Roscoe Reeves quoted a little verse recently which would be a good slogan for all businesses. It goes:

Early to bed, early to rise.
Work real hard and advertise!

But, as some would say: Yeah, but look what happened to the worm when he got up early.

On a business trip last week I was at the night at the Golden Inn (formerly Blackstone Hotel in Fort Worth). The Golden West has a fine recreation room where guests can play 18 holes of golf or enjoy a game of billiards.

One meets interesting people while traveling and such was the case while I was enjoying a game of pool. I invited a young man to play at my table. His name was John G. Kennedy and he said he was a distant relative of The Kennedys. I told John I wouldn't hold that against him as long as he didn't try to "city slick" me. John looked a bit miffed but I soothed him by inquiring as to his vocation.

John is a dedicated person associated with the Juliet Gibson Career and Finishing School, located at 908 Main St., Fort Worth, Texas. One of eight schools located across the nation, the faculty is dedicated to the continual search of new ideas and modern methods of teaching to enable graduate students to achieve their full potential and goals in the career of their choice.

The Juliet Gibson Career Schools were established by a group of educators from universities, colleges and high schools with the aid of private school administrators together with experienced executives from the various fields represented within the school curriculum.

This combination of staff and faculty offers a unique standard of educational theory plus practical experience.

The Juliet Gibson schools were established in response to the need for quality career schools for women. The basic aim of the school is to achieve, through career education, an intellectually and emotionally mature young woman capable of independent thinking who will be prepared with confidence and skills to take her proper place within the society in which she will live and work.

Three basic fields in study are included at Juliet Gibson which the student may choose: Secretarial, fashion merchandising and public relations. A trained staff of over 35 instructors at the Fort Worth School encourages the students to become active leaders in the business world rather than a routine employee.

While the students are undergoing the one year of classes, they are placed on part time jobs to gain more active experience which is a definite aid when seeking a regular job after graduation.

The Juliet Gibson school in Fort Worth maintains a placement office which stays in contact with personnel directors of many leading firms.

The Fort Worth school, which opened in April of 1965, has enrolled girls from six states. It maintains luxury dormitory facilities near the school.

The course of study at Juliet Gibson's is the equivalent of the last two years of college for the girl. Applicants for the school must have at least a high school education.

Enrollment for the 1966 term, which begins in September, has already been 85 percent filled, and applications should be in as soon as possible. For further enrollment details, phone the school at ED 2-1511 (collect).

Juliet Gibson Career College prides itself on starting young women out toward meaningful lives, and offers them the incentive to work harder to achieve their goals. Students having difficulty with certain courses may benefit from private or semi-private tutoring.

Finishing training is required of all students.

In today's modern world, Juliet Gibson graduates are able to face life with poise and confidence.

Parents of high school graduates unable to attend college might find this school has what their daughter is looking for.

I attended the West Cross Timbers Area Peanut Growers meeting at the school auditorium on Tuesday night. This group of peanut farmers is in the process of incorporating and drafting their constitution and by-laws. If you grow peanuts and have not joined this group, contact Wayne Eaves, Claude Fuller or some other peanut farmer. A cross section of peanut farmers from this area were present.

Mr. B. C. Langley, who is well known for his work through the Texas Experiment Station, Stephenville, spoke of his continued efforts to improve the variety of peanut seed.

Mr. Othel Neely, Secy., Texas Certified Seed Growers, Waco, explained the value of using certified seed for planting. He distributed a chart and explained how a grower could determine the value of seed by checking the purity and germination of the seed against the cost. The Vendors Statement of Analysis on your seed tag will give a grower almost the complete history of the seed he is buying.

Shellers from Cross Plains, Ranger, Comanche, De Leon and Gorman were also present. Among the literature and brochures offered peanut farmers was one from Gorman Peanuts. This letter stated Gorman Peanuts a Division of the American Cold Storage Corporation, was installing 30 additional dryers. These new dryers can be attached to your truck or trailer. Your truck or trailer will need to be equipped with a special bottom that will permit dry air to flow from the dryers upward through the peanuts. This will save handling the peanuts in and out of the dryer and enable Gorman Peanuts to pass substantial savings on to the peanut farmer in lower drying charges.

Gorman Peanuts are also offering new and lower drying charges in their ninety drying bins. They are also completing renovating their shelling plant and offices to improve their over-all service to the peanut farmer and users of peanuts.

Saul Pullman Issues Statement For Election As Rep. Of District 63

Saul Pullman, 25, Eastland attorney, has formally announced as a candidate for State Representative for the 63rd District. The District is composed of Callahan, Eastland, Palo Pinto, Shackelford and Stephens counties.

Pullman, a graduate of Texas Christian University, as well as the University of Texas Law School, has lived in Eastland his entire life and is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Pullman, who are pioneers of Eastland.

His announcement is as follows:

"I am the only candidate who is a Lawyer and who has graduated from college. I feel that if a man is going to be a strong Representative for the 63rd District, he must have graduated from college so that he can give full time to the people of these five counties whenever they should call on him. I know from my own experience at the University of Texas, that many members of the Legislature were attending Law School with me. This I feel is a great injustice to the people at home that sent these men to Austin to represent them."

"My decision to become a candidate for the Texas House of Representatives stems from a keen sense of duty in government affairs. It is the responsibility of every citizen to give of himself to truly make this a government of the people, by the people, and for the people. The increased demands of legislation at the state level and the complexity of state government calls for aggressive and intelligent representation. I believe that my education at TCU and the University of Texas Law School qualifies me for this public office."

"I believe that a state legislator should not go alone to Austin. He must work in harmony with the county delegation and receive ideas and aid from a cross-section of his District. He must acknowledge that it is the people who send him to represent them and he must follow their suggestions."

"There are no real issues in this race because none of us candidates have held the office before. All the laws that have been passed are the law and we had nothing to do with it. We should look to the future and do what the people of these five counties want. As your State Representative I pledge full time, energetic positive representation in Austin for our District. (I believe that the government should use the same prudence which in private life would forbid our paying money for unexplained projects and not have unexplained disposition of public money.) If this is followed I feel that our present source of revenue is sufficient without an increase in taxes."

"If I am elected your State Representative the best interest of the 63rd District will be my constant goal."

Dick Foster Makes Statement In Race For Commissioner of Pct. 2

To the people of Precinct 2, which includes Desdemona, Carbon, Kokomo and Gorman:

I want to say "Thanks" to each and everyone of you for your kindness and courtesy shown me in my campaign for County Commissioner of this precinct.

I have lived in Gorman all my life with the exception of three years. Two years of this time was spent in the service during World War II. So, I don't feel that I need to make an introduction to you. If you do not know me personally, ask someone in Gorman about me. The people here know the kind of person I am and the things for which I stand. My platform will be "Honesty and Fairness to All."

I realize very much the importance of this office. The Commissioner's Court, which consists of four commissioners and the County Judge, can make or break our county, either one they so desire. If I am elected to this office, I will inform you once each quarter of the year how the finances stand. Although the books are open to the public in the Courthouse for anyone interested to see, I also think they should be published in the newspaper for your convenience. After all, it is your tax money that is being spent. I also pay taxes both in the Gorman and Carbon school districts.

I realize that the county doesn't get a lot of money to operate with, but whatever we get I will do my best to spend it as wisely as I know how, and yet do all the work I possibly can with what we do have. I am definitely interested in Farm-to-Market Roads, for which I will work hard to get all the miles paved that I can.

I will also have the older people's interest in mind at all times and work towards helping them in their needs anytime.

So many people ask me to be a candidate for this precinct I decided with their help and yours I could do it.

I do want you to know how much I will appreciate your vote and support on May 7th. It is your duty and privilege to vote - and I hope its for me.

Thanks to everyone.

Dick Foster

THE MIGHTY PEANUT

By DeVoe H. Willard, President.

National Peanut Council PEANUTS HAVE SURPRISED observers of our national eating habits for years. Every time there is a surge of consumer interest we have heard that this was due to some phenomenon.

It was caused by a health fad or depression caused reliance on economical nutrients or war caused reliance on easily produced protein substitutes for our American meat rich diet. Each spurt in use has been accompanied by predictions of decreasing markets.

The year 1966 is proving these predictions were wrong. Domestic consumption of peanuts is increasing in a time of great affluence. Certainly this situation reflects the fact that peanuts have a taste that captivates the American consumer. Though they have a real appeal for youngsters in the many forms in which they reach the market, we find peanuts and peanut products are highly appealing to adults. Certainly, if a certain cigarette firm hadn't thought of it first, we would loudly claim that peanuts have the taste that's right.

Actually we can now look back over the experience of the past century, put all factors together, and say that peanuts are a satisfying food, an economical source of nutrients, readily produced to meet the needs in time of emergency, and which taste good. We might add that peanuts are a rather adaptable food which can be prepared in a wide variety of ways to take their place among the modern convenience foods as a snack, a confection, a salad component, a spread, and an ingredient for pleasant living.

OF COURSE, the development of new products has given a boost to consumer sales. Just during the past year we have seen evidence of still more ways that peanuts can be prepared for market. Basic research is giving us greater understanding of the composition of peanuts, and the compelling urge of competition is leading us to study the possibilities of further diversification. There is every reason to believe that peanut markets will broaden and that per capita consumption will continue to rise.

In recent months we have heard modern voices raised on a problem stated in 1798 by the prominent English political economist, Thomas R. Malthus. This philosopher noted the rapid growth of population on the earth and predicted that supplies of food would not be able to meet the need before too many generations. This philosophy has been rejected for years as agriculture has undergone revolutionary changes. The introduction of machinery, chemical fertilizers, herbicides, insecticides, and modern irrigation have increased the production capability of each man and each acre far beyond the earlier dreams. In addition there have been amazing developments in plant and animal breeding, crop culture, harvesting and marketing all of which have played their part in decreasing the acres needed to provide man's food. These developments have not ceased, nor have they been applied to their full potential in the world, yet the dire expressions of the Malthusian doctrine are being heard from the highest officials of our country.

IN RECENT appearances before a senate Government Operations Subcommittee four scientists whose abilities have been recognized by Nobel prizes have warned of the period of a "new dark age" unless population growth is controlled. They foresee a period of hunger, poverty, frustration and unrest leading to such horrors as nuclear warfare or human cannibalism. Certainly many factors must be applied to such a problem. These scientists were pressing for an effective birth control program. Their alarming words also point to the need for food.

Yes, population is growing rapidly. There will be about 65 million births this year, and an increasing per cent of these infants will grow up. Advances in technology will also increase the life expectancy of our present population. There are large areas on our earth which will be slow in developing the full capability to produce and market foods for a variety of reasons. This means that hunger which afflicts all too many today, is likely to be even more widespread. There are few causes more desperate than hunger behind the wars and strife of history.

Once again the peanut may be called upon, along with other protein producing plants, to aid in an emergency. This emergency was discussed in some detail by Dr. Aaron Altschul when he was presented the Charles F. Spencer Award at the Midwest Meeting of the American Chemical Society, November 4, 1965. This former winner of the Golden Peanut Research Award, who works for the U. S. Department of Agriculture, quoted an official of the Agency for International Development (AID) in speaking of the current lack of sufficient protein. He noted that "AID health personnel are now of the view that correcting serious protein deficiencies of pre-school children would make a greater contribution to development than any other health measures—malaria eradication, sanitation, and water supply not excluded."

PEANUTS are one weapon for this emergency, but like many weapons they may need to be adapted to the task. Additional elements might be added to improve the quality of the protein, and even then we must recognize that just because a material is nutritious does not guarantee that it will be an acceptable food. The flavor is an asset, and the fact that peanuts can be prepared for use in many ways will also help. As Dr. Altschul says, "If we are to introduce new protein concentrates then we must learn how to tailor-make them for each culture and every specific need."

Take another look at the peanut. We could call it the "mighty peanut." It provides a livelihood to an ever increasing number of people. It furnishes enjoyment to an affluent population which uses them in confections and as snacks wherever leisure hours and recreation possibilities find them. It furnishes the housewife and mother a convenient and highly nutritious component for sandwiches, cookies and many other dishes whether served at home or packed in lunches to be eaten at work or school.

The mighty peanut is already at work among the less fortunate of our great country, economically providing a nourishing and satisfying source of food. It is regularly used in our National School Lunch Program to provide the kind of food our children need at a very nominal cost. Yes, peanuts provide enjoyment yet serve very practical needs.

WASHINGTON AND "SMALL BUSINESS" by C. WILSON HARDER

The 13th amendment to the United States Constitution prohibits anyone being forced to involuntary servitude, or in other words, work for nothing.

It so happens in Waterloo, Iowa, a D. J. Spensley firmly believes in this amendment. He takes the position that the United States government owes him some money for the time he has been forced to spend in preparing reports on his 21 employees in his dry cleaning establishment.

He recently presented the Internal Revenue Service office in Des Moines with a bill for service rendered totaling $3,000. Needless to say, he has of now failed to receive payment.

But his position is that over the past five years to complete and file the various tax forms on the income tax withholding and social security taxes has required a total of 800 hours of his labor. He feels he is entitled to $3.75 per hour pay.

Of course, Mr. Spensley did not really expect a check reimbursing him for his labor.

But he is hopeful that with enough employers raising this issue, the Congress will see the justice of the position.

In fact, he actually does not particularly care if the government gives him a check in one lump sum. He has explained he would just as soon take reimbursement by deducting a small service fee from the employee taxes he turns in to the government until such time as the account is squared.

This matter of making the employer an unpaid collector of taxes has become quite a major one. Not only has the Federal government kept businessmen tied up for unaccounted hours of involuntary servitude, but state and sometimes even city government have followed this pattern.

There is also a consumer angle in this matter. While Mr. Spensley apparently is able to perform this unpaid labor himself, in many operations it is necessary to employ extra people to do the work.

These extra costs are, of course, added to the price customers must pay for goods and services. But the smaller businessmen, not having a large enough force of employees, must either find time during the working day, or in the evenings, or weekends.

It's quite a paradox, when one thinks about it.

Less than 75 years after an amendment was made to the Constitution making it illegal to force anyone to work without compensation, the first laws were passed requiring businessmen to work for nothing. There is only one apparently legal loophole. The 13th amendment did state that anyone convicted of a crime should be subjected to involuntary servitude. Thus, it is possible that under the present day trend of decisions, the U.S. Supreme Court could hold that it was the intent of the Congress to declare it a crime for anybody to be in business.

"Our Community - What Next?" Is Topic Woman's Study Club

Neither a snow storm nor a flood seems to keep the Woman's Study Club from reaching the designated meeting place, and just so last Monday evening at club time members waded mud and puddles to reach the home of Mrs. O. R. Buchanan. If April showers do bring May flowers, this area will certainly be in blossom soon.

The program for the evening, "Our Community - What Next?" was introduced by Mrs. Berenice Jeffs. A two part program featuring Mr. Ross Wilson, presenting a round-up of the "City's Achievements" during the past year, and Mrs. James Mears, speaking of the "Club's Achievements", the program brought out the vast amount of civic betterment a small number of determined people can accomplish. Outstanding and Miss Mary Kohler of Ranger. After a delicious luncheon at noon the regular club meeting was held at 1:30 p. m. Mrs. Albert Hendricks led the club in the motto, pledge and devotional, using Proverbs 1:7. Mrs. Lee Bishop led the opening prayer.

Mrs. Glenn Jordan presided over the business meeting. Roll call was answered by each member telling about a 4-H Club member they know.

After a brief business session Teddy Jordan of the Gorman 4-H Club brought the program on feeding and showing a fat steer. It was a very interesting report and all were very proud of Teddy for his accomplishments in his 4-H Club work.

Recreation was led by Mrs. Jordan in the absence of Mrs. Joe O'Neal, recreation leader. Mrs. Wayne White led the closing prayer.

The next meeting will be in the home of Mrs. O. T. Hazzard on May 9th.

for pressure pump, 7.5 HP he approximated at $1000. However, some run as high as $1500.

James Mears of Higginbothams said they had put in 1/2 HP centrifugal for less than $500 which were used to pump from well to prepared pit to be picked up by pressure pump on the sprinkler line.

Better wells need no pit and use pressure pump for direct conduct.

Planting time is near and many farmers are ready for a new experience, irrigating peanuts.

The writer regrets that she was unable to reach many other folks not mentioned in this article, who are participating in the progress of peanut irrigation. Six telephone calls were unanswered and other folks were at work.

As It Looks From Here
Omar Burleson, M. C.
17th. District, Texas

WASHINGTON, D. C. — THE SUBCOMMITTEE ON LIBRARY AND MEMORIALS has recently acted favorably on legislation which I have introduced to broaden the program which provides reading materials for the blind of the United States, its territories and possessions.

THIS PROGRAM, WHICH IS ADMINISTERED by the Library of Congress, has been in existence since 1931. It reaches into and renders a fine service to every one of our States, as I know from my longtime experience as Chairman of the Joint Committee on the Library of Congress. It is a highly appreciated program, thru which books in raised characters — chiefly in braille — and "talking books" — books recorded on disks or on magnetic tape — and the machines on which to play the records are produced by the Division for the Blind of the Library of Congress.

THE BOOKS ARE DISTRIBUTED THROUGH 32 cooperating libraries designated as regional libraries. The Texas State Library serves the blind of Texas. The machines are lent to the blind by State agencies for the blind. In Texas this is done by the State Commission for the Blind. The materials and the machines are lent without charge and the books may be sent free through the mails, because this is a service to the blind which Congress decided many years ago should be made possible by the Federal Government.

OVER THE YEARS, THE ACT HAS BEEN amended to cover blind children as well as adults and to provide additional types of materials, such as talking books — as well as books in braille, which older people have difficulty in learning to read — musical scores, and instructional texts.

FOR SOME TIME IT HAS BEEN EVIDENT THAT this service does not go far enough. Under the present Act, not even the near blind are eligible to use materials produced for the books-for-the-blind program; and other handicapped persons who, for a variety of reasons, cannot read or use conventional printed materials unfortunately are also excluded.

STATISTICS SHOW THAT THERE ARE ABOUT 2 million persons in this County who cannot read ordinary printed books, magazines and newspapers because of impaired eyesight or other physical factors which make them unable to manipulate such materials. There is no national reading service they could use except for the embossed and recorded books provided through the Library of Congress, but unless they are blind they are not at present eligible. There is practically no library service available to the 600,000 individuals whose eyesight is so poor that they cannot read newsprint, even with glasses. About 4,700 persons have lost both arms or the use of them; some 8,000 persons have lost all their fingers, and 1,600 persons are in iron lungs or other respiratory devices which make ordinary reading difficult or impossible. There are also about 750,000 victims of multiple sclerosis, muscular dystrophy, cerebral palsy, Parkinson's disease and other crippling ailments who are so disabled it is impossible to handle books, magazines and newspapers.

IT IS SHOCKING — A CASE OF SAD NEGLECT — that, as the Law stands now, only the 400,000 blind out of those 2 million handicapped persons are eligible to be served through the national books-for-the-blind program. It is, therefore, encouraging that the Subcommittee has acted upon my bill which would extend this service to the near-blind, to quadriplegics and to various other handicapped groups. This will permit the Library of Congress to procure reading materials in appropriate forms and the necessary machines for their use, and to distribute them to nonprofit agencies and organizations in the States for loan to any person so physically handicapped that he cannot read or use the kind of printed materials you and I can borrow from our local public library. To prevent any possible abuse of the program, the legislation provides that this disability be certified by competent medical authority, just as blindness must now be certified.

IN OUR CONCERN FOR IMPROVING the welfare and education of all our citizens, we must not neglect the needs of these handicapped to whom the information, the solace and the inspiration from reading can mean so much.

BECAUSE OF THE PRESS OF BUSINESS AND the necessity for campaigning for re-election in the May 7 Primary Election, this column will be suspended until after the Primary.

Dr. Shervert Frazier To Speak At Mental Health Dinner May 7

Community leaders from a 15-county area in West Central Texas are being invited to Abilene on May 7 to join the battle against mental illness as one of Texas' foremost experts speaks on a Mental Health Week dinner.

The speaker is Dr. Shervert Frazier of Austin, Commissioner of the Texas Department of Mental Health and Mental Retardation. "Our Mental Health Association has pledged itself to carry forward a program of tremendous benefit to this area in West Texas in helping the mentally ill and their families, in giving citizen leadership to the fight against mental illness. We seek to accord the mentally ill the same consideration and opportunity for recovery as is given to the physically ill."

Mrs. Cree extended an invitation to any person in the West Central Texas area who is concerned over the mental health problem, to attend the May 7th dinner. "We know mental illness is not only an Abilene problem, that it affects the lives of hundreds of families in the West Central Texas area. (175 patients from Eastland County required treatment in a State Mental Hospital last year.)

We need the counsel and help of community leaders in neighboring counties in our fight against mental illness. We sincerely hope a number of these people will attend our Mental Health Dinner," she said.

If teenagers could only be convinced that good grooming is a passport to poise, much of their agonizing self-consciousness could be avoided.

Officials of the American Medical Association have stated that "Many boys and girls of high school age are much more self-conscious than they need to be, simply because they let themselves become careless about their grooming. The very first thing any self-conscious teenager should do is to make it a habit to keep himself perfectly clean at all times."

The AMA further emphasizes that "soap and water are your best friends" in the care of the complexion:

1. A thorough face-washing is needed before bedtime, in the morning, after gym or other exercise, and always before applying fresh make-up.
2. One bath a day is a minimum.
3. Freshness requires the use of a deodorant or anti-perspirant after the bath.
4. Hair should be brushed twice a day and shampooed as often as needed.
5. Nails should be manicured and pedicured at least once a week.

Care of the feet is an often overlooked phase of youthful grooming. But frequent foot-washing, and wearing clean socks are of utmost importance in preventing irritation and infection.

Only when cleanliness and neatness are assured can young people forget themselves and be at ease with others.

Good grooming is the total look or a clean body and well cared for clothing.

Musselman Named As One Of Outstanding Young Men in America

John Musselman, Jr., of Albany, a candidate for State Representative in the 63rd Legislative District of Texas, by virtue of his record of accomplishments as an enterprising young American, has been notified of his inclusion in the 1966 publication of "Outstanding Young Men in America."

A certificate in recognition of this honor recently was bestowed upon the prominent young area civic leader by Doug Blankenship, past president of the U. S. Jaycees.

In addition to Blankenship, the board which chooses recipients for this select honor includes James Skidmore, Jr., current president of the U. S. Jaycees; Bill Brownfield, author of the Jaycee creed; Lawrence H. Chamberlain, vice-president of Columbia University; Frederick L. Hovde, president of Purdue University; Clark Kerr, president of the University of California; and Dr. John W. Oswald, president of the University of Kentucky.

Musselman, member of a family which is generations deep in the West Texas territory they helped settle, has declared himself on one paramount aim and object in running for public office:

"I particularly want to serve my district . . . everywhere I go I hear the same complaint — we are losing ground. Our young people are graduating from our high schools and then leaving us, going to big cities where industry pays better wages and where there are many and more varied recreational activities . . . We people in this district have got to neutralize that trend, stop the steady draining away of young blood from our area . . . We've got to make our part of the State attractive to those reared in it and to those who are looking forward for a new place to settle."

The young man from Albany, a recognized leader in many worthwhile endeavors, practices what he preaches as attested by his major role in the revival of the nationally renowned Fort Griffin Fandangle, and other productive pursuits throughout this area of West Texas.

Rains Brighten Farm And Ranch Outlook

Drought-breaking rains falling Friday to Monday with measurements of three to five inches in the area was welcomed by ranchers, farmers, gardeners and business men.

Peanut farmers were most thankful for the moisture as they had not been able to get their land plowed and fertilizer put down for planting, and ranchers were facing the possibility of heavy feed bills due to lack of grass. Drought conditions existed in many sections of the county and surrounding counties before the slow falling rain solved the problems.

The rains have replenished surface tank water and some runoff was going into Lake Proctor.
