Stages In A Memorable Career

This is how the late Cordell Hull appeared at four chronological stages in his career. From left: Hull at the age of 26 when he was a captain in the Spanish-American War; in 1924, when he was a Democratic National Committeeman from Tennessee and was seeking the vice presidential nomination; in 1933 when he was nominated to be Secretary of State in the Roosevelt Cabinet, and his most recent picture taken in February, 1954. Hull died in Bethesda, Md., at the age of 83. Services will be held at the Washington National Cathedral tomorrow.

IKE REPORTS

No Secret Pacts Made At Geneva

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower told congressional leaders today that no secret agreements of any kind were made at the Big Four meeting nor were any "private papers" initialed. Members of Congress gave this to reporters after a briefing at the White House by Eisenhower and Secretary of State Dulles on the President's sessions in Geneva with Russian, British and French leaders.

Later, presidential press secretary James C. Hagerty similarly said the President had given assurance there were no secret agreements. In a formal statement, Hagerty said: "The President expressed the belief that the outstanding feature of the meeting was the apparently sincere desire expressed by the Soviet delegation to discuss world problems in the future in an atmosphere of friendliness and a willingness to sit down together to work out differences."

Impeachment Vote Delayed At Houston Meeting

HOUSTON (AP)—Seven city councilmen held a two-hour strategy meeting today but postponed a final decision on whether they will make another attempt to impeach Mayor Roy Hofheinz. Six of the seven appeared determined to attempt again to suspend the mayor 30 days pending trial on impeachment charges. The final decision was put off, however, until District Judge Ben F. Moorhead releases a written opinion on his court order that stopped the first suspension ordinance. Moorhead was expected to sign the order this afternoon.

Here's The New Miss Universe

Pillevi Rombin of Sweden wears her royal crown and robe after she was named Miss Universe at Long Beach, Calif. She is a tall blonde—5 feet 7 inches tall and speaks six languages. She won from a group of five finalists that included Miss El Salvador, Miss Ceylon, Miss Germany and Miss Japan.

Burma, India Arrange For Geneva Parley

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States and Red China will send ambassadors to Geneva next Monday to discuss "repatriation of civilians" who want to return to their own countries and "certain other practical matters now at issue."

The State Department said U. S. Ambassador to Geneva next Monday to discuss "repatriation of civilians" who want to return to their own countries and "certain other practical matters now at issue."

Senate Group To Air Talbott Business Link

WASHINGTON (AP)—The work of Harold E. Talbott has done for a $50,000-a-year private income while serving as secretary of the Air Force comes under public scrutiny today.

The open hearing was called by the Senate Investigations subcommittee to look into Talbott's activities as a special partner in Paul B. Mulligan & Co., a New York efficiency engineering firm. Talbott severed other business interests but kept the tie with Mulligan on taking his government post. He has said he would accept no profits the Mulligan firm makes

GILES CLAIMS

Ouster Threat Not Reason For Quitting

AUSTIN (AP)—Former Land Commissioner Bascom Giles testified today that the question of impeachment had no bearing on his decision to step out of office last Jan. 1. Giles returned to the stand in the fourth week of his trial on charges he stole veterans land money from the state.

Direct examination ended a few minutes after he took the witness chair, and Dist. Atty. Les Procter began firing cross-examination questions. "Did you know at that time (Jan. 1) a state official could not refuse to answer to the Senate and not be impeached?" asked Procter. "That I do not know," replied Giles, who as land commissioner had administered the 100-million-dollar veterans land program. He had invoked constitutional immunity against testifying before a Senate investigating committee early this year.

Showers Visit Immediate Area

Big Spring, believe it or not, shared in the showers which dotted West Texas Sunday. While the U. S. Experiment Farm and H.C.J.C. stations reported no precipitation, Webb AFB recorded .13 of an inch.

U. S. Asks 83,000 Workers For Harvest

MEXICO CITY (AP)—The United States has asked for 83,000 migratory farm workers in the next five weeks for harvest work, the foreign office said today.

WORKER TELLS HIS STORY

Harry Ramsbey Voted Pay Cut But Now He's Sorry He Did It

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (AP)—A year ago Harry Ramsbey and most other Studebaker workers made a labor history. They agreed then to a pay cut to help keep the old auto company on its competitive feet. But recently they voted to authorize their union to call a strike. What happened in the year between the two contrasting votes? The answer is complicated.

For the first eight or nine months after the pay cut agreement, things went smoothly. Workers were working steadily and bringing home fatter pay checks. Production went well up. Sales rose slightly. Overhead and labor costs went down. The company was still on its feet and planted, if still, on firmer ground. Then the plant was hit by a series of work stoppages. Still, both the company and the union talked cooperation; both felt the cause of the stoppages could be erased. But then Studebaker laid off 1,700 workers indefinitely because, it said, increased production efficiency had made them unnecessary. Now cooperation talk faded. The union said this was a violation of contract. Strike talk gathered momentum.

Water Main Installation Due

Work on the installation of a huge 20-inch water main in East Big Spring is expected to begin around Aug. 15, it was announced today by City Engineer Clifton Bellamy.

Damp Dawson Showered Again

LAMESA — Rain happy Dawson County got more precipitation Sunday. The official weather station reported .39 of an inch on the south side of town. There was an estimated half inch on the northern fringe.

Air Crash Kills Former Resident

One of two pilots from Laredo AFB who were killed Sunday when their T-33 jet trainers collided over Maxwell AFB was reared in Big Spring.

Odessan Gets Legion Post

SAN ANTONIO (AP)—The Texas American Legion closed its convention yesterday with election of Charles L. Downey of Pleasanton as state department commander. Downey succeeds E. L. (Stonewall) Jackson of Cisco. Warren C. Moore of Tyler was named judge advocate and Cecil L. Bushacre of Odessa sergeant at arms.

Boy, 6, Dies After Being Hit By Car

A six-year-old boy was killed this morning when struck by an automobile as he was crossing West Fourth Street.

Youth Beaten To Death In Window Peeping Incident

NEWPORT BEACH, Calif. (AP)—Two men are in jail in the fatal beating of a college youth they said they found peeping into a window of their vacation apartment, police report.

Big 4 Powers Begin Second Stage In Peace Campaign

GENEVA (AP)—The four big powers today began the second stage of their attempt to ease world tension by negotiation. The experts back home in their own capitals started work on plans to implement the directives of the summit conference.

Sensational 'Quisling' Trial Is Issue In Coming Israel Election

JERUSALEM, (AP)—Israel will elect a new 12-member Parliament (Knesset) tomorrow for the first time in four years.

The Mafal Israeli Labor party, heading the present government coalition, hopes enough members and allies will be elected to enable it to lead the cabinet.

Nevertheless, it is doubtful the election will basically change Israel's foreign or domestic policy.

1. Will ask the incoming government to carry on efforts to reduce border tension with Arab countries and to negotiate mutual defense pacts with Western Powers.

The pertinent court case involves Dr. Israel Kastner, prominent Mafal party member, former official in the Ministry for Commerce and Industry and current editor of the Tel Aviv paper Uj Kelet printed in the Hungarian language.

It turns on his behavior as acting head of the Jewish Rescue Committee in Nazi-occupied Budapest in 1944. The Russians then were warning that city. The Germans foresaw his capture.

A little over a year ago a Jerusalem hotel owner, Malkiel Greenwald, wrote in a private note that Kastner had prepared the ground for this mass murder through negotiations with the Nazis.

Greenwald himself lost 52 of 58 relatives in the Hitler holocaust. He alleged that Kastner had "shared loot" with a Nazi leader.

The executive committee of the Chamber is to meet at 10 a. m. Tuesday to hear recommendations from an advertising and publicity committee concerning two new highway signs on the approaches to the city.

The trial officer, Maj. C. E. Noell, directed a verdict of innocent Saturday for the following charges against Tyler: writing pro-Communist articles, attempting to convert fellow prisoners to communism, circulating peace petitions and informing on fellow escapees who were planning an escape.

Locations in the Westbrook field of Mitchell County and Jo-Mill field of Borden County were reported today, and a new wildcat prospect has been staked in Scurry County.

He found Greenwald had told the truth on other matters. The judge said Kastner had agreed to cooperate with the Nazis in return for permission to choose 600 relatives and friends to go to safety.

He said Kastner was a collaborator "in the fullest sense of the word."

In Parliament, the opposition criticized the authorities for starting the libel action, carrying it on and appealing. The Heruth and Communist parties offered motions of no confidence in the government.

Parliament last month voted down both motions, 50-9 and 60-7. Abstentions numbered 29 and 17. Among the abstainers were four ministers in the coalition cabinet, all General Zionists.

Premier Moshe Sharett and other Mafal leaders decided this was a serious "breach of collective responsibility" and the cabinet resigned on the eve of the already scheduled dissolution of the old Knesset.

Sharet formed a new caretaker government of all 16 old ministers except four—the General Zionists. In a campaign speech, a Communist deputy, Mrs. Esther Yilenka, has demanded that an Israeli court try Kastner as a war criminal. Greenwald filed charges that Kastner had committed perjury in testimony at the libel trial; a preliminary investigation was set for July 31.

But many Hungarian Jews now living in Israel spoke up in Kastner's defense, and two settlements of them invited him to move in.

Kastner said after his trial that his conscience was clear and he would fight to prove his innocence. He said that thanks to his negotiations with Eichmann 15,000 Hungarian Jews were sent to Austria instead of Oswiecim and that in December 1944 the deportations stopped, saving 90,000 to 90,000 Jews in Budapest alone.

Jury selection in the cases E. L. Dorris and T. S. Firth vs. J. G. Potter began this morning in 118th District Court as Judge Charlie Sullivan called 13 civil cases for trial. Attorneys for eight cases announced ready.

The first to be tried will be a combination of two cases, Dorris vs. Potter and Firth vs. Potter. Both complainants are requesting a message from J. G. Potter relating to an automobile accident which occurred here Dec. 7, 1953.

Services were held at the graveside were to be held at 4 p. m. Monday for Harris G. Rounds, 73, retired cable operator from Van Horn.

Ackerly Man's Car Reported Stolen Sunday

A 1948 gray Ford was reported stolen Sunday morning while parked in downtown Big Spring, police said. The vehicle belongs to Vidal C. Trevino of Ackerly.

Trevino reported the theft to the sheriff's department at Stanton about 4:30 p. m. Sunday. He said his car was taken about 8 a. m. that morning, while parked near the Greyhound Bus Station.

Officers said this morning that no trace of the vehicle has been uncovered. The 1947 Studebaker reported stolen here Wednesday by L. B. White, 111 Mobile, also is still missing.

Worker Overtime or Full Time (40 hours a week)

Pay checks were fatter and steadier. Old grocery bills, piled up in last summer's lean days, were paid off. Refrigerator payments, which had stopped, were resumed. Things were looking up.

But that was in the spring. Also in the spring, by previous agreement with Local 5 of the CIO United Automobile Workers, Studebaker began trying new production methods and standards.

Salvage From The Dump

Not everything that goes to the city dump is worthless. Bruce Davis, left, actually pays a small fee for the salvage rights from the dump and also keeps a watchful eye on proceedings there. Here he holds a piece of plumbing fixture, an aluminum tray, chrome rim and piece of pipe. His brother-in-law, C. W. Compton, holds a couple of bits of scrap aluminum retrieved from trash. Davis markets metal, rags, lumber, etc.

Finds Enough Salvage To Pay Concession As 'Dump Keeper'

By JESS BLAIR
Keeper of the city dump may not fall into the category of a position, but Bruce Davis not only makes a living as caretaker but actually pays $30 a month for the privilege.
Davis, 56, was hurt in an oil-field accident a year or more ago and is unable to do strenuous work. So he asked the city for the concession of selling all junk salvaged at the city dump, a right for which he makes his monthly payment.
Most of the time he just watches the people who come out there, shows them where to dump trash, and sometimes finds something of value which he stacks in a pile. Out of the hundreds of truck and pick-up loads coming out there every week, only one out of every 10 or 20 will have anything of value in it.

The three most profitable items are scrap metal, lumber and rags. He stacks the lumber and sells it for whatever he can get. The rags all go to a company in Odessa which sends a truck over after them regularly. The scrap metal is sold to a Big Spring dealer, who in turn bales it and ships it out to be reprocessed.
"Sometimes there is something else of value," Davis said, "but not often. I have found batteries and occasionally a tire good enough to be used. Sometimes something else is found that can be sold, but these are the main things."
Davis bought an old bus body which he has made into a shelter. He has a cot, a stove for making coffee, and drinking water.

"I just use it mostly as a shelter," he said, "especially during sandstorms and sometimes when a shower comes up."
Most of his work comes late in the afternoon after the city trucks are through dumping. Then he has to start the fires which may burn for hours, or maybe all night.
Davis says the most troublesome part of the job is watching the people who come out hunting for free items. They not only pick up things which he wants to keep, but will even go up near the bus and steal lumber that has been stacked.
"The city has recently asked that people stay out of the city dump on Sundays, and told Davis to report anyone attempting to carry items away. Not long ago, he said, a group of people came out to the grounds one Sunday looking for salvage. Evidently they found something of value, because there was almost a gang fight over the division of spoils.
A surprising number of people come out to the dump yard looking for food.
"These are people who are really hungry," Davis said, "and I just can't get tough with them. They find half loaves of stale bread, sometimes fruit and other things that some housewife throws away."
A few weeks ago and old fellow came along and told Davis he was hungry. Davis offered to buy him a meal, but the man said he could just go to eat in the junk yard. Later Davis hired him to work there for two weeks, and the only groceries the old fellow bought was $1.80 worth.
Another man came out looking for something to eat, and found a bonanza. In a few minutes he had located a ham, several one-pound cartons of honey and about 30 jars of home-canned food.
He explained his success in finding food by saying: "I've been in these places before. I'm a junk yard expert."
One keeper who stayed at the grounds several years ago made a good profit on hogs. He kept from 30 to 50 hogs running loose and never had to buy a dime's worth of feed. Davis says he doesn't want to fool with hogs, and they would have to be penned if kept now.
Davis admits that his is not a high-paying job. He has made as low as $15.00 a week and as high as $100. He says the average weekly sales will run about $40.00 per week.
"That's over $6.00 a day," he said, "which is more than a lot of elderly men make. I'm my own boss and the work is not nearly as hard as some jobs I've held. The city really needs someone out here to keep things in order, so unless something turns up better, I may be here a long time."

WOMAN SHOT

Marauding Gunman Fears Rise Again

WICHITA FALLS, Tex. (U-P)—A bullet fired through a front window struck a housewife as she sat in her living room last night. Fear was expressed that 1953's marauding rifleman was active again.
Circumstances of the wounding last night of Mrs. Harry Horton, 50, reminded officers of the Feb. 1, 1953, shootings that took one life. They have never been solved.
Mrs. Horton and her husband, a federal government employe here, were sitting on the couch reading about 10:15 p.m. Their backs were to their large living room window.
"We didn't hear a car or anything," said Horton afterward. "The first thing I knew was when I heard the window pane crack and then she slumped to the floor. I ran to telephone, tried to get the hospital."
Their son, Charles, 24, returned home about that time and called an ambulance and the sheriff's office. Mrs. Horton was treated for shock and a flesh wound on the left side of her face. Her condition was not serious.

Killed in the 1953 shootings was Ermin Berend, dairy farmer at Winthorst about 22 miles south of Wichita Falls on the Jacksboro highway. Berend was killed by a rifleman who fired at him as he sat in his lighted window, reading, at night. Later the same night 28-year-old Marie Thorman was shot at twice by a rifleman who took dead aim from the Jacksboro highway 100 yards away as Miss Thorman said good night to a friend.
The first shot narrowly missed Miss Thorman's head as she stood in the doorway of her parents' home. The second shot, coming as she slumped to the floor, splintered the woodwork near her ankles.
The Hortons' home is about 75 feet from a paved suburban road in the northwest section of Wichita Falls.
"We have no known enemies," said Horton. "I know of no one who would want to do a thing like that."

Arms Freeze Seen As Geneva Result

GENEVA (U-P)—A freeze on the level of armed forces in the European area followed by an East-West agreement to cut back military power may be one of the first specific and practical accomplishments to result from the Big Four summit meeting.
What will be achieved along this line will depend much on future difficult negotiations. The United States, Britain and France will have to figure out what plans they can support jointly before they meet Russia again at Geneva in the foreign ministers conference next October.
But much that was said here during the weeklong summit meeting indicated a desire on both sides to reduce the arms burden. The beginning made toward mutual trust between the leaders of both sides and a general lessening of war fears may contribute to that end.
The Kremlin leaders made clear here that they do not intend to burden from their opposition to German unification as long as West Germany remains a member of the Atlantic Alliance. This policy may change someday, but no change is in prospect in the predictable future.
Since the Western Powers are equally determined to maintain their German ties, the Geneva conference provided no hope for any early progress toward uniting Germany.
All four government chiefs agreed that global disarmament would be a fine thing. Work on this would be speeded dramatically if the Soviet government accepted President Eisenhower's proposal to exchange military information and aerial photographs of military installations, but there has been no hint that they would do so. It appeared likely they would hold out for its linking with the ban on nuclear weapons; the Russians have long demanded.

The third major issue of the meeting, the problem of European security, breaks down into two parts:
1. Various proposals for a European security treaty, including both Russia and the Western Powers.
2. Suggested plans for limiting, controlling and inspecting armed forces in the European area.
The Western Powers emphasized to Russia that the development of new European safeguards must proceed at the same time as the negotiation of arrangements for unifying Germany.
Since the Russians evidently intend to stall German unification until they consider the circumstances more favorable to their interests, it appears that a new security pact is also a matter for the distant future.
That seems to leave the limitation of armaments in Europe as the negotiable issue in the early future. Hopes for success in arriving at some kind of an agreement are based on the fact that a military stalemate already exists on the Continent, and that both sides apparently would gain from a deal to maintain the stalemate at a lower level of effort.

Grandmother In Woods 6 Days

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (U-P)—A 78-year-old grandmother, was found alive in thick woods six days after she wandered away from a suburban nursing home.
In what might have been the last organized hunt, Mrs. Nora Moore was found lying helpless in a bed of fallen leaves only a quarter of a mile from the nursing home. She suffered mainly from briar scratches and hundreds of insect bites although she had gone without food or water during the ordeal.
Search parties had combed tangled woods in the Mount Olive community 15 miles north of Birmingham for a week.
Mrs. Moore received emergency treatment at a Birmingham hospital and was returned to the home. She remembered little of the six days.

Desegregation Fight Likened To Fuss With The Umpire

HOUSTON (U-P)—A Negro leader says the fight by some persons in the South against desegregation in public schools is like arguing with a baseball umpire: "When I'm over they're still out."
Thurgood Marshall, general counsel of the National Assn. for the Advancement of Colored People, made the comparison last night in addressing the annual convention of the American Teachers Assn. Southern school boards that resist desegregation should prepare themselves for "education" in the federal courts, said Marshall. The NAACP, he said, is prepared to educate public school officials "over and over again in the federal courts of the South."
He declined comment on organization of a Citizens Council at Kilgore, Tex., "pledged to assist in maintaining segregation of white and Negro people in the Kilgore area." He said he was not familiar with the situation.
Marshall, saying "desegregation works both ways," noted that directors of Texas Southern University here took the first step July 13 toward desegregation. The board appointed a committee to study TSU policy revisions needed to permit whites to enter the Houston school.
The Baltimore lawyer said the NAACP will insist that concrete steps be taken this fall toward desegregation and that desegregation be completed in public schools no later than the term beginning in September, 1956.
He said he doesn't know how long it will take to fully implement the U. S. Supreme Court's ruling. "As in the past, there are some people who say we are moving too fast and others who say we are too slow. The obvious answer is that we are moving and that is the important factor to keep in mind."

India Breaks With Portugal

NEW DELHI (U-P)—Prime Minister Nehru asked Portugal today to close its legation in New Delhi by Aug. 8 because of the European country's "persistent refusal" to negotiate India's claim to Portuguese India.
Closing of the legation would mean virtual suspension of diplomatic relations between the two countries.
India closed her legation in Lisbon in July 1953 because, Nehru told Parliament today, his government felt "there was no advantage in keeping it open."

Returning Turncoats Embark On Last Leg Of Home Journey

HONOLULU (U-P)—Three former American prisoners of war, who once turned their backs on the United States, sailed late last night on the last leg of their journey home.
They had 14 hours of complete freedom on this beautiful American territorial island before the liner departed.
The trio told a news conference yesterday that it was a radio speech by President Eisenhower that prompted them to try to get the Chinese Reds to let them come home.
The three, sailing for home on the President Cleveland, are William C. Cowart, 22, Dalton, Ga.; Lewis W. Briggs, 22, Jacksonville, Tex.; and Otto G. Bell, 24, Hillsboro, Miss., and Olympia, Wash. They had refused repatriation after the Korean armistice and went to Red China instead.
The three, on their first day on U.S. soil in nearly five years, acted pretty much as most tourists. They first went to church and then spent the day sightseeing. They are due in San Francisco Friday.
Griggs, in company with missionaries, visited the Punchbowl National Cemetery of the Pacific, where nearly 15,000 American war dead are buried. He said he went to the grave of Ernie Pyle, famous World War II columnist killed in action.

Geneva Role Stirs Re-Election Hopes

WASHINGTON (U-P)—Senators Capewhart (R-Ind) and Clifford P. Case (R-N.J.) said today President Eisenhower's role at Geneva makes it almost certain he will run for re-election.
Sen. Humphrey (D-Minn) said in a separate interview he has "always assumed" Eisenhower will be a candidate again next year. But he said he thinks domestic issues, rather than international policies, will be overriding in next year's election.
Capewhart voiced the opinion that Eisenhower couldn't retire now if he wanted to because he has opened a possible new era in Western relations with Russia.
"The President has to follow through with what he has started," Capewhart said. "His leadership is essential to the country in the efforts to obtain a lasting peace. He couldn't step out now."
Case said that in his opinion Eisenhower demonstrated at the Big Four meeting "a quality of leadership that the country and the world cannot afford to do without."
Case issued Saturday night a statement signed by himself and 18 other GOP senators which

Ship Replacement Program Under Way

WASHINGTON (U-P)—The Committee of American Steamship Lines says six American-flag steamship companies are taking the first steps in a three-billion-dollar ship replacement program.
The committee said last night these and 10 other American lines will participate in the next few years in "the largest peacetime ship replacement program in the nation's history."
The first six are American President Lines, Moore-McCormack Lines, Grace Line, Oceanic Steamship Co., Pacific Far East Line and United States Lines.

A Bible Thought For Today

For the love of money is the root of all evil: while some coveted after, they have erred from the faith, and pierced themselves through with many sorrows. (1 Tim. 6:10)

Showdown On The Showdown

The House Rules Committee, the most powerful group in Congress, will hold a hearing Tuesday on whether to let the House vote on legislation to exempt natural gas producers from federal controls.

The House Commerce Committee had approved the measure June 8 by 16-15, and its chairman, Percy Priest (D-Tenn.), had asked the rules group to clear it for House action. The senior Republican on this group, Rep. Wolverton (NJ), had served notice he will oppose giving the House a chance to vote on it.

This legislation is necessary to undo the Supreme Court's decision holding that the Federal Power Commission holds, and in effect cannot evade, the power to regulate the selling price of natural gas at the wellhead — a responsibility the FPC had refused to accept a dozen times over a period of years.

That group favors the pending bill to take away that regulatory power from FPC. The Republican administration favors it. President Eisenhower favors it, but some of its sponsors have been disappointed that he has not seen fit, so far, to exert his influence in the bill's behalf, as he has in other matters. They indulge the hope that he will take an active hand upon his return from Geneva this weekend.

Gas producers in Texas and elsewhere see ruination for them in federal control of gas prices at the well, and point out that the price the producer gets is only a fraction — in most cases less than 10 per cent — of what the consumers pay. They have also warned that federal control will tend to increase consumer prices, for the simple reason that it will hamper the continual search for new sources that must be kept up and create a lot of federal red tape that would be difficult to abide by.

Cutting off the nose to spite the face is hardly intelligent conduct. That is what federal control of gas prices means. In the end the consumers would pay more and more for less and less gas. Getting their representatives in Congress to see that is where the rub comes in.

Goodbye To Plate Slogans

A court has decided that a state has no right to turn a motorist's automobile into a billboard on wheels by attaching a slogan to the license plates it issues to him for a consideration.

It happened in 2/Kalamazoo County, Mich., where the cops had run in a citizen because he had covered up the Water Wonderland slogan embossed on the plate. He was convicted by the trial court, but the county's circuit court overruled the conviction, holding that the motorist was not required to advertise the state.

As the result of this courageous stand of one lone citizen against state encroachment on his rights, Michigan's secretary of state, James M. Hare, has announced that "Water Wonderland" slogan likely will be left off the Michigan plates for 1957.

"The trend is away from license plate advertising and slogans," Hare observed. An effort was made at the last session of the Texas Legislature to add "Tremendous Texas" to the Lone Star license plates. One member thought this was too modest, and suggested "Terrific Texas," whether in earnest or in jest we do not know. But cooler judgment prevailed, and Texas license plates will continue to be sloganless — as if the word "Texas weren't enough. The 1956 plates, however, will have the letters preceding the numerals side by side, and the same size as the numerals, instead of one on top of the other. Easier to read that way.

A minority of states advertise themselves with some sort of slogan on license plates, but a few employ a symbol, as in the case of Louisiana's pelican and New Mexico's submerge, not to mention Tennessee's plate cut in the shape of the state's geographical outline. We seem to recall that Texas once used a lone star to separate the group of numerals, but that was dropped, at least for 1955.

Corporate Profits Running Good

NEW YORK (AP) — Corporate profits — like the business boom — are running better than some economic doomsayers expected.

Especially impressive gains are reported by the steel companies and the railroads. The first 156 corporations to report earnings after taxes for the first six months show a remarkable increase of 40 per cent over the year-before figures. Only 26 of them made less profits this year than last.

The bright profit picture — for so many firms, especially the larger ones — has important side results.

1. It confirms the guessing six months ago by the bulls in Wall Street who bid up stock prices in anticipation.

2. It has encouraged labor unions to make greater demands and has aided them to win higher wage increases this year than last — something which management fear may threaten future profit levels.

3. It strengthened President Eisenhower's hand in Geneva by showing the world that a free economy is strong. And it comforts the treasury with a promise of higher tax collections in the months ahead.

The first 156 corporations to report range through all the important industries and include both small and large firms. But the number is too small yet to more than indicate the trend. Final totals, weeks in the future, could whittle down the high percentage gain.

Combined, the 156 show net income after taxes of $778,713,565, compared with $555,521,531 for the same companies in the first six months of their previous fiscal year. This time three report a net loss, instead of a profit. A year ago five firms were in the red.

Many companies, especially the smaller ones, have narrow gains over a year ago. But whopping increases by some of the larger ones pull the averages higher than many observers expected — even above the big gains reported for the first three months of the year.

The Commerce Department has just raised its estimate of first-quarter profits of all corporations by one billion dollars to a total of 41 billion, compared with 34½ billion in the first three months of 1954.

Observers note that net profits would appear even higher if so many corporations weren't setting aside large sums as reserves for fast amortization of new plant and equipment under the tax laws.

In addition to the rails and steel companies showing notable increases this year are found in these fields: airplanes, farm equipment, cement, coal, paper, building materials, chemicals, drugs, glass, rubber and textiles.

Among the minority with poor comparative showings are some leading firms in the electrical equipment, food distributing and aircraft industries.

Any 'Concrete' Ideas At Geneva?

James Marlow

Wishful Thought: Good Results At Geneva

WASHINGTON (AP) — The world would like to think, because this may have been the last big chance for peace, that the Geneva conference was a success and that good will come of it. And maybe it will.

But the realistic fact is that the Big Four meeting so far has proved nothing except that men who have been in conflict a long time can be polite when they get together, if they have a mind to.

The test of the worth of the conference is in the future when the big powers have time to do something — by agreements and concessions — about what they only talked of in Switzerland.

There were no tangible deeds at Geneva. Nothing was settled. Nothing was solved. This was neither a disappointment nor a surprise. The Big Four indicated beforehand they expected no final solutions in Switzerland.

Their proclaimed purpose in meeting was to look for a path to peace through the relationship established at Geneva. Any settlements, flowing from that relationship, would have to be made later.

All last week the words which poured out of Geneva reflected almost astonishment that President Eisenhower and the Prime Minister, Eden of Britain, Faure of France and Bulganin of Russia, got along as well as they did.

It would have been more astonishing if they didn't. Even if their purpose in going to Geneva had been bad instead of good, all four would have had to wear their best Sunday manners anyway.

Anyone who acted ugly would have appeared to the world as an enemy of mankind. And in the end world opinion, and even opinion in their own countries, may tip the scales between the West and Russia.

Eisenhower publicly acknowledged that the test of the conference was not in Geneva but in the future.

So the Big Four, who didn't expect to solve their problems in Geneva, and didn't dumped them back into the laps of their foreign ministers, who have been wrangling over the same problems for years.

They may go on wrangling for years over the big ones, like the unification of Germany and a security pact for Europe, unless, as a result of Geneva, the Big powers have decided to reach agreement.

That almost certainly would require concessions on both sides. More likely any good results from Geneva will be far less sensational, and quicker, taking the form of agreements on smaller problems.

In time, perhaps a long time, smaller agreements might lead to big ones.

Beauty Judge Not Tired Yet

NEW YORK (AP) — Some 525 times in his life Russell Patterson has had to view a line of beautiful girls and pick out the prettiest.

Naturally, hard work like this should pay well. A fellow has to think of the wear and tear on his eyeballs.

But Patterson, a famous illustrator and interior decorator, has selflessly put principle above profit in this matter.

"You can't accept money in a thing of this kind—it might be mistaken, or it might oblige you," he said.

Beauty contests have become a big American industry. It has been estimated that there are up to 17,000 beauty contests a year and the money output, including advertising, to promote them runs into the hundreds of millions of dollars.

At 60, Patterson, a cautious, white-mustached man who tells of a six-stitch head scar inflicted by one losing contestant, is the unchallenged king of beauty contest judges.

His own shy estimate is that he has had to view and judge the charms of maybe half a million lovely American girls, and he still doesn't feel tired. You hardly can find men like that any more.

Being an artist himself — he figures he has drawn the female form 150,000 times in his work, not counting idle doodling (the kind of pictures any man draws for years for fun—he feels he is impervious as a judge to any feminine charm pressure.

But over the years he has achieved an idea of what he thinks is an ideal girl:

She would be about 5 feet 6, have red hair, blue eyes, a full, saucy mouth, a 37-inch bust, a 24-inch waist and a 24-inch hipline.

Oddly enough, although this is the type of girl he draws in his own magazine and newspaper illustrations, he rarely has met her in real life.

In judging beauty contestants he now relies on his artist's eye, rather than a tape-line, to measure the variables involved.

"It makes for better understanding in my home," he said crisply. As a judge, Patterson says he's neither a leg nor bosom man, says the basic desirable shape of beautiful women hasn't really changed much in this century. He feels that the quality of entrants in beauty contests, however, has risen with the increasing popularity of such competitions.

At present Patterson is conscientiously engaged in the task of picking "Miss Esquiline Form," a beauty contest sponsored by United Artists, a Hollywood firm. There were 163,000 original entrants throughout the United States and Canada, and Patterson is resigned to the fact that as a judge he won't make many close personal friends.

He says the scar in his scalp was put there by a runner — up in a contest to choose "the most beautiful cigarette girl in New York." She hit him with her make-up kit.

What has Patterson learned about women from his unpaid hobby?

"Well, redheads tend to feel superior—whether they were born red-haired or acquired the color later. And brunettes are generally a little more solid and stable than blondes."

That should dispel the mystery about all women — except, of course, the one you want to know.

Airport Opinion

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) — Patrick B. McGinnis, here for a luncheon with city officials, was told that some of them would be absent because they were engaged in negotiations to enable an industrial concern to take over Brainerd Field, former municipal airport.

"It should happen to every airport in the country," quipped McGinnis, a railroad president.

Sweet Revenge

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Police thought there seemed to be an unusual number of tipsters in the case of seven illegally parked trucks.

The mystery didn't last long. The trucks were part of a private fleet hired by the city to tow illegally parked autos off city streets. A ticket was placed on each one.

American Mule Gets Homesick For America

An item from a Honduras newspaper, El Dia, brought back here recently by Chester Cluck, tells of the homesickness of an American mule after his arrival in that country.

The mule, it seems, was one of a shipment dispatched to La Ceiba, Honduras by the Standard Fruit Company for use in the various phases of its banana activities.

Pastured at a place called the Miramar Ranch, the animal displayed dissatisfaction from the start with its new home.

The six-foot specimen was distinguished not only by its high head and black coat but its searching look toward the ocean, as well.

The mule, attracted by the whistle of a steamer that brought her to Honduras territory, jumped fences, ignored the traffic that buzzed around her and made her way to the dock, obviously seeking transportation back to the United States.

The incident, so the newspaper account went, would probably have gone unnoticed had not it occurred twice, and each time only when there was a ship in port.

The news periodical wondered in print if the animal wasn't unhappy with the reception she had been given and the amount of work she had been called upon to do.

It intimated that no one, not even a mule, who doesn't want to live in Honduras shouldn't be forced to do so.

The animal probably had better quarters than I did the last time I was shipped into that area, or it would have tried to make her way back to the states entirely by land.

Could be the poor soul is allergic to bananas or isn't very good in foreign languages.

Pictures of the mule and its new home were taken and brought back to Fort Worth, where Cluck viewed them and brought back the unusual news item.

Aerial Inspection Could Become UN Job

President Eisenhower's proposal to permit aerial inspection by Soviet planes over the United States if American planes are allowed over Russia to photograph military installations is intended only as an example of what the United Nations can do some day as the agency responsible for detecting any violation of international agreements to limit armament.

Today nuclear bombs in a stockpile cannot hurt anybody. Everybody concedes it is the "means of delivery" which is all-important.

There's a way to detect whether a potential aggressor is building up for an offensive attack. It can be done as high as twelve miles in the air above a country and without detection.

Electronic eyes to aid detection make it possible for unarmed aircraft to fly over airfields where planes are located and to report daily or weekly on the total number and the nature of the craft.

The idea is not a new one. On January 13 of this year the Organization of American States asked the government in Washington, a member, to furnish aircraft for observation of the progress of the fighting in Costa Rica. Prior to that time and since, there has been discussion in military circles of a possible treaty or convention which would bind all members of the United Nations to submit to aerial inspection. But if any potential aggressor should refuse, and if a crisis developed, the United Nations even without a treaty could order planes to observe and detect possibly hostile moves.

Such flights at great heights can be carried out without detection by unarmed planes, and it would be a rare occurrence if they were shot down. Probably the losses would be accepted as one of the hazards of such a critical situation, because the advantage would be to learn whether a surprise aggression was in prospect.

The reason why military men did not object when the plan for a mutual agreement was first discussed here several months ago, and why they do not object now, is because American targets have been photographed by newspapers and magazines while locations inside Soviet Russia have received no such publicity.

Theoretically it would be to the advantage of the free world to have all maps revealed and targets photographed, so that this might be an added deterrent to the use of nuclear weapons.

The president's use of the aerial inspection formula was, of course, a sensational move. It had been worked on for several weeks as one of the suggestions that might be launched at the Big Four meeting, and it is believed that even congressional leaders were "briefed" about it some time ago.

In a sense, the move puts the Soviets on the spot. They can hardly mistake the sincerity of purpose behind it and the desire to open things up and find a way to apply effective self-restraints so that war will not be used as an instrument of national policy. Instead of being content, as the nations were in 1929, with a Kellogg-Briand treaty that renounced war, the proposal now is to enter into a program of mutual inspection which will measure the extent in order that public opinion may exercise some check upon the arbitrary use of any military force.

The Soviets are not likely to stay on the spot very long. They will sooner or later come up with a variation of the plan and will not fail to seek in the court of public opinion as much prestige as the President of the United States got when he offered to exchange blueprints of our military installations as well as permits for each other's reconnaissance craft to photograph anything desired.

Certainly the pressure for peace which has been rising all over the world has reached a sensational climax in the President's proposal, though it will be many months before any real answer to it will be forthcoming, since there are many aspects to be considered. In fact, the proposal itself will be turned over to a United Nations military committee to study. This can be a burial ground or a proving ground, depending on what impact the idea itself has made on world opinion.

One thing can be stated now—the Western delegations to Geneva thought out in advance a few moves to offset any propaganda exploitation which the Communists might be trying out. The aerial inspection plan offered by Mr. Eisenhower and the proposal by Prime Minister Eden that the Eastern and Western military commanders sit down together to discuss exchanges of information looking toward limitation or reduction of arms are in themselves evidence of the earnestness of the Western allies in seeking a way to peace. The Soviets will surely have to bear the responsibility for any failures, as the West now has demonstrated its willingness to go far toward reaching the heart of the problem of "mutual distrust."

She Has Fond Remembrances Of One Elinor Glyn

In all fairness, I should warn the congregation today that what follows is only for the middle-aged who had to sneak off to the attic or the coal bin to read "Three Weeks."

When I finally discovered where Aunt Nell had hidden her copy of Elinor Glyn's masterpiece, I was a junior in college and judged old enough to read the lagniappe without impairment of morals.

This was one of the great and triumphant moments of my life. It marked my admission, at long last, into the adult world and my acceptance as a grownup by the family. But if, at that time, I owed Miss Glyn my promotion to adult status, I was to be beholden to her a few years later for an equally important advance in rank.

So when I read in the book review sections recently that Miss Glyn's grandson, Sir Geoffrey Davson, Bart., had written a biography of his grandmother, I felt honor bound to order and read it.

Well, Sir Geoffrey, writing under pseudonym of Anthony Glyn, thinks his grandmother was a remarkable personality, a real RARA AVIS. From my one brief encounter with the lady, I would add a loud and firm "Amen!"

At the time of that meeting, Miss Glyn was a sensation in the world of belle lettres not so much for "Three Weeks," written years before, but her recent discovery and christening of "It" as the quintessence of sex appeal, and life, for that matter.

Fresh from the hinterlands, I had been in New York only a few weeks when Miss Glyn, with trumpets and banners, came to town. The city editor, unable at the moment to get his hands on a more experienced reporter (Miss G. had competition from a sash-weight murderer), sent me to interview her.

To say the authoress was like no one I had ever seen before — or since — is the plain truth. Somehow, with the aid of drawn draperies and stacks of velvet cushions, she had managed to transform the sitting room of her hotel suite into a salon that could have passed for a high class opium den.

If she had managed to create the illusion of a highly romantic background, Miss Glyn had reserved her finest illusion for herself. She looked, at 65, strongly akin to tiger-skin rugs and like all her own improbable heroines rolled into one. This, I felt, was how Sheba's Queen must have looked when she knocked Solomon for a loop.

In the first place, Miss Glyn had the most extraordinary hair I have ever seen. Not only were there three masses of hair in a single alo, but it was the most singular shade of red, a flaming hue in which nature had taken no part.

Green eyes, really green, smoldered in her dead-white face. She was poured into a black satin sheath and wrapped in an endless stole of black fox.

Miss Glyn discussed her new literary discovery, "It," with regal elegance. It was God's gift, she said. In her opinion, George Washington—poor George!—never had any. She felt that Abraham Lincoln probably had had some. But Jimmy Walker, then Mayor of New York! Ah, he had it pressed down and running over.

When I finally staggered back to the office, I wrote a short piece and dropped it on the city desk, knowing it was destined for the wastebasket. Imagine my surprise and joy next morning to find my contribution on the front page under my byline!

It was my first byline in a New York paper! A milestone indeed, and ever since I have revered Miss Glyn, moulder of my destiny.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Haakon Sande of Long Island, N.Y., a crew member of the tug, M. Moran, enroute to New York, fell overboard several miles from shore and saw the vessel chug right on northward and out of sight.

Only two days before Sande as a member of the crew of the tug had gone to the aid of the S. S. Surna, a big cargo ship which had lost a propeller 250 miles off Jacksonville.

NEW HAVEN, Conn. These tests, Auld adds, would show which children have the talent required to pursue a scientific education.

he has fought for the theory that audiences in the sticks and elsewhere want high-class entertainment, not corn.

On July 26 Des Moines will salute the 34-year-old producer who once was a barefoot farm boy at nearby Waukee. He'll receive the honors at the premier of his first movie, "Night of the Hunter."

"It's rather embarrassing," he admits, "but I am also very touched."

Gregory left Iowa at 19 to seek his fortune in Hollywood. There wasn't much there. He dropped his own handle of Jason Lehart for his present one and did some bit roles in films. He organized a Gilbert and Sullivan touring troupe, made $28,000, dropped the wad in a real estate deal.

After a brief interlude as a soda jerk, he became an agent. In 1949, he latched onto Charles Laughton and sent the portly actor on a reading tour that was a sensation. This led to "Don Juan in Hell," "John Brown's Body," "Caine Mutiny Court Martial," and "Three for Tonight." All toured throughout the United States and scored on Broadway.

Iowans will find their boy amazingly handsome as he is often compared to Gregory Peck, articulate and earnest about producing worthwhile things for the public. He remarks about "Night of the Hunter":

"The people in Hollywood who have seen it so far either like it or hate it. The picture is a departure from the usual methods of film making. Those who hate it say those film makers who insist on following the same patterns that have been established."

Home Run Helps Dallas Eagles Down Houston

Sparkling pitching stood out in the Texas League Sunday night but it was one of those over-the-fence clouts that pulled Dallas through and kept the Eagles two games ahead of the field.

Ozzie Virgil, Dallas third baseman, slugged a home run in the eighth to give the Eagles a 7-6 victory over Houston and win a battle of the bats.

Semi-final contests will take place in Big Spring Tuesday, starting at 8 p.m., regardless of who wins.

Should two Midland teams emerge into the finals, however, the finals will be played in Midland Wednesday night. Should a Big Spring club enter the finals, the championship match will take place here Thursday night, since Big Spring was originally designated as the tournament site.

SHALER LUBRICATOR
—gives your engine new life, makes it last longer!
Today's high-compression, high-speed engines operate at higher temperatures—need full lubrication at all times, especially under load at low vacuum. The Shaler Rislone Lubricator was developed to fill this need. Here's what it does: quiets noisy hydraulic valve lifters, reduces valve and ring failure, helps restore lost compression and power. For improved performance, have your garage or car dealer install a Shaler Rislone Lubricator today.

Shivers To Seek Morrow Successor

AUSTIN (AP)—Gov. Allan Shivers and other Texas Democratic leaders who bolted to support Dwight D. Eisenhower in 1952 may take the first public step back toward the national party fold today.
They are expected to begin looking for a man to take the place of Wright Morrow, another Eisenhower backer who claims the post of national committeeman but who is not recognized by the national committee.

Gas Tank Pops To Surface
A 12,000-gallon gasoline tank rises out of the ground, cracking a concrete apron and lifting jumps in the air at a service station in Corpus Christi. Firemen investigating the freak accident found that a broken water line had built up pressure around the tank causing it to float to the surface. The tank was almost empty at the time.

UNCLE RAY'S CORNER

In the foreground is a nest of grain-storing rats of India. Hungry Hindus, in the background, are looking for such nests. House rats like to live in, or near, the dwellings of men. Someone might suggest that this means the rats are fond of people, but the truth is different. They are selfish. They will stay in a house only as long as they can find enough food there. If the food supply runs low, they move to another boarding house.

Rats have followed people far and wide over the earth. They are found wherever the climate is pleasant, also in many places where the weather is far from good. One bad thing about rats—perhaps the worst thing—is the fact that they carry germs. The germs include those of bubonic plague. Black rats appear to have traveled from Asia Minor to Europe on vessels which carried Crusaders back to their home countries. Records indicate that black rats reached Great Britain about 750 years ago.

Some of our so-called "black" rats are dark gray but others are medium gray or even light gray. Rats of this type traveled to the New World on vessels which carried settlers across the Atlantic. The settlers (or at least most of them) were paying passengers. In later years the larger and stronger brown rats reached the New World. Brown rats spread across North America and drove the black rats out of most areas. Some brown rats weigh a pound, and a few reach the weight of a pound and a half.

It is hard to find anything good to say for house rats, but India has rats which seem to help at times. The rats of which I speak go through fields of grain, and gather food. Much of the grain is taken to their nests (at levels below the ground surface). There it is kept until winter comes. Meanwhile a famine may arise in India. In this case hungry people go through fields, looking for the nests of the rats. When they find grain hidden away, they take it to their homes, and it helps to keep the family from starving. Tomorrow: Patch Rats.

Suspect Nabbed In Roadblock

RENO, Nev. (AP)—Harvey Bimstein, trapped when highway patrolmen blocked a cross-country highway in desert country east of Reno, was quoted today as admitting the shooting of a wealthy young Californian. Dead with a bullet in his abdomen was Frederick Winter Heinz, 19-year-old son of Roy Heinz, vice president and general manager of Continental Baking Co. in Los Angeles. He was shot at the family home in Pacific Palisades near West Los Angeles Saturday night. Capt. Gordon Fairchild of the Nevada highway patrol summed up Bimstein's statement as follows: "He admitted going up to the Heinz residence . . . and ringing the door bell. Bimstein had a gun in his hand and showed it. As young Heinz opened the door, Heinz grappled with Bimstein, jerked him through the door and tried to judo him, according to the statement. Bimstein says he then shot Heinz in the stomach."

Budget Okayed

PARIS (AP)—France's National Assembly approved a military budget of 945 billion francs ($2,731,429,970) yesterday. This is an increase of about 30 billion francs ($85,714,200) over last year, despite the end of the Indochina fighting.

Mistake Slaying Suspect Sought

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP)—Police as far north as Virginia are asked to watch for Bernard Davis, 39, accused of stealing into his ex-wife's house to kill her but slaying a roomer by mistake. Deputy Sheriff L. F. Neel said Davis slipped into the house early yesterday and shot Joel Cohen, 28, asleep in the bedroom. Davis once shared with Rosa Marie Finley, 28.

Hollywood Strike Voted

HOLLYWOOD, (AP)—A strike against the nation's television film producers was authorized last night by a unanimous vote of about 2,000 Hollywood actors and actresses. The producers are deadlocked with the AFL Screen Actors Guild.

Democracy To Hold Out For Foreign Aid Cut

WASHINGTON (AP)—Rep. Passman (D-La.) said today he would "hold out until Christmas" for most of the 67 million dollars in cuts which the House made in President Eisenhower's foreign aid program. Sen. Hayden (D-Ariz.), floor manager for the money bill in the Senate, where 567 millions of that amount were restored, had told reporters earlier that "we're going to stand pat on exactly what the Senate voted."

About Going Steady "There is nothing good or bad, but thinking makes it so." That includes going steady. Going steady, when kept in its proper place, is wonderful. Warped thinking, and abusing the "steady" institution leads to a tangled situation and breeds regret and heartache. Ideally speaking, going steady means that two people like each other best of all the other members of the opposite sex. It means that, because they like each other so very much, they each have pledged themselves to be the other's special property and have vowed to be true by dating or attempting to attract no one else as long as they shall continue the "steadyship."

Baby Hippo Born In Zoo NEW YORK (AP)—The Bronx Zoo has a new arrival—a baby hippopotamus that tips the scales at 40 pounds. A hippo born in captivity is a rare event, and zoo officials were properly excited when the birth was discovered over the weekend. Rose, the mother, had been expected to give birth in May.
