VIADUCT SEEMS SIDE-TRACKED

We cannot understand why so little headway is being made on the proposition to build a viaduct across the railroad tracks on Gregg street. Weeks ago it was stated that the preparation of plans and specifications was delaying the game, but it seems that ample time has been given to this. Each party in the transaction seems to be waiting on the other to make a move and in the meantime our citizens are put to a great deal of inconvenience and danger. If no action is going to be taken toward providing a viaduct, the citizenship would insist that the railroad company station flagmen at the dangerous crossing and the Chief of Police should do, as the Chief of Police at Colorado has done, give the railroad officials warning that they must not block this crossing for long periods.

With business on the railroad in creasing steadily the Gregg St. crossing is about as dangerous a spot as is to be found on the entire line and the railroad should be more than willing to have the viaduct erected at the earliest possible date.

As we are all agreed the viaduct is needed and must be built, the inactivity in preparing plans is a puzzle to the majority of our citizens.

Good Times To Continue

Taking Everything Into Consideration the Big Spring Country is in the Best Shape it Has Been for Years.

While all lines are not rushing just now, and business men are complaining that folks are not buying heavy clothing, they didn't need to because of the fine weather. When the year's work is wound up you will find that there is going to be more money in our county, than in many years during the past. The year turned out so good after such a bad start that most everyone is an optimist.

Usually at this time of the year, the cotton crop and feed crops have been harvested but folks are still busy and will be for some time. It has been a wonderful fall season and as a result the cotton crop of the county is going to be just about double what was expected a few months ago.

Following the disastrous, money losing crop of 1926, most of our farmers started 1927 in the hole and they have had an uphill fight all season. Now that they are realizing something from their crop, they are paying off their loans, are going to be able to meet their store bills and have some cash to buy clothing, furniture and other things. They are not going to do any more buying than they have to until they get through with their crops.

With everybody busy and cotton bringing around twenty cents per pound, it has been puzzling folks as to the reason for business being slack and this same condition seems to maintain throughout the nation. It is not because of lack of money in the Big Spring section for this section is in as prosperous condition as any section in the U. S.

Not only are those who have made cotton going to be able to pay off many old accounts but cattlemen and men in other lines are enjoying the best years that have come to them in some time.

With oil development due to continue at a steady pace in this district, a measure of prosperity is certain to be enjoyed by many oil field workers.

The $120,000 paving program in Big Spring; the laying of mains and distribution system for the Consumers Gas Company in our city; the $200,000 building and improvement program of the Southwestern Bell Telephone Company; the erection of the $100,000 theatre of the R. and R. interests; erection of retail station and other improvements of the Southern Ice and Utilities Company, the completion of the $300,000 (estimated) substation of the Texas Electric Service Company; the erection of a $60,000 hospital, the establishment of a feed mill, hatchery, a number of new business enterprises and hundreds of new homes in our city, bespeak a continuation of growth and prosperity for our city and county.

OFFICE BUILDING A POSSIBILITY

The Secretary of the Chamber of Commerce states that the outlook for securing a modern office building for Big Spring is taking on a more promising aspect. He is now at work on a proposition which he hopes will result in the needed building being erected in our city during the early part of next year.

The cost of the proposed structure will be in the neighborhood of $100,000.

WHY THE SLUMP IN PRICE OF COTTON?

Bankers, farmers and business men of Texas will demand to know why cotton keeps slumping in the face of a crop which was acknowledged by experts to be from three to five million bales short of the demand, at a special called meeting of the Farmer's Marketing Association of America, to be held at the Texas Hotel December 7.—Ft. Worth Texas.

NO TROUBLE TO KEEP COOL!

The cold wave which put in its appearance Wednesday morning was not to our liking but we are learning to put up with it. The sudden drop in temperature following our long spell of warm weather made it seem colder than it really was.

Some of the old timers are predicting a long siege of bad weather. They contend one extreme follows another; and it is but natural that we pay up for the months of exceptionally fine weather we have been enjoying.

LONE STAR GAS CO. NOT CONNECTED WITH CONSUMERS CO.

We are in receipt of a communication from Mr. Mays of Dallas, General Superintendent of the Community Natural Gas Company in which he says the statement appearing in the Herald, in which it was stated that the company granted a franchise in Big Spring was said to be a subsidiary of the Lone Star Gas Co., was an error and probably due to the similarity of the names, Community Natural Gas Company and Consumers Gas Company. His company, the Community Natural Gas Co., was affiliated with the Lone Star but the Consumers was in no way connected with same.

He, however, congratulated Big Spring for being successful in securing natural gas.

THE SOCIETY OF ITCHING PALMS
Coleman shows us the way to rid our city of the professional beggars. We should reorganize our United Charities association and make it function similar to Coleman's Welfare League.
"The Big Spring Herald editor thinks the Society of Itching Palms is in session in that city. It would be no place for such a gathering if the people there would establish and maintain a Welfare League patterned after the one at Coleman. The value of the local organization is strengthened by the experiences of others. The Big Spring Herald says:
"The Society of Itching Palms" must be in session in Big Spring. A constant stream of panhandlers are now systematically working our city and citizens. They go from business house to business house begging or peddling some penny article for 25c. A number of them squat on the sidewalks with outstretched palms. A fellow don't mind helping a person in need but we are satisfied that the majority of the beggars now invading our city are professionals, not in need of assistance. What are we going to do about it?
Coleman has no such experience to tolerate. Unless they are really deserving the railroad ticket is bought through Coleman instead of to the town. Those not actually in need shun investigations such as the Welfare League conducts. Unless they can establish their claims to charity they hit the highway out when the first man of whom they ask alms directs them to the Welfare League officers. If they are deserving they get help. If they need cheering they are cheered. But they are not given money except in urgent cases.—Coleman Democrat Voice.

GETTING AT THE TROUBLE
Under a spreading chestnut tree
A stubborn auto stands;
The smith an angry man is he
With trouble on his hands.
The carburetor seems to be
The cause of all his woe;
He tightens half a dozen bolts,
But still it doesn't go.
He sits beside the road to give
His brain a chance to cool,
And ponder on his training at
The correspondence school.
Ad then he starts his job once more,
And just by chance 'tis seen
The cause of all his trouble is He's out of gasoline.

POWERFUL DRAMA OF FATHER LOVE TO BE AT LYRIC SOON
"The Prince of Headwaiters," a powerful comedy-drama of father-love and made by the director of "Flaming Youth" which starred Colleen Moore, is the feature photoplay at the Lyric Theatre beginning Monday, December 5.
Featuring Lewis Stone, Priscilla Bonner, Lilyan Tashman, Ann Rork, Robert Agnew, E. J. Ratcliffe and others, the picture was adapted from Garrett Fort's Liberty Magazine story, called also "The Prince of Headwaiters."
John Francis Dillon was the director, and Sam E. Rork, who produced "Ponjola," "Old Loves and New" "The Blonde Saint," "The Notorious Lady" and other notable films made the photoplay for First National Pictures.
Mr. Stone has the part of "the prince of headwaiters," and most of the scenes are laid in the Ritz Hotel in New York.
The story involves the love of a father for his son, the love of a stern father for his daughter and finally the unselfish love of a childhood sweetheart for the youth.
Lilyan Tashman has an outstanding part as the adventures and gold digger, and Ann Rork, remembered for her picture debut in "The Blonde Saint" has a big part as Beth, the childhood sweetheart.

While no attempt has been made to have the usual fashion show, there are two sequences in "The Prince of Headwaiters" in which fashions of the day in millady's fineries are emphasized.

IN A far-off province of India where men have time and are trained to think of possible villainy, Frank Lamson gave himself to evil thoughts. In this little hut on the frontier, he was removed from the things he loved, from the men and women he called his kind, and from all example for good.

Here he was on the borderland, face to face with the shadows and mysteries. He could not trust his own servant and he knew the very air to be filled with danger. So he worked with his paper weight, turning it over and over, and made plans for revenge for himself upon a woman.

He had loved her once and always would. Now that he was gone it was easy to make himself believe that had he stayed in England she would have learned to care for him. There came the chance for a career, the opportunity for fame and the return in splendor. With her refusal in his ears and desperation in his heart, he had set out, not knowing or caring for the future. Now he had time to think, time to regret his haste, and time to plan to get even.

Ellen had married. He had seen that in the papers some one had sent carefully marked lest the item escape his eye. And she had married Tom Wilkerson! Lamson remembered easily going Wilkerson and hated him. He wrote to friends for more details, had all the papers sent to him, and waited his chance.

One day he thought he saw the opportunity. A friend, the only one who would have written so, advised the soldier that Wilkerson was in hard straits financially. "He has the reputation of being big hearted, as you may remember," the letter went on. "Some shrewd men who know that kindness may be next to carelessness have him in a hole. Wilkerson woke up just in time, climbed half way out, but there he is sticking. If I had, say, two thousand pounds, I could break the man. You know I'm in a competing line and that I know what I am talking about. But, I can't spare the change and, besides, he's your enemy, not mine. Just thought I would let you know that I'll do the work if you'll furnish the money."

Lamson with his arms sprawled on the wooden table in his hut played with the paper weight and tried to summon from his slender resources of money or friends the possibility of acquiring two thousand pounds. He would have to mortgage his future, sell his few possessions, and borrow to raise this sum. No time could be lost. Wilkerson was climbing out of the hole. Before long it would be too late to shove him back.

The man made a list of everything he owned and added the names of the friends who might be induced to lend him money. Then he wrote them all diplomatic letters each suited to the recipient, letters asking money. Impatiently he awaited the replies and as he waited he toyed with the paper weight on his table.

One after one the answers came and each he threw into the basket with disgust. They were all sorry, but you know, one's money does not go far in this country and . . . it was the same.

"They won't lend it to me, that's what they mean. They'd lend it to Winslow or Thorndyke . . ." He sat up late in the night, calling aloud for an inspiration that would lead him to money, money with which to ruin Ellen's husband. It was then that the fever rode into the window and touched him on the brow. The hut held a sick man, and delirium, and the news went the route of the runners. It was Thorndyke who came to help.

When Thorndyke approached the hut he was met by a frightened native, who gave him to know that Lamson had driven the servants from the hut and had been raving and shouting inside. The delirium which was an evil spirit had been more effective than the threats. The sick man was alone in his need.

Thorndyke broke in the door and there was Lamson at his table, the paper weight in his hand. But Lamson was dead. The fever had halted his plans for revenge.

"Poor fellow," said Thorndyke. "And it was just two months ago he asked me for a loan. Maybe, had I given it to him, he would have asked for leave and gone away where the fever would not have got him."

Then Thorndyke's eye fell on the dull colored paper weight. He held it to the light, then secreted it carefully in his pocket.

"A sapphire!" he said, and he remembered the story of the lost one of Malik Kaffur. "It must be worth easily three thousand pounds! And old Lamson never knew."

Veterinarians in Demand

Young men seeking professions are turning less and less to the veterinarian's calling, and Dr. John R. Moller, chief of the federal bureau of animal husbandry, which protects the nation's meat supply, among other things, is deplored the fact. The thirteen accredited veterinary colleges of the country are turning out scarcely enough graduates to supply the federal service, not to mention the needs of state and municipal services, and the large part of private practice.

Conspiracy and Compromise

MRS. RANDOLPH TORRYMAN and Miss Torryman sailed on the Gigantic yesterday for a three months' tour of rural England. That was what the papers said. As a matter of fact, neither Mrs. Torryman nor her daughter, Marcia, had sailed anywhere. Mrs. Torryman had had her social secretary give out that item of "society news" so that she might get a little well-earned rest. She was not as young as she used to be and the last social season had been a little too much for her. She wanted to get somewhere where she could dine at six and read herself to sleep at nine.

In order to do this she absolutely had to do the vanishing act. For she was a very great lady in the social world; one of those who, if they speak to you three times at a dinner party, establish your social future beyond all doubt. More than all Mrs. Torryman was anxious to remove Marcia from the sphere of influence of Capt. Griswold Ives, an army officer, well enough in his way but without money. She had other plans. So she took a small house in the rather remote small town of Glendale and whisked Marcia away there.

Glendale had its own society which never thought of connecting the rather dowdily dressed widow who had taken the "Stevenson place" with the great society leader they had read about in the papers.

For the first three weeks nobody called. Then Mrs. Ralph Sillinger, whose husband ran the town's "department store," was seized with a fit of curiosity and dropped in on the newcomers. She was very condescending and patronizing and decided to ask the newcomers to tea.

She did, and then the trouble began. Mrs. Torryman declined the invitation on account of "ill health," but Marcia accepted. All the women who attended Mrs. Sillinger's tea were delighted to get a new arrival "in their midst" to patronize and took full advantage of the opportunity.

All very well. But Mrs. Sillinger had a son, a young man of twenty-six or seven, heir apparent of the department store and the greatest "catch" in Glendale. And Robert, the son, dropped in on his mother's tea party and saw Marcia. Robert was an overseas man; Marcia saw his Legion button and took to him at once. They managed to get into a corner together and had a brief but earnest conversation. He asked permission to call and it was granted.

The news of the "infatuation" of Robert Sillinger for the stranger-girl went straight as an arrow to the ears of Cora Sanford; and the young man found an indignant and angry girl waiting for him when he called on her the following night. When Cora had finished what she had to say, Robert said, "Now just let me talk a minute." His talk went back to the fighting fields of France; to a front line trench and two comrades in arms waiting for the zero hour to go over the top; and confiding messages to each other to be delivered in case one of them "went west" and the other survived.

When he had finished Cora said, "Oh Bobbie—how foolish I was to doubt you. Can I help?"

"Perhaps," replied Robert, "but for a while you and I had better pretend to be rather on the outs."

Robert went to call on Marcia—and he kept on calling. Mrs. Torryman was indifferent at first; then puzzled, and then indignant. That her daughter should seriously consider marrying Robert Sillinger was unthinkable. What did it mean?

At last Mrs. Torryman said tearfully, "I almost wish I had let you marry Griswold Ives."

"Well, you wouldn't," said Marcia, "and now you see!"

Mrs. Torryman was really crying now.

"Oh, please don't, mother," said Marcia soothingly. "I'll tell you what I'll do. We'll compromise. I will dismiss Robert Sillinger this very night if you will cease to oppose my marriage with Captain Ives."

"I suppose I must submit—you ungrateful child!" returned Mrs. Torryman.

You see Griswold Ives and Robert Sillinger had been "buddies" over in France, and after the war Ives had gone into the regular service and become a captain. Robert had been told all about Marcia—been told in dug outs and trenches; had seen her picture, which Griswold always carried with him. And Griswold had written to Marcia all about his "buddy," Robert. So, when they met at Mrs. Sillinger's tea, and Marcia told Robert how matters stood, they just naturally hatched up their little conspiracy.

Mrs. Torryman returned with her daughter to town hurriedly; and Robert and Cora were married soon after. Marcia disposed of Mrs. Torryman cheerfully resigned the sceptre of society to younger hands; and Captain Ives' uncle dying and leaving him a fortune, not only became reconciled to her daughter's marriage but became persuaded that she had brought it about herself.

The colors that an individual likes and dislikes are usually determined by chance associations in his early childhood.

THE AMERICAN HEN

It now looks like the hen has arrived in Shackelford County, the recent poultry show developed that fact, and pointed the way for her permanent domicile in our county, yes, it was a revelation to us all how many folks were engaged in the raising of poultry. Heretofore, the American Hen has done her rowa scratching and looking after her brood, lived on the scraps around the back yard and down in the barn, of mongrel stock and paid her own board, but notwithstanding her haphazard style of living, she was a valuable asset to the nation. But by me by, scientific minds got on the job, crossed her strain, the blending of this and that strain, seeking for a better quality of meat, quicker production, better class of eggs, more eggs, bred into her the instincts of industry, giving her the laying habit and dog-gone she cackled twenty-four times last year, and every time she struck up the barn yard music, she deposited a golden egg in the nation's egg basket, and now she stands third in the list of livestock production. Not only has scientific breeding given her quality production, industry, beauty, but science has worked out a balanced ration for this queen of the fowl kingdom, therefore, she is no longer a scavenger, but the petted and pampered asset of a nation. Artists paint her picture, the press of the nation print her pictures in the news journals, poets sing of her glory, Napoleons of commerce vie with each other in the purchasing of her by-products and shipping corporations give her the glad hand. Yes, her by-products tickles the palate of a nation, chicken menu is the universal diet of pauper and millionaire, the sick cry for chicken broth, thick cream gravy, yum, yum, the drum stick, upper joint, back, breast, wing and gizzard, and O my, chicken liver pie, nothing goes to waste, even the fashion mongers utilize her tail feathers to decorate the head gear of American queens, and had it not been for quill pens made from her feathers, there would not have been any ancient history writ in books. O yes, community and state fairs have builded her a stage and she's the star actor in the commercial drama. All honor to the American Hen. Albany News.

A NATIONAL OBLIGATION

With the approach of the congressional session, interest in flood relief is heightened. In this connection, the Chamber of Commerce of the United States has sent out to its members a referendum on four proposals—namely that the Government assume the entire cost; that it assume the sole responsibility of locating, building and maintaining the works; that it provide adequate funds for continuous, efficient work and that all flood-control legislation and administration be dealt with wholly on its merits and entirely apart from other undertaking.

These are sane proposals and calculated to get to the bottom of the difficulties attaching to settlement on a proper flood control policy. They should be adopted by Congress as the basis of its legislative deliberations. It is going to be difficult to prevent flood-control legislation from becoming complicated with other measures. A few Congressmen are already hatching schemes to tie their pet local projects to a flood-control bill, and constant vigilance will be needed to prevent the exploitation of the Mississippi disaster by petty log-rolling tactics.

There will be some difficulty also, in convincing some members of Congress that flood relief is strictly a federal problem. One notable opponent of this view, President Morgan of Antioch College, argues in the Atlantic Monthly that the Nation should not bear the whole cost of a community's misfortunes. This argument is true only in general. The fact is that the river communities damaged by the recent floods have been bearing most of the cost of protection for decades, and that all they have to show for their outlay is the unpaid portion of the debts they have incurred for this purpose. The floods which devastate the lower river do not rise in the communities ravaged.

The proposal of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States is sound. The flood menace is due to conditions over which the local communities have no control and the obligation to meet it is national. Ft. Worth Star Telegram.

Dinner was late. A guest asked the hostess to play something. She sat down at the piano, struck a few chords and turning to the old gentleman at her right, said, "Would you like a sonata before going in to dinner?" His face beamed as he replied, "Yes, thanks, I had a couple on my way here, but another wouldn't do me a bit of harm."

WE NEED MORE JOY

There can be no simple formula for happiness that is not based upon good health of body and good health of mind, and as neither good health of body nor good health of mind is possible without obeying the supreme laws of right living by the Creator, is there not really more of progress than decadence in the modern urge to be frank and unashamed of the inclination to smile and be gay rather than to be somber and self important and rigidly restrained?

Even the supercynic Schopenhauer admitted that a smile from the most wanton and abandoned infant was worth fifty lectures from the greatest philosopher that ever lived. Ladies Home Journal.

Melodiously at first, but if he still obstacles your passage, tootle him with vigor and express by word of mouth the warning. 'Hi, Hi!' Beware the ewandering horse that he shall not take fright as you pass him by. Do not explode the exhaust box at him as you pass him by. Go soothingly by. Give big space to the festive dog that shall sport in the roadway. Go soothingly in the greast mud, as there lurks the skid demon.'

ows in their affliction and to keep himself supported from the world.

Israel, the Favored Nation (vv. 1, 2).

Its unique relation to God is presented under the figure of a vineyard.

God's peculiar favor (vv. 1, 2).

He did for this nation what He did for no other nation in the history of the world. He evidenced it when He changed the boundaries of Israel's inheritance (see Num. 34:1-13).

He gathered out the stones when the Canaanites were exterminated.

He chose the vine which was planted
by the Israelitish nation.

He had gone through the discussory process in Egyptian bondage.

He built a tower in it when under siege Jerusalem was made its capital.

He obligated the nation
to the purpose of a vineyard is to bear fruit. The object of the husbandman in planting a vineyard and nurturing it is that it might bear fruit. The purpose of God in the selection and planting of the Israelitish nation was that it might bring forth fruit to His glory.

He bore only wild grapes (v. 4).

The desolation of the vineyard (vv. 5-7).

His efforts had been wasted, the vineyard now reverts to the wild grapes of the forest.

The sins which brought ruin to the nation (vv. 8-23).

The causes of this destruction are listed under six woes, each woe being a particular sin.

1. Idolatry and oppression of the poor (vv. 8-10).

The crime against which the first woe is denounced is that of the greedy grasping after property which leads to the accumulation of wealth in the hands of the few. "Joining house to house" and "laying field to field" means the sin of the greedy landowner who in the agricultural life takes the form of the land owner, in the commercial centers, the form of the big men crushing out the small ones.

2. Drunkenness (vv. 11-17).

The sin here denounced is drunk-ness. Several features are connected with this one sin:

(1) Drunkenness made the life business of the nation (v. 11).

(2) They got up early and continue until late at night, until their whole body is inflamed.

(3) The effort to give their hellish show of refinement (v. 12).

(4) Why pleasing music is heard forth from the dens of ignorance over our land.

(5) Blindness to God's warnings and reproaches (v. 12).

(6) Drunkenness and dissipation rendered them insensible to the dealings of Providence.

(7) God's judgments for such sins are denounced (v. 17).

(8) They went into captivity. The immediate cause assigned is ignorance, for it is a willful ignorance for which they are held responsible. They not only go into captivity, but there is a mortality among those who remain (v. 14). The records everywhere show a much higher death rate among drinking men. Drunkenness is all classes (v. 15). The country was made a waste (vv. 18, 19) during the time they became that way (v. 10).

(9) Moral confusion (v. 20).

(10) The woe is pronounced against those who try to adjust moral conditions to suit their sensual appetites.
Satanic (v. 21).

(11) The woe is pronounced against those of self-conceit. Many today are so affected by sin that they are unable to make moral distinctions. Having a false estimate of their own wisdom they plan and execute with reference to God.

(12) Persecution of justice (vv. 22, 23).

The sin here is denounced against those who are in places of justice, as judges, because of their lack of justice, and because of their temporal gain they cause
the poor to miscarry.

DATES FOR CONQUEST CAMPAIGN ARE SET

Dallas, Texas, Nov. 28.—Dates for the concerted drive for the 1928 Conquest Campaign to raise funds for paying off debts on Texas Baptist institutions, have been set, according to announcement by Dr. F.
S. Groner, general secretary of the Convention.

The entire force of eighteen hundred state, district and associational organizers and affiliated workers, will get under way January 15 and will continue without interruption until March 15. Contributions and subscriptions will be received at any time before or after this campaign,
Dr. Groner announced.

The goal set for 1928 is one and one-half million, which officials believe may be reached with normal economic conditions prevailing in Texas.

Practically all pledges for the 1927 Campaign have been collected, and pastors are making every effort to clean up the remaining few thousand dollars.

MAIL CHRISTMAS

PACKAGES EARLY

The post office officials are warning folks to mail Christmas packages early this season and the main reason is to insure the delivery before Christmas day. You see, Christmas Day comes on Sunday this year and postal clerks will not be expected to work on that date. At least mail carriers will not. Then the clerks or carriers are to be given a half holiday on Monday, December 26th. So keep this in mind and mail your cards and packages earlier if you want them to be delivered on time at Christmas. Of course if you are satisfied for them to reach their destination along about New Years, just take your own sweet time and mail them along about Christmas eve.

"SOMETHING FOR NOTHING"

The life of a newspaper editor is not all joy. It will however, compare favorably with a lady's dishwashing duties. To make an interesting paper that will be read by the people is almost a superhuman task, especially when everybody is seeking free publicity. As this is written the waste basket is brimful of valuable news items from towns and organizations seeking publicity that will improve their conditions without any expenditure of money.

Every town is seeking new avenues through which to sweep their messages of greatness. They are paying men to write paid advertisements so that they will be acceptable as news items. Some newspaper with lazy editors and hard up for news use the "stuff" to fill their columns and to that extent are impairing the efficiency and profitability of the press.

Frequently this office, and all other offices, receives a $3 advertisement with the request that in connection with a $10 reader be inserted. In this office they are consign-

LOST VISIONS

The sauce of youth is its vision—its ideals.

Ideals are fabricated from the materials at hand in training and environment.

No individual and no people rise higher than their ideals.

The American people in the youth of the Nation set the highest political ideals in history and we still reader eloquent lip service to those same ideals, but there is increasing evidence that the toxin of materialism has poisoned the body politic, as it has the higher spiritual ideals expressed in religion. We only have to look at the Teapot Domes and the Veterans' Bureau hospitals to see the poison working to the surface.
In our own state and in many a county and city there are Teapot Domes, polluted polls, and graft on a smaller scale, which are tolerated by a smug people who are so much wrapped up in material flesh-pots that they shrug their shoulders and tacitly say, "Go to it boys; as long as I am prosperous I shall not worry about your affairs."—Farm and situation would be more satisfactory

THE DANGER ELEMENT

Few people who drive automobiles
fast realize the element of danger involved when the necessity arises for stopping suddenly. One interested in public safety has figured out that a car going sixty miles an hour means 44 feet per second; and a car going fifteen miles per hour is going at the rate of 22 feet each second.

If a man driving his car at 60 miles an hour does not see another car coming out of an intersecting street until he is 88 feet from it, he has only one second in which to stop. It cannot possibly be done. If a man is driving at 30 miles an hour and another car coming out of an intersecting street when he is 44 feet from it he has only one second to stop. That is impossible. If a man drives his car at 15 miles an hour and does not see another car coming out of an intersecting street, or a child dodging out from behind a parked machine, or a woman with a baby carriage suddenly starting to cross, until he is 22 feet from the object he has only one second in which to stop. It can't be done.

It might be well for motorists to make a mental note of these figures and then realize that everyone who speeds, especially in congested districts, is endangering his life and the lives of others.—Dawson County Journal.

Let's Be Selfish

When we see a banana skin on the sidewalk, let's kick it into the gutter. It may save us from a nasty fall—and it may also save others.

When we put money in bank, let's put it in our own banks, whose officers we know. It will help us—and will surely help others.

When we buy goods, let's buy them here in our own place, where we can see what we get and know we are getting our money's worth. It will help us—and will help others.

Let's subscribe for our own paper will SURELY help us—and help oth-

The O. M. C. Bridge Club

By JANE OSBORN

(Copyright.)

TED CARSON, sitting at his desk in the city, talked to Howard Fern over his telephone.

"Can you come out and play bridge with us tomorrow? It's our O. M. C. Bridge club and one of the couples can't come. You don't know any of them—but they're perfectly harmless. Yes, bring your tuck—and, say, you don't mind passing as a married man, do you? I'll tell you on the way out. And you can meet your wife at dinner. Madge wasn't sure who she'd get—it has to be some one the crowd don't know."

At about the same time Madge Carson called up Alice Gordon, an old friend who lived in the city. "My dear, I hope you won't think I'm dreadfully rude, but I'm asking you to fill in at bridge tomorrow night. It's our turn to entertain the O. M. C. and Clara and Bill have gone South. You see O. M. C. stands for 'Old married crowd'—though, of course, we aren't exactly old. Well, anyway, we made some fool rules and one of them was that we'd never have anyone be long who wasn't married—and no member is allowed to invite an unmarried stop gap. But really Ted said he'd get some friend of his and I said you could pretend you were married."

So it was arranged, and it was not until Howard Fern came downstairs with Ted for dinner after a hasty change from their business clothes that he knew that the girl whose husband he had been asked to impersonate was Alice Gordon whom he had met five or six times that winter in the city, and in all probability they would meet again occasionally. That was what made the situation a little more embarrassing. But it was agreed that they were to play the role of Mr. and Mrs. Bob Norcott.

After the cards were over the various members took places round the tables drawn together for the supper to follow, and at while Ted and Madge Carson brought on the refreshments. Some one brought up the subject of proposals and Madge announced that she didn't think that Ted ever did propose to her.

"I certainly did propose," Ted answered. "We were at a Sunday school picnic and I'd been drinking pink lemonade, and we stayed behind the others in the grove—I can remember the mosquitoes. One stung me on the nose when I kissed you."

So that started it. It was moved, seconded and carried that everyone confess how he or she became engaged.

"Don't have the girls in on this," objected Madge. "Because they'd tell different stories and then we'd find out what lies our husbands really are. We'll just listen while you do the romancing. Gerald, it's your turn." So Gerald told briefly of his own proposal, and then came time for Howard.

"You'd better let Bob Norcott out of this," suggested Madge, a little nervously, but half a dozen of the men protested. Howard was in for it, and Madge and Alice waited with some concern. Howard showed no signs of disconcertedness.

"Isn't much to tell," he said smiling reassuringly to Alice. "The only really remarkable thing about it was that she was willing to have me. You see I'd met her a few times and she—well, you know how a girl can treat a man without being at all rude. Snuggly—I call it. I knew I wanted her and I sat up nights trying to think of a way to get acquainted. Then one night we went to fill in at a card party—much like the party tonight—and I knew right then that I'd got to ask her, and though we had both been asked to spend the night I asked our hostess if I could see her home. I thought maybe I'd get my courage up on the way. It was on the train going in to town that it happened. I never had an idea that she'd have me—!" Howard looked up and across at Alice with a straight, eager look that made her blush. But somehow she rose to the occasion.

"You're as bad as the rest," she told him. "I was crazy about you from the first. I think it was I who suggested going home together and I'm sure I did the actual proposing."

Madge gulped her amusement, but no one noticed it, and the confessions went on. Then they finished supper and there was the usual leave taking and Howard and Alice were alone with their host and hostess. Howard said he thought really he ought to get back that night—and as he was going perhaps he could take Miss Gordon. So they started and on their way to the station a few minutes walk away they said sincerely a word.

"You are a very good actor," Alice said at last. "I don't see how you carried it off so well."

"I'm not an actor at all," said Howard without smiling. "You know what I meant. It was pretty hard, though, having to sit there and listen to you, knowing all the time that you were laughing at me."

Alice looked away from Howard toward the dark window. "Perhaps I meant what I said, too," she said. "Then you really could think of me—you would marry me?" asked Howard.

Alice turned and looked at him. "Of course I meant it," she said and then she laughed. "Didn't I say I had to do the proposing—and now I think I really have."

Vanishing America

John and Mary were going through the museum. Wide-eyed, they passed slowly from glass case to glass case, reading the inscriptions on the exhibits, and remarking upon the strange things they saw. Finally they came to a case that puzzled them. It was a model street scene, carefully worked out and designed by some plastic artist. It represented a deserted section of a city street.

"What is that, anyway?" asked Mary.

John stood studying it a few moments.

"It's a parking space," he replied.—New Orleans Times-Picayune.

Development Steady Pace

Development is to be in the Big Spring section in the future. One of three wildcat wells is being drilled in the big time to encounter pay. The wells are now drilling fast and only the drill bit is what lies that deep below.

Drilling campaign is going on in the neighborhood of Big Spring. The drilling of 17 miles southeast of Big Spring and also in the Clay field. The drilling of these fields will cause wells to be put down. The drilling is centered in the Magnolia Petroleum Company's Dora Roberts No. 1, block 29, W. and N. W. 330 feet from west line and 2,310 feet from south line. Five or six tests are being run on acreage surrounding well. If all these wells produce, that section will be the earmarks of an oil pool. Oil men have located in West Texas. It will then require a thorough drilling of the area. With the test in the Clay field, true oil sand at 2550 feet, that all the territory Magnolia and Marland worked over and the shallow fields will produce deeper production. Oil men are working ahead in the Big Spring area and believe the fields are good for a long term of years.

BIG SPRING TO HAVE A POULTRY FARM

Some two and one half acres have been secured inside the city limits just south of Coleman camp for such a farm. One incubator of 2400 egg capacity has been purchased and will be ready for operation not later than January 1. Plans are being rushed to have this new farm properly fenced, incubator house, brooder house, and 100 foot hen house built. It is hoped that we can have this farm stocked with 1000 white leghorn layers by January 1.

If you expect to have your own eggs hatched, if you will want the best eggs that can be bought from purest White Leghorn stock, if you want high grade baby chicks it will be well to look over the stock your own Poultry farm has.

This new farm will be known as the Big Spring Poultry Farm. It will be financed by Big Spring people. It will be supervised by a Big Spring man and will be managed by Mr. Clifton Haynes brother-in-law of Claude Wingo, pastor First Christian Church.

Work is expected to start on the ground Monday, December 5. See the progress, look for further announcement.

oil from the Dora Roberts No. 1, and the producing wells in the Chalk field. One 10,000 barrel tank and one 2500 barrel tank have been erected at the pumping plant. Electrically operated pumps and boosters will be used to gather the oil and send it on to the tank farm near New Stanton.

At The Connolly No. 1. Straight reaming to lower casing in the Marland Oil Company's Connolly No. 1, four miles south of Big Spring, has been in progress this week.

This test has reached a depth of more than 3800 feet and it looks as though the Marland planned to make a real deep test of this well.

The Dixie Oil Company Making Deep Test

The Dixie Oil Company is to make a deep test out of their shallow producer in the Clay oil field. They will drill on down to the 2550 foot mark where the Marland Oil company found an oil sand that promises to make around 400 to 600 barrels per day.

Magnolia's Big Tank Farm

The Magnolia Petroleum Company recently purchased of A. L. Bell 160 acres of land out of section 12, block 30, Twp. 1S, on which they plan to establish a larger tank farm.

Two 5000 barrel tanks have been erected on this tract and it is said they are to erect from 16 to 50 of these immense storage tanks. This tank farm is six miles east of Coahoma. The trunk pipe line of the Magnolia Company crosses the land and this company has producing wells a mile or two East.

Green Valley Marland No. 1

One of the interesting test wells now being drilled in Howard county is the Marland No. 1 in the Green Valley community in the northeastern portion of the county. This well is being drilled by Geo. McCamey. This well is located in the middle of the southwest quarter of Section 32, Block 27 H. & T. C. Ry. Co. survey in the Jones ranch tract.

Ten inch casing has been set at a depth of 1155 feet and they are now drilling in a sandy lime formation below 1400 feet. This test is located eighteen miles northeast of Big Spring.

Other Development in Big Spring Oil Fields

Marland & Texan No. 1 Settles, section 159, block 29, W. & N. W. in center of southwest quarter, retested, plugged back to 1,307 feet; to drill deeper; total depth 1,315 feet.

Sun Oil Company No. 1 W. R. Settles, section 135, block 29 W. & N. W. survey, 330 feet from east and south lines.

Magnolia Petroleum Company No. 2 Dora Roberts, section 157, block 29, W. & N. W. 330 feet from north line and 2,310 feet from west line.

C. of C. Directors Special Meeting

Plans for Membership Drive, Annual Banquet, Airport, Improving Postal Facilities Are Discussed

A special meeting of the directors of the Chamber of Commerce was held Monday night to carry out various problems which should be handled before the date of the Annual Banquet, December 15.

The plans for the annual membership drive were discussed at length and it was decided to launch this drive on December 16th. E. A. Kelley was appointed chairman of the drive with authority to select as many captains as he deemed necessary to insure the success of the drive. Each captain is to select his lieutenants. One of the plans is to make membership in the Chamber of Commerce a continuous rather than a yearly membership with the understanding that members are privileged to withdraw any time upon giving the secretary 30 days notice of intention to withdraw.

Plans for the annual banquet are well advanced and arrangements will be made to accommodate three hundred on this occasion. Speakers for the occasion are now being secured.

Judge Coombs, former mayor of Abilene, and known throughout West Texas as a most interesting talker, will deliver the principal address at the banquet.

The secretary was instructed to compile a record of the work for the year and have 500 copies printed. These will be ready for distribution at the annual banquet.

The Airport Committee has been advised of objections to site selected for airport by licensed aviators, because of obstructions, and are to make an effort to secure a larger field which will accommodate all types and sizes of airplanes, one that airmen shall pronounce adequate.

The congested condition at the post office came up for comment. It was suggested that steps should be taken to relieve the situation. That more help is needed to relieve congestion at the general delivery window was vident to everyone. If we are not to have a Federal building for years to come, the postal authorities should be making an effort to secure larger quarters for the local office. If you doubt that the postal clerks are working under a handicap just take a peek into the office when the mail trains from the East unload their mail here.

If the postal authorities refuse to comply with the requests of postmaster Ward the public should cooperate by taking the matter up with the postal authorities, demanding relief.

The membership will do the selecting of the directors of the Chamber of Commerce for the ensuing year. Forty have been nominated to be directors and the members are to select twenty to be elected Ballots with the forty names will be mailed out on December 5th and you are requested to scratch off all but the 20 names you wish to serve as directors. Mail this list to the secretary not later than December 9th.

The secretary made a report on the good roads meeting at El Paso where a plan for advertising and popularizing the "Broadway of America," the all weather highway thru the South, was adopted.

A report was made on two propositions for the establishing of an oil refinery in Big Spring. The representatives made a survey of the situation and gave statements as to what they would do. The financial responsibility of these companies are now being investigated.

Mr. Caton of the Southwestern Bell Telephone Company, was present and stated his company had let the contract for the erection of their new office building in Big Spring. The cost of building and equipment will approximate $200,000.

Arthur Adams, president of the Southwest Campaign Bureau with headquarters at Dallas, was present at this meeting and stated his company was going to establish a West Texas office in Big Spring. This corporation is interested in general promotion and financing work.

Mrs. A. M. Ripps and son James returned Sunday night from Fort Worth, where they had been to spend the Thanksgiving holidays with relatives and friends.

Luncheon Club Enjoys Meeting

Securing a Community Nurse, Putting a Stop to Fake Advertising Among Subjects Discussed

An unusually large attendance and a mighty fine meal made this weeks meeting one of the best enjoyed in some time. Several visitors were in attendance.

President J. B. Pickle stated he was going to permit the secretary of the Chamber of Commerce to get an announcement off his chest before he turned the meeting over to the chairman of the program committee, Dr. Wofford Hardy. The secretary desired to announce that an election was to be held next week to elect 20 directors to manage the affairs of the Chamber of Commerce next year. Every member is to be mailed a ballot with forty candidates listed and you are asked to scratch twenty, leaving the names of the twenty you wish elected directors. You are asked to return the ballots to the office of the secretary by Friday, December 9th.

Mr. Pickle announced the following on the program committee for next week:

R. T. Pizer, W. V. Montin and C. W. Cunningham.

Chairman Hardy announced that the first speaker on the program would be Mrs. Chas. K. Bivens. Mrs. Bivens explained that her mission was to solicit the cooperation of the Luncheon Club in putting over the sale of Red Cross seals. As the business men were familiar with the aim and object of the seal sale she gave her time to explaining how our city and county would benefit if we sold our quota of $500 worth of Christmas seals. By the agreement made with the State Secretary 60 per cent of the $500 can be retained to pay the salary of a community nurse. As the seal sale amounts to from $300 to $400 each year it would not require much more effort to increase the Christmas Seal Sale to $500 and thereby save this $200 for a needed community service. While this would secure the services of a trained nurse for but three months it would be a start towards securing one for full time. Members of the Parent Teachers Association and others who are aware of the need of the examination of children and the promotion of health and hygiene among our young people are more than anxious to back up the movement to secure the services of a community nurse.

Mrs. Bivens stated that they were meeting with such splendid success but just wanted to be sure the Luncheon Club would cooperate should it be necessary to successfully put over the drive to sell our quota of $500 in Christmas Seals. The members let it be known that they would accord this cooperation.

Shine Phillips was next called upon to give a little talk on "Fake Advertising." Mr. Phillips listed a dozen schemes which are periodically worked on the business men under the guise of advertising. He said most of these were pure fakes, mere donations or graft and the smooth guy who collected was about the only one who profited. He said 99 per cent of the so-called advertising scheme had no advertising value, and it would be a big saving to the business men if some method could be adopted to censor the schemes, and business men refuse to patronize the solicitors unless they had the O. K. of an advertising committee.

A motion prevailed that Mr. Phillips' suggestion be acted upon and the Chamber of Commerce be requested to appoint an advertising committee to pass on all advertising propositions. It was suggested that all business men make an agreement to abide by the decision of the advertising committee.

The Secretary of the Chamber of Commerce said he heard somebody say that Howard County could save $10,000 for the maintenance of our highways if every automobile owner waited until after December 31 to secure a renewal of his auto license. It seems that a big proportion of this amount goes to the state and National Highway departments if paid before January 1st. He suggested it would be worth while to look this matter up and if true, we could well afford to wait until January 1st and add Howard county to the list of $10,000.

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE IN NEW HOME

The Chamber of Commerce headquarters are now located in the new Crawford Hotel building, adjoining the lobby and fronting on the Bankhead Highway. This is going to make an ideal office and easy for visitors and tourists to find. On the windows in gold lettering will be printed the following:

"Chamber of Commerce and Agriculture," Road Information."

The new furniture for the Chamber of Commerce has not yet arrived but the secretary and assistant will make up for the lack of furniture by according you a warm welcome.

Remember you are, or should be, as interested in Big Spring and its future as the members of the Chamber of Commerce and you are invited to call and learn just what the C. of C. is doing to add the growth of this community.

DEPUTY SHERIFF S. LAYNE ASSIGNED TO OIL FIELD DUTY

Deputy Sheriff S. Layne has been assigned to duty in the oil fields in Howard county and made his first official visit to Ross City last Monday night. He arrested three men and three women in a rooming house at Ross City on a charge of vagrancy; and they were placed under appearance bonds of $38.85 each. Mr. Layne has served notice that he is going to break up the practice of unmarried couples occupying rooms at these oil town rooming houses and expects to make visits quite frequently, so be sure you get this warning.

He also notified a goodly number of crap shooters and poker players who are living off the workers, they must get a job or move to other fields.

He says there are too many good people living and working in the oil fields to permit these gamblers and morons to take charge and run things to suit themselves, and if the people will accord their cooperation he will do more than his part to prevent law violations at Ross City and other places in the county.

13221 BALES OF COTTON RECEIVED

Cotton receipts were continuing at a steady pace until Wednesday's cold snap put in an appearance. The receipts for the past five days amounting to 868 bales. The grade of cotton is not holding up as in the past as many bales of bollies are now making their appearance.

Bollies are now bringing from 17 to 18 cents per pound.

Up to December 1st Public Weigher J. W. Carpenter has received at the compress warehouse 11396 bales. About 3650 rund bales equivalent to 1825 five hundred lb. bales have been ginned at the Kelsling gin this season. The total receipts at Big Spring up to December 1st will therefore total 13,221 bales.

According to the U. S. ginning report 11,581 bales of cotton had been ginned in Howard county up to November 15th.

VOTE FOR C. OF C. DIRECTORS

Every member of the Chamber of Commerce is going to be given an opportunity to decide who shall direct the affairs of the association during the coming year. A list of 40 directors will be mailed to you; scratch the ones you do not vote for leaving the names of the twenty you want to serve as directors.

Rev. Bailey newly appointed minister of the First Methodist Church made a brief talk in which he expressed pleasure upon being in West Texas and stated that he expected to make Big Spring a real citizen. He said he was ready to do his bit whenever he could serve the city, any of the local organizations or any of its citizens. While he loved Methodism he said he was not going to deny any man the right to choose his creed, and he was able to work shoulder to shoulder with men of any and all denominations. He complimented us on having a fine live city and expressed a desire to meet more of the citizens. He said he had been able to make friends other places and he hoped to have every man, woman and child in Big Spring as his friend before he was moved from our city.

Paving Planned for Highway No. Nine

Highway From San Antonio to Amarillo is to be Paved Within Next Two Years

Howard county must fall in line and vote bonds for the paving of Highway No. 9 passing through our county north and south from Amarillo to San Antonio. All of the counties along the way are making definite arrangements for this paving program, and it will not do for our county to lag behind. The paving of Highway No. 9 will mean a greater increase of tourist travel, as heavy as that on the Bankhead highway, and every place along the route will receive benefits. If this paving program is carried out.

That not more than two years will elapse before each county on the route of Highway No. 9, from Amarillo to San Antonio, will have definite arrangements for the paving of their respective sections is the forecast of Claud C. Wild, manager of the San Angelo Board of City Development, who is taking an active and leading part in a concerted move to pave the entire highway.

Hale county has voted bonds for the paving of the section of highway No. 9 through Plainview, Hale Center and Abertathy from the north line of Lubbock county to the south line of Swisher county, and the engineer is on the job now making his surveys for actual construction. Two for one federal and state aid has been allowed on the Hale Center project, and the commissioners' court of Hale county has sold $100,000 worth of the bonds to match the aid the government on the grade and drainage structures. Definite location of the route has been made through the county, and actual construction is expected to begin before January 1.

Randall county occupies a similar position on the highway and construction work from Amarillo to Canyon is expected to proceed at once, the route having been definitely determined and agreed upon.

Tom Green county, according to Wild, has let two contracts, one for the hard-surfacing of the sector from San Angelo to the line of Concho county, and the other from San Angelo to the Sterling county line.

Sterling county is to call an election to vote on bonds within a short time, according to Wild. Other counties contemplating issues are Swisher, Lubbock and Lynn counties.

HATCHERY ASSURED

A Hatchery with initial capacity of 10,000 eggs will soon be in operation in Big Spring, and the capacity of the hatchery will be increased just as rapidly as the conditions justify.

Albert Sikes, formerly of Goldthwaite, is to put in the hatchery and has already placed an order for the 10,000 capacity incubator.

Mr. Sikes and family arrived in Big Spring last Saturday and have leased a home and site for the hatchery in the south part of Big Spring.

COUNTY RECEIVED $10,800 FROM AUTOMOBILE LICENSES

Howard county received $10,800 on automobile license fees for the twelve months ending October 1, 1927. This year, provided the auto licenses are paid after December 31, 1927, the county will receive 30 per cent of the weight tax, additional to the tax heretofore received on the horse power on all cars. Paying your automobile license before January 1, 1928, will take from the county the 30 per cent she would otherwise receive.

BAILEY RATES

DRY DEMOCRATS

Taking issue with "purblind reformers" who would commit the Democratic party as such to the single idea of support of a specific public prohibition rather than to the general principle of national prohibition, Senator Joseph W. Bailey, in a statement offered to The News, says that a party need not hold a national convention next year since any candidate that might be nominated would command only a divided support.

In his statement Senator Bailey says:

"From time to time during the last three or four months communications have appeared in your paper in which the writers, after claiming that they have been life long Democrats, declared they would not vote for the Democratic presidential nominee next year unless he is in favor of prohibition.

Aspect Becomes Grave

"I could not believe that such men represented any considerable body of Democrats, and, consequently, I did not think it worth my time or your space to comment on what they said; but several recent events have given a very serious aspect to that question. During the last week the General Baptist Convention at Wichita Falls and a convocation of Methodist ministers at Houston have very emphatically avowed their purpose to oppose the Democratic nominee for President, if he is opposed to prohibition, and last Sunday Dr. George W. Truett stated from his pulpit that he will not vote for any presidential candidate who is opposed to prohibition. With these churches and churchmen thus aligning themselves it is time that some Democrat shall brave the displeasure of these purblind reformers by pointing out the consequences of their conduct.

"If prohibitionists, claiming to be Democrats, have a right to say that they will not vote for our presidential nominee if he is opposed to prohibition, then anti-prohibitionists, claiming to be Democrats, have a right to say that they will not vote for our presidential nominee if he favors prohibition, and the threat of the first is certain to provoke the counter-threat of the second. Under such a situation the Democratic party might as well hold a national convention next year; for whatever might be the attitude of our candidate on that particular question, he could only command a divided support, and his overwhelming defeat would be inevitable.

Facing Disaster

"That would be bad enough if its effect could be confined to the one election to be held in 1928; but its effect can not be so confined. Our nominee was defeated more than 7,000,000 votes in 1920 and by more than 7,500,000 in 1924. Another defeat like either of the last two is apt to end in the disruption of the Democratic party; and all loyal Democrats should understand the great and perhaps irreparable disaster which we are facing.

"And what is this question over which it is now proposed to divide, and probably to destroy, our great and historic party? To a prohibitionist it is simply a question of police regulation, and can never be anything more or less. That being true, no man has a right to call himself a Democrat and exalt it above the great and essential principles of a free government, or even above the vital questions of policy which relate to the regulation of railroads the levy of tariff duties and currency legislation. Speaking plainly, but without bitterness, I feel obliged to say that a man who can subordinate all of the great issues of American politics to the single question of prohibition, is out of place in the Democratic party, and properly belongs in the national Prohibition party." AS TREE PLANTING SEASON NEARS

The season of the year is at hand when Dallas property owners whose holdings are yet to be improved will give thought to the matter of planting trees, shrubs and flowers. Individual taste and the individual pocketbook will influence the decisions and decide the plans for the most part. But it will be wise business of any home owner, however modest his outlay and limited his effort may be, to give serious consideration to the selection of the stock he will plant and exacting personal attention to the preparation of the ground in which the stock will be reset.

Failure with shade trees, particularly has been often due to the inattention of the investing home owner along the lines mentioned. Haphazard selection and haphazard planting yield little return for the effort and expense, nor can they be expected to do so. No citizen would put money into a building house without knowing the quality of materials used in the type of foundation, or without keeping an eye on the work of construction as it progresses.

If he exercised an intelligent vigilance with regard to the nursery stock that he puts into the home ground he would get results for his money. The surest method of procedure would be to direct the preparation of the soil in advance of planting, and then to buy stock from the most dependable sources. Picking up shade trees at a song from itinerant peddlers—and many such operate in Dallas and the adjoining suburban cities during the planting months—will be to take chances on losing the trees and another year of time. The home owner who plans well and plants only reliable stock will save both money and time—Dallas Journal.

KEEPING THE MARKET IN A TURMOIL

The Grain Futures Administration of the Department of Agriculture, through their investigations, have at least exposed some of the methods employed by gamblers in creating an unstable market, even though it may be without authority to correct abuses. And here we suggest that the congressmen from the South become actively interested in the passing of a law creating a Cotton Futures Administration in order that the public become informed as to the extent of gambling in the South's great staple crop.

According to a department publication there are 302 speculators on the Chicago Board of Trade who are in the catalogue of large traders, but of this number only eight were selected by the Administration as topping the list in their influence on the course of prices. Of these we select one and cite his operations over a brief period of time as indicative of what the other seven as well as the lesser lights were doing at the same time.

This speculator, the name not given, was long 8,900,000 bushels of wheat on December 26, 1925. On January 21, 1926, he was short 9,910,000 bushels. On February 4 he was long 6,100,000 bushels, and on February 11 he was again short to the extent of 5,900,000 bushels. On March 19 he was long 8,400,000 bushels, and on April 9 was short 7,700,000 bushels. During this brief period this one speculator bought and sold more than 46,000,000 bushels of wheat, never delivering or receiving a single grain. One week he would be long and the next he would be short, and in co-operation with other speculators, kept the market bobbing up and down with such rapidity that a spot dealer in wheat had much difficulty in handling grain through the legitimate trade.

There are some who claim that gambling in farm products is essential to the making of a market. Will someone tell us of what benefit the operations just cited were to either producers or consumers? Farm & Ranch.

WEST TEXAS LAND OWNERS EXPECTING SHOWDOWN IN SUIT

San Angelo, Nov. 26.—When James E. Ferguson filed on four leagues of land on the Crockett county ranch of J. M. Shannon of San Angelo, oil lease matters became more complicated in West Texas.

Shannon says he expects a showdown in the case of January 1st, as oil companies at that time will either pay rental or drop the leases.

This land exchanged hands several times before he bought it about 20 years ago from Theodore Bjorkman for $1.50 an acre.

An attack as to the constitutionality of a county selling oil and mineral rights may come out of the case, San Angelo attorneys believe, while some point out that the validity of the sale of the land by Archer County years ago may be the basis of the action of the Archer County commissioners and Ferguson in fighting the suit. APPRECIATION

Far uptown in the city Douglas and Dorothy were walking when they saw a great many children in a large playground.

"Hello," called Douglas.
No one answered, and Dorothy said: "Perhaps they are in the middle of some game and they have taken sides and we'd only be in the way if we joined."

"That's so," agreed Douglas. "But still," he added, "as the children are there, they should have some fun. There are only boys playing at it and not a girl in the crowd and there are a lot of girls playing."

Maybe they would like to have some play with them. I will stay here and watch this game. It is a basket ball game of the boys here. Just started playing while you ask the girls if they will let you play with them. It would be fun for you."

So Dorothy called out to the girls in the big playground, but they did not answer.

Suddenly Douglas rushed up to

Douglas and Dorothy Were Walking

where Dorothy was standing now and said:

"They don't even speak to each other. They talk with their fingers—not with their voices at all. They must be deaf and dumb!"

Some one overheard Douglas as he gave this bit of news to Dorothy and looked at him.

"Are you so surprised?" asked the stranger.

"No," said Douglas. "Only at first we thought they were very rude not to answer when we spoke to them."

"They are the deaf and dumb children who live in those big buildings you see," said the stranger. "Watch them explaining and saying things to each other—all with their fingers—for, of course, that is the only way they have of talking."

Just at that moment Douglass heard a bugle call and then a band. "Oh, a band!" he cried excitedly.

"It's the band belonging to these children," said the stranger, "and the boys play in it."

The boys marched around the grounds, while the band led the way, playing fine tunes all the time. How gay it seemed! How wonderful! A band all for themselves.

"How lucky they are," said Douglas as he watched the boys playing and the others marching, keeping quite good time with the music, for they could hear the sound of the music faintly.

But there were others who could not even hear that much.

"Oh," said Douglas thoughtfully, "we are the lucky ones after all. How fine it is, though, that in the city these children have so much they could not have somewhere else."

"But," he added, "I almost feel as though it were a wonder to have my ears."

"Same here!" agreed Dorothy. "It makes us appreciate what we have which we've grown so used to, when we see these children."

Daddy's Evening Fairy Tale

By MARY GRAHAM BONNER

A VISIT AND CLOCK

"We've had so much pleasure ourselves lately," said Uncle John one afternoon about a week later, "and so many adventures, that I suggest we give some one else a little fun—or maybe a few others."

"Goodie," said Dorothy. And Douglas said:

"Sure! It would be fine to entertain some one else with our toys or perhaps stories of our adventures."

"I'm sure," said Uncle John cheerfully, "that both ideas will work out to perfection."

They started off after a little while, for at first the children tried to carry more toys than they possibly could and they failed to give any of them up.

At last they reached a corner where there was a flower shop.

"We shall get some flowers," said Uncle John, "and we shall get very bright, gay ones, too."

They had one more bundle to carry, but they were at the building where Uncle John told them the children were.

"They are all sick—every one of them," said Uncle John.

When they got inside and saw the rows and rows of beds with little children—so many of just about the same ages as they were, too—they felt very sad.

But after they began to talk to the children, and saw how cheery and happy they were, Douglas and Dorothy felt quite differently.

Uncle John gave every child a flower. He did not put all the flowers in a far corner of the room, but every little sick person had his or her own flower to look at and smell and then to put in water by her side.

Douglas and Dorothy went around to the different beds. They gave the children the toys they had brought, and how much those toys did help the painful legs and arms and backs!

Then they told the children of the adventures they had had and of the wonders which they had never seen before.

How Much Those Toys Did Help!

"Are there no grown-ups in this hospital?" asked Dorothy.

"No," said one of the children. "There are just sick children here. And though we are sick, it's much nicer to have others around us of our own age and have all the sick people children we can talk to."

"What a happy afternoon we had, too," said Douglas.

And Uncle John told Douglas and Dorothy that the parents of these children did not have to worry about doctors' and nurses' bills, for this was a free hospital where their children could get well.

When evening came Uncle John said:

"Our day is not over, for we are going to see the wonderful Metropolitan clock, which, as you know, is three stories in height, lighted up."

"Oh, how fine!" exclaimed Douglas. "I've never yet recovered from the shock of realizing that that clock did take up three floors of the building as far as its height went," Dorothy said.

"I've never even seen a small clock lighted!" Douglas said. "I can't, for the life of me, imagine what it will be like."

They got out of the subway that evening and walked over to Madison Square park. They stood then before the great Metropolitan tower and looked up at the clock, which was lighted up, while flashlights marked the hours in the evening for those far away.

Just then a red flash was seen.

"That means it is a quarter before the hour. We shall stay here for an hour," said Uncle John, "and see all that happens."

Then when the hour was to be signaled, four red flashes came—for it was an even hour—and after that a number of white flashes followed. At half-past eight Douglas and Dorothy saw two red flashes and at quarter of nine three flashes.

"It's just like a great Fourth of July celebration, I think," said Douglas.

"And to think that all this fuss and beauty is just for a clock. Sometimes at home we forget to wind up the clock and it stops for several days."

"This clock never stops," said Uncle John, "and it is lighted up so many can see it—nearly and far off—for in the city there is so much to do—so much to see—that we mustn't get behind the time. We must keep up with the clock, eh? And oh, there are so many who love and enjoy its chimes and its beautiful tone when it strikes."

MISS SEDLEY shook her head so violently that each of the rough plumes on her new picture hat fell at a different angle. The effect was grotesque, little as she dreamed it—his end her thought was how wonderfully fetching it must appear in village eyes. Certainly it could not be copied by home milliners who store their hats in their closets.

Worst among these offenders was Marge Benton. Marge, a school teacher, was vacation-bound to be the patron of plumes to her pupils. In stand she inclined them by precept and example to trail after styles they could not possibly hope to approach—thereby, said M. Sedley to her nudes, they made themselves ridiculous caricatures of their betters.

In virtue of her position she had adopted herself as a kind of Lincolnton, and so far she had got away with it. Almost in the cradle she had developed a crush upon all her belongings, and, especially, her figure—it was so statuesque. A fine tailor, given carte blanche, might have made the epithet descriptive. At the hands of a passionate mail-order catalogue addict the result can be pictured only by a fluent imagination.

This fall the catalogues had according to Jess Tyree, the village oracle, "done their d—dest, just when they oughter not." There was, you see, a drive on—for a trifle of a million endowment for X. Y. Z university, which had a Lindentowner for president.

Bright and early Monday, Goodness, of Men and Causes, would flood the town. A bishop, freshly widowed, headed the list, two senators supported him, flanked by congressmen, and judges galore.

Hence the flutterings of the dove coots. Lindentown was, to put it mildly, shy at least a dozen eligibles. Now for years there had been speculation as to how, when, where, and whether Sarah Sedley would find a man she'd think worth her taking. Not so young now, Sarah—twenty-six, maybe more. What wonder Lindentown all but unanimously elected the coming bishop her predestined mate?

Lindentown made holiday gaily—put on its best looks, clothes, mood. The Great in procession passed up and down and athwart its limits, smiling, saluting, swapping merry banter with the natives. Sarah Sedley had elected to meet them at the train.

And Marge was to sing on the great occasion—not alone but leading an "Elves" chorus of ten small green-clad girls she had been training in strict privacy for a month. Billy Durant had made that possible—his big empty house had given fine exercise space. After listening once or twice he had smiled, nodded, and said off-handedly to Marge: "We'll have a float all leaves and flowers and things—surprise the crowd with it just as the bishop finishes—after they're done—some one shall say these golden voices are samples of our native ores—wanting to work the mine is why we need capital."

At earliest dawn of the great day Lindentown began to stir and thrill. Things went like clockwork. The parade formed and filed magically, and got under way without a single hitch. Sarah Sedley, in the forefront, had never felt finer—nor looked worse. She thought the bishop impressed.

He was—but not exactly as she would have chosen him to be. Maybe he took his breath, else maybe he cut her tongue. He spoke something hurriedly less than twenty minutes instead of the hour everybody had come to hear. Then in waltzed a string band specially ordered by Billy Durant—and to its last sweet strains there rolled majestically in front of the stand what seemed a magic miniature forest, with elves perched here and there, showing now a head, now a dappled hand, now the dancing feet of a small lovely foot and leg.

Then as a hidden somebody drew a long lovely chord from a fine old fiddle music such as Lindentown had never before heard, Marge, awestruck, took a greenery, sang her very best—high golden notes that accented the going chanting. Not long drawn-out—twelve minutes at the most. Then came Ned Woodruff to take the crowd by storm. In the midst of which the bishop held up a silencing hand as he said to say: "A wholly new experience, my friends! Who before us has listened to elfin music, led by the voice of an angel?"

After that things had to go with a crash there was hardly a bit of use for organized enthusiasm—money and gumming, popping, pouring in every hand. Everybody caught the spirit of giving—a giving that did not hurt.

Marge stood palpitant—pulled into the limelight against her will. Sarah Sedley had called out with a high thrill. A thousand more right here! Any—any want to top it?

"I do," from Durant, turning to face the bishop as he spoke. "Will ten thousand extra tempt you to marry me right off the reel? Been waiting a long time to have a bishop handy—"

"With all my heart!" cried the bishop. "The bride—where is she?"

"Also waiting—I picked her out the day she was born," Durant said superbly. "But I dared not tell her so until all things were ready—"

"Ah!" said the bishop with his most benevolent intonation; "I understand. The good work go forward."

Warns Against Tariff Revision

John E. Edgerton Takes Sharp Exception to Action of Business
Men's Commission

New York, Nov. 27. Following the recent publication of the report of the "Business Men's Commission" set up by the National Industrial Conference Board and the United States Chamber of Commerce to study the agricultural situation, John E. Edgerton, president of the National Association of Manufacturers, in an official statement today, takes sharp exception to recommendations for a Congressional revision of the tariff or any general overhauling of the tariff at this time. He points to the business and industrial disturbances that this would inevitably bring about and need for methods that will make the protective tariff policy perform its true function.

"The Business Men's Commission" which was set up several months ago by the United States Chamber of Commerce and the National Industrial Conference Board to study and report upon the agricultural situation has performed its difficult task and given to the public the results of its investigations and suggestions," says Mr. Edgerton's statement. "These gentlemen did their work sympathetically and with the indubitably single purpose of performing a helpful service to the nation. With due regard for their high character and able work, I must express disagreement with particularly one important part of the Commission's conclusions. It is apparent that its reference to the relation of the tariff to the agricultural problem has been widely construed as suggesting the necessity for 'tariff revision.' If by that reference a general overhauling of the tariff is recommended, it would be a most unfortunate suggestion. I understand the Commission to have in mind a need for the readjustment of particular parts of the tariff. I keenly regret that in this connection that distinguished body did not make itself clear and did not find occasion to emphasize the most important of all questions which relate to tariff revision; namely, the method by which it shall hereafter be accomplished.

"Business can survive disaster but it is always difficult for it to cope with uncertainty. Nothing is more essential to its well-being than confidence which is the greatest of all stabilizing influences. The continual talk about 'monkeying' with the tariff is a constantly disturbing factor and the sooner this admittedly economic question is removed effectually and permanently from the gridiron of political contest the better it will be for all business, big and little, and for the public at large. It is most unfortunate, therefore, at this time, that apparent encouragement has been given to those who are agitating for obviously political purposes, a congressional revision of the tariff. For this unholy purpose the discontent of the farmer and the general susceptibility of the wage earner and masses to prejudice against conspicuously successful business, are being worked upon. It is to be hoped that the common sense of the nation will prevail against the elements of unthinking agitation with reference to the tariff.

"Our protective tariff system is embedded in our industrial structure, but it operates in the midst of continuing economic changes caused by many forces. The need for a flexible rather than a rigid tariff to perform either its protective or its revenue functions, has been amply demonstrated.

"We have however, two methods of tariff revision: One, a general revision by the Congress; the other, continuing revision through a Tariff Commission. Years of experience with the former method assure us that the approach to Congressional revision, the period of consideration and the aftermath of adjustment covering many months, and even years of time, excite and multiply an uncertainty which destroys stability and makes the future calculation of business policy difficult and at times impossible. It checks enterprise, halts investment, curbs expansion, diminishes employment and is hurtful to every social interest. On the other hand, revision through a Commission possessing the power and the means to apply accurate information to changing economic conditions as a non-partisan body performing a judicial function in applying the progressive results of inquiry to our protective system can make the necessary adjustments without economic disturbance.

Our European neighbors have demonstrated the superior practical advantage of that method of tariff revision. Our own experience makes it evident that the defects in our administration of the tariff are easily distinguishable from the policy itself. For they are defects of personnel and formula. The Commission should be judicial in character, comparable in dignity to a high court, non-partisan and not bi-partisan. We are less interested in knowing foreign costs of production, generally unascertainable, than the prices and conditions under which imported articles are offered in the American market. That is an easily discoverable fact. The only alternative to general Congressional tariff revision, with its accompanying periods of uncertainty and instability, is continuing revision in accordance with ascertained facts by a Commission given the authority and dignity necessary to perform its essential functions.

"The most important tariff issue before our people is not whether this or that provision of the tariff should be revised but by what method shall future revisions be carried forward. Are we hereafter to have political revision or scientific revision, months of groping and uncertainty, or continuing readjustment by qualified and authoritative body which, without business disturbance, can make the protective tariff policy perform its true function?" From National Association of Manufacturers, 59 Church Street, New York 1927.

News From Other W T Fields

REAGAN COUNTY OIL NEWS

Drilling and prospecting have been slow the past week. This is partly to the fact that the approaching holiday season has slackened the drilling operations and all the readjusting and making plans for the next year's arrangements. Oil men, however, are very optimistic over conditions in general and believe that next year will find them all on their feet and put the oil in the oil business. Prices, which seem to think, will go up soon and new fields will be opened in Reagan County.

Following is the local drilling record up to the time of going to press: T. White et al., shut down for 150 feet. I. H. Underwood et al., casing has arrived and work will be resumed as soon as this can be moved to the site, about two miles west of Big Lake.

Shaffer No. 2, shut down. Anderson, section 2, block 50, shut down.

Henshaw Oil company, section 14, block 48, University, Reagan county, pulling casing which collapsed and 2,100 feet.

Shelly Oil company, section 33, block 8, University, Reagan county, shut down.

Williams pool, Powell et al., only sixteen miles southwest of Big Lake, there is quite a bit of activity at the present time.

Williams No. 2 (now Cushing Oil Co.) is setting a big Fairbanks-Morse engine to run the pump well is good for 300 barrels.

Williams No. 1, Humble Oil Co. et al., Gulf Co. and Taylor-Link Co. are holding up good. Big News.

Better Outlook for Pecos Pool

Prospects for continuance of the curb on production in the pool in Pecos County for a term of months beyond January 1st, the expiration of the original term, and adoption of a more stable basis for prorating the oil, easily featured the oil news of last week.

Drilling by the companies concerned of the plans tentatively adopted by company representatives at Fort Worth Friday would have a supporting effect on the not firm market outlook for the oil of West Texas.

On the other hand, it is felt certain that the blowing up of present drilling plans in the pool would be a further cut in the crude of the district a practical certainty. This, in turn, might entirely upturn the outlook for more favorable conditions in the industry as a whole and the prospective bettering of oil in "sweet" oil producing counties, notably Seminole.

The object of the various plans worked out to meet the Pecos situation is to insure to every producer, coming from the common pool, a share in the production. This is now estimated to cover 11,000 acres, that he will secure his proportionate share of the pipe line to market. Fort Worth Star Telegram.

Decision On Rule 37 Big Victory

Austin, Texas, Nov. 27.—First of the opinion of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals at New Orleans were received here Saturday and indicated a more sweeping victory for Texas than at first was expected in sustaining the power of the state to enact laws to conserve oil and gas and in upholding the power of the commission in adopting its Rule 37.

The opinion read:

The Legislature of Texas passed in 1915 to conserve the oil and gas resources of that State. It contains a provision that the Railroad Commission should make and enforce rules and regulations for the drilling of wells in such manner as to prevent injury to adjoining property (Texas Revised Civil Statutes, Art. 6029). In pursuance of that statute the Railroad Commission adopted Rule 37, which is as follows:

"No well for oil or gas shall be drilled nearer than 300 feet to any other completed or drilled well on the same or adjoining land or farm, and no well shall be drilled nearer than 150 feet to any other line, provided that the commission, in order to prevent injury to or protect vested rights, may make exceptions permitting the drilling of wells at shorter distances than as above prescribed upon application filed fully stating the facts and reasons therefor having first been given notice to all adjacent landowners affected by the proposed well. Rule 37 shall not for the purpose be enforced within the provisions of the Gulf Coast."

Winkler Well Is Helped by Shot

Shot with 150 quarts, the Southern Crude Oil No. 3 Ida Hendrick, T-67-C, has been raised from a producer making 500 barrels daily to one flowing 100 barrels per hour.

It is producing from pay at 2,955-3,030 feet. This well is in the narrow strip south from the discovery well and adjoining the Gulf's 160-acre producing lease on the west.

It is reported that the same company's No. 1 Hendrick, T-88-A, in the northeast quarter of section 44, block 26, now flowing less than 900 barrels daily, will also be given a shot.

This well is one of the free wells drilled under 50-50 development contract with the Westbrook interests. Its completion marked a considerable north extension to the field.

Extension in Pecos, Up-Town and Winkler

A half mile western extension of the Yates field in Eastern Pecos county and a half mile western extension of the Taylor pool in Up-Town County were among features of the week's oil development in the Permian Basin in West Texas.

Winkler County also gained two producers and attention was attracted to Concho County by reason of a promising oil showing in Parks & Lawton's No. 1 W. O. Schultz in sandy lime from 1,049 to 1,053 feet. This wildcat was to have been shot late Friday with 40 quarts of nitroglycerin, after having bailed a small amount of high gravity oil, according to reports.

Another Pipe Line To Hendricks Pool

Tulsa, Okla., Nov. 27.—Independent Oil and Gas Company Saturday announced that it would start work Monday on an eight-inch welded line from its wells in the Hendricks pool of Winkler County, West Texas, to a loading rack at Monahan on the T. & P. Railroad, or a distance of twenty-three miles. This line will permit the company to ship 30,000 barrels per day from the Hendricks pool. MERCHANTS PUTTING IN ATTRACTIVE DISPLAYS

In keeping with the Christmas spirit, the merchants and business men of Big Spring are attractively and appropriately decorating the display windows and the interior of their stores and places of business for Christmas. Amid Yuletide surroundings, "open house" will be maintained in every business house during the month of December, while the busy shopper comes and goes, looking for a suitable gift for each member of the family and friends. Shoppers this year will select something that will provide lasting enjoyment, and bring delight to the heart of the receiver. Many beautiful articles for the house and dainty personal gifts are being displayed, and the wise shopper is taking advantage of the days before the rush, and getting first choice of the pretty selections.

During Christmas week, beginning Monday, December 19th, the stores in Big Spring will remain open until later in the evening thus giving those otherwise engaged in the daytime to come and do their Christmas shopping. The over used saying, "shop early" and avoid the rush is still in use this year, as strongly as ever before and the business men want to encourage the Christmas shopper to put this slogan into use.

State Treasurer W. Gregory Hatcher, just back from a trip over Texas, reports at Austin that 25 per cent of the cotton crop is still in the hands of the farmers and is all "valued." Hatcher adds that when that $100,000,000 of clear money is placed in circulation, Texas trade channels will be swelled and general prosperity will result. Fort Worth Star Telegram.

"I admire the leaders of the electrical industry"

Says William Green, President American Federation of Labor "With a business sagacity, which challenges our admiration, the leaders of the electrical industry adopt and put into force each new invention and discovery as soon as it is perfected and ready for market. And I am certain no other industry is devoting so much time, money and effort to the successful expansion of its service and production."

Do you recall the time, just a few years ago, when the only electrical service available was electric light—and it was a novelty? There are sixty-eight and a half million people in the United States living in electrically wired homes; thirty million electric horse power serving American industry; three million investors owning the companies furnishing electric power, heat and light. The rapidity of this expansion, and the universal benefit it has conferred, have been due primarily to the courage, initiative and prophetic vision which have inspired the operations of the country's light and power companies.

Under the sound business administration of these companies, the cost of domestic current has been reduced since 1914 while the cost of living has gone up 68 per cent. In the hands of these companies the public is assured a continuous expansion of electrical service to meet the needs of our national development and at decreasing rates as more current is used. You who have helped to build the electrical age, and who have profited from it in comfort, convenience and happiness, can safeguard its future growth by continued support of the American principal of individual initiative.

What One's Fiance Is For

By DOROTHY DOUGLAS

(Copyright)

TOM GILBERT was always thankful that he had been standing in the doorway of his shop when the incident, just outside, took place.

He watched the girl, as he had many times watched her while she put a great bundle of magazines in the mail box which was on the sidewalk just in front of his shop.

While Gilbert gazed at her, quite satisfied with her from the tips of her well-shod feet to the mass of red-gold hair, his expression suddenly darkened.

He saw a good-looking man approaching the mail box, most obviously intent on a flirtation with the girl.

Gilbert never knew exactly how it happened, but what he did see was the bundle of magazines bumped out of the girl's arms and a swift stooping of both the man and the girl to pick them up.

Apparently their heads came into violent collision for the girl crumpled into an unconscious heap on the sidewalk.

Gilbert didn't like the look on the man's face as he picked the girl up. Without a moment's hesitation Gilbert rushed out.

"See here, what's happened?" he questioned belligerently.

The other held firmly to the limp form of the girl.

"This young lady, a friend of mine, has bumped her head, that's all—no need to make a fuss about it," he said.

"Since the young lady happens to be engaged to me—I think we will make a fuss—give her to me at once!"

The stranger relinquished his burden.

"Oh, that's a different matter," he said with assumed politeness, and escaped from the quickly gathering crowd.

Gilbert scattered them all and carried the girl of his dreams tenderly into the shop and from thence to the big living-room behind, where his mother sat.

"She evidently got a nasty bump," said Gilbert, and gazed anxiously at the fluttering eyelids of the girl. "I don't know whether that dirty dog who tried to claim her did it deliberately or not—it looked mighty suspicious," he growled.

"There, there," said Mrs. Gilbert soothingly. "Don't be judging the man too harshly. Now you run along and mind the shop—she mustn't be frightened when she comes around—by so many people."

"Many people! Just you and me!" laughed Tom, but he obeyed instructions after a lingering glance at her.

"You're quite safe, my dear," said Mrs. Gilbert. "You had a bump on the mail box and you are in the shop just beside it." Did Mrs. Gilbert fancy it or did a light flush stain the girl's cheeks at mention of the shop beside the mail box?

"You are a dear, and how horribly silly of me to bump my head. I think I can stand now." She smiled into Mrs. Gilbert's eyes. "I'm so sorry to have put you to this trouble."

"It was no trouble. I am just thankful my son was looking out the window and—well, my dear, he fancies he rescued you from the clutches of a flirt—but don't breathe a word to him about it."

The blush was very evident now and Tom burst into the room to make inquiries just when it was at its height.

"Well, what a change from the little Pale Face I carried in, mother," he said joyfully.

Peggy Underwood looked up and held out a slim hand.

"It was very, very kind of you, she said sweetly with a swift shy glance at Tom. "And your mother has been so good to me. I am Peggy Underwood and have charge of the library just around the corner."

She rose. "If you don't mind, I must rush back as there is no one in charge, but if I may I should love to come in this afternoon. I have an hour off at four."

"Good," said Tom. "I'll be here, too."

And when four o'clock came Mrs. Gilbert bustled about happily making tea. She loved young people and only hoped that Tom and this lovely girl would find happiness together.

It was a wonderful tea party in the big living-room and, when one entered the shop, it was Mrs. Gilbert who arose to attend.

The man who entered was the one whom Tom considered a cad.

"Oh—I have just come in to inquire after the young lady your son is engaged to," he said, and noticed the surprise in Mrs. Gilbert's face.

But she was quite equal to the occasion. "She is all right now, thank you, and is having tea with us. Oh, Peggy dear," she called out, and Peggy appeared at the door. "This is the gentleman whose head came into collision with yours—he has called to see how you are."

"And to apologize. Your fiance rescued you from the hands of the villain," the man said and watched her closely. "He was a bit of a cavewoman about it, too."

Peggy cast a swift glance at Tom, who had followed close on her heels. There was not the flicker of one long, silky eyelash as she said softly, "Well—that is what one's fiance is for— isn't it?"

And Tom exchanged a broad grin with the mail box outside.

The remains of W. H. Vaughn, pioneer resident of Big Spring were brought to this city for interment in the family cemetery, on the morning passenger train, Tuesday morning.

Funeral services were conducted at the First Presbyterian church at 3:30 o'clock, and the Knights Templar were in charge of the services. Rev. F. H. Stedman acting as Prelate and S. A. Hathcock, acting as Eminent Commander. Burial was made in the Masonic cemetery.

Deceased made his home in Big Spring a number of years, leaving here over ten years ago to make his home with his son in Dallas. Mr. Vaughn was a man of principal and lived a long and useful life. He was held in high esteem by all who knew him, and the many good things that he has done will live after him. He was a noble character, and such a life is exemplary of how the Master wants us all to live.

SUNSHINE GIRLS ENTERTAINED BY MRS. McDOWELL

Dainty refreshments were an added pleasure to this occasion.

All candles were lighted and an ample size basket was modestly decorated in pink and white and was placed in her lap. Then she was unblindfolded for the great surprise.

Happy conversation and viewing the gifts were enjoyed for an hour. Lovely cake and hot chocolate with marshmallows were served to all.

Mrs. Tillmore declared it one of the happiest birthdays of her life and thanked them all and said goodbye and wished her many many more "just as happy" birthdays.

The table was prettily decorated with cut flowers. The Class 2 in Foods, served the refreshments in a dainty manner.

The next regular meeting of the High School P. T. A. will be held in January.

FIRST AID KIT PRIZE IN HEALTH SEAL SALE

A Red Cross First Aid kit will be given to every room in any of the Big Spring schools or to any country school, who sells at least $10.00 of Health seals. These first aid kits are completely equipped, and are well worth working for. They could be used to good advantage at the schools, where pupils are continuously meeting with some minor injury that needs attention to prevent infection.

The Seal Sale opened in Big Spring on Thanksgiving day, and according to Mrs. C. K. Bivings, chairman, the town as a whole, is making good response.

Every business firm and each individual is trying to be reached so that every person in the county will have an opportunity to help raise Howard county's quota, $500.

Good sales are always conducted through the schools, and it is the belief of the chairman that most every room in the local schools will sell at least $10.00 worth of seals so that they will be awarded one of the Red Cross kits.

Assistants have been appointed who in turn have appointed a corp of workers, to conduct the seal sale on the streets in Big Spring. Let every package going through the mail from now until Christmas bear some of the Health seals, and carry the message that Big Spring is doing her part in this good health program. Buy seals until it hurts.

Those assisting Mrs. Bivings in the seal sale are: Misses Zou Hardy, Virginia Wells, Frances Sullivan, Alice Graham Bishop, Margaret Happel, Winnie Dell and Able Nell Rhottan and Mrs. D. L. Barnes, Mrs. F. H. Roe, and others.

FEDERATION CLUBHOUSE COMMITTEE WILL REPORT

The committee appointed at the last regular meeting of the City Federation to make plans for the erection of a Club House for Big Spring will report at the meeting to be held Tuesday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock in the Red Room at the Court House.

It is encouraging to know that many of the Big Spring citizens are interested in the project, and are planning for our town. Mrs. C. W. Cunningham has already offered a lot to the Federation, if they decide to locate the Club house on same. This citizen happens to be a woman, and the offer was made to the Federation president, Mrs. C. W. Cunningham.

Some action as to the location of the clubhouse and the style of architecture will be taken at the meeting to be held Tuesday. All interested should be present.

When the City Federation was first organized in Big Spring years ago, one of the first things that they had in view was to build a City Auditorium. Nothing practical could ever be decided upon, since this was such a big task to finance. But the Federation women are still interested in this project, and will help anyone who will back it.

The Auditorium is needed and a clubhouse too. The clubhouse will have many useful purposes and will be a community center for many social activities. The club house will be of modest dimensions, and attractive and pleasing design, which will make it a great asset to our city.

The Federation women are pleased with the interest shown, and it encourages them to hurry and rush the building to completion.

WATER SYSTEM IN EDWARDS HEIGHTS STARTED

The contract for the installation of the water system in the Edwards Heights addition has been let to Jack Thorp, and Thibet Construction Company. A survey has been made and the right away cleared, and work of installing the water mains, will be started at once.

A system of four inch mains, with two inch lateral lines, will be installed throughout this beautiful subdivision. A reservoir will be installed, when completed will have 50,000 gallon capacity. The reservoir will be located on top of the mountain, just south of the addition, which will give a 200 feet fall for the water. This structure will either be of wrought iron or concrete and will be rushed to completion. The order has already been placed for 6,000 feet of water mains and as soon as they arrive in the city, will be installed. It is thought that the water system will be completed by January 1st.

Electricity and telephone service will also be connected by the first of the year, and when these conveniences are accessible it will be an inducement to the erection of new homes in this beautiful restricted district. The first new home in this subdivision was started last week for Dr. G. S. True.

No more than 50 lots will be offered for sale until after the first of the year. 38 of the sixty lots offered are already sold, and mostly to Big Spring people. Only seven out of town people have invested in a lot in Edwards Heights, restricted.

The streets in the new addition are all graded, and ready for surfacing. Owing to the dry weather, this work has been stopped, until it rains. Jack Thorp and L. M. Lile have purchased a 100 ton capacity rock crusher and will crush the rock that is to be used on the streets and driveway in Edwards Heights.

Everyone is invited to drive out through this new addition and look it over.

MISSIONARY SOCIETY WILL MEET WITH MRS. HARDY

The Young's Woman's Missionary Society of the First Methodist Church will meet at four o'clock, Monday afternoon with Mrs. Wolford Hardy in College Heights Addition. All of the members are invited to be present.

J. F. WOLCOTT ATTENDED FORD DEALERS MEET

J. F. Wolcott, of the Wolcott Motor company, Ford dealers in Big Spring, returned Sunday night from Dallas, where he had been to attend a meeting of the Ford dealers, held in the offices of the Dallas headquarters, Friday and Saturday. At this meeting full information covering the sale and service of the new Ford car was released, and one of the new Fords was on display to the dealers only.

In speaking of the new Ford, Mr. Wolcott stated, "It is everything that I expected it to be."

Much interest centers in the mechanism of the new Ford, and the employees at the plant of the Wolcott Motor company have been besieged with questions about the new car—how fast will it run? how it looks, and how much will it cost? These questions are just as foreign to the employees as to others, who are anxious to see the new Ford and drive one.

It will likely be early in December when the first new Ford arrives in Big Spring. Definite announcement of the date of its arrival will be given later.

Santa will bring with him a big bag of toys which he will keep here for the boys and girls to see, and then distribute them on the Christmas trees or place them in their stockings on Christmas Eve. HILLBILLIES DEFEAT JELLIES 12 TO 6

In a battle that was as strong as the strongest, the Hillbillies noded the Jellies out in a game that put the Hill Billies back in the running for championship. The game was played at the city ball park last Friday morning and witnessed by a fairly good size crowd of fans, and rooters for the Junior football teams.

The game was filled with spectacular plays, among the best was when Will Bell intercepted a Billie pass and galloped 98 yards for the Jellies a score. Late in the third period of the game, Neale intercepted another pass and carried it 60 yards to be downed by Mims. The Jellies outweighed by the Billies, put up a fight that brought cheers from the spectators. For the Jellies, Will Bell was easily the star, although Neale played a good game. The same teams will meet again this week, the winners at the end of this battle will probably be champions of the season.

We are planning a Kite Tournament during Xmas holidays. We hope to have good prizes to offer for big kites, little kites, highest kites, prettiest kites, and the most unique kite.

All scouts will be eligible to enter. All kites must be flown on the day of the tournament before the judges of the day.

BEAUTIFYING OUR HIGHWAYS

Through the city of Big Spring a concerted action should be taken to beautify the homes along the highways.

One variety of shade tree should be decided upon, and every property owner along the street should cooperate in planting a row of these trees.

We know no harder or more attractive appearing tree than the China Berry. This tree, while thriving in this particular section of the country, cannot be grown everywhere. Its dense foliage attracts the attention of visitors from the North, especially. We could select Chinese Elms, another hardy variety, for other streets.

We want our city to present an attractive appearance and one of the most effective methods is to plant trees and flowers along the streets which the tourists and travelers use.

A little paint up and clean up campaign would also help and in addition give the property an added value.

Gilbert Johnson who has been blocking up acreage for the Mid-West Exploration Company, is a business visitor in our city.

CHRISTIAN MEN DECIDE TO ADVERTISE GOOD WORK

Ten men of the First Christian Church came together Monday night to discuss proper advertising of our work. These men believe in advertising. These men believe in the work we are doing. These men believe we have something going on in our Church that would benefit many who do not come. These men want the world to know our work and the joy we have in this work.

After some hour and a half debate as to best means and as to the proper way to bring this before all the people we all at last arrived at one conclusion. Many plans were eliminated. No shoddy plan was wanted. All desired a pleasing, warm, friendly, cordial way of getting our message across. You may look for the new card and much weekly advertisement of the good things that are in store for all at the First Christian Church.

We want to be known by all as Christians, real Christians, and as Christians only.

Recognizing no authority save the scriptures of Christ and his Apostles as revealed in the New Testament.

"It won't be long now," until Jack Frost sweeps down over the city and gives a real wallop. And we can't complain since we have enjoyed ideal weather for crop harvesting this fall. It is not an exaggeration to state that crop production has been doubled due to the non-appearance of frost and clear weather for harvesting.

Days are getting rather short now and it is about dark at six o'clock. Therefore, by mutual consent and agreement we, the following pastors Heard, Owen, Summers, Stedman, Bailey and Wingo, have set 7 o'clock as the hour for Sunday evening worship.

Services will start at seven o'clock each Sunday evening through the winter months in our respective churches.

Nov. 28, 1927.

We the members of the Ministerial Association of Big Spring, Texas, feel a distinct loss in the going of Rev. W. C. Hinds.

We have found him to be a congenial co-pastor, a much loved and honored man.

We commend him to the pastors and to the town in general of Colorado, Texas.

We welcome the coming of Rev. W. G. Bailey and hope to find in him the same good qualifications that recommend a Brother.

Signed: R. L. Owen, chairman. Claude Wingo, Secretary. D. H. Heard, G. O. Summers, and Frank H. Stedman.

An advertisement above all things, is an invitation to the trading public to visit your store. Do not expect to have people call on you if you don't show yourself inclined to extend them a cordial invitation. SAY it with printers' ink.

Who will be Santa Claus to the poor children in Big Spring, this Christmas? There will be no Elks' community Christmas tree and party for the little folks as there has been in the past. We wonder who will take the place and make these little hearts happy, Christmas morning. It wouldn't be a bad idea to have a community Christmas tree, and let everybody contribute.

There are going to be some families in our community who are going to have a dreary Christmas unless some of our folks see to it that they are not overlooked in the hurry and rush to make Christmas a happy occasion for loved ones. Make this a happier Christmas for yourself by ministering to a few of the needy.

Most of us work all right after we get started, but we are hard to get started.

Golconda is a ruined city in India, seven miles northwest of Hyderabad. The diamonds cut and polished on Golconda were once world-renowned. From 1512 it was the seat of a powerful government until it was taken by Aurung-Zeb in 1687 and made a Mogul province.

FACTS AND FANCIES

By A Traveler

While it is very commendable in the citizens of Big Spring to "put over" the big building program she has had on for the past eighteen months—when so many nice homes, enlarged school buildings, magnificent hotels, modern business buildings, etc., have been built and many are now under construction, we must pause to consider the old adage or perhaps scripture which means something like this—"that man cannot live alone, or to oneself for there will be neither happiness or prosperity."

We should offer every legitimate inducement to the people of our neighboring counties to visit our city—make it their trading point as well as a place to transact their banking business. One of the main factors in getting folks to our town is offering them good roads for their motor travel, and a money-saving price on the merchandise handled—coupled with an efficient, courteous service.

Fortunately we have a fairly good highway from our sister county on the south—Sterling, also a fairly good road from our sister county, Dawson on the north—provided it doesn't rain often. As to the Gall road or Borden County road proper, we are not informed as to its general condition. We all know and are very proud of the fact that we have an excellent road—the "Bankhead," or "Broadway of America" Highway on our east and west. Since the writer uses the road to the southwest—or more properly speaking the Glasscock County road, it is of this highway that we wish to say few words. Big Spring and Howard county reap more benefits from this one county and the northern part of Reagan county, whose people traverse this road in reaching Big Spring, than from any other neighboring county, still a part of the highway to Glasscock County is now and has been in an awful state of upkeep. This particular part of which I speak is from the Glasscock county line north for some three miles or more, and to my certain knowledge this road hasn't had a grader on it for fifteen years. It is true it has been "dragged" with a drag with no appreciable result, since a good part of this road is rocky. As stated before this road has been in bad shape for several years, and in our opinion it is in this fact alone that a large share of the Glasscock and Reagan County trade has been going to Stanton, Sterling City and San Angelo.

Glasscock county can boast of one of the best road machines in this part of the state and since acquiring it a year or so ago, she has had capable men put practically every road in the county in "top-notch" shape, and her citizens are not impelled to come to Big Spring, hence we believe Big Spring would profit by getting a grader on the extreme southern portion of the Garden City road in Howard County at an early date.

Big Spring is going to have growing pains in 1928. The new resident districts now being opened will be in demand and many new homes are going to be erected in these new subdivisions. Right now is an opportune time to buy a lot or two as an investment.

Perhaps it will not be as difficult to keep paying in the business district neat and clean when the paved district is enlarged. More blocks of paved streets and more miles of sidewalks would be a good target to shoot at during 1928. These are improvements which increase property values.

AN EXAMPLE FOR COTTON GROWERS

Cotton producers as a general rule, drive from the gin to the public square where they are approached by street buyers who make an offer for the bale in the wagon, after cutting out a generous sample. No one ever heard of a buyer asking a farmer what he would take for his cotton, and no one ever heard a farmer tell a buyer what he would sell his cotton for. Very few growers have any idea what the grade and staple cotton is, and the buyer is rare who ever classed cotton better than middling or pronounced the staple better than one inch. As a matter of fact, many buyers are about as ignorant as the farmers regarding the matter.

The wool and mohair growers of Texas have progressed beyond the point of accepting the other fellow's word for quality and any old price that the buyer may offer. The bulk of the production of wool and mohair is properly warehoused and graded as soon as it is clipped, and instead of the growers seeking the buyer, the buyer seeks the growers and makes a bid for the quantity he wants. If the price suits the grower he accepts, but if it doesn't, he suggests that the buyer either raise his bid or go elsewhere.

The rice growers of Texas, Louisiana and Arkansas are also preparing to have something to say about the price of their product. Rice growers formerly asked the buyer what he would give. This year they have fixed a minimum price on certain grades and are refusing to sell under that price. The Rice Growers Association does not prohibit its members from selling as individuals for the fixed minimum price or as much more as they can get, but No. 1 and No. 2 Blue Rose will not be sold under $4 per barrel. The association expects to control 5,000,000 barrels on this basis.

Due to the wide distribution of cotton growers and the quantity of cotton produced, the problem of pooling and warehousing cotton to hold for a minimum price is much more difficult of solution, but it could be done if growers would properly organize in counties and districts and then federate along lines of the Lad-o'-Lakes dairy federation in Minnesota and Wisconsin. In no other way will cotton growers ever secure a reasonable control of the marketing of their product.—Farm and Ranch.

Congress is now in session but the country will manage to get along just the same. As next year is presidential year a good part of the time of Congress will be devoted to grandstanding. The Republicans are going to see that no boneheads are pulled if they can prevent it.

It is stated that two more wholesale gasoline and oil warehouses are to be established in Big Spring. With so many companies entering this field it is just a question of time until the price of gasoline is due for a reduction.

Everybody is going to be so busy looking after his own business from now until the first of the year that the community's business is going to be nobody's business during this busy period. Next year is going to be a big year in the history of Big Spring and we are all going to be needed to help promote development. The Chamber of Commerce is the agency through which we can join hands and the membership should be double for the big drive for progress and prosperity in 1928.

C. W. Cunningham was a business visitor in Dallas the forepart of this week.

BUILDING BETTER ROADS

Howard county is going to join with other counties along the Glacier to Gulf Motorway in building a paved road across Texas from the Panhandle to the Gulf. And when this important highway has been completed it will rank with the Bankhead as to number of tourists traversing same.

In addition to building a paved highway across Howard county from the northwest to the southeast, the program will call for improving other roads in our county.

Every owner of an automobile and most folks own one these days, have long since learned that the wear and tear on vehicles due to bad roads is ten times as costly as the small tax we pay to build good roads.

We understand that the old machinery is to be overhauled for service in the new T. & P. machine shops here. A few new machines will probably be added. If the oil business in West Texas takes on the expected proportions a bigger force will have to be employed at the local shops. At present, engines taken out of service for general overhauling are sent to the T. & P. shops at Marshall.

THE NEW FORD

For six months of "saying nothing," Henry Ford has now announced the specifications of the new Ford car which succeeds the Model T. A. bare listing of specifications presents a picture of an automobile that in performance, appearance and mechanical construction has heretofore been associated with a considerably higher price.

Speed and acceleration are the outstanding features of the new car. It is announced as being able to make 55 to 60 miles an hour. In recent tests it has even more without difficulty. What is more important, it is that when traveling at such a high speed, it holds the road easily, and is comfortable to driver and passenger. It is also stated with equal position, however, that it performs in a spectacular manner on rough roads. In its design, Mr. Ford has followed his original idea of a car that would meet all conditions and needs.

The constantly increasing importance of acceleration, the Motor Company has given a deal of study to this feature of the new car. In high gear it has shown an acceleration of 25 miles an hour in 8 1/2 seconds.

The Ford car also introduces a type of four wheel brakes. An important development, they are mechanical, shoe-expanding and are self-centering. The hand and the hand brake each operate on all four wheels. It is stated that the new four wheel brake is the most reliable and efficient type of four-wheel brake, the easiest to adjust, all adjustments being made from the outside without removing any parts.

The engine that is practically vibrationless develops 40 horsepower at 2400 revolutions per minute. This speed in ratio to the efficiency of the engine. At 2400 rpm, the lower speed insures less wear on parts. The low revolution also a substantial factor in the vibration. The bore is 3 inches, stroke 4 1/4 inches. The large crankshaft, which is balanced and dynamically balanced weighs 28 pounds. This balance combined with the lightness of the alloy pistons, further reduces vibration and insures riding and driving comfort.

In addition to freedom from vibration, it is announced that the car is unusually quiet, a great deal of work having been paid to this by the Ford engineers. On the timing gears are made of a special fabric, which is quieter than metal. The cams on the camshaft have been so designed as to reduce clicking.

The chassis of the car is as strong as its performance. There is noticeable European touch in its contour. It is not only decorative in exterior beauty, but has the interior roominess, comfort and luxurious appointments found in much higher priced automobiles. On an instrument board are mounted nickel plated speedometer, gasoline gauge, and ignition lock, with a clock in the center. The new type sun visor, with crown and round corners, are features of the new models. Unusually narrow and very wide doors and give maximum vision. Nickel plated shell and headlamps accentuate the exterior appearance, while choices of four body finishes are offered. Safety in design has also been given the ignition. There is only one switch in a waterproof case. There are no cables to work loose or break from water. The distributor is located in a readily accessible position on top of the engine.

The water pump, large radiator and airplane propeller type cooling system which make the car very difficult to overheat except from abuse, such as without enough oil, or dry running.

The new cooling system, also a distinctive design, is a combination of mechanical and gravity feed. The combination is of the selective type, with standard speeds forward and one for the main shaft runs on ball bearings and the reverse idler on roller bearings, a power-saving device on light cars. Shifting is noticeably and easily accomplished, at the pressure of a finger.

Multiple dry-die clutch, rear axle of three-quarter floating type housed in electrically welded steel, and spiral bevel gear drive an interesting feature. The axle shafts carry none of the weight of the car, the wheels running on roller bearings on the housing. Newly developed springs of the transverse semi-elliptic type and hydraulic shock absorbers prevent excessive up-and-down movement and remove side sway.

Irreversible steering gear, which prevents shock from being transmitted back to the hands of the driver, makes handling exceptionally easy. Maximum steering safety is further provided by a gear housing of welded steel forgings, and a steel tube steering column welded into the housing, making a sturdy and exceptionally safe one-piece unit.

Ford-designed steel spoke wheels, completely welded into a one-piece assembly, are provided.

There are six models of the new car. They are the phaeton, roadster, sport coupe, coupe, Tudor sedan and Fordor sedan.

Local dealers are preparing for a public reception next Friday, when models of the new line will be shown in photographs and charts.

It will be a six room house with bath, breakfast room and sun parlor, and will have every modern convenience.

"NO SALE."

An enterprising reader addresses an inquiry to the Star-Telegram seeking the location of "drouth-stricken West Texas counties where cattle and sheep may be bought cheap."

The inquiry perhaps is a legitimate one, for occasions on which livestock might be bought on the range far below the market price have arisen in the past. But just at present there are no drouth-stricken counties or distressed livestock owners any where in The Star-Telegram's ken.

In fact the livestock owners are "sitting on top of the world." After years of depression the steady rise in values have reached a point where stock is highly profitable. This being the case, there can be no distressed livestock. The owner can always sell at the market price.

Some parts of the great range country may need rain, and there may be a shortage of grass in other parts due to the large holdings of a few. But the chances for an enterprising buyer to pick up cattle and sheep on a sacrifice basis are absolutely nil.

All of which indicates that the livestock industry in the Southwest is flourishing. And that is exactly what it is doing. Fort Worth Star Telegram.
