SOUTHLAND GREYHOUND Lines

weeks to see first what effect the vote cast has upon the defeated Senators and Representatives, and second we must wait to see whether they can agree promptly among themselves on a draft amendment to carry out the pledge of the Democratic platform. There remains the Democratic pledge for immediate modification of the Volstead Act to legalize beer and light wines. There can be no doubt that the Democrats are bound to propose this amendment at the short session, nor will they fail to do so. But here they are likely to encounter the opposition of Republicans who have made no such promise and also, unless he modifies his views, the opposition of President Hoover. It does not seem likely that the wets will be strong enough in the lame duck session to legalize beer against a Presidential veto.

Mr. Hoover has, therefore, to make a weighty decision within the next few weeks. He has to decide whether it is important to balance the budget as promptly as possible or to adhere to the implications of his platform and oppose the modification of the Volstead Act. For after this election, he can not offer a plan to balance the budget which means anything unless that plan includes a tax on legalized beer and wine.

A Notable Precedent
Among the returns on Tuesday there is, I think, special importance in the election of former Senator James W. Wadsworth as a representative from a district in the upper part of New York state. For there is no worse tradition in our public life than the conceded notion that a man must never accept a lower office than the last one he occupied. This tradition robs the country of the services of some of its most experienced public men, and to my mind there is no one political reform which would do more to invigorate public affairs than the complete discarding of that tradition.

In no other country that I know of does this tradition exist in Britain and France the men who have held other high positions of leadership, return almost as a matter of course to the legislative body. There they contribute daily to the conduct of government. In the United States our ex-presidents, ex-governors, and ex-senators are retired from public life just when they have reached the point where they are most competent to contribute something to it. It is as though, for example, that Mr. Coolidge and Mr. Smith, Mr. Davis and after March 4, Mr. Hoover, should have no part in the conduct of affairs.

What they ought to do is what John Quincy Adams did—go to Congress as members of the House of Representatives from districts which are so safe that they do not have to think about getting themselves re-elected. That is the one certain way to improve the quality of legislation and debate and to enhance the prestige of popular government.

The Socialist Vote
The vote polled by Mr. Norman Thomas is in many ways the most astonishing in the returns. The conditions could not have been more favorable than they were this year to a large increase in the Socialist vote. Yet it is a pity, though the returns are not all so that Mr. Thomas has polled a smaller proportion of the total vote than any Socialist candidate since 1904, except himself in 1904.

It is doubtful whether he has received a million votes out of an approximately 40 million. But assuming a million his percentage would be about 2.5 per cent. It is interesting to compare this with the percentage of the total vote received by other Socialist candidates. If my arithmetic corrects the following table:

1904	Debs	8.8 per cent
1908	Debs	2.7 per cent
1912	Debs	6.3 per cent
1916	Debs	3 per cent
1920	Debs	3.1 per cent
1924	Thomas	Less than 1 per cent

The fact that Mr. Thomas was elected in 1928 when the vote was estimated at 2.4 per cent of the vote. To have expected that mark this year Mr. Thomas would have obtained approximately 2.13 million votes. He has almost certainly not received that number.

Thomas is reported in the Herald Tribune as believing that some of his votes have not been honestly counted. That may be. But he can hardly get the million votes he has been lost to him that way.

My own guess is that the Literary Digest poll which draws upon the middle class automobile owners and telephone subscribers, exaggerates the strength of Mr. Thomas. It was in the middle class, among the so-called white collar proletariat and the "intellectuals" that his engaging personality and the evangelical quality of his socialism made their greatest appeal. It is there, too, that there is the greatest intellectual discontent with the working of the capitalist system that the manners and methods of the old parties.

But it is plain that among the great masses of the people, who are most oppressed by conditions, the promise of some relief promptly through Mr. Roosevelt destroyed their interest in Mr. Thomas' campaign.

Cleveland, Texas, Dentist Sentenced

Ex-Revolutionist Returns To Exile

GUADALAJARA, Mexico, (UPI)—Prof. Aurelio Manrique, revolutionary and former governor of San Luis Potosi, was to return to the United States to resume his exile. Manrique, a member of the ill-fated Escobar revolution in 1923, was arrested here after re-entering his native country without benefit of amnesty. He had accompanied the body of Gen. Aurelio Sepulveda, another revolutionary, here for burial, declaring his "conscience was clear." Manrique was granted 72 hours grace in which to quit the country.

A. P. I. President Calls New Law In Texas Most Important Factor Of Year For Good Of Oil Industry

HOUSTON—In an air of restrained optimism the American Petroleum Institute opened its 13th annual convention here this afternoon.

The convention, in the first item on its program, heard the institute president, Amos L. Bealy of New York, say, in his annual address, that the year's books showed something on the credit side of the ledger, all things being considered, for the oil man.

At the same time it received two reports from technical committees anything but optimistic in tone, since both predicted a decline in motor fuel demand for the six months period ending March 31, 1933.

The institute's committee on refinery statistics forecast a total decrease of 11.7 per cent, 9.5 in domestic demand and 32.9 in export demand.

The volunteer committee on petroleum economics of the federal oil conservation board saw a somewhat brighter picture, but it too, forecast a decrease demand—10.1 per cent in total demand, or 7.6 per cent off in domestic demand and 23.3 per cent off in export demand.

The institute committee predicted a total demand in barrels for the months period of 174,800,000, a decrease of 11.7 per cent from the figure at 178,900,000.

Meanwhile, Mr. Bealy, delivering the presidential address, told the delegates, estimated officially to number more than 2,000, the oil industry despite the absence of anything to boast about, from a "pure balance sheet standpoint" made considerable progress and continued to be headed "in the right direction."

The new Texas conservation law which allows the state railroad commission, the conservation agency, to consider market demand in drawing up schedules of allowable production for the various fields, described as the industry's "most important achievement" during the year.

The act, he said, offered the oil man a chance to "operate rationally." Kansas and Oklahoma, he added, for some time had not permitted physical or economic waste of oil.

Independent Oil Men Seek To Retain Tariff

TULSA, Ok.—Sounding protection of the domestic producer, major and independent, as the principal theme, the Independent Petroleum association of America opened its annual meeting here Monday.

Russell B. Brown, chief counsel, told the association he feared the next congress may repeal the revenue act which now provides for levies on petroleum imports and substitute a sales tax for it. He urged continuation of the fight for an oil tariff or an import tax "to aid the American industry."

The committee on policies and program reported urging activity in seeking correction of the tax evasion, relief of reduction of state gasoline taxes, use of gasoline tax funds strictly for highway maintenance or construction and restriction of crude oil production to balance demand.

$110 Million In Cash To Be Distributed By Christmas Club Groups

NEW YORK (UP)—Approximately $110,000,000 will be distributed to ten and one-half million people throughout the country in the next few weeks as proceeds of various Christmas Club saving plans.

The sum shows a decline from a year ago but bankers are generally encouraged with the results in view of the severity of the depression and the numerous banking difficulties earlier in the year.

In 1931 Christmas Club payments were $600,000,000; in 1930, $532,000,000; in 1929, $618,962,500; in 1928, $550,000,000. The average sum to be received by members this year is $42.

Merchants throughout the country expect to feel the effects of the release of this vast sum of "cash money" in improving sales.

A glance into the record of the Slaton Hi Tigers, opponents for the Bristow grid brigade here tomorrow afternoon, dispels any and all rumors that local officials are padding their schedule with setups in order to go undefeated during the remainder of the season.

The Slaton team will be the second strongest club that has met the Bovines in Steer Stadium this season. One of the results of the Tigers' early season maraudings was a 0 to 0 tie with the Snyder Fellies, a Class B club that annually holds the respect of any and all Class A opponents, and who are stronger this season than in many years.

All of which leads one to believe that the Bovines will be in for a tough afternoon Friday. Slaton's tentative starting lineup gives the purple-clad visitors an average weight advantage of ten pounds, both in the backfield and the line.

least one campaign. In other words if Big Spring wins the Steers will be forced to play their best type of football. It will be no stampe.

DID WE PREVARICATE?

Our records have been frankly doubted by R. C. Hankins of Midland. "This Number 0," Hank remarks, "the Terrible Bunker who has caused sore ribs (from laughing) at Big Spring, was unleashed for several runs of no gain against Midland Friday. What's this about his scoring twice against Obie's first string line? 'Alpopycock if you like our opinion.' Bristow is saving Bunker, we will state for Midland's benefit. With the score around thirty or forty to nothing why should he be turned loose? And we suppose Mr. Hankins does not believe that about the rattlesnakes?"

MORE SWEETWATER BALLYHOOD

"Who was it that cracked the other day Wood is good for three yards any time he's called and that he's a better plunger than Delker. Blondy Cross demands. "Against the light, by comparison, Colorado team, a team Sweetwater beat 41 to 0, Wood gained 43 yards in 16 tries. Figure it out, less than three yards average. Delker is just as liable to grab that many in one rip. We don't know what tactics Coach Taylor intends to use in the Colorado game. If he decides to powerhouse the Wolves with Delker carrying the ball you're wagger. Last the hefty one doesn't average less than 20 yards. He can gain three and fall down five. But maybe Harry has other plans." We must become accustomed to extravagant praise concerning the Mustang backs after they have compiled a yard or two per running attempt. Blondy, Red Sheridan, it will be remembered, average 20 yards per carry. The pigskin against the Steers on October 28th.

and to and behold it was asserted in Sweetwater's journalistic masterpieces that the Redhead single-handed ran Big Spring into defeat. "I know, a good bit like San Angelo's radio announcer who described a short wobbly punt in the Big Spring-Beat game that went out of bounds almost parallel with the line of scrimmage as a "beautiful high kick soaring down the middle of the field." DESCRIBING THERON HICKS

Under the captain, "Why golf should not be played," we find the following in one of the Houston papers: "Four Kansas City golfers recently placed a wager on which of the four could violate the most golf rules. In playing the first hole, the winner of the bet committed the following violations: Teed off in front of markers. Teed off out of turn. Asked bystanders distance to green. Grounded club when tee shot landed in hazard. Tossed rock out of hazard. Threw stick out of hazard. Bug out rock interfering with stance. Stamped ground behind ball. Pressed soil behind ball with club. Had caddy hold back tree branch. Placed bag in trap. Pushed sand away from ball with shoe. Asked spectator distance to green. Caddy caddied on green. Picked up and cleaned ball. Walked on line of putt. Used putter to mark line of putt. Used putter to brush sand from line of putt. Tramped down rise in ground before hole. Patted weed in line of putt. Used hand to brush off worm cast. Patted line of putt with putter. Straightened cup. Gave wrong information as to number of strokes. Refused to lift ball at opponent's request. Lifted own ball while opponent's was in motion. Stopped opponent's ball. Marked up incorrect score.

Harrison Test In Ector Drills To Depth 3,712

L. C. Harrison and others' No. 1 F. V. Addis estate, Ector county wildcat which encountered a small showing of gas at 3,870 feet, had shown no change in drilling to 3,712 feet in red shale and white lime. At that depth it was 766 feet below sea level and 99 feet below the point picked by some as the top of the brown lime. Location is 330 feet from the north line and 1,320 feet from the west line of section 35, block 43, township 2 south, T. & P. Ry. Co. survey.

C. C. Duffey and others' No. 1 W. J. Rutledge, receiver, Ector county wildcat about three miles northwest of the Penn pool, had drilled to 2,975 feet in anhydrite. It struck 11 barrels of water per hour from 2,820-25 feet which soon decreased to a half barrel hourly.

Westside Investment Co.'s No. 1 Looney in Borden county, which had drilled early in the week to 3,285 feet in anhydrite, is credited with obtaining the first lime string at 3,110 feet. The last salt was logged at 2,955 feet. The test has an elevation of 2,633 feet, topped the anhydrite at 1,260 feet and topped the salt at 1,315. It is 990 feet from the south and east lines of section 15, block 33, township 4, north, T. & P. Ry. Co. survey.

Metcalfe Reports Two-Year Clause Saved Oil Measure

SAN ANGELO.—Penrose Metcalfe, representative from this district in the legislature, returned Monday from Austin. He said that the market demand bill could not have been passed had not the two year limit clause been inserted. He said no one wanted to vote for it as general policy, but felt that in times like this anything that would prevent a debacle should be passed. Oil men, he said, are of the opinion that before the two years is up, the East Texas field will be down to such production that it will no longer be a major problem. Not only is the 325,000 barrels which the commission allows being taken out, but there seems to be no doubt but that there is considerable oil being taken out which is not reported. Most of this now is going by truck, although from conversation with people in close touch with the field one would get the conviction that there have been pipelines which run around gauges. Mr. Metcalfe expects to introduce

FIRE DESTROYS 1,300 HOMES IN JAPANESE TOWN

Damage estimated at $2,000,000 was caused by a recent fire in Koniatsu, on the western coast of Japan. It wiped out half the town, destroyed 1,300 houses and made 6,000 people homeless. BEGIN HERE TODAY

Old MRS. JUPITER, wife of the millionaire automobile manufacturer, gives an engagement dinner and dance for her secretary and protégé, MARY HARKNESS, who is to marry DIRK RUTHER, son of a blue-blooded family.

Mary receives a telephone call from her secret admirer, brother, EDDIE, saying he is in trouble and must see her. The house is strictly guarded against "gate-crashers" because Mrs. Jupiter is wearing the famous Jupiter rubies.

Mary arranges for Eddie to be admitted secretly. When she goes upstairs to meet him she finds Mrs. Jupiter robbed and murdered in her room. Running to find her fiancé, she finds him in the garden with CORNELIA TABOR, his childhood sweetheart.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER III

Mary was too surprised to move for an instant. What could be the matter with Cornelia, that she should behave like that? Dirks growled, "Don't make a damn fool of yourself, Con. And keep your voice down, will you? Do you want everybody to hear?" "I don't care," Cornelia subsided into a chair. "I was watching them. Mary thought she had never seen anyone look so silly in her life. Cornelia hadn't expected interruption, that was sure, from the duff-colored look on her face.

At a glance Dirks whirled about so abruptly that the crimson silk tippet and almost fell.

Come quick, Dirks. Something terrible has happened! Without a backward look, Dirks came running and took the steps to her side in a single bound. "What's wrong? You look scared to death, honey," he asked worriedly. The terror in his eyes stabbed her with concern. His arm went about her protectingly. They drew away, out of Cornelia's hearing and lowered their voices somewhat.

Mary poured out her story in an excited jumble, almost crying with the joy of relief.

"Do you think it's anything to do with Eddie?" she asked anxiously. "Listen," said Dirks, "who is this Eddie you're talking about? You don't mean the kid brother?"

Mary said yes, of course. "But what has he to do with it?" "I don't know—nothing, I suppose. But he may have been in the house—he was in trouble." Dirks laughed and patted her shoulder. In spite of herself, Mary felt reassured. Dirks seemed to wipe the whole nightmare away.

"That kid? Why, you're all mixed up. This is something else. This kid wouldn't hurt a fly! He pressed her hand comfortingly and they started for the house.

Dirks called sharply, "Come, Cornelia, still standing where he had left her, moved forward hesitantly at his command.

They had reached the loggia when Teddy Doulton lumbered toward them out of the darkness, muttering earnestly, and seized upon them as an audience for his gruff "Dammed idiot!" he exclaimed fervently, rubbing his drooping shoulder. "Ran into me down in the bushes and knocked the breath out of me. And not a word to excuse it—not a word!"

"They did not listen. Have you seen Mr. Jupiter?" Mary paused to ask.

"Have I seen him? No. Ask me. I've seen Jack Dempsey. Yes. Who was the fool, anyhow? Whadaya ask such people for?" "Who?" They could not wait for his answer. It was all meaningless chatter, anyway—he was drunk enough to have collided with the side of the house.

"That fool! Just met. Listen!" he called, plaintively, after them. "You know what?"

"I don't know," Dirks said to Mary in a low voice as they went. "I was making him up in it unless we have to. He might have a bad time."

The ballroom was deserted now except for the musicians, who were packing up their instruments. The ballroom tables, from the dining room, indicated that supper was still going on.

In other parts of the house, every activity was paused. Two men in uniform pointed up the staircase in the wake of the butler, breaking with teeth and breath as if they had run. Doors in the second precincts of the Jupiter mansion. One of them turned and called to a third who remained behind. "Don't let anybody leave the house!"

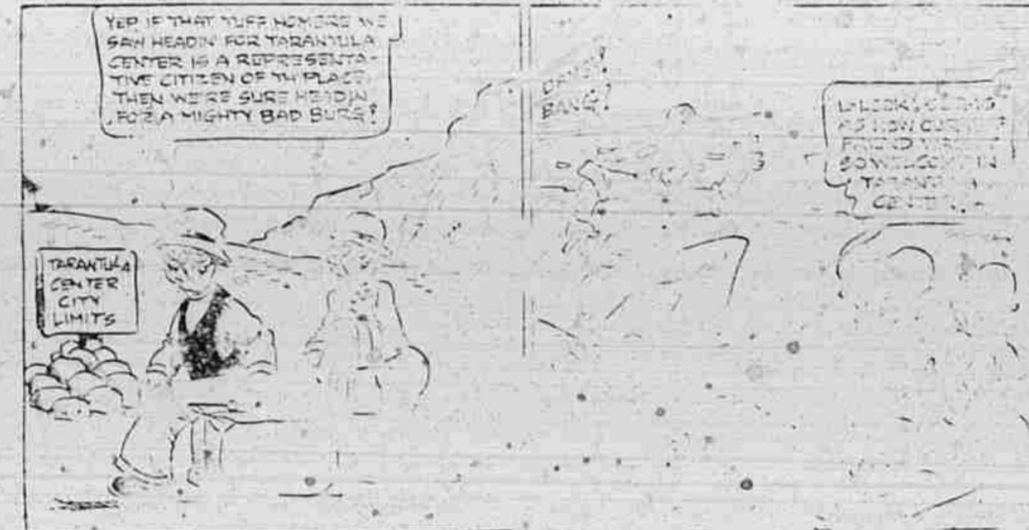

Dirks squeezed Mary's hand reassuringly. "They'll find whatever it is. Those boys work fast. Don't worry. It will be all right."

Mary had cause to be grateful for the reassurance that came so automatically at Dirks's touch. If there were bad moments ahead of her in which she needed all the reassurance she could muster.

It was all at once a topsyturvy world. The Jupiter mansion no longer belonged to its owner, in effect, but to Inspector Kane and the men who come with him from county police headquarters. The dream of Southampton's young set found themselves hurried into the ballroom for questioning along with a frightened huddle of servants. It was hours before the questioning, the running up and downstairs, the choking breath of flashlight powder, the hurrying to a fro, ceased.

 The murderer, it seemed, had got clear away. Search of the grounds had failed to show any evidence of his coming or going; both the manner of his entrance and of his exit were unaccounted for. This might have gleamed from what they could overhear. Whoever the intruder was, he had done a clean-cut job of it. As the checking of evidence went on it began to appear that no one except Mary had direct evidence of any sort.
 "And that was pitifully little and of no practical use."
 He looked like a man in the last throes of depression, but Mary was not sure he was quite sincere. His keen eyes, rowing the room, watching the movements of his assistants, the way he picked up his ears when anyone entered, gave an impression of alertness that his easy-going air belied. For all his conversational attitude toward Dirk and Mary, he had not let them get off yet officially.
 Detective Bryne came straight to the table and reported that every car had been searched before leaving the grounds, with no results.
 "Any of them Lorimers?" Kane asked.
 Bryne snapped his fingers restlessly. "Damn! I forgot to look for that." He brought a moment intently. "No, I'm positive there wasn't a Lorimer in the lot." Inspector Kane prepared to move off.

 "Well—no offense, young lady?" He got up off the gilt chair he had been straddling. "Have a cigarette?" He held out a grumpled pack, which Mary declined. "Don't smoke, eh?" Mary shook her head. "Well, let's get on. My wife don't." He appeared to be trying to cover up any awkwardness he had caused.
 When the rush for wraps and homeward-bound motors had cleared the room, all that remained were the group of officers, Mary and Dirk, the housekeeper, Mrs. Warren, and, busily speeding the parting guests, Spence.

 Once Inspector Kane asked in a low voice, "Where's the old man?" up there?" pointing to the ceiling.
 The servants, those who remained, were released and sent off to bed. The sight of their scurrying backs momentarily confounded Mary. She had forgotten all about Bessie. What had Bessie told, if anything?
 As if he read her thought, Inspector Kane turned to one of his men, whose job had been quizzing the servants.
 "They don't know nothing," was the other's disgusted report.
 "They're like a lot of sheep?" "Get 'em all? Sure you didn't miss anybody?" he asked sharply.
 The detective retrieved a list from his hip pocket, where he had just stuffed it, and scanned it.
 "Two," he said. "A maid named Bessie and a chauffeur. Nobody knows where they've gone."

Man Who Once Served As Warden There Faces Term In Penitentiary
 AUSTIN, (UP)—Former Warden N. L. Speer had only a possible rehearing or executive clemency between him and a three year term as a convict in the prison, where he once was ruler, when the court of criminal appeals here affirmed his sentence on conviction of theft.
 Speer, a former sheriff of Walker county, was convicted of cashing a state fee warrant which had erroneously been drawn for $1,000 in excess of the $1,926 to which he was entitled.
 The case was tried in Austin, and the appeal was on the double ground that the offense, if any, was committed in Walker county, and that the charge of the trial court on intent was wrong.
 Speer is one of five sheriffs and former sheriffs who were charged with collection of excess fees in office. A state senate committee still is investigating fee accounts.

'Longhorn' Not As Extinct In State As Many Believe The longhorn picturesque animal that first gave Texas a reputation as an important beef-producing section is fast disappearing but is not extinct as some believe. Special Inquiry by The Dallas News shows that several hundred typical longhorns still survive on widely scattered ranches over Texas chiefly in the Southwest. Almost entirely replaced now by higher quality beef animals, the longhorn today is valuable chiefly as a connecting link from the era of the open range in Texas.

In North Texas, so far as can be ascertained, only one specimen of a typical longhorn survives, this one on the Shady Oaks Farm, near Lake Worth, Tarrant county, Northwest Texas, once home of hundreds of thousands of these cattle, reports only one, that on the famous Goodnight ranch near Goodnight, Texas. Mostly skin and bone with horns in some instances measuring eight feet from tip to tip, longhorns once ranged most of the western half of the state and were driven by the thousands over the trail to Wichita and Topeka, Kan., and other markets.

Six or eight perfect specimens of the longhorn are to be found on the L. A. Schreiner ranch near Kerrville. Other places on which a few head survive in Southwest Texas include the Baylor & Holdsworth ranch near Crystal City, about 100 head on the Fred Malone farm at Pearall, 30 on the large King ranch in Brooks and Hidalgo counties, and about a dozen on head on the O'Conner-Hallahan place in Refugio county. Several ranches in Willacy, San Patricio, Jim Hogg, Live Oak and other South Texas counties have a few head.

Remaining small herds of longhorns other than those in South Texas, are to be found chiefly deep in East and Southeast Texas. The News survey shows Sabine county reports several hundred head scattered on farms and ranches. Buck Riddle in Cass county has about 25 head, D. C. Hillboldt in Austin county has 10 or more head and one longhorn survives on the W. D. Partlow place near Liberty. Many scrub cattle in this section and other sections of the state are close kin to the longhorn, resembling the typical early animal in many respects.

This Woman Lost 45 Pounds of Fat Dear Sirs: For 3 months I've been using your salts and am very much pleased with results. I've lost 45 lbs., 6 inches in hips and bust measure. I've taken 3 bottles, one lasting 5 weeks. I had often tried to reduce by dieting but never could keep it up, but by cutting down and taking Kruschen I've had splendid results. I highly recommend it to my friends. Mrs. Carl Wilson, Mantoloking, N. J.
