient local market to make a drop forging plant successful right in the town itself.

So a careful study of all conditions was made, and before many months had passed the town could boast of a new industry in the form of a drop forging plant.

This, of course, did not include all the good effects of the survey. After facts on market conditions were accumulated, data concerning transportation and credit facilities gathered, and a complete knowledge of the local labor supply gained, the business men who were out to build up the town had a fine accumulation of information to present to prospective manufacturers.

This method is seeking to get outside capital interested in the community proved to be immensely more profitable and beneficial than mere idle talk about boosting the town.

Of course we do not imply that we do not need boosters in Santa Anna. No plan for building up the community can get very far without the united backing of the people, and backing can come only from real, intelligent boosters.

Another Boy Hero

Nothing will strike terror to the average individual more certainly than the attack of a vicious dog and to face such an attack unflinchingly is an indication of uncommon courage, even on the part of the strongest of men.

Francis Burns, a 12-year-old boy of Fowler, Colo., faced such an ordeal and stood his ground, when a large Airedale terrier attacked his baby sister. Snatching the child from the teeth of the dog, he held her as high off the ground as he could reach, while the animal tore at his shoulders and arms in an attempt to reach her.

The baby's cries summoned help and the dog was finally driven away, when Francis was found to have been bitten twelve times. All of his wounds were immediately cauterized and although seriously injured the lad is expected to recover. The child was only slightly hurt.

From the ferocious manner in which the dog attacked the boy, there is no doubt that the baby would have been killed except for her brother's quick action and supreme bravery. Thus must be added the name of Francis Burns to the long list of everyday heroes.

Santa Fe to Give Farm Boys Free Trip to Chicago

The Santa Fe railroad is again cooperating with the National Committee on Boys' and Girls' Club work by offering 59 trips to the Fourth National Club Congress to be held in Chicago next December. This is the third year the Santa Fe has been active in this work having taken 65 boys and girls to Chicago in 1923, and 59 in 1924.

Nine states will get the benefit of the Santa Fe's offer, and the trips which will be awarded to county champions or other outstanding club members in livestock and crop projects, will be apportioned as follows: Texas 19, Oklahoma 13, Kansas 12, Missouri 4, Illinois, Colorado, and New Mexico 3 each, and Iowa and Arizona 1 each.

When you beat your bills, you are beating yourself. If you don't believe this now, you will some day when you need credit.

Does Economy Hurt Business

The president of the Rotary Club at Washington, discussing business conditions, asserted that "if everybody stops spending money the time will soon come when nobody will have any money to spend." This was really a criticism of President Coolidge's advocacy of rigid personal economy, and but expression of the growing resentment that prevails among many business men who say that this policy is hurting business. Whether this be true or not the fact remains that savings bank deposits are steadily growing. Of course, these funds eventually find their way to stock and bond markets and make possible the big capital fluctuations. Money may be diverted from one channel to another but it is never idle. Most people rejoice in the idea of economy in governmental matters, and will support the President in his efforts to hold them down. The same business principles should apply with equal force to every other business, public or private. One can't have his cake and eat it too.—Lubbock Avalanche.

Let the Home Paper Follow You

The population of our towns is so changeable nowadays that the newspaper man is often surprised to see how his subscription list changes from year to year. New names are coming in all the time, replacing the ones who leave town and drop their subscriptions. It is often a matter of wonder to the newspaper worker that anyone who has lived in one place for a number of years can have made so few ties that he can get along without this regular record of the doings of his friends and the progress of the community that he once called his home. To a host of people, however, no sum brings better returns than the trifling amount paid for a regular letter from a former home in the shape of the local newspaper. In this way they keep in touch with old friends. Familiarity with their doings makes these friendships permanent. Old friends are best in this world. They represent an investment in good fellowship into which you have put much of the best of your life. Keep up with these old friendships and your old home, your friends who may have gone away. It will pay!

THE GOOSE HANGS HIGH

Comedy-Drama of Family Life Coming to Queen

James Cruze, noted Paramount producer, who jumped into the directorial limelight with "The Covered Wagon" and other cinema successes recently completed a new Paramount picture which is being hailed as another screen masterpiece.

"The Goose Hangs High" is his latest of photoplay epics, and local film fans will soon have the opportunity of judging its worth because it is due at the Queen Theatre for a two day run, commencing Wednesday, 20.

It deals with a small town American family—the Ingals parents and children. All their married life Ingals and his wife Eunice have sacrificed themselves for their children with the result that Hugh, Lois and Bradley have grown up pleasure-loving, extravagant and self-centered.

The plot takes an unexpected turn when disaster threatens the family. How the children rise to the occasion and prove their real worth is developed in a series of vivid, absorbing situations which lead to a surprising climax.

The hand-picked cast includes such popular players as Constance Bennett, Myrtle Stedman, Esther Ralston, George Irving and Edward Peil, Jr.
