of each House.

The first test on Tidelands in Congress occurred back in 1946 when the House voted 188 to 67 in favor of a bill to confirm ownership of tidelands in the States. The Senate passed by a vote of 44 to 34. President Truman promptly vetoed it and that was the end of that effort.

The next Congress — the 80th — saw a renewed effort to force a Tidelands bill through that would be able to withstand a veto. But it turned out to be an abortive effort. The House did its part by voting 257 to 29 to quitclaim and Federal interest in Tidelands, so far as mineral rights were concerned. The bill went to the Senate and a determined fight, led by Senator Donnell of Missouri (defeated in last year's election) succeeded in blocking Senate action, and that was all for that session.

Then came a period of rumored compromises and later the Supreme Court acted on the Texas case. By a 4-to-3 decision, the Court held that Texas did not own its tidelands even though that ownership was specifically retained in our annexation agreement, and even though the coastal area was described by metes and bounds in the Constitution of Texas.

Now, the issue is again before the Congress. Led by Congressman Ed Gossett of Wichita Falls, a Member of the House Judiciary Committee, the fight has already begun to get a new Tidelands bill out of that Committee and to the Floor of the House. When that is done the measure should pass the House in a walk. Indications are that it will do well in the Senate this time. Observers believe there's a fair chance to even override a veto this year. It'll be a long, hard fight, but Texans will never relax their efforts to undo a grievous wrong that smacks of judicial robbery.

INDICATIONS ARE a Tidelands bill will be reported by the House Judiciary Committee before long. When that is done, the measure will be acted upon by the House, then the Senate, and finally by the President. If and when passed, the President has indicated he will veto it. Then will come the real test — the question of overriding the veto. That will take a two-thirds vote

"THE FRIENDLY BANK"

PAST - PRESENT - FUTURE....

All Three Should Be Considered When You Choose Your Bank

PAST HISTORY — of your bank is important because age brings seasoned judgement, broad perspective and intimate knowledge of the background of business situations.

PRESENT FACILITIES — of your bank are important because they are the gauge of your bank's ability to serve you efficiently. Our bank offers a complete banking service, which is modern and in tune with Santa Anna.

FUTURE — of your banking connection is important to the man of business that looks ahead, because a strong bank can prove of vital value in helping an individual or enterprise succeed.

God Invented Us Lesson for April 1, 1951

"GOD INVENTED US," says C. S. Lewis about the universe. It is a 20th-century way of saying what the Bible says about God and the world. There have been whole religions based on the idea that God is good and spirit is good, but anything which is not God or not spirit is bad. If this were true, then our bodies would be bad, and all the physical world about us would be bad; our souls would be prisoners, so to speak, in a vast fortress of evil.

This is not the truth the Bible tells. The story of Creation in Genesis tells us that when God had finished with making the world he saw that it was good, very good. He invented the world, he invented spirit and matter both, he invented its body and soul. Whatever evil is now in the world and in man did not come from God. It is not a mistake of God's. The world, as God invented it and intends it, is good.

The World Did not Happen THE Christian church has changed some of its ideas about creation, but it has never ceased to believe in creation. Very few churches, if any, now affirm that the world was created in precisely six 24-hour days, and still fewer would be willing to name the dates on which creation took place.

Nevertheless, the Christian church has not given up, and will not give up, her belief that God created all things. The doctrine of creation means, first of all, that the one God willed the universe and what is in it.

The universe did not happen, it did not make itself. It was not made by different gods, working against one another. Zoroastrianism, for instance, teaches that the world was made by two gods, one of light and one of darkness. Whatever the god of light created, the god of darkness would make something exactly opposite. No Jews and Christians alike say, there is only one Creator, the infinitely wise and good God.

Nature's Laws NON-RELIGIOUS philosophers have sometimes said that the world explains itself. But Christian philosophers, not to mention Jewish ones as well, have seen that the world does not explain itself. There is too much evidence of purpose and design running through the patterns of the universe. Definite laws can be discovered and to some degree understood.

The same laws which govern matter and life, space and time, indeed the very same elements, the "building-blocks of the universe," are to be discovered in the remotest stars. If the universe were an accident, it would

It would not be a universe of law but one in which nothing could be counted on, nothing expected. It would be no universe but a multiverse, a mad world, indeed no world at all but an infinite confusion.

Why Are We Here?

BUT CREATION means something more personal. It means that we ourselves have been called into existence by the Almighty, not by a god of mere sheer power, but by the one God of infinite and all-powerful Love. Man is not here on this planet by some trick of blind fate, mankind is not a mere fleck of foam tossed up by the restless ocean of the Infinite, soon to be washed away in the ebbing tides. Man—that means also, we ourselves—are God's invention.

We are not now as he intended us, to be sure; sin has changed the picture sadly, as we shall be thinking next week.

Why are we here? We are here because God put us here. This means that life has a meaning; but also that we cannot find that meaning without knowing the will of God. His will is for our welfare; only the Creator knows what is best for his creatures. God intended this world to be used by us, not abused.

When any man or group of men get the notion that this world belongs to them alone, or when one generation misuses the resources of the lands and the waters, leaving to their descendants a wasted earth, then God's will in creation is being defied. But when we take his will as life's guide, we are on the way to fulfilling his purpose in Creation.

Washington News Letter

By Congressman O. C. Fisher FOR LAST WEEK

FORBIDDINGS OF ECONOMY on non-essentials by the present Congress were seen by some observers in House skirmishes on bills voted on last week.

The House voted against a Reorganization measure which would have cut from 60 to 25 days the time during which the House or Senate could approve or disapprove emergency reorganization plans, submitted by the President under the Hoover Commission program. I voted with a majority in defeating the proposition. It was felt the Executive should have powers in that regard and that the present emergency does not justify a change in the existing law. As one man put it: "Ah, emergency, what sins are committed in thy name!"

The President's plan to reorganize the RFC along the line of Hoover Commission recommendations was approved. It would place responsibility for the administration in RFC in one head instead of the present divided authority. In addition, it would set up a Loan Policy Board to determine general RFC policies on granting loans, and a Review Policy Board would screen applications for loans in excess of $100,000. I voted for this plan, although it is hoped we may later have a chance to vote on liquidation of RFC — which I favor.

The Reconstruction Finance Corporation was created as a depression agency and served a good purpose for a long time, but with little cost to the taxpayers. But more recently evidence of loans being obtained in Washington through influence-peddlers rather than on sound banking principles has been exposed, and justification for the continued life of the agency has been brought into question. Actually most individuals and concerns can now obtain needed loans, if they are justified, from banks and other private lending agencies. So here's another way to economize on a non-essential project. Essential RFC functions could easily be transferred to other government lending agencies.

THE THIRD BILL voted on last week — a Defense Housing measure — was rejected by the House. It was so drawn that much non-essential spending and waste could conceivably have resulted, estimated to cost up to three billion dollars. The bill would have permitted the President to have designated any area he might choose, without justifying reasons, as a defense housing area and permit the Government to go into those places and build houses, streets, sewer systems, recreational facilities, hospitals, day care centers, schools and everything that is needed in a community. The sky would be the limit on where, when and how much Uncle Sam could spend on such projects. I voted with a majority in disapproving this vast spending proposal. Another housing bill to meet any actual unfilled defense area needs is now under study by the committee which reported the measure that was defeated.

IF FREIGHT AND TRAVEL volume serve as a barometer of the expansion of our economy, Dr. Walter W. M. Splawn, the Texas on the Interstate Commerce Commission, told a dramatic story in a few words and figures when he spoke to the Texas delegation luncheon last week. From 1939 to 1949 the ton miles of freight moved in this country jumped from 527 billion tons to 870 billion. In trucks alone it skyrocketed from 44 to 94 billion. Bus travel went from five to 20 billion ton miles from 1939 to 1949. The biggest gain, though, was noted in airway travel when the 1949 volume exceeded the 1939 figure six-fold. It jumped from six billion ton miles in 1949 to eight billion last year, and is still zooming.

Speaking of Dr. Splawn, he is a former President of Texas University and has served for a round two decades on the ICC. Widely regarded as one of the Nation's leading authorities on transportation, he is every bit a Texan and numbers personal friends and admirers by the thousands. Speaker Sam Rayburn eulogized Dr. Splawn as the man whose views have for years been the most respected on Capitol Hill on subjects pertaining to his specialty.

'Porkey' Good Kitchen Aid FOR preparation of sandwiches and salads, there's nothing like a handy "Porkey the Pig." This "Porkey" cutting board is a real "toughy"; that's because he's made of Masonite quarter-inch Tempered Preswood, one of the hardest, smoothest building panels.

wood is splinter-proof. Besides that, it is highly resistant to moisture and food acids. Its smooth, grainless surface makes it an ideal kitchen device to keep clean. Just wash it with the dishes.

A good size for most kitchens is 12 by 18 inches, as illustrated. Mark the design with pencil or chalk on the Tempered Preswood and cut it out with a jig saw. Edges may be beveled with a sandblock, plane or file. Drill a hole in "Porkey's" tail so that the board may be hung out of the way when not in use.

MORE and BETTER COTTON

Why do some of the cotton seeds you plant fail to come up? Seed rot is the answer in a great many cases.

The rot-producing organisms can attack your seeds in any kind of weather. Their effects are worst in a spell of cold, damp weather shortly after planting time.

There are several kinds of harmful bacteria or fungi that can live in your soil. You cannot see them without a microscope.

SEED ROT kills many cotton seeds before they can sprout.

where you planted seeds that never came up. Just by looking at them, you can plainly see how the seeds have decayed.

Fortunately you can prevent much or most of this seed decay, and at a low cost for the chemical—less than 10c per acre. Just treat your seed (or have it treated) before planting, with an organic mercury dust.

Precautions List For "Catching" Diseases

Speaking of the precautions that should be taken in households during and at the close of an illness from any of the "catching" diseases, which are prevalent at all seasons, Dr. Geo. W. Cox, State Health Officer, said recently.

Those who are in charge of persons suffering from influenza, pneumonia, tuberculosis, scarlet fever, measles, infantile paralysis or any other of the diseases spread by discharges from the nose or throat, are warned that these discharges are sources of great danger.

The sterilization of dishes and utensils used in the sick room, by boiling after each use of them, and of the patient's clothing, sheets, towels, and pillow cases, are equally necessary.

The Blue Jay

How many times on these early summer mornings have we been awakened in our beds by the shrill piercing shriek of the blue jay? Of all the birds that come to our homes each year, the blue jay is perhaps the most difficult for us to understand.

While it is true that such insect pests as the wood-boring beetle, grasshoppers, eggs of the various caterpillars, make up about one-fifth of his daily meals, the blue jay is also accountable for the loss of many of the more useful birds whose

How can one kind of bird be beauty and value make our world a much happier place to live in, all these things? The answer may easily be found in the records of the National Wildlife Federation, which has carefully charted the history, growth and habits of America's birds and wild animals, so that we may have a better understanding of both the two and four-footed friends whom we see from time to time each day.

A resident of the Eastern United States and Southern Canada, and who is quite often seen as far west as the Dakotas, Colorado, and even Texas, the blue jay actually has two personalities. He is cautious and silent in his own home, or nest, but once away from his own home and family, he is noisy and bold.

He will cry "Robber!" for the slightest cause. That cause is generally himself, as the broken eggs of the nests of other birds will grimly testify.

During his mating season, he steals unmercifully from other birds, thus depriving us of other members of the feathered legion who could and would do us a lot more good than the blue jay himself.

About three-fourths of his daily meal is composed of vegetables. This does not mean spinach, string beans and other table greens, but more likely acorns, chestnuts, beechnuts and the like. But if you do have ears of corn growing in your garden, beware of the blue jay!

From the tip of his bill to the end of his tail the blue jay is about 11 1/2 inches long. He is a pretty brilliant blue of wing and tail, and these colors are combined with the black crescent of the upper breast and the crested head. He is a fast flier and has actually been known to swoop down and attack his great enemy, the cat.

Changes of Personal Status Required By Selective Service

Austin, Brigadier General Paul L. Wakefield, state director of Selective Service today, requires them to report any change in personal status to their respective boards.

Young men have asked us by telephone and letter just what changes are required to be reported, General Wakefield said. "Generally, anything that may have a bearing on classification should be reported."

The state director pointed to the following things which would be regarded as a change of personal status:

1. Change of address. This change in the address at which March of Dimes reflected some a man expects to receive his mail.

2. Changes in marital status. If a man marries, he should advise the local board of the name of the person he marries, the place and date of marriage, and name of county in which the marriage is recorded. If he has children, date and place of birth should be named, and place where birth is recorded. If he becomes separated, divorced, or his wife dies, this should be reported.

3. Change of job. The local board should be advised only if this a permanent change.

4. Change in physical status. If a man has a serious injury or has otherwise acquired a physical defect, it should be reported. It should be reported whether it is permanent or temporary.

5. Students. If a man becomes a student in a school, college or university, this fact should be reported.

6. Members of armed forces reserves or National Guard. If a man enters any of these, he should advise the local board, giving date of entry and name of organization.

7. Rejections by the armed forces. If a man has attempted to volunteer for the army, air force, or any other branch of the armed services and has been rejected, he should advise the local board.

Much of this information is vital in determining proper classification of any man. The law requires men to keep local boards advised about such matters. All such information, if submitted by letter or card, must be signed by the man himself.

UNIQUE PROCESS CAPTURES TEXAS

Austin — Taking some of the monotony from polio fund raising is the hope of E. S. Stewart of Abilene, who directed the 1951 Texas March of Dimes.

He said the response of Texans to the distinctive Mothers March on Polio indicates that this mass community method may shorten future drives for money to fight polio and still raise the huge sums needed for patient care and research.

The Mothers March, which was conceived by the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis through its Phoenix, Arizona, chapter last year, was used in several Texas areas during the recent MOD.

Stewart said bad weather over a great part of the 1951 campaign period restricted various activities, but the Mothers March seemed to fare better than some other approaches.

Significantly, communities using the Mothers March for the first time were so impressed that they already are planning next year's effort, according to Stewart.

An encouraging part of this approach, he said, is that the method draws the actual cooperation of the mothers who after all are more concerned about their child's disease.

The more mothers engaged in the actual campaign work, the more talent we develop for future chapter activities, involving the handling of polio cases and the myriad associated duties.

Stewart said the first estimate of $1,300,000 raised in the 1951 March of Dimes reflected some of the success of the scattered Mothers Marches.

"The bulk of the money of course, came from the indispensable, methodical collection of small sums," said the chairman. "This emphasis on mere coins cannot be dispensed with. But we hope the Mothers March on Polio will be more than a mere supplemental gesture. It could be a major factor and thus shorten the MOD campaign."

All Citizens Must Cooperate To Keep Area Free of Refuse

"All citizens must cooperate with their neighbors and local authorities if Texas towns and countryside are to be kept free of unsightly and health-menacing accumulations of garbage and rubbish," warns Dr. Geo. W. Cox, State Health Officer.

"Since garbage, rubbish and other types of refuse are of no value to the producer, by the same token they are of no value to a neighbor. Everyone is responsible for the waste materials which he produces and is under obligation to collect, store and dispose of these materials in a sanitary manner. The officials of every municipality or other political subdivision encounter the problem of collecting and disposal of waste materials discarded by their residents.

"Improper disposal of refuse presents definite hazards to public health for such material creates breeding places for rats, flies and other vectors of disease transmission. Odors, smoke and disagreeable appearance are other important considerations.

"The State Health Department and County Health Units, are vitally interested in proper storage, collection and disposal of refuse and stand ready to aid towns or individuals in solving their problem. Receptacles for storage should be of water tight metal with lids that fit. This disposal is a serious and difficult problem which individuals and communities must solve according to local conditions. Waste materials should never be dumped on property belonging to another person or organization."

of seed offered or exposed for sale in Texas is required by law to have a tag attached showing germination percentage. "In the case of bulk seed", the Commissioner added, "the seller is required to furnish one tag for each one hundred pounds of the seed sold."

"I urge all purchasers of cotton seed to exercise every precaution and care. The facilities of our seed laboratories are available to all Texas Farmers. A little discrimination at this time in demanding to know the germination percentage of the seed will eliminate disappointments in stands as well as time, money and possible loss of crops," Commissioner White said.
