(By Ted Saunders) In the community's progress the professional services of a commendable funeral home is a necessity.

(By Ted Saunders) Embracing the agricultural review of the community we learn it would not be complete without the representation of a dependable dealer in wool, furs and mohair.

At the time of death and bereavement it is the task of a professional person to conduct services with the most consideration.

The reputation of this concern has traveled far and near points in the adjacent communities for their fair and above board methods.

Bartering Value Of Cotton Has Dropped During Last Decade

Austin, Texas — Bartering value of a bale of Texas cotton has dropped drastically during the last decade, as foreign markets have been lost for between three and four million bales annually, Dr. A. B. Cox, director of the Bureau of Business Research at the University of Texas, declared here today.

A 500-pound bale raised last year would buy 1,110 yards of print cloth or 273 gallons of gasoline as compared with 1,445 yards of cloth or 497 gallons of gasoline in 1927, the internationally known cotton marketing authority explained.

That some improvement has been made since the depression days of 1931, 1932 and 1933 is evident from the fact that a bale of cotton in 1932 would purchase only 1,080 yards of print cloth and only 170 gallons of gasoline.

Over the same ten-year period, Dr. Cox pressed his comparison to show that the barter value of a bale of cotton in steel, dropped from 1.14 to .77 tons. One of the largest slumps came in sugar, falling from 1,019 pounds in 1928 to 1,105 pounds per bale last year.

To further demonstrate the fluctuating value of cotton, Dr. Cox pointed out that a $500 debt could be retired in 1927 with 3,145 pounds of lint cotton as against 4,673 pounds necessary last year.

Dr. Cox declared that the exports this year have been the lowest since 1918 in spite of the fact that the nation has 19,824,000 bales (indicated) in sup-

ANSWER CALL FOR TWINS

Denton, Texas — Sixteen sets of identical twins and a half dozen "singles" whose twins were not in school answered the call of President W. J. McConnell for the formation this fall of a "Twin Club" at the North Texas State Teachers College.

Included in the group were three faculty members, Miss Donnie Cotteral of the physical education department, and Mrs. Georgia Collins, secretary to the Dean of Men, and Robert L. Marquis Jr. of the education staff.

Marquis was a member of a twin club formed by his father, the late President R. L. Marquis, at the North Texas in 1934-35. There was another twin organization at the Teachers College in 1924-25.

More recently N. T. S. T. C.

has gained wide "twin publicity" because of the accomplishments of its four famous trackmen, Wayne and Blaine Rideout, first two in third row, and Delmer and Elmer Brown, not shown, who last year set a world's indoor medley relay record at Madison Square Garden. The Browns have finished their eligibility, but the Rideouts will carry the Eagle colors again this year.

ply—the largest in the country's record.

Cotton prices would be further pushed down because the world supply is about 537,000 bales greater than that for last year, he believed.

"According to Garside of New York Cotton Exchange, world supplies of all cotton are 50,605,000 bales," he said.

"Calculated prices of American cotton based on total supplies in the United States and in European ports and afloat to Europe indicate a price of New Orleans middling 7-8 inch spots of slightly under 700 cents. Prices of American cotton are being held above world competitive levels of such a supply by above-the-market-price loans. The Government now controls over 10,250,000 bales under its various loan pro-

History Essay Written By Miss Chambers In 1879 Wins Recognition By University

McLennan County which is situated near the Central part of the state is bounded on the north by Bosque and Hill counties, on the east by Hill and Falls, on the South by Falls and Bell, on the west by Bell and Coryell. McLennan county has an area of about 610 thousand acres, about half of which is covered with timber and the other half beautiful rolling prairie and very fertile. This county is about 700 feet above the level of the Gulf of Mexico.

In the year 1804 immigration came rapidly in as far up as the falls of the Brazos and fork of Little River. In the fall of that year and early in 1835 surveyors McCulloch, Robertson, Chance, and Harner surveyed the county on the Brazos river as high up as Fort Graham. A man named Boyd built a house that year four miles below Waco, the first house in the county; it was only occupied a short time by rangers and was burned before the county settled. The war with the Indians commenced in August 1835 and that with Mexico two months later. McLennan county was entered only by colony hunters in the latter part of 1835 and early part of 1836.

In the fall of 1836 a battalion of rangers was organized and one company under the command of Captain T. H. Barron was stationed at the falls of the Brazos; they were ordered early in the year 1837 to establish a fort at Waco village. They were there three weeks coming up, having found it necessary to cut a road and build a bridge on Cow Bayou. They expected to occupy the fort permanently. Waco was in possession of Buffalo, and only a short time before had been vacated by the Waco Indians' cornstalks were found in the fields they had cultivated and peach trees were growing where the city now stands. They built some shanties for barracks near the big spring of the river but only remained there three weeks when an order came from the Secretary of War for them to return far out-to-go good service. They went back calling the place they had left Fort Fisher.

In July 1837, a cessation of hostilities was brought about and General Houston effected a partial and temporary treaty with the Indians. Troops were now disbanded. The land office opened the first of February 1838. It was thought that surveyors would give protection to the frontier without expense to the Republic.

The year of 1840 opened with much brighter prospects to the settlers. Major Erath started on the 14th of January with ten men for Waco, run a connecting line from the mouth of the Bosque to his survey made the trip before named Middle Bosque; also Harris creek which was named after the man who opened the surveys at the mouth. They then went to the Leon River where they remained a short time and then returned to the settlement, having had no Indian alarms.

In July 1840, the Indians having again made their appearance, Major Erath was ordered by General Felix Houston to take twelve men and scout up the Brazos. Not being able to raise that number of men he started with eight on the first of August. At Waco village they found ripe peaches on the Indian trees. Here they struck the trail of a party of Indians and gave chase. They succeeded in killing and wounding one. In the year of 1842 the treaty made with the Indians went into general effect, but small parties deviating from the rest of their tribes committed occasional depredations for years. By the terms of the treaty, a trading post was to be established on the Brazos. It was done by Mr. David Torey of Houston and Mr. George Barnard and was located eight miles north of East Waco. Major Neighbors became Indian Agent. Mr. George Barnard remained permanently and may be called the oldest settler of McLennan county.

The Mexican invasion of 1842 and the financial pressure checked the progress of the county and there was very little passing through the county from 1843 to 1844. The first election that was held in this county was in 1847 or 1848. The Indians that permanently occupied the Brazos country were half civilized and were good friends to the whites and kept small savage tribes from committing depredations. The Comanches were a great annoyance to the people, but this did not last long. Captain Shapley F. Ross was authorized to raise a company in 1846 for frontier protection. This company was stationed at Little River Fort at first, but in 1847 was stationed near East Waco, in company with another company under command of Captain Johnson. He gave great protection to the people till after the close of the Mexican war when he was relieved by a force of regulars, commanded by Captain Harney.

About 1849 Major Erath was instructed to lay off a town and sell lots; a plan was furnished him with permission to change to suit locality. This place was to be called Lanham, from which he deserted. On the fifth of May it was decided to be called Waco village. He and Captain Ross became interested in the village and soon moved into it. They intended to have located the big spring in the center of main street. On the sixth of May 1849 another public sale took place from which the owners of the town site realized 800 dollars, one hundred of which was paid in cash. Only the lots on the square sold for ten dollars each, none sold higher. Farming lots which are now the center of the city sold at two and three dollars per acre. A petition was gotten out to call the new county McLennan. Colonel George Burney who was then the Representative in the State Legislature had a bill passed at the close of 1849 which created the county of McLennan. This county was named for Mr. Neil McLennan Sr. who was born in Highlands of Scotland. Emigrated when a young man with friends and relatives to North Carolina from thence to Florida. In the year of 1935 they came to Texas.

The act of the Legislature to create the county appointed six or seven men to locate the county seat. They were all except one in favor of Waco and the people generally favored this place. The owners of the Waco town site offered one tenth of all the lots sold and to be sold, also additional lots for public purposes, school and churches besides the streets and alleys; ten feet around the spring and commons on the river. This proposition was accepted. Years ago before railroads ever penetrated this section, the village of Old East Waco was situated about half a mile east of the Brazos river as the suspension bridge now spanning the river was then not thought of. The inhabitants of the two towns were in a great measure thrown upon their own resources and intercourse while cordial, was necessarily restricted.

But, as time rolled on the bridge was built, and communication became easy. The railroad came, and the depots were established in East Waco, and in 1872 a new town commenced building up around the depot which has grown to be the East Waco of today. This progress has been rapid. What was a bare field in 1872 is now covered with buildings, railroads, commercial, industrial, and residence purposes. Old East Waco still stands where it did fifteen years ago but is now a suburb of the now East Waco.

Probably no less than ten million feet of lumber was sold in East Waco during the year of 1877. Directly west of passenger depot is seen the mammoth building of the Waco Cotton Compress an enterprise established in 1877, which has already demonstrated its practicability and utility, and is one of the institutions of which East Waco is justly proud. The building and machinery cost about twenty thousand dollars and occupy one acre of ground. The compress has a capacity for compressing about 1000 bales per day.

There is now in East Waco three brick yards. These yards furnish the brick used in building the many fine and useful buildings, which we see continually going up. The cotton mill is one of the largest in the south. It has a run of thirty thousand spindles, and the machinery cost one hundred and fifty thousand dollars. This was owned by Mr. Baylis Earle and on account of the Civil War was shipped from England to Vera Cruz, Mexico, and hauled by ox wagons to Waco.

There are two ice manufacturing plants, only one in operation. The one erected in the summer of 1878 has a capacity of twenty-eight tons. The city is lighted by gas. The present gas works were established in 1873 at a cost of forty thousand dollars.

There are several hotels of which the McClelland is the largest. It was thrown open to the public on the first day of December, 1872. It was built at a cost of ninety thousand dollars and contains one hundred and three rooms and all the modern improvements of a first class hotel. The McClelland is one of the largest in the state, and is kept by Mrs. Mary S. Heatherly.

During the summer of 1878 waterworks were inaugurated on a scale to supply the entire city with fresh pure spring water. Two large flour mills, two iron and brass foundries were also established there.

There were several churches and schools: the Waco Female College, Methodist, Waco University, Baptist; The Academy of the Sacred Heart, Catholic and the City schools; also Miss Sue Lamblin's seminary; and Professor Strother's private school.

At this time a short street car line was built from Austin Avenue down South fourth street. This was mule drawn as electric roads were unknown. Miss Kate Ross, now Mrs. Tom Padgett, was the first white girl born in Waco. -Nov. 10, 1879

Excuse me, Ladies, I'm on my way to beat a rug

SPORTS COMMENTS: Reddy Kilowatt, whose kitchen battles have made him famous in many thousands of West Texas homes, last year chalked up another victory against Meanie Drudge, nemesis of the fair sex. In a grudge fight from start to finish, Reddy electrified a huge crowd composed mostly of women. His great range of blows to Meanie's bread basket had the customers shouting with joy. The knockout came when Reddy ironed him out ready for the vacuum cleaner. As the dim light went out in Meanie's glaring lamps, many hundreds of homes were properly illuminated by the I-E-S shiners Reddy introduced. "Give me frigidaire," Meanie cried as he went down for the full count. The fans were turned on... but too late for Meanie Drudge. What he needed they was not a ventilator but a warming pad. Meanie was out, cold as an electric refrigerator.

It took a toaster to bring Meanie around... that and a shower with an electric hot water heater providing the warm glow of life. First thing he did was yell for a cup of coffee made in an electric percolator. Next he wanted nourishment. "Bring on the food mixer!" he yelled.

Sports writers gathered around his table looking for a convenient outlet. "Fellows," Meanie announced, "you can quote me as saying I'm a reformed man. From now on I'm living the modern way... the electric way."

State Health Officer Discusses Malnutrition

Austin, Texas — The past half-decade has seen malnutrition become a matter of concern to public health officials, physicians and teachers in Texas. It is estimated that 50 per cent of the school children in the state are malnourished to some degree. And in view of unemployment and adverse economic conditions among certain groups of the population, malnutrition is being greatly intensified," states Dr. Geo. W. Cox, State Health Officer.

"Strictly speaking, malnutrition is not a disease but rather a condition due to poor or faulty nourishment. The child is usually thin, though he may be fat or flabby. He is often pale, with dark hollows under the eyes, lacks muscular tone, has round shoulders and, in the more advanced stages, malnutrition produces a child with a narrow and flat chest, protruding abdomen and without spirit or mental vigor.

"Specific causes of malnutrition are insufficient or unsuitable diet, wrong food habits, insufficient sleep, chronic fatigue, lack of exercise, disease, physical defects and an element of heredity.

"Malnutrition in itself justifies concern. However, the results of malnutrition prevent the biggest problem and involve stunted growth, anemia, nervous irritability and diminished energy. Its most serious consequence, moreover, is increased susceptibility to disease and lack of resistance to it. 'Too the relations between malnutrition and tuberculosis is conclusively and pathetically established. In short, malnutrition is an abnormal condition which if it is permitted to continue, in many cases, results in serious illness and possible death," Dr. Cox further stated.

"Increased malnutrition is facing not only Texas, but the nation at large. A well balanced program of meals is the best weapon against it. Parents must realize the importance of an intelligently applied dietary. Communities can ill-afford to underestimate this vital and elemental factor in their welfare activities.

"It is not too strong a statement to make that malnutrition among our youth, especially among the families of the unemployed and the low economic strata, represents a powerful enemy against the nation's future welfare. Intelligent action is needed to successfully combat it.

"The State Health Department of Texas is doing its part and will send free of charge nutrition information and sample menus embodying the principles of well-rounded dietary to all who request it. A penny post-card addressed to the department will bring the information by return mail.

17,019 Trench Silos Filled During 1938

College Station — Texas farmers and ranchmen filled 17,019 trench silos in 1938 in cooperation with county agricultural agents, the annual report of E. R. Eudaly, dairyman of the Texas A. and M. College Extension Service shows. This represents an increase of 7,536 over the number in use at the end of 1937.

A total of 1,734,000 tons of feed or more than a million tons over the 1937 figure, is stored in these trenches. It would require a trench 12 feet wide, 6 feet deep, and 202 miles long to hold the silage, or one, Eudaly says, that would reach from College Station to the city limits of Durant, Okla.

Even in a year of a comparatively large crop the silage represents a value of around 7 million dollars. There is enough feed stored in trenches in Texas, fed at the rate of 30 pounds an animal per day, to feed 642,000 animals for three months.

One record of 8 year's standing was lost as the number of trench silos failed to double that of the previous year. At the same time the 7,536 increase made in 1938 far exceeds any previous year's gain.

"County agents have learned that the trench silo is the most economical and efficient way to store feed and they recommend the trench storage to their farmers and ranchmen without reserve," Eudaly pointed out.

"Feed in a trench silo is safe from weevils, rats, fire, rain, floods, and time itself."

Tuesday evening, January 24, 1939, Miss Rosalie Niell and Mr. Cecil Strickland were married at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. Ola Niell.

Rev. R. Elmer Dunham read the single ring ceremony before an improvised altar of ferns and tall white candelabra with white tapers. Other parts of the house were decorated with pot plants.

Preceding the ceremony Miss Ora Alice Newman sang "I Love You Truly," accompanied by Miss Annette Shield. Miss Shield also played "Bridal Chorus" from Lohengrin, as the couple entered the room together.

The bride wore an ashes of roses dress with black accessories. Her corsage was of pink, red and white carnations.

Mrs. Strickland was born and reared in Santa Anna. Since finishing high school she has attended Howard Payne College where she is a sophomore.

The couple left later in the evening for their home at 2214 Ogden Ave., Brownwood. Mrs. Strickland will continue her studies in Howard Payne College.
