Joe Bennett, Publisher

Well I hope everyone lived over the New Years' celebrations, football games, and all those blackeyed peas, salt jowl, and all the other goodies during the holidays. I am sure glad to get back in the saddle and settle down to all that good old hard work that is the usual for us. The reason I say that is because Lonnie survived the skiing trip to Colorado is home now and really rested up and ready to go to work. I'm glad he had a great time, 'cause I liked to worked myself to death while he was away!

The Lions Club voted at their meeting on Tuesday to again sponsor a basketball benefit with the Lions and faculty taking on the outsiders, and if possible having the ladies to play a "battle" also, like last time. It was also discussed that we would sure appreciate The Gorman Redhots performing for the crowd during the intermission between games. Sure hope we can work all this out with the schedule of The Redhots, because everyone sure did comment on how they enjoyed the performance of the group last time.

The date has been set for Tuesday, March 14th, and if everything can be worked out, that date will be positive.

The proceeds from this benefit game will go to the fund to help the Lions pay their pledge to the Tennis Court Fund, and also will go toward the purchase of livestock of the Gorman youth at the Eastland County Livestock Show in March. So all of you "basketball lovers" get prepared to enjoy some of the "Greatest" basketball you have ever witnessed. Because when these guys and gals in this area get together, they really have some exciting battles. The price of admission will be by donation only (just whatever you want to donate), because the funds go to most worthwhile community projects of the Lions.

Also the Lions will be selling those great "Lion Burgers" in the cafeteria before, during and between activities.

I am hoping that more folks will be calling in their visitors during the new year. Folks have gotten real lax about calling in and telling us about all their visitors. After all, this is what makes "your hometown newspaper" so enjoyable to readers. Also they can see where former Gormanites and schoolmates, etc. are now living and what they are doing. So when you have visitors, please give us a call at 734-2410 and let us print it in the paper. That's what we are here for.

And remember to smile - - because God Loves You!

the good things about Eastland County to submit to prison authorities, he said.

"It will take the cooperation of every town to give prison officials a good impression of Eastland County," he said. "We want to do a little bit more. We will elaborate on the good life we have here."

When money becomes available, requests for proposals will be published in Texas Records, the official state journal. At this time, according to Barnes, Eastland County will be prepared to submit a request.

"No funds are available at the moment," Barnes said, "but very likely money will soon be budgeted to meet federal mandates to provide several thousand new beds."

"We have heard two stories," he said. "One is that three prisons with 2,500 beds and three with 1,000 beds will be constructed. The second story is two 2,500-bed prisons and four with a 1,000-bed capacity will be funded."

"We will take either size,"

Barnes added.

Up to 200 counties are expected to compete for the facilities, Barnes said. Eastland County has an advantage, he said, because it is near Interstate 20.

Barnes said 300 acres of land are necessary for the prison, of which 80 would need to be flat for building purposes.

About 700 jobs would be created by the project, Barnes said. Employees could commute from Breckenridge, Baird, Dublin and Stephenville as well as towns in Eastland County. Also, water provided by Lake Leon will supply enough for the prison system.

However, finding money for the proposed prisons will take time, he said, and it may be next fall before state authorities ask for proposals.

"In the meantime, we will be diligently working toward an important goal," Barnes said. Volunteers wishing to work for the prison are asked to call Barnes at (817) 442-3413 or drop by his office at 700 Avenue C in Cisco.

New-Style Pizza Introduces "Contemporary Classics" Recipe Contest

In trendy restaurants coast to coast, creative chefs are taking a fresh approach to pizza. Sidestepping traditional toppings, they cover crispy crusts with such innovative ingredients as goat cheese and arugula.

Creative home cooks can try Pesto Pizza, which features a time-saving, pat-in-the-pan corn meal crust. Far faster to fix than yeast-risen crusts, it boasts the special crispness and unique, homey flavor of versatile, wholesome corn meal. Spread the crust with a blend of garlic, parsley, nuts, parmesan cheese and olive oil. Then top with broccoli, bell pepper, ripe olives and cheese.

Let Pesto Pizza provide inspiration for your own "contemporary classic" recipe. Your creativity could make you a winner. The Quaker® Corn Meal "Contemporary Classics" Recipe Contest, open for entries now through January 31, 1989, is seeking original recipes using at least 1/2 cup of Quaker corn meal as an ingredient.

Incentives for entering include a $5,000 Grand Prize, three $1,000 First Prizes and one hundred Runners Up prizes of Quaker corn meal. Prize-winning recipes will have great taste, appetizing appearance, originality, and easy preparation.

For complete contest rules, send your name and address to: Rules, Quaker Corn Meal Recipe Contest, P.O. Box 11317, Chicago, IL 60611.

Pesto Pizza

1 cup fresh packed parsley leaves
1/3 cup chopped walnuts
1 clove garlic
1/2 cup olive or vegetable oil
1/4 cup grated
Parmesan cheese

1/2 cup plus 1 tablespoon Quaker enriched corn meal
1-1/2 cups all-purpose flour
1 tablespoon baking powder

3/4 cup milk
1/4 cup vegetable oil

1 medium green,

red or yellow bell pepper cut into strips

1 cup broccoli
flowerets 1 tablespoon vegetable oil
1/2 cup sliced ripe olives
2 cups (8 oz.)
shredded mozzarella cheese

Place parsley, walnuts and garlic in blender or food processor; cover. Blend about 1 minute or until mixture is finely chopped, stopping occasionally to stir. With machine running, add oil in a thin steady stream blending until mixture is smooth.
Stir in Parmesan cheese.

Heat oven to 425°F. Grease 14-inch round pizza or 15x10-inch jelly roll pan. Sprinkle 1 tablespoon corn meal evenly onto prepared pan. Combine remaining 1/2 cup corn meal, flour and baking powder. Add milk and oil; stir with fork until mixture forms a ball. With floured hands, pat dough evenly into prepared pan; shape edge to form rim.

Bake 15 minutes.

While crust is baking, saute bell pepper and broccoli in oil until crisp-tender. Spread pesto sauce over partially baked crust.
Top with vegetables, olives and mozzarella cheese; continue baking 8 to 10 minutes or until cheese is melted.

Sorry to have missed with the news Christmas week, but I had the privilege to go to Sweetwater to spend the holidays with my son, daughter and families. I came home with my head under my wing - the old virus bug decided to make an unwelcome visit.

Hope each of you had a safe and happy holiday visit with each of your families. Its always nice to have our family with us from time to time, but is extra special if its during the holiday time.

Thanks to the weather man for providing good weather for people to travel. It tried to rain a little at different times. Only received a trace. One morning the temperature dipped to 22. Nice to stay home by the fire. We are still in need of rain.
Without a bottom season the farmers will not have much to start another crop with.

This cold weather makes me dig out my scraps to start another quilt.
The quilt work is productive as well as being good therapy. I enjoy it very much.

Things have been running rather slow the last week of 1988. All may be getting ready to start the new year off on the right foot. I am always glad to start a new year, looking forward to more achievements as well as new challenges.

Would like to start the new year off minus a little of the football. Oh, I love to watch a good football game but not all day and into the night.
Thank goodness its all over except the Super Bowl.

I know all the school students enjoyed a break, but its back to the old mill for another term. Classes resumed Tuesday, January 3rd. Jr.
Hi will play a basketball game
January 9 at Carbon and high school

December 19 in the home of the John enjoyed and a spirited exchange of gifts was unusually interesting with many guests receiving unique and useful gifts.

serenaded with "Happy Birthday",

Pumpkin pie: A delicious, easy-to-prepare holiday dessert.

You can harvest a new reward this Thanksgiving; you could spend less time in the kitchen and more time with your loved ones.

Here's a quick-to-prepare dessert idea that can make a splendid addition to any holiday feast. This original evaporated milk recipe was developed in 1933 for the "Mary Lee Taylor" radio broadcast, a how-to show featuring recipes from the people at PET Kitchens. It's as popular as ever with cooks-in-the-know, more than 50 years later:

- Famous Pumpkin Pie
- 2 eggs, slightly beaten
 - 1 can (16 ounces) solid pack pumpkin
 - 3/4 cup sugar
 - 1/2 teaspoon salt
 - 1 teaspoon cinnamon
 - 1/2 teaspoon ginger
 - 1/4 teaspoon cloves
 - 1 can (12 fluid ounces) PET® Evaporated Milk
 - 1 PET-RITZ® Deep Dish Pie Crust Shell
- Preheat oven and baking sheet to 375°F. Remove one pie crust

MY THOUGHTS A Page of Opinion

Buying Groups Bypassing Small Towns

shell from freezer. Meanwhile, combine filling ingredients in order given above. Recrimp edge of pie shell to stand 1/2-inch above rim. Place pie shell on preheated baking sheet. Pour filling into pie crust shell. Bake on preheated baking sheet near center of oven for 70 minutes, or until knife inserted in center comes out clean. Cool on wire rack. Garnish with whipped cream and walnuts, if desired. Makes 1 (9-inch) pie.

PEANUT BUTTER FRENCH TOAST

- 1/2 cup peanut butter
- 1/4 cup honey
- 1/4 tsp. salt
- 8 slices bread
- 2 eggs, beaten
- 1/2 cup milk
- 2 T butter or margarine

Blend peanut butter, honey and salt. Place about 2 1/2 T peanut butter-honey mixture between 2 slices of bread to make a sandwich. Combine egg and milk. Soak sandwiches in egg mixture. Melt butter or margarine in a baking pan or fry pan. Bake sandwiches at 400 degrees F (hot oven) about 40 minutes. Turn sandwiches to brown both sides. Or cook slowly in fry pan on top of range. Four servings.

Have you ever faced an issue and not only seen both sides but agreed with both sides? That's where I find myself on the issue of buying groups.

These groups of local farmers band together to purchase such things as fertilizer, pesticides, and seed. There's nothing wrong with this. It makes good business sense if by joining together you can cut your costs.

But I've got some questions. When a farmers' group buys products in volume directly from the manufacturer, what happens to our smalltown businesses? What happens when a small town loses its fuel suppliers, fertilizer dealers, and seed distributors?

To me this is a very real problem. I'm not against the search for a better price or against dealing with someone because you get better service.

In fact, in many cases, smalltown merchants have brought these farmers' buying groups on themselves. Often the merchants provide inadequate service and their prices are uncompetitive.

For example, I can drive 20 miles and save 10 cents per gallon for gasoline, $10 per sheet of plywood, a thousand dollars on a tractor overhaul, and several thousand dollars on a new tractor. By driving that extra 20 miles, I can also save quite a bit when I trade cars or pickups. Thus, I can contribute to the downfall of my hometown.

We are destroying our smalltown businesses, and these may never open again. I don't want to see my town close. Neither do I want to pay those higher prices charged by my hometown businesses.

I don't know the answer. I don't think anybody does. But it just doesn't make a whole lot of sense to me to close down all these small towns that are such wonderful places to live so we can all be bunched up in big, unmanageable cities. We've got people stacked on top of each other in our big cities.

As more small towns go under, more people are forced into the cities. I realize that flight from rural areas is caused by more than farmers' buying groups. But these groups certainly don't help the problem.

We can't really expect Washington or urban taxpayers to help us preserve our hometowns. It's up to us, each of us, to do our best to keep our hometowns thriving and economically strong.

What it may boil down to is simple, old-fashioned competition, not just competition between small towns and big cities, but between small towns themselves.

Those small towns with the most aggressive citizenry will find ways around buying groups and the other pressures that can destroy them.

Finding solutions won't be easy. It's going to take a lot of hard work to keep small towns viable and thriving. But we can't just wring our hands and moan. We need to talk to members of the buying groups as well as to local dealers and hash this problem out.

I'm sure that solutions can be found if we work together. And these solutions don't necessarily mean that one particular person or group must carry the full burden.

But, again, it is up to each community. Do we save a buck and lose our rural towns, or spend that extra dollar at home and save our communities and our way of life?

I don't know the answer to all this, but I do know that I don't want to lose my hometown.

Now Flight Personnel Can Rest Easy

Sounder sleep in the skies: That high-flying goal has become a reality for weary flight personnel, thanks to down-to-earth technology.

A new and attractive cabin-crew rest area for use in aircraft such as the long-range A340 has been produced by Airbus Industrie and its partner MBB. The compartment features five beds, a changing room and a refrigerator, plus an entertainment system with television display for each occupant. Reached by steps from an entrance in the passenger cabin, the crew-rest area is housed in an extended-length LD6 container—making it particularly easy to install and remove. The A340, with an approximate range of 8,000 statute miles, is set to take off in 1991.

TIPS FOR HOMEOWNERS

Do-It-Yourself Home Maintenance

By Norm Abram, Master carpenter on the PBS Emmy Award-winning television program—"This Old House." The do-it-yourself remodeling program, funded by Weyerhaeuser Company, celebrates its tenth anniversary season this fall.

There's still time to tackle household projects and fall maintenance needs before the weather turns.

OUTDOOR PROJECTS

- It's not too late to build a deck, a playset, fence, gazebo or a porch. Consider stylized handrails, balusters and spindles as a practical and aesthetic addition.

- Treated lumber will help preserve the life of your project, protect against rot, decay and termite infestation. It also retains its natural beauty over time and throughout weather changes.

- A dust mask and gloves should be worn while cutting and handling treated lumber. Once completed, remaining pieces should be disposed of instead of burned.

- To be assured of quality, look for the American Wood Preservers Bureau (AWPB) grade stamp on treated products.

- Use a semi-transparent stain, either alkyd or linseed oil based. Finishing is recommended from two to four weeks after project completion. The wood surface and interior should be dry and clean. Clean the surface by mixing 1/2 cup of TSP (trisodium phosphate) with a gallon of water, brushing it on, then thoroughly rinsing it off.

- After staining, coat your project with a clear water repellent sealer. This will help minimize checking, splitting and cracking, and extend the life of the stain.

ROOFING

- You can potentially double the life of a roof with proper maintenance. Regular cleaning—keeping the shingles free of leaves and moss are main concerns. Scrape or brush moss off with a square shovel or broom, or if build up is really stubborn, a moss-removing preparation can be purchased.

Norm Abram

- Treat shingle roofs (when dry) with an oil-based wood preservative about every five years to prevent moss from growing back. An asbestos-shingle roof can be treated with a solution of 1/2 ounce sodium arsenite in 10 gallons of water.

ENERGY SAVERS

- Inspect windows for air flow and cracks. Caulking and other weather stripping products can be purchased in different colors to match doors and windows.

- Install additional 6-8 inches of bat insulation that is unfaced in the attic area. Lay perpendicular to existing insulation and be careful not to block venting at the eaves since your home needs some ventilation in the winter.

- Styrofoam chutes are available that keep the airway between the vent and the attic open. Install chutes before adding insulation.

MILDEW IN CLOSETS

- Calcium Chloride, silica gel, and activated alumina are chemicals that will absorb moisture from the air. Hang chemicals in a cloth bag or place them in containers in the closet, out of reach from children. Follow manufacturers' instructions on the label when using chemicals.

- Another option for mildew and moss protection are cedar closet liner panels which provide an aromatic, natural scent.

GUTTERS

- Gutters should be cleaned and checked for leaks by running water through them. Leaks in wood gutters can be repaired with silicone rubber caulking. Soft spots in wood gutters can be temporarily treated with a wood preservative.

- Leaky joints or holes in aluminum gutters can be repaired with silicone caulking compound. Leaks or holes in steel gutters should be cleaned and sanded, then repaired with two layers of asphalt roofing cement and a middle layer of heavy aluminum foil.

- Downspout drains and splash blocks should be away from the house to prevent water from running into the basement.

DRY ROT

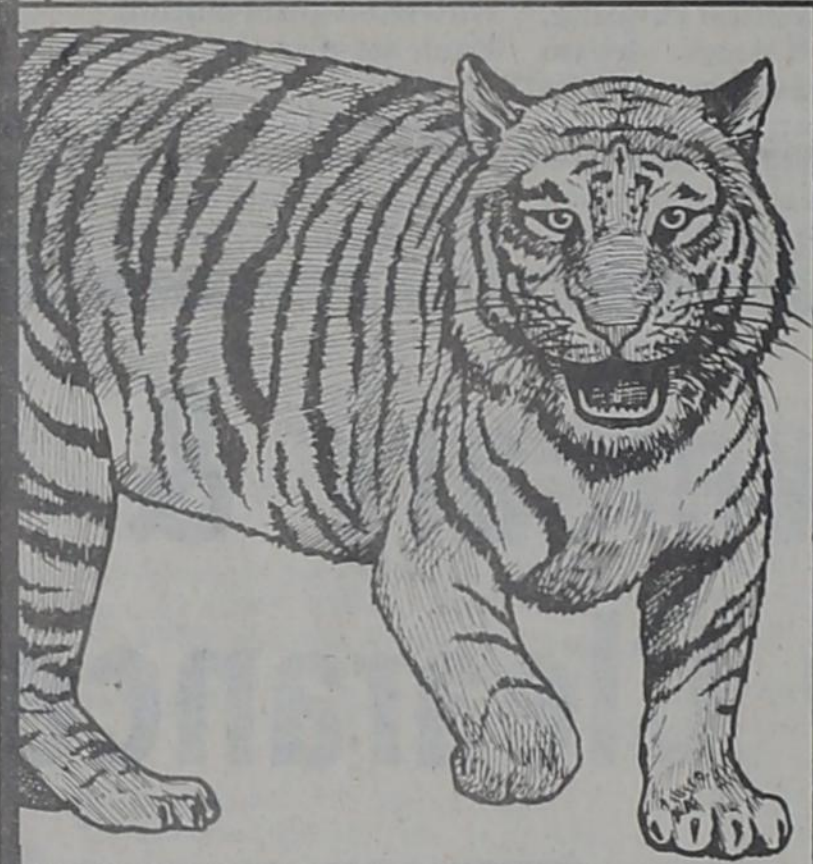

- Inspect for dry rot in and around the house. Check under washers, dryers, and sinks and floors surrounding bathtubs.

- Find the source of the water and eliminate it. Most likely the rotted wood will need to be removed and replaced as soon as possible.

For questions or project information, consult a local home center in your area.

And for information on cedar classic liner panels, treated lumber and outdoor projects, phone Weyerhaeuser consumer information, 1-800-328-4646, ext. 726.
