HOME TOWN TALK

BY BEDDY

Now that most of us have made and broken New Year's resolutions let's take a slant at the year 1931 from the standpoint of citizens as well as in terms of individuals.

What would you wish upon Big Spring this year?

We list, as among the more important needs:

1. Development, as rapidly as possible with the financial resources at hand, of a larger and more reliable supply of water.

2. Construction of a Town Hall with an auditorium large enough to seat a considerable portion of the population, and quarters for city offices commensurate with the importance and the size of the city.

3. Construction of five stations on an economical plan and in locations that would assure greater protection to all parts of the city.

4. Inauguration of a street paving program under a plan leaving the initiative with property owners and at the same time connecting new paving with that already in existence insofar as possible.

5. Broadening of the curriculum of the schools to include such useful courses as manual training, music, mechanical drawing, and a really effective program of physical education, and better compensation for teachers.

6. A campaign to obtain from the legislature an appropriation sufficient to repay farmer in the area of losses incurred by reason of pink bollworm regulations.

7. Vigorous prosecution of a campaign to obtain a Federal building for Big Spring.

8. Inauguration by the Chamber of Commerce of a scientific and exhaustive industrial survey of the city and its territory, as groundwork for efforts to bring more prosperity into the city and county.

9. A city-wide beautification program.

10. Inauguration of a highway building program on highway No. 9 to be followed by permanent improvement of No. 1, including the elimination of the two grade crossings in Howard county.

If all these things were actually started it would be a very busy

Vegetables, Fruits, Teas, Cereals Allowed To Grocer's Door

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5 (AP)—The packers consent decree was modified today to allow the four leading groups of packers to handle vegetables, fruits, milk, coffee, teas, cereals and a number of other products up to the doors of retail grocery stores.

There were not allowed, however, under the decision of Justice Jennings in the District of Columbia supreme court to engage in the retailing of meats or other products.

These were the high points in Justice Bailey's ruling in a case which has been in the courts in one form or another almost since the decree was entered into between the packers and the government in February, 1920.

Justice Bailey held there was no evidence that Swift & Company, Armour & Company, Wilson and Company and the Cudahy packing group had any monopoly in meat packing. The government made this charge when it began proceedings against the five leading packing groups, one of which, Morris & Company, has been merged with Armour & Company since the litigation began.

Unwise
The ruling added that it was thought unwise to allow the packers to own in whole or in part stock yards, market newspapers and terminal railroads. The packers were ordered to comply with those portions of the decree which were thought to stand.

Frank Hogan, counsel for the packers, said he could make no statement as to the action his clients would take with regard to the opinion. Representatives of Swift & Company authorized an announcement by Louis F. Swift, company president, which said: "We prefer not to comment on the decision until we have had an opportunity to review it."

Neither was any comment forthcoming immediately from the Justice department.

Intervenor
Government counsel during argument contended Justice Bailey had no authority to modify the decree. The opinion said the government had in effect acknowledged the jurisdiction of the district supreme court.

The National Wholesale Grocers' Association and the American Wholesale Grocers' Association intervened in opposition to modification.

The packers under the original agreement were confined almost exclusively to the packing of meat and were forbidden to handle in any way unrelated lines. They took the case to the supreme court of the United States, but the decree was upheld there.

Justice Bailey held the evidence showed there was no monopoly in the meat packing business and that none of the packers had sufficient size to constitute a monopoly. He said, however, he thought it would be unwise to modify that portion of the decree which prohibited the packers from owning any interest in stockyards, terminal railroads or market newspapers.

Modified
The decree was modified to allow the packers to engage in the wholesale buying and selling of a number of commodities unrelated to meat packing, such as fish, vegetables, fruits, flour, sugar, rice, cereals, grain, grape juice and various miscellaneous articles.

The decree was broadened also to allow the packers group to handle fresh milk and cream.

The five groups affected originally were Swift & Company, Morris & Company, Armour and Company, Wilson and Company and the Cudahy Packing company. Morris and Wilson and Company and Cudahy did not participate in the effort against the decree. They are affected by the decision, however.

CHICAGO, Jan. 5 (AP)—Modification of the Packers' Consent Decree, under the decision handed down in Washington today, was hailed by F. Edison White, president of Armour & Company, as enabling the packers to compete toward the modern trend of reducing distributive costs. One of the contentions of the packers was that handling of other commodities besides meat enabled them to use retaining refrigerators for bringing in produce and thus avoided dead head freight costs.

Midland Man Dies In Plane Crash

Ship Hits Tree In Fog; Three Lives Claimed

OVERTON, Texas, Jan. 5 (AP)—Bodies of three men killed in an airplane crash near here yesterday, while flying from Shreveport, La., to Dallas, today were forwarded to Lexington, Mo., Midland, Texas, and Dover, Del., for burial.

Horace F. Clark, 40, president of the United Guaranty Securities Company, will be buried in Dover, Del. where his mother resides; Thomas H. Holcombe, 20, of Midland, will be buried there; and H. Addison Noever, 26, pilot, will be buried in Lexington.

OVERTON, Jan. 5 (AP)—Separate funerals, arranged respectively in Midland, Dallas and Lexington, were planned today for three men killed yesterday when the airplane in which they were traveling from Shreveport to Dallas crashed into a tree near here, while lost in a dense fog.

The victims were Horace F. Clark, 40, of Dallas; Tom Holcomb, 20, of Midland; and H. Addison Noever, 26, of Dallas. Pilot, H. Addison Noever, president of the United Guaranty Securities company of Dallas, holding concern for several building and loan homestead companies in Texas, chartered the plane Saturday for the trip to Shreveport, and spoke there Saturday night at a banquet commemorating the centennial of building and loan association men. He formerly lived in Kansas City, was educated in Michigan, and was widely known as a writer on building and loan subjects.

Holcomb, although from Midland, was residing in Dallas temporarily while pursuing a flying course at Love field. He had accepted an invitation to make the week-end trip to Shreveport as a pleasure jaunt.

Noever, the pilot, formerly lived in Kansas City but was employed in Dallas by the Gault-Silber company, automobile and airplane distributors, owners of the plane.

T. C. Bradberry, a farmer, said he saw the plane circling low over trees, as though seeking a landing. The plane bar ed over several trees, then struck a pine and Bradberry said the crash could be heard a mile distant. The mangled bodies were removed from the wreckage and taken to Tyler.

Auto Owners Urged To Pay 1931 Licenses

Attorney General Says February 1 Is Final Day for All

L. B. Barkley, state highway patrolman, today announced that motor vehicles, including cars and trucks, must have 1931 license plates by midnight, Feb. 1.

According to Barkley, quoting from a decision given by Rice M. Tilley, assistant attorney general, anyone operating a motor vehicle after February 1 that has not been registered for the current year is subject to arrest. If the vehicle has not been registered, it has been operated during the month of January, the owner is not only subject to arrest, but must pay a penalty of 20 per cent of the registration fee.

The patrolman urges owners of cars and trucks to register their entries in order to avoid the last minute rush for plates.

Three headlight testing stations are located here. Headlight certificates may be obtained at Hilo and Jay Service Station, Fourth and Scurry streets; Buck's garage, East Third and Gifford's Service Station, South Scurry street.

The license plates may be obtained any time after the headlights have been tested and adjusted. Barkley declared many think it is necessary to obtain the plates immediately after getting lights tested.

The patrolman also warned truck owners to see that a rear-view mirror is in place, and maintained throughout the year. Violations will bring a fine of $200 or less, he declared.

Both Houses Vote $45,000,000 Drought Loan Bill; Senate Appends $15,000,000 For Food Purchases

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5 (AP)—Congress reconvened at noon today after a two weeks' recess.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5 (AP)—Congress voted appropriations for drought relief today but senate and house differences must be adjusted before the lending to sufferers can begin.

The house approved the $45,000,000 figure for seed, feed and fertilizer loans requested by the administration. The senate not only did that but on motion of Senator Caraway, democrat, Arkansas, added $15,000,000 more, to be advanced for food purchases by farmers whose crops were hit. No record votes were taken.

The bill went back to the house for action on the food loan amendment. If it refuses to accept that, as seems likely in view of

Hobbs C. of C. Opposes Renewing Proration

SANTA FE, N. M., Jan. 5 (AP)—Arguing that major oil companies are importing crude to the detriment of development in domestic fields, representatives of the Hobbs Chamber of Commerce today asked Land Commissioner James F. Hinkle not to renew the Hobbs proration agreement.

strong administration objections to the principle involved, and if the senate persists in its stand—then a conference between the two branches will be in order.

Efforts are expected to be made to send the legislation to the White House as quickly as possible.

C. W. Warburton, secretary of the national drought relief committee, testified in congressional hearings on it that loans would be made available within a week after the president signs the appropriation bill.

Would Separate Various Branches Under One Ownership

FORT WORTH, Jan. 5 (AP)—Disintegration of major oil companies, divorcing the pipe line, producing, marketing and refining branches was advocated in a committee report made directors of the Independent Petroleum Association of Texas meeting here today.

No action was taken during the morning session on the report.

The transportation committee which submitted the report charged that competition with the major units which produce, transport refine and market is unfair.

Recommendation that four separate branches of the petroleum industry was made. The plan would insure fair competition and enable independents to have access to all markets on a fair basis, the report stated.

Charles Morgan, Fort Worth attorney, reported that opposition is planned to an oil and gas ratio bill to be introduced at the next session of the legislature on grounds that no provision is made for suitable withdrawal of gas.

"Without provision for suitable withdrawal of gas, the bill will enable those producers with a gas market to produce oil while others without a gas market will not be permitted to flow their wells."

A platform designed to guide general activities of the association, was passed, providing that individual gas producers be maintained.

Bunker Goes To Trial For Mail Fraud

FORT WORTH, Jan. 5 (AP)—A timid, gray-haired court of appeals held today that the 18th amendment was constitutionally adopted. It made its ruling in a decision unanimously affirming the conviction of Louis E. Tribault, of Windsor, Vermont, accused of possessing and selling two pints of whiskey.

The appellate court thus took a contrary view to that expressed by Newark, N. J., recently by Federal Judge William Clark, who held the 18th amendment was illegally adopted.

The decision declared that the supreme court already had decided that "the amendment had been lawfully proposed and ratified and had become a part of the constitution and must be respected and given effect the same as the other provisions of that instrument."

Harry M. Amey, United States attorney in Vermont, represented the government at the hearing on appeal, while Selden Bacon and Daniel F. Cohan, who assisted in presenting the case of William Sprague before Judge Clark, also appeared for Tribault.

Bunker, William L. Moseley, Josiah W. Pison, and Alex. T. Miele were indicted for alleged fraud in promoting the company, their trial was called before Federal Judge Halsted L. Ritter of Miami, Fla., holding a special term of court for Federal Judge Wilson.

The woman whose testimony opened the case was Mrs. Rena M. Poe of Holmesville, Ohio, who said she "couldn't begin to tell how many letters she received from the concern asking her to invest money in its stocks."

She said on cross-examination that Bunker later had written her that the printing company had been a "miserable failure" and offered to exchange her stocks in that concern for stock in another of his projects. She said she accepted the offer.

S. M. Marras, state superintendent of public instruction and secretary of the state textbook commission, testified in regard to the amount of textbook contracts awarded by the state in 1927. The government alleges as one of its accusations of fraud that Bunker and his associates represented to prospective investors that the printing company was bidding on a $4,000,000 contract for textbooks for use in the schools of the state.

Pro Law Held Adopted Via Constitution

NEW YORK, Jan. 5 (AP)—The United States circuit court of appeals held today that the 18th amendment was constitutionally adopted. It made its ruling in a decision unanimously affirming the conviction of Louis E. Tribault, of Windsor, Vermont, accused of possessing and selling two pints of whiskey.

The appellate court thus took a contrary view to that expressed by Newark, N. J., recently by Federal Judge William Clark, who held the 18th amendment was illegally adopted.

Bus Operators Discuss Safety On Public Roads

HOUSTON, Jan. 5 (AP)—The effort of the Texas legislative committee of the American Automobile Association to work out agreed proposals for regulation of motor trucks and buses to be presented to the next legislature was resumed here today in a second hearing.

Representatives of trucking and bus concerns, as well as other interested in the problem, attended. The conference had before them tentative suggestions made at the first hearing and hoped to sift them down into a rough draft for a legislative bill.

The proposal, previously made, for limiting the width of trucks to seven feet, as against the nine feet now allowed, drew the most protest. A number of operators declared such an action would remove large numbers of trucks from the highways.

Gordon Weems, a local attorney who led the attack on the suggestion, said it would be "turning back the pages" of transportation progress. United States Commissioner Erantley Harris of Galveston, a committee member, said any restriction below that set up by other states might hurt the Texas ports and the state in general by leading railroads to divert traffic to other ports.

Weems drew an objection from State Senator T. J. Holbrook of Galveston when he said that the subject of taxation of buses and trucks, though important, was not germane to the discussion at hand. Senator Holbrook arose to ask why the question was not at issue.

"It" he went on, "taxes is not closely interwoven in this problem, then I fear you have no problem." adding it should be remembered the railroads paid for their own roadbeds, whereas the trucks and buses used the highways."

Weems replied that he meant the Governors of Oklahoma and Kansas Issue Invitation

OKLAHOMA CITY, Jan. 5 (AP)—The major oil producing states were asked today to join a national relief conference January 15 at Washington.

Governors Holloway of Oklahoma and Reed of Kansas sent telegraphic messages overnight to governors of eight other states, urging them to send delegations representing both the oil industry and "the people generally" to the national capitol.

The call was announced here by Governor Holloway.

Expressing belief that the distressed condition of the petroleum industry has depressed agriculture and general business and industrial activity and has increased the ranks of the jobless, the two executives said the conference was for the purpose of "working out plan for immediate relief for this great basic industry."

The price of oil, pushed downward by the free imports added to increased domestic consumption, was skidded from a peak average price of $3.50 per barrel during the World War to $1.04 in Oklahoma, largest producing state. Only January 1 the Prairie Oil and Gas Company, major mid-continent buyer, cut off the market outlet of nearly 30,000 small wells by withdrawing from the field.

Secretary Wilbur of the interior was advised of the impending conference, to which were invited representatives of Oklahoma, Kansas, Arkansas, Louisiana, Texas, New Mexico, Montana, Colorado, California, and Wyoming. There are nine other oil producing states.

Each of the ten states was asked to send at least 20 representatives from the oil industry and five representing "the people in general."

OKLAHOMA CITY, Jan. 5 (AP)—Affidavits that more than 100 wells "of major oil companies supporting proration" have been operated "in continuous violation of proration orders in the Oklahoma City field" were on file today with the state corporation commission.

H. G. McEwen, attorney for the Champlin Refining company, said the affidavits were based on information obtained by private observers who spent six weeks checking flow of wells in the field.

The affidavits asserted wells were producing in excess of the maximum allowable flow from 25 to 74 per cent.

C. C. Childers, commission chairman, said if information in the affidavits is substantiated, citations will be filed against the offending companies.

One Remedy
PERIODS OF so-called depression of business, such as now is in existence in most parts of the nation, invariably are allowed by periods of unusual prosperity. We are reminded by the active head of one of Big Spring's banks.

That this is an opportune time for investment in Big Spring property is the opinion expressed by two other local bank heads.

Conditions here are not so tight as in other sections, they point out.
This is of slight comfort to tenant farmers who have not the money to go through the winter much less make another crop and who are without sufficient security for any additional loan.

The acceleration of public works, such as the city of Big Spring has been seeing for months and the county of Howard would be seeing soon but for adverse vote in the recent road bond election, is one of the best methods of remedying such situations.

Public construction done at this time would greatly alleviate suffering in many families. Besides, it would save money in cost of the materials that would be needed, since it is a well-established fact building costs have decreased considerably within the past year.

OPINIONS OF OTHERS
Rail Men Sharing Jobs
Cleveland Plain Dealer:

THE VOLUNTARY staggering of jobs by three of the railroad brotherhoods shows the extent to which organized labor on its own initiative can help to lessen the blows of unemployment.

Members of the brotherhoods have voluntarily and without making a noise about it, cut their own pay, so that some thousands of their fellow workers will escape suffering. It is a heartening example.

Unemployment is no novelty to many members of a highly organized craft. Even before the depression cut railroad earnings and radically reduced the number of trains, the men who man the railroads had been feeling the increasing pinch of technological unemployment, the 22 word which means that machines are pushing men out of jobs.

Even in the normal year of 1928 the roads hauled a near record freight load with some 300,000 fewer employees than they had on the pay rolls ten years before. Longer trains, bigger cars and heavier engines are the better machines that have been putting rail men out of jobs.

So the brotherhoods know what it means to their members when jobs become scarce. They are urging a 6-hour day as a permanent remedy for the situation.

How Is Your HEALTH?

Edited by Dr. Ingo Goldstein for the New York Academy of Medicine

What Men Should Know Modern society requires every man to have at least a modicum of knowledge of the three R's, and of a few other branches of learning to boot.

What, then, ought the average man to know about health? To this question Professor Winslow of Yale University, gave an answer at a recent meeting of the American Public Health association.

"It would be helpful," Professor Winslow said, "if the average citizen really knew something about his own vital mechanism, if he had a real grasp of the basic conception that the human body is a living machine, working in accordance with physical and chemical laws, and operating as a co-ordinated whole, with the health of each part dependent on the normal functioning of all the rest.

"If such a concept were really held—not as a form of words but as a solid and vital conviction—four-fifths of the delusions and superstitions, and quackeries that impair the health of the human race, would vanish like a dream."

There is no special virtue for laymen to know by technical names the bones, muscles, nerves, or other parts of the body.

However, a "working knowledge" of the mechanics of digestion, respiration, circulation and elimination would make the prescribed rules for proper living more understandable and more appealing to the average man.

The nature of the human mind, too, should be appreciated.

No one is unbiably and disgreable by choice. We should learn to treat the relative or friend or colleague who is fretful or fearful, or suspicious or aggressive, or jealous or just plain "ornery," quite as we would treat a companion on a walk who was handicapped by a lame knee.

Hollywood Sights
By ROBBIN COONS HOLLYWOOD—One by one they come back—some of them anyway—those big "silent" movie stars whom the talkies dethroned or imperiled.

Monte Blue is the latest. The same Monte who before he was a big strong man of the nightly popular, is still in talkies he had not so well, and reports that his contract was for $50,000 by his studio were current at the time of his release.

Since then he has been idle, just looking around at his leisure for a part, not being bothered with the wolf at his door. Now he has found it in "The Flood," a special for Columbia.

COMEBACKS AND MAYBES
Esther Ralston, who didn't wait for the talkies to do anything to her—before she could get in some time on the stage, obtained a release from her contract and went into vaudeville.

Now she's back, a different Esther, more beautiful and more confident, with her first talkie completed and others in the offing. The first one, "The Southerner," assured her future from its first preview.

Billy Dove's talkie experience—she made four—was only average, and she retired temporarily on completion of her contract. Her return is imminent under the banner of the multi-millionaire producer, Howard Hughes.

Colleen Moore, whose two talkies were not quite good enough to justify her huge contract salary, left the screen for a stage debut, and now that she has come home speculation as to her plans is one of Hollywood's current topics of luncheon conversation.

IN PROPER HARNESS
Another definite return is that of Laura LaPlante, whose release from Universal was the result of her misreading of the market as anything else. She is back now, in a farce comedy, "Lonely Wives," doing the sort of thing that built her reputation as a comedienne.

Corinne Griffith made two talk-ies, neither of which was commensurate in quality with her importance as a silent star, so the studio bought her contract for $250,000.

And Corinne, not being especially eager to continue on the screen, and having plenty of money, seems to be satisfied to rest. But who can say that she won't try a comeback if the urge seizes her?

WILD BEAUTY

by MATEEL HOWE FARNHAM

SYNOPSIS: Fanny Frost's happiness with her husband, David, is wrecked by the hatred of her mother-in-law. The pressure of this hostility at last causes her to run away, in a moment of folly with Bob Daniels, husband of David's cousin, Leila. Before any wrong has been done Fanny repents and returns, but it is too late. Her mother-in-law believes her guilty and almost convinces David. Fanny goes to New York and gets work as a dressmaker's model. A divorce is arranged, giving David custody of Sheila, their daughter. Garrett Wentworth, a publisher with an invalid wife, falls in love with Fanny but does not press his affections upon her. Fanny goes secretly back home on Sheila's birthday, and meets her daughter, now 10, on her way to school.
Fanny gives Sheila a locket. She promises to come again on Sheila's next birthday.

Chapter 33
SHEILA WEAVES A PLOT
A YEAR later, three days before her eleventh birthday, Sheila caught a heavy cold and was put to bed. She kept inquiring anxiously whether she would be well on her birthday.

"But you can have your party later," Mrs. Frost soothed.
"I'd just as leave have the party next week," she sniffed, "but I've got to go to school. I'm getting way behind."

"This interest in school is something new," smiled her grandmother.

The doctor said positively that Sheila must stay in bed as long as she had a temperature; Sheila knew further argument was useless.

When her birthday arrived she was quiet, unresponsive. Listless, paid only perfunctory attention to the new riding habit her father had bought for her. She had yearned for it for months, and David had expected an outburst of pleasurable excitement, but now she was only mildly interested. And it did not seem that her cold was severe enough to account altogether for this change of attitude.

"Do you suppose she could by any chance be coming down with typhoid?" David asked his mother in a worried tone later. "I never saw her act so strangely."

"I don't think so. The doctor is coming again this morning, and I'll talk with him, but in my opinion it's just the change that comes over children when they get to be about Sheila's age."

"I remember when you and Amelia were little I used to be worried about the same thing, but it turned out all right."

After David had gone on Sheila's birthday morning, Mrs. Frost went upstairs. Sheila apparently was sleeping. Mrs. Frost tiptoed out of the room. Tired from a restless night she lingered longer than usual over her morning paper, and had just risen to go to the kitchen, to give her daily orders, when she heard a slight noise in the hall.
Sheila's shoes in hand, was creeping down the stairs.

"Sheila," said her grandmother sternly, "what does this mean?" A tantrum followed. Sheila fought and resisted, clung to the banisters, kicked viciously, screamed that she would not, would not go back to bed; she was going to school. Mrs. Frost was thoroughly frightened; such an outburst was unheard of. Leaving go forward, she had said gently, and were certain to be resentful of an overbounding tenderness which threatened to hold them back. However, Mary was perhaps right to stir him up. She usually was right. His mother wanted him to marry Mary—have other children, a son.

Perhaps he should. Sheila soon would be a young woman and turning away from him to a younger man. He could not center his life upon his daughter forever. Once, before he met Fanny, he had been engaged to Mary Morton. His mother would have approved if he had married her. It was natural his mother should hate Fanny, when it was she whom he had run away to marry after breaking his engagement to Mary.

Mary, it seemed, had forgiven him. She was willing to forget the past. It would be pleasant to live the remaining years in Mary's company.

When David got home that evening, his mother handed him the telegram Sheila had sent from the Junction.

"All well home next Saturday please don't worry love Sheila."

Three days passed, four, no letter from Sheila. Her hosts, the Rogers, had no telephone, but David, to quiet his mother's anxiety, had a messenger sent from the Junction. At 9 that night the telephone rang shrilly.

"It's Mr. Rogers telephoning from the Junction," said Leona.
"He wants to speak to Davey."

"It's a shame that Rogers took that long ride this time of night," said David uneasily. "He turned from the telephone white-faced and shaking. Sheila had not arrived at the Rogers'. She had written Mary Rogers not to expect her, that she could not come."

Where is Sheila? Has she run away? Tomorrow's chapter reveals.

FORNTER COWBOY Actor Suicides
MEXICO CITY, Jan. 5 (AP)—Art Acord, who for years was a foremost movie actor in cowboy roles, has gone to break broncos in the great beyond.

A dispatch to Excelsior from Chihuahua City said that Acord, surrendering finally to melancholy, swallowed poison in his hotel there yesterday and died shortly afterward in a hospital.

He told the physician who attended him what he had done and that he wanted to die. Efforts of the hospital attendants to resuscitate him were unavailing.

Acord was a champion bronco buster before entering the movies.
In the latter part of 1929 he came into conflict with police and finally was arrested on charges of robbery and liquor possession. The robbery charges were dropped and he later left for Mexico where he said he would "start all over again."

He went into the mining business in Chihuahua City but his affairs were understood to have gone bad to worse.

BEWARE THE COUGH FROM COLDS THAT HANG ON

Coughs from colds may lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified croscote that is pleasant to take.
Creomulsion is a medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs croscote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for coughs from colds and bronchial irritations. Creomulsion contains, in addition to croscote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation, while the croscote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of coughs from colds, bronchitis and minor forms of bronchial irritations, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

Noted Physician Killed By Train

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 5. (AP)—The funeral of Dr. Oscar Dowling, widely known health officer, who was killed by a train last night, was held Sunday morning at his boyhood home in Ozark, Alabama.

Texas and Pacific railroad officials said they were unable to explain how Dr. Dowling's body had been bisected by the Dallas train while it was being pushed aboard the train ferry boat for the crossing of the Mississippi River.

Members of his family had taken him to the train for a trip to Shreveport, La., and his baggage was found in his berth. Railroad officials were of the opinion he sat the crossing and slipped and fell under the wheels. He had spent the Christmas holidays here with his family.

For eighteen years Dr. Dowling was president of the Louisiana state board of health and won a wide reputation by his tours in a health exhibition, railroad car teaching disease preventives.

Dr. Dowling was a native of Montgomery, Ala., where he was born October 20, 1866.

THE WATER BUCKETS One of tight ropes that trip ambitious basketball teams is the free throw. Show the public a quintet that takes advantage of the free loop chances, and the public sees a team that wins the majority of games it participates in. Take W. C. Stripling cagers just for an instance of the importance of being able to send the oval through the iron when opportunity knocks in the way of a free chance. Stripling cagers, in their two games played here, had 24 free chances at goals, and capitalized on only eight of them. The Big Spring Steers have played but two games. Recruits May Be Used In Giant Infield Place NEW YORK, Jan. 5 (AP)—If John McGraw goes through with his plan to convert Freddie Lindstrom, star third baseman of the New York Giants, into an outfielder next season, two minor league recruits will battle it out for the vacant spot in the infield. McGraw hopes that either Jack Vergez from the Oakland club of the Pacific coast league or Jack Pickering from Birmingham of the Southern Association will plug the hole Lindstrom's shift to the outfield would leave. Some of the more facetious critics insist that Lindstrom stay in the outfield will last only as long as the Giants are in spring training and that he will be in his usual place when the Giants return to the Polo grounds.

Eldest Sister Of British King Dies. LONDON, Jan. 5 (AP)—All Britain today mourned one of the most democratic of its royal family, Louise, princess royal, nicknamed Her Royal Snyness, who died in her sleep yesterday of heart attack.

Very interesting social item: Franklin Boyle has returned to his adopted hamlet, after eating sweet potatoes and looking over the pine trees of East Texas, from whence he came. Mr. George Brown, the assistant mentor of the Big Spring high school, also is back at the old stand, having sojourned somewhere or other during the holidays.

Mr. Butler, incidentally, is quite right in a number of instances. It will be many a long winter before this department believes "Arkansas" McLaughlin of the Ranger Bulldogs was ineligible last season. The same implies to the brilliant Johnny Connell of the Cisco Lobes. In our opinion neither of these two flashy backfield men were disqualified; they merely died on the ruling on the rules, as it were.

CHARM CHATS

by Nancy Earle Noted Authority and Writer on Health, Charm and Beauty.

Don't you think this is a good story? Mr. Aesop didn't write it, but he might have, and tacked a moral at the end. Mr. McCuffey didn't write it either, although he too might have, and fastened it in his famous "Hornet" or "But anyway! Listen!" One time there were two little girls. About the same age they were, and pretty much alike. They played together all the day long, and traded dolls and cookies, read the same fairy tales, wore each other's hair ribbons, and were in the same Sunday School class. Both little girls wanted a wristwatch—a lovely real one of white gold that honestly did run and keep time and that gleamed so elegantly from one's wrist as one nonchalantly waved one's hand good-bye or hello to someone. Like Mother's and Aunt Agatha's. There was just one difference between the two little girls. Although both read fairy-tales and both enjoyed them, only one of them really believed in fairies. The other just enjoyed them.

Now the little girls who believed in fairies believed, too; that the things that happened in the land of gnomes and sprites could happen to flesh and blood little girls, too. She thought that if little girls could only find out HOW, everything would be just like Grimm and Hans Christian Anderson said it was. For example, there was the wishing well, where if you'd just go and drink a sup of the magic water, then anything, your heart desired would happen just as you asked it to. And the wishing stile. All you had to do was sit on the stile and make your wish and—if it was the wishing stile—then it would all come true. And then there was always the possibility that the very next moment of your life the fairy next would rise up out of the heart of a rose and life her star-tipped wand to bring to pass whatever you desired.

Under every leaf and on the back of every dragon-fly, there MIGHT be a gnome who would grant whatever you asked. And most surely of all, you could never tell when a sprite would come sliding down a moon-bean and give you three wishes. And so this little girl went about peering into wells, and clambering stiles and looking into rosehearts and under leaves and catching drowsing dragon-flies, and lying under the honeysuckle of moon-light nights looking for fairy queens and gnomes and moon-sprites. Getting a white gold wristwatch (perhaps even more elegant than Aunt Agatha's) would be so simple a thing—IF ONLY. Meanwhile the other little girl who just adored gnomes and sprites, but who really knew they belonged in a world quite apart from wristwatches, set about to bring that desired wristwatch to pass. She ran special errands for her mother and the neighbors and was rewarded with a little piece of money. She denied herself the lollipop and the movie, and put that with her errand money. She kept the Jones baby while Mrs. Jones went to the club, and there was another bit. Her mother said that she could have the old speckled hen for her own and all the eggs she laid too. And that meant another bit—and just a little bit of time to "take orders" and deliver the eggs. And several of her mother's friends said they'd buy their magazine from the little girl, too. And there was another bit. And so bit by bit by bit the watch took form. And one bright gala day, when the little girl counted her hoard of nickels and dimes and quarters there was enough and behold. The next Sunday morning when she put on her Sunday dress of blue organdie and her floppy leghorn hat, and turned to wave good-bye to her mother, there upon her wrist glittered the coveted watch. It does sound as if it came out of the Primer for Good Little Girls, doesn't it? But, do you know more people than already have, need to know about these two little girls. Because there are the big girls who believe in fairies too. Big girls who want slim figures and bright eyes and smooth clear complexions, and who sit dejectedly on the wishing stile wondering why the magic doesn't work. But wishes do not come true that way. Not the fairy queen, nor the moon-sprites, nor even the wishing stile itself, can give us symmetry of body or gleam of eye, or brilliancy of skin. Like the little lady and her wristwatch. It's a matter of self-denial and careful adherence to a plain, and ordinary hard work.

Thousands Pass Bier of Marshal

PARIS, Jan. 5 (AP)—On a simple army camp bed, such as he used in his march on Timbuctoo, the body of Marshal Joffre, hero of the Marne, today lay in state in the Ecole Militaire, where thousands of his countrymen could pass and pay their final homage. At dawn an ordinary plain black funeral hearse of the type used in France, drew up to the Hospital Saint Jean De Dieu, where the marshal died Saturday morning. The body was clad in the now obsolete black tunic and famous breeches of a colonel general of division, which was his rank at the time of the battle of the Marne. Despite the early hour there were more than 3,000 persons in front of the hospital and as the procession moved toward its destination, other crowds lined the way, hats off and heads bowed.

Revival Meeting On West Side To Continue For Week

The revival meeting being conducted in the West Side Baptist Church by Rev. E. G. Richbourg will continue throughout this week with services at 10 a. m. and 7 p. m. daily. Capacity crowds are expected again this week. In the absence of Rev. Richbourg, who was in his own pulpit at Knott, services were conducted by the pastor, Rev. E. L. Whitaker. At the close of a sermon on "Even as Christ loved the church he gave himself for it," the memorial supper was observed. Last night the subject was "Twelve Things For the Wicked." By Rev. Whitaker they were enumerated as follows: to live as they ought; to perpetuate present conditions; to cease to exist; to forget movements after death; to forget; to improve conditions in hades; to escape from hades; to be saved after death; to improve upon God's plan; to save those who reject the scriptures; to escape the judgment. The speaker said a great gulf was being fixed in this life that was to separate the sinner from all his saved friends. Whether those friends were fathers, mothers, brothers, or sisters a man who remained in his sins was sealing his own doom and making it impossible to be with them after the death of the life in this world. The father who continues in sin while his child accepts Christ and becomes a Christian is fixing the gulf to separate himself from that child. The longer he continues to sin the more difficult to break becomes the gulf. Rev. Richbourg will be in charge of the services throughout the week.
