Accidental Shot Wounds Mrs. I. J. Robb

LOS ANGELES, April 24 (UP).—When John C. Towner, 20, appeared at the marriage license bureau to apply for a certificate to wed Theresa De Mitro, 20, he carried an imposing affidavit from his father, which read more like a death sentence than a parental blessing.

"Know all men by these presents," said the message, "That I, J. C. Towner, am the father of John C. Towner, bearer of this note, and that said John is of the age of 20 years, and has conceived the idea that he should get married.

"I have endeavored to dissuade him from such a foolish act, but, being of the characteristic stubbornness of the Towner family, he insists on getting married, and has selected as his wife partner a beautiful girl by the name of Theresa De Mitro, who has very foolishly consented to marry him.

Divorce Question Is Discussed At Revival Service

Despite the inclement weather, a large audience attended the services last night at the First Christian church. The music was good and the special number by Mr. Bethell, supported by the choir, was well received.

After several quotations and comments topics for the evening were brought forward. Divorce and right to re-marry was the first. The evangelist expressed opinion that divorce is allowable, from the Bible standpoint on one ground, adultery, and that the innocent party might re-wed. But he thought that in most of cases divorces were sought because of a third party; he thought no two persons should be forced to live together if they did not get along; that they could separate but not re-marry.

Another question asked was whether people who were once Christians might not commit the unpardonable sin. The minister thought it possible for people who were once enlightened and saved to lose their souls by misconduct. Another question related to the making of the Bible. The canon of scriptures was compiled early by such men as Muratori. The accepted books were those universally recognized.

After they fought, Orlando went home and returned shortly with a gun. Lawrence said he dodged four shells. He, too, went home for a similar purpose, but returned to find Orlando absent and the police in charge.

Lawrence was released after he was questioned. Tony still was sought by officers today.

Grade Crossing Dispute Carried Into Court By Suit For Damages Against Texas & Pacific Company

Suit for damages totaling $9,500 has been filed in district court here by the Cooperative Gin & Supply company against the Texas & Pacific Railway company. Setting out that 4,731 of the 13,731 inhabitants of Big Spring resided north of the T&P right-of-way in April, 1930 and that the only crossing of the right-of-way for seven miles both east and west from the plaintiff's property located immediately north of the tracks, are those over viaducts on Benton and Gregg streets, the plaintiff alleges the railway company damaged value of its property and its business in an amount totaling $7,500.

It is also alleged that the railway company has been "actuated partly by ill will and malice and has expressed such feeling in numbers of instances."

"The defendant should be compelled to pay for such ill will and malice and the defendant, being of a semipublic nature, and function and wielding a heavy political influence and exercising the same with the city administration has taken advantage of such influence," the petition declares.

For actual damages to property value and business the plaintiff seeks $7,500. As exemplary damages for exercising "ill will and malice," $2,000 is asked.

Tax On Cigarets Passed Only After Stubborn Scrap

AUSTIN, April 23. (AP)—Perhaps no better recent example of the fecundity of perseverance can be found than in the legislature's passage of the bill to levy a tax of 3 cents a package on cigarettes.

Less courageous men than the proponents of the cigarette tax probably would have thrown up their hands and quit after the house of representatives thrice had said it would not accept their proposition. But they came back a fourth time and won, 72 to 56.

Their most effective plea was that the cigarette tax was necessary to support the state's public school system adequately. Phil Sanders of Nacogdoches, who steered the bill through the House, summed up this argument when he said the question to be decided was "The American Tobacco Company vs. the school children of Texas."

Not only had the bill been rejected three times by the present House, but it had been killed by every legislature for several years. It had come to be regarded almost as something which would go on and on forever but always in the "proposals" stage.

Senator Benjamin F. Berkeley, Alpine, might well be called the "daddy" of the cigarette tax. It was he who proposed the levy as an amendment to the natural gas tax bill which the House passed.

The Senate's action came as a surprise to many. Few speeches were made against the amendment and it was adopted 15 to 3 with two pairs.

This procedure was unusual as the constitution provides that all revenue-raising measures must originate in the House. However, Edgar E. Witt, lieutenant governor, held the Senate could amend a revenue bill by levying an entirely different kind of tax.

The amendment bill went back to the house, and that body at that time failed to adopt it by only one vote. This was a sign of the shifting winds as the house previously had voted overwhelmingly not to print two tobacco tax bills on minority committee reports.

The free conference committee labored only a little while and reported back with practically the same bill which the Senate had passed and the house rejected. This time the house accepted it by the 72 to 56 vote.

As To Enforcement

Opponents of the cigarette tax claimed it would be impossible to enforce. The tax can't be levied on the out-of-state manufacturer. Therefore it is placed on the man making the first intrastate sale. Thousands of fly-by-night dealers will order the cigarettes from outside the state and sell them without paying the tax, opponents said.

In addition, the consumption of cigarettes will be cut down, and many smokers will order from other states, objects to the tax stated. Because of these factors, Dewey Young of Wellington, a consistent opponent, said the tax would raise only $2,500,000 annually instead of the $9,000,000 for which some hoped.

Proponents claimed the tax would raise $6,000,000 annually. Half would go to the schools and the other half to the general revenue fund. They said county officers would enforce the tax the same as any other law. As passed by the legislature the tax would not become effective until 90 days after the present session ends, or about August 15.

Young stated 12 or 13 states had passed cigarette taxes and two or three had repealed them. He mentioned the neighboring state of Louisiana as one of the states which had repealed its cigarette levy.

Six Senators Hold Introduction of Bills To Very Low Figure

AUSTIN, April 24. (AP)—Six of Texas' 31 senators have kept their total number of bills introduced this session down to what some might call the "irreducible minimum." Even that does not apply to Senator DeBerry of Bogata, who introduced one of his two bills by request.

Crowling DeBerry far honors are Senators Hopkins of Gonzales and Gainer of Bryan, both of whom have introduced five bills. One of those introduced by Hopkins was marked "by request."

Senator Cunningham of Abilene comes next with seven, followed by Senators Hardin of Stephenville and Loy of Sherman with eight each.

DeBerry, Hardin and Cunningham have introduced resolutions proposing amendments to the constitution.

Five senators have introduced 30 or more bills. Senator Woodul of Houston leads with a total of 41, followed by Senator Woodward of Coleman with 39. Senator Holbrook of Galveston has introduced 38 bills, Senator Williamson of San Antonio 34, and Senator Pearl of Dallas, 30.

Miss Margie Neal of Carthage, Texas' only woman senator, has introduced 27 bills and two resolutions.

Utilities Bill Is Cast Aside; Others On Shelf

AUSTIN, April 23. (AP)—Active issues a month ago, virtual castaways now—that seems to be the fate of the utilities control bills, and a dozen others of equal import now that the legislature has determined to finish its work by May 12, and go home. The governor and the lieutenant governor have opposed a special session at the end of the 120 day meeting which is to close at noon, May 12. With that in mind, and reminding of the fact also that the governor is the one and only one who calls special sessions, legislators see nothing else to do but enact legislation for which there is the most urgent need, and forget the rest.

Among bills in reserve are several resolutions which ask the legislature to appoint committees to investigate the operations of utilities. None has come up for final consideration.

The Petch control bill, in the house, was ordered printed on a minority report. A senate committee reported out favorably the Holbrook utilities regulation bill.

Governor Sterling's bill proposing creation of a state conservation commission is among those which seem to have been shunted aside. A house committee gave the governor's bill a favorable report, but the senate committee on state affairs, to which it was sent upon introduction, has taken no action on it.

An intangible assets bill which proponents said would bring in $10,000,000 in revenues if enacted into law, and which would affect 18,000 Texas corporations, has been reported out favorably by a house committee, but seems lost in the shuffle.

The pipe line regulation and the oil movement bills, two of the most controversial of bills introduced this session, both given lengthy hearings, have been placed among those not requiring immediate action.

Senate and judicial redistricting bills were among those lost from sight as the legislature considered congressional redistricting, the $212,000,000 highway bond issue, truck regulation and cigarette and natural gas taxes.

Sterilization Of Insane, Habitually Criminal Is Voted

OKLAHOMA CITY, April 24. (U)—The state board of affairs had authority today to work the sterilization of insane inmates in state institutions and habitual criminals in the state penal institutions.

A bill passed by the 13th legislature has been signed by Governor W. H. Murray, the governor said today.

The law was written by Dr. J. T. Gray, Stillwater, a representative. It provided for sterilization of men under the age of 67 and women under the age of 47 in state hospitals. The senate amended the measure so that it applied to habitual criminals in any state institution.

Slandering Children
ONE never to listen to the plea of lawyers in behalf of clients, charged with various and sundry crimes, one would wonder if every twelve-year-old child is a degenerate and wholly devoid of a sense of right and wrong.

Of course we know that 12-year-olds are neither degenerate nor lacking in the moral sense, but it has become the fashion to plead extenuation for adult criminals by saying that they have the minds of a twelve-year-old child. It is a fashionable form of run-out powder, by the use of which it is hoped to fend off the good right arm of the law and protect the guilty from the righteous punishment of an outrageous public.

We do not, as a matter of fact know any twelve-year-old who is devoid of a sense of the difference between right and wrong, and who is degenerate. Yet the practice of claiming that criminals have the minds of twelve-year-olds is an unjust and despicable reflection on children of that age. It leaves the impression that there is something essentially debased about a twelve-year-old, but nothing could be further from the truth.

Your average twelve-year-old boy or girl is apt to be as bright as cricket mentally, with an active curiosity about life and its mysteries, and a growing sense of the individual's responsibility to society and to other individuals. Why make him a type of irresponsible conduct and moral degeneracy? It is unfair, and it is wholly without foundation.

Any adult with the intelligence and the moral sense of a twelve-year-old or a ten-year-old child is well equipped to answer to the law for whatever crimes he may commit.

OPINIONS OF OTHERS
Backward Taxing Methods
Houston Chronicle:

THE NEED, indeed the profound and pressing necessity, for a fundamental, sound and understanding study and analysis of the tax problem of Texas is granted by all who have fairly observed the present methods of taxation in this great state.

The state very greatly needs an adjustment and reformation of the present modes of taxation now in Texas. But from legislation proposed at the present session it would seem to need even more protection from unsound and ill-considered measures than it needs from those already in effect.

A quarter of a century ago the intangible assets bill was proposed, the original purpose being to require all corporations operating in Texas to pay a state tax based upon the earnings of such enterprises over and above an interest rate on their physical properties within this state.

When the people and the legislature came to realize the fundamental soundness of such a tax upon any enterprise except those enjoying the special privileges of public service corporations, it was realized that so such tax could justly be imposed.

It was never imposed except on those utilities which were assumed to enjoy unusual opportunities for large earnings because of the naturally monopolistic nature of the business in which each of them was engaged. The tax was not therefore imposed except upon railroads, ferry, bridge, turnpike and toll companies.

House Bill No. 141, which has been favorably reported, and is now pending on the calendar, turns the clock back 25 years and again proposes this unjust and unequal mode of taxation as applied to all enterprises conducted by corporations in this state, regardless of the nature of business in which corporations are engaged. Only those corporations which now pay occupation, gross receipts or severance taxes are exempted. Within that long period of years experience has taught us much about taxation. Among other things our federal government has taught us much about taxation on incomes. But if, as proposed by this bill, we are now to turn the clock back 25 years and again propose to raise a substantial part, or for that matter any part of the revenues to run the state government by special taxation on the income of corporate enterprises only, we are to have learned nothing. If we are to enact such a law now, we have made no gain in learning sound and fundamental taxation, not on the other hand have lost in that spirit of fairness in which all problems of taxation should be met.

The bill proposes that each year a board, created by the act, shall appraise for that year the value of the stock of all corporations included in the value of the physical assets of the company. The tax is then applied to the difference, thus it is a straight out tax upon the income of that company for the year and nothing else can be made of it.

It is nothing more nor less than a class income tax. It is a specific tax upon the income of the stockholder in that corporation, without imposing a state income tax upon his brother whose money is otherwise invested.

It cannot be that the people of Texas are willing to run the government of Texas with money gathered upon any such unjust, inequitable and unequal basis. Throughout an entire generation they have been unwilling to do it, and they will be unwilling to do it now.

HOW'S your HEALTH?

Edited by Dr. Logo Goldstein, Academy of Medicine
Sick Children—II

The principal aim in the psych-ologic and emotional upbringing of children is to teach them how to recognize and to adjust themselves to the reality of the world about them.

This task is not an easy one either for child or parent, but under normal conditions, the average child does eventually acquire a pattern of behavior which fits his environment.

In the home, at school, and out-of-doors, he learns to compromise between his self-centered desires and the conflicting demands made upon him by others.

When, however, sickness intervenes, the relationship which the child has learned to expect between himself and those about him is upset. From being just one of the children he becomes the sick child, the household revolving about him.

While formerly he was expected to carry his burden, in home, school, and among his playmates, he now is excused. He becomes a person of importance.

Not infrequently because of such experiences, the child learns to enjoy his illness. Even after recovery, the memory of the pleasures derived from being a center of attention remain vivid in the child's mind. When things are not to his liking he brings his parents to tears by feigning illness.

Sick children are, of course, entitled to special consideration. They are acutely sensitive to pain and to confinement. One must, therefore, be considerate of their special needs.

On the other hand, one should guard against giving way to demands made because the child knows that he is sick, and can have everything he wants. Such weakness only builds up personality problems liable to be more serious in the future than the physical illness in the present.

HOLLYWOOD—Allan Lane has proved to Hollywood that one can live within his income even if he does have to sacrifice appearance and still get along in the movies.

Lane is a tall, handsome, athletic young fellow, clean-cut and personable.

This is his second coming to Hollywood, a triumph for him, for he has been rediscovered by the films which let

ALLAN LANE / him go two years ago after a brief trial.

An interesting thing about Lane, on his first sojourn, was his sporty attitude toward the picture business. While other juveniles rave readers see Lane rattled about town in a battered old car, its low cost of operation enabled him to send more money home
"to the folks."

DRIVES UNPRETENTIOUS CAR
This time, with a better contract and a surer future, he still drives an unpretentious vehicle, although a new model.

"I always figured, about that old car," he says, "that if people liked they wouldn't mind riding in the tincan. And if they liked me only for my car, then they could go hang anyway."

"Mary Brian used to ride in it with me a lot. Some stars might have been high-hat about it, but Mary's a regular. One night we were coming home from a dance in it when a tire blew out. I was awfully embarrassed, but Mary wasn't.
She took it like a sport and joked about it."

EARNED HIS EDUCATION
Lane comes by his common-sense views honestly. He attended Notre Dame, working his way, for two years, and played football and other college sport, but his diploma comes from the old experience school.

He has supported himself since he was seven years old, first by selling papers, then by shining shoes of everything else that money could provide, Rosemary should have the best of climate.

And thus, for a dozen years, we lived the most idyllic life, with the truest love and one of the loveliest relationships that ever existed between two human beings. For thank God, Rosemary loved me as I loved her; and I do not think she was ever really perfectly happy out of my presence.

And then suddenly out of the blue, like a thunderbolt, fell another manifestation of the curse inherent in my father's money.
Like all other great fortunes, it had attracted attention. It was famous, and although I had inherited only a part of it, people used my name, proverbially, with those of Croesus, Rockefeller, Pierpont Morgan and Vanderbilt.

We were at my California house, and, after a particularly happy day, during a great part of which Rosemary and I had ridden together, I shared as usual her supper, which we used to call dinner, kissed her good-night and went to see her, again as usual, when she was in bed.

And that was the last time I ever saw Rosemary as the bright, happy, charming, delightful little human-angel that she was.

That night my house was burglarized, and with extraordinary skill and cleverness. Dogs were poisoned, the watchman was sandbagged, and, in spite of that, not a soul was disturbed.

And what of value was stolen by the burglar or burglars?
Nothing.
Only Rosemary.

The thing of value ten thousand times greater than all the rest of my possessions put together.
Can you imagine the condition

I will not attempt to do that impossible thing, describe what Rosemary was to me. I had never been in love up to this time, and indeed I have only been in love once in my life. . . .

But oh, how I loved Rosemary!
Of course, one can love with all one's heart and soul, mind and strength, without actually being "in love." I take it that, in the perfect marriage, the man and the woman are, at first and for a long time,
"in love," and, after that, for the rest of their lives, they love.

So it would be absurd to use the expression, "I was in love with Rosemary," but I so loved her that she literally filled my life.

My first waking thought was of Rosemary; my last thought at night. Day by day, week by week, month by month and year by year, she grew more and more wonderful to me. I can hardly say more lovable.

And though I provided her with the best hired mother that money could procure, and with every sort and kind of governess and nurse and servant, I grudged every hour that she spent with them, and contrived that she spent most of her waking hours with me.

I should become wearisome if I continue longer in this strain, as, no doubt, I was wearisome to every one to whom I spoke of Rosemary, but I felt that if she could still find it in her heart to leave her child, the child would by then be fitter to face life without her mother.

I had a horror of the bare
thought of a sick or suffering child, too young to speak, unable to describe its pain and say what its symptoms were, and what it wanted.

It was quite a foolish idea of mine, of course, because, after all, one can obtain the services of truly excellent women who can give a child almost everything it needs, and understand it quite as well as a mother could, perhaps. Give it, in fact, everything but mother-love,
the one thing that it really wants.

I have not said, and I hardly need say, that I stipulated that, if Alicia left me, Rosemary should remain in my charge, though of course Alicia would be free to see her whenever she wished to do so.

Well, Alicia went, and I believe, and earnestly hope, that she was thoroughly happy with her soldier.

And there again she, poor girl, came under the curse of my father's wealth. Had it not been for the money which I had settled upon her on our wedding, she would have been unable to marry her lover after she had divorced me, as I allowed her to do, and they would have been unable to purchase and maintain the yacht which was the cause of their death.

Well, they lived happily together, and remained unchanged.

I hoped, and I almost believed, that, by that time, she would feel it impossible to leave Rosemary—I mean in millions quite happy, and I felt that if she could still find it in her heart to leave her
child, the child would by then be fitter to face life without her mother.

I had a horror of the bare
thought of a sick or suffering child,
too young to speak, unable to describe its pain and say what its symptoms were, and what it
wanted.

prisoned to serve Waye's term.
Who is this Waye, an asylum for whom Charters had dared not refuse? Waye had lingered with him until after Chink Dorson, implicated by a "confession" Waye had placed beside the body of "Spider" Schlitz, hanged for the murder. Schlitz, Dorson, James
—all dead now, and Waye's strange words had indicated that he saw the hand of retribution shaping their fates and those of Dr. Charters, Dr. MacAdoo and the other crooks. Perhaps Waye's own story will clear the mysteries.

Chapter 28
JOHN WAYE'S STORY
MY real name is John Dacre Waye Vanderleur St. Clair, and my father was Dacre Vanderleur St. Clair, the multi-millionaire railway, oil and mining "magnate."
He made his millions quite happily, and provided work for nearly as many thousands of men as he amassed thousands of dollars.

But, as apparently upon all vast wealth, there was a curse upon his money, a curse inherent in it by reason of its very magnitude, and his life was almost as unhappy as my own has been.

To me, his sole heir, he left our family diamond, The Un-setting Sun, and that portion of his wealth that remained after he had dispersed much of it in promoting philanthropic schemes.

My first misfortune, attributable to my wealth, was my marriage with a girl who told me, within a couple of years of our wedding, that she had married me for my money and for nothing else. How that she loved with all her heart and soul a man, an army officer, obscure and penniless, whom she had known from babyhood, and had adored from childhood.

This was a heavy blow to me, for
I was very fond of her.

However, I could not be such a cur and cad, even if I were such a fool, as to keep tied to me a woman who loved another man—particularly a woman who had laid me under such a debt, such a crushing burden of debt, as she had done, in giving me Rosemary.

I begged Alicia, my wife, to wait a little, to wait till Rosemary began to walk and to talk—and promised her that if she would do so, I would then set her free, if her mind

That I was in when I realized that my Rosemary had been taken from her warm bed out into the cold night, like a horse from a stable?

Of course, the possibility of someone making an attempt to kidnap my only child had occurred to me when, from time to time, I read accounts, in the papers, of the children of wealthy and prominent people being kidnaped and held for ransom.

But if it had not been an ever-present fear, partly because Rosemary lived so much under my own eye, and partly because she was constantly surrounded by a faithful and devoted circle of her own personal protectors and servants—the lady-housekeeper in whose personal charge she was, the nurse, the under-nurse, her English governess, her French governess, her groom, her chauffeur, the boy who looked after her dogs, any one of whom, I verily believe, would have laid down his or her life to save Rosemary from harm.

When I realized the child was gone, utterly gone without a sound or a sign, I had to take tight hold upon myself.

But in the most secret depths of my innermost soul I swore that I would leave no stone unturned, no dollar unspent, first, to recover Rosemary, and secondly, to punish those who had been guilty of this outrage, this infamy, of terrifying, stealing, and thereby maltreating a

EXACT METHOD OF ROASTING COFFEE PERFECTS FLAVOR

Controlled Roasting, Patented by Hills Bros., Gives Flavor No Other Coffee Has

To sip a cup of Hills Bros. Coffee after drinking other brands is a most revealing experience. There is a wealth of full-bodied, savory flavor that is almost startling. What's more, it is a different flavor.

The way Hills Bros. Coffee is roasted is responsible for this deliciously different goodness. Instead of being roasted in bulk—as most coffees are—Hills Bros.' rare blend passes through the roasters, evenly—continuously—a little at a time.

The chief factor in the success of this process is the perfect control of the flow of coffee and of the heat. This is insured by an even roast.

The ultimate result is a rich, uniform flavor in every pound.

In order to keep this delicious coffee fresh, Hills Bros. pack it in vacuum. Air, which destroys the flavor of coffee, is completely extracted from the can, and kept out by this process. Ordinary cans, even if air-tight, do not keep coffee fresh. Ask for Hills Bros. Coffee fresh. Ask for Hills Bros. Coffee fresh.

after school hours.

One of the men whose shoes he shined was Arnold Bertrand, the dramatic impresario of South Bend, Ind., near where Lane lived. Allan asked him for an acting job, and Bertrand promised to remember him. But it was not until his second year at Notre Dame that Lane held him to his promise and got a job on the stage.

Other stock engagements followed and eventually Hollywood. But his first visit was none too successful and he invaded the New York stage. He was taken, this time, from Hills Bros. Coffee, Inc., Kansas City, Missouri.

Junior-Senior Banquet At Settles Hotel, Gay And Colorful Occasion

Air-Mindedness, Topic of Evening Addresses By Toastmaster and Speakers Before Large Crowd

In a gay and colorful setting the Juniors of the Big Spring High School entertained the Seniors, according to their annual class custom Thursday evening with a banquet in the crystal ballroom of the Settles Hotel.

The long tables were made attractive with centerpieces of red and white carnations and sweetpeas which carried out the class colors of the Junior hosts and hostesses. Around the tables the greatest number of pretty girls ever enrolled in the two upper classes and their nimble-witted escorts sang impromptu school songs to the music of the Matthews high school orchestra.

Between snatches of song the guests enjoyed the well-served dinner and listened to talks on air-mindedness which was the theme of the evening.

Fred Martin, president of the Junior class opened the program as official toastmaster, with a greeting to all the guests of the class, giving the keynote of the banquet theme by reminding them of Amelia Earhart's remark that youth and aviation had much in common.

Ted Phillips, president of the Senior Class responded, saying that the Juniors would soon fall the wings of the Seniors in their flight through the atmosphere of knowledge.

Wendell Bedichek, the first speaker, took as his topic "Air Mindedness." He said that "Air mindedness" was more than being accustomed to riding in contraptions of wood and canvas or steel, propelled by a roaring thing that is coldly mechanical even though powerful and efficient.

"To rise by personal faith and labor to altitudes from which we may see life in beautiful panorama rather than in fragments is the object all should have."

"A good aviator must have courage, poise, alertness and the heart of a pioneer."

"Being inhabitants of West Texas how can we hope to be useful without the spirit of pioneers. Even though glamor of the frontier is dead, opportunity for the pioneer still extends the hand of fortune to us all."

Mr. Blankenship, superintendent of the city schools, gave a talk on "Travel: Why," in which he spoke of enlarging one's mental and spiritual outlook by travel and advantages afforded by modern methods.

Leola Moffett and Hazel Nance sang a duet, accompanied by Nancy Dawes at the piano.

The hand-painted place cards were figures of an aviator, carrying out the class colors of red and white.

One hundred and seventy-five guests attended the banquet.

At the close of the banquet program the boys and girls went to the Crawford hotel where they spent the rest of the evening in dancing.

Those present were: J. C. Morgan, Hazel Reagan, Tilman Crance, Clyde Thomas, Ruby Smith, Orville Hildreth, Ruby Creighton, Leonard Van Open, Arlene Chaney, John Mall, Evelyn Merrill, Emma Joe Graves, R. P. Bourland, Nora Pearl Marchbanks, Harvey Childress, Inez Crews, Jennie Dorine Rogers, Pauline Hubbard, Zan Grant, Hazel Nance, Ruth Dodson, Lottie Harrell, Eddie Morgan, Catherine Van Open, William Savage, Hudson Henry, Tommy Landille Gooch, Robert Currie, Lillian Crawford, Elizabeth Ed-

You Should See That The Dressing Suits The Salad

Despite the fact that many people consider the salad dressing as "just a flavor" that is added, it decides the character and certainly the success of the salad, served with the wrong dressing, loses the flavors that make you like it. Therefore your choice of dressing, your decision to make one or the other of the dressings that best complement the salad ingredients, might well be regarded as your finest touch of skill in planning of your dinner. And the secret is so simple. It is just this: Decide upon your dressing after you have decided where you are going to serve your salad in the meal, and what kind of salad you are going to have, and then mix that dressing with a view to bringing out the flavors of the salad stuffs.

Salads made with light, simple greens seem to find their ideal complement in a dressing like Vinaigrette Dressing. It gives them a touch of subtle flavor while allowing all their natural deliciousness to assert itself.

To make Vinaigrette Dressing: In a bowl put one teaspoonful of salt and one teaspoonful of sugar, then add one-fourth teaspoon of pepper and a little paprika. When these seasonings have been mixed together, pour in twelve tablespoonfuls salad oil. This stirs together easily. Add two tablespoonfuls of chopped dill pickle, and one teaspoonful of chopped parsley. Stir well until all ingredients are thoroughly mixed.

For fruit salads select a dressing made with nuts or cheese... or one that has a touch of sweetness. The next time you have a fruit salad try this dressing.

To make Dressing: To four tablespoonfuls of lemon juice add twelve tablespoonfuls of salad oil, one teaspoonful of salt, one-quarter teaspoonful of pepper, one-quarter teaspoonful of sugar, one-teaspoonful of finely chopped nuts. Beat the ingredients and then add four tablespoonfuls of lemon juice add 12 tablespoonfuls of salad oil, one teaspoonful of salt, one-quarter teaspoon of sugar, one-eighth teaspoon of white pepper and one-quarter teaspoon of paprika. Beat the ingredients and then add four tablespoonfuls of finely chopped nuts.

Seafood should be marinated in French Dressing for a few hours before it is made into the salad. It helps to bring back all the zestful tang that makes it so delicious.

To marinate: mix twelve tablespoonfuls of salad oil and three tablespoonfuls of vinegar. Add one teaspoonful of salt, one-quarter teaspoon of pepper. Mix this thoroughly with the salad material and set aside in the refrigerator for several hours.

FOOD SALE The members of St. Thomas' Altar society will have a Food Sale tomorrow at the Handy-Andy grocery. Home-baked hams, cakes, pies and cookies will be offered for sale.

Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Warner, of San Angelo, are week-end house guests of Mr. and Mrs. L. R. Kuykendall.

IN DISTRESS AFTER EATING
Heavy, Tight Feeling of Indigestion Relieved By Black-Draught, Says Tennessean.

"My work is such that I did not get my meals regularly as I should, and then sometimes I eat hurriedly, and this makes me have indigestion, headache, dizziness and constipation," says Mr. Fred Stricklin, of Savannah, Tenn. Mr. Stricklin continues:

"A few doses of Black-Draught relieve me and make me feel like working, and my head clears up."

"Black-Draught is very easy to take and I don't know of anything that will relieve the heavy, tight feeling after meals as quickly as Black-Draught. I have been using it, at intervals, when needed, for years."

Another Tennessean, Mr. Jesse Smithson, of Bluff City, tells of taking Black-Draught for the relief of headache and indigestion. "It has helped me so much," he writes, "I don't know how I could do without it. I find Black-Draught such a fine medicine, I highly recommend it to my friends and neighbors."

Sandino Reported In Possession Of Nicaragua Town

NEW ORLEANS, April 24.(UP)—Unconfirmed radio reports received here today said General Sandino's bandits had captured Cabo Gracias A Dios, Nicaraguan destroying the United States weather observatory there.

Official confirmation was lacking as the Tropical Radio company was not in direct contact with the town, due to wrecking of its radio station there.

Reports from Washington said latest advices indicated the American warship Rochester was at the scene.

Southern Crude To Pinch Well

After its second 24-hour inch tubing Southern Crude Oil Purchasing Co.'s No. 2-A Cowden, second producer in northern Ector county, was to have been pinched Thursday morning. It probably will be restricted to 50 barrels or less daily, in the area, 3,650 feet northeast of the new well, being pinched to 10 barrels daily on a 364 inch choke.

It was rumored Wednesday that Southern Crude was considering two locations in Ector county with the probability that one would be drilled soon; Thursday morning it was reported that the company does not plan to drill any more tests in Ector in the near future. The latter talked with a statement made at Southern Crude's office at Midland Tuesday afternoon. The concensus in oil circles earlier was that it was unlikely there would be further development or exploration by Southern Crude on its Cowden block or elsewhere in Ector county until conditions in the oil business improve, the price of crude being lower than ever before and the two Cowden wells having no outlet.

No. 2-A Cowden gauged 400 barrels of oil during 24 hours ending Wednesday morning, its first day of flow through open tubing. This was only 20 barrels less than the well made during each of two 24-hour periods ending Sunday morning and Monday morning, flowing through 8-inch casing. No. 2-A has been completed at 4,244 feet, about two feet in shale.

U. S. Oil Production in Four Years Preceding 1931, 725,000,000 Barrels Higher Than for Period 1923-1926

The United States in the four years from Jan. 1, 1927, to Dec. 31, 1930, produced 725,000,000 barrels more oil than during the preceding four years, yet the price of this crude at the well was $150,000,000 less than was paid for crude produced from Jan. 1, 1923, to Dec. 31, 1926, according to statistics compiled by Russell Brown of Tulsa, executive manager of the Independent Petroleum Association of America.

"Since the Drake well was completed at Titusville in 1859 the oil fields of the United States have poured out a grand total of over 13,246,000,000 barrels of crude oil that was worth, at the well, about $17,658,000,000, or an average of $1.33 a barrel," says Mr. Brown.

"The enormous potential production of the flush fields of Texas, Oklahoma and California, together with heavy stocks of crude oil caused by excessive imports from Mexico and South America, have combined to force the price of crude oil today down to an average of about 60 cents a barrel for the entire United States. This is the lowest that the average price of crude oil has been in the last 40 years.

Mr. Brown points out that based on today's crude oil production and prices the United States would produce about 50,000,000 barrels less oil in 1931 than in 1930 and would receive about $400,000,000 less money for it. He also cites that in the last four years a total of $4,117 oil wells were completed in the United States and that during the same period 45,449 were abandoned. At an average of $20,000 each, the wells abandoned in the last four years cost, when drilled, about $900,000,000. In the last two years 27,149 oil wells have been drilled and 27,681 have been abandoned. The oil wells abandoned in 1930 cost, conservatively $250,000,000.

"During the four years ending December 31, 1930, the price of crude oil for the entire United States averaged $1.23 a barrel compared with $1.59 a barrel for the preceding four year period," Mr. Brown concludes. "The effect of low prices during recent years is, therefore clearly reflected in the rapidly increasing abandonment of wells. At the present average price of around 60 cents a barrel, undoubtedly far more oil wells will be abandoned throughout the United States in 1931 than will be drilled."

Nurse Held For Forging Narcotic Drug Prescription

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas, April 24.(UP)—Charge of forging prescriptions for narcotic drugs was filed in federal court here today against Miss Norma McCalon, chief nurse at Griffin clinic in Beeville. The defendant waived preliminary hearing and is being held in jail at Beeville.

Tax On Gas From Out Of State Is Solon's Object

AUSTIN, TEXAS, April 24.(UP)—Plans to put a tax on wholesale gas from Texas to St. Louis, Kansas City, and Chicago were announced by Rep. C. E. Farmer of Fort Worth in the Texas House of Representatives today. It is to supplement the tax on wholesale dealers of gas sold in Texas, he said.

Farmer said that his natural gas tax amendment to the occupation tax bill caught the "big fish" but does not reach the gas piped out of the state.

"I am studying the supreme court decisions now," Farmer said, "trying to get a way to reach that, too."

Farmer spoke on personal privilege, declaring he and the house were being held up to the public by penalizing industry and putting burdens on the home by "hijacking of special interests."

He said the wholesale gas tax was not a retaliation measure on the senate for the cigaret tax, but a revenue measure to take care of the schools and provide fire protection for the state capital.

Minister Denies Kissing Woman

KANSAS CITY, Kans., April 24.(UP)—The Rev. James N. Cornish, former pastor of the First Christian church here, denied in district court today that he had ever kissed Mrs. Bertha Thomas.

Mrs. Thomas is suing the Reverend Cornish for $5,000 for the alleged stolen kiss.

Reverend Cornish from the witness chair said he had been alone with Mrs. Thomas only once and that was when she came to him seeking advice about troubles she was having with her husband.

The defense will introduce testimony of several Sunday school teachers as character witnesses for Reverend Cornish's reputation.

BAPTIST ENCAMPMENT

Smith, of the First Baptist church of Breckenridge. Rev. J. Henry Littleton, Hamlin, is president of the association. Walter Jackson, Abilene, is business manager. The chairman of the program committee is Rev. H. H. Stephens of Ranger.

Fisherman Dempsey Team Mates Of Texas Grid Star At His Funeral

CENTER POINT, April 24. (UP)—Former teammates of Fletcher A. "Nonna" Rees, 25, former University of Texas football, basketball and baseball star, gathered here for his funeral, by a .22 caliber bullet at San Antonio and died yesterday in a hospital there.

Detectives said they believed Rees was shot accidentally by a rifle falling from a shelf. No inquest was held.

Funeral services will be held this afternoon from the Methodist church here with Rev. O. C. Haley, pastor, assisting. Rev. J. J. Mason, pastor of the McKinley Avenue Methodist church, San Antonio.

The athlete is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. S. J. Rees and six sisters, Mrs. M. K. Hood, Mrs. H. A. Salign, Mrs. C. L. Sowell, and Miss Almira Rees, all of San Antonio; and Mrs. L. O. Duncanson, Glendon, and Mrs. Bolton Boone, Glendon.

Rees was a star at Brackenridge high school, San Antonio, before going to the University of Texas. He ended his competition at Austin last spring and since then has been an employee of the C&S Sporting Goods company. Some of the firm's stock was stored in the garage where Rees was found shot.

Babe Ruth Must Stay In Hospital

BOSTON, April 24. (UP)—Babe Ruth, the New York Yankee $300,000-a-year star injured in yesterday's Red Sox game, must remain at Peter Bent Brigham hospital "at least two or three days" and even after his release must remain out of the game temporarily.

Editors Vote For More Rigid Radio Advertising Laws

NEW YORK, April 24 (UP)—Members of the American Newspaper Publishers Association went on record in favor of more rigid federal restriction of radio advertising, and adopted a resolution recommending that radio programs, appearing in newspapers, be handled as paid advertising only.

The association is holding its annual convention here.

Three resolutions were adopted relative to the problem of radio competition in advertising.

One, introduced by Joseph R. Knowland, Oakland, Cal., Tribune, indorses in principle a proposed amendment to the federal radio bill which would prohibit broadcasting companies from accepting advertising which comes under the "lottery" designation forbidden in newspapers. The proposed amendment would provide a fine and prison term for violation.

A second resolution, put forward by J. B. Barnum, Syracuse, N. Y. Post-Standard, is concerned with relations between radio companies, press associations and newspapers in dissemination of news. It calls for appointment of a committee to confer with heads of press associations on regulation of news give to broadcasters. This resolution contains the recommendation that radio programs be carried as paid advertisements in the press.

The third resolution, introduced by George A. Graf, Williamsport, Pa., Sun and amended by G. J. Palmer of Houston, Texas, Chronicle, calls upon the directors of the association to "investigate" the legality of broadcasting direct advertising under exclusive government franchise of wave lengths in competition with other advertising media not enjoying similar governmental protection.

In a discussion of the matter, Col. Robert R. McCormick of the Chicago Tribune, said that "every one wants cheap advertising and the cheapest buy is on the air, where the advertiser gets his program printed for nothing in newspapers throughout the country. Radio in itself is not a good buy, but the matter printed in the newspapers is. I suggest that we do not allow broadcasters to collect cash for advertising we are giving their clients."

Gray-Haired Man Kept Half Dozen 'Girls' Enthralled

DETROIT, April 24. (UP)—How William Henderson Ramsay, 65, kept half a dozen love affairs going at once through matrimonial clubs and agencies, is being told in federal court here.

The white haired Ramsay is charged with bigamously marrying Mrs. Elizabeth C. Poval of Toledo, in Tulepe, Miss., in January.

Ramsay spent an uncomfortable afternoon on the stand, yesterday, while federal attorneys put him through a long grilling on his numerous marriages and love affairs.

He said his marriage to Mrs. Poval was his sixth but insisted that he had properly divorced all his other wives, in turn. He said he couldn't recollect how many women he had captivated.

Assistant United States District Attorney William G. Comb, read a number of letters from Ramsay's admirers. One woman expressed her deep regret that she could not send him five dollars. "I can't send you any more because my husband isn't working," the letter said.

Other letters were couched in the following terms: "I am very happy living in a dream my dearest — your own, Mame."

"Big love and kisses from your baby, Frederica."

"You see dear, I want a man that is full of pep, will love me lots and call me sweet names, Lots of love"

Date Fixed For Officer's Trial

ANSON, Texas, April 24.(UP)—Trial of W. W. Johnson, Hamlin city marshal, charged with murder in connection with fatal shooting of Stonewall J. Parker April 3 in front of the Hamlin jail, has been set for May 12 here.

Parker was under arrest on a forgery charge. Johnson claimed that the prisoner was shot when he attempted to escape.

Johnson is charged with murder "with malice aforethought."

Jo Massey, Macon, Ga., amateur golfer, picks a rainy day to test his ability to enter a tournament.

and many kisses, your loving Mae." Ramsay is defended by a woman attorney, Bertha A. Koon.

Babe Ruth Must Stay In Hospital

BOSTON, April 24. (UP)—Babe Ruth, the New York Yankee $300,000-a-year star injured in yesterday's Red Sox game, must remain at Peter Bent Brigham hospital "at least two or three days" and even after his release must remain out of the game temporarily.

Dr. Francis C. Newton, who with Dr. John Homans, is attending the patient, told the United Press today that the home run king was suffering from "severe muscle and nerve injuries, the extent of which has not been fully determined yet."

It was indicated another X-ray would be taken today. An X-ray taken last night showed no broken bones.

Highway Mishap Leads To Damage Suit For $60,300

Damages totaling $60,300 are asked in a suit filed in district court here by Leroy Moxon through his father, as next friend, against E. E. Ray of Breckenridge and the Commercial Standard Life Insurance company.

The suit is an outgrowth of injuries received February 19, 1930, by young Moxon when his motorcycle collided with an automobile on the Bankhead highway near the Couden refinery.

At that time Moxon, who with his parents now resides in Kansas, was employed by the Big Spring Herald, Inc., as carrier of papers to Coahoma and Stanton. His injuries made led to amputation of the left leg below the knee.

The plaintiff's original petition alleges that Ray was driver of the car which struck the plaintiff, and that he was driving his car on the wrong side of the highway and at more than 45 miles per hour.

For the physical pain and mental anguish the plaintiff holds he will suffer throughout life as a result of the injuries $7,500 is asked.

For loss of earning power, computed at $4 per day to the lad's life expectancy of 44 years $52,800 is asked. He was 17 years old at the time of the accident.

The plaintiff points out that thru the workman's compensation insurance carried on its employes by the Big Spring Herald, Inc., the plaintiff has received an award of $816.02 by action of the state industrial accident board, the claim having been paid by the American Employers Insurance company. This sum, it is declared, should be paid to defendants in the suit out of the first draft on the judgment prayed for.

The Commercial Standard Life Insurance company is made defendant because of the fact, the plaintiff declares, that one of its public liability insurance policies was carried by Ray at the time of the accident.

The suit was filed by Thomas and McDonald.

SPORTSIANTS

By Alan Gould

The return of Ed (Strangler) Lewis to the heavyweight wrestling championship picture, at the expense of Ed (Don) George, the Michigan collegian, may prove the forerunner of maneuvers to match Lew with Jim Londos and clear up the disputed title situation.

The complications have been severe ever since the collegians bustled into the wrestling combine Wayne (Big) Munn was the first of the educated grapplers to bounce into the spotlight. Munn won the title by throwing Lewis at Kansas City. Subsequently, Lewis regained the championship, but lost it to another collegian, Gus Sonnenberg of Dartmouth, at Boston. Sonnenberg was thrown at Los Angeles by George.

Matters are now in the hands of the experienced professional again, with Lewis claiming the title on one hand and Londos holding the championship belts awarded by the National Boxing association and the New York State Athletic commission.

Obviously these two gentlemen must be introduced if the dispute is to be settling and negotiations already are afoot to ballyhoo a Londos-Lewis match in the most impressive manner since Gutch and Hackenschmidt were rivals.

WYKOFF FLIES AGAIN

This should be a great year for Flying Frank Wykoff, the curly-haired sprinter of Southern California.

Perhaps it may be no more successful than last season, when he lowered the 100-yard record to 9.4 seconds, doing it twice for emphasis, but Wykoff has yet to capitalize his full sprinting powers.

His coach, Dean Cromwell, told me last year he intended to bring Frank along gradually and without too much pressure, having in mind the 1932 Olympics as well as the fact that the sprinter already has had several distressing accidents and illnesses.

"I think Frank can break sprint records up to at least 220 yards," remarked Cromwell, "but there's no advantage in forcing him along."

In his first major starts this spring Wykoff turned the 100 in 9.7 and the furlong in 21.4 seconds, contributing a double victory to Southern California's one sided dual meet victory over California.

Experiment With Winter Blue Grass Shows Good Results

SNYDER, April 24. (AP)—A possible solution to the problem of winter ranch pastures in West Texas is seen here in a successful experiment with winter blue grass, conducted by Mrs. Dora Cunningham and her son, Dan Gibson.

Mrs. Cunningham, who owns a Seary county ranch, believes the grass will pave the way for greater profits for ranchmen by eliminating much feeding usually required to bring cattle through the winter.

The experiment shows the grass grows during winter months while other natural livestock feed is dormant, and that it dies down during warmer months, not interfering in the least with warm-weather plants.

The grass as used by Charley Hoover, Mrs. Cunningham's nephew on his Oregon ranch, was said to have proved a great success in the northwest.

Success of the grass in Oregon is evidenced by a recent comment in the Medford, Oregon, Daily News as follows:

"The number of cattle or sheep that can be fed from a given number of acres planted to winter blue grass, as compared to any other kind of pasture, is so remarkable that it is beyond the comprehension of the average layman to grasp its significance. It will be sufficient to state that four or five times as much stock can be fed from an acre of winter blue grass as could be fed from any other type of pasture."

"When the value of this grass is fully understood by stock raisers of the United States, it will, in reality, revolutionize this department of farming."

Varied Materials Develop Colonial Charm

Charm of line and variety of material join harmoniously here in a Colonial cottage with three bedrooms.

It is featured by the large stone chimney and the dining room wing. The clapboards, stone and panel flush siding contribute a varied material interest.

The large stone chimney, dominating one end of the house, is flanked by the rear entrance from the terrace into the large living room, well lighted and ventilated.

The kitchen is near the front door, opposite the chimney end of the house. Convenience of this arrangement with respect to the front door is obvious.

Upstairs there are three bedrooms, of which two are cross-ventilated, and a bathroom, equipped with a tub and separate shower. Closet space has not been forgotten.

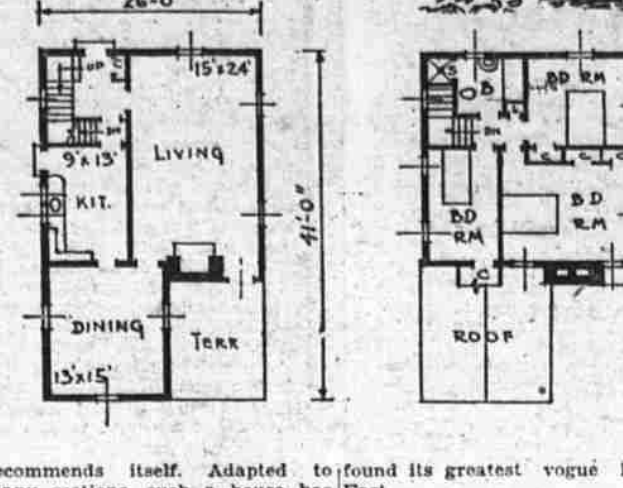

With the house preferably facing the east, the living room would have a southern exposure, while the kitchen would be a buffer against the north winds of winter.

With such a location on a lot 50 by 100 feet or larger, the dining room would face on the garden to the west, the accompanying view of the house being from the garden.

The exterior is of white-painted clapboard walls, for the main part, flush siding in panels for the wing and stone for foundation and chimney. The roof is of gray slate or shingle in gray, brown and sepias. The shutters are of blue green and the trim white throughout.

The wood fan over the rear door of the dining room is painted white, making a handsome feature for the end of the gable.

The economical nature of the plan, not difficult to carry out, recommends itself. Adapted to many sections, such a house has found its greatest vogue in the East.

Woman Falls Dead Beside Rig as Gas Rushes from Well

McALLEN, Texas, April 22 (AP)—Just as the dream of a lifetime seemed about to come true to Mrs. Sadie King, 75, as she stood beside her oil well and watched the gas pressure push a 40,000 pound drill stem 100 feet into the air, Mrs. King dropped dead from a heart attack.

Her death climaxed a long series of tragedies and disappointments which have dogged her daughter, Mrs. Doyle L. Smith, in the attempts to get oil in western Hidalgo county.

Twelve times Mrs. Smith and those associated with her, including her mother, drilled wells, only to see them stopped at the last minute by some mysterious circumstance. Once the driller quit suddenly, just as the well was about to be brought in. His successors found the drilling machinery had been tampered with, and the work had had to be done over again.

The most recent attempt went down more than 4,000 feet, and then an obstruction was found in the well. It took months of work and thousands more dollars of the waning Smith fortune to clean it out.

Recently the driller announced it was cleaned out, and the Smith family, including Mrs. King gathered at the well to watch it brought in.

As the tremendous gas pressure began to whistle through the well, and suddenly with a rush and roar lifted the drill stem out of the hole, Mrs. King fell dead.

Mrs. Smith and her sister, Mrs. M. A. Krauss of New York, who have worked for ten years or more drilling in this section in the hope of getting one test down without interference, are now at work again, hoping that the present well will bring in oil when the gas is cased off and it goes on gas.

Posses Seek Slayer Of 11-Year-Old Girl

HOME TOWN TALK

By BEDDY

Howard county having twice in the past few months voted against the paving of highway 9 and highway 1 a concerted effort now is under way in neighboring counties, principally Mitchell, to attempt having No. 9 rerouted so as to lead from Sterling City to Colorado, thence to Lubbock rather than over its present route.

Looking at it from one standpoint one would be constrained to say Howard county has no right to kick at such an action. The fact is the distance from San Angelo to Lubbock would be shorter, via Colorado. The fact is, also, that Howard county consistently has refused to help improve No. 9.

Many of us feel any effort at rerouting the highway is in vain and that nothing of the sort can happen. But, it can, and if sufficient work is done by those wishing to change it we might lose it.

Now we cannot, we absolutely must not allow this highway to be lost. What we must do to prevent it for all time to come is another matter.

Glaucock county has been offered paving on the short strip of No. 9 that crosses its extreme northeastern corner, provided the right-of-way is obtained without cost to the state.

The highway department has adopted a policy of footing the entire paving bill in cases where a county has but one state highway, which is far removed from the county seat.

No. 9 is being paved from the northern edge of Sterling City to the Coke county line. A short Coke county strip is paved. The Tom Green county section is paved. Concho county recently voted bands to pave it. McCulloch county has it surfaced.

The contract for paving the section between Sterling City and Glaucock county line soon will be awarded.

As soon as right-of-way is obtained in Glaucock county the surfacing will be extended to the Howard county line.

Many voters opposed the bond issues recently submitted, they declared, for the reason they provided for paving both No. 1 and No. 9. Many said they would vote for No. 9 alone.

Of course, much opposition would be generated at this time to voting for paving of either or both. The question that continually arises in road bond campaigns: where would the road go? would be uppermost in the minds of those residing north of Big Spring.

Largest Crowd Of Week Hears Dr. J.T. McKissick

The largest crowd that has yet attended the revival at the First Christian church heard Dr. J. T. McKissick bring a message last night on the subject "The Unpardonable Sin." All except a very few of the pews were filled at the services, marked by inspirational singing.

After a splendid solo by Mr. E. B. Bethel, the song-leader, Mr. McKissick delivered the message on the "Sin Against the Holy Spirit."

"Some think it is murder but the murderers of Christ were forgiven, according to the record in the second chapter of Acts; some think it is suicide; in the mind of the speaker, no person commits suicide; Christ is to resist or sin against the Holy Spirit. It is not a single mistake or headline one makes or crosses but a constant and continual rejection of Christ and the gospel."

"God wishes to save all men but if they refuse His proffered mercy they are lost by deliberate choice. Christ died on the cross to save every soul but man must take even a gift. The way of life has been made so plain that the commonest intellect may understand; rejection of this 'way of the cross' leads to certain and irrevocable death."

The subject for tonight is "The Unpardonable Sin." The meetings will be held by congregational singing led by a chorus of singers, also special numbers. Services begin at 7:45.

Gasoline Market Affected By Two Factors This Year

TULSA, Okla., April 23 (AP)—The Midcontinent gasoline market, in a slump most of the year, was agitated by two things—unfavorable weather and the introduction of a "competitive grade" of gasoline.

The question of whether other marketers would follow the Standard Oil Company of Indiana and the Pure Oil Company in offering a third grade of gasoline to sell at lower prices than their two regular grades, created uncertainty.

The effect of weather conditions was to delay the beginning of the annual upswing in gasoline consumption. Whenever rain or cold checks the operation of the country's 27,000,000 motor vehicles which use about 400,000,000 barrels of gasoline annually, the oil industry feels a decided effect.

In introducing their third grade of gasoline, the Standard of Indiana and the Pure Oil Company are making a bid for the business of the motorist who buys on price. In this way they hope to increase their volume of sales without losing any business in their established standard and high-test brands of gasoline.

Executives of several other large companies, when asked their opinions concerning this third grade idea, said they were awaiting developments before deciding what policy they would take in meeting such competition.

Consolidated speculation was precipitated as to the effect of the new brands. Officials of marketing companies operating in the Midcontinent area said several days probably would be required for the market to become adjusted to the new conditions.

Some talk was heard to the effect that a third grade of gasoline with a price appeal may offer a solution to the problem of disposing of lower grades of gasoline. Improvements in automobile motors and motor fuels have increased consumption of the so-called "anti-knock" gasolines, resulting in a diminished demand for the lower grades.

Refiners found a note of encouragement today in the report of Platt's Oilgram and National Petroleum News showing that gasoline stocks in the Midcontinent area decreased 545,000 gallons, or four per cent, in the fiscal week ended April 17, totaling 127,184,000 gallons at the end of the week.

Production of gasoline for the same period totaled 49,807,000 gallons, an increase of 3,810,000 gallons over the preceding week's output, but shipments kept ahead of the production, totaling 49,612,000 gallons, an increase of 3,633,000 gallons.

Daily average crude oil runs to stills for the week totaled 31,772 barrels, an increase of 11,982 barrels.

V. R. Smith, city manager, drew comparison between wages paid by the City of Big Spring and El Paso city and county authorities.

He said some criticism had been directed at city officials on a comparison it had paid low wages compared with other cities.

Mr. Smith pointed to an announcement from El Paso that the city and county had increased regular common laborers' wages from $2 to $2.25 per day.

He said regular common laborers here had never been paid less than 40 cents per hour or $3.40 per day.

In the cases of 50 men whose families would have been under support of the Community Chest he said $2 per day had been paid, 30 men being employed in two groups on 25 on alternate days. This was done for the purpose of relieving demands upon charity organizations only. The regular common labor wage remained at 40 cents per hour.

HISTORY OF OIL IN TEXAS TOPIC OF ADDRESS GIVEN HERE BY JOSEPH EDWARDS

Members of the Rotary club in their regular session of last week heard an address by Joseph Edwards, president of the Big Spring Pipe Line company, on "The History of Oil in Texas."

In a succinct review Mr. Edwards, veteran in several branches of the industry, surveyed the rapid broadening of the importance of the oil industry to the state. His address followed:

The first producing oil well in the United States was drilled by Colonel Drake at Titusville, Pa., 1859. The first oil discovered in Texas was in 1877 near Nacochoches at around 200 feet, but these wells were small and soon played out.

Corsicana Pool
The first oil field opened up in Texas was at Corsicana, an oil well showing in a well that was being drilled for water was the cause of the first well being drilled for oil, which was brought in October 15, 1895. In 1897, J. S. Cullinan of Pennsylvania organized and built the first refinery in Texas at Corsicana and it was operated and managed by E. R. Brown. Later this company was taken over by the Magnolia Petroleum Co., then the Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey bought the controlling interest in the Magnolia Petroleum Co., and E. R. Brown is now president of this company.

Spindletop
Texas was not considered a factor in the oil business until Capt. Lucas drilled in the Lucas gusher at Spindletop, January 19, 1901. This well flowed over 100 feet above the derrick and attracted oil men from all parts of the U. S. This pool proved to be one of the greatest in the United States at that time. In 1902-1903 the Sour Lake and Humble fields were brought in and in 1904 a large shallow pool was discovered in Clay county.

Electra
In 1905 the production in Texas reached a total of 28,000,000 barrels, but by 1910-11 the production had dropped below 10,000,000 barrels.

Wagoner
In 1911, oil was discovered on the W. T. Wagoner ranch about 30 miles northwest of Wichita Falls. Mr. Wagoner was drilling some water wells near the present town of Electra and accidentally discovered oil. The town of Electra was named after his daughter. This pool has been one of the most consistent producers of high gravity oil in the U. S. The wells were not very large, but have proven to be of long life and have been the foundation of a number of fortunes in Texas. Mr. Wagoner is considered one of the richest men in the southwest.

Ranger-Breckenridge
In 1917, W. K. Gordon, organized a company and drilled in the first oil well at Ranger on the McCleary farm, which started the Ranger and Breckenridge boom. The Ranger and Breckenridge boom was the first to produce a great deal of high gravity oil, high in lubricating properties.

Burkburnett
In 1918, the Fowler well was brought in at Burkburnett, which started the most spectacular oil boom in Texas. The Fowler well, which was drilled in 1918, produced 59 barrels per day. Oil was bringing the highest price ever known in Texas, the posted price for the major companies was $3.50 per barrel, and several million barrels were sold from 25c to 50c per barrel premium.

Mexia
In December, 1920, Colonel E. H. Humphries, drilled in a big well at Mexia. This was followed later by the bringing in of the Powell and other pools near Mexia, these were large flowing wells and produced a great deal of oil.

Fanhandle
In 1921, oil was discovered in Carson county in the Fanhandle, which later was the cause of the opening up of several big pools in that section, and there is still considerable activity in this part of the state. The largest gas fields in America are located in this section.

Big Lake
In 1923, oil was discovered at Big Lake. Reagan county, this started considerable wild-cattling all over west Texas and was followed by the opening up of large pools in Crane, Upton, Winkler, Pecos, Howard and Glasscock counties.

The first deep well in Howard county was brought in early in 1928 by the Magnolia Petroleum Co. on Mrs. Dora Roberts ranch. There are five known producing sands in Howard and Glasscock counties and a large area of this proven section is yet to be drilled.

East Texas
In the latter part of 1930, the Joiner pool in Rusk county was opened up and today Rusk and Gregg counties are the most active oil pools in America. Reliable oil journals predict that East Texas pools will produce from one billion to one and a half billion barrels, there is only one other oil pool in the U. S. that compares with this field, and that is Kettleman Hills in California. It has been predicted that this pool in California will produce around a billion barrels. The leases in East Texas pools are largely owned by small independent operators. There are over 100 producing wells and approximately 400 which are now drilling, or rigging up to drill. This gives you some idea as to the activity in that section.

We will probably see low prices for oil until the latter part of this year. After a large amount of cheap oil has been placed in storage by the major companies, we will see better prices. We may expect very little activity in Howard and other west Texas pools until the flush production is taken care of in East Texas. I believe that Howard county will be producing oil for years from now, and the less oil we produce and sell at this time the better off financially we will be in the future.

Texas is the largest producing oil state in America and has the largest refining capacity of any state in the union. And her greatest natural resource should be conserved, so as to give us continuous prosperity for years to come. The officials of our state should give these matters conscientious consideration.

Bandits Get Much Loot In Safe Robbery

Best General Store Loses $11,000 Notes, $1200 Cash

SAN ANGELO, April 21 (UP)—Robbers blew open the safe of the Moore general store at Best, near here, early today, escaping with $20,000 in notes, $1,200 in cash. Moore, living across the street, heard a noise and attached no importance to it. The loss was discovered when he opened the store a few hours later.

Amendments Hard To Get

Difficulty In Submitting Constitution Additions Many

AUSTIN, April 21 (UP)—The extreme difficulty of submitting proposed constitutional amendments because of the necessity of receiving a two-thirds vote of the membership of each house instead of two-thirds of those present and voting has been exhibited several times during the present session of the legislature.

An attendance of 135 in the house of representatives is considered good. That is nine-tenths of the membership, an average attendance, considering that illness is ever present among legislators and their families, and that personal business occasionally requires a representative's attention.

With 135 in attendance, 36 can block the submission of a proposed constitutional amendment to the people.

If the requirement were two-thirds of those present, it would take 46 to prevent submission, and 47 votes more or less is an important matter on many resolutions.

A supreme effort recently was made to get everyone present for the vote on the highway bond issue, but nine were away. However, in that case their presence would have made no difference because 59 votes were registered against the resolution.

Only 24 votes were cast against the country home rule resolution, but had four more opposition votes been registered, the proposed constitutional amendment would have failed of final passage in the house. It received 103 favorable votes, while seven representatives present did not vote.

If the house does not pass the resolution to cut down the legislative representation of the big cities, ignorance of parliamentary procedure on the part of three opponents will have been the cause. These opponents permitted themselves to be paired with absent opponents, not realizing that the resolution needed 100 favorable votes and it made no difference whether the opponents were present or not.

The three votes were not counted; the resolution mustered 97 "yes" and therefore failed of passage at least temporarily. That was the case notwithstanding that only 23 votes, outside of the pairs, were cast against it.

On the submission of proposed constitutional amendments there are two schools of thought in the legislature. One believes that any change of popular there is considerable opposition. The other believes that any change should be submitted to a vote, regardless of the views of the individual legislator. "Let the people rule" is the slogan of that group.

The other believes that the constitutional inhibition that proposed amendments cannot be submitted to the people except through a two-thirds vote of the legislature was intended to make it impossible for the people to vote on a proposal that had not received the endorsement of two-thirds of the legislature. Members of that school reason that the framers of the constitution intended for future generations to consider carefully before making any changes.

As the legislature draws nearer its scheduled close May 12, the opinion grows in some quarters that the session will hold over several days longer. This is because of the slowness with which the general appropriations bills are being considered, and the money measures must be enacted, even if the other proposals fall by the wayside.

Slayer's Conscience Made Ally In Search For Slayer Of Nurse

Scarcely a month passes that does not yield some new clue, false or otherwise, to give a new turn to the six-year hunt of District Attorney Earl Warren (right) for the slayer of Besie Ferguson (left) in Oakland, Cal. She left home one night in 1925, saying she was going to visit Sheriff Frank Barnett (below). She never arrived at his office. Parts of her dismembered body were later found in two counties.

OAKLAND, Cal., April 21 (UP)—When scientific crime detection methods fall, "time" becomes the chief ally of the detective. On this belief District Attorney Earl Warren rests his chief hope of solving the mysterious murder of Besie Ferguson.

Although it has been nearly six years since the comely San Francisco nurse's disassembled body was found, scarcely a month has passed without bringing some new clue, false or otherwise, to keep alive official interest in the case.

In a legal sense the case is unique in many ways. Whereas many murder cases fall of successful court prosecution for lack of a "corpus delicti," Alameda county finds itself in possession of the "body of the crime" without official recognition that a murder has been committed.

District Attorney Warren declares it has been definitely established that the Ferguson woman was slain; her identity has been proved beyond dispute, and the insurance company has paid the policy on her life, yet no coroner's inquest has been held and no court or other official action ever has been taken to indicate officially that a crime has been committed.

Body Still Held
Neither has there been a funeral. The body is retained by the authorities of Alameda county, and from time to time expenditures are authorized to defray the cost of preserving it.

When the suburban nurse left her hotel in San Francisco on the August evening in 1925 when she was last seen alive, she told her mother she was going across the bay to Oakland to meet Sheriff Frank Barnett, Alameda county's veteran peace officer.

Subsequently the names of four other more or less prominent residents of bay cities were brought into the investigation. The killing—almost in the back yards of two widely-known criminologists, Chief of Police August Vollmer of Berkeley and E. O. Heinrich, consulting criminologist—engaged perhaps the greatest array of police talent ever employed on a California case.

Grain Of Earth Is Clue
Heinrich, examining in his laboratory a tiny grain of earth found in the dead woman's hair, declared his opinion that the slaying and dismemberment may have taken place not where parts of her body were first found, northwest of Berkeley, but on Bay Farm Island, several miles southeast of Oakland.

He based his conclusions on the character of the soil. A few days after his announcement, additional portions of the body were found in the estuary near Bay Farm Island.

Parts of the body having been found at widely-separated points in Contra Costa and Alameda counties, the corner of each county declined to assume there was sufficient evidence to show the killing had taken place in his jurisdiction. Both declined to hold inquests.

Deputies Clear Sheriff
Several deputy sheriffs corroborated the declaration of Sheriff Barnett that on the night of the slaying he was in his private office. The hunting lodge which Barnett frequently occupied and his home were raided and searched, but no evidence against him was discovered. At the next election he was defeated for office after many years of tenure.

The atrocious nature of the crime," he says, "makes it morally certain that some one's conscience will eventually cause a breakdown and inauspiciously or a confession result." He believes he has sufficient evidence to prove the motive for the

Broadway of America Motorcade Spends Night In Big Spring; City Park Site of Barbecue for Party

Bound for Hot Springs, Ark., for a convention in which much new strength for the movement to increase traffic over the transcontinental traffic artery called the Broadway of America is expected to be generated, forty men representing cities in California, Arizona, New Mexico and Texas spent Friday night in Big Spring.

They were joined here by Big Spring's delegation, Mr. and Mrs. R. F. Robbins, Fox Stripling and Charles Queaqua.

The motorcade originated in San Diego with Mayor Harry C. Clark, Arnold Klaus, traffic director and S. Schmoke. Gathering new members along the route, it was expected to include more than 125 persons before reaching Hot Springs.

The visitors were carried to City Park for a Big Spring style steak barbecue, prepared as only Nat "Dick and Bill" Olson can, after they had dined at the hotel, where reservations had been made for them.

Patrol Escorts
The string of motor cars entered town at 3:45 p. m., escorted by Lieutenant Martin Koonsman of the state highway patrol and "patrolmen" Freese, Miller and Matthews.

Mr. Klaus, in charge of the motorcade, joined other members in praising the Texas highway officers. Members of the Long Star state's crack patrol of 60 had escorted the cavalcade from the state west of El Paso and were to be with it until it left the state at Tarkana.

Lieutenant Koonsman, stationed at Abilene, rode here during the afternoon and was to lead the escort to Fort Worth.

Shine Phillips presided at an informal meeting of the visitors and hosts in the park following the barbecue. Judge J. T. Brooks welcomed the travelers. Mr. Klaus responded. He was particularly complimentary of scenic drive and of its value, actual and potential.

San Diego Mayor
Mayor Clark of San Diego, who was in the 1928 motorcade to Memphis, Tenn., told the crowd the route had been paved from San Diego, western terminus to Yuma, Arizona, with exception of eight miles, which has been contracted for. From Yuma to Phoenix paving has just been finally completed and is either paver or provided for a short strip. It is surfaced from Douglas to New Mexico; and the highway commission of that state has plans for completing paving across the entire state within a year. The paving is good from Lordsburg, N. M., to El Paso with exception of three miles, he said.

"We are getting along fine with the campaign to get the Broadway paved. Now, we must get more people to travel over it," he said.

H. H. Gardner, head of the Chamber of Commerce in Tombstone, Arizona, took occasion to announce "Heldorado," Tombstone's annual re-enactment of the gold rush days in that section, 1879-81.

Meet Friends
The three Big Spring men who were in the 1928 motorcade party were present and talked with several friends they made on that trip. They are George White, Lester Fisher and C. T. Watson.

Coy. Willard E. Holt, secretary-manager of the Lordsburg, New Mexico, Chamber of Commerce, is glowing in praise of the small and other characteristics that have made him one of the best known Chamber of Commerce executives in America, entertained the crowd with a talk.

He was renewing many acquaintances formed on the 1928 motorcade and this year is the representative of Governor Arthur Seligman of New Mexico. The meeting was closed by C. T. Watson, who expressed the hope the next convention, as well as choice of new officers of the Broadway of America Association would tend to center interest in its activities further west for the coming year.

Members of Party
Members of the motorcade on its arrival here were: Harry L. Hummer, owner of the Hotel Huesman, El Paso; W. Gorman Hoefel, of the Broadway of America Association staff, El Paso; Capt. E. H. Simons, manager of the El Paso Chamber of Commerce; H. B. Davis, Pecos, executive secretary of the West Texas unit of the Broadway of America Association; Charles A. Brown, El Paso; Harry Mitchell, proprietor of the Mint cafe, Juarez, Mexico; Leo Helzel and Leo Helzel, Jr., El Centro, Calif.; Leo Watts, Calexico, Calif.; George Krueger, Brawley, Calif., of the California State Chamber of Commerce; John W. Ball, Ben Kelley, Ed Simmons and Mayor John Campbell, El Paso, Ariz.; E. Schmoke, Harry C. Clark, San Diego; A. E. Hinton, R. E. Webster, D. C. O'Neil, Douglas, Ariz.; Dr. C. L. Hill, Hill, N. M.; Harvey Wilcox, El Paso; Arnold Klaus, San Diego; H. H. Gardner, manager of the Chamber of Commerce, Tombstone, Ariz.; Mayor P. H. Knowles, Tombstone; Roy B. Krebs, Tombstone; N. Massolis, Willard E. Holt, manager of the Chamber of Commerce at Lordsburg, N. M.; Nate Burnett, A. Burnett, San Diego; F. O. Mackey, Douglas; C. G. Griffin, El Paso; Colbert Caldwell, El Paso.

Dr. McKissick Delivers First Discourse Here

The revival at the First Christian Church continued last night with Dr. J. T. McKissick making his initial appearance and bringing a stirring message on the subject "What Must I Preach To Be Saved," basing his remarks on the words of Paul to the Corinthians "I am glad to know nothing among you save Christ and him crucified."

The evangelist said, "Christ in the life will settle all of our modern problems, all of our domestic problems, our social problems. It is striking that in an age when we have one divorce to every six marriages, the average in Christian homes runs only one divorce in seventy-five marriages."

Quoting Woodrow Wilson, the evangelist said "The teaching given in the Sunday School today will become the code of morals for tomorrow. The only assurance we have of righteous conduct is Christ in the life. The only message we are commissioned to preach is Christ and him crucified. Christ is the answer to all of the ills of the world."

The evangelist's message was interspersed throughout with many quotations, indicating a wide knowledge both of the scriptures and of modern literature.

Preceding the message the service was marked by an uplifting song service under the direction of E. B. Bethel. Just before the sermon Mr. Bethel and Mr. Steve Baker sang a duet "Nailed To The Cross."

The evangelist announced as his theme for tonight "What Was The Mission That Brought Jesus Into The World?" Services begin promptly at 7:45 o'clock.

Kitchen Economies Local Authority Gives Useful Hints To Young Housekeepers On Leftovers

By MISS J. M. CHOATE
A writer on the art of cooking has made the assertion that there is more waste among the poor than among the rich, and explains it by saying that the former have not learned how to use the odds and ends that come their way, while the latter have learned this to perfection.

Wastefulness is no indication of a generous nature; and yet we have met those who imagined that if they did not show a careless, improvident spirit they would be considered close.

No greater mistake can be made than this. Does not the Bible speak of the careful wife thus: She looketh well to the ways of her household and eateth not the bread of idleness.

Economical Living
To the young housekeeper whose first steps in the care of a home are but a series of experiments, words, economy, comfort and thrift may have but little meaning; but ere long the wisest to make the most of every new relation will cause her to ask imperatively for advice in this direction.

First, in the scale of economies, comes the knowledge of "how to choose" that which is nearest the ideal in nourishment and "how to cook it" so as to get the greatest benefit out of it.

In our favored land, meat is one of the principal articles of diet, and in the older countries the laborer's man is only able to obtain it once or twice a week.

Perhaps the all-wise Father so ordained it, if it be true as modern physicians tell us, that meat makes "muscle" not strength.

A small family in America will often enjoy in a French home what would be enough to keep a household; for all the details of a Frenchwoman's kitchen whether she be rich or poor, are managed with the utmost economy. The food, although inexpensive, is cooked with such relish and in such disguises as to induce a belief that an entirely new dish is presented.

When a French woman says "No more of any article of consumption should be purchased than necessary for the number constituting the family. Many things for the table are excessively dear in certain seasons. It is very improvident to buy such articles out of season. Rather bring into use what is more readily procurable, by varying the manner of cooking it, serving it in different styles. This is the variety that will give the most satisfaction and even if there is not so lavish an outlay, both health and contentment will be certain to reward the effort. The art of cooking is a high-sounding phrase to some and yet it means merely the exercise of a little taste and judgment in the putting together of the material's one has with good results.

Economy may at first be hard to learn but it is valuable. When the housewife acquires the habit of making the best use of all she possesses, she will then be economical without being stingy, liberal without wasting, and learn how to provide a frugal table with frequent changes far more agreeable to the taste than expensive ones.

How To Utilize Leftovers
The tendency to waste is more likely to occur in small families where the mistress of the home is at a loss to know what to do with the small portions left over from various meals than in large families where the odds and ends can be used for the "next day's" meals. In large cities the utilizing of such fragments is not so great a matter, for there are plenty of wandering travelers who will accept them gladly; in smaller towns, where the poor are fewer the question is more serious.

The articles most frequently wasted is bread, every crumb of which should be saved. It can be converted into toast, placed on the oven to dry. When dry it can be grated coarsely and put into wide-mouthed covered jar for puddings, stuffings or thickening for meat gravies. Other pieces not large enough for toast can be converted into griddle cakes. Then there is the bread puddings and if the children or older members of the family grow tired of the economical bread pudding with lemon sauce, try the same in custard cups with raisins for fruit. Butter the cups, fill and then bake them, standing in a pan of hot water. Cover each one with a teaspoon of bright-colored jelly. To "he family this will be no longer a simple bread-pudding but a rich new dish to be eaten with cream.

Meat Leftovers
The bones of a roast can be cracked and put into the bean soup, giving it a nice flavor. Cold roast beef can be sliced thin and warmed over in its own gravy for a breakfast or luncheon dish. Some turn it into hash; but cold corned beef, after it has been sliced once or twice, makes the best hash. You can chop cold cabbage and cold beets, that have not been in vinegar, with potatoes and meat. If you do not have cold vegetables, chop the corned beef very fine, fry and lay it over dry toast in a platter.

Scraps of ham can be chopped, bread crumbs added, a little butter and some of the fat; then make layers of ham and bread, set it in the oven and then you have escalloped ham.

Sour milk makes cottage cheese; it also makes good biscuits and griddle cakes.

Potted meats can be made of fragments cut from the bones. Pounded in a mortar and seasoned, they make fine canapés for luncheons. The tough ends of steaks can be chopped and made into Hamburg steaks.

Egg Leftovers
Egg shells are useful for clearing soups, jellies and coffee. Soft boiled eggs left over can be rebaked and when hard take their place in garnishing salads, in pressed meats and on toast. (The sunny-side-up objects to a tiny taste.) Cold fried or scrambled eggs need not be wasted but chopped and mixed with mince-meat to make excellent stuffed rolls. If eggs are required for whites alone, save the yolks in a cup, wet a cloth, place over them and keep in a cool place until wanted.

Vegetables left-overs may go into the soup designed for next day's dinner. Canned fruits should be watched; if they show signs of working they should be stewed at once. Apple parings and pulp that is sound, need not be thrown away. Stew to a pulp, strain and oxygen and you have apple butter, peach butter and excellent fillings for tarts.

Cold Rice Leftovers
Cold rice is easily made into a pudding, into croquettes, or better still is fine as a thickening for broth.

If ice is not obtainable set milk in a cold place or boil to keep sweet. Flour and meal must be kept covered and tea and coffee are best preserved by closed containers. Add a tablespoon of cornstarch to each pint of milk, mix well and you will not be troubled by salt clogging or becoming damp. Butter keeps best in stone jars, breads and cakes retain their freshness in tin.

If in making pies a few scraps of dough are left, gather them in a mass, roll them out thin, cut them into fancy shapes, prick them with a fork and bake in a quick oven. Make into tarts or sift fine sugar over them and arrange round in a dish of stewed fruit.

WTCC Convention Decision Soon To Be Reached Here

Final decision as to whether Big Spring will seek the 1932 convention of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce will be reached Thursday evening when a committee of athletic officials before leaving for Des Moines, where the teams will compete in the annual running of the Drake relays.

Mr. Fisher reported only the local hotels had been approached and approximately $250 pledged.

Reports obtained from cities that have entertained the West Texas chamber the past few years show that net expense has been less than $500, registration fees and other charges having practically, or entirely covered the cost of holding the convention.

Run Tubing In Southern Crude Ector County Test

Running of 2 1/2-inch tubing with a packer in Southern Crude Oil Purchasing Co.'s No. 2-A Cowden, second producer in northern Ector county, had not been finished Monday night. The well was flowing open and the last gauge was 450 barrels through 8-inch casing during 24 hours ending at 7 o'clock Monday morning. This was practically the same amount as it flowed during the preceding 24 hours.

Back pressure was 85 pounds, the oil going through a 4-inch line to a 500-barrel tank 3,850 feet distant from the well. The oil from both Nos. 1-A and 2-A Cowden goes into eight 500-barrel tanks and then into a 55,000-barrel tank, in which there now is about 8,000 barrels. Most, if not all, of this is oil from No. 1-A Cowden, which is pinched to a daily average of 40 barrels with a 3-8/16 inch choke on 2 1/2 inch tubing and 250 pounds back pressure. Completed last October at 4,244 feet in sand in the lime No. 2-A Cowden initially flowed 281 barrels in 24 hours through 3-inch casing. Its peak gauge after being tubed was 372 barrels but that was after the packer broke. During the first 24 hours it was opened after having been pinched to a daily average of 31 barrels for almost a month while the 55,000-barrel tank was being erected. No. 2-A Cowden made 343 barrels with the choke on the tubing varying from 3-6/16 to 11-6/16 inch.

No. 2-A Cowden has been completed at 4,022 feet, about 2 feet below shale. Tubing is expected to increase its yield, as in the case of the discovery well. No. 2-A Cowden is 3,630 feet southwest of No. 1-A Cowden and 680 feet south and west of the northeast corner of section 24, block 4, township 1 north, T. & B. Railway Co. survey. Owing to distressed conditions in the oil industry, the lack of an outlet and the fact that neither well requires an offset, being on a seven-section block, it is fairly certain that Southern Crude will do no further drilling in the area in the immediate future.

Lipscomb County Development Rapid

LIPSCOMB, Texas, April 17 (AP)—Six months ago state highway No. 117 across Lipscomb county was a poor county road. Today it has state designation, bonds provided for paving it across the county, and prospects of becoming a connecting link in a transcontinental federal highway.

State designation formerly stopped at the county line because there was no outlet for the road at the Oklahoma line. Designation was promised if the Oklahoma highway commission would agree to build a road tying up with the Lipscomb county project at the state line, thereby giving the highway an outlet into the Oklahoma system.

By voting a $350,000 bond issue recently in the northern half of the county, the voters removed all conditions, and state engineers will soon be working on plans for paving the road.

Construction on this highway is under way in Ochiltree, Hansford and Hutchinson counties, which will tie up at Stinnett with paving from Amarillo.

Plans are under way now to make the route part of a transcontinental highway from El Paso by way of Amarillo, north through Kansas and on to Canada.

Loucile Allgood's Weekly Letter Club Girls Are Making Yards Both Attractive And Convenient

Dear Club Members:
The club girls of the county are improving their yards. Demonstrations on making diagrams of the yards have been given by second and third year girls. All of the girls will draw a diagram of their yards as they were before and another diagram as they are after they have been improved.

The Soash girls' club reported one hundred per cent on cleaning their yards since the demonstration was given two weeks ago. Geraldine Lauderdale disposed of a box in the yard which had been used for soiled clothes and is using a laundry bag instead. The bag is kept in a closet in the house. She moved the trash can outside the yard and put all tin cans scattered around the yard into the box. She moved the wash pot near the windmill to make it convenient and moved tubs and bench near. She has rocks and bricks which her father will use for a walk. She will plant a border of flowers near the house and on either side of the walk.

Glady and Maggie Pierson are making similar improvements. They dug up a flower bed from one side of the yard, placing the plants near the walk and near the house. They set out some trees. They are building a walk.

Minnie Palmer planted a border of flowers near the walk and house. She is making a walk.

Opal Mae Miller secured a box to put tin cans and other waste in, and started filling it.

Delma Armstrong and Effie Cook cleaned their yards and are planning other improvements. The girls mentioned cleaned their yards. Vines and flowers have been planted in most of the yards.

Sincerely,
LOUCILE ALLGOOD.

Howard and Glasscock County Crude Oil Reduced to 30 Cents in New Humble Schedule for State

HOUSTON, April 22. (UP)—Humble Pipe Line company posted a reduction in crude prices in Texas ranging from 5 cents to 20 cents per barrel, effective at 7 a. m. today.

This company also announced that it is reducing its pipe line tariffs and delivery costs 20 per cent.

To Equalize At Seaboard
In reducing crude prices and pipe line tariffs Humble is attempting to equalize all crudes at seaboard, according to W. S. Farley, executive in a statement in which he said owing to the prolific production in the East Texas fields this section would be the controlling factor in crude prices for some time to come.

In the new schedule East Texas crude will take the same price as that of Midcontinent, which calls for 67 cents per barrel for 40 degrees and above with a 2c differential down to 43 cents for 29 gravity.

Prices for Ranger, North Texas, Morgan and Cook county crudes were cut approximately 10 cents per barrel.

Gray, Carson and Hutchinson counties were reduced approximately 10c per barrel.

Gray County 33 Cents
Under the new schedule Gray county crude prices will be 5c per barrel for below 35 gravity with an increase of 2c for each degree of gravity, with a top price of 45 cents for 50 degrees and above. Prices in Carson and Hutchinson counties will be 30c for below 35 gravity with a 2c spread upward for each degree to a top of 42 cents for 40 and above.

Winkler and Pecos county crudes were reduced 5c per barrel taking a flat price of 35 cents per barrel. Lea county, New Mexico, crude was reduced 7 1/2c, taking a flat price of 2 1/2 cents per barrel.

Other West Texas Fields
A price of 30 cents a barrel was established for Crane, Upton, Crockett, Ector, Howard and Glasscock counties.

Gulf Coast Grout. A crude was cut 10c per barrel to 70 cents and Grade B to 60 cents.

Refugio heavy crude was reduced 9c, taking a flat price of 60 cents, and light crude was cut 10c.

Mirando crude was reduced 9c, making the new price 60 cents per barrel. Salt Flat and Dark Creek was reduced 7c to 50 cents and Petrus crude reduced 29c to 75 cents.

AUSTIN, Texas, April 22 (UP)—Terms of the East Texas oil proration truce made here, subject to approval of the state railroad commission, were announced by R. D. Parker, chief of the commission's oil division.

The terms have not yet been accepted by the commission.

They provide for proration to begin May 1, under a committee of 11 acceptable to both sides of the controversy. The initial allowable daily production would be 130,000 barrels for 40,000 barrels a day more than the enjoined proration order allowed; there would be an increase to 140,000 barrels daily on May 15, and 150,000 barrels daily on June 15. (The maximum allowable daily production under the proration order was 140,000 barrels.)

The court battle against proration would be resumed July 1.

If the railroad commission approves the proposed arrangement, Judge J. D. Moore will be asked to suspend the temporary injunction granted Carl Estes of Tyler and "other similarly situated" against proration.

Judge Chas. Brachfield and Carl Estes of the Texas Lease, Royalty and Producers Association, today said that their fight is not against proration of the East Texas production as among East Texas producers but against proration of East Texas' rightful market with 'o'er oil fields.

Two Services To Be Held At Revival Daily

Two services will be held daily at the First Christian church revival meetings. It was announced Wednesday. Services will begin at 10 a. m. and 7:45 p. m. Dr. J. T. McKisick, the evangelist, will speak this evening on "The Unpardonable Sin."

Dr. McKisick, chose as his theme "Why Was It Necessary For Jesus to Come Into the World?" at the revival in progress at the First Christian church last night. The evangelist said "First and fundamentally Jesus came into the world to save lost mankind. Sometimes we hear folk say that if a certain man continues living an evil life he will be lost. He is lost already. Being saved and being lost are not future conditions but present conditions. Jesus came to seek and to save a world which was already lost in sin.

"In the second place Jesus came in order that he might give us a more abundant life. He said 'I came in order that ye might have life and that he might have it more abundantly.' When people get the idea that the Christian life is limited and circumscribed they have little conception indeed of the gospel of Christ. The Christian life is the abundant life. Again, Jesus came that he might give us a concrete example of the perfect life. 'The Word became flesh.' We consciously or unconsciously pattern our lives after other lives. Jesus lived among men the ideal life, and by his life has motivated millions. Jesus came into the world in fulfillment of prophecy. Three hundred and thirty three. Old Testament prophecies were fulfilled by his life. Jesus came to satisfy the demand of the Divine law. God's law is similar to man's law in that there is punishment for disobedience. It is dissimilar in that God never breaks his own law whereas we break the laws we ourselves have made. Rather than break his law God himself became incarnate in the flesh.

"Again, by coming into the world Christ enlarged and deepened the Mosaic law. Moses said 'Thou shalt not kill, commit adultery, etc.' Jesus said you mustn't even think about it. Jesus went to the molendins and the intents of the heart. While the Mosaic law was external, they work from the heart.

Knott Seeks Independent School Rating

Members of the Howard county board of education will go to Stanton Thursday morning for a conference with the Martin county board to decide the action to be taken on a petition presented by patrons of the Knott consolidated district, a county-line district located in both counties.

The petition asks the boards to declare Knott an independent district under terms of the state law which empowers county boards to form independent district containing less than 700 children of scholastic age.

Reason for seeking to have an independent district created is that conditions for school tax purposes may be raised, enabling the school to hold longer sessions, without having to pay additional taxes into the county and state treasuries, as is the case when school tax valuations are raised in a consolidated district.

County boards were expected to create the district as petitioned. Members of the Howard county board are Tom Ashley, chairman; Mrs. J. E. Brigham, secretary; J. B. Wheel, Coahoma; Sam Little, Highway; J. A. Bishop, R-Bar, member at large; John Davis, R-Bar.

WORMS Not so long ago worms were commonly thought of as a common cause of illness. If the baby picked its nose, this action was considered a sign that it suffered from worms. Again, if a child were unduly fretful, grand-mother was sure to shake her head, murmur something about worms, and start weaving a dejection of pumpkin seeds.

Many of the former beliefs about worms were groundless. For the popular imagination conceived worms as causing toothaches, blindness, earache and the like. Now we know these beliefs without basis; but, on the other hand, there are a number of diseases, some of them quite serious, caused by worms. Tape worm is one such disease. Hook worm, which still infests large parts of the United States, is a very serious and debilitating disease. Trichinosis, a worm disease usually contracted through eating worm-infested pork, is another. One of the less serious, but extremely annoying worm diseases is caused by a parasite known as pin worm. These parasites are small worms, the male measuring less than half an inch, and the female about an inch.

Pin worms usually infest the rectum and colon, and there set up great irritation and itching. These symptoms are particularly distressing at night when the worms become active. Children are the most common victims of pin worms, but no age is immune. The worms gain entrance into the body through polluted drinking water and sometimes on unwashed raw salads.

The worms can be seen with the naked eye, and large numbers may be found in the stools of the victim. Salt water enemas will help remove the worms and sometimes cure the condition. The sufferer must be careful in his personal hygiene to avoid reinfesting himself or infecting others.

Jay-Walkers

BECAUSE the defenceless pedestrian is at the mercy of the erratic motorists and has been considerably compassed around by them, the attitude is gradually taking hold that he can do no wrong. He gets the public's sympathy every time.

In a large middle western city the other day a traffic officer was roundly berated by a noonday crowd for arresting a man who defied arrest after darting across the street against the signal. The policeman, jostled and jeered, was made a laughing stock. None would have considered it extraordinary if a motorist had been penalized for the same offense. Nor did the crowd seem to realize that the jaywalker might have been hit and that the policeman was acting for his safety.

OPINIONS OF OTHERS

Wool A Good Security Right Now

Austin American: TEXAS has many wool producers. Texas has many mohair producers. C. B. Denman is the representative of livestock and wool growers on the federal farm board. Speaking of wool Col. Denman predicts that the National Marketing corporation will handle a larger part of the 1931 crop than in 1930 and that the crop itself will be larger.

He volunteered the information that the farm board is pleased with the progress the corporation is making "towards standing on its own feet." It financed 119,000,000 pounds of wool last year, or 34 per cent of the crop, on $38,000,000. Officials of the board said 75,000,000 pounds of the 1931 crop have been contracted for by the cooperative to date and that the amount is expected to exceed the 119,000,000 pounds of 1930.

Very optimistic is Col. Denman. He returned this verdict: "Wool was the most stable commodity on the market last year. It is a good security right now and the principle of selling wool on the market is working out well."

Texas sheep and goat herds, or rather flocks, are in prime condition. A mild winter has a lot to do with improving conditions in the livestock territory and the leaders of the industry in Texas are looking forward to a fairly prosperous year.

Buried Treasure Stories Recalled

EL PASO, Texas, April 21 (AP)—Stories of buried treasure and exhumed bodies were recalled recently when repairs were made to the old Franciscan mission in Juarez, Mexico, across the Rio Grande from El Paso.

Founded by Franciscan friars in 1649, the mission was the scene two years ago of a hunt for treasure by Trinidad Saenz, 84-year-old rancher living near Juarez. Saenz said a beautiful woman had appeared to him in a dream and told him vast treasure lay beneath the ruins of the mission.

Receiving permission to excavate, Saenz unearthed a wooden box, in which was the mummy of a child. Further digging revealed the skeletons of 25 adults. Disillusioned when no treasure was found, Saenz reburied the body and the skeletons.

Tomorrow—A Good Breakfast

Hollywood Sights

By ROBBIN COONS HOLLYWOOD — Pat O'Brien, Irish with black hair and blue eyes and a touch of a brogue, once played on the Cleveland stage in "The Sign of the Cross." That was one of the reasons he was taken from a Broadway play and brought to Hollywood to portray Hildy Johnson, the star reporter.

LIKED TO ACT

O'Brien came out of the navy after the war with nothing in particular to do, and a yen, inspired by amateur theatricals in the service, to try the stage. He got a small part in a musical comedy in which George Bancroft, now the big movie he-man, was the leading comic. After that he went home to Milwaukee and entered Marquette to study law.

GETS HIS START

That night he passed a theater announcing the opening, two days later, of "A Man's Man." He went in, found the director was an old friend, and stayed to watch the rehearsal. Suddenly the director said: "How'd you like to play the lead? Our man's been called away suddenly."

EXILE RETURNS

CLEVELAND (INS).—After three years of enforced exile in the Czechoslovakian army, Michael Bujdos, a Cleveland, returned home to his wife and a baby boy whom he had never seen. Bujdos was deported by federal officials when they learned he had entered this country on a faked discharge papers from the Czechoslovakian army. His return was effected by Cleveland welfare agencies who enlisted aid of the government.

A GOOD LOSER Being a good loser is more important to one than being a good winner, for the simple reason that only a few people can be winners while scores are losers. Be prepared to lose, and remember that the purpose of playing the game is not to develop into a good winner but into a good player. It is not the winning but the playing that makes a successful person. Often unusual and unexpected events make a winner, but the same events cannot be depended upon to make a real player, for the latter type makes himself and does not rely upon unusual events. Try to win, but win or lose fairly.

Calming her jealousy, the nurse secretly James wife agrees to provide poison so that he can put her out of the way and obtain Mrs. Lauderdale's 10,000 pounds for himself. John Way, the mysterious man who does a little detective work when he hears a night prowler in the corridor near his room.

CHAPTER 23 DR. CHARTER'S SON

SWIFTLY he opened his door and crept into the corridor. Stooping low, Way caught a glimpse of the outline of a dark figure between himself and the tall window that framed the star-spangled sky. Rising, he crept swiftly in its direction. It disappeared. Touching each door as he passed it, he came to one that was ajar. Softly pushing it open, he said: "Come out, and stand aside, his left hand raised and leveled. Scarcely had he done so, when the dark figure reappeared between him and the window at the end of the corridor. Instantly a beam shone from a tiny torch in Marjorie's left hand, and almost instantaneously his right hand shot forth—a blow delivered with a skilled athlete's strength, enhanced by the irrefragable fury of long pent rage.

El Rodeo, School Yearbook, Now In Publisher's Hands

All that the annual office is waiting on now is for the annual to be published. Many others no doubt are anxious to get that much coveted book. "Students are again reminded to pay for their club pictures as soon as possible if they have not already done so," Frank Etter, sponsor of El Rodeo, said. "Just a few more weeks and they will be here and no one wants to be disappointed by not getting his annual. So let's all be up to par and have everything paid for," he added.

THE GOOD EARTH By Pearl S. Buck "Good Earth" was the March book-of-the-month. It tells the story of the life of Wang Lung, a Chinese peasant, from the time of his young manhood to his death. Wang Lung is a low-class peasant who because of his love for the land works very hard and rises to be a great Lord. He buys land with every bit of the money that is not used for bare necessities. He gradually acquires more land than any of his neighbors have. A famine comes on and he goes south. He and his family stay there two years; then they go home. He buys more land and educates his sons. He buys the House of Hwang, whose lands he now owns. He is now an old man and his only worry is that his sons do not love the land as he does and they want to sell it.

Report Card Day Gives 'Em Plenty To Worry About

"I know positively that I know more algebra in a minute than Guy Gifford knows in a week. Yet what do I get on my report card? Its seventy-one! What? Why he got eighty-five is what. I'm going to tell my Papa exactly how it was. I'll bet he calls her up over the telephone. He don't like her such an awful lot anyway; not after that sixty-nine she gave me last month! You can wager Miss Brice will let up on us a bit after my Papa gets through with her.

Club Opportunities Pointed Out In Popular Address

It would be impossible to give women who did not attend the club sessions, even a very small part of the good talks that were on the program.

One of the most stirring, however, was that given at the membership luncheon by Mrs. B. Simpson, president of the Junior Tuesday Club of Brady. Mrs. Simpson was elected first vice-president of the district for the coming two-year term and will go into office in the fall.

Mrs. Simpson's talk, which dealt primarily with Junior clubs, contains in it much that answers the questions women often ask about club activities. She has given the Herald permission to print it in full: Junior Membership

Whatever is on a person's mind and heavy to sure to show itself. I suppose that is why I am again asked to speak on Junior Membership. Though not so much of a Junior in the flesh, I am very Junior-minded.

I was once a teacher, and proud of my profession. Therefore I still claim to be a teacher, and I am going to prove it to you now, by asking you questions.

How do you like the college humor that is found in our leading college publications? How many jokes without shady meanings? How many drinking party jokes? How many "Newspaper" jokes? How many over which you laugh indignantly say, "Beyond me!"

Have you in your town a Smart Set whose girls drink and smoke? Have you gone to the news stands in your town and tried to find out which magazines have the largest sale, then bought these and read them?

Are the majority of the pictures at your theaters wholesome and healthful? What do you think of "Bachelor Fathers" for instance? Did you tell the theater manager what you thought of it? Or did you accept it with a shrug as "part of these dreadful times?" How many pictures showed the heroes and heroines drinking and smoking? Did it look smart and attractive to your daughter? How much successful lawbreaking have you seen, exposing fully the manner in which it was done—holdups, embezzlements, etc.? Would they have attracted the adventurous boy or girl?

Are you afraid? Do you fall in line with all that is new, lest you be considered "old fogy" or "behind the times"? Are you afraid of being called pessimist, alarmist?

Have you seen and heard so much that you have become hardened, calloused, almost incapable of judging of right and wrong? Seneca says, "A thing is never too often repeated which is never sufficiently learned."

By Ona Reagan Parsons "The Bitter Ten of General Yen" By Grace Zaring Stone (The Bobbs Merrill Co.) This is a very unusual book.

You must have the story to get the idea of its philosophy. Megan, an American girl, has gone to China to meet her fiancé and to be married. She is met by a missionary and his family who take her to their home for safe-keeping until her sweetheart can escape from his imprisonment city and reach her.

While she is with them, the first day in fact, another missionary comes in and asks for aid in securing some of his co-workers from a section of the country taken over by General Yen. General Yen, it develops, was once a good friend of this missionary and was almost converted by him. It was a great disappointment that he was not fully converted and had not used Christianity, instead of military tactics in pursuing his ideal of freeing China from some of its difficulties.

Megan, through the result of circumstances, goes on this rescue trip. On the return she is captured by Chinese troops and saved by General Yen himself who takes her to his home—one of them. Her only feminine companion there is one of his mistresses who was educated in the mission school and speaks English. Of course the general speaks it, also.

The story from that point to the end is most unusual and is so much like a Chinese drawing, two-dimensional. We miss the fullness and roundness and depth of American character-sketching.

Or else, Megan is a very stupid girl. It is plain to the reader that the general is greatly in love with the American girl and he is portrayed in voice at the college and the WFAA trio composed of Miss Alice Holcomb, violinist; Louis Faget, cellist, and Miss Lois Moseley, pianist, will present the Texas composer's program on Saturday morning.

It will be followed by a rendition by the "Rose Maids" by members of the College Choral Club, under the direction of William E. Jones, director of the Department of Music on Saturday evening. Soloists appearing on the program will be Mrs. Roger C. Cowan, soprano; Miss Katherine Buckner, Dallas, contralto; T. K. Johnson, Dallas, tenor and Warren Wood of Dallas, baritone.

Carl Weismann of Dallas will present an organ recital on Sunday afternoon as the concluding number of the fourth annual festival.

School Children Received From Aid From Club

The popularity of the recent bridge benefit given by the Child Study Club has brought about requests from the mothers of Mrs. E. D. Norman, for a benefit at night to which the husbands can come.

For this reason the club is planning to give a night benefit within the next three weeks. The hope of the club is to raise money enough to pay for operations for 22 needy children.

The table from the last benefit paid for the operations of four children. The following case histories have been given by Mrs. M. R. Showalter, public health nurse:

Maudie was a mouth-breather, suffering from diseased tonsils and adenoids; she is eleven years old, and hopes some day to be a school teacher, and says she will stress the value of health to her pupils.

R. J. was terribly handicapped, several doctors said he had the largest tonsils they had ever seen; he was falling to keep pace with his school mates. He is sure of improvement in this case.

Billy is six, his tonsils were so badly diseased; malnutrition, anemia, and mouth-breathing were his complications. This child's correction was surely given in time to materially assist the child through life.

Franklin never felt well, always had a chronic sore throat, and was absent from school a portion of every week; his tonsils were badly diseased, and he was absorbing poisonous toxins, that were constantly at work tearing down his body.

The above children were from James Street, West Ward and Elbow schools. A record of the children's school inspection is on file in Mrs. Showalter's office.

CONVENTION REMINISCENCES

By O.R.P. Every Big Spring woman who attended the sessions of the Sixth District declared that the meeting meant wider horizons. . . new civic ideals for club work. . . and more friendships (especially for those who kept visitors in their homes) . . . a very inexpensive way to enjoy wide-awake people, hear good programs; attend lovely luncheons. Now that it is over, those who took part in it are mighty glad the convention was held here.

It was interesting to note the variety of women who take active interest in club work. Big and little; fat and thin; dainty and mountaineer; tactful and determined, silly and serious. . . the old idea of a club woman booming forth in a deep voice. . . would have been exploded at this meeting. . . if anyone is left with it. Some of the most capable workers answered this description but they were in the minority. The thin woman is having her inning, too, today.

Compliments! Oh, My! And the compliments the visitors paid Big Spring and how Big Spring ate up those compliments—like water to thirsty throats.

Everything went off smoothly and with the scenery effects were perfect and hid the whole works behind stage. One of the most appreciated compliments was on the cooperation of Big Spring women—some of the delegates were sure their town wouldn't do so well. . . large signs of relief went up all over town after that.

The perfect combination was that of a lovely hotel and a florist who knew his job. There could have been no substitute for either. The club officials especially appreciated the low arrangement of the flowers, which added to the color of the tables without detracting from the view of the speakers and their listeners.

Cacti Stole the Show There were 207 guests at the conservation luncheon, whose cacti almost stole the show and were stolen too—Mr. Ribble couldn't find half of them later, but that's all right if the town's guests took them. There were 127 at the membership luncheon on Friday. . . and how pretty those high school girls looked in their dainty blue dresses as they danced down between the tables.

Talking about costumes, a lot of work, which went on behind the scenes and for which the reward was mostly in pride and affection and the applause of a delighted audience, was done by the mothers of the children in Mrs. Weather's class. The costumes were amazingly clever and the youngsters danced and sang as though they were entertaining themselves.

The way the preachers suddenly left town was the convention joke. Mrs. Carrie Reeves, who is probably the only unmarried president of the Christian church in this district, was the man of the west to act that way. The luncheons were served unblemished and meetings were invocations.

Men No Longer Needed This is the first time the women of this town have ever met on a convention without at least one meal, or a drive from the men. . . they're feeling rather self-confident now.

All the chairmen were enthusiastic about the way their workers helped them. The long lugubrious expressions on the faces of some of the committees were wreathed in smiles Friday.

The church was especially lovely the last afternoon. The plants which Mr. Ribble lent voluntarily and the accumulation of flowers and bluebonnets brought by the visitors made the women which that everyone in town had come.

And So On—Then the Caylor exhibit was so enjoyed. . . not only the first evening but afterward when the Caylor's expressed a let the pictures hang up for those who wanted to come in the daytime. . .

It was a great convention and we aren't ashamed of ourselves at all! Now we can go back to our bridge parties and rest.

Loving County Town To Change Its Name Soon

PEOCOS, April 26.—The name of the present town of Porterville in Loving county, which was originally the townsite of Ramsey is to be changed again on May 1, according to word from Porterville.

The name of the town is to be changed to Mentone, name of the original county seat of Loving county when it was an organized county back in the '90s.

It was many miles up the river, however, than the present location of Porterville.

Porterville, booming oil town in Loving county, settled in the midst of the blackened districts of the Wheat oil pool, already has an interesting history.

Originally Porterville was located on the river banks. Time was when it was a flourishing community as agriculture was tried with success along the river. Then came hard times for the farmer and the town shrank down. The original town is still there however.

The Loving oil field stimulated development but Jim Wheat, owner of extensive interests in Loving county, promoted another townsite, then known as Ramsey, nearer the oil fields.

The town grew. Mr. Wheat had the name of the townsite made "Porterville." Now it is desired to change the name of the townsite to Mentone, the original county seat of Loving county.

Authority from the post office department for the change has been secured and after May 1 the town will be known as "Mentone." Mr. Wheat says.

Porterville, or "Mentone" after May 1, is already a substantial town.

Sweetwater Race for WTCC Meeting of 1932

SWEETWATER, April 18.—Sweetwater, runner-up for the convention last year, today cast her broad-brimmed sash into the ring as a candidate for the 1932 convention of the West Texas Convention of City Development. The Sweetwater Board of City Development has started early preparations toward taking a big delegation to Lubbock to ask for the ensuing meet, the group to be accompanied by the Sweetwater Municipal band, official musical organization of the Texas department, American Legion.

Sweetwater's famed Gypsy Girls, so well known in West Texas convention circles, will be on hand to serenade the convention crowds at Lubbock, it was announced by John Hendrix, secretary of the Sweetwater organization.

Chief among those working to bring the convention to Sweetwater is Judge R. C. Crane, president of the West Texas Historical Society, who points that bringing the convention to Sweetwater will be bringing "home" the judge's back to this statement with historical facts concerning the organization of practically all West Texas-wide activities in this city.

"We've got something to show West Texas," declares C. R. Simmons, laundryman with interests in half a dozen West Texas cities and recently installed as mayor of Sweetwater, who points to Sweetwater's 50 per cent increase in population during the last decade.

"We want the world to know that Sweetwater is an industrial center, with the Gulf's terminal refinery, United States Gypsum company's huge wallboard plant, International Harvester Company's gigantic plant serving West Texas, New Mexico and Chihuahua, Mexico."

Sweetwater's railroads make it the most accessible convention city in West Texas, believes C. W. Bryant, president of the Sweetwater Rotary club and retiring mayor. He points to the three trunk lines which connect this city with all West Texas.

Hotel facilities are ample to take care of any convention crowd that a dozen West Texas cities and more than 500 hotel rooms available, besides apartment houses and other facilities.

Every effort will be made to bring the convention to Sweetwater, civic leaders declared in notifying D. A. Anderson, manager of the regional organization, of their plans to get next year's convention.

California Showmanship Seen In Sunrise Easter Services By Will Before Going to Tropics

Chick Sale is specializing entirely

By WILL ROGERS

Well all I know is just what I read in the papers, or what I see as I prowl from here to there. Every time I get a new picture finished why I kinder feel the itch to get out to some new place or make some sort of a little trip. Well away a couple of weeks ago, we finished "As young as you feel," based on George Ade's old play "Father and the Boys." I was going to take a little trip to the Central American, and then they kept me at home for fear there might be some re-takes on it. You know when we get one made we then take them out and show 'em, sometimes at a couple of different towns to see if they are FIT TO RELEASE, and sometimes we have to change something or make some new scenes. So I couldn't get away on my trip.

The way I had it planned I would have been in Managua, Nicaragua on the day after the quake, was going to stop over and see what the Marquis were doing there, and I would have been on the spot for quite a little news, for they sure had it tough down there. Well we took the thing and tried it in San Bernardino, Cal., and the customers giggled quite a bit, so that let me get away. They said, the Marquis were doing there, and they didn't think we could make any worse if we tried, so I jumped on the old Aerial Rattler, and left from there. Honest if people knew how fast and comfortable and safe it is on a Plane they would never travel any other way.

I left Los Angeles from over in San Fernando valley on the American Airways just at daybreak on Easter morning. They were having Easter sunrise services in the Hollywood Bowl. California goes in great for that. Gag. Well it was misty and foggy this morning, they might have got up before daylight and packed two miles away from the place. For I never saw as many cars in one place in my life. But they never had any sunrise service, for no one but an Aerial Magician could have told when aerial did rise on that day. Old California fell down on 'em. It was so misty and foggy that we didn't think we could get away, but these Planes all have radio now, so they got word that there was fine weather all along the line.

You know this Radio has made it mighty fine to find out about what's ahead. You see its never the weather you take off in its the weather where you have to go through after you take off. I remember one trip on our late tour with Captain Frank Hawkes when we took off one day in a snow storm in New Mexico when you just couldn't see a thing, not two hundred feet, and it was that way flying blind for the next hour, but he had been before that it was dark off Albuquerque, where we were going. So his how is the weather ahead of you more than how it is where you are.

Well the Sunrise bunch didn't get much started that day I am afraid. You know California can get more people into something free than any place on earth. Course that particular thing was a very meritorious cause, and is a good idea if you live in a country where you can depend on the weather. This thing is just what you need in a rainy one, they call the Bowl, and they have had some mighty fine things there. Its a sort of a Moses on the Mount idea. We live in Hollywood take all the Bible things and improve on 'em. make 'em bigger. Now Moses when he read his Amendments didn't have thousands of cars parked around, and he didn't advertise how many he could seat on the sage brush on the hillside. But we did out there. We just don't go in for little things.

Now take the Lords supper that has never interested our Movie producers, for there was not enough guests there. It was a Stag affair, and that wouldn't mean much to the Producers. We did however put on the Prudential Sons return, course we changed the name on account of that one being very well known and Hollywood called it "The Story," "Sonny boy returns to his first love," and the place they had him return to was bigger than all Judea combined. We just do 'em big out that way, and the eastern Tourist out there expects it. California can't do anything natural, they want believe it.

But its a great old place, and we get as much fun out of it, as if we believed it all ourselves. Speaking of services and religious gatherings why we been missing Almes lately. She is away off prowling around

Use of County Road Machines For Land Terracing Allowed By Bill Adopted In The House

AUSTIN, Tex., April 18.—Recognizing soil conservation and preservation as a state need, the legislature has passed a bill to aid the movement and adopted a resolution commending the national department of agriculture for its interest in soil conservation in Texas. The bill would authorize county commissioners' courts to use county road machinery during the off seasons to terrace farms and prevent erosion and washing.

It received overwhelming majorities in both the house and senate. The machinery would be hired to farmers at cost, the assessment to be spread over a series of years. It was introduced by Representative Giles of Austin, one of the leading advocates of soil conservation in the legislature.

Another bill termed by proponents as a soil conservation measure, aimed at a reduction in cotton acreage, is pending in the house. Representative Olsen of Yorktown introduced the bill. It would reduce enough votes to pass and that it would be brought on in the immediate future for action.

Authority

Under the bill, the soil conservation commission would have authority to order reductions in the acreage of any crop not more than 50 per cent. It was claimed the bill would result in increased soil fertility because farmers, growing only cotton, would be forced to rotate their land with other crops. J. F. McDonald, commissioner of agriculture, advocate of the plan, claims his vote, no more than any one thing to increase soil fertility and, at the same time, increase the price of cotton by reducing the production.

One of the main advantages of the plan, according to McDonald, is that it will increase the quality of the cotton grown, enabling farmers to command a higher price for their product.

Opponents of the measure predict it would fail of enactment. One representative said he had an amendment ready to exempt land owners living on and cultivating their own soil.

The bill then would apply to tenant farmers only. He expressed the belief the bill was unconstitutional because it abridged the right of a man to do with his property as he pleased. It also was contended the bill was impossible to enforce because of the number of farmers growing cotton. There are 400,000 farms in Texas and the soil conservation commission would be required to hire hundreds of men to try and enforce its provisions. He claimed that before a farmer could be convicted under the act, it would be necessary to survey his farm to determine the acreage planted in cotton to definitely ascertain if he had planted more than fifty per cent.

Texas was responsible for inauguration of the first independent and systematic soil erosion survey undertaken by the federal government, Congressman J. F. Biehnman several years ago obtaining an appropriation to establish stations in Texas to determine the method to prevent erosion and preserve fertility. Stations have been established at Nacozoches and Temple with a cooperative station at Smeuple Shrina.

He is survived by his wife; a daughter, Mrs. Robert McAteer of Fort Worth; a son, Robert L. Simpson, Jr.; three sisters, Mrs. M. I. Robertson and Mrs. L. R. Evans, both of Dallas, and Mrs. Mittie S. Olin of Southbridge, Mass. and a brother, James Bates Simpson, of Dallas.

Funeral services probably will be held on Friday.

Spur Man Had Been Shot By Girl's Father

SPUR, April 18 (AP)—J. N. Edmonson, charged with murder in connection with the death of Miss Elsie Foreman, died in a hospital here today.

After the young woman died her father, C. E. Foreman, shot Edmonson in part, in exertion to his attempts to take his own life in the hospital last night.

Miss Foreman died in a hotel room in Crosbyton sometime between 1 a. m. and noon Sunday when Edmonson, who had registered with her as man and wife, rented her death.

Edmonson, a garage mechanic was shot and dangerously wounded Thursday by Foreman. Friday night he got the nurse to leave the room temporarily and swallowed a quantity of rubbing alcohol. The nurse, finding the door locked, re-entered through a porch window and hurled the bottle from which Edmonson was drinking from his hand.

She then called for help and was assisted by the Dickens county sheriff in getting Edmonson to his bed. He resisted strenuously and until exhausted.

He had scribbled a note saying: "I did not kill Elsie and he (meaning C. E. Foreman) did not kill me. I killed myself."

Physicians attending Edmonson said he was in a serious condition early Saturday from exertion. Bandages from an operation performed Friday morning were misplaced and the wounds were bleeding. The operation revealed that the single bullet which struck him in the side had penetrated both large and small intestines and physicians said following the suicide attempt that chances for recovery were much less than was at first expected.

The victims of Miss Foreman has been sent to Austin for chemical analysis.

Viscera of Girl Sent To Austin For Examination

C. R. Foreman, who fired one shot into the body of J. N. Edmonson, Friday was re-arrested tonight following Edmonson's death in a Spur hospital and placed under bond of $5,000 on charges of murder in connection with the death of the young automobile mechanic. Edmonson was under bond on charges of murder in connection with the death of Elsie Foreman whose body was found in a hotel room in Crosbyton Sunday, where she had registered with Edmonson. Foreman was under bond on assault to murder charges from the time he wounded Edmonson Friday until tonight, after Edmonson had died. Edmonson attempted to commit suicide last night by drinking rubbing alcohol and his death was attributed, in part, to exertion in his struggle with his nurse and the Dickens county sheriff when he was discovered drinking the poison.

"Gypsy Blood"

They called me a long time, all the far off places, Paris under evening lamps and London in the rain, and though I heard the prairie wind and looked at neighbor faces, My dreams rode into Cairo on a swaying camel-train.

I know the towns along the sea, the little steep roofed houses, Where life goes on by strange, romantic rite and rule. With people wearing wooden shoes and quaint embroidered blouses.

I have seen their pictures in the books I had at school.

I never saw the desert and I never saw the ocean.

My world is bounded by four walls and fields of wheat and rye, But I know the way of ships and blue seas' mighty motion.

Books are dire, disturbing things to give to such as I.

And when my son grew up his father used to wonder

What the boy was seeing with his far-sest brooding eyes

When a train three miles away went by like distant thunder

Or the white clouds hung like sails unfurled against the skies.

And when the boy came in one day and said he was going, His father stormed and fumed and spoke of "gypsy blood".

But I swore no son of his should leave him at spring sowing— The boy went anyway, as I had always known he would.

His father says till yet that farming life pays better Than shipping on a leaky tramp as stoker or deck-hand.

And sending home a different post-mark on one's every letter, Farming does pay best, perhaps, but oh, I understand.

Two Senators From Texas To Address ETCC

MARLIN, Texas, April 17 (AP)—Problems of East Texas having a direct bearing on that section's well-being and future will be considered by the state's best minds during the fifth annual convention of the East Texas Chamber of Commerce, which opens Sunday. The meeting will continue through Tuesday.

The Texas legislature will leave its work at the State capitol and come in a body Monday to take advantage of the opportunity to get East Texas' slant on important legislation now pending at Austin for the three weeks of the legislature session left.

Governor Ross S. Sterling will appear before the convention Monday afternoon, and United States Senators Morris Sheppard and Tom Connally will be in attendance.

Senator Sheppard will appear before a mass meeting in the First Methodist church Monday night, speaking on the subject: "Christianity, the Basis of Modern Society and Government." Senator Connally will discuss "The New East Texas" before the convention Monday morning.

Discovery of oil in East Texas in recent months has added interest to the convention, the first since rushers started spouting their wealth from the red clay hills and valleys of the piney woods section. Business leaders of the area see in the convention an opportunity for a free discussion of the situation which has come with increased population—many East Texas communities having doubled and trebled the number of their inhabitants since the last convention.

East Texas' swing into the limelight of the nation, has increased interest in its welfare to almost state-wide proportions with a resulting influx from all parts of the state plan to attend the convention in an effort to obtain a first-hand plant on conditions there and plans for future development.

Arrangements had been completed to house between 5,000 and 8,000 visitors during the meeting, and those in charge were confident all comers could be adequately cared for.

At least a dozen bands and three orchestras will be on hand to make music for all occasions incident to the convention, including a series of dances, banquets and other entertainment features arranged out-of-convention-session hours. An annual convention golf tournament, with an assortment of trophies, has attracted a big field of entrants.

Lane Mexican Cougar Baggd

UVALDE, Tex., April 18 (AP)—A Mexican cougar, nearly mature, measuring six feet nine inches in length from tip to tip and weighing 110 pounds was shown on the streets here, the animal having been slain a few hours previously by Jim Smith of Batesville on the Taylor ranch south of that place.

Four young cubs belonging to Smith had trailed the animal, which sought refuge in a tree. Two rifle shots dispatched the huge tawny-colored beast, which had been responsible for heavy losses among the goat herds in the region.

Marks indicated that the animal had been caught in a steel trap at one time but had succeeded in pulling loose.

Midland Puts Forth Intensive Efforts To Improve Business

MIDLAND, April 17 (AP)—An intensive effort in West Texas has been initiated by the Midland chamber of commerce to offset a lack of business. Trades Day, Dollar Days, courtesy schools, a merchandising institute, paid advertising in 14 weekly newspapers, personal calls at 9,500 houses in 14 towns in Texas and New Mexico are some of the features of the campaign. It has brought enormous returns to Midland merchants, they say.

Northern Ector Well Shows No Change On Gauge

When drilled Wednesday morning to 4,250 feet in line, Southern Crude Oil Purchasing Co.'s No. 2-A Cowden, second producer in northern Ector county, had registered no increase since 4,217 feet, generally accepted as the top of the pay. Its gauge is 4,112 feet in line, and on half hours Tuesday, a rate of around 464 barrels daily. The well is 3,500 feet southwest of Southern Crude's No. 1-A Cowden, discovery producer in the area drilled in last fall.

Top of the pay in No. 2-A Cowden 1,217 feet is believed to correspond to oil in No. 1-A Cowden at 4,230 feet, while its first increase at 4,112 feet is thought to correspond to oil in the discovery well at 4,130 feet. No. 2-A Cowden's first oil was from 1,095 to 4,100 feet. It had increases at 4,112 feet, from 4,124 feet and at 4,217. Elevation is 3,965 feet, making its depth at 4,250 feet, 1,185 feet below sea level. No. 1-A Cowden was completed at 4,244 feet, 1,191 feet below sea level. Its surface elevation being 3,053 feet. Top of the grey lime in No. 2-A at 3,995 feet corresponded with the point picked for the top of the lime in No. 1-A at 4,036 feet. It was reported several days ago that No. 2-A probably would be drilled 160 feet deeper than the discovery well.

No. 2-A-Cowden is 660 feet south and west of the northeast corner of section 34, Block 43, township 1 north, T&P railway survey, about 18 miles southeast Fuhrman Petroleum Corporation's No. 1 W. T. Ford, fartherest south producer in Andrews county, and about 24 miles north and slightly east of the Penn pool in southeastern Ector county.

Galt-Brown and Penn's No. 1 Cowden, about 12 miles southwest of the Southern Crude wells, about 6 1/2 miles north of the Penn pool, had drilled Tuesday to 2,720 feet. The formation was not given but probably was anhydrite and red beds. Revised top of the salt was reported to be 2,165 feet, 453 feet above sea level. The anhydrite was topped at 1,585 feet. Chesapeake and Zwellf's No. 1 Johnson, about 2 1/2 miles north of the Galt-Brown and Penn widest, topped the salt at 1,615 feet, 1,436 feet above sea
