Claim German Was In Baby's Room March 1

Expert Says Handwriting In Notes Identical With That Of Hauptmann

NEW YORK (AP)—Attorney General David Wilentz, New Jersey, told Supreme Court Justice Ernest Hammer Tuesday the Lindbergh ransom notes, which he claimed the state proved were written by Bruno Hauptmann, "are admission and confession on the part of Hauptmann he was in the baby's room the night of kidnapping."

Wilentz read excerpts from the ransom notes, including one saying: "Why did you ignore letter we left in your room?" Another quotation was "Now we will send you sleeping suit from baby."

The attorney general's statement came after Albert Osborn, handwriting expert, testified with "reasonable certainty" that specimens of Hauptmann's handwriting were identical with that of the ransom notes.

WASHINGTON (AP)—Colonel Charles Lindbergh told the president's aviation commission Tuesday the "black list" of former airline executive officers constituted one of the "most discouraging factors" in aviation.

Lindbergh was referring to the postoffice department ruling that no officers of old airmail carriers might retain office under the reorganization which accompanied contract letting after first contracts were cancelled.

The "black list" imposed upon executives Postmaster General Farley said had participated in the "spoils conference" to divide up all airmail contracts.

The conference was arranged by former Postmaster General Brown. Lindbergh said he considered a limitation of transcontinental lines as established by Brown was the best solution thus far.

MELUN, France (AP)—The Surete Nationale announced Tuesday that Mio Kraja, alias Sylvester Malny, alias Chalny, confessed he was sent to Marseille with "Petrus Kalemman" to assassinate King Alexander of Yugoslavia.

"Kalemman," whose real name was Vlada Georgijeff, Macedonian revolutionary leader, actually killed the king and was slain by police. Authorities said Kraja told them he fled before the assassination because he feared other persons figured in the attempt to take the king's life.

"I am a Croat," Kraja told the Associated Press. "What I did and what I wanted to do were for Croatian liberty."

Workers are being concentrated on the descending drive of the Scenic Mountain park this week.

Cutting of roadway with the contours of a hill and slope is in full swing and crews are busily engaged in the construction of a rock wall to hold the road.

Instead of veering to the left and following the southeast ridge of the mountain as the drive now does, the new road will proceed in a straight south-south easterly direction to the right of the ridge and will follow the contour of the hill just above the CCC camp location. It will then continue along the line of the slope, adjacent to the present road.

Massive stone blocks are being quarried by the men and are being locked in massive masonry to form sturdy walls which will hold the roadbed in place. At the same time, the walls lend a picturesque sight to the descending drive.

Work is also being done this week on the rock ridge on the north side of the mountain. With the sharp curve on the northwest point of the ridge literally sliced away, workers are continuing around the rock-rim, widening and smoothing out the drive.

Culverts made of native stone are being installed at drainage points with sufficient capacity to accommodate the maximum amount of watershed.

An important ordinance and resolution were passed by the city commission Monday evening in called session.

Approval and acceptance of a loan and grant agreement with the United States of America in connection with a PWA grant and loan for a municipal swimming pool was effected in an ordinance and resolution.

Another resolution was passed favoring the obtaining of an option on W. R. Edwards for land desired before calling an election for voting on a bond issue, proceeds of which would go toward securing acreage upon which state park improvements are contemplated.

The resolution follows: "Be it resolved by the city commission that before an election be called for the purpose of voting on the question of issuing bonds for the purchase of land in connection with the state park program that W. R. Edwards be required to execute an option in favor of the city of Big Spring to purchase the remainder of section 1, block 33, township 1 south, T & P survey in Howard county, Texas, with exception of 300 feet off the east side of said section and the 200 acres now owned by the State of Texas, together with all oil, gas and other mineral rights on said land for the sum of $20,000."

MANILA (AP)—Ten are known dead in a typhoon, and 300 homes were blown down or unroofed. Four ships were driven ashore in Manila bay.

MANILA (AP)—At least five persons were drowned and thousands were left homeless, in a sudden tropical typhoon which twisted Manila from a well-ordered city into a confusion of debris early Tuesday.

No reliable information was available as to the extent of damage north of the city but apparently was extensive. Loss in Manila may run high as $2,500,000.

LOUISVILLE, (AP)—The Louisville-Times said Tuesday it has reliable information Mrs. Alice Speed Stoll, kidnap victim, were alive Monday and may be freed within 24 hours.

The article adds: "Information gathered by the Times is confirmed, in part, by cheerfulness of Mrs. Stoll's relatives since Sunday, by passing of two days without any appeals to the kidnaper over the radio and by an Associated Press report that the $50,000 ransom had been sent to Nashville."

Sterling Tax Assessor Dies

S. T. Walraven, 57, Succumbs In San Angelo Hospital

SAN ANGELO, S. T. Walraven, 57, serving his third term as tax assessor of Sterling County, died in a local hospital shortly after midnight Tuesday morning where he was recently brought for treatment.

Funeral arrangements had not been made at an early hour Tuesday morning, but services will be held in Sterling City.

Survivors include the widow, one son, J. D. Walraven, and one daughter, Miss Lois Marie Walraven.

The family moved to Sterling City in 1922 from Garden City. Johnson Funeral Home is in charge of arrangements.

First Payments Received On Hog, Corn Contracts

First payments on the corn and hog contracts have been received here.

Twenty checks netted $1,042.35. They represented 40 per cent of the hog and 50 per cent of the corn payments for this county.

In a referendum conducted among the contract signers, 13 votes were cast.

Twelve answered in the affirmative and one negatively to the question: "Do you favor an adjustment program of dealing in corn and hogs in 1935." All 12 voted "yes" to the second question: "Do you favor a contract per farm program dealing with grains and livestock beginning with 1935?"

Special Music Scheduled For This Evening's Service

ATLANTA, Ga., (UP)—Musical organizations from at least a dozen states will complete here in a two-day pre-convention of the American Legion, Oct. 19-20.

The activities here will serve as a prelude to the national convention of the American Legion opening in Miami, Fla., a few days later.

Legion organizations from Tennessee, Alabama, Ohio, Oklahoma, California, Arkansas, Illinois, Indiana, New Hampshire, New Jersey, Delaware, Massachusetts, Kentucky, Georgia and Wisconsin have entered the various competitions.

Fifty thousand visitors en route to the Miami convention are expected to stop over here for the parade competition.

ERROR IN BEVERAGE KILLED BEST MAN

CLEVELAND, (UP)—Michael Roharik, 23, swallowed poison by mistake just a few hours after he had been best man at the wedding of his brother, Paul. He died almost immediately.

The tragedy occurred in front of the house where the wedding celebration was in progress. Roharik was sitting in an automobile with his mother, Mrs. Susus Roharik and Miss Betty Barbol, 20.

"He saw what he thought was a bottle of bonded whiskey," said Patrolman Albert Miller. "He took one drink and was dead before he reached the hospital. The bottle was in a pocket of his brother's automobile."

Mrs. F. Williams Succumbs Here

Local Resident Dies At Home On East Fourth Tuesday 12:00 P. M.

Mrs. Fannie Williams, 42, succumbed at her home, 1112 East 4th street, 12:00 p. m. Tuesday following a long illness.

Mrs. Williams came here six years ago.

She was born in Tennessee September 3, 1892 and came to Texas in early childhood.

Surviving here are her husband, C. G. Williams, and three sons, Clifton, O. B. and Lee Louis. She also leaves a sister, Mrs. J. R. Howell, of this city. There are also four other sisters and three brothers surviving.

The body will lie in state at the Rio Funeral Home pending completion of arrangements.

CONNECTICUT FORESTS CAFETERIAS FOR BIRDS

HARTFORD, Conn., (UP)—It may be a tough winter for many folks, but not for the birds.

Connecticut state forests have been made over into picnic grounds for wild bird life by the planting of thousands of berry, seed and other food-bearing shrubs, serving as perennial bird "cafeterias."

Civilian Conservation Corps units were employed in setting out Siberian pea trees, Japanese rose, Japanese barberry, snow berry, paniced and tartarian dogwood, mountain ash, Hawthorne, nanny berry, choke-berry and bitter-sweet, several of which are not native to this soil, and which will bloom and provide food when the snow buries normal food supplies.

WASHINGTON

By George Durno

Government's home renovating and repair campaigns simply refuse to get up and take sturdy strides. It crawls and toddles like a backward infant.

As a result of the high command of the Federal Housing Administration has decided to launch its drive to interest the public in building new homes without further ado. This was to have waited until spring—as there can be no great volume of small construction work until then—but the ballyhoo is due to start in about two weeks.

Those in charge won't admit it publicly but they made a tactical error in not going to bat with the new-home proposition at the outset, making renovation and repair supplementary.

The plan will be to get at the man who has $1,000 or so in the savings bank and sell him the idea he ought to build a home. With the federal government guaranteeing an 80 per cent mortgage in full, such a citizen can erect a $5,000 house.

Bank officials will be mobilized for the drive. Without betraying any confidence they can reach those who have the money for such a venture. They can advise it as a safe investment, which even inflation wouldn't affect, and point out the money for the operation would become tax exempt.

Bosses of FHA know in advance they are going to be in for one sweet battle. That will be with the building and loan people. If the drive is successful second mortgages will be a thing of the past.

As yet there is not complete unanimity of thought concerning the new home campaign.

Frank Watson, 27-year-old Acting General Counsel for FHA, recognizes that new building must be encouraged or purchasing power will continue to decrease. He is afraid that a considerable number of new homes of modern design will subtract so substantially from the worth of existing structures that their value may fall below the debt outstanding against them. This might create an un sound debt structure with even the government insurance schemes incapable of standing the shock of heavy obsolescence.

On the other hand Miles L. Colman, Chicago architect who directs FHA's Technical Department, believes the burden could be carried, welcomes the opportunity and feels

American College Of Surgeons Gives Approval To 2080 Hospitals

Dr. Franklin H. Martin, founder and director general of the American College of Surgeons, in presenting Monday the seventeenth annual report of the Hospital Standardization movement of the College, stated:

"Hospital care in the United States and Canada, despite trying economic conditions of the last five years, has shown a most gratifying improvement in service. Hospitals approved by the American College of Surgeons have been successful in their determined efforts to provide efficient care for the sick and injured."

Dr. Martin explained that a hospital to obtain approval must comply with certain definite requirements laid down by the American College of Surgeons. These include particularly the maintenance of organized medical staffs of ethical, competent physicians; complete medical records; adequate laboratory and x-ray facilities; and a thorough review and analysis of the clinical work of the hospital each month so as to carefully check up the results of the professional activities within the hospital, analyze, and seek to improve them. It is the aim of the American College of Surgeons to assist the medical profession and hospital in assuring to patients the best possible care.

Of 3,538 hospitals of 25 beds and over in the United States and Canada which were included this year in the survey of the American College of Surgeons, 2,480 won a place on the approved list.

"Two significant facts of much importance to the public are revealed in this year's survey," says Dr. Martin. "The death rate in hospitals is even below that of last year, and the period of hospitalization has been shortened. Results have improved despite the fact that patients coming to hospitals today usually arrive in a more serious state, with a more advanced condition than in former years, because of stringent economic conditions. More efficient medical and hospital services are evident also through a material reduction in the number of chronic or incurable patients."

"Medical and hospital service is making decided headway in its battle against disease, and is accomplishing truly wonderful achievements in its protection of the health and happiness of mankind."

The list of hospitals in this state which are complying with the requirements for approval and have been accorded a place on the approved list of the American College of Surgeons include the Bivings hospital in Big Spring.

DRIVER FALLS OFF WAGON, BUT NOT WATER

KENIA, O., (UP)—Clarence Bowermaster, 46, is driving his horse and wagon in peace, certain of his right to drive. It all started this way:

Bowermaster was arrested about 10 weeks ago charged with driving his automobile while intoxicated. He was fined, deprived of his driving rights for six months. Determined not to walk, he resuscitated a wagon and acquired a horse.

A few days ago, he drove down a main street. He fell from the wagon seat into the street. Police arrested him. Prosecutors strived in vain to find a statute against driving a horse and wagon while intoxicated. Municipal Judge F. L. Johnson fined Bowermaster $25.

"HIT-SKIP" DOG SENDS PEDESTRIAN TO HOSPITAL

CLEVELAND, (UP)—Police looked for a "hit-skip" police dog after a traffic accident in which a pedestrian was sent to Grace Hospital.

The dog's victim was Stephen Stana, 32, who received a possible fracture of the back.

The dog was standing in the street when an automobile driven by Hurley Brewer, 31, approached. Frightened by the oncoming auto, the dog leaped to the curb, striking Stana and hurling him to the street. Brewer stopped and took Stana to the hospital. The dog fled.

Cotton Tax Exemption Pool Is Making Good Headway In County

The cotton tax exemption pool has made good headway in this county within the past two days, County Agent O. P. Griffin disclosed Tuesday.

Tuesday noon tax exemption certificates on approximately 400,000 pounds of cotton had been transmitted to Washington. He said that certificates for another 100,000 pounds were on hand and would probably be transmitted Wednesday.

Transmittal of the certificates are wired to Washington, and in turn sections needing certificates are notified. Washington then cancels the certificates here, giving remuneration and issues new ones against them.

No more certificates can be issued that the number offered.

"Dyed For Dear Old Rutgers"

CHICAGO — Air express poundage took a decided jump on the eve of the football season as last minute orders for gridiron togs were shipped by plane to reach college teams in time for their first games.

Among the varsity squads whose uniforms moved by American Airlines' planes, were those of the University of Minnesota, Case, University of Arizona and Rutgers. It was indicated that jerseys in the latter shipment had been "dyed for dear old Rutgers."

Good Fellows!

In his latest starring vehicle, which comes to the Ritz today and tomorrow Richard Dix is said to essay the most difficult role of his career as a near do-well father who turns hero and in a sensational manner insures his daughter's happiness after it seems that she is doomed to a life of suppressed hopes.

The screen story, RKO-Radio's "His Greatest Gamble" pictures Dix as a gambler devoted to eight-year-old Alice, but he is separated from her when he unintentionally causes a death which sends him to jail for fifteen years.

Under the heartless custody of a social-mad mother, Alice evolves into a wishy-washy debutante in ten years. When the mother menaces the girl's romance with a worthy young man, her father sheds the law's fetters to come to her aid. He accomplished her rescue in a powerful and sympathetic climax.

Dorothy Wilson, Bruce Cabot, Erin O'Brien-Moore and Edith Fellows are featured.

C. C. CIRCLE MEETING
The Christine Coffee Circle will meet Wednesday afternoon at 3 o'clock at the home of Mrs. Viola Bowles.

A many-year record was set in the vicinity of St. Johnsbury, Vt., when there was no frost for the entire month of September. However, the second day in October, ice formed on brooks.

The heat wave of June, July and August was the direct cause of the deaths in Kansas, the secretary of the state board of health reported.

BASEBALL IS KING; NO RIVALS PERIL REGION

Prelanders to the throne may rise to brief glory and pass on, but baseball remains king of American sports, truly the national game, first in the affections and interest of the American people.

From March to October the diamond sport reigns supreme. And even through the long cold winter its fans avidly seek every morsel of news concerning their ball-tossing heroes.

By millions they jam into major and minor league and semi-pro parks during the summer, with the grand climax coming in the world series. Interest in baseball may be waning, but the figures don't show it. The season just closed was one of record profit in many cities.

Millions play golf, but even the greatest of golf matches draw galleries that are dwarfed by the throngs which pack even minor league stands.

One of the most torridly fought tennis tournaments in recent years drew a gate recently that would be on a fair weekday crowd at most major league baseball parks.

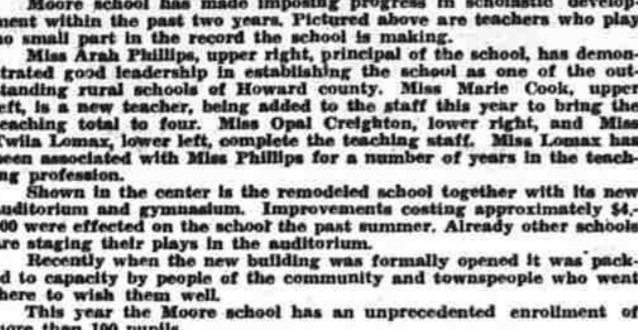

The America's Cup race, magnificent event though it was, attracted comparatively little interest among the rank and file of sporting fans.

Prize fight and wrestling fans are legion, but no one seriously considers either pastime a rival of baseball as an attraction.

Basketball has its devotees, but they are far in the minority the country over. Football, it is true, is a magnet for mammoth throngs—but for only eight or ten Saturdays in the year, while a winning baseball team pulls fans past the turnstiles for 154 games a season.

America is singularly blessed with clean sports, all of which have their place in the scheme of things. But there is only one national sport, without even a close rival, whether played in a magnificent major league plant or on a sandlot back of the warehouse—and that's baseball.

If there be doubters, let them watch the crowds before world series scoreboards and be convinced.

Two New Members Join Lucille Reagan Circle

The guests were: Clinton Rauh, Robert Hildreth, Virginia Tucker, Billy Smith, Woodrow Harris, James Vines, Jimmy Ford, James McCarty, Christine Robinson, Leroy Hayes.

Advance! Not Retreat!

WE MUST DEAL WITH DRINK FROM SOCIAL POINT OF VIEW

"We are hearing today that society has no right to regulate what have hitherto been regarded as personal habits," says Dr. Luther A. Weigle, in addressing the readers of the Federal Council Bulletin on "The New Paganism and the Coming Revival." Dr. Weigle, who is dean of the Yale Divinity School and chairman of the administrative committee of the Federal Council of Churches, believes that "the times demand of us, not the mere transmission of a moral and spiritual heritage, but creative thinking and adventurous action. We must labor and pray for insight and understanding to discern what is right, and for power to do the right, in this vastly complex world of our day. To this end, we must in all of our thinking and doing, consistently maintain a social point of view, and have courage to explore the possibilities of the social gospel."

... I cite the problems of drink and sex because they are so obvious, so challenging, and so fundamental. There is no hope of developing a conscience sensitive to the subtler evils of social injustice in the minds of men who can not think straight and live decently in these respects." The claims that these are personal habits, one's own business and in no sense an interest of society "are counsels that darken knowledge. It is as a necessary measure of social welfare and in defence of the common good that society passes laws prohibiting the liquor traffic, and expressing its interest in the integrity of marriage and family life. We must gain, keep, and refuse to surrender, the social point of view in dealing with these as well as the other perplexing, problems of our time. In the power of the spiritual of God let us meet the paganism of our day with a social gospel that is content to leave no part of life and no child of God outside of the Kingdom, with an educational program that enlists in the cause of Christ the whole range of human powers, and with an evangelism wide enough to include the full redemptive purpose of Him Who came that men might have life and have it abundantly."

Crop Feeding Demonstration At W. W. Brunson Ranch Next Friday

Announcement of a field day next Friday, October 19, at the L-7 Ranch of W. W. Brunson, nine miles southeast of Odessa, or about 15 miles southwest of Midland. The field day will be under auspices of Purina Mills, who have been conducting experimental work on crop feeding calves and the feeding of range cows. The demonstration will begin at 11 a. m. and at noon a free barbecue lunch will be served. The barbecue will be prepared by Mr. Brunson and other Midland ranchmen. After lunch a tour of the five pastures for an inspection of the cows and calves will be made.

E. R. Powell, head of the experimental ranch work for the Purina Mills, will be present to point out the interesting phases of these experiments and to give the figures on gains, costs, etc.

The purpose of this experiment has been two-fold: 1st: To get more accurate information on the value of crop feeding calves—what gains can be made and the cost of these gains—what effect creep feeding has on the cows and nursing calf crop—in general, whether it is profitable to creep feed calves under average ranch conditions; 2nd: To study the effects of different wintering feeds for cows.

The public is cordially invited to attend the demonstration by H. M. Neel, proprietor of the Big Spring Feed & Seed company, dealers of Purina products.

100th BIRTHDAY

The stout-hearted Texans who declared Independence on March 2, 1836, at Washington-on-the-Brazos would be filled with pride to know that their efforts have not gone unrequited. Texans, today, are stout-hearted! Today they prepare for a birthday of a hundred years of achievement on the battlefield and in peaceful achievement.

Texas is a land of romance, love and adventure; of progress and memories. This hundredth anniversary will link its airways, seaports, highways and railroads of today with the oleander and jasmine of old-world towns of yesterday!

Texas started on its road of independence at San Jacinto. She fought valiantly through the years for worldly recognition and now is going to give a birthday party for the world, whose respect she has earnestly desired and so courageously won!

All Americans everywhere revere the memory of the men who contributed to the growth of our common country. We invite them to join us in holding a fitting celebration of the one hundredth birthday of Texas.

Texas is the State it is! Because Texans have made it so! This is YOUR Celebration! It is YOUR State!

"Next to Advertising Matter"

THERE used to be a favorite phrase of advertisers. They asked to have their advertisements placed "next to reading matter" in the belief that such a position would assure more attention.

But today the editor might well ask to have his news items placed "next to advertising matter," for very definitely the advertisements have a tremendous reader following. Today's advertisements win eager attention because they help people buy intelligently, quickly, without waste of time, and get full value for the money spent.

That is the great function of advertising—to guide you swiftly and surely to wise, economical buying. The best advertisement is always the one that gives you the facts you want—simply, honestly, without exaggeration.

Chapter Nine
COACHING SILVER
Marian gave the reporter the bare story, being careful not to say anything that might destroy the possibility of getting down to the essentials of the tangle.

She also gave him Anne Stanton's name as the best intermediary, watching Silver twist and squirm in her effort to release herself from Hamilton's arms. Hamilton's face was a curious combination of interest and disgust.

"Hush, Silver," he repeated over and over. "Hush; it's better this way."
"It's a lie!" screamed Silver, but Marian, who had seen her struggle loose from her friend, placed her finger on the receiver and destroyed the connection.

For a moment it looked as if she would vent her fury on Marian, and again Max stepped in, shaking Silver as if she were a toy doll.
"For your own sake, Silver, calm down."
"But she lied."
"She certainly did," agreed Max. "That lie was a masterpiece. You ought to get down on your knees and thank her. She kept the world from knowing just what kind of a woman you are not. If that ex-husband of yours has a fighting chance for life, he'll make the grade. If he hasn't he'll go out happy."

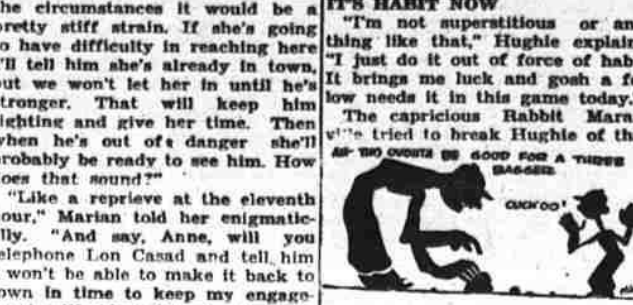

"You told me you wanted to be an actress. All right, here's your opportunity. Play up and I'll see you have a chance in my next show."
"Now let's sit down and discuss the future. But first I'm going to telephone the lodge and have them send over some hot coffee and sandwiches. That friend of yours looks like she's about to pass out on her heels."
Marian didn't need a second invitation to slip into a chair before the hearth. Now that her story was in, the scene with Silver over, she felt physically and emotionally exhausted. She knew there were things she should do. Help Estes with his pictures. She knew he had taken exterior, had seen the flash of his light with its muffled report. And she should wire Lon Casad that she wouldn't be able to see him that night.

"Now, Miss Gordon," Max had seated himself opposite her, the subbed Silver between them, "do you think the other newspapers will send up their representatives?"
"They may," Marian answered. "The Haddons represented one of the oldest, finest families in the state, and Cliff was the last of the line. Silver's father has been an important figure in politics, and she's been copy ever since she was born."
"Then we'd better coach Silver to uphold your version of this tragedy."
"Please," Marian intercepted. "You asked me if I were here as a friend or a reporter. I wonder if it wouldn't be fair for me to ask a similar question. Are you here as a friend or a flake? I don't even know your name."
"Touche," murmured Max. "My name is Hamlin. I am merely a friend. I came up here to take the matrimonial cure. It is permanent. My wife, or ex-wife, doesn't like cold weather, so I obliged her by getting a divorce for desertion, while she went to Florida to be with her next—er, husband."
"My interest is more or less impersonal. I started my play-writing career by being a stage manager, and I've never recovered from the desire to pull strings and watch the puppets dance."
"Thank you," Marian smiled at his frankness. "Then would you mind pulling a couple of those strings to make Silver pose for a picture?"
Hamilton turned to Silver, thought a moment, then spoke. "Miss Gordon has given you a chance of playing the lead in a clean drama... or shopping what a poor sport a spoiled woman can be."
"You believe Mr. Haddon did this to spite you; to make the world believe you drove him to do it. The best way you can check that impression is by acting the part of a lovable, misunderstood woman, ready to forgive and—"
"But, Max," protested Silver. "I don't want to go back to him. I'm through with him."
"He may not be there to go back to. Good heavens, girl, if he is alive can't you be woman enough to stand by until he's out of danger?"
"I... well but I won't fly back. I'm afraid."
"You may not have to go at all. Remember, Ready now for some pictures!"
"... maybe I'd better change," she faltered, and Marian looked away, afraid the contempt she felt would show in her face. "A dark dress, don't you think, with a little white around the throat, sort of school-girl looking?"
She hurried away, and Hamilton and Marian exchanged glances. Then both of them laughed.
"You call in your photographer, I'll call the emergency hospital," he said.
By the time Estes and Marks entered the call was through, and Hamilton motioned Marian to the telephone.
"Jenny," Marian said to the hospital switchboard operator, "this is Marian Gordon of the Dispatch. How is Mr. Haddon... oh, her breath caught in a quick gasp, "Is Anne Stanton there? Please put her on the wire."
Marian waited in breathless suspense for Anne's voice to come over the wire.
Then, "Hi, Jan," came the cheery greeting, "what did I tell you about saving a man's life? I did it but I grinned, and now they won't give me credit."
"Anne, be yourself," Marian laughed in relief at the message. "You mean, I suppose, that Haddon will live?"

"It's this way, Haddon had a fighting chance to live, but he wouldn't fight. He kept sinking and sinking until we started counting the minutes. Then someone telephoned a message that his ex-wife sent her love, and wanted him to put up a good battle and that she was going to fly here to be with him."
"Well, Jan, he was going down for the third time when I put this message across to him. You should have seen the change. His eyes opened, and, gosh, you should have seen the light in them. From that moment on he started picking up. If he can stand a blood transfusion later on he's all to the good."
"What did you say?" she asked, for Haddon had given an inarticulate gasp. She was realizing the responsibility she had assumed in her unsolicited usurping of Silver's rights. Suppose Silver refused to carry on?
"You said," she said, "what effect will it have on him if Silver isn't able to reach him for... say forty-eight hours?"
"Better for him if she can't," Anne returned. "I imagine under the circumstances it would be a pretty stiff strain. If she's going to have difficulty in reaching here I'll tell him she's already in town, but we won't let her in until he's stronger. That will keep him fighting and give her time. Then when he's out of danger she'll probably be ready to see him. How does that sound?"
"Like a reprieve at the eleventh hour," Marian told her enigmatically. "And say, Anne, will you telephone Lon Casad and tell him I won't be able to make it back to town in time to keep my engagement with him? Thanks. See you in a couple of days."
As she turned from the telephone a servant from the lodge appeared with a tray, and from the inner door appeared Silver, a demure figure in dark blue, a wide white plique collar giving her the appearance of just having stepped from a convent.
After she had posed for innumerable photographs to the satisfaction of Estes (and, Marian believed, herself) the four of them gathered about the table Hamlin had spread.
Relaxed, Marian listened to the clock strike four and to the roar

What the baseball fan calls superstitions, but what Hughie Critz calls habits stamps the tiny second baseman of the New York Giants one of the most interesting players in the game.
Superstitions or habits, whichever they are, Hughie believes they wield some occult influence over the gods of baseball. Without them he would be inconsolable. The older of these habits involves his rival second baseman's glove. After his team has been at bat and takes its position on the field, Hughie always holds up the ceremonial while he goes to the outfield turf, picks up his rival's glove, squeezes it with his right hand and then tosses it back on the grass.
The public health service operates 25 marine hospitals for seamen with a total capacity of 5,300 beds. Alaska's coast line is longer than that of the United States.
From 638 whales two companies derived more than 25,000 barrels of oil and 2,000 tons of by-products this season.
Prof. A. B. Sperry, head of the geology department of Kansas State College, warned farmers normal ground water conditions following the drought might not return for two years.

IT'S HABIT NOW
"I'm not superstitious or anything like that," Hughie explains. "I just do it out of force of habit. It brings me luck and gosh a fellow needs it in this game today."
The capricious Rabbit Maranville tried to break Hughie of that habit and if it wasn't that the little Mississippian has a fleet pair of legs he might have succeeded. After doing a turn at second for the Boston Braves, the Rabbit, instead of dropping his glove behind the bag, tucked it away in his hip pocket and proceeded to his team's dugout.
Critz went out to the bag and looked around for the mitt. Not finding it, he sensed foul play and just as the Giant pitcher was getting ready to oppose the first batter, Hughie yelled for time and raced across the field to the Braves' den. He rushed up to Maranville, spun him around, spotted the glove, laid a heavy right hand on it, gave it the customary squeeze and then galloped back to second.

WEIGHS HIM DOWN
The other habit has to do with pobbles. He acquires them from the base paths and stores them away in his pants pocket. When it's Hughie's turn to bat he always can be seen sticking that right paw into the pocket. When Hughie isn't playing baseball he spends his time on his 648-acre cotton plantation in Greenwood, Miss. That's where he is now, and along with the rest of the cotton growers, he's lamenting over the price he gets for his product.

District Dads To Confer Here
 A district 8 pow-wow will be held this afternoon at 8:30 p. m. in the Settles Hotel.
 The meeting was called in order that each school might make a thorough check of the other to prevent eligibility squabbles later in the season.
 George H. Gentry, chairman of the committee, said that nothing in particular had been brought up. However, not all of the records were cleared up at the last meeting, and it was decided to get all doubt out of mind.
 Big Spring, Sweetwater, San Angelo, Colorado and McCamey will be represented here.

Santone Was Dean's Start
Reston Discusses That Great Dean Combination
 EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the first of a series of six intimate articles on Dizzy Dean and Daffy Dean, St. Louis Cardinals pitchers. The story of their early home life and experiences in the minors will be discussed in the other installments.
 By JAMES B. RESTON
 Associated Press Sports Writer
 Four years ago, the American Comedy writer, director, actor and publicist, Dizzy and Daffy Dean, was playing in a vacant lot in San Antonio, Texas.
 In the supporting cast were numerous large, lusty individuals, whose courage was attested by their willingness to risk their necessary necks swinging at the pitches of the Deans.
 And in the audience one day was a scout of the St. Louis Cardinals, who blinked every time a great, gangling country boy sent the dirt ball thumping into the catcher's glove. At the end of the game, he approached the pitcher and discovered that his name was Jerome Dean and that he was in the army, quartered at Fort Sam Houston.
 Oh, Those Banquets!
 Today the army posters proclaim: "The Army Trained Him," but the honor "training" Dizzy Dean, if he is trained, properly belongs: 1—to Branch Rickey, vice-president and general manager of the Cards, who has talked to him and disciplined him and fathered him; 2—to Joe Schultz, manager of the Houston club in the Texas league who called him, among other things in 1930, "Dizzy" and broke him of the habit of riding a bicycle between innings; 3—to Al Todd, a catcher on the Dallas club in 1930, now with the Phillies, who used violence to teach him that he should throw the ball across the plate and not at the batter's head, 4—to his wife, who astounds the players in the National league by insisting that he take her on all road trips; and 5—to Clarence Lloyd, the Cardinals' traveling secretary, who pointed out the difference between soup spoons and tea spoons, and suggested that he wear his coat when eating in the main dining rooms of swanky hotels.
 "Me an Henry"
 Since the vacant lot days, Brother Paul has followed Dizzy to the name Daffy because it fits in headlines and rhymes with Dizzy—and has led critics to believe that he is even a better pitcher in his first year than Dizzy was when he came up.
 Between them, they have won a National league pennant and a world series for the Cardinals, and have made the American Comedy show the most successful show in the entertainment business today.
 So great was the excitement over their season's performance that Bradenton, Fla., the Cards' winter training quarters, displayed its enthusiasm and assured the Cards' manager by changing its name to Deannville. A judge in San Juan, Puerto Rico, declared a recess so that court attendants could watch a scoreboard description of their triumph. A new born baby in Detroit was named Marvin Dean Gonda. Dizzy told members of the Byrd expedition in Little America how easy it was for him to beat the Tigers. And Henry Ford and Will Rogers were Dizzy's guests in St. Louis. "Me an Henry's pals," says Dizzy.
 "I Was Robbed!"
 In 1931, when with the Houston club, he managed one night to get a few dollars ahead and started out to correct this unusual situation. It took him longer than he expected and he was on the streets of Wichita Falls, Kans., where the club was playing, at the iniquitous hour of 3 a. m. And not only that, but he bumped into J. Alvin Gardner, president of the league.
 "Good morning, president," beamed Dizzy. "So the old boy is prowling around himself tonight, eh? Well, sir, I'm not one to squawk. Us stars and presidents must have our fun!"
 "This'll cost you 10 dollars," roared Gardner. And to Dizzy's surprise, it did.
 Who's His Anyway?
 At the very start of his popularity, he gave a different birthday and birthplace on several occasions. When he first joined the Cards, he said he was born in Holdenville, Oklahoma, on January 16, 1910. Later he claimed he was born in Lucas, Arkansas, and subsequently gave his birthday as August 14, 1913; July 1, 1912, and November 9, 1911.
 It was pointed out to him that one of these, August 14, 1913, was Daffy's birthday and he was asked, if they were twins. "No," Dizzy

Baylor Cubs Play Texas Polliwogs
 WACO, (Sp.)—A new era in freshmen football will be inaugurated at Baylor University when the Baylor Cubs take the field against the Texas Christian University Polliwogs Thursday night, Oct. 18, in Waco.
 Heretofore, the scope of opponents for the Baylor freshman has been limited to junior colleges for the most part. But this year a new conference ruling was passed, allowing the freshmen teams of Southwest conference schools to contract for games among themselves. However, three games remain the limit for these fresh teams.
 This week's game between the T.C.U. and Baylor frosh, besides guaranteeing plenty of action and real football, is expected to draw a large crowd because of the novelty of it.
 Both teams have a wealth of material, the deciding factor in the game being the fight displayed by the teams and also their coaching. Up to this time, the Bearslets have not offered too much hope on the offense, but have undoubtedly a powerful defensive team.
 Besides this game with the Polliwogs, the Cubs are scheduled to meet the College of Marshall team at Marshall and then they journey to Dallas after three weeks interim to oppose the Southern Methodist freshmen. Both games promise to be hard fought and close.

Baylor Bears Rounding Out
Waco Team Plays Hardin-Simmons At Abilene Saturday
 WACO (Sp.)—Taking no chances on the forthcoming game with Hardin-Simmons University Cowboys at Abilene next Saturday the Baylor Bears are getting ready for the clash with pep and dash. Out of a numerous assortment of brushes, the Bears suffered no harmful effects from their hard battle with the University of Arkansas Razorbacks last Saturday.
 The possibilities are that an unusual amount of scrimmage will be the lot of the Bruins as Coach Morley Jennings attempts to smooth out the rough spots in the Green and Gold offense.
 Hal Finley, promising sophomore half-back, is suffering from an injured ankle sustained in practice session last week. However, he is expected to be in fine shape for the trip to Abilene, and should contribute a lot to the Baylor offense. Warren Weathers, co-captain and tackle, has a slightly wrenched knee as a badge of the Forker tussle, but the injury is not considered serious. The Bears should be able to throw their entire strength at the Cowboys next Saturday, and if they do, it will be a show worth traveling some distance to witness.
 The game Saturday with Arkansas was a battle between two powerful lines, and the Baylor line proved itself the equal of the vaunted Forker forward wall. The teams were dead-locked until late in the third quarter, when Joe Jack Pearce attempted to break the scoreless record with a daring lateral pass. The play backfired, however, and Arkansas took the ball on Baylor's five yard line from which point they scored the only touchdown of the contest. It was a bad break, and not bad generalship, and the Bears are not in the least discouraged.

Forsan Boys And Girls Down Garden City
 Forsan was the lucky one Friday evening when they walked over Garden City 32-24. This is the boys' first game and we are mighty glad to see that they really are at work. We just hope a good beginning won't mean a poor ending; however if they continue their good work, someone will have to buy Martin a new slide trombone. White has most of his old players back so we are expecting a fine year. Those coming out for basketball this year are: James Maddox, Redford Likes, Bobby Ashbury, John Champ Adams, La Voice Scudday, Jody Diester, Edgar Chambers and James Thompson.
 The girls scored another victory for Forsan at 20-8. They haven't had much practice but they did fine playing. Martin is in charge of their team. Those playing this year are: Maxine Thompson, Minnie Lee Campbell, Imogene and Lucille Wilson, Vivian Fern Caldwell, Eltha McCas, Grace Tenyson and Leona Sarver.
 Free tickets to the tent show were to be given to the winning teams, therefore Forsan girls and boys will get to attend the show one night next week anyway.

Young Lady In First Solo Cross Country Flight
 Miss Hope Aspell, of London, England, formerly of Tucson, Arizona, spent Monday night in Big Spring, enroute to Tucson in her private Waco single-seater biplane. She encountered engine trouble here Monday afternoon, and remained over for the night while the ship was being repaired. Miss Aspell left Long Island Aviation Country club in New York last Saturday on her first solo cross-country flight for Tucson, her former home, where she will spend several days with relatives before returning by plane to New York, and thence to London, England, where she is now residing.

Home Talent Show Is To Be Given Here
 Big Spring is going to break out into another of those home talent plays that featured the good, old pre-depression days. A play with Mrs. Ray Lawrence, who starred in the old days as Dorothy Levering, and the inimitable Ray Simmons, in the two leading roles, with a perfectly splendid supporting cast.
 The play is going to be given at the new Municipal Auditorium and is being sponsored by the City Federation. Miss Sue Lamb of the Wayne P. Sewell Producing Co., of Atlanta, Ga. is in town to promote the show.
 Miss Lamb says: "This play is one of the peppiest, most colorful, most useful, most hilarious and most original of any musical comedy off the regular vaudeville circuit."
 It's name is "Oh, Professor," and it is cheeky, full, say those who know it, of the funny, silly stunts that people can pull off. Besides an all-star local cast of popular performers, it features a children's chorus, a mixed chorus, dancers.
 Everybody loves music and everybody loves comedy. "Oh, Professor" is a side-splitting comedy with music in just the right places.
 The show will be given on October 24th. There will be two performances, a matinee in the afternoon at 4 o'clock and an evening show at 8 o'clock, both at popular prices.

Local Man Sees Deciding Game Of Series In Detroit
 John L. Herschbach of the Herschbach Petroleum company has returned from St. Louis and Detroit, where he attended world series games between the St. Louis Cardinals and the Detroit Tigers. Mr. Herschbach traveled via American Airlines, returning here Saturday morning.
 "The seventh and deciding game of the series played at Detroit," said Herschbach, "was by far the best game of the series from a Cardinals standpoint. The superb pitching by Dizzy Dean and the batting attack of the Redbirds were the highlights in addition to the demonstration against left fielder Medwick."
 Ernie Orsatti, center fielder of the Cards, accompanied by his mother, were aboard the same plane with Mr. Herschbach, en route from St. Louis to Los Angeles.

Sweetwater Plans Big Special Train
 SWEETWATER — Plans were being started Tuesday to insure a full train when the Sweetwater special pulls from the T & F depot shortly after noon Friday, carrying Mustang football fans to Big Spring for the Sweetwater-Big Spring game that afternoon.
 While it definitely has been assumed that at least 250 fans, including the pep squad and band, will ride the special train, leaders want at least 600 to make the trip in support of the local football team.
 This is to be the only special train to be operated from here this season during the regular football season, and those backing the movement are wanting Sweetwater to make the best showing possible.

ORIO HEALTH OFFICER FINDS NEW TYPHOID GERM
CHILLICOTHE, O. (UP)—A new germ, related to the typhoid fever group, has been discovered here by L. M. Allwardt, bacteriologist of the Chillicothe and Ross county health departments, after long research.

Dr. Morris Fishbein, editor of the Journal of the American Medical Society, described the germ as evidently an atypical member of the typhoid group. Medical society researchers have been unable to find any previous report on the particular type of bacillus discovered by Allwardt, he said.

Allwardt began his research when investigating an apparent epidemic here last June. The usual method of typhoid immunization was not effective against the disease. Allwardt induced the disease in animals and produced an effective immunizing agent.

The findings will be reported in The American Public Health association publication for November.

YUGOSLAVIA CLAIMING CENTENARIAN RECORD
BELOGRADE, Yugoslavia—Yugoslavia claims to have more centenarians than any other country in the world of equal size. More than 60 per cent of the native Montenegrins are men.

The country's oldest woman is 106. She is Marijeta Kristnich and lives on a little Dalmatian island with her goats, chickens, dogs and cats. Like Mahatma Gandhi, she lives largely on goat's milk, to which she attributes her long life. She smokes a pipe, as do many Balkan peasant women, but never touches alcohol. She has never seen a lipstick, nor has she ever listened to the radio or seen the movies.

Protest Schools' Coal-Buying
TILTONVILLE, O. (UP)—NRA coal code officials here have declared they will break a contract by which local schools are buying coal at a mine in sight of three of the schools for $2.05 a ton. They claim the schools must pay $2.50, the NRA price, with or without contract.

Passengers Enjoyed Free Ride
MALDEN, Mass. (UP)—A free ride was enjoyed by all the passengers in George L. Caffarella's bus. While discharging a passenger, an oil truck struck the rear of the bus and aroused Caffarella's anger. Determined to get his man, he chased the truck driver a mile before he could make him halt.

that even if there should be an ultimate loss to the government it would be far outweighed by the general public gain. He wants to see modern houses in which can be installed latest heating equipment, air-conditioning and many other comforts sale of which will help immeasurably to get heavy industry going.

The repair drive bogged down before it even got started when opponents of FHA spread the word that borrowers would be actually paying 9.75 per cent interest instead of the advertised 5 per cent. This was true if the intangibles of installment buying were used in the computation.

In the new-home campaign the public will be offered an actual rate of 5 per cent, plus an additional half of one per cent for insurance. Payments may be made over a period of 10 to 20 years.

Efforts will continue to interest present home-owners in borrowing for repair work but the big push will be new homes.

went to the Mt. Atry, N. C. auction market a few days ago and sold his first basket of tobacco. The price he got almost stunned him and he promptly called on all those around him to join in prayer. It went as follows:
"Lord, I want to thank you for that air man up there in Washington. I don't know his name but Lord we all know he has fetched us some pay for our work for the first time in five years. Please Oh Lord spare me to live long enough to show him my thanks for voting for him next time, and if you can Dear Lord please I wish you would forgive me for voting like I did two years ago. Amen."

Caution—
The American Federation of Labor always exerts a powerful lobby in the halls of Congress but its job is cut out for them to put over any 30-hour-week legislation next January.

Senator Hugo Black, of Ala., finally lost out with such a bill last session only because the White House refused to give it a friendly nod. The endorsement of Madame Secretary of Labor Perkins helped it through the Senate but it got smothered in the House.

Black's bill will be back in again next time but that final bit of support he needs will still be lacking. Or so say many very close to President Roosevelt.

In the meantime he will try to work down hours by degrees thru NRA and the utilization of public sentiment.

NEW YORK
By James McMullin

Anti—
The utilities remain more implacably anti-New Deal than any other financial or business element. Most other branches of conservative industry are edging into a sort of reluctant cooperation with Washington and even the bankers have tactfully decided there are healthier pastimes than defying the lightning. But most utility leaders still firmly believe that either the New Deal's hide or their own must be nailed to the wall.

There's a sharp division of opinion in inner utility circles as to whether the time is ripe to take their case openly to the public. So far the Noes have it—on the theory that public opinion has been too thoroughly steeped in the idea that utility companies are a bunch of iniquitous profiteers to believe anything to the contrary.

That's why the Edison Electric Institute—supposed to be the mouthpiece for the industry—has kept so mum. It's also why Tom McCarter—President of the Institute—isn't entirely happy.

McCarter is a scrapper from the word go. He sincerely believes the utilities have been given the works and insiders will tell you he wanted to start a rip-roaring campaign to prove it. Other directors of the Institute spotted his fun by clamping on the soft pedal. But those who heard him at a recent meeting of the Empire State Gas and Electric association—where reporters were barred—say his views are none the less vitriolic because he has to confine them to the bosom of the family.

activities as a perfectly legitimate form of self-defense against annihilation.

Unionization—
If organized labor decides to try to unionize the utilities in a big way it may be surprised to find how little resistance it encounters from the employer's end.

While utility leaders wouldn't exactly welcome the closed shop there are lots of things that worry them more. Some of them even feel that unionization would do them more good than harm. They figure this way: If an employe group demands higher wages the thing to do is to sic them on the nearest rate-making body and tell them the company will gladly pay more wages if it can get better rates. That makes the labor group their ally and they hope it that labor would get a more sympathetic hearing from a public service commission than they would themselves.

They also have an idea there would be fewer attacks on utilities if strongly organized unions were convinced that such attacks jeopardized their members' jobs.

Most utility companies have been remarkably free from labor trouble—largely because wages have been kept at a fairly high level. This is a matter of practical mathematics—not altruism. An executive remarks it would be silly to try to cut wage costs when any saving thus effected would be promptly offset by an order to reduce rates correspondingly.

The date is Wednesday for the Ritz Theatre's Midnight Show and Spook Party. The doors will open at 11 p. m. and the show will start at 11:30 sharp.

On the screen, before the stage show, will be shown "City Park," starring Sally Blaine. Following this EL-WYN'S Stage Show will be presented. Wyn is known as the "Ghost Man" and there will be mystery, laughs, thrills and fun for everyone except those with jittery nerves, especially when the ghost leaves the stage and starts roaming through the audience. There will be spirit slate writing, table raising, ghostly rappings, talking skulls and countless other features without which seances would be incomplete. This will be the first opportunity for many people to sit in on a seance about which many wonder and few see.

This is Big Spring's most unusual entertainment and "Spook Parties" are now being planned as people are preparing to attend in groups rather than in couples or alone. It will be more fun with a crowd, and probably you will be glad to have some one to go along with after EL-WYN and the Ritz Theatre are through with you for the night, and have scared you and everyone else to death.

Returned to Honeymoon Hotel

NEOSHO, Mo. (UP)—An old man walked into the hotel here and registered. The hotel clerk talked to him and found that, 30 years ago, he and his bride spent their honeymoon there, vowing to return to celebrate their golden wedding anniversary. Although the wife had died, her husband returned on the date and filled his room with flowers. He did not give his name.

BROTHER TRIES TO SAW AWAY HIS HALF OF HOUSE

GREEN SPRINGS, O. (UP)—When two brothers failed to agree upon division of a house they own here, one decided to "take his share." Taking a saw, he started to cut the building in two, gave it up as a bad job and then removed half the roof and siding.

Appraisers learned his story when they inspected the house to value it for sale in connection with partition proceedings filed by H. A. Pontius. The house, valued at $3,200 previously, was valued after inspection at $1,800.

Idaho Nimrods Ready for Deer

BOISE, Idaho (UP)—Idaho deer hunters, whose 30-day season ends during the first week of November, are expected to kill between 3,000 and 5,000 animals before conclusion of the hunting period.

False Fire Alarms Increased

BOSTON—False fire alarms in Boston have increased 1400 per cent since 1921. Police blame hoodlums for the huge gain. During a recent month, 454 per cent of all fire alarms were false.

Personally Speaking
Rufus Elliott, formerly of the West Texas National bank, is now of Greenville, where he is in the sales department of the Texas company, was a visitor in Big Spring Tuesday. He was accompanied by Mr. Dowell. They were en route to El Paso on a business mission.

Mr. and Mrs. Jess Maxwell of Dallas, accompanied by the latter's sister, Miss Virginia Edwards of Austin, arrived Tuesday and are guests of Mr. and Mrs. J. Henry Edwards on Lexington avenue. Miss Edwards will leave Wednesday morning via American Airlines for Los Angeles.

H. S. Faw of the sales department of the Texas Electric Service company attended a sales meeting in Lamesa Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Soath, former residents of Big Spring, but now residing in Lubbock, were visitors in Big Spring Tuesday.

C. E. Cameron, manager of the Texas Electric Service company at Lamesa, passed through Big Spring Tuesday morning en route to Abilene, where his father was reported critically ill.

Mrs. H. B. Robb of Dallas is visiting her mother, Mrs. Dell Hatch, for several days.

Miss Cloda Slagle has returned from a vacation trip to Fort Worth and Cleburne, where she has been visiting relatives and friends.

"CREMATION" CERTIFICATE ISSUED FOR BAKED SCRIP
CLEVELAND, (UP)—A certificate of cremation for $90 in City of Cleveland scrip was issued by Assistant City Law Director Alfred Lawrence. At the same time, but separately, Citizens Fred L. Hardman and L. L. Banks appeared at the city cashier's office with the charred remains of a package of scrip certificates.

Banks had three $5 certificates, baked nearly black. Hardman had 15 $5 certificates, baked brown. He had put the 15 certificates into a small strongbox into an oven for safekeeping. One cold morning, someone started a fire in the stove and the scrip was cooked.

New scrip was given both men. The certificate of cremation, issued by Lawrence, was filed in the city's scrip account against the time that the scrip will be redeemed.

Defense—
Even though the utilities emulate the Sphinx in public their backstage assault on the New Deal is gathering potent momentum. They are simply using sapping tactics instead of going over the top. They are making the utmost use of political and financial contacts skillfully developed over a span of years. Politicians of both parties—have been enlisted by the hundreds. Every organization set up to combat New Deal tendencies gets open-handed—if camouflaged—assistance.

A surprisingly large amount of anti-administration publicity—though it may have no more to do with utilities than the man in the moon—is inspired by utility generalship. There's no way of telling how much power companies have spent but you can safely bet it runs to money that Croesus wouldn't sniff at. Utility men regard such

Saving—
If you remember Postmaster General Farley's lusty shouts about how much money his new airmail set-up was saving you might be amused to know that he's about faced—and why. The demon economist found he was saving too much and was likely to have a sizable chunk of his airmail appropriation left unspent. So he's been quietly adding more mail runs on established lines.

An observer remarks: "He'd better pay 'em. It would look kind of bad if some of these 9-cent-a-mile outfits dumped his airmail system in a bankruptcy court."

MCKINLEY HOMESTEAD MAY BE REHABILITATED
CANTON, O. (UP)—Action by City Council on proposed razing of the homestead of the late President William McKinley has been deferred in hope that the old mansion yet can be rehabilitated. Condemned by Health Department officials as a nuisance and literally falling to pieces from decay after standing uncaared for on its present site for several years, the famous home has been branded as an eyesore to the city and a disgrace to the memory of the martyred president. From it President McKinley conducted his famous "front porch" campaign.
