I see him tonight as I write with my pen his sweet little grin.

To his mother, his daddy, his brothers so dear, Let's ask them to wipe away that tear,

And weep not of his parting, but wait for the day, When we all shall meet him in that Land far away.

UNARMED CHIEF OF POLICE CAPTURES BANK ROBBER

following is an article clipped from the Childress In-dex column, "Indexing," by Morris Higley, relating a little about A. J. Brown, Childress Chief of Police, capturing a bank robber while he was unarmed. Mr. Brown is a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Jack Brown, who lived here for some time, and a nephew of A. R Brown of this city.

"Chief of Police A. J. Brown got into a fight last week. He got a couple of teeth knocked out and was bruised up considerably. He didn't do muchpractically threw his life away and captured a bank robber who was armed when Brown had nothing but two hefty

"It was an excellent job, although I think A. J. should carry a gun. "But everyone else in the country is getting credit for the capture "A. J. has always been modest about his work, and I know of several instances when he has figured prominently in police work, yet he has given the credit to someone else. "Those times are past, but when a man captures an armed bank robber without using a gun, I believe that he should be given a little credit.

"For one, A. J., I think it was a swell piece of work and you deserve the thanks of every Childress County citizen."

Thanksgiving Thoughts

On many a farm and in countless towns and cities, families and their friends will gather to celebrate Thanksgiving. It is an important mile-stone in the year . . . and an occasion for counting the blessings that have been enjoyed.

The day centers around the family fireside. Thanksgiving helps to strengthen home ties, and to perpetuate the ideals and traditions that are dear to the heart of every patriotic American.

We hope you may have the opportunity to enjoy the day with loved ones, and that there will be many things for which each and every one of you may be truly thankful.
