"Here's a sample of the California clingstone peach," said Don Ewing, handing us a huge peach. "This is from a tree that Santa Anna, the County Judge, is 33 years old and still going the Commissioner of this Prestrong. The seed was brought cinct and representatives of the from California and was one of two that were planted. This tree was badly damaged once, but two limbs are loaded down with fruit ,the third big limb having only a small crop of smaller fruit." We didn't get to measure the peach, but it was a whopper.

NE kilowatt-hour equals 1,000 watts of electric energy. This is one-third more than one horsepower. Therefore, we say: "Reddy Kilowatt is one-third stronger than a horse." And many times stronger than a man!

A man, for example, hammering eight hours does 480,000 foot-pounds of work. It takes 2,655,200 foot-pounds to make one kilowatt-hour. Thus we learn that the man with the hammer does 18 per cent of a kilowatt-hour's work in an average day. This is equal to 180 watts, or, in turn, 22.5 watts per hour. So it takes a man approximately six days to do the same amount of work that Electric Service does in one hour!

*Carrying 16.7 tons of brick up 12 feet in a day-

a man's work equals 11 watts, or enough to operate small radio.

T therefore seems futileand unnecessary—for Me; or Women to do work that Reddy Kilowatt can—and should—do. Electric cranes, pumps, hammers, etc., do hard jobs more cheaply and efficiently than men.

Why do Women continue to D perform the hard tasks in the home? No one has taken time to figure the foot-pounds of energy she expends in washing clothes and dishes, cooking over flametype stoves, sweeping and other similar distasteful work. Whatever the amount, it's safe to suppose it might be reduced by twothirds if the home was ALL-ELECTRIC.

The average residential electric rate is LESS than 5 cents per kilowatt-bour
