

Successful Conference Concluded

Annual Rites In Climax To Week's Work

The most successful and inspirational young peoples' conference ever held on the scenic mountain was climaxed Saturday evening by the annual consecration and communion service with each one dedicating his life to Christ while gathered around a stone altar in the chapel hall.

Prior to the communion service, DeVinci's picture of the "Last Supper" was effectively dramatized by a group of students. The conference is to close following a sermon from 11 to 12 Sunday.

Friday afternoon moving pictures were taken of the 87 students and 11 faculty members marching to and from vesper service, and in the evening O. J. Goulter, missionary, presented a movie of sketches of life in China.

The city manager, mayor and commissioners were luncheon guests Friday of the conference and assisted the group in making plans for the removal of the OCC barracks, in which the training school was held, from the state park to the city park. When the students assemble here for the third annual conference next summer, they will be located in the city park.

The Rev. G. C. Schurman, pastor of the Big Spring First Christian church, stated Saturday that he was exceptionally well pleased with the work done by the young people this year and he considered the conference conducted much more systematically than that of twelve months ago.

Last year there were 66 registered and this summer the enrollment mounted to 87 with representatives present from 18 churches.

College Station Delegates Return Home This Weekend

Miss Lora Farnsworth, Howard county home demonstration agent, returned Friday night from College Station where she has been attending training schools, short courses and the Texas Home Demonstration association.

She reports a very interesting program. She took two reporters' scrapbooks to the meeting made by Mrs. Frank Tate of Overton, who won first in a recent reporter's contest, and Mary Brown, Mrs. Tate's book was selected to be exhibited at the American Agricultural Reporters association in session at Norris, Tenn., now and Miss Brown's was retained by the district agent at College Station for display purposes.

The three delegates to the state association meeting, Mrs. Hart Phillips, Jr., Mrs. Ben Brown and Mrs. A. R. Rude, and those who attended the short course, Mrs. Frank Montgomery, Mrs. Brown, Mrs. L. C. Matthews and Mrs. J. W. Phillips, Jr., were scheduled to return to Big Spring Sunday morning.

25 Young People To Leave Monday For Encampment

Around 25 young people from Baptist churches of Big Spring are planning to attend an encampment near Leuders, Tex., Monday through Friday of next week.

The group will be under the supervision of Mr. and Mrs. Ewell Bone of the East 4th Baptist and Bill Taggart, assistant pastor of the First Baptist. Christian men and women are members of the training school faculty and will act as counselors of the students.

Such outstanding speakers as Dr. Porter Bailes of Tyler, Ollie E. Webb of San Antonio, Mrs. E. A. Copass of Fort Worth, J. W. Marshall of Dallas and W. J. Lites of Dallas will be heard at various times at the encampment.

Taggart is to teach a book, "Not Your Own," to intermediates and Bone will serve as instructor of a course called "Practical Church Music" of interest to pastors and music directors.

The delegation from here will leave Monday morning in a truck furnished by the Big Spring Motor company.

Special Services To Be Held For The Young People Of Church

Ewell Bone, educational director of the East 4th Baptist church, has announced that there will be a special young peoples' service Sunday evening at the church beginning at 7:30 o'clock.

The program will be started off by the training unions and followed by orchestra music at 8:25 o'clock. Evening worship begins at 8:30 o'clock at which time special selections and songs will be featured.

A girls' chorus is to sing "Wonderful Power of My Savior" and a male quartet will be heard in "Under His Wings."

Topic sermon will be "The Challenge to Youth."

While the spotlight of public attention is turned on their husbands, these women are remaining more or less in the background. It is considered probable by most political observers that one of the three will be the next "first lady" of Texas, becoming the mistress of the executive mansion in Austin succeeding Mrs. James V. Allred, since their husbands are the chief contenders for the democratic gubernatorial nomination. Mrs. O'Daniel, wife of the Fort Worth flour man, is aiding her husband in his campaign. Mrs. McCraw is the former Louise Ellison, a Little Theatre star of Dallas. Mrs. Thompson, the former Mary Peterson, was fame as a lyric soprano of the Metropolitan Opera company before her marriage to the Amarillo candidate.

Hints For Parents-At-Camp To Follow When Visiting Children

By JOAN DURHAM
AP Feature Service Writer

You'll get a thorough overview when you visit your son or daughter at camp.

Three hours after you arrive the whole camp will know what you look like, dress like and act like.

Consequently, you'll want to put in an appearance of which your child can be proud. That doesn't mean a high-priced automobile or a lot of dressy clothes. It simply means looking your best. So stop at the end of your drive to comb your hair and wash your hands—before you enter the camp grounds.

Think Ahead
Other hints for parents-at-camp: If the camp has regular visiting days, plan your visits for those periods. Let the camp know in advance exactly when you will arrive and how long you plan to stay. If any accommodations are necessary, be sure you are specific in your requests. But don't be surprised if you find yourself in a room without running water—and even electric lights.

Remember that camp life goes along according to a very strict schedule. Don't, under any circumstances, short of serious illness, interfere in any way with that schedule.

Don't take a big box of candy or cookies—if sweets are forbidden, as they are at many camps. Your child is getting plenty of good food—and your selection of camp food the best amount of consideration before you shipped your youngster off.

Watch Your Sympathy
One of the quickest ways to bring on a bad case of homesickness or dissatisfaction is for you to sympathize too much. If you have any complaints or suggestions to make, make them to the head of the camp or the person in charge of your child. Be sure that you're out of earshot of any young campers who might pass along what you have said.

Be careful to work up enthusiasm at the proper moments. That yellow ribbon pasted to Arthur Jr.'s mirror may look very insignificant to you—but it means hours of hard work—and covers third-prize boasting honors to him.

Don't try too hard to be one of the boys and girls. Pride is an important factor in your child's makeup. There's nothing that will undermine it like the inevitable whispering campaign that follows the maneuvers of a foolish parent.

Travelers Leave And Arrive In City Many Ways

This great drama of vacationing has so many exits and entrances it is difficult to follow but there is one thing for certain—the more Old Sol beams down, the more Mr. and Mrs. Average Citizen think of cooler spots and ways to get there.

Streams of people are coming in and out of the city via train, bus, automobile, plane and perhaps even hitch-hiking daily—scenery and activities are shifting so rapidly it is almost more than one person can keep up with, but here are a few of the goings-ons lately:

Mr. and Mrs. D. F. Bigony and children left Saturday for Commerce to visit Bigony's relatives.

Mrs. Robert Schermerhorn was in Dallas on a short trip Friday and Saturday.

Dr. and Mrs. F. W. Malone, Mrs. Glenn Golden and Mrs. Malone's brother, Tom Mulligan of Memphis, Tenn., flew to Sweetwater Friday afternoon in Dr. Malone's ship to see George O'Brien, movie star, land there. George Gordon of Granberry, Tex., who has been visiting his niece, Mrs. Carl Madison, returned home Friday.

Mrs. E. H. Happel and Mrs. W. O. Low are on a three weeks' trip to Dallas, Beaumont, Lake Charles, La., and New Orleans. They left Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed Pearce of Cushing, Okla., and Mr. and Mrs. Carl J. Pearce of East St. Louis, Ill., are guests of Mrs. T. M. Lumby this week. Mr. and Mrs. Ed Pearce are Mrs. Lumby's parents and Carl is her brother.

Mrs. R. C. Hill and son, Richard, Mrs. Lester Flinn and daughter, Ruth Ann, Mrs. Conwell White and Mrs. Richard Dickerson planned to leave Sunday for a week's visit in Wichita Falls and Chillicothe.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Harrold of El Paso, who have been visiting Mrs. Maude McMurry and other relatives in Big Spring, left Friday for Deadmons for a short visit.

Mr. and Mrs. H. V. Williams of Foran are leaving for Corpus Christi for a two weeks' vacation accompanied by Williams' niece, Joe Helen Trammel of Seminole.

Rozelle Stephens came in Friday night from a visit in Mercedes with a college friend. While gone she also visited Joyce Nolan of Corpus Christi, formerly of Big Spring, and went into Old Mexico.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Stephens and daughter, Rozelle, and Julius Neal plan to leave Sunday morning for a two weeks' trip to Ruidosa. They will be accompanied by Stephens' sister, Miss Fanny Stephens, of Dallas.

Mr. and Mrs. M. C. Stulting and children left Saturday for a vacation in Austin.

Simone Simon, Don Ameche, Robert Young Co-Starred In Gay Romance At The Ritz

'Josette' Tells Of Love In Old New Orleans

What is described as one of the saniest escapades into the realm of romantic glamor Hollywood has conceived all season is a musical comedy number, "Josette," which headlines the Ritz theatre's program today and Monday.

Don Ameche, Simone Simon and Robert Young are the principals in the cast; and the music is provided by Gordon and Reval, writers of hit tunes.

It's all very very vire famous in naughty New Orleans and Don and Bob chase Simone, who must think faster than one and run faster than the other. The little French girl who is being developed into a singer, and who can pout much better than she can speak English appears as a tantalizing little coquette who has talked herself into such a mixup in love affairs that there are two Josettes—one for the boys' papa, and another for the boys themselves.

To prevent papa's proposed remarriage with a scheming beauty, Don and Bob pack him off to New York, so naturally he takes his Josette with him. Josette No. 2 remains in the gay city of the South for the oo-la-la-highest courtship in the annals of romance.

Bert LaHR heads the featured cast with Joan Davis, who recently was acclaimed No. 1 comedienne by a New York newspaper's nationwide poll. Paul Hurst, William Collier, Sr., and Tala Birell have prominent roles in the film.

Darryl F. Zanuck, 20th Century-Fox hit-maker, selected Allan Dwan to direct the film, dedicated to "Life, Liberty and Pursuit of Josette." Gene Markey served as associate producer for the screen play by James Edward Grant, based upon a play by Paul Frank and George Fraser, from a story by Leolantius Vadral.

The three new Gordon and Reval numbers are: "May I Drop A Petal in Your Glass of Wine?" "In Any Language" and "Where in the World."

El Paso, 96 to 82 for enforcement of the fire marshal ordinance.

Columbus, 45 to 44 for street improvements.

Merkel, 35 to 33 for new fire apparatus.

For the best interest of the most people, vote for G. W. Eason—Pol. Adv.

Plenty parking Gregg street entrance to Just-A-Funt Miniature Golf Links, 304 Sourcy—adv.

TWO JOSETTES, TWO MEN

There's a gay little film number dealing with a love mixup which is at the Ritz theatre today and Monday. It's called "Josette," and it features Robert Young, Simone Simon and Don Ameche. Both boys like the gal, and their Papa likes another Josette, so everybody has fun. The picture introduces some new tunes by Gordon and Reval.

Dramatic Thriller Of Adventures In Africa, 'Talking Drums,' Is New Feature On KBST Starting Tuesday

Drums of darkest Africa begin to throb over KBST Tuesday night as that station inaugurates its new dramatic thriller, "Talking Drums." Not the drums of a fictitious, theatrical Africa but the genuine mood of the mysterious continent captured by Jack Lewis, a writer who spent several years there as a member of a scientific expedition.

Scheduled to appear as Dr. Campbell is Bruce Payne, prominent actor from the C. F. MacGregor studios, Hollywood, where the vehicle is produced. Barbara is played by Barbara Luddy, star of "The First Nighter" and other network programs. Grant is portrayed by Joe Karns, rising Hollywood juvenile.

Spanish War Background For Picture

Madeleine Carroll, Henry Fonda Star In 'Blockade'

The most dramatic situation of the present day—the Spanish civil war—forms the background of the tempestuous love story which is told in "Blockade," Walter Wagner's thrilling romantic drama which stars Madeleine Carroll and Henry Fonda at the Lyric theatre today and Monday.

This is the romance of a man and a girl drawn into the conflict almost against their will—lovers who were at the same time bitter enemies.

The story opens with the arrival of Norma Basil (Madeleine Carroll) in peaceful Spain, where she has come to join her father. She meets Marco (Henry Fonda), a peaceful, home-loving young farmer, and the pair fall in love.

Norma discovers that her father and his life-long associate, Adria, have been engaged in fomenting war, hoping to profit from future activities as spies, and that evening the sound of the first guns of the civil war rumbles over the countryside.

Marco joins the army and, having killed a spy, learns that the man was Norma's father. He is obliged to arrest her as an accomplice.

Norma is immediately released by Andre and the treacherous General Vallejo, engaged in betraying their comrades to the enemy, and is forced to become their aide in spy work.

Commissioned to deliver a message to confederates at Castilemar, assigned to bring about the destruction of a food ship attempting to run the blockade and bring aid to the stricken town, she again encounters Marco, now fully aware of her activities.

But after witnessing the suffering of the starving townspeople, Norma suffers a tardy revulsion of feeling, and desperately tries to do the right thing she has done.

In a dangerous and highly dramatic situation, she and Marco combine forces and soon find themselves imprisoned by war-mad soldiers bent on taking the lives of both.

"Blockade," though it employs the war only as a background and favors neither side in the conflict, furnishes a highly interesting and remarkably accurate picture of Spain's civil strife. Produced on a lavish scale, its many elaborate settings are outstanding examples of Hollywood's uncanny skill in achieving realism in locale and atmosphere.

This unusual picture was directed by William Dieterle, whose recent "Life of Emilie Zola" was accepted by vote of the Motion Picture Academy of Arts and Sciences the greatest motion picture of 1937.

In addition to Leo Carrillo, the cast supporting Miss Carroll and Fonda in "Blockade" includes John Halliday, Reginald Denny, Vladimir Sokoloff, Robert Warwick, Katherine DeMille and William Davidson.

Sheiler Belt Aids Quails MANGUM, Okla. (AP)—A 50 per cent increase in quail in this area can be attributed, believes Sam Eyers, federal nurseryman, to the government's "sheiler belt" program of tree planting. Quail are nesting in the tree strips, Eyers said.

There are approximately 500 theatres in Greater New York. Paragony's leading industry is cattle raising.

STAR OF NEW RADIO DRAMA

Good to look at is comely Ann Stone, prominent network ingenue, heard in the African adventure story, "Talking Drums." As Queen of the City of Gold, Ann adds her own particular type of thrill in the hair-raising story, "Talking Drums," is a new feature to be inaugurated by KBST this week.

IN DRAMA OF SPANISH WAR

One of the newer films—and termed by critics one of the best—dealing with the Spanish war is "Blockade," which is the Lyric theatre's featured offering for Sunday and Monday. A love drama with a spy background, the story stars Henry Fonda and lovely Madeleine Carroll.

C-C Leaders Will Attend 'School'

Business Trends To Be Discussed At Dallas Meet

DALLAS, July 16 — Two important trends which may change the entire business outlook of the Southwest will occupy chamber of commerce and trade association executives at the annual Southwestern Chamber of Commerce school here July 18-22.

The 100-odd organization executives who gather for the "school," opening Monday, will attend classes in "Tourism," publicity and other subjects of general interest.

An outstanding feature of the school will be the first state-wide conference on the new federal wage and hours law as it affects Southwestern business. It will be made by several outstanding authorities on the subject.

All chamber of commerce and trade association executives and business men interested in the subject have been invited to attend the conference.

Ben H. Powell of Austin, president of the Texas Bar association, will discuss the wage and hour law at the Rotary club luncheon. Afterward other attorneys will discuss various phases of the law.

There also will be open forum periods at which business men will be invited to ask questions about problems that bother them.

Tahoka Men Here On Nelson's Behalf

Two former fellow townsmen of G. H. Nelson, candidate for lieutenant-governorship of Texas, were in Big Spring Saturday in behalf of Nelson's campaign.

They were Trust Smith, district attorney for the 10th judicial district, and Rollin McCord, county attorney for Lynn county, both of Tahoka. Nelson, state senator from this district, lived at Tahoka before moving to Lubbock.

Both Smith and McCord are up for reelection this year, but have no opponents. Nelson has five. "We are hoping that Nelson will be given a commanding majority in his own district," the men said. "We are working to build up an impressive majority for him in the territory he has so long served."

Sea Drama Is Offered At The Queen

European Star Plays With Ray Milland, Frances Farmer

First of the sea stories filmed in Technicolor returns here for showings at the Queen theatre today and Monday, when "Ebb Tide," a picture made from the Robert Louis Stevenson story, is presented. The production introduces to American audiences the famed European character actor, Oscar Homolka.

Homolka scores in the role of Captain Throck, a broken sea captain who has lost his ship and papers through drunkenness. With him in the cast are Frances Farmer, Ray Milland, Lloyd Nolan and Barry Fitzgerald.

Milland and Miss Farmer supply the romantic interest of the tale. Their love story is a strange one, for Milland is a beachcomber friend of Homolka's, while Miss Farmer is the orphaned daughter of a sea captain, who meets him while he and Homolka are planning to steal her ship.

The antagonism of the two is slowly changed to a comradeship feeling as they go through several harrowing experiences together. When they are at last released from the danger that threatens them, they realize that they are in love.

At the beginning of the film Homolka, Milland and Fitzgerald, a shy and dishonest Cockney, are "on the beach" of a South Sea island, hungry and without shelter. Miss Farmer's ship comes into harbor, the captain dead. Homolka is put on as captain, to take the ship, carrying a cargo of champagne, to Australia.

He takes his companions along with him, and once at sea he plans to steal the ship and cargo, in spite of Milland's protests. Miss Farmer tries to stop the scheme, but is ignored by the trio, except Milland, who tries to be friendly.

A few days out, Homolka gives way to his old weakness and gets drunk, staying that way for days. The supplies give out, the ship is almost lost in a storm, and they are blown off their course.

Milland sails the ship to a small island ruled by Lloyd Nolan, who is a sadistic, half-mad trader in pearls. Homolka and Fitzgerald try to rob Nolan, and are killed for their pains, while Milland and Miss Farmer escape from the island and sail away together, their unhappiness over.

FRANCE HONORS FIRST SOLDIER TO DIE IN '14

PARIS (AP)—In memory of the first French soldier to die at the outbreak of the World War a monument was dedicated today (July 18) at Houffalize, Belgium.

The name of Henri Sebald, non-commissioned officer and hiterto unseen hero, the first to fall for his country, thus will be perpetuated.

He was shot down by the enemy at 7:30 A. M. on Aug. 7, 1914. Half an hour before his death the little village of Houffalize, near Brussels, got its first glimpse of the World War. French troops numbering 300 had entered the town, arriving from Liebrumont. Villagers, knowing that German troops were already quartered there, feared a combat and most of them fled.

About 50 of the French soldiers, Sebald among them, surprised the German troops marching in a central hotel. The Germans hurried to adjacent stables and firing began. Sebald dashed into an open courtyard to ask for a German surrender, but a bullet killed him before he had a chance.

His death was the first to be registered for the French army. When Houffalize skirmish ended when French troops set fire to the stable refuge of the Germans, all of the latter escaped with the exception of four, three of whom were killed and one of whom was seriously wounded.

R. L. WARREN'S FINAL PLEA TO VOTERS

"During my tenure of office I have done my utmost to conduct the office of the County Clerk in a manner to insure prompt, courteous and efficient service. I have visited most of you, asking that you honor me with re-election in recognition of my past record; which must of course include the services of my efficient assistants. I believe what I have learned during the time I have served will make me a more efficient official, and no one would more desire your vote and influence."

"I have endeavored to visit all the voters of the county to tell them I appreciated their goodwill and support and would deeply appreciate being re-elected. If I have failed to solicit your support it was not because I didn't desire it and I am addressing this final plea for your vote in the Democratic Primary on July 23, 1938. "Yours truly, "R. L. Warren." (Political Adv.)

READING AND WRITING

"Edison's Open Door," by Alfred O. Tate; (Dutton; $5).
Alfred O. Tate's "Edison's Open Door" is written a bit on the "light little children and you shall hear" style, but one should not put the book away in the first brave flush of one's sophistication. It may be full of cliches, but it is full also of some very revealing Edison stories, woven about the story of Mr. Tate's own interesting career.
The book is not an autobiography, as the author explains carefully in his foreword. It is written to tell what he learned about the inventor, which turns out to be quite a lot. Since Tate was a friend of the late genius of Menlo Park, most of this material is written from the Edison side of the fence, as it were. But that need not prevent a reader's seeing the other side of the picture.
Tate was born in Canada, and began his curious career as a telegrapher, a position he got by the simple means of telling a whopper to the man who hired him. Later he was called to Rosokoke, Va. in the early days of that city's development, and he admits naively that one reason he went to Rosokoke was in order to smoke tobacco right out of the fields, and that when he tried this it made him dreadfully sick.
The important step was to New York, where he attached himself to "the Edison organization," then at 65 Fifth Avenue, as a shorthand writer. He used a system of his own which so amused a gentleman by the name of Insull that Insull transferred the young man to an accounting job—and the career of young Mr. Tate was off in a cloud of dust.
Edison's distance from infallibility can pretty well be judged by what follows. "A man never makes any money until he has passed the forty mark" was one Edison statement. He said once that the best man to trust would be one who could prove he'd been in the sheriff's hands at least three times. He never talked on "current subjects," and admitted that "Les Miserables" was the only fiction he ever read. His sustained conversations were always technical about business.
But against this sort of thing Tate places Edison's very real achievements, and the resulting balance is what gives his book its undoubted value.

In an advertisement recently of an electric washer, one of the advantages of the model stressed was the fact that it was built for a woman to operate. If you ask this department, (of course, no one did) we haven't really got anything until manufacturers build one only men can operate. Not until then will a homemaker's wash day problems be completely solved.
All of the fanfare, publicly and also made over Howard Hughes and his round-the-world record flight reminded me of something Walter Duranty, correspondent of the World War and stationed in Russia for more than 15 years during the establishment of communism, wrote concerning such ballyhoo.
He said such adventures were doubtless proof of human courage, but every youngster in the American, British, French or German air force who flew a fighting plane across the front in 1918, were taking greater risks than Lindbergh, Admiral Byrd and all the rest put together, and, what is more, went on taking them every day and made no money out of it—nothing but a choice of crosses, the Distinguished Cross of Valor or a wooden cross above their graves.
Walt Disney has the advantage of most fathers — if his children become bothersome, he just drowns 'em in an inkpot.
Ideas of real living: Be a traveling salesman... drive a long shiny car minus mortgage and payments... lead a poodle by a tweed cord... turn down invitations to the White House... pose for advertisements of a cosmetic company as a constant user of the products (easy money without injury to my skin)... live in a large home with the kitchen and wash-house far removed from the main quarters; be entirely free of family quarrels and arguments at all times.

Record Crowd Expected At Scout Camp

Unit For Seniors To Be New Feature This Summer
Plans will set a record, plans are going forward for the annual Buffalo Trail Council summer camp, near Barkadale on the Nueces river. Camp dates are from July 28 to August 2, with the first period ending and the second beginning on August 2.
For the first time in the council, a second camp will be conducted on Camp Wood creek, 16 miles from the major camp, for senior scouts and experienced campers. Any troop member over 15 years of age and recommended by his scoutmaster may attend this senior camp; and a few young scouts may attend provided they have outstanding camping and service records.
Fee at Camp Fawcett, that near Barkadale, will be $6 per week, and the cost of the senior unit, Camp Eads, will be $12 per week. All boys attending the two camps will be organized into troops, with regular patrols, and the scout organization will be followed while boys avail themselves of instruction and recreation under adult leadership. Many scoutmasters, assistants, and camp activity specialists are planning to attend the sessions, and each troop will have an adult in charge. The camp will be under direction of A. J. Stiles, area executive, and Ed McCurtain, field executive.
McCurtain in Big Spring and Stiles in Sweetwater, are accepting registrations for the camping period. Carl Bloomfield of Big Spring is chairman of the council camping committee.

VOTE FOR Floyd (Pepper) Martin

In asking for the sheriff's office, I hope to be of great service to the people of Howard County.
I came to Big Spring in 1936 having been a farmer in Bland County before that time. I have been in the employ of the Cashion Refinery a greater part of the past eight years, working to support a wife and three children. As I have always been a law abiding citizen, I am seeking this race on a law enforcement position, paying all of my expenses personally. I believe that with the salary this office pays and the equipment it furnishes your sheriff should spend his entire time discharging the duties of his office. If I am elected I will do just that and do my best to make you the kind of an officer you have a right to expect.
Owing to the fact that I must work to be able to finance this campaign, I will not be able to see each voter. I ask you to consider this as a personal plea for your support and influence. I will deeply appreciate your vote on July 23.
Thank you,
Floyd (Pepper) Martin

McFarlane, Marvin Jones, Kleberg All Have Opposition This Year

WICHITA FALLS, July 16 (AP)—It is customary in the Wichita Falls district for the congressman to have one or more opponents every two years, and this summer is no exception.

Former Congressman Guinn Williams of Decatur had opposition in 1932, '33 and '36. On his retirement in 1932, former State Senator W. D. McFarlane was elected to succeed him.

Other candidates are Laverne Somerville, young Wichita Falls attorney, and K. G. Spill, a barber here. Gossett was in the field several weeks before McFarlane returned from the long regular session of congress.

In the district to the northwest, Marvin Jones of Amarillo, chairman of the house agriculture committee and supporter of the Roosevelt administration, has one opponent, James O. Cade, fellow townsman and attorney.

Record County Vote Is Forecast In Saturday's Primary

RE-ELECT

Total May Reach 5,500; Interest Running High

Potential Strength At Polls At An All-Time High This Year

Of an estimated million votes due to be cast in Texas in the first democratic primary next Saturday, local political observers are predicting that Howard county will contribute more than 5,000 to raise its vote total to a new record high. Poll tax payments reached an all-time high in 1938, and tabulations show that the voting strength of the county is 6,921, including exemptions. The growing interest in state and local contests is leading many to forecast a total ballot in the county's 14 boxes of 5,500.

As compared with the estimated vote total of from 5,000 to 5,500 this year, here are the vote totals of the past three democratic primaries:

1936	4,205

Many Names

Because of the multiplicity of names on the ticket for the first primary, a heavy vote is anticipated. From sheer number of candidates, a big turnout is in prospect, since each man asking for office has his own bloc of friends and supporters who will remember him at the polls. The narrowing down of the candidate list for the second primary in August usually means

A. W. (Arlie) THOMPSON
Candidate for County Commissioner
Precinct No. Two

I am very appreciative and thankful to the voters of Precinct No. 2 for their past support, and I have endeavored to discharge the duties of the office fairly, impartially, efficiently and economically. If re-elected to this important office, I shall continue to discharge the duties of the office to the very best of my ability.

A. W. Thompson

a falling off in votes — unless, of course, heated interest develops in some of the runoff races. Then another decline is to be expected in the November general elections, because most Texas voters take it for granted that the democratic nominees are as good as in office.

The governor's contest, tops for interest in the Lone Star state, has been gathering momentum for the past three weeks, and the question of "McCraw, Thompson or O'Daniel" is the chief topic of conversation. This means votes. There is a great deal of interest, also, in many of the local races, particularly in some district contests where the votes in several counties will be involved. Three or four strictly county contests are catching the public attention, and the uncertainty of these will be a factor in bringing out a large vote.

Strength By Precincts

Precinct No. 1, Big Spring, is the largest box in the county, with a vote strength of 2,465. Precinct 14, Morris, has a top vote of 27 as the smallest box. Following is the voting strength of the county by precincts:

No. 1, Big Spring	2,465
No. 2, Big Spring	1,290
No. 3, Big Spring	2,465
No. 4, Big Spring	1,007
No. 5, Vincent	78
No. 6, Gay Hill	121
No. 7, R-Bar	59
No. 8, Coahoma	285
No. 9, Forsan	359
No. 11, Center Point	153
No. 12, Moore	120
No. 13, Knott	255
No. 14, Morris	27
No. 15, Soash	75
TOTAL	6,921

Packets Of Matches Replace Tire Covers In Advertising Candidates

A few years ago, every seeker after public office heralded his campaign by the use of painted tire covers. On the rear of many an automobile could be seen a sign such as "Vote for Joe Zlich for commissioner," and the voters could see these signs wherever they turned.

The tire-cover method has faded in recent years. An innovation in campaigning this year was the distribution of packets of safety matches, with a brief message from the candidate appearing on the cover. Nearly every aspirant to an office in Howard county distributed the matches by the thousand this season.

Of course, there remains the old stand-by card distribution method. The men and women seeking an office make a round of streets, stores and offices, passing out their cards, usually letting their solicitation stop at that. A verbal appeal usually is passed up.

Candidates in this county this year had a new medium—the radio. KBST went into operation in December of 1936, after the elections of two years ago, and this is the first campaign season its facilities have been available to reach the radio listening public. Many candidates have made use of this service.

Newspaper and poster advertising have enjoyed their customary general use by the candidates.

Few Aspirants To Office Are Unopposed

Many Contests Will Not Be Decided Until August

Of the 101 aspirants to office whose names appear on the ballot for the July 23 primary, only eleven are unopposed.

It will be a ding-dong battle of ballots for most offices, and many will not be filled finally until the August runoff, since more than two candidates are listed in several races.

In the state and district, one man unopposed is Judge F. L. Hawkins of Ellis county, who is asking nomination for the regular term as judge of the court of criminal appeals.

George Mahon of Colorado, asking a third term as 19th congressional representative, has no opponent this year. For the state legislative seat from the 91st district, Dorsey B. Hardean of San Angelo, former mayor of that city, is unopposed. Hardean will be successor to Temrose Metcalf of San Angelo, who is bidding for a state senate post.

O. C. Funderburk of Eastland county is without opposition in his bid for reelection to the court of civil appeals bench at Eastland.

In local offices, Hugh Dudderly will be returned as district clerk, since he has no opponent. Neither has County Judge Charles Sullivan, who is asking a second term. Miss Anne Martin, seeking her second six-year term as county superintendent, has no opposition, and J. F. Wolcott enjoys the same sort of position in his bid for reelection as county tax assessor-collector. J. W. Carpenter, for public weigher of precinct No. 1; G. L. Graham, for public weigher of precinct No. 2, and V. W. Strahan for county surveyor, all are unopposed.

Reports On All Races To Be Given On KBST Saturday Evening

Better service than ever before on reporting results of next Saturday's primary will be rendered by The Herald. It has a new facility this year—its affiliated radio station, KBST—which will be used to broadcast returns on state, county and district races.

The radio station was not in operation in the election months of 1936, so its use this summer in that connection will be for the first time.

Members of The Herald staff will collect and compile returns from all county boxes—and from all counties involved—in district races—and these returns will be broadcast at regular intervals through Saturday evening over KBST. The station's remote microphone at The Herald office will be used to broadcast these returns.

The Herald is a member of the Texas Election Bureau, an association of Texas papers which compiles results on all major state races. The paper will have a special leased wire Saturday night which will handle nothing but election results, and returns on all major state races will be received promptly. The Election Bureau limits broadcasts of its returns to four times on Saturday night—and these will be read on KBST at 8, 9, 10 and 11 o'clock.

At the same broadcast periods, latest returns will be given on county and district races; and if developments in particular contests warrant, extra service will be given on broadcasting returns.

Complete and late returns on all contests will appear in next Sunday's Herald.

Since information on the races will be available as promptly as possible on KBST, The Herald is appealing to the public not to telephone the office on election night for returns. Telephone facilities will be tied up with gathering of returns, and the whole staff will be taxed in handling these returns. It will be appreciated as a great favor if telephone calls are dispensed with. The public is urged to keep the radio dial at 1600 throughout the night Saturday for latest information on all the races.

The newspaper and radio station also are appealing to election judges to telephone returns from their boxes promptly, in order that full results may be tabulated early in the night for transmission to the public.

School Bond Vote Slated Saturday In Stanton

STANTON, July 16 (Sp.)—July 23, Primary election day, is also the day chosen, for convenience of voters of Stanton, for a bond election amounting to $77,500. This amount together with a $22,500 grant applied for from the FWA, is necessary for improvements and new additions to the local school plant. Badly needed repairs will be made on the grammar school building; new and larger facilities for the home economics department of the high school will be provided, as well as band quarters and a gymnasium for physical education purposes, and inter-school contests, if the project is approved.

A definite date was set for the bond election at a special meeting of thirty-two property taxpayers was presented, asking for immediate action.

If approved, the election will make possible a modernization program which will place the school in a position to be compared favorably with any school of its size in this section of the state.

TUESDAY LAST DAY FOR ABSENTEE BALLOTING

Only two days remain, after today, for casting absentee ballots in the July 23 democratic primary. All absentee votes must be in Tuesday night, in accordance with statutes which terminate the pre-election voting three full days before primary day.

The county clerk's office had received 250 absentee ballots late Saturday, and others had gone out in the mail. It was expected the volume would be bigger Monday and Tuesday. On the same date in 1936, 300 absentee ballots had been cast.

BIG MOTORSHIP TO TRANSPORT BRITISH FOOD

LONDON, (AP) — A super 37,000-ton food transport motorship, with accommodation for 625 first class passengers and capacity for 16,000 tons of cargo, is to be launched at Tyneside on July 27 for service between Britain, South Africa, Australia and New Zealand.

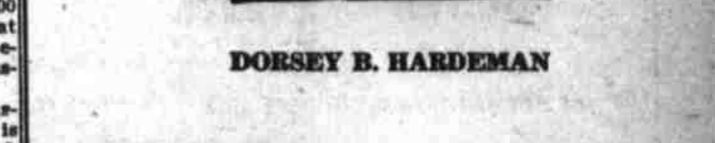

The vessel, which is to be christened the Dominion Monarch, is said by the owners, Shaw, Savill & Albion Company, Ltd., to be the biggest ship ever designed for trade with Southern Dominions.

Many novel features are incorporated in the vessel's design. There is only one mast, as the swimming pool leaves no room for a second one. There is air conditioning in the dining saloon and cabins, which are equipped with telephones, cubic feet of which 500,000 cubic feet will be insulated for the transport of meat, fruit and dairy produce.

It is planned for the Dominion Monarch to call at Madeira or Tenerife, Capetown, Durban, Fremantle, Melbourne, Sidney and Wellington. The average speed of the Dominion Monarch has been calculated at 19 1/2 knots, the trip requiring 35 days. This is despite the fact that the route to be taken is longer by 3,300 miles than that followed by other vessels.

TO THE VOTERS OF THE 91ST LEGISLATIVE DISTRICT

I should like first, to express my genuine appreciation of the compliment paid me by my fellow-citizens in that I am unopposed for the Democratic nomination for Representative from this district. I sincerely hope that I may merit the confidence thus far reposed in me and to that end I shall ever direct my best efforts.

I shall continue visiting in my district with a view of renewing friendships and acquaintances and making others in order that I may become more familiar with the problems confronting us and in seeking solutions of the same. I renew my pledge of fairness to all and of careful and due consideration of such matters that may arise and to work for a reduction of taxes and expenditures where consistent with good government.

Washington Daybook

By Preston Grover

WASHINGTON—The executive spotlight which switches from time to time on new agencies, has picked one of Lowell Mellett and his National Emergency Council for a period of prominence that shows signs of being far more than temporary. Mellett was an editor of a Washington newspaper. He had New Deal ideas before 1933 and long has been one of the President's intimates.

Now as N. E. C. director, he has been incorporated officially into the White House executive ring to take over a job second in importance only to emergency relief. The job is to manage the President's effort to rescue the South from the economic doldrums. The Emergency Council, hiding in the obscurity of a thousand half-forgotten bureaus, has been marked for death time after time. But opinion here is that it was rescued lately mainly as an avenue down which the President could launch his southern enterprise.

Many Are Called It is a familiar trick of the President to use one agency and then another with the scintillating performance of a swing-band trump drummer. He financed banks through the Reconstruction Finance Corporation; took jobless boys off the streets with CCC, and corralled the unemployed with a half dozen relief agencies. And now, N. E. C. is brought around for the invasion of what the President called, together with the heads of each of the new agencies created under the present administration. Coordination of policy and elimination of overlapping were its main purposes and undoubtedly Mellett will continue in that capacity. In addition, it has a whiplash "advisory" power to eliminate duplication of effort among governmental agencies, although since 1933 it has been more in the doldrums than the South it is expected now to stimulate.

Current Washington opinion is that Mellett, soft-voiced and serious minded, has been singled out to stage one of the big governmental specialties of 1938, the investigation of what the President calls "the Nation's Number 1 economic problem," the South. Already the suggestion of tampering with established conditions in the South has stirred suspicions of politicians doubtful of the President's purposes. Moreover, northern industry has already looked suspiciously upon any effort to juggle freight rates, wage and hour problems and other matters connected with a view to mechanizing the South.

Operator, White House The job under a General Hugh Johnson might be blown up to amazing proportions. Mellett is no General Johnson such as NRA knew and his attack on the new phase of his job was un-Johnsonian. He called a conference of southern industrial, labor and economic leaders, as requested by the President. But he read them no orders. Instead he asked them their opinions on Dixie's troubles with regard to freight rates, cotton surpluses, population surpluses, poorly financed industry and racial conflicts. He promised no immediate solutions, but the President has never been satisfied with a mere report—without recommendations. Mellett works in his shirt sleeves because it is hot, has four telephones on his desk—one straight to the White House. He is gray-headed, brown-eyed, slender and active, but unimpressive in the manner of a General Johnson or a Harry Hopkins.

Man About Manhattan —by GEORGE TUCKER NEW YORK—The most fascinating and hilarious party game I have ever played is the game of Famous Lovers. You play it like this: The hostess gives out duplicate sets of numbers. And if you get, say, No. 5, then the girl who receives that number is your partner. After partners have been determined the hostess gives out a third set of slips with the names of famous lovers written on them. For instance, one slip may have Khethi Butler and Scarlett O'Hara. But you aren't supposed to tell the others whom you represent. When each couple has been designated as a pair of famous names in fiction or history they take turns in setting out a little skit which identifies the lovers in question.

Among the others which came in for hilarious burlesque were Priscilla and John Alden ("Speak for yourself, John"); Romeo and Juliet (the vault scene where Romeo, believing Juliet dead, swallows poison, only to have her return to consciousness and stab herself); Katharine and Petruchio ("Taming of the Shrew") and Jane Eyre and Mr. Rochester.

There were some very funny parleys. I was Capt. John Smith and my partner was Pocahontas. I found a fur cap which I hoped looked like a Daniel Boone coonskin, and my partner put on a jacket of a child's Indian suit and put a feather in her hair. The host bowed my arms and threw me on the floor. Just as he was about to tomahawk me, my Indian princess came tripping in, shrieking: "Don't kill him, oh Chief! I'll marry him."

Homes Saying Goodbye To 'Hired Girl'

WASHINGTON, July 16 (AP)—Labor-saving machines have displaced the hired girl in the typical American village home, a nationwide survey by the Department of Agriculture shows. "There now are statistics to show that James Whitcomb Riley's children's classic, 'our hired girl,' no longer portrays the typical in American village life," the department said. She was the family factotum who lived in the household, cooked such good things to eat that the children lobbied about the kitchen table until she chased them away with such refrain as: "Clear out of my way; there's time for work and time for play. Take your dough and run, child, run, or I can't get no cooking done!"

In reaching its conclusion the de- in average amount spent. In the tables of 6,424 white non-relief families in 140 typical villages in all sections of the country. "The importance of 'our hired girl' has decreased as services of commercial bakeries and laundries have increased, as canneries and garment factories have grown, and as labor-saving devices have come into the home," Dr. Louise Stanley, home economics director who supervised the survey, said. "Then too," she added, "many a homemaker would rather spend for a car and widen her social contacts than to spend for a maid if this means only leisure to sit on the front porch and watch the neighbors ride by."

Hollywood

Sights And Sounds

by ROBBIN COONS

NEW YORK—This, folks, is my day of atonement and embarrassment. Here I've come to New York to check up on a lot of things. My two weeks have slid by like greased pigs and what's this on my desk, leering at me, but a pile of scrambled notes marked: "Unfinished Business?"

Write a piece on Jack Toit, and let the world know that Jack—more than 20 years a movie star, and no longer a hot in Hollywood—is the biggest star on Broadway. Tell Jack, if he doesn't know it, that his name goes up in monstrous twinklers every time he sends a picture to the old main stem. Tell the Holt fans everywhere how their clamor kept Columbia from "dropping" him when that studio tried to "wash him up"...

Four Young Ladies See this pretty Martha Scott of "Our Town," the girl that has all the movie talent scouts dithering... Find out why the movies haven't bogged up Patricia Morrison, the striking dark beauty of "The Two Bouquets"... And write a yarn about Marcy Westcott, the loveliest blonde (after Zetonia) the other side of the floodlights now... Tell how Marcy, signed by Metro for movies, got this stage break as her first assignment, when Producer Marc Connelly couldn't find the right girl and the movies saved his day with the loan of Marcy...

Look into the strange case of Arthur L. Mayer, Harvard graduate and movie exhibitor, whose motto is "Everything is hunkey-gory at the Rialto"... Mayer plays murder, blood-and-thunder, wild west and he-mach laceration, Ohio, and sees back with the woman's trade... And makes it pay... And then, on the Harvard and culture side, he brings over "artistic" foreign films on which he stands to lose his hunkey-gory profits... Strange, strange case...

Do up Paramount's Max Fleisher (Betty Boop's papa, only man with copyright on the name) into enough to follow Disney, with a full-length cartoon feature... "Our Gulliver's Travels," Max said... Meaning he realized, I hope it would have to be after "Snow White"...

Interview Johnny Hoysradt, the ex-history teacher now wowing the Rainbow Room with his monologic mimicry... Talk to other Rockettes besides blonde Bonnie Bradette of Youngstown, Ohio, and see if they're all as typical of the Hollywood chorine as Bonnie is—which is meant, Bonnie, for a compliment... Well, there are other notes, but you can see how it is. It's this way in Hollywood too but I'd thought New York would be different. I'd thought to GET THINGS DONE, and now I've got to make a train country air—somewhere between the movie capitals of east and west... Some talented writing and acting folk of Hollywood are going to take over while I practice breathing—and I'm as grateful to them as even you will be.

With the aid of James Holcomb, Burlington telescope builder, Father Rivard mounted the mirror in a 6-foot tube for the amateur observatory here.

LOVE ON THE RANGE

CHAPTER 14

Questions

The sheriff shrugged. His lid concealed the expression in his eyes. "All right then," he said, "like the forty-five you gave up at my request a while ago—if it makes you feel any better to have it put that way." "It does. No man ever took a gun away from me yet, Ranchford."

"Held a hombre, eh? I've seen your type before—the kind that hires out his guns to the highest bidder. Who hired you to gun the colonel?" "I didn't gun him. I told you that before. Now let me ask you one: How'd he win? Was a forty-five? Mightn't it have been a forty-four?"

"Where Were You?" "Listen," Ranchford said testily. "I've fooled around guns long enough to recognize when a chunk of lead was thrown from a forty-four or a forty-five, no matter how badly it happens to be battered up. There's a difference in the weight. Besides, this slug was pretty smooth. It was like the ones you gun—the ones you gave me—shoots."

"That doesn't mean anything," Ankrum said. "You've got a forty-five yourself. It's slung in that holster under your coat. Mr. Trone may be packin' one too, for all I know. Clayton, here, produced a thirty-eight at point insistence, but he may likewise have a forty-five cased about him some place. I don't see any guns on these two cowboys, but if I was to judge them by the rest of you I'd say they were each packin' a forty-five, at least. For a country that's shucked its iron—"

"Never mind the sarcasm," Ranchford broke in roughly. "He turned toward the two girls: 'Miss Struthers, where were you when your man was shot?'" "The unexpectedness of the question brought a startled blush from Lee Trone. Her eyes flicked wide and darkened. Instinctively they sought Ankrum's. He gave her a reassuring pat of the lips and turned his glance on Betty."

The sheriff's procedure elicited no sign of dismay from her. She had her wits about her every minute of the time, Ankrum reflected sardonically. "A girl that has all the answers," he summed her up. When she spoke her voice held that amount of business genuine grief for her father's death might have caused.

"I — I — I let me see," a white hand went to her forehead, rumpling the golden curls; a tiny pucker grew between her thoughtful eyes. "I had just stepped out the door there, Father had asked me to meet him out beneath that pepper tree; he said he had something private which he wished to talk to me about... She bit her lip; her thoughts seemed far away. "I'm trying to recollect it—it seems to me I had just stepped out the door and crossed the veranda. I was leaning against one of those funny posts—"

"Come, come Miss Struthers," the sheriff exclaimed impatiently, "I asked you where you were when you heard the shot. I'm not interested in the history of your movements from the time you finished supper." "Upon the big sheriff of the girl from Pecos Pinto turned wide blue eyes in which shone the hurt expression of a child who has been unjustly reproved. "But Mr. Ranchford, it is what I am trying to tell you. I had stepped out on the veranda when I heard two men report—"

"Then you bit her lip; her thoughts seemed far away. The girl shook her head. "I'm afraid not. I was looking—"

Home Made Telescope Reads Watch At 2 Miles

WINDOOSKI PARK, Vt. (AP)—In his spare time, the Rev. A. A. Rivard, mathematics professor, has built a telescope with which physicists contend one can read a watch dial two miles away. The St. Michael's College professor spent more than 125 hours making the 300-pound instrument, which is 8 inches in diameter. With the aid of James Holcomb, Burlington telescope builder, Father Rivard mounted the mirror in a 6-foot tube for the amateur observatory here.

Army Appeals For Clothing

Wearing Apparel, Shoes Needed For Poor Children

An urgent appeal for donations of clothing and shoes for children was issued Saturday by Major L. W. Canning, officer in charge of the local Salvation Army post.

"We have several boys and girls attending our Sunday School who have to come barefoot because of absolute lack of shoes," the major said. "We have definite knowledge of others who would like to attend our Sunday school and services but are ashamed to come because of their shabby clothes. We know of young men who would gladly attend Army services but remain away because they do not have adequate wearing apparel."

"We feel sure that there are many people in Big Spring who have clothing and shoes which can be put to good use in this way, and we shall be glad to call at any house if our office is notified. The telephone number is 454.

"The Army is calling upon the people of this city to make any sort of donation to further this humanitarian work and give more of the underprivileged young people a better chance at the decent things in life. Cash donations are insufficient to carry on our work, and we are adopting this method of appeal for aid. We urge that contributions of clothing and shoes be made if it is at all possible."

Pioneer Woman, 99, Defends Modern Youth

STRATFORD, Ont. (AP) - The youth of today is just as good as the youth of 50 and 70 years ago, Mrs. Emily Boyd, Stratford pioneer, told interviewers on her 99th birthday.

Automobiles and other attractions have not made much difference, she said, and people were "just as Christian at heart as they ever were, even if fewer go to church regularly."

MR. AND MRS.

Oh, I'm so glad you're home. There have been such queer noises in the house. What kind of noises?

Noises In The Night

Oh, I don't know - bangings and thumpings. I thought someone was breaking in. Ill take a look around.

EVERYTHING IS ALL RIGHT

As-so-lute-ly just the same I wish we lived out of town, all by ourselves.

(BUT IT WOULDN'T MAKE ANY DIFFERENCE IF THEY DID)

Just the same I wish we lived out of town, all by ourselves.

PA'S SON-IN-LAW

So Mr. Taker needs a gardener, eh? Well - so does my place. I'm hoping that when he took it, he didn't get a close shave look at the other clothes!

In The Enemy's Camp!

Guess this is about your size! Uh - yes, I know Mr. Taker! Fine, kindly gentleman he is, too! Pity he's such an invalid! I never did hear just what's the matter with him. Come to think of it!

Just Seeing Things

Well, I could have sworn I saw a bearded face outside my window this morning.

An Odd Angle

That explains Perry's jump - his plane caught fire as he was coming in. He climbed for jumpin' altitude, headed the ship for open country, and bailed out! - Only his chute didn't open.

The Life Of The Party

He certainly has changed! He's been dancing all evening - and with that blonde widow! I wonder if I ought to get worried??

DIANA DANE

Say, Dad - Cooley was right! I heard strange noises last night too!

Yeah?

You don't suppose the Maharajah sent someone around to spy on me?

Now, why that's absurd, Diana!

Just pure imagination, that's all.

Just pure imagination, Diana.

Waiting for Perry at the airport, Scorchy, Sue and Buzz see him fall to his death on the field.

Two miles north - east one - left at second gate - okay, mister! We're on our way!

Speeding to the scene, Scorchy, Buzz and the others find the wreckage still burning.

That explains Perry's jump - his plane caught fire as he was coming in. He climbed for jumpin' altitude, headed the ship for open country, and bailed out! - Only his chute didn't open.

Odd, though, that the ship flew so far by itself before crashing.

HOMER HOOPEE

I should invite Homer to the party, but the last time he just sat there like a stuffed owl and glowered at everybody!

The Life Of The Party

Say, he's a different man! I saw him today!

He certainly has changed! He's been dancing all evening - and with that blonde widow! I wonder if I ought to get worried??

About Helen, you mean? Listen, she ran away and left him, didn't she?

Texas Vote Total May Pass Million Mark Next Saturday

AUSTIN, July 15 (AP)—The majority opinion here today was that the vote in the first democratic primary next Saturday, barring rain, would be well over a million and there was a strong possibility it would be larger than in any previous Texas election.
Poll tax payments were $5,222 fewer than two years ago but capitol observers believed the interest in the 12-man governor's race created by W. Lee O'Daniel, the Fort Worth flour salesman, might more than offset that decline.
The largest vote ever cast in Texas was that of 1,071,322 two years ago for the late Judge O. S. Latimore, unopposed for re-nomination to the state court of criminal appeals. The vote in the governor's race at that time was 1,053,117.
Dopesters went back to the first primary of 1884 in an effort to get a line on what is likely to happen next Saturday. The gubernatorial sweepstakes that year had only six entrants, just half of the current field, yet the leader received less than 30 per cent of the total.
A few of the more ardent O'Daniel supporters claimed their standard bearer had a good chance to receive a clear majority but impartial observers pointed to the 1884 figures to emphasize the difficulty of anyone doing that.
Candidates in next week's balloting include such proved vote-getters as William McCraw, twice attorney general, Ernest O. Thompson, member of the railroad commission and chairman of the interstate oil compact commission, and Tom F. Hunter of Wichita Falls, who never has received fewer than 220,000 votes in a governor's race.
The other participants are Karl Crowley, former solicitor in the United States postoffice department, P. D. Renfro, mayor of Beaumont for four years, Rep. Clarence E. Farmer of Fort Worth, James A. Ferguson of Belton, Marvin McCoy and Joseph Klink of Houston, Thomas Self of Crockett and S. T. Bredgen of Stephenville.

Yield Being Checked On Some Farms

Committeemen Work Where Records Are Incomplete
Community agriculture committeemen were busy in the office of Farm Agent O. P. Griffin Saturday adjusting cotton yields on individual farms where all records are not complete. Griffin explained that some 20 per cent of the county's growers do not have complete records covering the full five years on which the yield is based, and that the committee are condoning all factors in regard to land, productivity, etc., in setting up a five-year average for these individual yields.
When their work is finished, the agent said, notices of the yields will go to all farm operators with the request that they cooperate in checking for errors. Final figures will go to the county committee for last adjustments within the state allowance.
Griffin expressed gratification that the county's base yield has been increased from 114 to 134 pounds per acre. He calculated that most farms could be brought near the latter figure. The increase means that the base yield totals on the 72,889 acre allotment of the county would stand at 9,898,446 pounds of lint cotton, or 19,797 bales.
Work on checking farms for compliance is proceeding at a fine rate, the agent reported. Field supervisors are approximately 80 per cent finished, he estimated, and the planimeter, a device which checks acreage calculations is being operated on a 24-hour-a-day basis. The planimeter is completing about 45 farms a day, and the agent thought the work would be completed close to schedule.
Supervisors are reporting that comparatively few farmers are outside the limit on cotton average, and that practically all of those would destroy their excess cotton. Compliance in the county may be close to 100 per cent.

Eight Additions In First Week Of Revival Campaign

Eight additions to the church were reported at the end of the first week of the open air revival campaign being conducted at the tabernacle at Benton and Fourth streets by Rev. Horace C. Goodman. There have been two baptisms. The meeting will continue through July.
Rev. Goodman's subject for the Sunday evening service will be "There a Hell? Where is Hell? What is Hell? Who is Going to Hell? How Will They Get Out of Hell?"
He spoke on the topic "Old Time Religion" Friday night, saying in part:
"For with the heart man believeth unto righteousness."
"The subject brought to view in this passage requires of us, that we should distinguish carefully between intellectual and heart-faith. The Scriptures affirm that the 'demons also believe and tremble.' They do not believe unto righteousness."
"Faith in the intellect is a judgment—an opinion. The mind so judges and is convinced that the facts are so. The things believed may be true; they may relate to God and may embrace the great fundamental facts and doctrines of religion; yet this faith may not result in righteousness. To bring heart faith this conviction by the intellect must produce a change of the will.
"The first step in this direction of heart-faith is to believe God's word. There can be no heart-faith without first facing the fact that God is and is speaking to a lost race through the Bible. History will not do it, speaks of nothing but-rain; philosophy can never bring one close to God because it is forever changing; science can not produce facts as to His and death, and science is forever having to retract. Men can have intellectual faith in history, in philosophy, or science, but this will not bring them any closer to the forgiveness of sin; nay I will go further, man can have intellectual faith in the Bible and never be forgiven of sin.
"The demand for reasons often embarrasses our faith. This is one of the tricks of the devil. He would embarrass our faith by telling us that we must understand God and all of God's ways before we can believe. This is impossible and unreasonable, because there would be if everything was clearly understood."

Houston Safety Work Rewarded

HOUSTON, July 16 (AP)—With police accident squads clamping down on reckless driving and the systematic removal of traffic hazards, this city saved six lives from "sudden death" the first six months of 1938 as compared with the first half of 1937.
Houston police recorded 27 deaths attributed to traffic accidents and 368 injured as against 33 killed and 379 injured the same period last year with figures totaled after the haphazard Fourth of July holiday. Accidents were reduced from 6,778 to 5,502.
Works Progress Administration employes have started a traffic survey and will suggest elimination of "blind corners," changes in parking rules and other steps toward safer driving while traffic experts are studying causes of accidents and charting their time and place.
The city has placed some 600 boulevard stop signs, compelling motorists to stop before entering or crossing designated thoroughfares; marked all dangerous curves and painted "slow" and "fast" traffic lanes on the arteries.
Capt. W. F. Haley of the police traffic squad attributed the reduction in fatalities to the safety campaign and predicted the 1938 total would fall under the 11,920 accidents and 55 deaths reported last year.

ECONOMIC ASSURANCE

One of the elements which offer hope of recovery from today's depressed business conditions is the strength of the banking system as compared with that of 1932. Quickly indeed we have come to accept the guarantee of bank deposits as a matter of course. And yet the act was passed only in June of 1933, and was not really set operating until the first of the following year.

Today more than 50,000,000 bank accounts are insured by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation. And the owners of those accounts feel safe in regard to them. That builds confidence.

The first bank to close, whose depositors were protected by the insurance law, folded up in the fall of 1933. Since then more than 350,000 depositors in 200-odd banks have received $117,000,000 from the FDIC.

They lost nothing, and, barring a total collapse of the banking system with a series of closures like that which dotted the period 1920-33, the depositors in more than 13,700 insured banks are not likely to lose anything, either.

They know it, too, and the result is a confidence which in turn makes widespread bank closings less likely. Confidence breeds confidence, and security breeds security.

This strong banking situation is not entirely, of course, the product of the insurance plan. It should be remembered that half of the banks in the country went bust in the period just preceding the 1932-33 depression, and that, generally speaking, it was the stronger banks that survived. Ever since bank deposits insurance came in, there has been a tendency for the number of banks to shrink, by consolidations and closings. This generally makes for greater strength in those which remain.

Stricter rules for chartering new banks have been put in force, with consequently greater chances of success for those that do begin business. The capital structure of the existing banks has also been materially strengthened through federal action.

As long as there are 50,000,000 savings accounts whose owners feel quite secure in their possession, there lies beneath recessions and depressions something which ought to make, and in the present instance seems to be making, a cushion off which we "bounce" once bottom is hit.

HOW LIBERTY IS LOST

By Wireless to the Herald Tribune PARIS, July 13—We live in a time when great masses of civilized men have either voluntarily surrendered their personal liberties or at least have submitted to it without serious protest or resistance to the destruction of their liberties.

It is important that we should understand the causes. This is not too difficult. For while a library of books might profitably be written on the subject, one fundamental aspect of the question at least is clear enough to any one who passes back and forth between the totalitarian and the free nations of Europe.

It is that the peoples who have lost their civil rights have previously lost or had never obtained the means of economic independence for individuals, families and local communities. It is very clear, I think, that the masses who have fallen under the spell of demagogic dictators and their terroristic bands were recruited from individuals who had no property, no savings, and either no job at all or a job which they could not feel sure of holding. They were in the exact sense of the term proletarians even if they happened to be earning fairly high salaries at the moment.

For they had no reserves to fall back upon. They could not afford to lose their jobs. They could not afford, therefore, to speak their minds or to take any risks, to be in any real sense of the word individual citizens. They had to be servile or they starved. Whenever a dictatorship has been set up in Europe, the mass of individuals had already become so insecure that they no longer dared to exercise the legal liberties that the demagogue was attacking.

To have economic independence a man must be in a position to leave one job and go to another; he must have enough savings of some kind to exist for a considerable time without accepting the first job offered. Thus the peasant, for all his poverty and the exploitation which he suffers, is relative to his own needs still the freest man in central Europe. The fact that he can exist by his own labor on his own piece of land gives him a freedom which is denied the proletarian regime, except the Russian perhaps, has been forced to respect.

But the industrial worker who has a choice between working in one factory and not working at all, the white collar intellectuals who compete savagely for the relatively few private positions and for posts in the bureaucracy—these are the people who live too precariously to exercise their liberties or to defend them. They have no savings. They have only their labor to sell, and there are very few buyers of their labor. Therefore, they have only the choice of trucking to the powerful or of perishing heroically but miserably. Men like these, having none of the substance of liberty themselves, have scant respect for any law or any form of civil rights.

The reason why the love of liberty, as we understand it in America, is so strong in France is undoubtedly, it seems to me, that France still is a country where the great mass of the people have their own farms, their own shops, their own little business enterprises and some savings for a rainy day and an emergency. This is the solid foundation of French liberty. The French electorate, except perhaps in a few industrial centers, is not a frightened crowd but a collection of independent families, stubbornly attached to their farms, shops, homes and bank accounts.

They are not easy to terrify because they have reserves for their independence. They have resistance to mass propaganda because they have so much independence as individuals. And that is why they have such a dread of inflation, which would destroy their individual savings, and such a dislike of monopoly and the concentrating of big business, which would make them the hirelings of a single master.

The more I see of Europe the more deeply convinced do I become that the preservation of freedom in America, or anywhere else, depends upon maintaining and restoring for the great majority of individuals the economic means to remain independent individuals. The greatest evil of the modern world is the reduction of the people to a proletariat level by destroying their savings by depriving them of private property, by making them the helpless employees of a private monopoly or of government monopoly. At that point they are no longer citizens. They are a mob for whom the people lose this sense of their separate and individual security, they cease to be individuals. They are absorbed into a mass. Their liberties are already lost and they are a frightened crowd ready for a master.

Though the actual measures to be taken are debatable, the objective for a free government is, I think, clear. It should use its authority to enable the independent farmer, the small and moderate sized enterprise, the small saver, to survive. It should use its authority to see that large enterprises are no larger than technology requires, do not have excessive corporate privileges and other forms of

by GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—Sometimes in this town you sit down with people and never know that you are gazing upon a pretense to tragedy. You see them casually, you dismiss them from your mind, and perhaps you never think of them again—unless, as happened to me, you notice a little paragraph in the paper next day.

This by no means is an unusual happening in New York. It has happened before and will happen again, and so I relay it now, not as news, but as something that unfortunately happens to be a part of life in this and any other large metropolitan center. I suppose...

There is a pleasant little bar on a side street on the east side of town. It is a small bar but it is cozy and people like to go there for a quiet bit of refreshment before wandering off to bed.

One night last week I wandered in there with Jimmy Wallington, the radio announcer who was in New York for a bit of a vacation. It was his last night in the city. As we sat down we noticed a woman at the bar. I imagine she was 20. She was the only girl in the place.

We sat and talked for awhile and then a man came in by himself. The woman looked up. She looked away quickly and got up and walked down to the end of the bar and whispered something to the bartender. The man, meanwhile, ordered a drink. He shot a furtive glance at the woman. He followed this with a brief, thoughtful sweeping glance, as if he were "taking in" the place. He wanted to see who was there. He may have been looking for doors and exits.

Meanwhile the bar captain was mumbled something into a telephone. Then, casually enough, he sauntered down to where the stranger stood. Perhaps he mistook him a drink; I don't recall. But I remember this: in about two minutes two detectives walked into the bar. They walked over to the woman, spoke to her, and all three walked out together.

Later we learned that she was afraid of this man, the stranger, for at one time he used to be her husband. The cops wanted to take her to the station house, so that nothing would happen to her, but she said she was all right now. She would be safe, she felt. So they left her alone and she went home by herself.

And that's about all anyone knows of the story. The inside facts of the story, I mean. But the next day, when I saw Jimmy Wallington again, he said: "Remember last night? Remember that girl at the bar? And the cops?"

"I saw a paragraph in the paper about a man and a woman being injured in a fight. Were they the ones?"

"That's right," replied Wallington, "but that paragraph didn't go far enough. They are dead. Both of them were killed with a ice-pick."

And that's the way it happens. You walk into a place, you see people who mean nothing at all to you or to anyone you know, and you walk out again, little realizing that their anonymity is being fashioned into headlines for tomorrow.

Hollywood

Sights And Sounds by ROBBIN COONS

BEFORE swing came, Betty Boop, product of the jazz age, did all right. She was animated "hot stuff" with her curls and bangs, ear-rings, bracelets and curves. But then, like a Hollywood glamor girl who has to change her type to save her career, Betty met the challenge of a new era. She put away flapperish things and changed her personality. No longer is she old-fashioned.

After Max Fleischer's artists revamped her, Betty Boop gradually became a new person. She lost most of her curls, the part in her hair, the jewelry. Like a real actress, she's careful not to show her profile, which doesn't flatter her. She dresses more modestly, too—and she wants you to take her as a streamlined swingtime miss in the modern tempo.

Revival Continues Through This Week

Services are conducted twice daily at 3 a. m. and 8:30 p. m. Evangelist J. P. Crawshaw, of Sweetwater, is bringing inspiring gospel messages, and the congregational singing is under the direction of Dan Conley. You are most cordially invited to attend every service.

LOVE ON THE RANGE

Chapter 15 EXPOSED

Lee Trone's red lips curled scornfully. "I'll bite," she said. "What was I?"

Ratchford scowled. "You're talking to the sheriff of this county now. I expect a civil answer."

"Very well," she answered. "I was not under the pepper tree when that man was killed."

"Where were you?" "I was walking toward it from the rear of the bunkhouse."

Ankrom saw suspicion in the sheriff's glance. "Why?"

"It was warm inside and I wanted to get some air."

"Why did you happen to pick that pepper tree to head for?" "I wanted to be alone. The shadows were dark there and I didn't think anyone would see me."

There were puzzled corrugations on the sheriff's forehead. "I have often felt like that—alone, myself," he said. "But I can't see why you would want to be alone when old friends you hadn't seen for years had just arrived."

"I felt strange toward them. Somehow I couldn't accept them as old friends," Lee said simply. "I could not help feeling that they were strangers—and they were, you know." Her glance went to the girl who called herself Betty Struthers.

"Why did you and that man practice this imposture on us?" she asked curiously.

A tear fell slowly from one moist blue eye as the girl from Paso Pinto faced her hostess. "Miss Trone—you'll never forgive us, I know, but we knew the real colonel and his daughter. He had often told us of the Rafter T. I have always wanted to spend a summer on a ranch. Finally I persuaded father to impersonate—" she broke off and, turning her head away, put a handkerchief to her eyes.

Ankrom wondered if this were the truth. He felt strongly inclined to doubt it, for he knew the man she called her father was Kilton Dreen, and so far as he had ever heard, Kilton Dreen had no daughter. "Too," he recalled the place where first he had seen this girl. No, he decided, this yarn was a lie. But the girl was a clever actress—

He saw the sheriff looking at her closely, saw the sudden tautening of Ratchford's figure. "Isn't this bogus colonel really Kilton Dreen, the Tombstone gambler?"

The golden head drooped lower. "Through so?" the sheriff grunted. "Dreen," he held the other. "I think that made a lot of brag about gettin' that shootin' fool, Blur Ankrom. Seems like Ankrom gunned this Dreen's cousin couple years back, an' the gambler swore he'd never rest till he evaded the account."

"What's all that got to do with us?" Trone asked, pulling himself together. "Ankrom saw that the girl of shaking had gone out of him."

"Mebbe nothing," the sheriff answered. "Then again it might have a whole heap to do with you. It all depends..." He broke off to frown at Claydell who was grinning.

"He means," Claydell chuckled, "that one way of explainin' Dreen's presence on your ranch is any gibe."

"Believe your lip, damn you!" Ratchford snarled.

The rancher returned the sheriff's glare with bland surprise. "Was I about to give state secrets away?"

"Some day," Ratchford's voice was deeply vibrant, "you're going to push me too far, Claydell. When that time comes you better have your holster grazed."

"You remind me of a spoiled boy. When you can't have things all your own way you sulk. It's time you grew up."

A Warning Before Ratchford could reply, Claydell went on: "You may be the sheriff of this county, unfortunately, but that don't come anywhere near givin' you a corner on the conversation. Any time I feel the urge to break forth in speech, neither you nor all your sheep-herdin' dupes are going to hold me back. This here's a warning, Ratchford. You watch your step!"

While the sheriff stood spluttering with purple face, Claydell bowed to the others regretfully and took his leave, permitting his revolver to lay upon the floor where Ratchford's boot had shoved it. Perhaps Ankrom thought, he had forgotten the weapon. At any rate, he left without it and a few moments later his purring motor faded on the distant night.

Ankrom's abrupt laugh broke the silence Claydell's departure had left behind. "What the hell you laughin' at?" Ratchford snarled.

"Laughin' at the way that fell curled you up an' left you gaspin'!" Ankrom chuckled.

"Oh, you are, are you? Well, you keep right on laughin' then while you got the chance. When you're all through I'll give you a few things to say that'll give you an opportunity to laugh on the other side of your mug!"

Ankrom investigated, tomorrow.

Why Does A Sailor Draw More Pay Than A Soldier? Board Wonders

WASHINGTON, July 18 (AP)—The fact the average sailor is paid almost twice as much as a soldier posed a complex problem today to a board representing the nation's four armed services.
Theoretically, army and navy pay is on a par but the soldiers have complained for years it's not so, and their pay checks tend to bear them out.
The army, navy, marine corp and coast guard selected the board to make recommendations to the next congress at the request of the senate military affairs committee. Brigadier General Lorenzo D. Ganser, the army's representative, said it would start work soon.
The war department wants to raise the pay of some of the army's 165,000 enlisted men for the first time since 1927; the navy thinks its commissioned officers, warrant officers and nurses deserve prior consideration. The budget bureau decided the government could not spare the millions required for either this year.

Traffic Tickets Are Pouring In
With the police department continuing its determined campaign against violators of the red-light-right-turn ordinance, traffic complaints poured into the city court Monday. Seventeen traffic complaints on file, about half of these for failing to stop before making a right hand turn against a red light, the traffic offenses which officers particularly are watching.

Ten fines were paid in city court Monday morning. Four of these were for drunkenness, one for assault and one for assault.

DEFICIT IS LARGER
WASHINGTON, July 15 (AP)—The treasury ran up a $291,742,309 deficit in the first fortnight of the new fiscal year.

The shortage was $105,000,000 larger than in the similar period a year ago, and was the first contribution toward the $4,000,000 deficit President Roosevelt has predicted this year as a result of the emergency spending program.

Shutdowns
der existing allowables it took much longer for a West Texas operator to recover his investment than for one in East Texas to do so.

The hearing was enlivened by a hot verbal exchange between Friday and C. M. Luak of Houston, ending when each emphatically suggested that the other "sit down."

Friday said the East Texas allowance would be only about 45,000 barrels a day even though Sunday shutdowns were removed if the commission could stop the illegal practice of operators making up from good wells the production which they cannot get from dead or sub-marinal wells. He claimed numerous East Texas wells could produce little or nothing yet were classed as wells capable of making their allowances.

Thompson said that the commission's large engineering force in East Texas was constantly on guard to prevent such practice.

Average bottom hole pressure in East Texas showed another substantial increase. The July 8 figure was 1125.45 pounds compared to 1120.84 June 8.

In answer to questions from Thompson, W. E. Cottingham, chief engineer of the commission, said that in the months during which shutdowns were effective East Texas bottomhole pressure had climbed 8.89 pounds.

On the current proration, minus Sunday closings, Cottingham said the field would produce 612,742 barrels daily.

From other districts came requests to continue the closings. Harold Neely of the West Central Texas Oil & Gas Men's association expressed an opinion continuation of the Sunday holidays would best serve the industry while a spokesman for West Texas asserted a greater number of daily shutdowns, possibly five to eight a month, would be desirable.

Rodeo Winners Announced
Several Share Prize Money In Ackerly Contests
Announcement of awards made to winners in the Ackerly rodeo of Friday and Saturday was made Monday by Andy Brown, director general of the event, who said the celebration was the best the community had ever staged. Approximately 2,300 people were on hand for events Saturday.

First day's winners were as follows:
Calf roping—Brown Todd, time 19.2, purse $40; Joe York, 20.5, $30; Wayne Burroughs, 20.4, $30; N. A. Pittcock, 22.1, $10. Calf belling—Raymond Quigg, time 13.3, purse $40; Vance Davis, 14.1, $30; Sonny Edwards, 14.2, $20; Buster Lee, 16.2, $10.

Second day's winners:
Calf roping—Wayne Burroughs, time 17, purse $40; L. W. Young, 18.3, $30; Buster Lee and Phelton Herrington tied for third and fourth, 19.1, $15 each. Calf belling—Vance Davis, time 14, purse $40; N. A. Pittcock, 15, $30; Phelton Herrington, 16.4, $20; Charlie Cox, 21.4, $10.

"All those in charge of the celebration wish to extend thanks to the fine cooperation given us by people of Big Spring," Brown said. "Especially do we thank the highway patrolmen for their fine work in directing traffic and handling the crowds. The support given us made the Ackerly celebration this year the best it has ever been."

Brown said that favorable reports were received Monday on the condition of some 10 or 12 people who became ill Saturday afternoon after the barbecue.

Politics
Lubbock, candidate for lieutenant governor, promised the state's million voters "I will do everything in my power to keep politicians from making the public school lands a political plum."

Robert W. Calvert, aspiring to the same office, cited his record in the house of representatives and his activities as a private citizen as indications of his support of disage assistance.

"Plain Business Man" Pierce Brooks said, if he were elected lieutenant governor, he would favor the abolition of the old-age assistance commission and the liquor control board, "a saving of over two million dollars each year," which, matched with federal funds, would provide $4,000,000 for distribution to the aged, he added.

Accuses Opponents
George A. Davison, Jr., charged that other candidates for lieutenant governor were appropriating his platform. Declaring "they could not produce even if elected," Davison today started five days of campaigning in East Texas.

State Railroad Commission Chairman C. V. Farrell, in Austin today for a proration hearing, planned to hit the campaign trail again with his theme "oil conservation is my baby."

Conservation made oil prices firmer, better oil prices brought increased tax collections on the commodity, and "oil conservation is a concrete tax relief" he asserted.

Highway Commissioner John Wood, campaigning for railroad commissioner, reiterated his stand for a uniform maximum truck-load law for all states and declared he had no quarrel with any of his opponents.

Charges and counter-charges flew between L. A. Woods, candidate for re-election as state superintendent of schools, and S. R. Lemay of Athens, seeking the post.

Martin
damage, and there were no other persons hurt. Cosden officials said the ship's apparently was one of an unavoidable nature. Martin's death was the third fatality since the plant has been in operation—nearly ten years—considered a remarkably fine safety record for such an industrial concern.

Out of respect for the memory of Martin, who had appeared with them in other rallies, county candidates announced that scheduled political rally at Knott tonight had been postponed. It will be held probably Thursday night. This afternoon's baseball game was advanced to 3 o'clock, to avoid conflict with the funeral services.

Flight
thought it was California all the time.

The report spread quickly in Dublin that there was "a crazy flier" in town, and it reached newspaper headlines just like that.

Corrigan sat munching sandwiches as an airport official pressed him to produce his landing papers.

Not California?
"Really now, I thought I was heading for California," he beamed. "It was not until I saw your mountains here that I realized it was not California."

The United States minister, John Cudaly, sent his car to the airport. It picked up the flier and delivered him to the legation. It is expected he will be the guest of the minister for several days.

Technically Corrigan is under detention because of his lack of papers, but that did not seem to bother him.

He said he circled around the northern coast of Ireland after reaching the western coast and finally picked out Dublin's Baldonnal airport for his landing.

An Irish mail plane for London was just leaving when Corrigan set his rickety craft down.

Most airmen on this side of the Atlantic had not conceded the daring American one chance in a hundred of making the Atlantic crossing after reading cabled accounts of his "disappointed" craft.

Baldonnal, where he landed in fulfillment of the ambition he had nursed for more than a year to fly to Ireland, is the airfield on the outskirts of Dublin.

Because of the department of commerce's rejection last year of his application for permission to make such a flight and because strict regulations cover such ocean trips, officials at Floyd Bennett Field had doubted he would try a "sneak" hop.

(The officials had believed he carried only one navigation map of the United States with optional northern and southern routes across the continent.)

City Hoping For Dismissal Of Patent Suit
City officials Monday studied an official report of a recent federal court ruling involving suits of the National Electric Signal company against two Texas cities, alleging patent infringement, and hoped that a dismissal of that firm's case against the city of Big Spring might be in the offing.

This was because of the fact that the company's suits against the towns of Electra and Vernon—similar to the case filed against Big Spring and many other Texas cities—was dismissed. Federal Judge Atwell in Dallas held that there were patent rights prior to those claimed by the National Electric Signal firm and that it had no valid claim.

The company alleged that a system of double switches used in controlling traffic lights was an infringement on patents held by it.

Expected To Make "Fireside Chat"
WASHINGTON, July 15 (AP)—Well-informed persons considered it increasingly possible today that President Roosevelt would make a "fireside chat" about his western tour when he returns to Washington.

Such a speech, they said, would give him an opportunity not only to recount his personal observations of American conditions but also to summarize his political and legislative objectives.

When he returned last September from a national tour that carried him through the drought stricken states, he made a radio report on his trip.

The political phase of Mr. Roosevelt's present journey has stopped for the time being while he goes fishing in the Pacific, but it probably will be resumed August 9 when he disembarks at Pensacola, Fla.

What sort of speeches he will make in the south remains to be seen. The western portion of his trip, however, left no doubt that for the remaining 30 months of his term, Mr. Roosevelt would campaign vigorously for "liberalism" as against "conservatism" in the democratic party.

ALTO, Tex., July 15 (AP)—Five thousand persons were expected here tomorrow for the Cherokee county agricultural association's picnic. Senator Cossady, C. H. Day of Waco and Congressman Pat Patton were scheduled for addresses.

In his race for Governor four years ago 457,821 votes were cast for Tom Hunter—within 2% of his election. An intensive survey of the State indicates that in this race more than a half million votes will be cast for his election. Join these half million citizens with your vote in the interest of a fair, sound, sensible, economical State Government.

Accidents Take Toll In Santone
SAN ANTONIO, July 15 (AP)—Three died as result of traffic accidents, two were shot to death, one drowned and many others were hurt in fights and accidents over the weekend in this area.

The dead are:
Clarence H. Murphy, 28, killed when he apparently lost control of his automobile on the Bandera road near Helotes.
Alvin Mahan, 14, newspaper boy, died Saturday of injuries suffered when he was struck by an automobile while working on his bicycle.
Demetrius Huron, 35, farmer, shot to death when he went to drive his cows out of a neighbor's cornfield, into which they had wandered, 15 miles south of the city.
John Benke, 44, shot to death on his farm early Sunday.
Rufus W. Blair, 42, who was drowned while on a midnight swimming party.
Herlinda Ramon, five, died of a fractured skull suffered when she was struck by an automobile.

MRS. GULEY HURT IN STAND CRASH AT BALL GAME
Mrs. L. L. Guley suffered bruises and Mr. Guley and L. E. Stagner were hurt to a lesser degree when a section of the grandstand at Baron park broke during Sunday afternoon's ball game and the three were hurled to the ground. They fell several feet.

Mrs. Guley suffered back bruises and will be confined for a few days. Her condition was not regarded as serious, however. Mr. Guley and Mr. Stagner were shaken up.

ABSENTEE BALLOTS OVER 300 ON EVE OF DEADLINE
With only one more day to go, absentee voting in Saturday's democratic primary continued at a brisk pace Monday. Ballots filed with the county clerk totaled over 300 at noon, and voters who expected to be away from home Saturday still were streaming in. The heavy absentee vote indicated a record poll on Saturday.

According to state statute, Tuesday is the last day for casting of absentee votes.
