By The Associated Press Another cold wave, the third in less than a week, will sweep into Texas tonight or early tomorrow, the weather bureau announced.

The forecast came as sub freezing weather from a previous cold front gripped northern Texas and extended southwest to San Antonio.

Temperatures were expected to moderate today under fair skies before the newest norther strikes. Snow is in prospect tomorrow in both East and West Texas.

The mercury dropped to a bitter 9 degrees above zero at Clarendon today, Wichita Falls recorded 11 degrees, Amarillo 16, and Dallas, 21. It was Dallas' coldest day this winter and a heavy frost bianketed the area.

There was a trace of snow at Amarillo and Clarendon but outside of this no precipitation had been reported in the state in 24 hours.

A fog blanketed the Wichita Falls area this morning.

Temperatures of from 18 to 32 degrees were expected in the Panhandle and South Plains and upper portions of the Pecos valley tomight.

San Antonio, with 31 degrees recorded today, had its fourth straight day of freezing weather.

Temperatures over the state today included Bryan, 29 degrees; Houston, 34; Waco, 26; Brownsville 54, the high for the state; Corpus Christi, 40; Abilene, 24; Austin, 30; Big Spring, 24; El Paso, AUSTIN, Jan. 20. (AP) .--Oil operators and crude purchasers today asked the railroad commission to reduce production allowables, in West Texas, the state largest producing area.

Company spokesmen, appearing before the February statewide proration hearing said reductions are essential in view of a decline in market demand for fuel and in that transportation facilities are inadequate to handle current production.

Today's testimony before the commission included:

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20. UP-The U. S. Export-Import Bank has granted a loan of $35,000,000 to the new Jewish state of Israel and earmarked $65,000,000 more for use later.

The credits are to finance the purchase in the United States of agricultural equipment, materials and services.

The $35,000,000 credit as well as the $65,000,000 earmarked will carry an interest rate of 3½ percent annually and must be repaid in 15 years.

The $65,000,000 will be available until December 31, 1949, to assist in developing projects in communications, transportation, manufacturing, housing and public works. "The agricultural project as well as the projects to be covered by the $65,000,000 earmarked fund are part of the overall program of the state of Israel for balanced economic development designed to establish a self-sustaining economy for the country," the Export-Import Bank said in a statement.

Social Security Extension Is In Order, So Is An Overhaul

The President has recommended ex- substantial accumulation by the time tension of the social security program to cover additional groups not now under the program.

Of these, there is none perhaps in greater need of it than the farm laborers. It is probable that they might have been covered before this time had difficulties of setting up a means' of collection been so great. Whether they can and are surmounted at this time remains to be seen.

There is considerable argument in favo. of extending the benefits of this program to agricultural workers, for the very character of their work does not ordinarily leave them much to which as they may be, there is little hope of they are too infirm to work. One of the inconsistencies of social security is that it has not been across the board.

This much needs to be remembered, however. Extension cost more money. Benefits must be financed and the fiddler must be paid.

And while extending the program, why not do a bit of overhauling? Funds now go into one great pocket with appropriations being made in anticipation of a demand for a particular period. By now some factors ought to be established on the old age benefits, and rather accurate data is available from actuaries on survivor demands. If social security is to be an effective hedge at all, there ought to they can look forward in old age. Frugal be more sense to the shepherding of funds put into it.

However, Mr. Stephens details a rather interesting story in it, we understand, of how he made a 3,300 mile trip from Laredo to the Panama Canal at the total cost of $141, and berated himself for his extravagance because he could have made the junket on an even $100.

He found some other interesting facts, among them that 100,000 pleasure cars folled over the 763 mile stretch from Laredo to Mexico last year, that while the roads were not nearly so good beyond that point to his destination it was possible to all the way. To this he adds that it is now possible to go by car 85 per cent

One Mr. Roger Stephens has written of the distance from Fairbanks, Alaska

The implication is plain. We are making faster and better progress in the ail-American highway link than most of us dreamed was possible. It may be quite a time yet until it is a modern highway all the way from the frozen reaches of North America to the approaches to the Antartic in South America. But the day is coming, and when and as it does, Joe Doaks and family will be able to see new worlds during vacation time. As they visit with our "neighbors, better understanding will, in time, result. There may be economic reverberations, too. It might get to be such a good thing that someday Joe Stalin or his successor would get around to spanning Siberia with a good land route to Europe. If the tourists ever got behind the iron curtain, diplomats and statesmen could relax.

When we entered the newspaper game early in the Twenties one of our first jobs was as a reporter on the old Kansas City Post. Remember Henry? This Would Be His Day Had He Won Race

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19 P- Today would have been a great day for Henry Wallace-remember him-IF things had been different. It would have been his inauguration day, lace thinks there is for him or his party. He got only 1,156,000 votes out of the 48,690,000 votes cast last November. Professional politicians, with no sym-

But one thing is sure: If Wallace had been able to pull 5,-000,000 votes from Mr. Truman, Wallace wouldn't have won, but neither would Mr. Truman, and Governor Dewey would be taking the presidential oath tomorrow.

people, most of the class yawned. George sighed. He knew every ten years there were 200,000,000 more people. He fretted because the human race was so careless. It seemed like all they wanted out of life was posterity.

One afternoon the old professor held a tea for a few favorite students he felt had learned the difference between malthus and malted milk. George felt ill at ease at first because he was seated beside a girl named Grace.

George had nothing in particular against Grace. He just distrusted all girls. He felt that in some way they were responsible for the increase in world population-not an entirely unwarranted conclusion.

"If something isn't done to reduce the rate of population growth," he said despondently, "they'll have to hang up a 'standing room only' sign for the human race.

"Why, what a cute way to say it," replied Grace.

George began to thaw.

He realized here at last was a girl of real intellect

Affairs Of The World - DeWitt MacKenzie

Rita, Prince Aly's Romance. Of World-Wide Importance

Aly Khan, son of the famous Aga Khan, must take its place among internatinal affairs of importance

The Brince's August father isn't "just another" of those oriental potentates whose fame rests solely on vast wealth. His highness, the Aga Khan, is caliphor spiritual ruler-of an important sect of Mohammadans. They total some 12,-000,000 and are found not only in India but in other parts of Asia and in Africa. He claims lineal descent from Fatima, daughter of Mohammed.

While the Aga Khan has no principality, he wields vast influence as a religious leader. His son is heir apparent to this great caliphate. So we may take it that, if the cards read right, the attractive Hollywoodite one day will have the rare distinction of being the wife of a Caliph.

The branch of Mohammedanism gives man, and especially a Callph, wide latitude. He may marry outside his faith, and more than once, provided his divorces

Rita Hayworth's engagement to Prince are in order and his children are brought up in the Mohammedan faith. Thus the fact that the Prince already has a wife needn't be a matter of grave concern.

The Aga Khan himself has been married three times. He first married an Italian lady, who was the mother of Prince Aly. She died in 1926 and his highness married a French girl. This marriage was dissolved and he married his present helpmeet, also French.

The Prince in 1936 married the former Joan Yarde-Buller Guiness shortly after she and her husband had been divorced. The Prince's marriage to Rita is contingent upon his divorce from his present wife, who is the mother of his two sons. The elder of these boys is next in line to his father for succession to the Caliphate. The second son under normal circumstances would be heir if anything happened to his mother and the latter had no son. Therefore any son born to the Prince through another marriage would seem to have a slim chance of becoming Caliph

The Aga Khan is reputed to be one of the world's richest men, and his children and grandchildren could play marbles with diamonds if they wanted to.

We mustn't measure his highness by that yardstick, though. He has done much for his people, and he long took a considerable part in Indian affairs. Among other things he is credited with exercising a moderating influence on the great Moslem league of India during the political turmoil preceding the granting of independence. When the Aga Khan, who now is 72, celebrated his golden jubilee, his 250 pounds was weighed against gold which was presented to him. A decade later he was weighed against diamonds, and this was repeated, the value of the precious stones being paid him in money. However, what many people don't know is that his highness is said to have given all this cash to his followers for some of the cabineteers in the Truwelfare purposes. He also is reputed to man official family, plus some of his other income in

That's why the rental clothiers in Washington are swamped right now. You can't rent a dress suit for love or money. All the folks from out of town are in town renting tuxedos and tails to see the man they voted for made president of the United States.

It doesn't make any difference that Washington socialites make snide remarks about the *'unwashed Trumanites." Harry Truman is standing pat and having the folks back home to see him sworn in.

Herein lies Harry Truman's greatest strength. A very large segment of the American people love Truman because they consider him one of their own. They admired and loved Franklin Roosevelt because he was their champion. But they did not consider him one of their own.

Truman, however, is different. His presence in the White House is a symbol of the fact that a haberdasher or farmer or county polltician can sit in the White Housein fact, is already there. That is Harry Truman's greatest strength, and also his greatest obligation. For he cannot let these people down.

As Harry Truman takes the oath of office today, he has two new big assets which will help him mightily in carrying out his obligation to the people who elected him: 1. He has a new congress which is vigorously, on the whole enthusiastically, with him.

2. He has a new confidence in himself.

No longer is he a political accident. No longer does he owe his place to a president who smiled upon him. He has been elected on his own and he intends to operate on his own.

These two assets are important. Also important is a third fact which is not an asset, but a liability-namely, the general level of mediocrity among the men around Truman.

Actually 'Truman's program is not new. The state of the union message he sent to congress was a good message, but it repeated in different words the same important proposals which Truman had sent to the 80th congress.

The new 81st congress will probably pass the bulk of this program. But after it is passed will come the difficult, vital task of carrying it out. And getting good men to run the government, in any administration, is a lot harder than it sounds. . . .

One reason you can't get them is lack of inspiration. Good men don't work necessarily for money, but because they love their work, because they are achieving goals they believe in. They don't like to work under mediocre men; and

Matter Of Fact—Joseph And Stewart Alsop Solidarity Of Communism Fades In Western Europe

The changed situation in Europe is summed up in the changed situation of the Western European Communist parties. Memories are short. Few now remember the time when the directive of the Western European Communists was to retain footholds in the governments; when they were promoting chaos while pretending cooperation, and when an actual Communist seizure of power on the Czech pattern seemed far from impossible in France and Italy. This situation was liquidated when the French and Italian governments, encouraged by the American policy of firmness toward Russia, expelled their Communist ministers. Moscow's response was the formation of the Cominform, followed by the great general strikes of the autumn of 1947. These were intended to prove that France and Italy could not be governed without Communist help. The strikes failed signally. Thereafter the French parties relapsed into a state of perpetual guerrilla warfare, in which the Italian Communists joined the French aft-

The aim of this guerrilla war is to prevent European recovery by crippling the Marshall plan. As the recent French coal strike proved, the new tactics are not wholly ineffectual. Yet the mere fact that guerrilla war is now the only recourse of the Western European Communists marks the extent of their decline from their post-war peak of strength.

In this connection, another vital process must also be noted. At the end of the war, besides entering the governments. the French and Italian Communist parties seized many important local levers of power within the complex machinery of society. Here in France, the Communists heavily infiltrated the mobile battalions of "security companies" of the national police. They infiltrated also many urban police forces and managed to name sixty of their men as commissioners of the ions. And in the natioalized industries, they even succeeded in capturing the managements.

The results were visible in the general strike of 1947. At Marseilles, for instance, the Communist-infiltrated police actually took the lead in the famous capture of the courthouse. Indeed the outcome of the French general strike of 1947 might have been very different if the French Communists had managed to neutralize the army, as was done in Czechoslovakia.

Instead, however, the chief result of the 1947 general strike was to arouse Frenchmen of all kinds to the dangers of their situation. The tough, able Socialist Minister of the Interior, Jules Moch, at once went quietly to work to place the main levers of social power beyond Communist grasp.

Under special laws, he dissolved the mobile battaltions of the national police, disarmed the Communist companies and reconstituted this important force on a healthy basis. He subjected the new Paris police commissioners to a civil service. examination which, by sheer chance, the Communist commissioners unanimously failed to pass. He caused the Communist personnel in all ministries to be dischargef or removed to unimportant jobs. And by his urging, the Communist representation in the management of the stateowned industries was reduced to the minimum guaranteed by the Communists' control of the labor unions.

Allowing the Communists their full importance, however, the fact remains that they are no longer the immediate menace they once were. The dangers in Western Europe today are, rather, the danger of financial instability (to which of course the Communists contribute) and above all. the danger of the general sense of insecurity deriving from fear of war. If thislatter danger is removed, a new scene may be expected to open in Europe. But this can only be achieved by the creation Paris police. They placed their own men of solid strength in the West, and especialin the ministries of the government. They ly in the United States. This should now

The same view is shared by Robert Brayton of the American Auto-mobile Association. "We want international drivers in the contests we sanction. But under present rules, there is little here to interest SHOVE them except the Indianapolis classic. It is unreasonable to expect many to come over for just one big race." he says, adding:

"Of course, just now there is the fact that few Europeans could afford to race in America anyhow. But if rules were changed so en-plants that either store up enough water to last them through long, dry periods, or are so constructed as to be drouth resistant. Some of the succulents that store their water are Cactus, Aloe, and Crassula. The drouth resistant types are mostly the large outdoor plants. All require good drainage.

Picture windows, overlooking a well planned garden, should not be cluttered with plants, as this would defeat their purpose. They are definitely for the outside view, but vines, trailing up or down the sides, make pretty outlines and help to frame the garden picture. Ivy and Philodendron are reliable vines for this purpose. More Broadleaved Evergreens Broadleaved evergreens may not be so colorful as some of the flowering shrubs, but in the long run, they are more practical for year around beauty. When those plants are used right, they give a most pleasing effect. The texture and size of the foliage should be considered and kept in scale with size of the planting. For the very large garden, the large leaved kinds are splendid and can be faced down with medium and smaller leaved varieties. Mountain Laurel, Andromedas, Evergreen Barberry, and Japanese Holly are hardy in the Northeast and Upper-South. Nandina, Aucuba, Ligustrum, Boxwood and Southern Magnolia will also grow in the Upper and Mid-South. American Holiy, Eleagnus Argentea, Korean Boxwood, and Leather-leaf Viburnum thrive in the Mid-West.

Big Spring (Texas) Herald, Thursday, Jan. 20, 1949 11

Looking 'Em Over

Future Longhorn baseball league meetings will probably be held in Big Spring, since it is the most centrally located city in the circuit. As a matter of fact, Pat Stasey and Al Aton of Our Town came near landing this weekend's session, which will be held in Abilene.

The delegates at last week's session voted 4-3 to return to Abilene after Stasey and Aton had extended their invitation. Sweetwater, too busy in its fight for baseball survival, did not cast a ballot.

Those who favored Abilene in the voting apparently did so as favor to Howard Green, the retiring president, who will attend his last Longhorn conclave this weekend,
