

C. W. (TEX) COOK

Texan Directs World's Biggest Coffee Business

The man at the helm of the biggest coffee business in the world hails from the biggest state—Texas. And you'd know that, because of the big way he does things, that "Tex" is what he's called.

The Texan is C. W. "Tex" Cook, who recently has been named general manager of the Maxwell House Division of General Foods, and elected a vice president of General Foods.

Cook came to General Foods in 1942 as chief engineer. He held production and manufacturing positions in several divisions of the concern before being named product manager for Instant Maxwell House coffee in 1951. Nine months later he was promoted to sales and advertising manager for the Maxwell House division, then became assistant general manager in 1953.

Cook confesses he was born in Hugo Okla. in 1909, but quickly points out that he moved to Texas with his family when he was only a few months old. He spent his early years in Longview, was an honor graduate of high school there. Then he attended the University of Texas, receiving a B. S. degree in 1930, and attended the Graduate School of Business Administration at Columbia.

At General Foods, "Tex" has moved up in a big way. Maxwell House's Hoboken unit, one of four factories in this GF division, is the largest coffee roasting plant in the world. It can process the makings of a cup of coffee for every man, woman and child in Texas in less than four hours.

"Tex" did so well with the Maxwell House Division that when GF was ready to market the instant product, the big Texan was tapped for the top job. And he has been one of the leaders in the development of this nationally-accepted product.

To meet the big demand for the new product, Maxwell House has had three new processing units in the past two years. It is a matter of pride to "Tex" Cook that one of these units is in Texas.

Cook still likes to go back to Texas, particularly to Houston to see the Maxwell House plant there, and to see his mother in Longview.

Lawyers Begin Drive Against 'Trial By Press'

FT. STOCKTON, Nov. 5 (AP)—The State Bar began today a campaign to urge its members not to try a case by publicity in newspapers and other news media.

Maurice Bullock, president of the Bar, started it with an address at a legal institute here sponsored by the Pecos County Bar and State Bar.

Lawyers, Bullock said, "are prohibited by their code of ethics from trying a case by publicity or through the various media of public information."

"The State Bar is embarking on a program of reminding all its members of their ethical responsibilities in this connection. It is felt that if this is done little more will be required to secure full cooperation from members of the bar. Should violations persist, however, such violations will be referred to appropriate authorities for disciplinary action."

Bullock, a lawyer here, said: "Freedom of the press should not override the constitutional guarantee of fair trial."

Bullock suggested a "mutual code of ethics" by the Bar and press because of what he called their common interest in serving the public and preserving the guarantee of a fair trial.

County Veterans Land Committee May Be Named

A Howard County Veterans Land Committee probably will be appointed Monday by the Commissioners court.

Commissioners said Saturday that is the principal item on the agenda for the Monday session. Appointment of the committee was requested Thursday by Charles Rainey, representative of the Texas Veterans Land Board.

Rainey said the committee would assist in screening applications for veterans loans for the purchase of farmland. The county panels, being named throughout the state, are planned as a means of preventing scandals such as disrupted the program in South Texas last year.

The county committee will pass on value of land a veteran proposes to buy, as well as on the applicant's credit and character ratings. Recommendations of the panel will be kept confidential, with decisions on all loan applications to be made by the State Veterans Land Board.

Welfare Meet Slated

The local chapter of the Texas Social Welfare Association will hold its regular meeting at noon Monday in the Wagon Wheel Restaurant. The chapter's plans for Christmas will be among the business discussed. All interested persons are invited to attend.

Sunday Business At The Bank

This is the scene police found when they arrived at a Los Angeles bank on a recent Sunday after a call from outside that something peculiar was going on at the new accounts desk in the closed bank. The cops arrested Demundo D. Acosta (left), Refugio Sevenses (center), and Manuel Holguin on suspicion of being drunk, and confiscated a half-empty wine bottle. Acosta told the officers he is a janitor at the bank and had invited his friends in for a drink or two. Bank officials said nothing was missing.

Solon Seeks To Bore Holes In Bureaucrat News Policies

By E. L. LIVINGSTONE

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5 (AP)—Rep. John D. Moss says he has a strong suspicion there's a log going on around this town that the taxpayers ought to know about but don't.

So Monday the 42-year-old California Democrat embarks on an ambitious attempt to punch holes into whatever "paper curtain" exists between the citizens and their servants—government officials.

He heads a Government operations subcommittee of the House, which will open an inquiry into the government's public relations policies.

"As of now," Moss said, "one gets the impression that the public is being treated as if it could not be trusted with information to which it is rightfully entitled."

The task of instilling new informational ideas in Washington's federal bureaucracy is one to make a capital veteran quail. It's even more formidable for a comparative newcomer, such as Moss.

As a member of the California house, Moss was a leader in a successful fight against what he and others called a lobbyist dominated clique—a group which had ruled the state legislature for years.

Among those unendorsed by Moss and his "Young Turks" were Speaker Sam L. Collins and Arthur H. (Artie) Samish; kingpin California lobbyist who for years called many a tune in the legislature.

As a member of the House Civil Service Committee, Moss said he "encountered a lot of willful evasion by the Civil Service Commission and the attorney general" in trying to get information on the program.

Then, he said, he became interested in warnings being sounded in the press about the drying up of official information.

"I felt this drying up process had developed in an atmosphere of fear and criticism to which federal workers were subjected for decisions made in the past," he said.

Moss said it was a development which has appeared not only in the Eisenhower administration, but which has evolved over the years—though it seems to have become worse under this administration.

"It's fundamentally important to the citizens of the country that they have full information on their government, and that the Congress go ahead and study the problem objectively," he said.

Farmers Decry Trade Policies

By OVID A. MARTIN

FORT WORTH, Nov. 5—Americans "good neighbor" policy in dealing with friendly countries was blamed at a Senate Agriculture Committee hearing today for loss of overseas markets and pileup of farm surpluses.

Farmer after farmer testifying at the committee's 10th so-called "Grass-roots" hearing in two weeks—found fault with the government's foreign trade and foreign air policies, claiming they are building up farm competitors abroad and helping them get American producers' export markets.

The committee is touring major farming areas seeking ideas on how to reverse a long downturn in agricultural income.

Demands for aggressive government action to rebuild foreign markets, which were applauded, were not the only proposals advanced by Texas farmers and ranchers.

Enactment of a controversial farm plan advanced in 1949 by former Secretary of Agriculture Charles Brannan was advocated by some.

James Bender of Fredericksburg, master of the Texas State Grange, told the committee "Our problem of surpluses is in part due to our 'good neighbor' policy, which—although inherently right and properly considered as a moral responsibility to our less fortunate neighbors—nevertheless is creating competitors abroad."

Others who criticized U. S. trade policies included Wilmer Smith, a leading cotton producer of near Wilson, who would have Congress direct Secretary of Agriculture Benson to go out and sell cotton surpluses at cut-rate prices.

The government now is offering only a small amount of lower grades of its surplus for export at reduced prices.

Sen. Eastland (D-Miss) suggested that cut-rate prices will be needed in domestic markets if cotton is to prevent further loss of markets to lower-priced rayon.

Bender said that in rendering technical, material and financial aid to foreign countries, "we should be realistic enough to recognize that it is affecting our foreign markets."

"We cannot continue to build up surpluses which tend to drive people off the farm—especially the family-type farmer," he said.

The Brannan plan was urged by Alex Dickie Jr., of Denton, president of the Texas Farmers Union. This would guarantee farmers 100 per cent of parity—the price goal of present farm programs—on all commodities, but would allow market prices to drop below this level.

The deficit would be made up to farmers through payments from the government.

Dickie challenged the committee to go to the farmers with a referendum on a farm plan, rather than to farm organizations. He expressed confidence his proposal would win.

President Walter Hammond of the Texas Farm Bureau outlined a crop control plan which would limit total plantings to an acreage which the government would determine to be sufficient to produce market needs. All farmers would be required to take the same percentage reduction in plantings, but all would be free to produce crops of their own choosing.

Cadillac

Beyond the Realm of Argument!

This is the season when conversations turn easily and often to motor cars. And, in almost any gathering, you're likely to find a wide difference of opinion about the relative merits of the year's automotive offerings.

Until the talk turns to Cadillac!

Here is one car concerning which most motorists have a meeting of minds. And never before has Cadillac left so little room for argument as in 1956!

Certainly no one could behold the new Cadillac without recognizing it as the "car of cars". Its beautiful, graceful lines and its regal bearing on the highway are simply too significant to misunderstand.

Surely no one could ride in a new Cadillac and not agree that it is the Standard of the World. Its new fabrics and leathers are luxurious almost beyond belief . . . and its new interior appointments have been crafted with a jeweler's skill.

And we doubt if anyone could drive a new Cadillac and not understand that it is the finest-performing motor car of all time. Its great new engine is a revelation in power and performance . . . its new Hydra-Matic Drive is incredibly smooth and responsive . . . and the car rides and handles and moves with unbelievable ease.

Truly, the evidence on the side of Cadillac has never been more abundant—or more apparent—than it is today.

Why not pay us a visit soon—and see for yourself?

We'll be delighted to introduce you to Cadillac's great new styling . . . and to arrange a demonstration at the wheel . . . and to acquaint you with Cadillac's two new models, the Sedan de Ville and the Eldorado Seville.

You'll agree, we're certain, that Cadillac for 1956 is beyond the realm of argument!

Lamesa 'Chest' Raises $11,685

LAMESA — The Lamesa Community Chest is off to its best start in several years.

Returns Saturday morning from the first report session showed $11,685 raised out of a $21,415 quota. While this is about the same amount as was reported last year at the first report meeting, Mrs. Travis Dennis, secretary of the Chest, pointed out that this year's figure actually represented only one and a half days of work. A year ago one week had elapsed from the kickoff to the first report session.

Although campaign workers got their materials last Monday and Tuesday, the drive did not actually start until after the Wednesday noon kickoff luncheon which was addressed by the Rev. Milo B. Arbuckle and Rep. George Mahon.

Yarborough Campaign Group Organized

DALLAS, Nov. 5 (AP)—Formation of the first Ralph Yarborough for Governor Club in North Texas for the 1956 campaign was announced today by Elton Miller, publisher of a weekly suburban newspaper here.

Texas Demo Factions Declare All-Out War

WACO, Nov. 5 (AP)—It's warfare to the last shot, no compromise, no surrender from now until May between the two factions of the Democratic party in Texas.

Already entrenched for battle are the conservative or "middle of the road" forces of Gov. Shivers and the State Executive Committee.

Lined up against them are the liberal or "loyalist" forces led by Byron Skelton of Temple, Speaker Sam Rayburn and the Democratic Advisory Council.

Rayburn, who tried to keep Texas Democrats in line for Adlai Stevenson in 1952 when Shivers supported President Eisenhower, engaged in no tough talk at a series of meetings of the council here. He left that to Skelton who among other things challenged Shivers to make the struggle for party control a fair, clean fight. Skelton asserted that tactics used by Shivers in the 1954 state convention were the sort of thing that Sen. Taft's forces used in a Texas convention in 1952.

It was "morally wrong" and it "cost Taft the Republican nomination for president," the new DAC chief said.

Republicans, but with Allan Shivers," Skelton said.

He said all his group asked for was "an honest" series of conventions held according to law.

The loyalists held a closed door session to talk about money and otherwise organize for a precinct-by-precinct effort to wind up with control of the May 22 state convention at Dallas. The real contests come in precinct meetings earlier in the month.

At its recent meeting in Fort Worth, the Shivers group also made plans for carrying the fight down to the individual voter.

Texas Democrats — in fact, all Texas voters — can expect a lot of doorbell ringing beginning early next year as both sides will make personal appeals for big turnouts at the grass roots precinct meetings. Bales of literature will go out. Poll tax payment campaigns will be stepped up.

The loyalists, threatened with some internal dissent, carried away their meeting here no bitterness. They generally followed the leadership of Rayburn and steered clear of personal rivalries for state office.

Music 'Natural' For Choraleers

Music comes naturally for the Webb Choraleers, and especially for their director, Lt. Charles H. Webb, Jr.

Those who hear them at the First Methodist Church at 7:30 p.m. today likely will discern that they sing for the enjoyment of singing. Their program today will be "Sunday Evening Musicals" and will be made up of religious works as well as classical and semi-classical selections.

Members of the Choraleers are all student officers (except for one instructor) who are going through their five-months training to be jet pilots. They get together twice a week for practice sessions. In addition to the 20-voice group which has been booked for a number of appearances, the men also form the nucleus of the Base Chapel Choir.

Lt. Webb is a native of Dallas and holds his Bachelor of Arts and Master of Arts degrees from Southern Methodist University. Although he majored in English for his BA, he carried a concentration in music, and then did his master's work in piano.

For three years while in school he served his church (Oaklawn Methodist) as minister of music and directed its choirs. During the past three summers Lt. Webb worked with Fred Waring, serving as accompanist for the Waring choral clinics and also teaching the class in accompaniment.

While in SMU, he served as piano soloist for the Dallas Symphony, one of the leading symphonies of the nation.

Ultimately he intends to pursue a career in music, although he is not certain exactly in which field. At the moment, however, he is devoting his energies to being personnel services officer at Webb AFB where his duties embrace arrangements for athletics, education, theatre, library and anything to do with off-duty recreation. It's only natural that music, in the form of the Choraleers, should work its way into the various activities.

This group is to be flown to Dallas Nov. 12 to be guests at the SMU-Arkansas football game and will sing the following (Sunday) morning in the First Methodist Church and that evening at Oaklawn Methodist Church. This will give him an opportunity, also, to visit with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Webb, 4005 Windsor Parkway, Dallas.

On Nov. 22 the Choraleers will be guests, along with 55 other men from the base, at a program given by the Rotary Club. They will furnish the music for that program.

Shivers Protests Troop Movement

AUSTIN, Nov. 5 (AP)—Gov. Shivers added his protest today against the proposed move of the 1st Armored Division and 3rd Corps headquarters from Fort Hood to Camp Polk, La.

"I sincerely hope that the decision is not final and that additional study of the potential waste involved in such a move can be made," Shivers wrote to Secretary of Defense Charles Wilson.

The governor was the second high official in two days to speak out against transfer of troops from the big Central Texas installation.

Sen. Price Daniel said he would appeal directly to the White House if necessary to stop the movement.

Reviewing the tremendous amount of money spent by the government for Fort Hood facilities and the cooperating investments of the state and the nearby communities, Shivers told Wilson:

"In view of these factors alone, the national interest in economical use of existing facilities would seem to indicate that Fort Hood should continue to be occupied fully.

"In a period in which economy in government is of such great consequence, it is difficult to find the logic in the abandonment of facilities which have cost the federal government some $135,000,000."

He said he had noted a report that bids are being called for over 220 housing units at Fort Hood costing 2 million dollars. Shivers said he also understood that more than 8 million dollars in military construction is now under way there, much of it in barracks and housing units.

"The state has expended large sums in the construction of roads, bridges and other similar facilities for the benefit of Fort Hood, he reminded Wilson.

"The surrounding communities have expended schools, constructed large numbers of housing units, enlarged water and sewage systems, improved city streets and lighting, and voted large amounts in municipal bonds to finance many of these projects.

"The waste entailed in the proposed move would, as pointed out above, affect not just the expensive and important installations financed by the citizens of Texas and the local communities—installations which will have to be needlessly duplicated elsewhere if this move is carried out."

He suggested that if the removal of units now stationed at Fort Hood must be carried through in spite of these factors, "The national interest certainly seems to indicate that other units should be assigned to this facility, perhaps on a system of rotation."

"I should very much appreciate, Mr. Secretary, knowing what steps will be taken to assure the economical use of Fort Hood and the facilities which have been constructed to accommodate it in its full operation," said Shivers.

The harvest is passing the way mark. Cottonfields have changed from white to brown and pickers are heading south for the land of manana. The ones going home make up a small per cent of the bracers still here, but the exodus is becoming a steady stream now.

The best of the cotton will be pulled within the next two weeks in most communities, and all that is left will be the last pulling, or scrapping as some farmers call it. Some of this may be machined, depending upon the number of boll pullers who are willing to work in the scattering cotton.

There are plenty of boll pullers in nearly every section of the South Plains now except in the long staple irrigated cotton. The latest labor report from Lubbock states that Howard County needs 250 workers, Dawson 285 and Martin County 200. Farmers and ginners say the need is not critical anywhere, and the few farmers who need pickers can get those of their neighbors in a few more days' time.

It looks like Howard County may get that 30,000 bales after all. On more than 75,000 acres of cotton, the average will have to be a little more than a third of a bale. Some areas won't make this, but the cotton around Fairview, Knott and Ackerly will average more than a third.

At Vealmoor, Porter Hanks said the average would be around a third, but it is better toward Ackerly. Also at Fairview cotton is turning out better than expected. Jeff Grant has some cotton in a low field that will make a bale to the acre, and Johnnie Jones has some expected to pull three-quarters.

This is much better than average, of course, but several fields will make a half bale to the acre.

Bob Merrick who farms about five miles southeast of Ackerly says he has the best crop since 1949. He figures to pull 100 bales of cotton on a 128-acre field. His cotton might have made a bale but for the August drought. However, he got nearly eight inches of rain in September, and this brought it up again.

Merrick has been putting most of his feed crop in silage. He has a trench silo over 100 feet long and will soon have it filled. His son Jimmy said they probably wouldn't buy any more cattle than the 15 head they now had. The silage will keep for several years if necessary, and can be used next year in case of a short feed crop.

The big stack of threshed maize on the V. J. Coleman place just outside Ackerly is not as big as it was but there are still several truck loads to be hauled. Coleman says 95 per cent of the maize has been combined in that area.

Much of it was spotted, but he thinks the average was around 1,000 pounds an acre. Most of the grain is being hauled to California, though the trucks also go to several other states.

These interstate trucks are quite different from the ones we see on the rural roads. Some of them put on 33,000 pounds of grain at a load, and often carry the maximum weight load of 58,000, which is all the Railroad Commission will allow.

One trucker was a little peeved at Texas. He said New Mexico and Arizona have load limits of 72,000 pounds and the roads are inferior to those of Texas. California also allows heavier loads and a longer truck length.

The leading rural gin in number of bales ginned in this area may be the Sparenberg Gin, which had a total of 2,800 bales yesterday at noon. Not far behind was the Farmer's Co-Op at Knott with 2,562. The least amount of any checked yesterday was one that had ginned 915 bales. Cotton in this area was a little slower to open, however, and not half the crop is in yet.

A lot of farmers are disappointed with 7078 maize and don't plan to plant it again. Some of it grained out a little heavier, but fell down before they could get combines in the fields.

In fact, some farmers don't plan to plant much maize of any kind next year. Pat Gaskins of Knott said several farmers in that community planned to stretch their cotton out with blank rows and plant very little maize at all.

"The average around here is probably not over 800 pounds to the acre," he said, "and you can hardly pay expenses with that kind of crop."

Irrigation wells are still going down in Dawson County, or were up until farmers got busy gathering crops. Frank Hoag of Sparenberg got a well late last spring but managed to grow a bale to the acre on 78 acres. Next year he plans to get an early start and almost double this.

The best well in that area is the one of Walter Lentz. It is still pumping around 700 gallons a minute after several years. Others have drilled near him, but no one got this much water.

All the little rural villages are busy now. Cotton pickers and farmers through the grocery stores, but not like they once did. For one thing, many of them make small purchases, but a lot of the groceries and other merchandise is bought in town.

Another reason the prosperity is not up to that of a few years

Club, located in the rear of Sunbeam Morrison's Drug Store, is a very busy place when members can sneak away from their wives. From appearances, about the only thing they improve is their domino game.

Sunbeam has a lot of signs tacked on the wall explaining rules of the club. On an ancient piano he has this one: "This is a piano, if you can't play it, don't play." Another on a safe reads: "Robbing this safe will be considered a very naughty act."

The members have a signal code to use during domino games. If a member gets a call from his wife, he merely holds up a certain number of fingers, which may mean he hasn't been there, or has gone to Big Spring or Lamesa, or even to Mexico after bracers. If a member ever does tell the truth, he will face the danger of being expelled from the club.

Father's Desire To Hear Grid Game Ends In Childrens' Death

BECKLEY, W. Va., Nov. 5 (UP)—Richard F. Watts Jr., couldn't bear to miss the windup of the football game so he went to the basement last night to listen on the radio in his station wagon.

His four children were found dead this morning. The 37-year-old insurance man and his wife are in a hospital.

Investigators said Watts for some reason turned on the engine of the station wagon, perhaps because the battery was weak or perhaps to keep warm.

All the windows of the station wagon were up. The garage was closed. Watts lapsed into unconsciousness.

The deadly carbon monoxide gas went up an open stairway six or eight feet from the station wagon and into bedrooms above the garage where Mrs. Watts and the children were asleep. All the windows in the one-story house were closed.

The four youngsters are Roberta, 6, William Jr., 3, Mary Beth 2, and Michael, 1.

Mrs. Watts, who is 28, was reported in good condition at the hospital this afternoon. Watts' condition was described as fair.

Coroner B. B. Richmond said

Mrs. Watts apparently woke up about 9 a.m. when she fell out of bed, probably in convulsions.

She found one of the youngsters was dead in her bed. One was on the dining room floor. The other two were in another bedroom.

Watts had been trying to listen to the West Virginia-George Washington football game in Washington on an upstairs radio but reception was so bad he decided to try the receiver in the station wagon.

West Virginia, seventh ranked college team in the nation, was behind most of the time and barely beat George Washington 13-7.

All Firms To Share In County Business

The Howard County road department's purchase of supplies will be distributed among all local business places handling the materials, not just among the firms enumerated Thursday when the policy was stressed, R. H. Weaver, county judge, said Saturday.

The judge said four parts dealers listed were named merely as an example of the rotation-of-purchases policy. Other dealers also will share in the business, which is to be rotated on a monthly basis.

The policy was emphasized for after some Big Spring businessmen complained that county purchases were being made in other cities although the supplies were available locally at comparative prices.

DO IT YOURSELF Your Workshop Can Produce A Fine Gift

By BILL BAKER
Have you started your Christmas-gift thinking yet? Let's face it, the big holiday isn't too far away and if your thoughts haven't gone in that direction yet, they should start soon.

How would you like to take on an extra-special workshop project and produce one of the smartest and most useful items of furniture you can imagine? My indoor portable bar, I think you'll agree, will make an excellent Christmas addition for your home.

If you like to entertain and if you like smart-looking furniture, this bar is for you.

With the help of my pattern package No. 124, you'll be able to build the bar with few problems. Full-size paper pattern pieces, duplicating each section of the bar, plus a full material list, easy-to-understand directions and detailed section drawing are just a few of the benefits you receive with the pattern.

You'll find it hard to believe that a do-it-yourself project as large as this portable bar can be easy to build, but it is.

The finished bar, when not in use in your home, will fold into a compact unit that is two feet

Your portable bar pattern package will be on the way to you when you send only one dollar and fifty cents ($1.50) in check, cash or money order, along with your name and address (clearly printed), to Bill Baker, Big Spring Herald, P. O. Box 1111, Los Angeles 33, Calif. Be sure to ask for pattern No. 124.

deep, three feet high and almost four feet long. Against the wall in your dining room or in the hall it will add a graceful note of elegance.

But when party time rolls around your portable bar will move in to join the fun. Easily-attached coasters make the job of moving it easy.

Now take a look at the bar's "inside" features:

On the front of the bar you'll find two doors which cover a storage space large enough for 14 quart-size bottles.

Two larger doors cover the back of the bar and here you'll find more storage area than you can use. Your special equipment, for example, will be stored in built-in racks on the doors.

An upper shelf in the back of the bar, easily reached by folding back half of the bar's top surface, holds your ice bucket and all of

Life Ends At 71 For Mad French Painter, Utrillo

DAX, France, Nov. 5 (AP)—French painter Maurice Utrillo, a mad genius whose life was tortured by drink and despair, died today of bronchial pneumonia at 71.

He died in a Dax hotel to which he had come about a week ago from his suburban home in Paris. His wife Lucie, whom he married in 1935, was at his bedside.

Despite fading health and the fact that for three decades he has lived in a world of twilight reality, Utrillo painted until the end and only recently played himself in a short Sacha Guitry motion picture bit. His best work ranks with the greatest and his paintings hang in the world's great museums.

His beginning marked him either for a quick end or the acclaim of genius. He discovered alcohol at 19 and was a drunkard by the time he took up painting—on advice of a doctor—at 18. Utrillo's mother was Suzanne Valadon, a model for many famous painters, including Cezanne and Renoir, and a talented painter who gave her son much of what little instruction he received. Utrillo's father was unknown, thought to be an untalented painter named Boissy. His mother, however, is said to have told that either Degas or Renoir could have been the father.

REPRESENTATIVE BODY—of the student body is the Student Council, whose officers use a coffee break to make plans for future activities. Work on an Ex-Student Organization is one project under way now in the schedule. Betty Earley, treasurer, Jan Burns, secretary, James Underwood, president, and Jimmy King, vice-president, left to right, are heads of the association, which acts as intermediary between the faculty and the student body.

BEAUTIFICATION OF THE CAMPUS—is one of the projects sponsored by the Aggie Club at Howard County Junior College, and two of the officers seem to have the right idea. They are Richard Parker, at left, vice-president, and Silas Flournoy, secretary-treasurer. Seems that rather than do any digging, the president, Durwood Blagrove, and the reporter, Lewis Newell, hid out at picture-taking time. The club is open to any student taking one or more courses in agriculture. Annual activities of the group are a Field Day, which corresponds to a fair, an air education flight and a flower show.

BIG SPRING HERALD

Sec. II Big Spring, Tex., Sun., Nov. 6, 1955 Society

A POPULAR SPOT—is the bulletin board at Howard County Junior College. Besides all the notices "that he who runs may read," scanning the board gives an opportunity for making or breaking dates and for getting acquainted. Officers of the Freshman Class at the college have found it a handy place to gather for just that last minute bit of planning before a class meeting: Left to right, they are Bob Jones, vice-president, Lefty Reynolds, treasurer, Anna Belle Lane, secretary, and Pat Porter, president.

american designer pattern

by David Goodstein

TYPICALLY AMERICAN

Casual Air Combines Well With High Fashion Note

David Goodstein's three-piece costume is one of the season's great successes, combining as it does, the typical American air of casualness with all the current high fashion news.

The jacket with its gently bloused back has a waistband that starts at the waist then is shaped to set lower towards the hips. The skirt, with double darts at the top of each gore, has a high-cut front pleat.

Make the tuck-in blouse in a fabric that contrasts in texture with that of the jacket and skirt, repeating the outer fabric as trim, or keeping it monotone. It has a back neck closing as well as a side zipper which insure excellent fit. Choose tweed, worsteds, novelty wools for the jacket and skirt, jersey for the blouse.

This pattern is cut to DESIGNER MEASUREMENTS, not Standard Pattern Measurements.

Sizes 10 bust 34, waist 24, hips 35 inches; size 12 bust 35, waist 25, hips 36 inches; size 14 bust 36½, waist 26½, hips 37½ inches; size 16 bust 38, waist 28, hips 39 inches; size 18 bust 40, waist 30, hips 41 inches.

Size 12 requires 1½ yards of 54-inch wool jersey for blouse. Skirt requires 1½ yards of 54-inch material. Jacket requires 1½ yards of 54-inch material.

Local Artists Display Art In Sidewalk Show

Art work by local artists was displayed all day Saturday at the Sidewalk Art Show held in the circular area around the monument on the east side of the courthouse lawn. The area was filled with all types of paintings.

The show was sponsored by Las Artistas, a local art club whose members paint for the enjoyment they receive from it. The display is their way of observing National Art Week.

Purpose of the two-year-old club, which has a membership of 27 and two associate members, is to plan interesting art programs and encourage local talent. Their new project is to start a fund for an art museum for Big Spring.

Those viewing the art Saturday were asked to vote for the particular painting they liked the best. This is so everyone can take a part in expressing an opinion of the local work, and the artist will receive the honor.

By Margaret Pierce

Anyone passing by the auditorium at the college last Monday night would have heard beautiful melodies from within. The Jayhawkers chorus was rehearsing for their performances Thursday night at Ackery at the Parent-Teacher Association meeting, and for the general assembly and Student Council Convention held in the auditorium Friday morning. More engagements are in sight for the chorus but have not as yet been announced. It will continue to meet every Monday night from 6:30 to 8:30 for rehearsals.

The Lass-O club met Wednesday in the small auditorium during activity period. A tea for the members' mothers was discussed. Committees were appointed to take charge of the decorations, invitations, and refreshments. A reminder to all girls wishing to belong to this club: if you have not paid your dues, which are 25 cents per month, please contact Sharon Lewis, the treasurer as soon as possible.

All girls interested in organizing a Women's Athletic club asked to meet in Room 104 Monday morning during activity period. Mrs. Bill Walker will sponsor this club.

If you would like to join the Future Teachers of America Chapter and have not paid your dues of $3.00 for the year, please see Joyce Francis, Betty Early, or Margaret Pierce. This club will meet Monday night at 7:30. A film will be featured for the program.

The Faculty Assembly Committee will meet Monday morning at activity period. All members of the student assembly committee are invited to meet with them.

The regular meeting of the student council will be Monday morning during the activity period.

The report of the West Texas Regional Student Council Conference held at the college Thursday and Friday was one of success. It began Thursday afternoon with registration and an open-house held in the SUB Thursday night. Coffee and cookies were served. Games were played and it was a "get acquainted" party for the guests and host.

Guests attending were Amarillo College delegates and sponsor, William A. Patman, sponsor, Darla Hawkins, Duane Stoddard, and Janette Ramsey; from Frank Phillips College, John Gentili, sponsor, Mary Brunnett, Robert W. Dixon, Jerry D. Martindale, Loyd B. Rogers, Jessie Coffee, Leeland Dorsett, Harold Moon, and Ray Smith. Another activity was refreshment time in the SUB on Friday afternoon. This was sponsored by the Future Teachers of America and drinks and cheese spread crackers were served, with potato chips and corn chips.

Introducing a freshman of the week, we present Lloyd Hampton. Lloyd is eighteen years of age and has lived in Big Spring for the past six years, where he moved from Amarillo. He has attended the junior high and high school here. Counting merit and friendliness of students and teachers as the greatest honors he has received, Lloyd plans to major in Business Administration and to make his minor one of Personnel Management.

He plans to enroll at Howard Payne College after two years at H.C.J.C. He is a member of Trinity Baptist Church where he is now serving as president of the West Texas Youth Fellowship for Fundamentals. His present employment is at Green's Grocery. Welcome to the Jayhawk Campus, Lloyd Hampton.

Woman's Forum Hears Discussion Of Art

"Art has no enemy but ignorance" Mrs. Ira Raley told members of the Woman's Forum Friday afternoon at their meeting in the home of Mrs. Arnold Marshall. Mrs. L. B. Maulden and Mrs. Elvys McCrary were co-hostesses. The group was told that Art Week should be observed because it touches the life of everyone in some way, since art is a measure of civilization. Members were advised to keep good pictures in front of their children always. Mrs. Raley gave her background as an artist and showed her "Heart's Desire" picture. Examples of the speaker's art were displayed in the various entertaining rooms. The tea table was laid with a lace cloth and was centered with an arrangement of fall fruit and nuts. Refreshments were served to 15 members and four guests. Mrs. Roxie Dobbins, Mrs. Jarrell Jones, Mrs. Charles Neefe and Mrs. Odell Womack.

Beauty From Within

Ilona Massey, star of opera, movies, television, radio and night clubs, talks to Lydia Lane about her beauty routine. "Real beauty comes from your expression, how you move, your voice and your desire for it," the Hungarian beauty says.

HOLLYWOOD BEAUTY

Ilona Massey Offers Hints On Weight, Skin

By LYDIA LANE
HOLLYWOOD — Ilona Massey's varied career has included opera, movies, radio and television and now she has turned author with her autobiography "I Live to Love."
"This is different from living for love," Miss Massey hastened to explain as we lunched at the San Fernando Valley's beautiful Moongate restaurant. "I've tried to live to love nature, music, people — everything but myself."
"My aunt has been visiting me from Hungary," she said with a smile, "and since it is considered well-lubricated and use a mask that the women make for themselves in by preparations are popular in Europe and I've kept many of them as part of my beauty routine," she told me.

"But real beauty is more than just a chic gown and regular features. It comes from your expression, how you move, your voice — and more than anything beauty stems from your desire for it. I know," she confided, "because when I was a very young girl I was called 'Escynya Ius' which is Hungarian for 'the ugly Ilona.'"
"It was my expression," she replied. "That wasn't lovely. We were very poor and I had to wear clothes which had belonged to my older sisters and they were ill-fitting and shabby. The children in my class made fun of me. Once you are made to feel that you are undesirable and you accept the idea of being unwanted your face takes on a sullen, ugly expression."

"Then one day I became interested in a handsome neighbor boy and wanted desperately to attract his attention. I remember going to my room and sitting before the mirror. I studied myself objectively and without mercy. I saw a simple face, blank eyes, a small mouth and awkward hands. I began to talk to this image and discovered she spoke too high and too fast.

"I started my beauty campaign right then and there. I read aloud to myself until my voice was softer and lower. I practiced gestures until my hands began to look graceful. It's remarkable what you can accomplish with patience and the will to improve yourself. All you need is a strong desire.

ILONA MASSEY'S MAGIC

rude to refuse food in Hungary, I ate much more during her visit than I normally would and I gained a few extra pounds. I learned that it's much easier to take them off right away so I'm cutting down. "Eating habits are strange," Ilona said. "When I first came to Hollywood, an executive at MGM invited me to lunch. I'll never forget that luncheon. I ordered a shrimp cocktail, soup, veal, coffee and pastry. This was the way we ate in Europe. He didn't say a word about it during lunch but when I reported to the studio I found he'd left instructions that I be put on a diet of cottage cheese and fruit. They went a step further and sent me to a reducing sanitarium. I'll never forget that place." Ilona groaned. "I lost twelve pounds in less than two weeks. Day after day I lived on a diet of skim milk, black coffee, half a grapefruit and occasionally a piece of dry melba toast. At dinner they added steamed liver and grated carrots."
"Do you know the first thing I did on leaving that place? I went to a pastry shop and stuffed myself until I was almost ill. My craving for sweets was satisfied for a long time."
Even in the strong light of mid-day, Miss Massey's complexion looked lovely.
"I think a well-scrubbed skin is as pretty as a well-made-up one," she said. "I keep my skin clean,

Two Hunters And A Chef

Dr. Cal Guilliams is known to be a great hunter of ducks and other wild life, and his wife knows how to prepare the game when it is brought into their home. Posing here is Pepper, who is Dr. Guilliams' number one helper on hunting trips.

Don't Let Dead Ducks Scare You! Here Are Dressing, Cooking Rules

By JOYCE CONNAWAY
Now that duck season is in full shooting, housewives, do you know what to do with that fowl when the hunter of the family comes in with a prize bird for you to prepare and serve?
Dr. and Mrs. Cal Guilliams, 706 Lancaster, can tell you how to make a meal of duck one of the best you have ever tasted.
"The dressing of the bird is very important in preparing duck," Dr. Guilliams explained.
He stated that when he was a kid at his home on the Missouri River, he used to kill as many as 100 ducks in a day.
"Why, there would be so many, they would actually form a cloud above you. And as far as limit, if there was any, I was just a child and didn't know anything about it," the hunter said.
In dressing the fowl, pluck all the feathers you can by hand. Then put a buffer into an electric drill and rub over the skin to remove the smaller feathers that are practically impossible to remove by hand.
Ducks are just covered with pinfeathers. Melt paraffin and dip the bird in it until it is covered. Put the duck in the refrigerator until the wax is hard and then the pin feathers will be removed easily with the paraffin, and the bird will be smooth and ready to cook.

Now that the duck is ready for the chef, Mrs. Guilliams took over the conservation.
"Cal likes the wild taste of the duck, so I do not do anything to remove it, but for those who dislike the wild flavor, put an onion and pared apple inside the fowl and cook," she said.
After the duck is cleaned, rub the inside with salt and fill with bread stuffing. Rub surface of bird with melted butter, for it tends to be dry. Place on rack in roasting pan with breast side up and roast at 325 degrees 25 minutes per pound of the duck. The last 20 minutes, take the cover off the roaster and brown slightly.
Here is the recipe for the bread stuffing.
4 cups dry bread cubes
1 egg beaten
3 tablespoons chopped onion
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon pepper

Sage to taste
1/4 teaspoon poultry seasoning
1-3 cup melted butter
Combine bread, onion and seasonings. Add butter and sufficient liquid to moisten. Toss gently to mix. Stuff bird and bake as directed above.
To vary the dressing, oysters can be added and the sage omitted. Mrs. Guilliams also pointed out that many people liked wild rice dressing with duck, but that is entirely a different recipe.
Dr. Guilliams likes to hunt a lot, and is often joined by his daughter, Mrs. James Barrington, who lives in Wichita Falls.
Another member of the family that always goes on the hunting trips is Pepper, a bird dog, that will retrieve ducks in the water and weeds. The black and white speckled dog is an excellent pointer.
Dr. Guilliams stated that there would be more ducks this season than usual due to more rain and available food.

Miss Moore Is Wed To B. R. Battle

Model House On Display

The "Hot Point Model House," constructed by Ross Bartlett and other Big Spring concerns, goes on display at 1710 Harvard today. The home may be inspected from 9 a. m. to 9 p. m. today and from 2 to 9 p. m. Monday through Friday of this week.

Visitors at Ross Bartlett's open house for the Hot Point model home this afternoon will find a liveable as well as beautiful place.

Spacious (it has approximately 2,000 square feet of floor space), the house contains three bedrooms, a combination living-dining room, a large den and modern kitchen, two baths and a powder room, central heating and cooling along with many other modern conveniences.

It is at once attractive and comfortable but not ostentatious.

Aside from the many things which lighten the load of housework, features of the home that will catch the eye of housewives include the built-in kitchen fixtures and the almost boundless amount of closet room.

The home is located on Harvard which may be reached easily by turning off Birdwell to the east on Kentucky Way and taking the first street to the left (Harvard). Coming south on Birdwell, visitors may turn off to the east on Harvard and see the home as they round the curve in the street.

The structure is finished with light sand colored Monterey brick. The roof is cedar shingles with the ridges and every few rows doubled. On the west is a double car port with a large (10x4) outside storage. These open on a roomy back yard which is iramed by a large open porch which skirts the rear of the house. Porch supports are of wrought ornamental iron in an oak leaf design.

Hot-Point has supplied the appliances which make the kitchen (14x22) a dream for any housewife. The refrigerator, with frozen food storage, is built into the wall. So is the electric oven, and the electric burners are set into the Formica drain board and with overhead exhaust fan. The garbage disposer-all and the dishwasher likewise are set into the cabinets so that there is no occasion for an appliance to consume or clutter floor space. Cabinet space abounds, and in one corner a double shelf pantry operates as a lazy Susan.

comes to a cloak closet near the entrance, then a powder room with lavatory and commode. On the left is a bedroom with a spacious closet. Color combinations are a pleasant light sand finish.

The southeast corner room is the "boys' bedroom with its bath in green tile with matching fixtures; its 10-foot closet and shelves with sliding doors. In fact, all interior doors are of the sliding type.

At the end of the hall is the master bedroom with closets for husband and wife opposite the entrance. Then there is the larger general storage closet with something like 40 square feet of area.

The bath off the master bedroom is finished in pink tile with fixtures and the floor level tub are in blue. The linen closet in the bath is accessible either from the master bedroom or the boys room.

One of the most delightful of all rooms is the den (14x20) which is separated from the kitchen only by the Monterey brick island which contains the woodburning fireplace with raised hearth stretching in a 10-foot length. Den walls are finished in mahogany panel with simulated mahogany overhead beams.

The ceiling is of acoustical tile and lights are recessed. Picture windows open onto the porch and rear yard.

Central heating and cooling apparatus is enclosed in a service closet opening on the porch. It functions on the reverse flow process—that is the warm or cool air enters at the baseboard level and overhead ducts pick up the return.

Among contractors participating in the project were Gross Plumbing (the plumbing work), Saunders Company (plumbing fixtures), Clyde McMahon (concrete), Gilliland Electric (wiring and fixtures), and, of course, Bartlett.

Cooler Economic Climate Forecast

HOUSTON (U.S.—A cooler economic climate for the second half of 1955 was predicted yesterday by a Virginia banker attending the Mid-Continent Trust Conference of the American Bankers Assn.

Few periods of intense customer demand and easy credit spending last more than 18 to 24 months, said Charles Williams, vice president of the Federal Reserve Bank of Richmond.

Williams spoke to 600 trust executives from 19 Midwestern states.

Outside Colors Match Inside Decoration Of 'Model House'

Visitors to the "House Beautiful" this afternoon will find, upon stepping inside, that the colors blend into those of the outside.

Walls and woodwork of the spacious living room are just a bit lighter than the exterior shade, that was mixed to blend with the Monterey stone of which the house is built.

Constructed by Ross Bartlett, the house has been decorated and furnished by Good Housekeeping Furniture Shop. Music during the calling hours will be given by Mrs. Champ Rainwater, Mrs. Doug Orme, Mrs. Linus Tucker and Charles Harwell.

This is the intriguing name given to the color used for the living room, with a harmonizing carpet. Draw draperies are used of a silky fabric in a matching shade, and these are lined with pink taffeta, thus adding to the attractive appearance of the wide picture window from outside.

Center of interest in the den and kitchen combination is the fireplace formed of Monterey stone and making a divider between the two rooms. Philippine mahogany is used for the wall, with tile on the ceiling which helps to eliminate noise.

An attractive note in the den is the ceiling-high bookcase, with the comfortable window-seat at its base. In the kitchen, attention is focused on the refrigerator and the oven set into the wall with the cooking unit adjoining it.

Coral formica is used for cabinet tops, with a matching vinyl material with small brown figures on the floor. Draperies here pick up the coral and brown, with a bit of green added, to form a provincial print.

In the hall which leads to the living quarters are closets for storage, for wraps and for the heater. Opening into the hall and across from the guest room is the powder room, with a deep mauve paper, enlivened with gay prints of cologne bottles, boxes of costume jewelry and pin cushions.

Complementing this room is the guest room with its polished cotton draperies in provincial print. Walls and woodwork in this shade combine with the carpet of sandalwood here, also.

A bit of brown was added to the paint for the second bedroom, giving a sand tone, which is used with pleated draperies of deep brown polished cotton. Here a walk-in closet is large enough to delight the heart of any housewife!

A novel idea is the bath with this room, which has a pass-through cabinet to the bathroom accompanying the master bedroom. Green and dusty rose combine here to blend with the brown, while the other bathroom boasts a sunken tub of deep blue with pink tile.

Above the tub a large window is hung with drapery in a print of soft pink, blue and black. The dressing table here is of a pastel link tiles.

Ice pink carpet and draperies set the tone for the white French provincial furniture of the master bedroom. Here, another walk-in closet is accompanied by two smaller closets, which one can imagine will inevitably be labeled "His" and "Hers."

Clearly planned for comfortable family life as well as easy hospitality, the house has no wasted space. Even the end wall of the fireplace has a handy closet, and the wall of the carpet has an opening to hold garden tools, fishing or hunting equipment or anything else that brings on the question, "Just where can I put this?"

Austin Vets Seek Check On Insulation In GI-Built Houses

AUSTIN (AP)—A group of homeowners in northeast Austin will ask the Veterans Administration to re-check the insulation in their GI financed homes, the Austin American said today.

They were worried about the possibility that insulating material in the attics and elsewhere may not be rock wool but an easily ignited imitation made of newspaper.

One homeowner said he had called VA officials in the Waco regional office and was told to send a complaint "through channels."

He said he and other persons have been warned not to turn on their furnaces.

The VA must approve all homes before the purchase is approved. City Fire Marshal W. L. Heaton warned that some homes have been built with powdered newspaper, not the regulation rock wool, blown into the attics as insulation.

Heaton said this material could be ignited by the smallest spark.

Expert Works Hard On Warning System

By DON THOMAS

BATTLE CREEK, Mich., Nov. 5 (AP)—A mild-mannered electrical engineer is spending almost every waking hour fashioning an intricate alarm system he hopes never will be used.

But should the moment arrive when the system is needed, the future of the United States may depend on how well it operates.

The man is Harry E. Roderick,

42, director of the Attack Warning Division at Federal Civil Defense Administration headquarters here. The system is a nationwide network to warn America's civilian population of approaching enemy planes.

Like a parachute, the warning net must be one that will work the first time. Atomic warfare offers no margin of error.

Roderick believes it will work. But the gnawing realization that any slip could mean thousands of deaths has added a grey tinge to his brown hair, given him an ulcer, and keeps him near a telephone 24 hours a day.

By law, Federal Civil Defense has the specific responsibility of the "dissemination of warning to the civilian population" in the event of an enemy attack. The Air Force has its own warning system for the military. But so far as Mr. and Mrs. John Citizen are concerned, the alert, if it comes, will be sounded by F.C.D.A.

That means Roderick and the men who work under him. Logically, Roderick and his crew of hand-picked attack warning officers work in close cooperation and consultation with the Air Force.

Roderick's men are stationed at each of the 12 — soon to be 16 — air defense divisions and the three air defense force headquarters in the United States. His officers at divisional headquarters have at their fingertips telephone circuits that tie them directly to some 200 keypoints throughout the nation.

These keypoints are located in such places as state police and sheriff headquarters — offices that have communications personnel on duty around the clock.

From there the system fans out to 3,700 sub-keypoints at such locations as local police stations and state police posts. It is from these points that an alert would be spread to local residents.

Russian Trade Action Awaited

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States is looking to Russia for the next move after cutting some of the red tape which hobbles East-West trade.

The Commerce Department announced late yesterday it is dropping a number of peaceful items from a list requiring special licenses before shipment to Russia and the European satellite countries. After Jan. 1 they can go under general blanket licenses.

Obviously anticipating that move, Secretary of State Dulles told the Geneva foreign ministers meeting Monday he had "arranged for progressively simplifying certain of our operating procedures" on East-West trade and added:

"We shall await with sympathetic interest the suggestions which the representatives of the Soviet Union may make upon this subject."

U.S. trade with Communist countries is a drop in the bucket compared with the total 15 billions dollars worth of goods shipped abroad each year by this country. In the 12 months ended last December, for example, about six million dollars of exports went to the Soviet bloc although the rate is increasing.

Post Office Has Booklet To Aid In Yule Mailing

Some tips on Christmas mailing were offered Saturday by E. C. Boatler, Big Spring postmaster, who is urging Big Springers to get their Yule parcels and cards in the mail early this year.

Boatler also announced that a new illustrated pamphlet, entitled "Packaging and Wrapping Parcels for Mailing," is available free at the post office. The booklet lists hints that will help solve Christmas mailing problems, he said.

Proper packing, wrapping and addressing are the three keys to trouble-free Christmas mailing, the postmaster said in enumerating some "do's and don'ts" the postal patron should observe.

Do not go for flimsy light cardboard and paper boxes in packaging your Christmas presents for the mail.

Do pick strong containers in good condition. An empty corrugated fiberboard box of the type that may be found in your neighborhood grocery is good for mailing gifts, if it is rigid and undamaged.

Be sure the container is the right size. If it is too large, the contents are apt to shift in transit; if too small, an overstuffed carton may burst in shipping. If necessary, cut your container down to fit the contents.

Cushioning material, such as excelsior, shredded newspapers or tissue paper, should be evenly and firmly placed on all sides of the gift item. Two or more inches of such covering is the minimum.

The carton should be wrapped in heavy brown paper and tied with strong twine. Articles of a delicate nature, such as glass, china, electrical appliances, musical instruments and radios, must be marked "Fragile" by the mailer. Food stuffs should be marked "Perishable," if subject to spoilage.

But don't mark the wrapping with unnecessary wording. For example, "Do not Delay," is superfluous. "Rush" does not properly belong on a parcel. If it is desired to expedite delivery of a parcel, use special handling or special delivery service.

Do address plainly and properly, using postal zone numbers where available. Addresses should be printed in ink or typed, and a return address should appear on every parcel, no matter how near or far it may be going.

The proper place for the return address is the upper left hand corner of the parcel — not on the back, side, or one of the other corners.

The overwhelming bulk of Christmas mail will be by parcel post, of course, and it should be remembered that size and weight limits vary, depending upon the post office of mailing and the post office of address.

Mallers may check with their post office, and ask for the free pamphlet "Post Office Department Publication 3," which contains the rates of postage and limits of size and weight for domestic mail.

Chief Knows Cops Are On The Ball

KANKAKEE, Ill. (AP) — Police Chief Wallace Flannery knows his men are following his standing order to make no exceptions in tagging cars for overparking.

Twice this week Flannery has driven into a parking space and then walked into a nearby store to get change for the meter. Both times he found tickets on his car when he returned.

After paying the second 50-cent fine yesterday, the chief said: "The wrder still stands."

CITY HOSTESS GETS READY FOR CALL. Mrs. Granville Miller prepares 'welcome booklet'

City Hostess Tries To Make New Residents 'Feel At Home'

By DON HENRY

With a booklet under her arm, an idea in her mind, and good will in her heart, Mrs. Jimmie Mason approached the uncompleted home of Mr. and Mrs. Truman Jones in the spring of 1945. Since then the booklet, the idea, and the goodwill have grown into one of Big Spring's biggest civic activities—the newcomer welcome service.

Mrs. Mason was the first city hostess, passing out booklets about the city, containing letters of welcome from business men, civic leaders, religious organizations, and school officials.

But just as big as the books were the feeling of hospitality, good will, and true welcome given by the hostess in meeting that first family—the Joneses—and all other families since then.

The idea was the result of the efforts of Murph Thorp and two out-of-town women, Mrs. Mike Gerald of Edman, Okla., and Mrs. Ed Lovett of San Angelo. Mrs. Gerald remarked to Thorp that the idea was a success in Edman and thought it could be here.

With the help of the Chamber of Commerce, the first booklet was compiled and printed, giving pictures of principal city buildings, churches, schools, hospitals, and scenes from Big Spring; and letters from 18 business firms—one from each profession or type of business.

With that first visit began an occupation that has been fulltime ever since. Mrs. Mason remarked that the only time she was at home was at meal time. The same is true today with the present hostess, Mrs. Granville Miller.

The idea was to make the new Big Springers feel at home and find a place here. Mrs. Mason recalled. They were given the meeting places of clubs and organizations they were members of previously, and their names were given to churches of their faith.

Mrs. Mason served as city hostess until August of 1951, when Mrs. Joy Johnston took the job. She was followed by Edith Gay the following year who served until 1953. She was succeeded by Mrs. H. D. McCright, who held the job until Mrs. Miller—present hostess—went to work.

Now, the hostess gets names from the Chamber of Commerce, the utility companies, and from individuals acquainted with the service. And the service is practically the same. The hostess still carries the booklet to the new citizens, but the booklet has changed face since the first. Only seven of the original 18 firms have letters in the book, which has now grown to 22 letters. This does not include the church directory or general pages on Big Spring.

New citizens are also welcomed to a Newcomers Club which meets twice monthly, giving them a chance to meet others who are new in Big Spring. They also have an annual party.

The booklet, the club, and the token gifts given by the merchants make the new Big Spring citizen feel welcome, but the friendly, personal welcome given by the city hostess in conversation creates the most feeling. And it truly makes the newcomer feel at home in Big Spring.

All expenses—then as now—are paid for by merchants represented in the book.

And after all the work on the booklet, Mrs. Mason was hired as city hostess. She checked the utility companies for new comers, and the first one listed was Mr. and Mrs. Jones—who weren't even in their new house at the time of the visit.

With that first visit began an occupation that has been fulltime ever since. Mrs. Mason remarked that the only time she was at home was at meal time. The same

Master Of Chinese Junk Fled Over Red-Confiscated Catches

By DAVID J. ROADS

HONG KONG, Nov. 5 (AP)—The junkmaster, his wife, their six children and his aged parents gathered in an anxious cluster as our launch approached the wooden fishing craft.

Yau Sul, master of one of the 170 junks which had fled Communist China, thought we were police. His weather-beaten features relaxed when we explained that we were seeking only to learn how the refugees were faring in British waters.

The junkmaster smilingly agreed to come aboard the launch for a chat. He gratefully accepted a soft drink, and the last trace of restraint vanished with the offer of a cigarette.

Yau Sul, now 40, said it is unlikely he would have ever left except for the "Peoples' Government."

"They always took all the fish we caught and paid us as little as possible," Yau Sul said. "They said it was our duty as good citizens of the new China to help build the state by catching as much fish as possible."

The government pay, he continued, amounted to about $6 for 125 pounds of fish, depending on species, and "what money we were able to earn was not enough to buy rice, oil and other necessities."

"Since the fish we caught were always taken away from us, we had to eat as much rice as possible to fill our stomachs," Yau Sul added. "But the rice was always short-measured, so what could we do but work on half-empty stomachs?"

"As for cooking oil, we were allowed one catty (1 1/4 pounds) per month. Do you think that is enough to live on?"

"We had to attend classes once a month. . . . We were told that Chiang Kai-shek and the other Nationalist Chinese on Formosa were no good. . . . corrupt!"

The Communist regime, aware that fishermen might wish to escape, ordered the junks not to put to sea in groups larger than three or four. Stern punishment was ordered for those who sought to escape. But when Yau Sul decided to flee with his family, he found many other fishermen were of a similar mind.

A zero hour was set for the flight and the secret so zealously guarded that when the time came the fishing fleet sailed off without a hitch. They dropped anchor in Silver Mine Bay, some 65 minutes by launch from Hong Kong Island.

Yau Sul said he had been so excited that he could not now recall the exact date or time the junks put to sea.

The junkmaster said conditions had improved beyond his hopes since his arrival.

"We have put on weight, all of us," he said. "Business is not what you would call at full swing, but that will come with time, after we get to know the better fishing grounds."

The junk has been licensed by British authorities, Yau Sul said, and even though inexperienced in British fishing waters, he has been able to earn about $1.65 a day from the sale of fish.

"This is not very much," he grinned, "but we get by. You see, we can keep some of the fish we catch for food."

City Lots For Sale On Eleventh Place

The City of Big Spring is putting four lots in Highland Park on sale. They represent property acquired originally as a projected site for a fire station and lie along Eleventh Place immediately east of the Age Grocery at Rosemont. They are listed as lots 13-14-15-16, Block 6, Highland Park.

Because of a shift in population and extensive building, the city acquired a fire station site further to the east at the northwest corner of the Birdwell Lane-Eleventh Place intersection.

Governor May Seek Mantle

WASHINGTON (AP)—Wisconsin's Gov. Walter J. Kohler said today he will become a "favorite son" candidate for the GOP presidential nomination unless President Eisenhower indicates by March 3 that he'll seek reelection.

Kohler was here for a meeting of the Governors' Conference highway Committee which he heads. He said in an interview that unless the President's plans are known before the March filing deadline, he would have to file his own name. Written consent of the candidate is required in Wisconsin.

Gov. William G. Stratton of Illinois, who has been mentioned as another possible "favorite son" aspirant, said he expects to head the 50-vote Illinois delegation. He said the delegation will be for Eisenhower if he is a candidate but otherwise will "look around."

On the Democratic side, Gov. Frank Lausche of Ohio said that if he becomes a "favorite son" candidate it won't be with the idea of preventing Adlai E. Stevenson from getting the party's nomination. "I may become a favorite son to keep the Ohio delegation out of the hands of the political bosses," Lausche said.

BOOKS · MUSIC · ART · DRAMA CRITIQUE By Glenn Coates

I was in El Paso a few weeks ago and stopped in at an art show in the public library. The artist was Agnes Tait and her work was quite good. If you happen to be in that area anytime, be sure to drop in at the library and look them over. Most outstanding among the display were her portraits.

Incidentally, the El Paso library is quite a building. Only recently built, the library has about the best lighting for readers I have seen in any library. The building also serves as a public auditorium and artists in El Paso may use it to exhibit their work.

You may remember that there has been talk here of building a library building. I would like to add to this talk the idea of a museum and place for art shows. A library building could be built, to best advantage, in the vicinity of the high school. It could also house the museum that once was at the City Park and maybe even a city auditorium.

The city of Big Spring will probably want to finance its own library building. I would like to add to this talk the idea of a museum and place for art shows. A library building could be built, to best advantage, in the vicinity of the high school. It could also house the museum that once was at the City Park and maybe even a city auditorium.

THE DESPERATE HOURS By Joseph Hayes This book has already been made into a movie and stars Humphrey Bogart, Fredric March, Arthur Kennedy, and Mary Murphy. I feel safe in predicting that the picture will be very good. William Wyler is directing.

The plot is so simple that you might wonder why it has not been done before. Three convicts escape from a prison and decide that the safest place to hide is in the home of a respectable family. This they do, keeping the family on the edge of death for two days. They allow the father to go to work as normal and the son to school. But the constant threat is that if they tell the police what is happening, the members of the family remaining in the house will be killed.

The author has used the convicts only as a tool. What he seems to be saying is, "Look at the bravery of the average family when they are forced to it." Hayes takes a pretty average family and throws into its midst, three convicted murderers. Time and again he shows that the men are little more than animals.

What can the family do about it? What are the choices? These are the questions that Hayes poses. And he answers them, sometimes not too realistically, but altogether believably.

What would you do? If you were the father, how would you go about defending your family? Would you cooperate or fight the criminals? This father compromises. He uses their own weaknesses against them. Afraid to notify the police, he does everything he can to protect the lives of his family. But

One of the fascinations of the work is to trace the developments of the artists' conceptions. In the beginning they formalized with troops charging in stiff, parade lines, every bayonet at precisely the same angle, no breaks or angles in the ranks. Though some traces of this formalizing persist throughout, generally there is increasing realism. One sketch of the Union charge on Maury's Heights at Fredericksburg which depicts a mad every-man-for-himself scramble must have been pretty close to actuality. Oddly, the stiffness is generally absent from the nonbattle scenes.

The reporting was spotty. As Pratt points out, the conception of strategy was decidedly faulty; the reporters had little idea of the importance and function of artillery, and were easily swayed by the bombard of self-centered general. But all this contributes to the picture, a valuable picture, of how the Civil War was described and pictured for the folks at home.

When Did Science Begin?

Science began the day man first asked "why?" This search for facts sprang from the dark days of magic, superstition, and demonology.

The laws of nature were known. It was the task of science to understand them. In the Middle Ages the average life span was twenty-five years. Today you have a life expectancy of sixty-five years. This is a direct result of medical progress.

As pharmacists, we are proud of our function in the distribution of lifesaving medical supplies.

Arthur Godfrey Not Considered Wrong

By CHARLES MERCER NEW YORK (AP) — Few incidents in television have moved less than the news the other day that Arthur Godfrey had fired three more of his hired help.

It's true that you feel sorry for anybody who gets fired. But it's also true that if you or I get fired the event will hardly make the news — unless we shoot the boss or abscond with the treasury.

When Godfrey first began firing members of what used to be called his radio and television family, the public was enchanted by the mystery of why he did it. Godfrey explained that he was trying to improve his shows. A lot of people refused to accept his explanation.

In his asking, "Do I have to give reasons?" I choose to believe that Godfrey was questioning the point in further explanation. In the past he fired Julius La Rosa on the air and was bitterly criticized. He tried firing people privately and was criticized for that. He explained that he was trying to improve his shows — and many didn't believe him. He tried offering no explanation — and was criticized for that.

Personally I'm not much of a fan of Godfrey's programs. As several people suggested by mail after I panned one of his shows, maybe I have a hole in the head. But, hole in the head or not, I think he's within his rights in firing anybody he desires without explanation to the public.

There was a time — back in the days when Godfrey maintained the theme that he and his employees were one big happy family — when it was necessary for him to explain why he'd changed his tune and kicked somebody out.

But by this time it's obvious that Godfrey's entertainment empire is not just one big happy family. So what's all the excitement about?

There are many important things happening in the world of television and radio today. But the relationship of Arthur Godfrey with his employees is not one of them.

The production will be the play's first presentation on the English speaking stage. The English translation is by P. G. Wodehouse. Molnar is famous for such hits as "Lullim," adapted to music by Rogers and Hammerstein as "Carousel," "The Play's The Thing," "The Guardsman," and many others.

"Somebody," playing Nov. 7-28, is the first in nine productions. It concerns the continental smart set in fashionable resorts and a Monte Carlo chateau.

The central character, a sophisticated divorcee called Edith Brooks, will be played by Louise Latham, a member of last season's company. Leading male roles will be played by Edward Collier and Ray McDonnell.

Jane Russell Stars "Underwater" is the lyric offering today and it stars Richard Egan and Jane Russell. The picture has many scenes filmed under water and is in color and SuperScope. The photography and fights with deadly sharks are breathtaking.

The Civil War in Pictures By Fletcher Pratt Matthew Brady photographed the Civil War when it stood still, necessarily so because the cameras of the day were not geared to catch action. A shot which an artillery battery firing away at an unseen enemy was as close as he got to giving home folks a glimpse of actual battle.

Fight Involves Jil Jarmyn, Susan Hayward At Barry's

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 6 (AP) — A fight between red-haired film star Susan Hayward and blonde actress Jil Jarmyn, 23, at the home of Western actor Donald (Red) Barry came to light.

Detectors are investigating the various reports but so far no formal complaint has been made. Police and studio sources gave this rundown on the affair: Miss Jarmyn, formerly of Chicago, appears to have come off second best. She said she was hit on the head with a wooden clothes brush, her thumb was bitten and buttons were torn from her blouse.

The scene was the North Hollywood home of Barry yesterday noon. Miss Hayward, 34, who has been dating Barry recently, was having coffee with him when Miss Jarmyn walked in, the door being open. She had known Barry for about five months but told a reporter that they had had a dispute and ended a budding romance.

When Miss Jarmyn arrived, Miss Hayward evidently said something to the customary effect of "who is this woman?" and in practically no time a fight was on, with Barry attempting the role of peacemaker. His comment today was "No comment."

Miss Jarmyn subsequently went home and telephoned Van Nuys police, who began rounding up the versions of all parties.

Miss Hayward, whose divorce from Jess Baxter after a sensational trial is being appealed by Barker, described the whole thing as "a tempest in a very small teapot."

"Night People" is the offering at the Terrace Drive-in tonight. The exciting film stars Gregory Peck, Rita Gam, and Broderick Crawford. It is filmed in Cinemascope and color.

The film is set in Berlin and the action concerns the interchange of prisoners between the Russians and the Americans. Peck plays a colonel who is working for the release of an American GI who has been kidnapped by the Russians. Crawford plays the influential father of the boy, and Miss Gam plays Peck's secretary.

There are numerous double-crosses by would-be friends before the boy is returned to the American side of the border.

Lana Turner Better

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 6 (AP) — Actress Lana Turner is recovering at home today from minor surgery for removal of a benign tumor, her studio said.

The surgery was performed Wednesday at St. John's Hospital in nearby Santa Monica. She went home yesterday.

Friends said the ailment had nothing to do with the fainting spells she suffered during the making of a recent picture. They were caused by a fall, the friends explained, adding that Miss Turner has recovered from that trouble.

Theater '55 Has Fall Opening

DALLAS, Nov. 6 (AP) — The Margo Jones Theater '55 starts its 12th season Monday night with the American premiere of "Somebody," a continental romantic comedy by the Hungarian playwright, Ferenc Molnar.

The production will be the play's first presentation on the English speaking stage. The English translation is by P. G. Wodehouse. Molnar is famous for such hits as "Lullim," adapted to music by Rogers and Hammerstein as "Carousel," "The Play's The Thing," "The Guardsman," and many others.

DON'T BE FOOLED WHICH FUEL IS SAFER? Modern gas ranges are as safe as any appliance in your home—are safer than many. Gas ranges are designed and built to give you safe, dependable service—they are thoroughly tested, under circumstances much more rigorous than normal use, and they are certified as safe, if properly installed and operated. Gas is, of course, flammable. But gas is safely delivered to your home under expert safety conditions, through high-test pipe lines, underground where they are not affected by adverse weather, freezes, windstorms and other causes. Part of this safe system is the control of gas to the top and oven burners on your gas range. The statistics bear out the safety of gas. The last figures available from the National Fire Protective Association (1952) show that fires caused by "Gas and appliances, including gas explosions," are less frequent than 16 other causes—less frequent, for example, than "Spontaneous ignition" (13th most frequent cause), "Lightning" (6th most frequent cause), and "Electrical, fixed services, misuse, faulty wiring and equipment" (4th most frequent cause). Gas has been near the bottom of this list for over 10 years—a record unmatched by any other comparable cooking fuel. WHICH FUEL IS MORE ECONOMICAL? Natural gas is definitely cheaper than other fuels. Current tests show that, throughout most of our distribution area, gas is 4 times cheaper for cooking than artificial fuel. FLAME IS THE NATURAL METHOD OF COOKING, AND PERFECTLY CONTROLLED FLAME IS SUPERIOR FOR MODERN COOKING... ABSOLUTELY UNMATCHED BY ANY ARTIFICIAL COOKING METHOD. EMPIRE GAS SOUTHERN CO. C. H. 'It's Always Fair Weather' Has Cyd Charisse Starred At Ritz

"It's Always Fair Weather" is the Ritz offering today, and Monday starring Cyd Charisse, Gene Kelly, and Dan Dailey. The musical picture has eight new songs and it is filmed in color and Cinemascope. Cyd Charisse and Gene Kelly, you may remember, were co-starred in "Brigadoon" and "Singing in the Rain." The film uses the reunion of three war-time buddies as a kick-off point. Gene Kelly, Dan Dailey, and Michael Kidd, are the buddies and they meet at Tim's Bar ten years after V-J Day.

Dailey is now a TV executive and he introduces his friends to Cyd Charisse, coordinator of the TV program "Midnight with Madeline," and Dolores Gray, star of the show.

At the time of the reunion, the show is on its last legs. It needs something to give it a little life. Cyd Charisse decides to commercialize the idea of the three pals uniting after so long a time, but without the men's knowledge.

The trick works and the ex-GIs go on the television screens without their knowledge. But the feat is accomplished only amid a free-for-all brawl and a romance between Miss Charisse and Kelly.

Highlights of the film place Kelly on roller skates as he performs a musical number in a soft shoe routine on New York's streets. Another sequence has Cyd Charisse exchanging uppercuts with a dozen boxers in the ring.

A "split-screen" treatment gives weird effects when Kelly, Dailey, and Kidd simultaneously sing and dance three different versions of the same song at the same time.

On Third Avenue, the three partners use garbage cans for dancing shoes and do an acrobatic number, complete with climbing the "L" structure and racing taxis.

The new songs in the picture are "The Binge," "The Time For Parting," "Baby, You Knock Me Out," "Music Is Better Than Words," "Once Upon A Time," "Saturation-Wise," "Thanks A Lot, But No Thanks," and "I Like Myself."

Technicolor Musical

Cyd Charisse and Gene Kelly are co-starred in the musical film, "It's Always Fair Weather" at the Ritz starting today and playing Monday. Dan Dailey is also starred in the picture.

James Dean Stars As 'Delinquent'

James Dean is the star of "Rebel Without A Cause" at the Ritz, starting Thursday and playing through Saturday. The picture is filmed in Cinemascope and WarnerColor.

however, for lack of evidence, but they find out that he does not respect his domineering mother and hates his weakling father.

The story is of the juvenile gangs that are said to thrive in larger cities. This particular story has its locale in Southern California. Dean plays Jim Stark, who is misunderstood by his parents and forced to seek understanding and love elsewhere.

With his girl friend and pal, Sal Mineo, Jim tries to join a gang of toughs. He ends up fighting a knife duel with the leader. Then, the two decide to meet—for a test, with each of them driving a hot rod toward a cliff and jumping just before it plunges over onto jagged rocks.

He finds understanding among the street gangs and he finds love with Natalie Wood, a comparative newcomer to Hollywood. She too is misunderstood and she seeks love from Dean to replace that which she has never received at home.

The leader of the gang is killed in the test. The remainder of the gang tries to kill Dean and his friends to keep them from telling the police about the incident. Mineo kills one of the gang when the three are besieged in an old mansion.

The story begins when Dean is arrested by police investigating the beating up of a man lying in the street. They release him,

The police come to investigate the gunshots and Mineo is killed when a policeman mistakes his move for one of violence. The film comes to an exciting climax.

James Dean Starred

"Rebel Without A Cause" is the Ritz feature Thursday through Saturday and is filmed in Cinemascope and WarnerColor. James Dean and Natalie Wood are the stars.

Ritz Film, 'One Desire,' Has Rock Hudson, Anne Baxter

Anne Baxter, Rock Hudson, and Julie Adams are the stars of "One Desire" at the Ritz Tuesday and Wednesday. The film is printed in Technicolor.

the girl as a sister for Hudson's brother. She is about the boy's age. Hudson gets a job in the local bank and is sent to St. Louis on business. While he is gone, Julie Adams, daughter of the bank president, finds out that Tacey once operated a saloon. She has Tacey ruled unfit to be a mother. The judge awards Miss Adams the custody of the children.

The picture was taken from the book "Tacey Cromwell" by Conrad Richter. The film puts Anne Baxter in the role of Tacey, manager of a saloon where Rock Hudson is a dealer. The time is 1919 in Oil Hill, Oklahoma.

Tacey leaves town and returns to Oklahoma. When Hudson returns he marries Julie Adams and becomes head of the bank when her father dies. Natalie Wood, meanwhile, runs away to rejoin Tacey. The two return to Colorado and Tacey opens a gambling hall in the town.

The story opens when Hudson's 10-year-old brother arrives in town seeking his brother's help. Hudson takes over the boy and Tacey decides to see that the boy is raised right. Hudson is fired from his job and moves to Colorado with his brother and Tacey.

The film works up to a startling climax as the two lovers are brought back together.

'One Desire'

Rock Hudson explains his plans to Anne Baxter in this scene from "One Desire" at the Ritz this week. The Technicolor picture is a romantic story set in 1919 in Oklahoma.

CINEMA COMMENT

By GLENN COOTES

The death of James Dean has robbed theatre audiences of many unplanned performances, each one, perhaps better than the previous. For Dean had a natural talent for the stage.

True, his first picture, "East Of Eden," had the inevitable stamp of director Elia Kazan's handiwork. Kazan had tried to mold Dean in the same pattern as Marlon Brando. Time and again, scenes in "East Of Eden" appeared to be a copy of Brando's style.

But beneath it all, there was the ability of a real actor. Dean made two other pictures before his death. "Rebel Without A Cause" is playing in Big Spring this week and "Giant" will be forthcoming.

In these two latter films, James Dean had more of an opportunity to play his own part in his own way. The current film is very good, and advance reports on "Giant" indicate the same.

James Dean was better than most. And Hollywood needs more of the type.

The top boxoffice moneymakers across the nation last week were these films:

1. To Hell And Back.
2. Trial.
3. Cinemascope Holiday.
4. The Tall Men.
5. The Girl In The Red Velvet Swing.
6. My Sister Eileen.
7. Blood Alley.
8. Ulysses.
9. The Desperate Hours.
10. Lucy Gallant.

I would like to point out to you that "The Left Hand Of God" is making a return engagement at the Jet this week. Lee J. Cobb's performance in his film is up to his usual high par and the picture is very unusual. If you haven't seen it, I think you might enjoy doing so. Bogart plays the part of a man assuming the role of a priest to save his neck, only to save many other persons because he did so. It is an unusual twist and it is a film that Hollywood does not have to hang its head about.

State Feature Has Lex Barker In Western Role

Lex Barker, Mara Corday, and Stephen McNally are starred in the State Feature today, "The Man From Bitter Ridge." The color film is a western story taken from the novel of William MacLeod Raine. The film starts with Barker traveling to Tomahawk as a special investigator for the stage company. His mission is to discover who had been holding up the stages.

As he nears the city, he narrowly escapes being hung by a posse looking for the bandits. They mistake him for the robbers. He is saved by the sheriff, however. In Tomahawk, he meets Mara Corday and begins to court her. Stephen McNally, as head of a group of shepherds, opposes the love affair, but helps Barker seek out the bandits.

The film ends in a savage gunfight with McNally and Barker facing the bandit gang.

Nice Pickings

Workmen demolishing a subway-surface car platform in Philadelphia, Pa., have been picking up some easy money. The coins which total about $25 a day, are those which passengers dropped over a period of years while waiting for the cars. Sam Merlin, foreman of the demolition gang, displays a part of the haul, which is put into a pot and divided among the workers at the end of the week. Beside money the workers have found street car tokens and women's earrings.

BREAKING RECORDS

Newsprint Makers In Midst Of Boom

By WALTER BUSSEWITZ
NEW YORK, Nov. 5 (AP)—Newsprint making, an industry marked by severe ups and downs over the years, is having one of the most prosperous eras in its history. The industry also is the center of controversy over recent price increases by some companies. Profits of ten major North American producers in the first half of the year climbed to $68,123,631, up 17 per cent.

This rise is less than the average for U.S. and Canadian business in general, largely because newsprint demand held at a very high level in the first half of 1954 while most other fields were off.

Looking further back, the 1955 first half earnings of the ten companies ran 29 per cent over the first half of 1953, 48 per cent over first half 1952 and 20 per cent over first half 1951.

Firms in the computation account for around two-thirds of North American newsprint output and have reported on operations regularly on a six-month basis. Their earnings reports were carried in the weekly bulletins of the American Newspaper Publishers Assn.

Why the rise in profits? The 38 newsprint mills in Canada have been operating at 102 per cent of their 1953 rated capacity, says R. M. Fowler, president of the Newsprint Assn. of Canada, but demand still is outrunning their supply. The 14 mills in the U. S. also have been working at a record pace in an effort to keep up with orders.

Richard Doane, president of the Giant International Paper Co., sums it up this way: "Early this year, newsprint supply was reported just about in balance. Then later in the year, during the late spring and summer months, consumption increased at an entirely unforeseen pace—so rapidly that currently consumption is running over nine per cent ahead of last year. Nobody expected this kind of upsurge."

In the midst of this period of peak demand and increased profits, six Canadian producers have boosted their price of newsprint by $3 to $5 a ton. This has brought their New York level to $129 to $131 a ton, double the price of ten years ago.

Spokesmen for the manufacturers noted that the general price of $126 a ton, New York, has prevailed since mid 1952, and that wages and raw materials have gone up. Some said more funds were needed to increase production.

But numerous publishers in the U. S. and Canada, and political leaders of both countries took a different view. The increases represent "an unvarnished example of sheer profiteering," said J. M. Caldwell, leader of Canada's Commonwealth Cooperation Federation party.

"It is just a straight question of their desire to increase the amount of profit they are making," Caldwell declared.

Some critics of the boost said St. Lawrence Corp., first to increase prices, had profits of $2,636,333 for the six months ended June 30, a gain of 37 per cent. They said St. Lawrence earnings for 1954 were more than 10 per cent on its investment.

The record showed St. Lawrence earnings were $3,977,789 in the first half of booming 1950 and $3,112,958 in the first half of 1951.

Spokesmen for the manufacturers asserted that prices of newsprint must be high enough to invite the necessary expansion of capacity. The industry now is engaged in one of its greatest expansion programs in history, planning to add 20 per cent to capacity in two to three years.

Things have not always been this way. During depression years, most newsprint companies faced a struggle and a few were in the hands of receivers. From 1933 to 1946, only four new newsprint machines were installed in all North American mills, Canada and U. S. combined. Such a machine represents an investment of around three million dollars at today's prices.

The ten companies covered in the earnings check are International Paper Co. (also engaged in many other phases of paper production), Consolidated Paper Corp., Abitibi Power & Paper Co., Powell River Co., Minnesota & Ontario Paper Co., St. Lawrence Corp. Paper Co., Great Lakes Paper Co. and St. Croix Paper Co.

Other big concerns, such as Crown Zellerbach Corp., Coosa River Newsprint Co., Southland Paper Mills, and Canada's Price Brothers & Co., have shown substantial income gains, but have not announced results on a comparable calendar basis.

Bowater Paper Corp. of North America, which administers interests in the U. S. and Canada, recently reported earnings on a separate basis for the first time. It had profits of $5,329,904 for the 15 months ended Dec. 31, 1954. No comparison was available.

Woman Acquitted In Husband's Death

McMINNVILLE, Ore. (AP)—Attractive Mrs. Marjorie Smith was acquitted today of the car bomb slaying of her husband in Portland April 21.

The prosecution had demanded the death penalty in the trial, during which Victor Wolf, 45, testified that Mrs. Smith, 34, plotted the death of her husband, Kermit, an attorney.

Wolf said he wired the fatal bomb in Smith's car at her urging because of love for Mrs. Smith.

BIG SPRING DAILY HERALD

In this issue:

Don't Argue-Arbitrate! and The Clock Struck Murder

Though Only Five, Johnny Is a Gentleman.

LAST WEEK I went to my friend's house for an afternoon visit. The door was opened by John, the five-year-old boy, who invited me in. As he got me a comfortable chair, he told me his mother was upstairs dressing and would be down in a few moments. He showed me his new book and his little red tricycle, and he asked me if I had any little boys who had tricycles. He chatted pleasantly until his mother came downstairs, then he ran off to play. But when I was leaving, he was in evidence again, gravely bidding me good-bye. As I left I thought, "What a charming, well-trained little boy."

So many of our youth today have no time to exchange pleasantries with those who are no longer young. Some of my friends' adolescent children have actually high-hatted me on the street. When I visit in their homes, they rush out the door with a hurried, "Hello." I know they haven't been trained in their youth like my little friend, John. It is refreshing to meet a child with old-fashioned manners—that is, good manners.—Mrs. M. A. Smith, Rock Island, Ill.

Lost-and-found articles often lie unclaimed for years, when they could be put to useful service. The lost-and-found box of a church can become a missionary barrel. Lost handkerchiefs, when freshly laundered, can be turned over to a teacher to give to her pupils who come to school without them. Gloves can be packed into a box for overseas relief. An unclaimed umbrella may save milady's bonnet during an unexpected shower. Jewelry always is a welcome contribution to a bazaar. It's fun to find a home for these potentially useful things.—Gladys Reep, Racine, Wis.

A Stroll in the Country

The most pleasant and rewarding way I know to enjoy my children is by walking with them. Late every afternoon I stop whatever I am doing and take my children out—not at a brisk pace down the street, but for a long, quiet stroll down a country lane. In the summer, we often go barefooted. Close to nature, we share each others' dreams better than we ever could walking on city pavement.

I feel we experience a richer side of life which too few people know.—Mrs. G. A., Liberty Hill, Tex.

Santa Fe: Where the People Live Democracy

Having come to Santa Fe from the East within the past year, my wife and I are tremendously impressed with the truly democratic mode of life in this area. Indians, Spanish-Americans, and other races and nationalities live and work side by side with scarcely a sign of conflict. And there is a healthy curiosity which keeps each group inquiring and learning about the others, in most cases producing a deep respect and appreciation for each different culture.

Our own son, just two years old, has begun to play with neighboring Spanish-American children. His small vocabulary already includes as many Spanish words as English. And since the neighbors are good enough to present us with occasional dishes of their excellent cuisine, his eating habits are already a bit cosmopolitan.

We consider ourselves fortunate to live in such a liberal community, and we think its manner of not tolerating prejudice of any kind might well be adopted throughout the country.—A. B., Santa Fe, N. M.

I was just thinking...

... ABOUT THE woman with the trout in her veil. If the fish hadn't been broiled, he would have been deeply shocked.

And so was the woman when she discovered him, I imagine.

The trout fell off the waiter's tray in the dining room. It landed neatly in the veil and not a soul had the nerve to tell her. She paid her bill and walked out, the trout sagging sadly in its starched net.

Life is fun, isn't it?

I know a woman who runs to her dressing table in the night when she hears thunder. She takes off all her rings. I'd ask her why except that she's already told me.

She doesn't know.

Once I told a staid Britisher that, in moments of ennui, I write with my tongue on the roof of my mouth. He never quite recovered from the shock. I suppose that makes me a little balmy.

Who isn't?

I know a woman who persuaded a horrified plumber to install a bathroom stool at the foot of her bed. If there is anyone present who can give me a sane reason for that one, I'll be obliged. But it doesn't seem vital.

That's not much crazier than my feeling that Wednesday is slightly green.

One of my friends gets up when she sits down. Instead of changing her position in a chair, she rises to the occasion. So, while I'm preparing to say good-bye, she's ready for another spell of hello.

Well, so what? There are baseball pitchers who won't step on the foul line and there was Dr. Samuel Johnson who struck every street lamp with his cane. Don't tell me there isn't a sublime slice of the screwball in us all.

And never, never tell me that it doesn't add spice to living.

Heaven preserve us all from a world of normalcy.

(And guess who also draws with her toe?)

Voluntary arbitration, giving both sides a chance to state their case, saves time and avoids notoriety. A decision may be had in a few days—or even hours.

Don't Argue--Arbitrate!

by Jerry Klein

Each year the American Arbitration Association helps thousands of persons settle disputes without the delay, expense, and notoriety of going to court.

A WOMAN FELL in front of a fruit market and was shaken up. She wanted to take the fruit merchant to court, claiming she'd slipped on a stray strawberry. But it would have taken months to get the case on a court docket, so it was agreed to submit the $1,000 claim to arbitration.

The American Arbitration Association scheduled a hearing on the case promptly. The verdict: the plaintiff to be paid $100.

A nonpartisan, nonprofit organization, the American Arbitration Association has as its whole purpose to help people settle their differences out of court through voluntary arbitration.

Usually, of course, the cases involve far more serious problems than slippery strawberries. One of the larger awards in the A.A.A.'s 29-year-history was almost $4 million, to settle a dispute between the Netherlands Government and an American arms manufacturer.

The association will not hear issues which legally belong in court: cases of crime, divorce, or actions that involve minors. And both parties to a disagreement must voluntarily submit their quarrel to arbitration before it can be considered. But arbitration is a way of settling disputes without the delay, expense, and notoriety of court trial.

Getting a case heard in court often takes many months. With arbitration, a decision may be had in a few days—even a few hours.

As for the cost, in cases involving small amounts each side pays 1½ percent of the claim. When large sums are at issue, they pay one-tenth of one percent. Each day of arbitration also costs $25.

Specialists, like these rug experts examining an oriental carpet to determine a claim, are frequently called upon to act as arbitrators.

Arbitrate- (Continued)

Arbitration is confidential, too. The hearing is open only to the principals in the case, their lawyers, the arbitrator, and his clerk.

Where hearings take place

Hearings are held at times and places convenient to all. When one litigant suffered a heart attack, the hearing was moved right to his bedside. But usually cases are heard in one of the association's 14 regional offices, or in a hotel room, factory, or union hall in any of the 1,600 cities which have A.A.A. arbitrators.

These arbitrators, and there are some 13,000 of them all over America, are recognized experts in various fields who also may be relied on to be both fair and honest. Even if your grievance concerns the proper way to repair left-handed lawn mowers, the association has a qualified man who understands the matter.

From one to three arbitrators may be assigned to your case; and while you may help select them, except in labor-management cases they receive no pay for their services. The association's only revenue comes from the case fees, contributions, and dues paid by about 5,000 member organizations throughout the U.S.

Incidentally, the arbitrator's decision is final and legally binding. Courts will hear no appeal unless you charge bias or fraud—and even with 4,000 cases being handled yearly, such accusations are rare.

Cross section of cases heard

Here are some sample cases solved by arbitration:

Farmers in the state of Washington complained that their crops were being ruined by chemical fumes floating across the Canadian border from a smelter in British Columbia. The farmers proved their case and won damages, and the smelter agreed to purify its exhaust smoke.

An importer in Colombia ordered thousands of dollars worth of bubble gum from America, then refused to pay because it didn't pop properly. The arbitrator agreed the gum was substandard in snappiness and the importer received credit for the defective shipment.

A woman in Texas claimed $5 damages for a spot she said was left on a rug in cleaning. She was awarded $1.47.

The afternoon of the day a Broadway play was to open, an actor discovered his name was not on the marquee and threatened to walk out. At 4:45 the A.A.A. was called; at 6:30 the complaint was heard; at 8 the actor's name was in lights.

The last case was handled so quickly because the actor's contract provided that any disputes be settled through arbitration. Such a provision is found in nine-tenths of today's collective-bargaining contracts, according to the U. S. Department of Labor, so the settlement of labor-management disagreements forms the bulk of the association's work.

Still, arbitration isn't a result of the Industrial Revolution, or of the 20th Century; it goes back much farther. New York businessmen were using arbitration to resolve their disputes over pork and perukes even before the Revolution. And George Washington provided in his will that arbitration solve any eventual wrangles.

If you're having a dispute that might be settled by arbitration, first get your opponent to agree on this mode of solution. Then get in touch with one of the American Arbitration Association's regional offices, or its national headquarters at 477 Madison Avenue, New York City.

But remember that arbitration is no substitute for the police, for legal advice, for a private collection agency—or for patient, friendly, and mature efforts to solve differences face-to-face. Don't be like the man who wrote the association:

"My laundryman lost my bundle. It was worth $26. Send an arbitrator out here to make him pay!"

Quaker develops new oatmeal that cooks completely in just one minute

NEW PRODUCT TASTES SMOOTHER, CREAMIER...AND ITS HIGH-PROTEIN CONTENT CAN HELP YOU CONTROL YOUR WEIGHT

Quick as coffee—that's today's new oatmeal. Cooking time has been cut to just 50-60 seconds with the new Quick Quaker Oats.

The new oatmeal is smoother. Has an extra creaminess that especially appeals to children. The oat flakes have simply been rolled thinner for quicker cooking. All the nourishment of oatmeal, all the traditional oatmeal flavor, is there.

Today's high-protein oatmeal has special significance for those who want to gain weight . . . or lose it. Protein is a key to weight-control. It is the fundamental "must" for building up strong bodies, good red blood. At the same time, a diet high in protein is essential for those who need to lose weight. Protein raises the blood-sugar level, helps keep appetite inactive. It reduces hunger while supplying needed strength and energy.

Due to its high-protein content, new Quick Quaker Oats can help to correct either kind of weight-control problem.

For those who prefer the taste and texture of old-style oatmeal, Old Fashioned Quaker Oats cooks in a mere 5 minutes.

ALL-MORNING ENERGY, for work or play is provided by a single bowl of hot, creamy oatmeal. Oatmeal supplies more stamina, more energy than any other whole-grain cereal . . . and a serving of Quaker Oats costs about 1¢.

PAN RINSES INSTANTLY when oatmeal is prepared properly. Just keep pan tightly covered, before and after serving, until ready to wash. It will rinse clean, without scouring.

WEIGHT-CONTROL SECRET is food high in protein to curb appetite, maintain stamina. And oatmeal supplies far more protein than any other leading cereal. Bowl of oatmeal, with sugar and milk included, contains only 210 calories . . . yet supplies 9 grams of protein.

STEAM
IRON

1. IRON WITHOUT SPRINKLING, everything except heavy cottons, linens and starched fabrics! The steady flow of steam moistens fabrics, saves you the time and work of sprinkling, and of ironing pre-moistened clothes.

2. INSTANT STEAM! Drop by drop, water falls onto hot soleplate... flashes instantly to steam. Then the steam stops automatically when the iron is placed on its heel rest. Uses tap water in all but extremely hard water areas.

3. PRESS LIKE A TAILOR! Press suits, skirts and sweaters without a damp pressing cloth! You can see where to put creases, so you press perfectly! Save money on all kinds of pressing bills—you can do it at home, professionally.

1. FOR HEAVY COTTONS, LINENS and starched fabrics, use it as a dry iron. You simply press the button to change your steam iron to a dry iron—no need to let iron cool down or even empty the water! You make the change instantly!

2. LIGHT, LIGHTWEIGHT! Only 3½ pounds! This iron weighs less than a woman's purse. Means much easier handling and a lot less work. Larger soleplate—more than thirty square inches—covers a much wider ironing area in far fewer strokes.

3. NO MORE SCORCHING! Visualizer Fabric-dial gives perfect heat for whatever fabric you're ironing! See this G-E beauty at your G-E dealer's today! General Electric Company, Small Appliance Division, Bridgeport 2, Connecticut.

JUNIOR TREASURE CHEST

Edited by MARJORIE BARROWS, Editor of The Children's Hour

Barrel Relay

Place a large barrel on its side in the center of the room. Divide the group into two teams which should stand along opposite walls. Now give the first player on each team a spoon and a Ping-pong ball. With the ball in the spoon and holding the spoon in one hand, the opposing players must run to the barrel, crawl through it, and run back to the next teammate who does the same. The ball must never be touched with a player's hands, or he must start over again. But if the ball should drop, he can scoop it up with the spoon. The first team to finish wins.

WHAT ANIMAL IS IT? by Ruth Dixon

Think of a creature who can close his nose in the water! This little eight-inch one can. But he likes to breathe air, too. He looks like a lizard, and when grown he is often found living in a moist cave. He likes to keep his skin cool and wet, and its color makes other animals stay away. They know he doesn't taste good! This creature eats vegetables and later on eats meat. If his feet or toes are cut off, he can grow new feet or toes in just a few months!

Do you know his name?

Rules for Contest

Guess the animal's name and color the picture neatly in its true colors. Send within one week

Dear Miss Barrows:

My friends and I, with the help of one of the fathers, have built a tree-house. It is about 6 by 8 feet. In it we have a stove, table, chair, corner shelf, and a play davenport. We have a ladder to get up and a rope to get down. We use it for a club house where our six members meet.

Sincerely,

Dear Miss Barrows:

I thought you might like something about animals for the Junior Treasure Chest. I read the page and enjoy it immensely.

One of the nicest pets imaginable is a hamster. I know because I've had three of them. The last one, Miss Chipper, I think was the cutest. She had a personality, likes, and dislikes all her own. As a matter of fact, she seemed almost human for this reason; she loved pickles, steak, and ice cream. Every day I would save some food for her and take it to her cage. Miss Chipper would be so eager to eat that she would climb up the side of the cage and try to open the door. Then I'd take her out and she would greedily stuff the food in her pouches until she looked as if she had caught a bad case of mumps.

A hamster is an animal belonging to the rodent family. Miss Chipper was about twice the size of a mouse. She had a tiny pink tail and fluffy golden-brown fur which she was forever washing. Her little beady black eyes, her pink nose, and her long whiskers were constantly poking into everything. When she would finish playing, she'd climb into her nest, creep under a bit of rag, curl up in a tight little ball, and go to sleep.

I think that if you want a pet that is little trouble and expense and gives a lot of fun and pleasure, you should get a hamster.

Sincerely yours,
 Katherine Ress

Dear Miss Barrows:

Here is something interesting to do: Take a piece of wax paper and place it over your favorite comic strip—or over a pretty picture in your local newspaper. Then rub back and forth several times over the wax paper with the back of a silver knife blade. Remove the wax paper and you will have the complete picture on the wax paper. Be sure to hold the wax paper firmly while rubbing it, so the picture won't blur.

Sincerely,
 David Henderson

Make way for the ITALIAN LOOK

by Allyn Rice

TO PUT IT MILDLY, Italian fashions are terrific! And they're the kind Americans can understand and easily adopt. With superfine knits, intricate patterns, and fabulous fabrics, the styles introduced recently in Florence are creating another Italian renaissance—this time in fashion. Italy's designers excel in imaginative sport clothes and elegant into-evening ensembles. One notes that waistlines are looser, even when fitted, and skirts have a fullness that hangs straight except when excited by a breeze. Tapered pants, originated in Italy several seasons back, have changed.

Now they hug the hips and fall in straight lines to the ankles. A look ahead to cruisetime shows that shorts are shorter (and the French agree). Playing counterpoint to the new fashions are longer hair styles that are worn loose during the day and done into a chignon for evening.

Photographed in Italy exclusively for Family Weekly in cooperation with the Centro Di Firenze Per La Moda Italiana.

Schuberth of Rome merely hints at a casual, elegant collar line in this silk-and-wool creation whose deep curves sweep into a grosgrain bow.

This spectator ensemble in wool knit and flannel by Avolio of Milan features a basket-weave jacket front and knit buttons.

A striking roll-over cowl neckline is the feature of this hip-hugging top by Mirsa of Galliate. The knit slacks are fitted.

TAKE CARE OF YOUR Feet!

"STAND ON YOUR OWN TWO FEET" is good advice when you've got two good feet to stand on. Many foot complaints can be traced to negligence rather than some physical defect. If you spend a little time taking care of your feet, you'll have better posture and less discomfort.

(Left) Standing improperly is bad for ankle lines, so keep weight on both feet. (Right) Reduce areas of fat by using a wringing motion with both hands.

(Left) Ankles that turn over give shoes a run-down look. (Right) To strengthen, circle feet clockwise 12 times. Repeat in a counterclockwise direction.

(Left) Ill-fitting shoes are uncomfortable and can cause ugly lumps on heels. (Right) Rub heels with pumice, then massage upward with softening cream.

by Joseph N. Bell

THANK-YOU LETTERS are a terrific chore at our house.

With another birthday approaching, we laid it on the line with our 11-year-old, David.
Either he wrote a thank-you letter to his aunt for the gift she sent him on his last birthday or he couldn't watch Davy Crockett
the third time around on television.

He'd been gone about five minutes when I found him preparing to lick the flap of an envelope. I caught his tongue in mid-flight.
"Whoa, there, Shakespeare," I told him.
"Let's see what's inside."

"A thank-you letter, like you said. Boy, nobody trusts anybody around here any more."
I fished out a crumpled piece of scratch paper and read aloud:

"Coffee, bread, orange juice, po - - -"
"The other side," said David.

I turned over the used grocery list:

"Dear Aunt Betty:
Thank you for the birthday gift.

Love, David."

"A little short, isn't it, son?" I asked kindly.

"You said to write a thank-you letter," he pointed out, "and that's what I wrote."

"Don't you think it might be a good idea to mention the gift and how you've enjoyed it?"

"I can't remember for sure what it was. I think it was that book on trees
I traded for a Stan Musial baseball card."

"Stan Musial's a little hard to come by?" I asked through my teeth.

"Boy, are they. Tommy had two. Got one from a girl for an old calendar picture of Lassie. She didn't know what she had."

"Okay, pal, let's make the letter longer and say something about the gift. Preferably something pleasant."

I shut the door to drown out the protests.
My wife was in the kitchen making up a grocery list.

"If you're missing a grocery list," I told her, "David wrote his thank-you letter on the back of one."

"Oh, that's all right. I never think to take them along anyhow."

I was still pondering this when I heard the typewriter clacking hesitantly in my office.

"Gas man drop in to write a few letters?"
I inquired pleasantly.

"It's your youngest daughter," said my wife. "She's writing a thank-you letter to her grandmother."

"But she can't read yet."
"Never underestimate the power of a woman," said my wife.

The two thank-you letters arrived simultaneously. I read David's first. It said:

"Dear Aunt Betty:
Thank you for the birthday gift.
Love, David.

P.S. I sure enjoyed the book, I think."
Warily I gave it back to him. "Okay," I told him, "print it."

Patsy handed hers over next. It read:
"xhdfugh fhjdke,
sdfgcj dghvbg df dgdhfygbvg dfrdf cf"

"Very nice," I told her. "Grandma will enjoy reading this."

I held the letter out to her, but she refused to take it back.

"Read it to me," she said.
"I just remembered," I told her, "I've got to go paint the house and I don't have a minute to spare."

"The house was painted this Spring," said
my wife. "Read her the letter."

"Dear Grandma," I read. "I want to thank you for your birthday gift. It was the nicest . . ."

I looked up and saw Patsy's pinched little face. Tears were welling up in the saddest eyes I've seen since Disneyland went off the air one night for a speech by the President.

Bravely summoning an extra note of joviality, I went on: ". . . present I've ever received, and I've played with it every day."

I couldn't ignore her any longer. Tears were streaming down her cheeks.

"What's the matter, honey?" I asked.
"That . . . isn't . . . what . . . I . . . wrote
. . ." she sobbed.

Frantically, I handed her the paper.
"Okay, so I'm sorry. Here, now, you read it to me."

A howl of anguish rocked the kitchen. Her little shoulders shaking, she looked at me accusingly and said: "Daddy . . . you . . . know . . . I . . . don't . . . know . . . how . . . to . . . read."

Like I say, we have a lot of trouble with thank-you letters at our house.

Arrangements in CERAMICS

by Ruth W. Lee, Home-Furnishings Consultant

Gladiolas and greenery rise artistically from a square charcoal bowl. In the triangular sandalwood dish are pretzel niblets.

Same bowl and dish, filled with potato chips and olives, are posed with white daisies in green jug.

In this arrangement, the bowl holds assorted fruits and the dish is heaped with fruit-color gum drops.

YOU CAN ADD zest to your table decor with new ceramic bowls that come in three sizes—in round, square, triangular, and oblong shapes. Colors like charcoal, moonstone-white, dawn rose, sandalwood, and geranium green harmonize with and complement today's dinnerware patterns. Lines are wonderfully simple and classic, flat mat glazes are modern in texture, and lightweight bodies have the feel of fine china. When these ceramic bowls are used with fruit or food, there are also small jugs and vases for greens, foliage, or flowers, that give height to low-bowl arrangements. Any homemaker can use these decorative accessories to dramatize her tables on the porch or inside the house.

Amateurs WHO SING LIKE Professionals

Olaf C. Christiansen

by Robert Thomson

ON A WARM, SUNNY afternoon in September, some 50 or 60 athletes gathered on the practice field of a small Midwestern college to try out for the football squad. About the same time, at the music hall across the campus, more than 400 students stood in line for hours to try out for 24 vacancies in the college choir!

Fantastic? Perhaps. But it's an annual occurrence at St. Olaf College in Northfield, Minn. The fondest dream of most of the 1,500 students is to be one of the "lucky sixty." Not that football is shunned. In 1953, the St. Olaf grid team was unbeaten. But choral music is a campus tradition.

It all started near the turn of the century when F. Melius Christiansen, a Norwegian immigrant, organized a music department at the school. By 1913 the short, stocky conductor had progressed sufficiently to take his "choral union" to Norway, where they sang in a score of cities.

In 1920 the choir made its first appearance in Carnegie Hall. Since then the group has made annual U. S. tours and another tour of Europe.

It was that same year—1920—that Christiansen hurried into the rehearsal room one day and said, "I have a manuscript number here I'd like to run over before we get down to serious rehearsal."

Then he struck a chord, the choir members hummed their starting notes, and as the maestro gave the downbeat, "Beautiful Saviour" was sung for the first time.

The St. Olaf Lutheran Choir has changed some since that historic day. F. Melius Christiansen has passed away, other generations have succeeded the personnel of that day. But the choir's high musical standard remains unchanged.

How can a college continue year after year to produce a choir that has music critics searching for new superlatives? There are three main contributing factors.

One is the tradition, which attracts young musicians to the campus. The choir members work as hard as the football squad, rehearsing at least six hours a week. And more than once the young singers have foregone part of their Christmas vacation to stay on campus and practice. In addition, each member must study voice with a faculty member.

The choir has retained the simplicity and enthusiasm of amateurs but performs with the ease of professionals.

Another reason for the choir's continued popularity is the director. F. Melius Christiansen's ability to inspire his singers was phenomenal. "He could get music out of a brick wall," an admiring student once said. But the choir members knew he also had a wonderful sense of humor.

Almost a legend at St. Olaf is the story of an April Fool joke that backfired. Director Christiansen was born April 1, so the choir members once decided to sing "Happy Birthday" in place of the regular warm-up song, spreading the word quietly to the group. They were all set to render the musical greeting when given the downbeat. To their chagrin, Christiansen strode into the rehearsal room, sat down at the piano, and played "Happy Birthday" to himself!

"Christie" retired ten years ago, but his son Olaf carries on the tradition. Taller, thinner, more angular of feature than his father, he has the same ideals and objectives.

"We aim to sing worth-while music so beautifully that people will be changed by it," he says.

Christiansen is known on the campus as something of a philosopher. He once stopped a rehearsal to remark, "You know, much good could be done in the world if nobody cared who got the credit."

The third reason for the choir's greatness is the background of its members. Because the school is subsidized by the Evangelical (Norwegian) Lutheran Church, more than 90 percent of its students are Lutheran. Experienced in church choirs, very often singing music from the St. Olaf Choir Series, they have the "feel" of the music.

Then, too, there are several feeder groups at the college, including a Chapel (second) Choir, a ladies' chorus, and a student-directed men's chorus.

One year Christiansen needed four replacements in the bass section. After preliminary screening, he called together 40 candidates.

"All those who can sing a low 'C' stand up," he said, and was amazed when 13 men arose.

"I've never seen anything like it in my life," he said later. "Every one of those fellows was able to produce a good, solid tone on the low 'C'."

More than 50 years after F. Melius Christiansen began teaching the art of choral music at St. Olaf's, the choir is still going strong. Last summer they again toured Europe.

Next time you hear the St. Olaf Choir sing "Beautiful Saviour," with which they close each concert, don't think they have a magic formula. They're just a bunch of college kids who love to sing.

the Clock Struck Murder!

FOR ALMOST A year the citizens of West Peabody, Mass., had lived in terror. On Lake Suntaug, just outside the village, was a colony of Summer cottages that were boarded up during the Winter. Then one Winter six of these houses had been destroyed or badly damaged by fires whose origin couldn't be discovered. Residents were convinced that a pyromaniac was on the loose.

A Citizen's Emergency Committee was formed. Willard Spaulding, a well-to-do middle-aged bachelor who gave most of his time to civic affairs, was elected chairman. After an investigation, Spaulding told Police Chief John Wiggin: "I'm afraid this pyromaniac lives here in town. A stranger would have been seen."

"No, I don't think this was a pyromaniac," Wiggin replied, and told Spaulding of his own findings: Valuable articles, such as silver and antiques, had been taken from each of the homes burned. "We've got to look for a burglar who tries to cover his thefts by setting the house afire."

Wiggin asked for outside help and State Detective George Neal was assigned to the case. Neal could find only one witness: an Alec Halse, who had arrived at one of the cottages while it was still blazing.

Halse remembered a grandfather clock he had seen in the cottage while attending a dinner party there that Summer. He was especially impressed by its distinctive musical chimes, and he rushed into the flames to remove it. But the clock was missing.

Neal came up with only one suspect— young John Freeman, an orphan who was partially deaf and dumb. John had been adopted by Patrick Geary, a farmer, and became a good farmhand under the direction of Geary's 18-year-old daughter, Annie.

Detective Neal made no headway trying to question John, for only Annie could understand him and make him understand. But Annie said that John indicated he had seen a man running away after one of the fires. At Neal's request, Annie agreed to try to find out who the man was.

Annie disappeared later that day and her father sent John to look for her. The boy found Annie's battered body in a barn. She had been beaten to death.

John Freeman was questioned again, but he couldn't be connected with the new crime. Detective Neal was confident that Annie had been killed by the arsonist, who was afraid she would learn his identity.

Since Annie's death, there had been no more fires and the villagers were convinced that the criminal was either John Freeman or a tramp who fled after the murder. Neal wasn't so sure of that and called on committee chairman Spaulding to discuss the case.

Spaulding was on his way out of the house and asked the detective to return in an hour. Neal came back just before seven and with him was Alec Halse. As they stood at the door waiting, the clock inside struck seven.

"Those chimes!" Halse exclaimed. "They're on the grandfather clock I told you about."

They entered the house and Halse quickly identified the grandfather clock. Other articles from the fire-ravaged cottages also were found.

Willard Spaulding confessed stealing the antiques for his own home and setting the fires to cover up. But he denied killing Annie Geary. He was convicted of the burglaries, but the state couldn't prove murder.

During ten years in prison, Spaulding denied killing Annie. Years later, he lay dying in a nursing home. A grandfather clock struck seven. He gasped: "I want to tell you about Annie—"

He died without finishing, but there was no doubt now of his guilt. John Freeman, who was under a cloud of suspicion all those years, at last was vindicated.
