QUOTES FROM AN AMATEUR PUBLISHER-EDITOR - Gene

Monday - Many thanks to Billy Jack Mauney for sending me the following poem.

The Price Of Freedom

The price of freedom is very high,
Sacrifice, from all each day,
Whether it be sorrow, blood or death,
It's a debt we all must pay.
When the struggle is finally won,
The reward is equally high,
That no enemy shall invade our land,
That no planes will cloud our sky.

What is your job as a citizen?
Have you done your part at all?
For freedom we must fight united,
Remember divided we fall.
Would you give your life for America?
Where fortunately you were born to live.
Would you see your son sent to battle?
Just how much would you give?
When your loved ones have gone to war,
And for you the future looks very dim,
Remember he's giving his life for you,
Don't turn your back on him.

QUARTERBACK CLUB ELECT OFFICERS PLAN FOR FESTIVAL

Striving to give the people of this area something new and different in the way of entertainment the Quarterback Club met Friday night to discuss plans for the Indian Trail Festival. A tentative date of July 17, 18, 19th was set. The club plans to invite a group of Indians from Oklahoma to entertain during the Festival. It was also decided to select the winning float in the parade this year from a standpoint of its representing the Indian Festival.

Commissioner Thurman and his crew were commended for the work they are doing on the park road. Appreciation was again expressed to the VFW of Eastland for the $50 donation toward a gateway leading into Memorial Park. Plans were made to drain the swimming pool and get it ready for opening. Dale Brightwell was employed to operate the pool again this year. It is hoped that a number of swimming events will be planned this year such as fancy diving, races, water carnival, etc. with invitations sent to neighboring towns to join in the competition.

To finance the building of a gateway into the Park a plan was discussed whereby large stones would be sold for 25c each. Jack Deavenport, Scout Master unable to attend the meeting said that his scouts wanted to handle this project. One of these large stones will soon be on display in the Progress window.

Officers for the ensuing year are Harvey Parker, President; Eugene Baker, Vice-President; Othel Clark, Secretary; Odie Monroe, Treasurer.

Diretors: Bill Parr, Chairman; Speck Clark, Arlton Smith, G C Acrea, and W C Browning.

Plans are also underway to erect a flagpole.

Also recalled was the kindness of Alex Rawlins and Sons of Weatherford in doing the lettering free-of-charge on the marble plaques over the dressing rooms. A number of the dressing rooms still have openings above the doors for plaques. The question was discussed as to whether people might want to purchase a plaque in honor of someone in service. For instance, there are three brothers from Gorman who have served a total of years in the Armed forces.

Don't you think it would be appropriate to have a plaque in their honor.

Tuesday evening, April 1st, has been selected as the date for the spring concert to be given by the bands of the Gorman Public Schools.

Both the grade and high school bands have been practicing the numbers for this concert since the Christmas program and a real musical treat is in store. In addition to the band numbers there will be various solos, duets, and trios, both instrumental and vocal.

While the program is planned to demonstrate the musical progress of the bands and band members, still it will not be heavy and lacking in interest. Instead it is hoped that this concert will be the most interesting and pleasing of any concert yet presented. Mr Nicholls, the director, having chosen various popular numbers and peppy marches, as well as the usual musical novelty characteristic of his program.

FORMER RESIDENT MRS J WILL CARTER BURIED WEDNESDAY

Funeral services for Mrs J Will Carter, 78, of Eastland and formerly of Gorman, were held at the Church of Christ in Gorman on Wednesday at 3 o'clock. Officiating at the services was Brother Layton Plaster, local minister. Interment was made in the Gorman Cemetery.

Mrs Carter passed away about eight o'clock Monday morning in Graham Hospital at Cisco where she had gone accompanied by her husband, Mr Carter, and his brother, on Saturday. The husband and brother had returned to Eastland on Sunday evening. Mrs Carter is said to have been in failing health for about two years.

Many Gorman and Eastland County folk will remember the deceased as Miss Lucy, the Postmistress. She was the daughter of Mr and Mrs Dean Yates who came to Gorman in the early 90's. A brother, Ben Yates, was at that time the depot agent. She was later married to Mr F W Townsend of the Townsend-Oldham General Store, predecessor of the present Higginbotham Store. The Townsend family moved to the Valley where after a number of years Mr Townsend passed away.

Besides her husband she is survived by three step-children. Mrs Clara Cockrell of Eastland, Ray Townsend of Big Spring, and Azro Townsend of Port Isabella.

Eastern Star rites were held at the graveside. The Eastland Chapter of which she is a member was in charge assisted by the Gorman Chapter. Mrs Carter was a Past Worthy Matron of the Gorman Chapter.

Pallbearers were J E Walker, John Kimble, Luther Cunningham, G W Percy of Sundown, and R E Mosely, A G Crosley, Billy Frost, and Rudolph Little of Eastland.

BIGGER AND BETTER

Bob Thrant, nephew of Mrs Eugene Baker, who is serving with the U S Air Force in Alaska, sent the following item which was originally published in the Louisville Courier.

Bigger and Better In a few years I hope that something like this will happen to me. I'll be in the club car of a train heading for Florida. A long, tall, bowlegged fellow will come in and sit down by me.

"Pardner", he'll say, "Where you from?" Kentucky, I'll say.

"Well, I'm from Texas," he'll say. "Greatest state in the union. You can put Kentucky and all of New England in just a little old corner of Texas, you know it? Land area of 263,644 square miles. Greatest state in the Union."

Then a man sitting on the other side of me will pipe up. "Pardon me, pardner," he'll say to the Texas. "I'm from little old Alaska. Youngest state in the union, 588,400 square miles, 1/5 the size of the whole United States, twice the size of Texas. Greatest state in the union."

The Texan will blink at him and turn back to me. "As I was saying," he'll say, "you cant mention a thing that Texas aint got. We got 400 miles of sea coast, you know it, and - -"

"Pardon me, pardner". Alaska will say, "We got 4750 miles of coast line. Our shores are washed by two oceans, one sea, straits gulfs, and God knows how many bays. We got . . ."

"Now you take our mountains, Tex will say. "There's Capitan in the Guadelupes, 9,020 feet high. That makes her 5,000 higher than anything you got in Kentucky, and . . ."

"Why son," Alaska will say, "That's just a little old hill. If you want a he-mountain, why don't you take old McKinley, 20,300 feet high. That makes her about 11,280 feet higher than any thing you got in - - what's the name of that state again?"

"And", Texas will say, "There's the old Rio Grande. What a river!"

"And", Alaska will say, "There's the old Yukon, 2,000 miles long, and you'll never see the day you can jump across it like some rivers I could mention, but won't"

By this time Texas will be foaming at the mouth and he'll turn his back on Alaska and say "And we got oil and gas and gold and silver and mercury and lead and . . ."

"And" Alaska will say, "We got oil, gold, silver, copp'r, lead, tin, platinum, pellacium, antimony, tungsten, coal, marble, glosun sulphur, pitchblende and fish and . . ."

"And" Texas will say, "there ain't anything we can't grow. You ever see a Texas watermelon? Biggest thing you ever saw!"

"Yeah" Alaska will say, "Bout

Takes real men to live in Texas. You ever heard of them blue northers that whip through the Panhandle?"

"Yeah", Alaska will butt in again. "They're just baby will-waws we send down for seasoning. When they get where they can break 100 miles an hour they come back to Alaska to work on some real men."

After that, Alaska will leave. Then Texas will turn to me and say: "Them Alaskans!! If they ain't the biggest mouthed, loudest bunch of braggarts I ever heard. Why we ever let them in the union, I don't know! "

A FOREIGN POLICY FOR AMERICANS

A Picture of the Russian Threat; How the Danger Was Created

By SENATOR ROBERT A. TAFT

CHAPTER 5

I pointed out in 1945 that the defects of the United Nations Charter make it completely useless against the aggression of one of the five permanent members.

This result has been made apparent sooner than might have been expected by two facts—first, the revelation that Russian Communism has a spirit of aggression which recognizes no laws or obligations (as we were told by all those who know anything about it), and, second, an Administration policy which deliberately built Russia up to a position of dangerous power.

The concessions made at Teheran, Yalta, and Potsdam and our later policies in the Far East were such as to build up Soviet Russia to a position of power which today does indeed present a threat to the security of the United States.

Harry Hopkins and Averell Harriman apparently accepted completely the idea that Russia was a peace-loving nation, for it is so designated in the joint Declaration on Liberated Europe agreed to at Yalta. At Teheran Roosevelt signed a declaration welcoming all nations into a "world family of Democratic Nations," of which Russia was apparently already one in the eyes of Roosevelt, Hopkins, and Harriman.

Wallace and Davies

Henry Wallace, former Vice-President and at the time of Yalta Secretary of Commerce, had made speeches about the "new democracy," to be built by the people of the United States and of Russia. He said that anyone suggesting that the aims and purposes of the two peoples were irreconcilable was criminal, that in some ways Russia was more democratic than America.

My own view is that the Communists in our Government, in the labor unions, and among the writing fraternity in both New York and Hollywood were concerned with influencing people who were in a position to affect public opinion or public policy or others who could influence such people. They planted exactly the philosophy which was adopted—that communism was probably not the form of government for the United States but that it was, in fact, a form of government more or less consistent with American ideals.

I could never understand how any man who went through even an American high school could reach such a conclusion. Communism, from my point of view, denies every principle of Americanism.

At the Potsdam Conference (July 17-Aug. 2, 1945) for the first time, apparently, some suspicions about Soviet good faith began to arise in the minds of those who were running American foreign policy, particularly Secretary Byrnes, but, nevertheless, at Potsdam, President Truman reaffirmed all the agreements made at Yalta and approved the Morgenthau policy in Germany and even went beyond the Yalta agreement in some of the workings out of that agreement. His agreements finally sealed the fate of the Baltic peoples, of Poland, of Czechoslovakia, and of the Balkan states.

A Gradual Change

From that time on our policy of conceding everything in Europe to Russia was gradually changed, I believe very largely under the influence of Senator Vandenberg, who, at San Francisco, saw how completely impossible it was to deal with the Russians. Working with Vandenberg, Secretary Byrnes finally refused to go along with any plan which would give Russia a predominant position throughout Germany. He threatened to resign unless Henry Wallace was dismissed from the Cabinet, and President Truman complied with his advice.

Gradually, in Europe our whole position changed, and we took a definite position against the expansion of Russian influence in any degree. We adopted the Marshall Plan, which proposed to give assistance to countries threatened by Russian infiltration and by communism from within.

We adopted a policy of giving military aid to Turkey and Greece, which were under direct threat of attack by the Communists. We finally ratified the Atlantic Pact and agreed to go to war with Russia if it attacked any member of that pact.

In short, we completely reversed our policy in Europe and adopted the general policy of checking the advance of communism in every way in which it could possibly be checked.

But in the Far East

On the other hand, in the Far East we continued to encourage the growth of the power of communism.

In spite of the recommendations of the Wedemyer report on China, we finally abandoned Chiang Kai-shek. The Administration fought efforts to provide money for arms to Chiang and refused to carry out the policy along that line decreed by Congress. Even when Chiang Kai-shek had retired to Formosa the Administration refused to give him any assistance whatever.

Mr. Acheson indicated further that America might recognize Communist China. There is no doubt that the attitude of the Administration toward Formosa and its general weak position toward the spread of communism encouraged the war in Korea.

In January 1950 Secretary Acheson stated clearly that we would fight if Japan, Okinawa, or the Philippines were attacked, but we could give no guarantee beyond that point. We had withdrawn our troops from Korea, and we thus made it clear that we would not defend South Korea if attacked.

Furthermore, we even failed to arm South Korea.

Policy Invited Attack

There is no doubt that the Administration's weak policy invited the Communist attack. The Communists took the Secretary of State at his word. They knew that we permitted the taking over of China by the Communists and saw no reason why we should seriously object to the taking over of Korea.

The Korean war and the problems which arise from it are the final result of the continuous sympathy toward communism which inspired American policy.

The result today is that Chinese Communists have taken over practically all of continental China, and from that point they have sent armies into Korea and Tibet, and are threatening Indo-China, Burma, Thailand, and all of Southeast Asia.

The result of the Administration policy, therefore, has been to build up the strength of Soviet Russia, so that it is, in fact, a threat to the security of the United States. Our liberty is threatened by the Russian military strength, backed up by the fifth-column strength which the Russians are always able to develop among Communists in every nation in the world.

I feel that Russia is far more a threat to the security of the United States than Hitler in Germany ever was. There are several reasons for that belief. Principally, it is based on the great development of air power, which permits airplanes to be built that can fly from Russian territory or Russian bases all the way to the United States. It is certainly possible that Russian planes can be built, in time, able to fly to the United States and return. The Russians also apparently possess the atomic bomb, or at least we have to allow for that in our plans.

Greater Manpower

Of course, the Russians have much greater manpower than ourselves, and if they can also swing the manpower of China, as they seem to be doing at the present moment, they have an overwhelming superiority in manpower, if it can ever be brought to bear against the United States itself.

Therefore, today we find ourselves with the greatest military threat from foreign sources we have faced since the days of the American Revolution. We find that the United Nations is a weak reed to lean upon, and we are forced, therefore, to the development of some other policy to combat Russian aggression.

It was in March 1950 that General Bradley, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, testified before the Senate Committee on Appropriations that he was satisfied that a budget of $13,000,000,000 for fiscal year 1951, with about a million and a half men in uniform, was sufficient for the interests of the country.

Of course the Korean War has occurred since that time, but the present program of forty to sixty billion dollars a year is not to meet the Korean War but to meet the powerful threat of Soviet Russia. The Korean War itself only takes one tenth of the total of men now requested and perhaps costs five or six billion dollars a year to conduct. The threat from Russia was exactly the same and from the same Russia in early 1950 as it is today. It is our policy which has changed.

The question which we have to determine, and which apparently nobody in the Administration has really thought through, is the point at which we reach the economic limitation in time of peace on government expenditures.

Furthermore, no one seems to have recognized that there are serious limits to our economic and manpower capacity and that we must be selective and restrained in determining the extent to which we carry out our basic strategy. No one has given the people a long-term plan.

NEXT WEEK: The Russian menace throughout the world and limitations of our manpower and strategy.

Cash on the Barrelhead!

In pioneer America it took cash to close a business deal. An inconvenient way, of course, but it certainly was safe, for with families trekking from here to yonder credit was an almost impossible thing to check. But now, with our modern banking system, business deals are made easier and more convenient. A check is enough to close the biggest, or even the smallest of deals... and then act as legal proof of payment.

WASHINGTON AND "SMALL BUSINESS"

By G. WILSON HARDER

Readers often inquire "Is State Secretary Acheson attacked everywhere because he works against small business, or because of partisan politics?"

It's a fair question, but difficult to answer directly because Acheson is a master in evading direct questions.

Therefore, the only way the readers' question can be answered is to state facts, and let conclusions be drawn. Some Washington scholars say "The Roman Empire had its Brutus, Italy had its Machiavelli, the last Imperial Russian government had its Rasputin."

G. W. Harder

They then ask "will future historians say the American Republic had its Acheson?" Their meaning is that history is replete with men who while not the head of government, wielded mysterious powers that eventually destroyed the government.

A strong viewpoint, but no stronger than that voiced recently by Sen. Homer Ferguson of Michigan, who states the lack of copper for all business in this country is due directly to a worldwide trust set up by Acheson.

Sen. Ferguson states that American use of copper, is controlled by the International Materials Conference, a world organization set up by Acheson without Congressional authority.

He further stated that while any American copper user could be jailed for paying more than 24 1/2 cents per pound for copper, the U.S. government is giving foreign nations American tax money to buy copper for as much as 50 cents per pound.

The Senator also stated there is no policing of how this material is used; it is possible part of it goes behind the Iron Curtain. Therefore he states, "The International Materials Conference is in reality an International Raw Materials Trust operated by Dean Acheson with the connivance and support of foreign countries with their hands in the American taxpayer's pockets."

Last week this column told how Churchill worked out a deal in Washington giving British monopoly control over U.S. tin supplies at increased prices.

Now the Mutual Security Agency, the Marshall Plan with a new name, announces that 760,000 dollars worth of tinplate is being sent to French North Africa, another quarter million dollars worth of South American tin ore is being sent to Germany.

So while the American taxpayer is being bled white and the OPS is prosecuting small business while prices soar, and shortages plague business, everything is glossed over with a slogan that all this is necessary for world security.

The retort is now "Secure for whom . . . free enterprise in the American tradition or for worldwide monopoly?"

It is possible for a man's intentions to be misunderstood.

But it seems more than mere coincidence that practically every move Acheson takes tends to build bigger and bigger trusts and monopolies, while American free enterprise suffers. Sen. Ferguson should now find out why he and other Congressmen permit their authority to be usurped.

WHERE EISENHOWER STANDS

By RAYMOND PITCAIRN, Editor Americans for Eisenhower

REAL GRASS ROOTS
The national trend toward Eisenhower for President had its start among the people. Among the beginnings of this grass-roots movement was a petition poll, asking Ike to run, taken of all the voters in the borough of Bryn Athyn, Montgomery County, Pa. The result was astonishing: 78%, including Democrats, asked Eisenhower to run as the Republican candidate.

Poll at Gettysburg
Preparations are under way for a house-to-house poll of the historic town of Gettysburg and neighboring communities in Adams County. Your columnist outlined the reasons for drafting Eisenhower at the organization meeting of the Gettysburg Chapter of Americans for Eisenhower in the following address:

The Man and the Crisis
"The world comes to Gettysburg for inspiration in human leadership; for this was the soul of Lincoln." As in his time, our country must combat sinister forces that threaten human liberty not in America alone but throughout the world.

"In times of crisis men are raised up by the Divine Providence to guide the nations. Today the man who looms on the world horizon as best qualified to lead America and the world is Dwight D. Eisenhower.

A Great Statesman
"We are met tonight to petition General Eisenhower to run for the great office of President of the United States. "This great American's statesmanship has already been well proven by his ability to compose the differences and enlist the cooperation of other strong and able men.

"He has demonstrated his ability to stand firm against the pressure of friends, the assaults of enemies, and the cunning devices of self-seekers. He has shown genius in determining the time for important action, and calm courage in acting when the time has come. He has proved that he can discover and inspire whatever of goodwill and cooperation is in men's hearts and minds. He has revealed outstanding executive ability to lead, rather than compel, other men to work and act together for so much of a cause as they can agree upon and support in unity.

The Man to Unite Us

"His force of character is governed by patience—patience with which to await the appointed hour, the free cooperation of others, and the guidance of Almighty God.

"Eisenhower is the one man who can unite all Americans who are determined to restore our country and its government to integrity and sanity. He is the one man who can effectively enlist world cooperation and respect in our dealings with friendly nations.

"By firmness of policy, soundly based upon experience, Eisenhower can also do more to secure respect from our enemies and thereby prevent another world war than can any other living American.

"He is the man of the hour, not by his own striving or seeking, but by his wisdom and fitness for the work which the hour demands."

This Is Your Paper Censorship Is Dangerous

By William R. Nelson

CENSORSHIP is an action Americans resist so aggressively it has not even been imposed by law in time of war.

Every newspaper has frequently to resist minor efforts at censorship. They are resisted because editors know that a minor success today can become a major one tomorrow.

Strangely enough, very few who participate in these minor instances fully realize what they are doing. Having the best of intentions, they fail to see the danger inherent in their actions.

Whenever a "request" is made that a newspaper omit facts concerning a public matter, censorship is being attempted.

Even a spat between neighbors becomes a matter in which the public is entitled to the facts, if the services of police or a court are required. Police and courts belong to the public which authorizes and pays for them, and how their services are employed is of concern to the public.

There are instances, of course, where private rights outweigh those of the public, and the editor is justified in suppressing such news. There are other instances, also, where good taste may dictate that an item be omitted. But, whatever the fine points involved, it is the editor's judgement which should prevail.

Newspaper editors do not resent honestly intended requests to overlook incidents where there is doubt that the public interest outweighs the private rights. They do resent them if accompanied by coercion in whatever form.

The editor is expert in such matters as public right to news. He is the best judge of whether or not public interests outweigh those of individuals or organizations involved. His judgment should be accepted without resentment. Censorship is a dangerous force, too dangerous to set in motion, no matter how innocently it may be employed.

Use For Lignin Proof that Lignin, the paper industry's most troublesome waste product, is an excellent reinforcing agent for natural, nitrile, and neoprene rubber, as well as for GR-S, the general purpose synthetic, was offered at the closing session of the spring meeting of the American Chemical Society's Division of Rubber Chemistry. Nitrile and neoprene are two of the major types of synthetic rubber. Added to natural rubber in proportions of 50 to 100 pounds per 100 pounds of rubber, lignin was found to give higher tensile strengths than any other pigment at the same volumes, including carbon black.

Get Type For Purpose There are various types of interior varnishes. Each is made according to the purpose it is to serve. Generally speaking, interior varnishes are harder—but not as resistant to weather—as exterior varnishes. Floor varnishes, for instance, are characterized by a high resistance to abrasion in order to withstand constant traffic. Another type, furniture varnish, must not soften under the heat of the body.

Three-Way Bed Warmer A versatile electric sleeping pad which at the flick of a switch can be set to warm the feet only, the back only, or the entire bed has been introduced. The pad is spread over the mattress like an ordinary mattress pad and then is covered with sheets.

Alike Under Skin The differences between races are very superficial. All men belong to the same zoological species, known as Homo sapiens, and their blood is the same. It is not possible to tell by microscopic examination, or by any other known tests, what race of man a given sample of blood came from.

Quick Market Oysters are one of the many perishable food crops that are marketed by telephone. Cargoes often are sold while they are en route in refrigerator cars. Oysters are grown by oyster farmers in coastal waters. The beds are tended carefully and it takes about five years to mature a crop.

B. M. BENNETT CANDIDATE FOR COMMISSIONER PRECINCT TWO

Crime in America By ESTES KEFAUVER United States Senator Eighteen of a Series Smashing the Crime Syndicate

During the crowded final hearings of the Senate Crime Committee—or my chairmanship of it, at least—we pried into a situation which smacked strongly of the roaring '20s.

Such were the workings of a vast bootleg ring which is running whiskey from Cairo, Ill., into dry Southern states. This was reminiscent of the bloody prohibition era, when trucks were hijacked, liquor shipments disguised as legal merchandise and public officials corrupted on a wholesale scale.

Some of the wholesalers involved, we discovered, had been connected with a huge black market liquor racket in World War II. Leading distillers have been appealed to both by a conference of Southern state revenue and alcohol commissioners and by our Senate Committee to take steps to remedy this situation.

We also saw in Washington a new type of gambling witness—42-year-old Sydney Brodson of Milwaukee, who told us he is licensed to practice law in two states. Brodson, polite and soft spoken though almost unbearably cocky at times, is a graduate of two colleges. Some years ago he found he had a talent for picking winners. Letting his law practice slide, he set up a small office, describing himself fictionously as a "food broker," and went into the full-time business of scientifically wagering on football and basketball games across the nation.

He estimated that he placed bets with bookies and other gamblers in about 20 states, waged about $1,000,000 per year and netted approximately $80,000 a year. In seven uninterrupted years of this, he said he has amassed a net worth of approximately $250,000.

The smart young man, however, wasn't smart enough. On the heels of his testimony, the state income assessor in Milwaukee announced that the income Brodson had reported over recent years simply did not add up to what he told the Committee he was worth, and that a thorough investigation would be undertaken. Certain of the bookmakers who handled Brodson's bets also must have wished he had talked less. Law enforcement officers in various cities jotted down names and addresses of the individuals with whom he said he placed bets. Before Brodson left the stand, they had located and arrested his betting associates in cities separated by thousands of miles.

I opposed continuance of the Crime Committee. I realized, of course, there were facets of interstate crime which could have been explored further. I felt, however, that we had done the basic job of exposing the framework of the nationwide criminal operations. The job, I felt, should be continued, but through establishment of a permanent federal crime commission, rather than by a committee of the Senate.

But the pressure for continuance was overwhelming—letters were pouring in by the thousands—and I was over-ruled. I was prevailed upon to stay with the committee for a limited time, but I insisted that it should have a new chairman. Sen. Herbert O'Connor of Maryland was chosen to succeed me.

The Committee, under my chairmanship, made some specific recommendations to the senate, aimed at crushing big-time crime once and for all. One proposed that an independent Federal Crime Commission be set up.

A Federal Crime Commission, the Committee majority thought, should be composed of three members, "all of whom are prominent citizens and not otherwise members or employees of the federal government." It would be empowered to hear witnesses and conduct hearings, keeping alive a continuing study of the activities of the national crime syndicate. The commission would maintain proper liaison between federal, state and local law enforcement agencies and crime commissions, recommended legislation and other corrective policies and act "as a national clearing house of information respecting criminal activities in interstate commerce."

Among other things, the Committee favored the organization of a racket squad in the Justice Department to go after racketeers and organized criminal mobs, and the setting up of special internal revenue fraud squads. This later step was taken by the Treasury Department after the Committee had noted that organized crimesters were defrauding the government on

Kline Sets The Record Straight

(Sp.) - AFBF NEWS, March 17 Last Thursday, the United Press carried a report from Texas that the Secretary of Agriculture had "charged today Allan B Kline, head of the American Farm Bureau Federation, had promised to 'deliver' the farm vote to Sen. Robert A. Taft (R., Ohio) in the 1952 Presidential election."

"He said at a press conference that Kline would have headed the Agricultural Department after the 1948 election if Gov Thomas E Dewey of New York had won the Presidency, and implied that a similar deal had been made between Kline and Taft."

"He promised to deliver all the farmers for Taft," Brannan said, "but I don't think the farmers can be herded around like that."

That evening AFBF President Kline released the following statement to the press. Copies of this statement were telegraphed immediately to Senator Taft, Governor Dewey and all State Farm Bureau Presidents.

"It has been called to my attention that the United States Secretary of Agriculture said in Texas that the President of American Farm Bureau Federation has conspired with Senator Taft for appointment as Secretary of Agriculture as repayment for delivering the farm vote to Taft in the coming election"

"It is hard to believe that a responsible person, such as the Secretary of Agriculture should be, would make such statements. They are simply complete falsehoods."

"There was no deal in '48; there is no deal now. As a matter of fact there was no conversation with Dewey at any time with regard to my availability as Secretary of Agriculture. There has been no conversation with Senator Taft on the subject at any time

"America is the present hope of responsible government in the world. As a citizen and the responsible President of the largest farm organization in America, I hope that our election in this year is not to be marked by this sort of falsification. Coming from a responsible cabinet officer such tactics are insults to honest citizens of whatever party. The Government after all belongs to all of us"

TEENAGERS ARE GUESTS AT DINNER-THEATER PARTY

Celebrating Manning Fairbetter's 16th birthday, teenagers, Jan Acrea, Brawner Lee Files and Robert Rankin, were Saturday evening dinner guests. Others present for dinner in the Fairbetter home were Miss Jo Russell, Mrs Adele Russell, and Milton Fairbetter.

Plate favors were colorful plastic miniatures of Donald Duck and Bugs Bunny carrying sacks of tiny Easter Eggs. A lordly rooster drawing a cart of eggs across a reflecto made the center piece.

Pictures of the group were taken and presented to the guests.

George Rodgers joined the boys for a movie.

EIGHTH GRADE MYSTERY OF MAN

We have been working hard to raise money for our banquet. The Bakt Salt came out fairly well. We hope to have a good banquet if we get the proper necessity! Money! We want to thank the ones who have so kindly helped us.

It seems that some have decided to take the easy way out by failing to keep from having to walk down that big old aisle on the night of graduation!

It sounds like the Seniors of next year are planning on a special day for the freshmen of next year. Wonder what?

Temper - ance A FRUIT OF THE SPIRIT

"But the fruit of the Spirit is - temperance." Gal. 5:22,23

The word "temperance" means, according to Webster, "habitual moderation in the indulgence of the appetites and passions." A negative definition could be, "Refraining from excessive indulgence." Indulgence to any degree in something that is bad is an excess. There can be excessive indulgence, however, in things that are good. For instance, food is good for the hungry man but he can eat excessively and thus injure himself. We see that before there can be temperance there must be self-control. As a matter of fact, the dictionary gives "self-control" as one definition of temperance.

When this passage was written it was common-place for people to go to owdil excesses in many ways. This kind of living then, as now, brought broken bodies and shame. Paul tells us that such a manner of life is not to characterize the Christian for as the Spirit of God controls the child of God's life it will bring forth the fruit of self-control. Wherever we see lack of self-control in our lives it is evidence of the need for Spirit-control. It is the power of God that makes it possible for us to do what we otherwise could not do.

Proverbs 16:32 says: "He that is slow to anger is better than the mighty; and he that ruleth his spirit than he that taketh a city." In his letter to the Philippians Paul testified, "I can do all things through Christ which strengtheneth me." Let us remember, then, as we see this need in our lives the strength for self-control comes through submission to God control.

MISS HOPKINS W. E. DAVID WED IN DENISON

In a simple candlelight service, Nancy Jane Hopkins, daughter of Mr and Mrs M W Hopkins became the bride of William Ement (Billy) David, son of Mr and Mrs E D David of Lamesa, at 6:30 p m Saturday in Waples Memorial Church.

In the presence of relatives and a few close friends, Dr H C Henderson read the double ring service before an altar banked with pink gladioli and ferns and pink cathedral tapers in floor candelabra.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a pink lace gown of demitasse-length. It was fashioned with fitted bodice and full skirt with godet of tulle. The lace jacket had long fitted sleeves tapering to points over the hands. She wore a halo hat of pink petals and pink satin shoes. Her bouquet was of pale pink camellias, surrounding a circle of the same flowers in a darker shade. For something old, she carried a lace handkerchief brought to her grandmother by Mr Hopkins when he returned from France after World War I.

Miss Dorothy Hopkins, sister of the bride, was maid of honor, and Patricia Anne Williams of Whitesboro was junior bridesmaid, Dianne Coffman was flower girl, and Charlotte Hilley of Gorman lighted tapers. All wore dresses of blue lace and organdy.

Mr David was his son's best man and Harole Hilley of Gorman was junior groomsman. Erick Kaindl of Dallas was also a taper lighter. Ushers were James David of Garland, Hammond Hopkins of Sherman, Arthur Higgins of Amarillo, Don Dozier of Topeka, Walter Davis of Shreveport and Ed Riddle of Ft Worth.

Traditional wedding marches were played by Mrs Isaac Burks, who also accompanied Miss Ida Spradling of Dallas, vocalist.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held in the Hopkins home. The table was laid with a handsome lace cloth and centered with an arrangement of pink carnations and snapdragons. Flanked by pink tapers in silver candelabra.
