own creations and narrated by their homemaking teacher, Miss Kathryn Ragan, to members of the Womans Study Club and their guests, members of the Young Homemakers Club on Monday night, March 24, 1969 at the Gorman Homemaking Cottage.

"Wonderful World of Fashion" was presented by Miss Ragan, assisted by the following students modeling their own creations which showed the influence and inspiration of foreign as well as old fashioned styling: Celia Reeves, Brenda Browder, Jackie Lawson, Karen Hallmark, Christi Fuller, Lorena Turner, June Collins, Debbie Baldwin, Sharon Welch, Tana Eaker, Marilyn Thompson, Jeanie McClearen, Gloria Turner, Debbie Phillips, Sarah Kirk, Debbie Holliday, Maudine Aston, Bet y Seaton, Anna Lee Butler, Marilyn Stewart, Debra Blevins, Laquita Parker, Denise Grady and Cheryl Hudson. quita Parker, Denies Grady and Cheryl Hudson. Each of the lovely garments were beautifully displayed by the talented models that had created them. Each was worn with the appropriate accessories to compliment and complete the ensemble.

Following the style show Miss Ragan delighted the audience by showing slides of several of the foreign countries that she had toured during her seven weeks tour around the world last summer. First she took us to Hawaii, Celia Reeves modeled a lovely typical Hawaiian costume — a green grass skirt, yellow blouse and colorful lei. Japan was our next stop - Jackie Lawson was the demure model in the kimona complete with a wide cumberband and huge how in the back. Then to Thailand where the lovely temples of worship were viewed in all their glorious coloring. The final stop was India — with her hordes of peoples and sacred animals - Karen Hallmark was the graceful model displaying the six yard Sari, native woman's dress, appropriately draped in the proper manner.

A delicious refreshment plate was served. The play is scheduled for 7:30 p. m. Thursday, April 17 in the High School Auditorium. Admission will be $1.00 for adults, reserve seats $1.25 and children 50c.

D. B. WARREN NAMED "FARMER Named City Judge In regular session April 7, 1969 OF YEAR" AT BENEFIT BANQUET and spoke briefly of his early days in Gorman where he began his law practice. Saying, "It is good to be back home," he remembered the poverty of his family in the early days spent in the community, "only we didn't know we were poor." He saluted the people of Gorman and their initiative and dedication in the hospital project. In prasing the community for wanting to solve their own problems and do something for themselves, he said, it reassured him when he became "somewhat fearful that we have fallen into apathy, waiting for others to do something for us." We should look back to history for the answers to our present what the results will be," he said, adding that "it is just a matter of form to get it into print."

D. B. Warren was named Out-standing Farmer for the Year of 1968 at the Gorman Hospital Ben-efit Dinner held Friday night in the High School gym.

Presiding over the dinner was Ross Wilson who introduced distinguished guests and Mr. Tom Birdsong, manager of Gorman Peanuts, who presented the Farmer of the Year Award.
Sharing the honor with Mr. Warren were his wife, Idell, and sons, Jerry and Wesley.
Warren, a resident of Gorman since 1940, has more than tripled his crop yield on his farm between Kokomo and Gorman. The family was honored in January

We should look back to history for the answers to our present situation. Others who suffer loss of freedom can tell us much." He stressed what is right about America, saying that the challenge is not "simply to know what is right, but to practice it." He further stated, "we seem to take our freedoms for granted and listed the ABC's of rights, leading with A - the right to advance not to annihilate; B - the right to build, not to bury our talents, to create, not to coerce."
