The following poem was written by Harold W. Collins, son of Mr. and Mrs. Hudson Collins, formerly of Gorman. Hudson said he didn't know where Harold got the idea as he had never been hitchhiking.

Hitchhiking is a lot of fun That is, bumming rides with your thumb I enjoy traveling to different places And seeing many different faces. And now for you I'm going to tell. Of several people I knew very well My adventure started on U.S. 99 I had no money except for one thin dime.

"Leslie Wilson is handsome," Mabel said musingly, drawing out tie syllables of the word "handsome" like chewing gum.

"Leslie Wilson is a goof," Harry indignantly set her right, but the pony-tail whipped around in an outraged "no".

The dwellers in the mountains did not own slaves and they were pro-Union. After the Civil War, the East Tennesseans voted strosgly Republican. It used to be said in Memphis that the votes were held back in East Tennessee until the returns from the rest of the State were in and it was seen how many votes were needed! Presently he forgot his sister. He was alone.

"He's keen," she said, "whom did he ask for the school dance tomorrow?"

Why are kid sisters as tactless as that? Her question felt like an arrow, it stabbed right through his heart.

"He's asked Dorothy Smith," he informed her tersely.

"Dorothy Smith is dopey," Mabel stated.

"Dorothy Smith is cute," said Harry.

"She's not-she's dopey." Mabel nodded her head with conviction. The pony-tail danced a polka.

"You're sweet on Dorothy, aren't you?" she asked after a 10-15fnc | while. Harry Biddlebough remained silent. The excited "tick-tock" faintly audible in the room was not a clock, it was his heart.

> "You know, you and Dorothy make a fine couple," Mabel observed, "you're both dopey. Leslie Wilson is much too keen for her." She stared into space, strenously, as if counting satellites.

> "Where's Leslie now ?" she asked. "At the pit by the playground," Harry said, "fixing up his hot rod. To take Dorothy to the dance tomorrow."

"See you later," Mabel announced curtly, taking her elbows off the window sill. Ten minutes later Harry Biddlebough saw her coming out of the house and walking toward the town. She was not really his sister Mabel now but had gone into one of her disguises she liked lately-her version of a female vampire. She did this by winding her hair on top of her head like the leaning tower of Pisa and wearing dangling ear rings. Harry Biddlebough thought she looked awfully funny that way. Presently he forgot all about his sister. He was alone. The agony of unrequited love turned and turned in his heart like a spit

IT'S EASY TO CHECK YOUR OWN SOCIAL SECURITY RECORDS

While the Social Security Administration has the responsibility for maintaining approximately 126 million earnings records, Mr. Weatherely, Field Rep. of the Abilene district office, pointed out today that it is the responsibility of each indidivual social security card holder to check his record periodically to mkae sure it is correct.

Mr. Weatherly also stated that everyone should check his social security record at least once every three or four years. In most instances the Social Security records become final and not open to adjustment after three years, three months and fifteen days from the end of the taxable year for which the earnings were reported. There is another point to be considered too - the sooner an error is found, the easier it can be corrected. This applies to everyone whether he is working in his own business or for someone else as an employee.

Mr. Weatherly says that the manner of checking a particular record is simple. Just ask your social security office for postcard form 7004, fill in the blanks and drop it in a mail box. The form is a self-addressed postcard. In about two weeks you will receive a statement showing the total earnings credited to your social security account. It will also show a yearly breakdown of your credited earnings for each of the past three full calendar years.
