Editorial

Local industries are what we depend upon for prosperity. It is an illly situated or affected town that finds itself suffering by local demand being supplied by other towns instead of home institutions. A couple of weeks ago the manager of a local institution stated that a large part of the business in his line was being supplied out of Fort Worth and Dallas, that his concern made expenses, but little profit, and could not afford to do very much for the benefit of civic institutions. With two organizations of the particular classification in town, each doing a quarter of the town's work and outside firms handling the other half, it looks like something of a dangerous situation is being created here. Possibly all other small towns in this section have suffered likewise. In the fight for "cheapness in quality and price" we are very deliberately destroying our own communities and sacrificing our liberties. We are placing in the hands of a few big "trusts" the feeding, housing, clothing, and in otherwise servicing our needs of body and mind. In the warfare to fight down prices we are first pauperizing the producer and then cutting quality. The time is approaching when fresh apples can't be sold by the apple grower for 10 cents a bushel; yet we will pay 9c or 18c for a small jar of imitation apple-flavored jelly. This situation is not desired by the grocery organizations. It is true that the strenuous warfare of past years to undersell competitors at any price has contributed to the present situation about, but it is the present trend to secure the cheapest imitations at the lowest price that does the damage. If you want only cheap junk your dealer will give you all the cheap junk you want as long as he profits. If you demand quality at fair prices, you will assuredly get it. If producers would demand cost-plus instead of letting the buyer do all the price fixing, the depression would be on the skids. True, a skid would have to be put under the Reds in our government and the American way of doing things returned to. We have a combination of wrongs working against us at present. If we will "be American" for just a year, the depression would be over. But—we prefer, it seems, to forget our bright and be saps for Reds and trusts to use for doormats.

We hear that a commission has been created to revise our state educational system. High time such was done. As present constituted, our educational system has been shot to pieces so badly that our graduates, although well grounded in what they get, are not equipped for what they face in life. The theory of a common curriculum for all children is wrong the moment you branch off from reading, writing, arithmetic, spelling, grammar, physiology and penmanship. The boy who is going to rail-splitter, tenant farmer, bartender, or gardener doesn't need algebra, geometry and Latin. Two-thirds of the school day is taken up with things that equip the student to rate high on the WPA relief rolls but do not equip him to meet life and play his part. Agriculture and homework for boys and girls is the only diversion from the old basic course that indicates brainwork in course planning. It is foolish to expect every school to provide manual, agricultural, home economics, and other real educational courses, the burden is too great, even if the state is slowly taking over the educational expense—and at the same time tell you what YOU MUST teach your children. You cannot educate your child today in common schools in a sensible way and quality that child for college. You have to have points in subjects of utter uselessness to the child, the loss of time, of money and of brain effort, before your child will be accepted in a college of average education these days. And the common schools should not teach Latin, Greek, algebra, geometry, and so on to the boy who is going to be a cook in a cafe or a hired hand on the farm. And in order that consolidation be reflected in thorough courses, special branches should be had only in the large schools where the demand—not the command—supplies sufficient students to warrant the course. Tied into the new deal ideas foisted on Texas educational systems is the preparation of courses that demand continual and, to poor families unbearable, expense for work books etc. If the writers of text-books for Texas schools MUST build business for anyone, it should be for school patrons instead of big school supply contractors. Where you in past decades bought a $1 text-book and used a five cent tablet and 1c pencil to work with, you are now given a text-book and have to buy several dollars' worth of work books and odds and ends to use with them. If these work books are necessary they should be furnished with the book. They are not—that's just chiseling for the stationers. At the present rate in another decade it will become necessary to buy specially engraved work-books at high rates for the first graders to write cat and rat on. A revision that would give the common school students a thorough basic education they could use, special schools for special branches, and elimination of all useless studies and costs would be hailed as an educational advancement by the public.

Years ago the writer heard a great evangelist preach. He was probably not catalogued by his church as a great preacher, but his work entitled him to be so classed. He sought to save souls and he knew no sectarian party lines in that ambition—he led them to the church of their own choice. He helped build every protestant church membership in town that week—Protestant, Catholic, Baptist (Don't challenge that classification. The Baptist church is not a Protestant church!). This preacher's power lay in his deep sincerity and ability to present his message. Sunday we listened to our Methodist pastor deliver equally as fine a sermon and wondered how it should happen that the church could be only half full of members when a sermon of such interest and value was being delivered. Being a Methodist, the writer assumes the right to discuss and criticize the actions of fellow members. There are scores of members of the church in this community who never attend. They do not realize that the best pastor the local church ever will have is on duty here now. They are missing real gospel sermons, sermons that are acceptable to the members of any church, non-proselyting but such as to make more firm the allegiance of any Christian to his church regardless of what church it was. Looking at the faithful, small congregation, we wondered how so small a church could merit a preacher like we have. The writer has listened to preachers of many churches, small men, great men, unknown and famous, in churches from the Canadian to the Mexican border, and with very few exceptions has never heard a more able, more sincere, sound doctrinal speaker. There is but one explanation—that men of his caliber in their utter sincerity are not liked by many because they preach Jesus Christ instead of each man being a god unto himself. You know the man who can point out faults so plainly that one imagines he is the subject of discussion draws the ire of the most of the erring. This can hardly explain the local situation, for we understand that the vast majority of the non-attending (and therefore non-supporting) members have never heard him preach. Their religion must be very tepid, highly diluted, else they'd hear him and once hearing him would be regular attendants. We will in all probability be chided by our pastor for writing this, complaining him for real ability, and condemned by some (cuss-Latin, Greek, algebra, geometry, and so on to the boy who is going to be a cook in a cafe or a hired hand on the farm. American movements to keep out of the world war are drawing criticism from divers places. Recently the United States and the Latin-American countries went into a huddle over the necessity of keeping the war as far away as possible. For once all of the South and Central American countries agreed without a word about western hemisphere territorial aspirations. The U.S. went the whole hog on the Monroe doctrine and advised the whole world to keep their ships three hundred miles away from all except the Canadian coast. This limit law literally enforced protects all British possessions except Canada. The biggest of all the protests came from Britain, who challenged the legality of the zone in point of international law, and said that any attempt to enforce such a declaration would be an act of war. Since all of the Latin nations concurred in the declarations, an enormous economic weight is here created that may well be observed by any nation of Europe.

Gen. Johnson recently stated in a radio address, discussing plans for extending emergency case of war, that to give sweeping new powers to the permanent bureaus of the government would amount to giving away liberty—and for keeps. Politics lasts always for more power. It never willingly returns a grant of authority, once it has experienced it. It would be a simple thing to socialize industry once we were stampeded into extending powers of permanent government departments, crushing opposition and dissent, and controlling the radio and the press. This would bring totalitarianism home with a vengeance. All enemies of democracy are not across the pond—lots of them are here at home, even in our federal government, and if once delegate to any permanent department or bureau the extension of power under which we could be finger-printed, police controlled and dominated, there wouldn't be a moment lost in taking from the public the right of free speech, free press, assembly, and voluntary control of one's activities. He and all he owned would be under control and direction of the government we established to represent us, not become our dictator. If emergency laws must be enacted, they should be administered by emergency bureaus that would automatically dissolve when the emergency was past. The American people are not of the stripe to be dominated by dictators. They could be dominated for a short time, but rebellion and liquidation of the dictator and his dupes would quickly follow. It would be suicide for anyone to attempt a dictatorship in this country.

We have found many things in Santa Anna to be proud of and to compliment or endorse; we have found a few things to criticize mildly, and yet fewer to criticize severely or denounce. But the one thing we thought to be the outstanding quality of our citizenship has proven to be something else than the so praiseworthy attribute we had envisioned—civic sportsmanship. It may be true that Winters ball players assumed a superiority complex, and undoubtedly they were sincere in feeling a superiority, rightly or wrongly. That is neither here nor there. Possibly they did send a taunting reply to an invitation for a ball game. Again that is nothing more than the cocky attitude of youth. They certainly felt the game was theirs before it was played. That was confidence in their team. We had the same confidence. We rooted and did our share for our team in the same spirit to win. Winters went on the field with the fixed idea they would win—the right spirit for any team. That they came so close to losing—and it was lost to them up until the last few minutes—was enough to dimay them and take any feeling of superiority out of the players and visitors. Winters, with heavier men, more letter men, and without the depressing knowledge of lighter weight and less experience that followed the home team, felt very much different toward our team even at the last play when they won the game. To lose an "in-the-bag" game and at the last moment to win, not by ability, not by extra weight, but by sheer luck, gave them the right to a celebration that held a different attitude than they would have held had they carried off the game as the visitors expected to at first. To the lasting credit of the local team, our boys were good sports. They realized that the playing they had done was as meritorious as winning the game itself. Winters players, in a different mood, and with a much different viewpoint were entitled to their celebration of victory. It would have been one of thanks, not for winning by the vaunted superiority so plain before the game, but for a clean victory in the face of unimagined defeat. Instead of letting them hold their celebration and afterward in friendliness visit local places still open, streets were blocked, insults hurled, a fight started—and Santa Anna's much vaunted sportsmanship became eclipsed in a riot. As hosts, this should not have been tolerated. Losers, the baby act should not have been permitted. Possibly some visitor "rubbed it in." That is as indefensible as the offense taken. If there were rowdies in the visiting crowd there must have been some among our people. Just when a bond of friendship could have been cemented by mutual appreciation of ability and clean sportsmanship. Apologies are due the visiting team, band and pep squad. Nothing in the game, with possible exception of off-playing which was promptly penalized, justified the scene down town. As it stands, our team, which is not guilty, has to take the full blame and make apologies to their guests for hoodlumish tactics of others. That is not fair. Certainly Santa Anna is not at all proud of the blot those doing the mischief brought upon the city. Be good sports, or stay at home and listen at your radio. For our part, The News sincerely regrets the incident, feeling that although the game was lost, the game fight put up by a lighter less experienced team was sufficient to humble any excessive pride of the visitors. We need good sportsmanship. Let us have it, and as the first evidence of its return, act right with those visitors. That's the honorable thing to do. Wednesday the Abilene paper had to condemn an equally bad action on the part of their hoodlums. It is poor comfort to learn that another town has a gang of rowdies to bring reproach upon it.

Mountaineers To Meet May

The Santa Anna Mountaineers are to meet the May Tigers here on October 27. It has been reported that the May Tigers have not been beaten his year. So let us break their record and show them how a beating is. Everyone come out and cheer the Mountaineers.

Homemaking Club News

In our meetings we have two programs each week. The program for next week is "Good Taste in Dress," and "How We Shall Spend Our Leisure Time." The year books for the club are almost completed. The colors are blue and gold.

Delegates from each F. H. T. Club in Coleman County are meeting in Novice, October 30 to organize a county club. There will be an area meeting in San Angelo, Nov. 4 and if it is possible all the club will attend.

The club has sold all the pencils excepting 7. They were gold

Dramatic Club Presenting Play

In chapel last Friday morning the student body was entertained by the dramatic club with a play entitled, "Betty Behave." Dorothy Ross was Betty, Mary Field Matthews was Elia, a friend of Betty's and Ruth Lovelady was Joanelle, a new and wealthy girl at the boarding school. The comedy was much enjoyed and we hope for more very soon.

What Makes a Winning Team?

We are proud to consider the team with the highest score the winning team. To win is to be successful. It is to gain or secure a prize. However, it is debatable, whether success means the score, that is, the impression given to the world or the real benefit received. Just what is the prize?

This is a question hard to decide. In relation to football, the team with the highest number of points is given the prize, the honor of being called victorious. However, the other team may have played better, cleaner football. The members of that team may have received greater benefits from the game. So who wins?

The only way to decide is this: play the best, cleanest football and come out on the long end of the score. An old axiom, true but true says: You get no more out of anything than you put into it.

Mountaineers how about putting a little more into it? Make your best better than it was last time. It's time to win a football game!

Santa Anna Plays Winters

Santa Anna played another game last Friday, a game almost won - but lost. Winters scored in the last minute of the game to make the final score, 13 to 13 in favor of Winters.

Both teams played spectacular football. First half scores were on pass plays, one by each team. Santa Anna converted on a tricky little pass play. Power and good offensive pass work were Winters' leading points. Santa Anna's line proved to be very strong. Guthrie getting nitch more than his share of the tackles. York proved to be very good on pass plays.

SEVENTH GRADE NEWS

The seventh grade of Santa Anna Ward School has been making money for the class by making and selling candy. Two weeks ago, the six or seven of the seventh graders made the candy which they sold very rapidly in the noon hour. Last week the same number made candy, which gave the seventh grade about a dollar and sixty-five cents for the class fund.

So far the amount spent since school started was five cents for a "get well" card for Opal Mae Stockard, who had an operation. And another for Wendolyn Campbell which cost five cents also.

During the first six weeks those making the honor roll were Oma Dean McDonald and June Newman. The class won the P. T. A. banner of which they are very proud.

The junior band of Santa Anna has about twenty eight band members ranging from the third to the seventh grade in Ward School. The leader of this splendid group is Mr. R. W. Willis.

HALLOWEEN CARNIVAL OTHER ENTERTAINMENTS ARE BEING PLANNED

The high school band, jointly with the junior class are sponsoring a Halloween carnival at the High School building Saturday night, October 28, at 7:30.

Mary Field Mathews, a member of the junior class, will be crowned Halloween queen with a boy and girl representative from each class, from the band, and different clubs making up the queen's court. In addition to the coronation ceremonies various booths will be operated for entertainment.

Besides the carnival several other projects, including concerts, cake-walks, and banquets are being planned to raise funds for the betterment of the band room.

The most imperative needs are wall coverings for the band room, to improve the acoustics, new music, a new bass drum and drum head, and it is desired that inexpensive uniforms be purchased for the junior band.

According to director Willis, the band will never be able to get out of the third class with the present set-up. A band should have twice the number of reed instruments as wind instruments and at present the percentage is somewhat reversed. Additional school-owned instruments would relieve this situation. There are children showing a decided musical talent who could never own an instrument or suit but if furnished these would be an asset to the band, and whereas, some who own their instruments and uniforms become lax in their efforts, the best could be demanded of those using school-owned properties.

By the band going on the rodeo booster trips, playing at the West Texas Fair and various other out of town affairs, nothing has done more to advertise Santa Anna in the past few years than has the high school Ranger Band and for practically every function in our town to group has gladly furnished the music.

The parents are spending a large sum of money for instruments and uniforms, some of the business men are contributing to a transportation fund, and others have made donations but these alone can not make a first class band, it takes the cooperation of all the citizens.

A party that admits business in time and a good reputation about it.

Jordan's Grocery and Cafe always a seemingly busy place, has completely redecorated the interior with a very pleasing shade of blue, all counters and fixtures receiving fresh paint.

Mr. Jordan has increased his entire grocery line and the new rotary slicing knife adds to the appearance of lunch meats.

When quizzed about his optimistic viewpoint in business he answers, "Why not? People get cut and I aim to give em what they need at a price they can afford to pay and as for service, we're here all the time and might as well be waiting on customers as standing around looking lonesome."

Membership in the Red Cross has increased steadily for the last eight years to where the organization in its services now is more inclusive than at any time in the past eighteen years. With this growth, expansion of services during this next year than in 1913-14, a decrease of necessarily must be interpreted 7 percent.

Radio Briefs

Dr. Hugh Bennet, chief of the Fed. Soil Conservation Service, speak over the National Farm and Home Program at 11:45 this morning. "Soil Conservation and the Colorado Plateau" will be his subject.

Santa Anna, The News and Joe May Payne got some publicity in a West Texas C. of C. broadcast last Friday. The News recently mentioned Joe May's enrollment at John Tarleton College. We didn't hear the broadcast, but the WTCC puts one on each Friday morning from 7:30 to 7:45 over KRBC, KBST, KPYO, KGKL and KPDA. Listen in for West Texas news of interest.

Self Culture Club to Meet
Mrs. Elgean Shield will be hostess to the Self Culture Club at her home this afternoon at 3:30.

GLIB TONGUE

You can consider yourself a glib speller if you can repeat the following sentences quickly — one at a time of course:

Sheila says Sam should shave slowly.
Bob bought a black back bath brush.
Soldiers' shoulders shudder when shrill shells shriek.
Old oily Ollie oils oily autos.
The short sort shoot straight through.
