City Closes Airport Lease Deal With American Airlines

New Program On Paving Is Authorized

Would Speed Up Surfacing By Not Using Relief Labor; Cost Higher

In a called meeting Wednesday evening, city commissioners effected an airport lease arrangement with American Airlines, hired a manager for the municipal airport and authorized the city manager to submit plans for paving city streets without use of relief labor.

Gasoline, Oil Sales In return, the airlines relinquished its right to sell gasoline and oil to private planes landing at the field and agreed to pay extra for hangar storage if needed.

Ray L. Baumgardner, Fort Stockton, was appointed manager of the port and will be in active charge of its operation. For the first three months he will receive $100 per month, $75 per month for the next three, and $50 per month for three more plus half the profits from storage, gasoline and oil sales.

New Paving Plan City Manager E. V. Spence said he would submit a plan for speeding paving operations subject to the commission's approval after their action Wednesday evening.

Has Transport License Baumgardner, who has had 13 years of flying experience, hold a transport license. He will bring here his two planes, one a 3-place cabin Curtis Challenger Robin, which he uses for charter service.

Morgenthau Says He Plans To Maintain Larger Working Balance

WASHINGTON, Sept. 3 (AP)—Secretary Henry Morgenthau said today the treasury would borrow $400,000,000 in its fall financing operations, and that he plans to keep a working balance of $1,000,000,000 because conditions abroad made him "want to keep a balance" at a high figure.

Morgenthau said the treasury's net borrowing for the year would not exceed $750,000,000. The secretary said the balance had been reduced by $800,000,000 this year.

Favors Four-Year Term For District, County Officials

AUSTIN, Sept. 3 (UP)—Four-year terms of office for all precinct, county and district officers are proposed in a resolution for a constitutional amendment which Rep. H. L. McKee, Port Arthur, will present to the next regular session of the state legislature, he said today.

New Airport Manager Here First Of Week

Ray Baumgardner To Have Two Planes Available For Service

Ray Baumgardner, appointed Wednesday night by the city commission as manager of the municipal airport, will assume duties here the first of the week, it was announced Thursday. He comes here from Fort Stockton, where he has operated an airport and maintained a plane taxi and ambulance service. He also has pursued the novel task of warring on eagles and crows from the air, by air, for stockmen whose livestock is the prey of these birds and beasts.

In addition to supervising activities at the landing field, where he will reside, the new manager will have his planes available for charter service, and will offer flying instruction. He was for a time an aviator at Detroit.

Baumgardner, 35 and unmarried, took his first training as a flying cadet at Brooks field, San Antonio. Later he went North, doing instruction and private flying work. For a year he was on a "barnstorming" tour with Pangborn and Herndon, famous round-the-world fliers.

He returned to Fort Stockton, his home for many years, five years ago.

Proposed Amendment The proposal does not include four-year terms for governor or other state-wide officials. Inclusion of state officers, McKee believes, prevented submission of a similar amendment four years ago.

He proposes a referendum upon it be held at the same time as the election on an unemployment insurance amendment if it is found the state constitution must be changed for that purpose.

Diversion Of Gas Tax May Be Attempted

Effort To Use Part Of Income For Age Pensions Is Foreseen

AUSTIN, Sept. 3.—One of the first tussles in the regular session of the legislature in January may be to change the state gasoline tax, or to divert some of the large revenues from this tax to other state purposes than those now in effect.

Using some of the gasoline tax may be attempted in the special session this fall, called to find additional money for old-age pension purposes.

The gasoline tax in effect is a sales tax, though the law defines it as a levy upon the occupation of operating a filling station. One cent of the four-cent tax goes, by constitutional requirement to the public-school fund. At present, one cent more is applied to the fund for the payment of county and district bonds voted to build roads now part of the designated highway system.

After about 10 years, the local road bonds will be paid off, but until that time, friends of the highway program, and the strong Texas Good Roads association, are ready to fight any diversion of gasoline revenues, or any reduction in the tax.

Insurance Corporation Reports say that some group of Texas business men will come before the legislature and ask that a state insurance corporation be created to handle the business of old-age annuities proposed under the social security cooperative program. It is known that this program can be administered directly as a governmental function; but apparently a state-created non-profit agency may be urged to carry out the idea of trusteeship, rather than primarily a taxing function.

For another type of compulsory insurance, that to be proposed by lawmakers requiring public liability coverage on automobiles, as a condition of registering a motor vehicle, it is certain that a non-profit semi-governmental insurance corporation will be proposed. Any corporation of course is state-created; but certain of them are vested with semi-public, quasi-governmental functions, privileges and immunities.

Cecil Baker, newly-nominated to the legislature, has indicated he (Continued on Page 10)

Michigan Kicking Black Legion Men Off Its Payrolls

DETROIT, Sept. 3 (AP)—The state began today to purge its payrolls of men suspected of membership in the Black Legion, and the head of a citizens' committee in Pontiac, declaring the terrorists' activities had created "a rotten, disgraceful mess," demanded that the city do likewise.

"No man has the right to obtain his bread and butter from the public and then pledge himself to war against a minority of those he has sworn to serve," declared Lyle D. Taylor, head of the citizens' group. "If the properly constituted authorities won't finish the job started by the grand jury, we'll have to shoulder the responsibility ourselves."

Taylor referred to the grand jury report submitted Tuesday by Circuit Judge George B. Hartwick, naming 88 men, many of them public officials, as having belonged to the night riding secret society.

The state demanded the resignation of Charles W. Cole, Pontiac manager for the state board of tax administration, and the state liquor control commission announced that Gordon C. MacDougall, manager of its Pontiac store, was "off the payroll."

NEW MECHANICAL COTTON PICKER GETS TEST

While Big Spring residents welcomed a hard downpour Thursday afternoon, there came reports of beneficial rains north and west of here, in Dawson, Andrews and Gaines counties.

Lamesa, with over an inch of moisture already in the rain gauges, reported that a steady downpour was continuing. The fall appeared, it was said there, to be general over most of the county with the exception of the southern portion. Seminole and Andrews reported rains approximating an inch.

Ackerly, on the southern line of Dawson county, had a light shower during the morning, with mist following for several hours. Midland had received only a light shower at noon but skies there were overcast.

A light fall in Big Spring in the early morning hours did not result in enough moisture for a measurement. Clouds gave encouragement to hopes for rain, however, and the government weather forecast for West Texas tonight said cloudy weather with probable showers.

The rain in the area immediately north of here followed precipitation last night in several Plains sections. Rains received an inch and a half, with a heavier fall reported northward. Quitaque, had nearly an inch and rains fell at Estaline, Turkey, Silvertown, Sterley, Petersburg, Lockney, Childress, Memphis, Clearendon, Hedley and South Plains.

Fliers Cross The Atlantic

Merrill and Richman Are Forced Down Short Of Goal

CROYDON, Eng., Sept. 3 (AP)—The Croydon airbase communications office announced officially today that the American fliers, Dick Merrill and Harry Richman, had made a safe forced landing at Llynwelyn, South Wales, 175 miles from here.

They had made the fastest Atlantic crossing on record. The fliers established an unofficially computed record of 18 hours and 36 minutes for the crossing, an average speed of 183.8 miles per hour.

In a heavily loaded monoplane, the two took off from New York yesterday on a projected round-trip New York-London flight. Messages from them during the night indicated they were making fast time. Richman, singing star of the stage, screen and radio, operated the ship's two-way radio. Their $95,000 ship, the "Lady Peace," is elaborately equipped as the last word in long range flying planes.

Governors Of Other States Join Parley

Crowds In Des Moines To Get Glimpse Of Opposing Candidates

DES MOINES, Sept. 3 (AP)—Thousands crowded the Iowa capital today to glimpse President Roosevelt and Gov. Alf M. Landon of Kansas at the midwestern states drought conference.

Gov. Clyde Herring of Iowa, conference host, arranged for the presidential nominee and governor of other states to meet behind closed doors in his capital office. Herring said that Roosevelt "might remain in the background," letting his aides do most of the talking.

Crowd Of 100,000 President Roosevelt was the first to drive through the crowds, estimated at 100,000, to the capital. Landon arrived an hour and fifteen minutes later by auto from Topeka.

At luncheon in Governor Herring's office, the chief executive and Landon shook hands for the first time since 1932.

Governors of Nebraska, Missouri and Oklahoma also were to confer with Mr. Roosevelt regarding the adoption of a non-political program to combat future prolonged droughts.

Governor Philip LaFollette of Wisconsin was due later in the day to confer with President Roosevelt (Continued on Page 10)

Govt. Forces Lose Ground

Anarchists Take Command When Leaders Propose Surrender

Rebels and government soldiers fought in the streets of Bobbio today after Spanish anarchists took command of government troops when their leaders proposed tentative surrender.

The Madrid government claimed capture of Huesca, a rebel stronghold, 36 miles northeast of Barcelona, where an entire company of rebels reportedly had mutined, joining government forces.

Bobbio became the scene of fierce fighting after government forces at Irun had given ground slowly before a fascist rebel onslaught.

The stubbornly-advancing rebels, their red and gold flag planted atop Mount Turiate—the last government stronghold outside Irun—surged over the crest behind shot and shell and leaped into the last government trench barring the way to Irun.

Retreating government infantrymen struggled back into Bobbio and were rallied by the leaders to make one last stand against the rebels' otherwise clear path into Irun.

The government positions at La Puncheda and San Marcial on the outskirts of Irun were ringed by rebel militiamen, and field batteries.

Man Quizzed In Slaying On West Coast

Is Unable To Give Straight Story On Whereabouts Night Of Crime

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 3 (AP)—A man wearing woman's clothing, picked up by police here, gave conflicting stories today concerning his whereabouts on the night that Ruth Muir, formerly of San Antonio, Tex., was attacked and slain at Los Jolis, officials reported.

The man was arrested on a complaint he was annoying women on the streets.

Meanwhile, at La Jolla, police reported that a preliminary examination of hairs found in the hands of Miss Muir, supposedly the victim of a sex-crazed assailant, apparently came from a woman's head.

The brownish hairs were found clutched in the victim's hand, as if they had been pulled from the head of her assailant.

Police submitted them to scientific scrutiny in the hope of obtaining information about the "type of man" supposedly involved.

Detective Captain Harry J. Kelly, who theorized the 45-year-old prominent social worker was ravished and slain by a man, said he did not believe a woman was involved in the killing.

"There is nothing to substantiate such an idea," he said. "There was nothing in the correspondence of Miss Muir to indicate such a thing, and the physical facts of the woman's condition failed to bear out such a thought. I am convinced that a man was responsible for the crime."

Pomona college scientists continued their efforts to determine definitely whether the hair came from a man or woman.

Another feature of the program was a husband calling contest, won by Mrs. Horace Hull of Lamesa.

Attending from Big Spring were Burma Barley, H. H. Hannah, Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Norman, Mr. and Mrs. Ross Hoover, Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Collins, Mr. and Mrs. Pascal Buckner, Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Broughton, Mrs. H. H. Kirkpatrick, L. I. Stewart, Ludwig Grau and Mr. and Mrs. L. C. Holdrege.

Athletics Rate Tops With Norwood Populace

NORWOOD, N. C., Sept. 3 (AP)—The Philadelphia Athletics may be in the American League cellar but the club holds more interest for most Norwoods fans than any other.

Norwood's favorite baseball son, Pete Ross, is doing right well by himself as an "A" moundman—despite the fact he went from the minors to the majors, missing the minors altogether.

Ross is 21 and measures 5 feet 11 1/2 inches. He's a righthander.

Qualifiers Total Thirty; Six Hamlin Golfers Post Marks For Sixth Annual Tournament

Obie Bristow, colorful West Texas linksman in charge of arrangements for the country club's sixth annual invitational golf tournament, tucked up a 69 Wednesday afternoon as his qualifying score. Obie was two under regulation figures.

However, Benny Adams, Hamlin pro, who brought five golfers here to qualify for the event, came through with a sizzling sixty-six. He can not play in the tournament.

Wednesday's ten qualifiers boosted the total number of qualifiers to thirty, and now tournament officials are predicting a record number of entries. They expect the course to be jammed Saturday for the regular qualifying day. Manager Charley Worley has the layout and span for the annual onslaught of par-busters.

Obie Bristow has, Derald Lehman, Fort Worth and Abilene, came here early for practice rounds. Lehman ran into trouble in the El Paso and Lubbock tournaments.

Red Tolar, one of the Hamlin stars, was even par with a 71. Other Hamlin qualifiers were Fay Pribble 95, Brad Rowland 89, Creed Smith 82, M. Smith 94, L. P. Pribble 100.

Jerry Webb of Big Spring carded an 83, Jim Brigham 82, and Lib Coffee 81.

Breckenridge To Depend On Light, Fast Backs

Perry Favored Easy Winner Of New Crown

Budge Forlorn Hope As Net Play Gets Underway Today

By LESLIE AVERY United Press Staff Correspondent FOREST HILLS, N. Y., Sept. 3 (UP)—J. Donald Budge, sorely-tormented Californian, stood out today as the favorite and apparent favorite for the national singles tennis crown from sailing across the Atlantic to England cocked on the head of Frederick J. Perry.

Budge, outstanding American racket welder, was viewed as an easy obstacle for Perry to surmount in view of the Englishman's crushing four set victory over Budge in the Wimbledon semi-finals. The dark-haired, debonair Perry, husband of an American movie actress, is out to win his third leg on the U. S. title and permanent possession of the trophy that goes with it.

Then he squares off against the field as championship play opens today. Perry will be an odds-on favorite to succeed non-defending titleholder, Wilmer Allison of Austin, Texas, kept in the grand stand by an injured back.

Out For Blood Budge, still smarting under the shelling he took in the English title play, is determined upon revenge. He has withdrawn from singles competition in two recent eastern tournaments to keep from going stale. And it is a possibility, however remote, that he might rise to the same heights that Allison did last year in defeating Perry as Forest Hills.

Second man in the U. S. defense line is Bryan Grant, Jr., of Atlanta, Ga., but the mighty mite's retrieving style of play was duck soup for those forehead bashing drives turned loose by Perry at Wimbledon.

For the second consecutive year, with an eye upon prospective gate receipts, the U.S.L.T.A. decided to hold the men's and women's singles play jointly.

Miss Jacobs Helen Jacobs of Berkeley, Calif., holder of both the Wimbledon and U. S. women's singles titles, was favored to successfully defend her American crown. Her conquest at Wimbledon made her the logical choice for the 1936 title in view of her arch rival, Helen Willis Moody's decision not to enter.

Topmost challenger to J. Jacobs' world tennis supremacy is Katherine Stammers of England, ranked as one of the greatest all-around women players in the game. She is ranked No. 1 in England along with Dorothy Round. She has won the English doubles championship with Miss Freda James for the last two years. As a member of the "Union Jack" Whitman Cup team, she defeated Miss Jacobs 5-7, 6-1, 9-7, this spring.

Another woman player of whom great things are expected is Alice Marble of Los Angeles. Miss Marble, returning to the tennis after nearly two years' absence because of illness, got to enter a big job by breezing through the field to win the Seabright championship recently. She was ranked No. 3 in 1933 and her comeback is the subject of wide interest.

Only other country besides England to seriously contend for a U. S. title is France who sent four of her stalwarts across the water for a shot at "Allison's" underdog crown. They are Bernard Destreumeau, sensational 18-year-old player of the year; Pierre Pelizza and Yvon Pietra, newcomers to international play; and the veteran Jacques Brugnon.

Germany had planned to send the Baron Gottfried von Gramm, Heiner Henkel, Kay Lund and Mass Horn, but when Cramm, ranked No. 2 in the world, twisted his back, it was decided not to send any of the delegation.

Vanderbilt To Tackle Two Of 1935 World Teams

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Sept. 3.—Vanderbilt university gridgers engage two of last year's "howl" teams this fall—Southern Methodist at Dallas and Louisiana State in Nashville.

The "howl" losers" replace Temple and Fordham on the Commodore slate.

Baber Renews Acquaintance With Former President Of Florida Loop

"Lefty" Baber, local outfielder and former pitcher of Lakeland in the Florida State league, had an unusual experience Wednesday.

He was standing on the street when he noticed a car with Lakeland license drive up and park. Curious, he asked the driver if he knew anyone in Lakeland by the name of Johnson (former president of the league).

You can imagine his surprise when the man said that his name was Johnson and that he at one time headed the Florida State loop. The pair renewed old acquaintances.

"Lefty" played for several years in the old East Texas league with such players as Bobby Goff, Lee Ballantyne, "Slim" Harris, Bob Osborne, George Milstead and others.

Ballantyne, now a National league umpire, worked as an arbitrator for a while in the West Texas League at the time that Big Spring was a member of the loop.

Steers Show Lot Of Hustle In Scrimmage

Steer coaches stepped up the tempo of grid drills Wednesday with a scrimmage, and after the workout Mentors Brown and Brandon stated that they were sure of having a hustling ball club. They warned players that they would not tolerate "breaking training."

Brandon has been teaching the fine points of blocking, and says the players are learning fast, although he was a little discouraged after a brief work-out on pass defense.

LeRoy Woods is expected to develop into the club's flipper this season. Weldon Biggony is another bright spot on the squad.

Clarence Cunningham, a big red-headed boy from Dallas, has been working out but will not be eligible to play with the Steers until next season. He's a good hustler and fine blocker.

Cliff Trainer, one of the most powerful players on the Steer squad last season but a boy who failed to attract a great deal of attention, is slated to report next week. Trainer showed up fine in spring training and will probably rate a full-back berth.

Coaches are holding both morning and evening workouts.

Tech Red Raiders To Play TCU Under Lights

LUBBOCK, Sept. 3.—First day sales of season tickets to Texas Tech's Red Raiders home games reached a total of 400. Bo Williams, graduate manager of athletics at the college, said Williams said only 1,000 season tickets had been printed, and they will not be sold after September 10. On that date tickets to the Texas Tech-T. C. U. game will be offered.

The clash with Dutch Meyer's Southwest conference championship timber highlights dedication ceremonies for the new Tech stadium here Sept. 26. This will be the second game of the season for the Red Raiders. By that time they will have met the Texas Wesleyan Rams, now in their second year of competition. The Raider-Ram tilt is set for September 19.

Other home games will pit the Red Raiders against Oklahoma City university's Goldenbuds on October 3 and against the Centenary Gentlemen October 24. In November home fans will view flashy contests against the Oklahoma Aggies and DePaul Demons.

Coach Pete Cawthon and Dutch Smith will start grooming the Raiders nine days before the T. W. C. game, according to Border conference rules. After spending the summer on farms, ranches, and construction gangs, Matador footballers will return next week, ready to don the scarlet and black uniforms which have earned them the monicker "Maroon Marauders."

Fabian May Be Relegated To Outfield

Kowalik Gets Only Scattered Relief Assignments As A Cub

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 3.—Fabian Kowalik, youthful member of the Phils, is a pitcher. But his hitting and base-running abilities and his scrappy slab record this year have given Manager Jimmy Wilson the idea of turning Fabian into an outfielder.

Fabian, whose middle name is Lorenz, is the youngest the Cubs dished up to the Phils in the deal which brought Chuck Klein back to Philadelphia in exchange for Pitcher Curt Davis and Outfielder Ethan Allen.

The young Pole, he's 26 years old, bats both ways but is really a right-hander. And he can bat. As for his plying he has won just one game this year against seven losses. With the Cubs last season Fabian won two games and lost two.

In his minor league career, Fabian showed nothing to indicate he couldn't make the grade as a star major league moundman. He started with Coleman, Tex., in 1929, advanced to San Antonio, where in 1933 he had a phenomenal record of 23 wins and 14 defeats.

That 1933 record gave him a chance with the Chicago White Sox, but he was given only a brief trial at the end of the season. The Buffalo club of the International league in 1934 Fabian won 18 games while losing 14, another good mark.

The Cubs purchased him but he has been held on the bench and given only scattered relief assignments.

Fabian was born in Falls City, Tex., and still lives there. He works in the lumber business between baseball seasons.

Masked Marvel To Make Final Appearance Here

The Masked Marvel will make his last appearance of the year in a Big Spring ring next Tuesday night when he grapples with the West Coast lad, Herb Parks.

The man of mystery is leaving to campaign in England and will not return until 1937.

Danny McShain steps up a notch next week to share the semi-wind-up spotlight with Yagui Joe, while newcomer Joe Ewers, Hamburg, Germany, will attempt to throw Ace Abbot in the curtain raiser.

Boy Doffs Shoes, Socks To Win Golf Tournament

DETROIT, Sept. 3 (AP)—A bare-foot boy won the Michigan Golf association caddy championship.

Harry Adams, 18-year-old bag-toter, doffed shoes and socks for the last nine holes of the tournament when he saw that he was taking a beating from old man par.

The result: Adams played the last nine four under par, winding up with a par 65 to lead the field by two strokes.

UCLA TO MAKE STRONG BID FOR WEST COAST GRID HONORS

HIRSHON TO TAKE PLACE CHESHIRE

By RONALD WAGONER
United Press Staff Correspondent
LOS ANGELES, Sept. 3. (UP)—University California at Los Angeles, whose football team last year tied with Stanford and California for the Pacific Coast championship, is boomed this fall as one of the stoutest contenders for west coast honors.

Cocher William H. (Bill) Spaulding, who came to U. C. L. A. from the University of Minnesota in 1925—when the Uclan's were a football set-up for almost any rival, lost only three regulars and two substitutes from the 1935 championship squad. The big blow was the graduation of Charles Cheshire, triple-threat left halfback, who was high scorer on the coast last fall. Spaulding hopes to replace Cheshire with Hal Hirschon, a sparkling sophomore, or Young Bill Spaulding, his 185-pound nameake.

Last year the Bruins won a share of the conference crown with only 18 top players. This fall Coach

Spaulding probably will have from two to four capable players available for each position. In fact, Spaulding has been heard to say that he can see more material on his practice field this season than he has had since his palmy days at Minnesota.

Sherman Chayvor, veteran center, is regarded as the best bet in a strong line. Chayvor, who was named by Southern Methodist players, as the best center they faced last season, will be flanked by Bob Barr and Earl Sargent, senior guards; Captain George Dickerson and Pete Barber, tackle, and Bob Schroeder and George Robinson, highly rated ends.

Barber, the only newcomer to the line, is touted as the best tackle ever seen at UCLA. Spaulding, himself, says the huge tackle may turn out to be the outstanding man in that position on the coast, where lineemen come big and tough. Behind a line averaging more than 190 pounds, Spaulding expects to place a backfield scaling slightly heavier and selected not for its weight, but for its speed and power.

Fred Funk, 215-pound right halfback, may crash the All-American fall if he improves on his spectacular 1935 exhibition. Funk played better than 50 minutes in every contest last season. He excels at passing, punting, blocking, pass-catching, and can crash the line or run the open field.

William (Billy Bob) Williams, who played with Funk at Los Angeles high school, will have first call at fullback. Williams weighs more than 200 pounds. Unlike Funk he is not multi-talented, but he can hit the line and back it up on defense along with most fullbacks on the coast.

Quarterback will go to 210-pound Earle Harris who played prep football in Abilene, Texas, before he completed his high school education in Los Angeles. Harris has been converted from an end in recognition of his exceptional blocking ability.

A spirited fight will be conducted for the left half spot. Hirschon and young Spaulding are regarded as tops for the position. Hirschon is an uncanny open-runner of the Cheshire type. Spaulding also is fast and can beat anyone on the squad. The coach's son has been handicapped two years by injuries, but doctors say he is fit for the 1936 campaign. Several other outstanding backs will contest for the post, which is the key to Coach Spaulding's offensive.

The Bruins, like all coast conference teams, play a "killer" schedule this fall. Opening in a double-header with Pomona and Occidental, UCLA plays Washington (the third week of the season, California on the sixth playing date and Southern California on Thanksgiving Day).

The U. S. C.-Bruin renewal is the first since UCLA reached "big time." The game is expected to draw 100,000 fans into the coliseum after a lapse of six years playing between the two Los Angeles institutions.

Welfare Dept. For The State Now Planned

New Agency Would Absorb Several Of The Existing Bureaus

By RAYMOND BROOKS
AUSTIN, Sept. 3.—Plans to create a Texas public welfare department of government have been officially confirmed.

The agency likely will bear this title, "public welfare department," rather than to be known as state social security administration. It likely will reduce by two or three the present number of state departments and bureaus, rather than to add another.

The Texas relief administration, now financed wholly from federal funds, and having a staff of about 100, as compared with its 6,000 peak two years ago, probably will be absorbed into the new department. The division of child welfare in the board of control will be merged into the new agency. The present old-age assistance commission will be made the nucleus of the new agency.

In general, the department will administer state-federal cooperatives and matching functions representing those activities under the social security titles. The parole system for youths in the boys' and girls' homes, now supervised by the state board of control, though not included in the federal set-up, likely will be included as a part of the work of this agency. Old-age pensions, unemployment insurance, mothers' pensions, family aid, aid to the blind, and retirement annuities administration will include the main brackets of cooperation. Public health work now administered through the state health department, will not be affected. It is not known whether the vocational rehabilitation and crippled children's work, having government grants, will be brought into this agency, or retained as at present in the state department of education.

STATE'S DEFICIT IS DUE TO METHOD OF FUND BOOKKEEPING

AUSTIN, Sept. 3.—The state's $13,000,000 deficit is a fiction of bookkeeping. The state treasury of Texas actually has a cash balance of from $15,000,000 to $20,000,000, and only the method of keeping the funds, by legislative direction, shows a deficit in the general revenue and Confederate pension accounts.

Numerous accounts are kept separate. Some of the chief ones are the highway and gasoline tax funds; the public school available fund; the old-age pension fund; the relief bond sinking fund; the game fund and state revenues from motor registration fees.

Tourists To England Show Large Increase

LONDON, Sept. 2. (UP)—Britain's tourist trade is almost back to pre-depression levels. The number of visitors from the continent during the first half of this year was 347,560, compared with 317,803 in 1935, and 126,480 last year, according to the Travel and Industrial Development association of Great Britain and Ireland. The June figures show that holiday visitors from the United States increased by 4,023, compared with June last year. The total number of visitors during the month was 42,657, an increase of 5,121. Mrs. L. C. Vann has returned from Plainview where she visited her parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Young and her brother, W. A. Young.

Variety Is Style Note For Autumn Furs

Swagger coats of fur, such as the black caracul at left, show the sporty trend in modes for fall. The leopard (center) offers a similar design in straighter lines of rigid simplicity. Also scheduled for popularity this winter is the princess model, shown at right in black caracul with slim fitted waist and slightly flared skirt line. Variety in treatment of pelts also features winter offerings.

By ADELAIDE KERR NEW YORK (AP)—Variety is the keynote of this fall's fashions in furs. Improvements in the dressing of pelts have resulted in one of the most diversified and interesting fur modes in years. New treatments make inexpensive pelts resemble more costly furs, bringing smarter coats within the limits of restricted budgets. Improved dyes increase luster. Staple furs have been treated to make them lighter in weight and more pliable. And advanced process gives resistance to rain and sleet. And a wide range of models, from the sports-like swagger to the slim, svelte princess, have been designed. Persian lamb—scheduled as a leader in this winter's fur pageant—has received a new treatment, which, its originators say, imparts greater lightness and suppleness, while enabling it to retain its weight and durability. Beaver Clipped For Lightness Chinese lamb has been dyed a new "ripple grey" and finished with a process which makes it resemble natural Russian broadtail, while selling for much less than the Russian pelt. Pony is worked so that it looks like galyak and can be designed on a smart slim silhouette. Beaver has been sheared this year, reducing the tendency to curl and giving it greater lightness and suppleness. Hudson seal—put through 92 treatment steps which takes five weeks—has come to town in new glory. It has been treated to a chemical operation said to give it greater resistance to wear, then dyed in a way which, its handlers say, laboratory "sunshine" and

"rain" tests have indicated, will enable it to keep a lustrous color in spite of the weather. Many lambs have been generally treated by new processes and given new names. In addition to the new dyes, many 1936-37 furs are finished with a weatherproof process, credited with making them shed rain and snow almost as smoothly as a duck's back. "Don't's" Are Listed Regulation minks, Alaska seal, caracul, galyak, broadtail and nutria also take part in this year's fur pageant, designed on simple wearable lines. Both the new and the staple furs require care to get the maximum of wear. For the woman who wants to keep her fur coat in good trim, here are a few "don't's" by A. Hollander & Son, credited with being the world's largest fur dressers and dyers and originators of some of this year's outstanding processes in pelt treatments. Don't neglect minor rips and tears. Have them repaired immediately. Don't hang your coat on the radiator when it is wet. Let it dry at a normal temperature. Don't keep your coat hanging in a hot closet next to a very warm wall. Don't sit on your fur coat for long periods of time. Don't carry your bag constantly under your arm where it rubs against the fur. Designs Are Varied The silhouettes and designs in fur coats this year are as varied as the pelts. Swaggers are everybody's favorite. They come in straight box-like models - of hipbone length and in loose jaunty designs which sometimes hang to the knees. Princess coats, cut on slim fitted lines, are stealing a big share of the spotlight, however, and designers predict that their popularity will increase as the winter advances. After them come a procession of fitted tunic coats and short jackets with ripple tails. Long slender lapin coats, belted and buttoned from chin almost to hem, are favorites for the college girl. Collars on many coats fit fairly close to the throat and are not very large, though some princess designs are finished with big luxurious fox collars. Members of the City Federation of Women's clubs have received an invitation to attend a silver tea to be given by the Athenaeum club of Sweetwater in that city on Thursday of next week, September 10. The affair will be held on the roof of the Blue Bohnet hotel, beginning at 3 p. m. Club members of several West Texas towns—Abilene, Eastland, Colorado, Big Spring and Canyon—are being invited, and a representative of each city will be asked to bring greetings from her club. A program has been arranged under direction of Mrs. L. C. Curry of the Athenaeum club. The Music Study club of Sweetwater will provide opening music, and greetings will be extended from these representatives of Sweetwater study clubs: Sorority, Mrs. Ben Roberts; Self Culture, Mrs. A. B. Chambers; La-Ke-Kon, Mrs. M. K. Stevenson; Athenaeum, Mrs. L. C. Curry. Miss Ethel Foster of Sterling City, president of the state federation's sixth district, will talk briefly, and the program will be concluded with an address by Dr. J. A. Hill of Canyon, president of the West

Crocheted Luncheon Set Of Doilies

By RUTH ORR Pattern No. 354

Doilies of this kind are just about the most practical thing that anyone could make. The three compose an attractive luncheon set: the large one for the place doily, the "middle-sized" one for the bread and butter plate and the little one for the tumbler. Besides that you will find any number of places where they will be useful—on sandwich, cake or cookie plates, on the dressing table or on some of those odd pieces of furniture that nothing else seems to fit.

The pattern envelope contains complete, easy-to-understand illustrated directions, with diagrams to aid you; also what crochet hook and what material and how much you will need. To obtain this pattern, send for No. 354 and enclose 10 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred) to cover service and postage. Address Big Spring Herald, Needle-Work Dept., P. O. Demo Leaders Prepare For State Meet

AUSTIN, Sept. 3. (UP)—Secretary Van M. Kennedy of the state executive committee will lead an advance guard of Texas democrats to Fort Worth Friday in preparation for the state democratic convention there next week.

Slowness of county chairmen in filing official returns of the democratic primary of Aug. 22 is delaying opening of convention headquarters. Official canvass of the returns will be made at a meeting of the executive committee at Fort Worth Monday.

Gov. James V. Allred, busy at the southwest states parole conference in Galveston and scheduled to go from there to Medicine Park for opening of the national democratic campaign in Oklahoma, has left drafting of tentative platform planks to two of his former assistants in the attorney general's office—Everett Looney and Elbert Hubbard. Hubbard drafted the program adopted two years ago.

Allred likely will reach Fort Worth Sunday and hold pre-convention conferences on Monday.

Conferring with Looney here were Miss Lenoir Dumit, president of the state library association, and M. M. Harris, of the San Antonio library board. They discussed a plank to call for state support for public libraries.

William Repans, Houston editor, will be temporary chairman of the convention, according to plans of party leaders. As such, he will deliver the keynote address in praise of the state and national democratic administrations.

Mark McGee, Fort Worth, has been suggested as permanent chairman of the convention but may give way to some one outside Fort Worth in order to secure convention honors.

Re-election of State Democrat Chairman Myron G. Blalock, Marshall and Secretary Vano M. Kennedy, Austin, was expected without opposition.

Roy Miller, Corpus Christi, finance manager for the national democratic campaign in Texas, issued a call for a meeting of congressional district campaign committees at Fort Worth during the state convention.

Platform planks will be tentatively formulated, including: call for disclosure of employment legislators; seeking repeal of horse race pari-mutual law; a preferable to extension of federal control; endorsing the present wage assistance plan and favoring diversion of tax burdens from farms and ranches.

Club Is Entertained By Mrs. L. M. Million

Members of the Seven Aces club were entertained Wednesday at the home of Mrs. L. M. Million and spent the afternoon playing Monopoly.

Mrs. Stephen Howe was high and Mrs. J. S. Jennings was low prize winner. A sandwich plate was served to Miss. Ernie Richardson, Stephen Rowe, J. S. Jennings and Mrs. C. E. Gibbons. Mrs. Gibbons is a new member. Next hostess will be Mrs. Rowe.

Mrs. G. H. Woods Is High Scorer At Club

Mrs. G. H. Woods was high scorer for the Wednesday Luncheon club in its weekly meeting when she served as hostess. Mrs. Bob Kountz was second high.

After playing bridge during the morning, the members had luncheon at the Settles hotel. Attending were Misses Calvin Roykin, Eob Kountz, Roy Coombs, Lee Hubby, J. D. Parr, Ray Lawrence, and a guest, Mrs. Murray.

Mrs. Hubby is to be the next hostess.

English Radio Goes American In Wisecracks

LONDON, Sept. 3. (UP)—Robert ("Bob") Bowman is Britain's Ted Husing.

He is the only wisecracking sports radio commentator in this country, and he has done much to revolutionize the staid way in which British commentators usually describe events.

Even to the British listeners themselves, the "oh's" and "ah's," the "I say, that was a good one," and the "frightfully decent shot," of the usual British announcer have become a joke.

The Oxford and Cambridge boat race this year was an outstanding example, coming in for a good deal of criticism in the press. The broadcaster, an ex-rowing Blue, seemed to have Cambridge leavings. At least, all he kept telling the public was that "Cambridge are rowing awfully well." "They're rowing faster than Oxford," "They're about three lengths in front," and then as a sort of afterthought, he would remark, "Oxford are rowing 'quite well, too.'"

Different Style Bowman, a Canadian, has a different style altogether, resembling the usual wisecracking broadcaster of the American commentator.

He first came to public notice when he broadcast the Olympic ice-hockey match between Britain and the United States at Garmisch-Partenkirchen, Germany.

His flow of chatter, which might to the seasoned American ear sound a little amateurish, delighted the British listeners. The game, it will be recalled, decided the gold and Olympic championships, and was a little rough. Bowman, in his "Say, folks, this is an ice-hockey match, not a fight," and "sing, he's socked him in the 'w,'" evoked many a chuckle and British, friendly, "Key-like."

A week after that broadcast, the Daily Express announced that Bowman had joined its staff to report ice-hockey. He was given a daily column which always starts "Good morning, folks, this is the 'two lob' he'd bet on in the 'w,'" evoked many a chuckle and British, friendly, "Key-like."

There was never any confirmation of these rumors, however, and lately Bowman has been employed more and more frequently on sports broadcasts, although his specialty is ice-hockey.

Covered Races Recently he wisecracked his way through an automobile race meet at the Brooklands track, cracking British ribs with his reference to the "two lob" he'd bet on in the "w" because he liked its color.

He also broadcast a running commentary on the Wimbledon cup lawn tennis match, at Wimbledon, and the Gold Cup horse race at Ascot, in which the American horse, Omaha, competed.

Frazier-Lemke Act Declared Illegal

BOISE, Ida., Sept. 3. (UP)—Federal District Judge C. C. Cavanaugh today held the amended Frazier-Lemke Farm Mortgage Act unconstitutional.

The judge declared the act violates the fifth amendment of the federal constitution in that it "deprives the creditor of property rights without due process of law."

The amended act provides that a debtor may remain in possession of farm land three years after mortgage foreclosure proceedings have been started against him.

Anti-Roosevelt Sentiment In The South Died With Huey Long; Only Talmadge Remains As New Deal Foe

WASHINGTON, Sept. 3. (UP)—The anti-Roosevelt rebellion in the south is judged by political observers today to be dead—as dead as Huey P. Long.

Senator Long was shot on the evening of September 8 last year in the Louisiana state capital by Dr. Carl Austin Weiss. Long died two days later. The south's anti-Roosevelt movement died with him, so far as this election year is concerned.

Polls and the more accurate test of primary returns plus the actions of a handful of southern democrats who could lead a respectable anti-administration movement indicate the pro-Roosevelt state of mind prevailing in the so-called solid south.

That area comprises nine states: Virginia, North and South Carolina, Georgia, Florida, Alabama, Mississippi, Louisiana and Arkansas. Louisiana had seceded from the new deal during Long's lifetime. He was a rising power in Arkansas where his sound trucks and oratory trounced the regular democratic machine in an election which established Mrs. Hattie Caraway in the senate for a full six-year term.

The Kingfish had promised to defeat Sen. Joseph T. Robinson of Arkansas in the democratic primary this year. He had a similar engagement in Mississippi where Sen. Pat Harrison was coming up for another term. There was the beginning of an alliance between the Kingfish and Gov. Eugene Talmadge, the anti-new deal chief executive of Georgia.

Senator Long undoubtedly would have walked into the South Carolina primary where Sen. James F. Byrnes, of the new deal inner circle, had to contest for his senate seat. Long would have been a formidable campaigner in any of these states.

Peace In Louisiana

In the 51 weeks since Long died the anti-administration movement has suffered a series of reverses in the south. Postmaster General James A. Farley and the remnants of the Long machine made peace in Louisiana. Several income tax actions against Long henchmen were dropped, possibly by coincidence. Louisiana is safely in the Roosevelt column.

Robinson and Harrison, each challenged by anti-new deal opponents, swamped them. Byrnes, similarly beset, won his primary by so wide a margin that the anti-administration movement in South Carolina lost much prestige despite Sen. Ellison D. (Colton Ed) Smith who is Byrnes' colleague, and an outspoken anti-new deal.

One test remains of anti-new deal sentiment in the south. That will be had September 9 in the Georgia primary. Governor Talmadge and Sen. Richard B. Russell, Jr., a new dealer, oppose each other for nomination to the senate. The consensus is that Russell will win and that the last anti-Roosevelt bulwark in the south will fall with Talmadge.

Art Lasky, Los Angeles heavyweight, is the third fighter to suffer partial blindness in recent years. Earl Mastro and Fidel LaBarba also had the eye trouble.

LOUISVILLE, Ga., Sept. 3. (UP)—They call Johnny Lewis of the Louisville Stagers "50-111" Lewis. He has batted three night games this season.

$5,000 Bail Is Set For Texas Co. Head

NEW YORK, Sept. 3. (UP)—W. B. Rogers, president of The Texas Company, and R. D. Cottingham, an assistant to the vice-president, were arraigned before U. S. Commissioner Garrett W. Cotten today and held in $5,000 bail each for a removal hearing Oct. 1.

With seven other oil company officials the men were indicted in Madison, Wis., on charges of conspiracy to restrain trade by controlling oil prices in violation of the Sherman anti-trust law.

N. M. Senators And Governors Re-Named: Differences Ended

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M., Sept. 3. (UP)—Rep. J. J. Dempsey and New Mexico's incumbent United States senators and governor were unanimously re-nominated yesterday after the congressman and Gov. Clyde Tingley patched up their political differences outside the state convention hall.

Senator Carl Hatch was selected for the long term and Senator Dennis Chavez, appointed to fill the seat left vacant by the death of Erinson M. Cutting, republican, was named for the short term. The gubernatorial nomination went to Tingley again.

None was opposed. Possibility of the Dempsey-Tingley fight getting to the convention floor was forestalled in a secret session before dawn today.

Southern Inter-Continental Tills ATLANTA, Sept. 3. (UP)—Football teams of the Southern and South-eastern conferences play 30 inter-continental games this season. The latter has scheduled 17 of them.

Miss Agnes Van Hook left Wednesday for Dallas and Fort Worth, where she will be one of the friends at the Centennial exposition.

BETTER LANDS USE

President Roosevelt demonstrated that he knows what it is all about when he remarked in South Dakota, after viewing some of the drouth damage in the west, that the problem could best be described in just three words, "better land use."

Anyone who gives the matter thought will at once perceive that there is a right and wrong land use. Not all land is alike and not all of it was ever intended to be used the same way, but man in his feeling of superiority has gone ahead believing that he could outwit nature, with the result that disaster has followed.

It was never intended by nature that all land should be planted to crops, that it all should be cut by the plow and year after year give up its substance to growing things that took away and did not renew. That is the mistake man has made, and that mistake will have to be rectified before there will be a diminution if not cessation of drouth and flood damage.

Nature provided vegetable and animal areas for the use and benefit of man. While distinct lines are not drawn as to which was which, it has been clearly shown that such difference existed and still exists. Grass land is necessary for the production of animal life and other sections for the production of fruits and field crops and vegetables, to give man a balanced diet. But because there was more profit immediately in growing wheat and cotton and corn on the lands provided by nature for the subsistence of animal life, owners of these lands have plowed them, denuded them of grass, and after reaping a crop or several crops from them have seen them blown away by the winds that follow the drouth which powders the soil and without grass roots to anchor it, it blows away.

Better use of land means use in the way nature provided. When that is done there will be less distress from adverse weather.

★ Man About Manhattan ★ By George Tucker

Sitting in a restaurant in the Thirties a noted raconteur and bon vivant of the sporting circles was lecturing an auditor against the evils of excessive worry. "What if you have lost your money?" he demanded. "You are young and the sheriff didn't take your typewriter. Make another word."

The author agreed and then fell to discussing his companion's expert accomplishments on the polo field. "Time seems to make no impression on you," he ventured. "You seem to get better each season."

The athlete thought this over. "No," he replied. "I'm slipping. My eyes aren't what they used to be. They are playing out on me."

"Ah," murmured the bankrupt novelist, "somehow it is a comfort to know that in this world there are other things besides money that give out."

It is rare that one gets the "uplift" of New York at any season except early fall. This modern metropolis becomes an animated thing when autumn stirs away the summer lethargy and Show Street begins to simmer and bubble.

You can talk shop and discuss the theater, and reminisce all through the spring and summer—but only that celery-like crispness of approaching October electrifies the spirit and sends a paeon through the blood.

It is like this now. You see fall topcoats and seasonal tweeds in most of the smart windows, and new lights begin to wink from the marquee after each sundown.

And the other day I picked up a newspaper and saw where Helen Hayes had come back to town. There was a picture of her smiling gaily on the deck of a transatlantic liner, waving to friends. Then I knew that Manhattan's magic season was indeed close at hand.

There was that lovely siren of the Follies a few seasons back who married one of the Big Street's showmen. Somehow, things did not turn out too well, and she went away. It was common knowledge that he was so crazy about her he practically lost his mind.

Then last week she blared out her intentions of divorce in the papers. There were many photographs of this attractive young woman in the morning tabloids.

Later, at one of the first of the fall theater-cabaret premieres, I ran into the heart-sick one. We were passing small talk in pleasant fashion, when suddenly he turned white and nearly collapsed. With a great effort, he managed to collect himself. "It's nothing, really—excuse me. I have some things to do."

He turned quickly and walked up the aisle. Then I understood the matter. Two seats away, with a gay crowd of champagne-drinkers, sat the pretty. She and her companions stared after the figure of the stricken husband as he hurried through the crowd. It seemed to those who knew the set-up a cruel thing for her to do. She knew that this was his opening—and that everyone in town would be discussing the shambles of their romance.

The Daily Washington Merry-Go-Round By DRISY PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON—There is a lot of fire behind the smoke regarding the president's reported plans to hold a large-scale peace conference if re-elected, despite the indirect denials of the state department.

Actually the president has discussed the idea with some of his closest advisers. He hasn't decided the thing one way or the other. But he is considering it very, very carefully.

He is not any too optimistic regarding the outcome of such a conference. All similar conferences have failed in the past. But three factors incline Roosevelt toward calling it—never before have the leaders of Europe been so worried about war, and the people of Europe so anxious to prevent it. The crisis over the Spanish revolt gave them a glimpse of the war ghost that looms over the corner.

Hitherto France has opposed a conciliation with Germany. This was always the stumbling block. Now Premier Blum favors it.

If such a conference fails, the United States will have made one final effort and thereafter will have every excuse for more complete isolation.

At any rate, the real secret behind Ambassador Bullitt's transfer from Moscow to Paris is found not in the leaders of Europe, informally, regarding such a conference. Bullitt speaks the language of diplomacy, is a close friend of the president and is the man who handled the preliminary talks to Roosevelt's Washington conversations in May, 1935.

During the winter of 1932-33, before Roosevelt was inaugurated, Bullitt was in Paris and London talking with French and British statesmen. The president-elect, in Warm Springs, denied that Bullitt was on any mission for him. Shortly after the denial was issued Bullitt was on the long distance telephone, talking to Warm Springs from Ramsey MacDonald's office.

WPA Airports
If you scratch below the popularity of the Works Progress Administration with the aviation industry, you will discover a very good reason: WPA has built more airports in the USA than there are airplanes traveling on regularly scheduled routes.

And if you scratch below the reason for these airports you will find another very good reason: The inspiration of women aviators.

On the payroll of WPA are four noted women aviators—Phoebe Omlie, Louise Thaden, Helen McCloskey, and Blanche Noyes, and their job is to hop about the country as a flying squadron of airport boosters.

Working in cooperation with Roper's air commerce bureau, the aviators fly from community to community urging local officials to cooperate with WPA in building and improving airports.

Harry Hopkins has other reasons behind this: Namely, that airport improvement employs a larger amount of labor in proportion to cost of material than most types of construction; also the expected growth of aviation.

But the net result is that WPA has spent $40,000,000 for new and improved airports during the past year, an additional $31,000,000 being advanced by local communities. This has built or improved 506 flying fields.

In comparison, only 356 of the 771 airplanes licensed by the commerce department are flown on regular air routes. Their value is only $12,500,000.

Weather Dictator
A good part of the time of Uncle Sam's weather forecasters is taken up with answering telephone calls from people who want to know what clothes they should take away for the week-end, or whether it is going to rain on their garden party.

Here are some of the problems that have been put to the weather bureau:
"I'm having a poker game tonight in my apartment. I've got two fans, but I want to know if I should go out and buy another. How hot is it going to be?"
"I'm taking my child to the clinic this afternoon. Should I put a regular suit on him, or will it be warm enough for his sun suit?"
"I run a cafeteria, and I want to plan my menus for the rest of the week. If it's going to be hot, I'll have cold plate luncheons. What would you advise?"
"I'm planning to give a dinner party on the roof of the apartment. You say it's going to rain today, but I want to know exactly what time. Will it rain between 7 and 12 tonight?"
"I want to go sailing tomorrow, but my boat is hard to handle in a northeast wind. Do you think I'd better go?"
The prize query of them all came to A. J. Haide, chief of the forecasting room. A young feminine voice called to say that she was going to be married that evening and wanted to go to Atlantic City for her honeymoon. "Will it be nice weather?" she asked.
Haide assured her that the prospects were good for fair weather.

On Monday she called again, and he asked her how the weather was in Atlantic City.
"Oh, it was delightful," exclaimed the bride. "That's what I called about. Everything was wonderful. I called to thank you for giving me such a wonderful honeymoon!"
"Thank you very much, madam," said Haide, "but I'm afraid you mustn't give all the credit to me."
Merry-go-round code is a strange jumble of words. Here is a sample: "Boston endager Sambo forsal currency." Which means: Temperature, 22; barometer, 30; cloudy sky and northwest wind.

Guarantee Of Job, Salary Is Success's

Company Makes Partners Of Its Workers; Other Firms Interested
MILWAUKEE, Sept. 2. (UP)—The first year's success of the Nunn-Bush shoe company plan, guaranteeing employees 52 uniform pay checks yearly and steady jobs despite business fluctuations, may lead to its adoption in other industries throughout the United States, President Henry L. Nunn, whose company inaugurated the steady pay plan in the fluctuating shoe industry 13 months ago, revealed that more than 66 large industrial concerns have sought information concerning it.
"The plan has been so successful here that, judging from the numerous requests about it, I would not be surprised to see other industries adopt such a scheme," Nunn

"I know a lot of industrial executives are thinking about the plan, anyway."
The plan is simple. It guarantees workers "a fixed percentage of the value of every pair of shoes produced," Nunn explained.
"We're really partners here," Nunn asserted. "The workers are secure in their jobs and no one fears what the future may bring in the way of economic depression."
The plan has the endorsement of the company's 700 employees who joined with the management recently in observing its first anniversary.

The scheme was first put into operation in July, 1935, for a six-month experimental period. At the end of that period, the plan had proved so successful that it was adopted on a yearly basis. The 700 employees signed one-year contracts last January.
The average wage per worker this year has been set at $1,200 or 19-1/2 per cent higher than when the plan first was adopted. Nunn also pointed out that employees received 12-1/2 per cent more in salaries during the last 12 months than they did the preceding year.

Under the plan, the company each January estimates the workers' annual salaries. They are budgeted into 52 weekly installments. Should the earnings of employees exceed estimates, the difference will be made up at the end of the year in adjusted compensation.
On the other hand, should business decline and weekly payments amount to more than the fixed percentage of total output, salaries necessarily would be lowered. But Nunn explained, the worker still would have his job and a pay check every week.

Adjusted compensation after the original six months of the plan's operation totaled $7,932, Nunn said. For the first six months of this year it reached approximately $12,500. Thus, the first year of the plan's operation netted employees $26,582 in adjusted compensation.
Good quality is the chief requisite of Nunn-Bush company's employees. Never has a worker been discharged for slowness, the president said.
"Life is just one grand sweet song out here," explained the good-humored executive, who pedals his bicycle to and from work daily while many of his employees use automobiles.

THE WORLD WITH A FENCE

A New Novel by Marian Sims

Chapter 11 THE GATES BOY

A car stopped before the house and Denis stood up, pulling her with him. "The traffic'll be thick here from now on. Let's go."

In the street Carol looked inquiringly at his roadster and he chuckled. "My kid brother's. He's a potential captain of industry. Five years from now he'll be able to buy out the family—Dad included."

"Where is there to go?" "I wish I knew. Besides, I don't want to go anywhere; I want to sit still and talk to you. Under the circumstances we might be forgiven for parking..."

"I probably wouldn't be forgiven for parking under any circumstances." "Oh, hell." There was genuine anguish in the whisper. "Well, we'll go get a soda. Anybody can park in front of a drug store."

She ordered a cherry phosphate, not because she liked it, but because it cost five cents. Then she said: "It's your turn, Denis, to begin at the beginning."

He told his Odyssey tersely, starkly. One year of college and then Atlanta—Dallas—Kurtz City. Always newspapers.

"On the last job," he explained, "one of my chores was the movie reviews. They got me kicked out."

Her throat ached intolerably for him, and Pat, who was rather like him, and for herself. All rebels, and all groping in the dark. She said quietly: "And now what?"

He shrugged. "I'm waiting to hear from a job with a Washington paper. A friend who's got the job now is going abroad soon, and I'm supposed to inherit it. And in the meantime—" he grinned down at her—"you're writing 'The Great American Novel.'"

"Nope. I'm revolutionizing the short-story form." "Dennis and Fat again. She asked curiously: 'Are they any good?'"

"The editors don't think so." "Bring 'em around some time and let me see what I think."

He started the car. "Of course. Tomorrow night?" "Denis was going to be hard to manage. 'Not tomorrow, one night next week.'"

He said emphatically: "Tomorrow. One night next week I may be on my way to Washington." He put his hand on hers. "Yes?"

She gave in, and desisted herself for an invertebrate. "I suppose so. We can sit in the parlor under Notre Dame and you can read aloud to me." If that didn't discourage him nothing would.

"Oh, I'll think of some other place by that time." He found an unopened country road and began driving more and more slowly. Suddenly he stopped the car and took her in his arms.

"Carol—there's not much time. She hadn't felt this way since Bill Faraday, and it frightened her. He said huskily: 'This is worse than I expected. Carol—newspaper men do have wives...'"

School was becoming gradually a matter of routine. Gradually, too, she was getting acquainted with the rest of the faculty. Miss Hawkins, the head of the English department, was delightful; mellow and wise, with a quiet wit and a boundless tolerance.

And Miss Thomas, who taught Latin, was a dynamo of enthusiasm—an enthusiasm that grew rather than diminished with the years. If the occasion demanded, Carol felt sure Miss Thomas would lead the cheers on the football field.

Mr. Hall, the principal, improved on acquaintance. He admired Carol extravagantly, and gave her his whole-hearted support.

In justice to him she had warned him of what she was doing. "I wanted to tell you," she explained, "in case I came a cropper. Some parents may object to having me put my foot through the delusions they've grown up with and passed on to their children."

He polished his nose thoughtfully. "They may, but I hope not. I'll keep an ear to the ground and warn you if I hear rumblings. How are you getting along?"

She laughed. "Too smoothly. Something's going to bust soon." "And the next day something did. In the midst of a lively discussion of Charleagne the peace was shattered by a noise like hull-tones falling about Carol's desk. Someone, she decided, had thrown a handful of birdshot.

She stopped the discussion, and silence dropped like wool over the room. She sat for several seconds studying the still faces before her, and drew her own conclusions about the culprit.

The blindest and most innocent expression sat suspiciously on the face of a boy in the last row: Sam Cates. He was one of the dwellers in Moronia, and worse still he was an embryo criminal. He had not answered a question in three weeks of school, and his written work consisted of verbatim copies of what he could see on the papers of his neighbors.

She was convinced that Sam had thrown the shot, but she had to have corroboration. "We can't go on, I'm afraid, until we find out where that came from."

Nothing but stillness. She said quietly: "Probably the person who threw it is too much of a coward to say anything, so somebody will have to speak for him."

Stillness. She tried again, conversationally. "Another one of the delusions we've all grown up with is the one about being a tattletale. If you saw a man robbing a store and had a chance to identify him later on you'd do it gladly, because the man's dangerous to society."

"The same thing holds true about disturbers of the peace anywhere, even in school. If the person who threw that stuff hasn't got backbone enough to admit it, we'll have to sit here and hope somebody else has nerve enough to do it for him."

Sam Cates looked sideways, defying his neighbors to say anything. The bell for noon recess rang. The class stirred restlessly, but Carol shook her head. "Sorry," she said pleasantly, loathing herself, and wondering if this was right or wrong.

wordless astonishment. "I never heard of such a thing," he admitted finally. "What do you want me to do?"

"Expel him. Not entirely because of that—the episode is a godsend as far as I'm concerned." She disposed of Sam's scholarship in a few terse sentences.

"Nothing is more expensive," she pointed out, "than this miserable policy of giving everybody a chance. One boy or girl like that can demoralize a whole class of decent students. Why should he?"

"He shouldn't, of course. But this is a public school. As long as a child behaves we have to give him valuable desk room and hope he'll outgrow his indifference. But of course this offense is grave enough for expulsion, if you think best."

"I do. Ask the other teachers if he's ever answered a question. I feel sure they'll say no, and cheer his departure. He's not a child; he's nineteen or twenty years old. And I think he's an embryo criminal."

He summoned Sam. "You're expelled, Sam. Get your books and get out." (Copyright, 1936, by Marian Sims)

But tomorrow Carol has a sad caller.

Revival Meeting Opens Tonight At Church Of Christ

Opening service of a revival meeting at the Church of Christ will be held this evening, with John F. Smith, Lubbock minister, preaching. The service will start at 8:15, and the revival will be continued through Sunday week, September 13, with services twice daily, at 10 a. m. and 8:15 p. m. Minister Smith is appearing in Big Spring for the first time, although he has conducted many meetings throughout the south and is widely known. He has been minister at Lubbock for 11 years.

Forrest Waldrop, minister of the local church, invites the public to attend all services.

Biggest Telescope Will Search For Secrets Of The Distant Nebulae

SAN DIEGO, Calif., Sept. 3 (UP)—Work is proceeding steadily on the new $6,000,000 Palomar observatory, which astronomers predict will be the world's greatest for at least half a century.

An 18-inch telescope already has been installed, and with it Dr. Fritz Zwicky is searching for and studying super novae, giant exploding stars. These stars, he believes, may help solve the mystery of the origin of cosmic rays.

More than $1,000,000 of federal state and county funds is being spent to build a highway to the isolated Palomar site, 50 miles north of here. Observatory machinery parts weighing 40 to 60 tons must be moved to the 5,600-foot-high mountain top.

Village Under Construction Forty men are constructing a power house and machine shop at the site, where a water supply system and several buildings have a passenger carrier between Houghton, Mich., and Isle Royale. Technicians are grinding and polishing the 200-inch mirror at the California Institute of Technology in Pasadena. They will receive four tons of glass from the 20-ton-disk in the process.

Homes for the astronomers, who will come from the institute and the Carnegie Institution's Mount Wilson observatory staff, are being built among large trees to prevent their lights from interfering with observations.

Because dust also is a hindrance to night "seeing" several hundred additional pine trees are being planted on the 720-acre site, together with grass, flowers and shrubs.

Capt. Clyde S. McDowell, supervising engineer, says the first steel for the 200-inch telescope framework will be shipped from Los Angeles in September. All the equipment except the big mirror itself, he says, will be ready by the summer of 1938. The mirror may be ready a year later. A one-tenth scale steel model of the telescope, built in the instrument shop of the institute, is nearly ready for rigorous tests for flexure and torsion. The telescope tube will be nearly 20 feet in diameter and 60 feet long.

Perfection Demanded Total weight of the moving parts will be about 425 tons, estimates Dr. George E. Hale, head of the new observatory, and perfection is demanded in the bearings, driving mechanism, controls and auxiliary apparatus.

The telescope will be suited for many kinds of work, he says, but probably its chief use will be for the study of faint, extra-galactic nebulae and the spectroscopic investigation, with the brightest dispersion, of the brighter stars of our own galaxy.

will champion compulsory liability insurance on automobiles, as a safety measure. He pointed out that no one will be able to get insurance on a defective, dangerous car, and that equipment will be driven off the highways. He believes that a non-profit agency should be able to furnish such coverage at low cost. Baker has discussed the policy of protecting car-owners in the right to have such insurance by providing that when the highway patrol has inspected the car and issued a certificate approving it, the insurance will be furnished as a matter of right.

The present law exempts certain classifications of chain-owned businesses, such as lumber yards and filling stations.

No Bands
There were no bands on the streets of Des Moines today and merchants had been requested not to display signs of either major party candidate.

President Roosevelt has changed his plans and will return directly to Washington instead of Hyde Park next Sunday because of the potentialities contained in the bombing of the U. S. destroyer Kane last Sunday.

Although the president had no comment, Washington dispatches reflected official fear of some disturbing incident so long as American warships remain in Spanish waters and American nationals are in Spain.

Mr. Roosevelt kept in close touch with the capital and conditions abroad. Special telephone lines strung through an open window of his car at operating stops gave him immediate contact with the state department and Secretary of State Cordell Hull.

lief workers by private industry in a radio report Sunday on his drought tour.

Boy Selected To Give Child Blood For Rare Malady

CHICAGO, Sept. 3. (AP)—The postman brought new hope to the "test tube" parents of Philip Levitt, 7-year-old sufferer of the often fatal viridans streptococci infection yesterday.

A letter from Dr. Thomas Marks of Lexington, Ky., giving minute data on a patient of his, Maurice Oldham, 13, recently recovered from the malady, was "just what we were looking for," Mrs. Morris Levitt, the mother, explained.

"The Oldham boy had the same thing exactly," said the thrilled parent, who with her husband, an insurance salesman, had been undergoing injections of a vaccine made from dead germs in hopes their systems would develop a serum to combat their son's infection.

Young Oldham will leave for Chicago at once, his parents said.

HAPPY RELIEF FROM PAINFUL BACKACHE

Caused by Tired Kidneys

Many of those grating, nagging, painful backaches people blame on colds or strains are often caused by tired kidneys—and may be relieved when treated in the right way.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking excess acids and poisonous waste out of the blood. Most people pass about 3 pints a day or about 3 pounds of waste.

If the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters don't work well, poisonous waste matter stays in the blood. These poisons may start nagging backaches, rheumatic pains, fatigue, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, vertigo, swelling, puffiness under the eye, headache and dizziness.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 20 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from the blood. Get Doan's Pills.

... for uniformity

Why does every Chesterfield have the same taste... the same pleasing flavor and mildness.

Because we draw on not just one year's tobacco crop but crops of several different years to make sure that Chesterfield's quality never varies.

Every Chesterfield tastes just like every other Chesterfield—mild, not strong; always with a pleasing taste and aroma.

Chesterfields win because they're always the same...
