Active Drive For Votes Is Mapped By FD

Will Open Campaign Immediately With Trip Into Midwest

HYDE PARK, N. Y., Aug. 5. (AP)—President Roosevelt mapped today the part he personally will play in his fight for re-election.

The chief executive, who took command of party activities on return from a sea-going vacation, was expected to carry his banner first into the drought regions of the West and Middle West.

White House attaches expected him to start out early next week on a visit not only to North and South Dakota and Minnesota as originally intended, but to the corn belt where a burning sun is laying waste to acres of crops.

No Politics?

Arrangements were for him to head for the drought sections late this month but it was understood Henry A. Wallace, secretary of agriculture and Chester Davis, former AAA administrator, prevailed upon him to step up the schedule.

Friends insisted such a visit will be without political significance, but opponents were quick to point out that he, in all probability, would make two or even three addresses while in the area.

On his return he probably will tour the flood regions of Connecticut, Western and Northern Pennsylvania, Southern New York and the Ohio river valley. It was asserted that these plans were tentative.

To West Coast

September is reserved by Mr. Roosevelt for the start of a major swing that probably will take him to the West coast and into a number of focal points of political movement.

Some believed he might in a large measure retrace the course of his victorious march in 1932. At that time he spoke in Topeka, Kas.; Denver, Salt Lake City, Seattle, Portland, Ore.; San Francisco, Los Angeles, McCook, Neb., the home of Sen. George Norris, progressive republican; Chicago and Detroit.

On the coast of the campaign, National Committeeman James A. Farley declared that every effort would be made to hold expenditures within $2,000,000, the amount spent four years ago for a democratic victory. Mr. Roosevelt received the pledge of W. Forbes Morgan, national treasurer, that such an amount could be raised.

New Teachers Are Selected

Faculty Changes Made As Board Accepts Resignations Of Five

Resignations of five faculty members in the Big Spring schools were accepted by the board of trustees at a meeting Tuesday night. To fill places thus left vacant, some changes in teacher assignments were made and three new faculty members were named.

Resignations accepted were those of Nell Brown, teacher of high school science; Mrs. Bob Jackson (formerly Miss Georgia Fowler), west ward; Mrs. Waldo Green, junior high; Milton Moffett, assistant coach; and Seth H. Parsons, high school science.

C. L. Cromwell was transferred from the junior high faculty to the high school group, to succeed Parsons, and Miss Ruth Fowler was given Miss Brown's post. She has been on the junior high faculty.

New teachers elected were James Cunningham, who will teach mathematics in junior high; Miss Eleanor Byrley, a former instructor here, who will teach English and reading in junior high; and Carmen Brandon, new assistant coach succeeding Moffett.

School Bond Election Sought In Forsan District To Avoid Contest Over Tax Increase

HONORED BY TEXANS TODAY

DALLAS, Aug. 5. (AP)—The Lone Star state paid tribute today to its outstanding native son, Vice-President John N. Garner.

He and Mrs. Garner were entertained at separate luncheons today and were to be guests at a banquet tonight. Following the banquet Garner will speak at the cotton bowl of the Centennial exposition.

Hearing Held On Spacing In Rodessa Area

AUSTIN, Aug. 5. (UP)—Spacing of wells in the year-old Rodessa oil field, which lies part in Texas and part in Louisiana, was to be considered at a Texas hearing on the field in Jefferson today.

Robert S. Maestri, of the Louisiana department of conservation, had declined to attend the Texas hearing as an observer, but said he would send a representative. Chairman Ernest O. Thompson, of the Texas railroad commission is in Jefferson. He has invited Louisiana officials to sit as observers volunteering in turn to sit as observers at the hearing on the Louisiana part of the field.

Seek Uniform Rules There will be an effort officials of the railroad commission said at a statewide oil hearing on July 16, to adopt spacing regulations for the field with an eye to conforming with regulations on the Louisiana side. At that hearing, acting on the suggestion of many Texas oil operators, the commission adopted a temporary spacing ruling of one well to 20 acres for the field. A report from Louisiana indicates no more the none well to 40 acres there.

A hearing, at which both Texas and Louisiana would be represented, was set for the latter part of July. The Dallas conference of officials who have signed the oil compact moved the date forward to Aug. 5. Jefferson was chosen as the scene of the hearing because of its proximity to the Louisiana line, and convenience to Louisiana officials who may attend.

Concerning co-operation with Louisiana state officials, Commission Chairman Ernest O. Thompson said recently: "Waste can be prevented in any common pool, and it will be prevented." In the oil order for August, recently issued by the commission, the Rodessa allowable was increased 3,000 barrels a day.

Until the well spacing problem is settled a temporary order refusing the issuance of drilling permits on the Texas side.

To Circulate Petitions For Vote On Bonds

Steps to avoid contest over the July 7th election which resulted in the authorization of a 25 cent tax rate increase to the dollar maximum in the Forsan district were taken Wednesday by school trustees and patrons after a suit had been filed Tuesday contesting the results.

Choosing to let the tax rate election ride for the time, several patrons were preparing to circulate petitions calling for a bond election.

Would Require Tax In event the bond issue carried, a tax would be levied against it to pay for a new $7,000 high school unit rather than an increased general maintenance tax.

Little time would be lost by a bond election. Under the revised civil statutes only 10 days notice is now required for an election of that type. Should it carry, then would follow the necessity of getting approval of bonds from the attorney general's department.

R. N. Wagener, oil well supply house operator, Tuesday filed a suit in the 70th district court contesting the 22-25 victory for the tax increase on the grounds that 14 persons who voted were not qualified as "property tax-paying voters."

Groups Named For Army Work

First committee for a local Salvation Army organization were appointed at meetings held Tuesday night and Wednesday under direction of Capt. John G. Churchill of Lubbock, Army supervisor for this area.

An advisory board of approximately 20 members will be chosen, although the personnel has not been completed. An executive committee composed of M. H. Bennett, chairman; Shins Phillips, vice-chairman; R. T. Piner, treasurer; and Bob Whipkey, secretary, was named. A budget and finance committee is made up of Bob Sciermhorn, chairman; Mrs. W. J. McAdams and R. T. Piner. W. G. Hayden and Bob Whipkey will be in charge of publicity.

Churchill told members of the executive committee that a budget of about $2,250 for the year would be required here. Army workers will conduct a finance campaign, probably in September, but this will not be undertaken until permanent officers are sent here and the work established.

The local office will be in charge of Captain Clarice Gordon, now assigned to Corpus Christi, who will arrive here the latter part of the month. She will have a lieutenant working here with her. The office will be under Churchill's supervision.

VICTIM OF BURNS IS TREATED IN HOSPITAL

Tommy Ayers, who was seriously burned in a gas explosion at his home at 700 Bell street Monday afternoon, was resting well Wednesday at the Bivings hospital.

He received third degree burns about the hands, chest, and face when a gas accumulation became ignited.

First Of Farm Conferences Slated Today

Soil Conservation, Other Topics Discussed In All Communities

County Agent O. P. Griffin today started a series of community meetings for the three fold purpose of discussing the soil conservation program, control of screw worms and election of a delegate to an agricultural association meeting to be held in San Angelo soon.

First meeting of 12 was held at the Vesnoor school house at 4 p. m. Another was to be held at 8 p. m. at the Lomax school.

Accompanying Griffin on the meetings is Joe E. Clayton of the U. S. bureau of entomology, supervisor of a campaign in this district to control the screw worm.

Next of Schedule Thursday meetings will be staged at Soath at 4 p. m. and Knott at 8 p. m., and Friday in Highway at 4 p. m. and Elbow at 8 p. m.

The original schedule will be broken at this point to permit Griffin to take his 4-H club boys to Dallas for a Centennial trip. They will be resumed Aug. 17 at 4 p. m. in Moore school, and at 8 p. m. the same day at Center Point. On Aug. 18 Coahoma will have a meeting at 4 p. m. and Morgan at 8 p. m. The series will be completed on Aug. 19 at 4 p. m. in Gay Hill and at 8 p. m. in Vincent.

Federal Program Calls For Measuring Of Lands

Measuring of every piece of cultivated land in Howard county which has been listed for special inspection in the federal soil building and conservation program was started Wednesday.

Instructions received by the county agent's office require re-measuring of all cultivated land the owners or operators of which are cooperating in the government farm program. A vast majority were measured last year for the abandoned AAA.

New measurements, said M. Weaver, adjustment assistant, will be used for permanent records. Albert Heckler, Luther, who was in charge of the work last year, will again supervise the measuring activities for the county this year, according to Weaver, and completion of the task is predicted within four weeks. Each team consists of a supervisor and a chain carrier.

STARK AND BARRETT WINNERS IN MISSOURI

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 5. (AP)—Major Lloyd C. Stark, democrat, and Jesse W. Barrett, republican, will oppose each other for the Missouri governorship in the November elections, on the basis of nearly complete returns in party primaries of Tuesday. Both were far ahead of their opponents.

Stark had the backing of powerful Tom Pendergrast, Kansas City political boss.

Ginger Rogers To Be At Centennial This Weekend To Crown Texas Queen

DALLAS, Aug. 5.—Ginger Rogers, who made her theatrical debut in Dallas, will return here this week to preside over the grand finale of Queen's Night, Saturday and Sunday.

The movie star first caught the attention of the public when she won a Charleston contest here in 1925. Saturday night she will crown the winner of another contest, that for queen of the Texas Centennial exposition. In the coronation she will use the coronet Florence Eldridge wore as Queen Elizabeth in making the movie, "Mary of Scotland."

Ex-Republicans To Lead Assault On Landon's Policies

WASHINGTON, Aug. 5. (UP)—Two former republican members of the new deal cabinet have been assigned the jobs of dissecting Gov. Alf M. Landon's agricultural policies and challenging his right to raise the progressive standard over this presidential campaign.

Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace and Secretary of Interior Harold L. Ickes will command new deal troops on those campaign fronts, supported by President Roosevelt from administration GHQ.

Ickes opened on Gov. Landon Monday night with a reply to his acceptance speech charging the Kansan is no progressive but is linked with reactionary, Wall street republicanism. New deal strategy calls for frequent Ickes attacks on Gov. Landon.

The secretary has been widely and favorably known to mid-west progressives for 20 years. In 1920 he was one of the Hiram W. Johnson-for-president managers. In the 1932 campaign Wallace, an Iowan, plugged the Roosevelt-Garner ticket in the farm belt and Ickes organized the Roosevelt mid-west progressive republican movement.

Wallace will concentrate largely on agriculture and what shall be done about it in this campaign. But Ickes has three major 1936 assignments:

- 1. Challenging Gov. Landon's progressivism.
2. Defending and explaining PWA spending.
3. Appealing to negroes for new deal votes.

As principal progressive republican spokesman for the new deal, Ickes will be on call from the democratic national committee. His speech Monday night was the first of a series which will carry him into the mid-west and into New England. On invitation of Sen. George W. Norris, Ickes will speak in Columbus, Neb., at a Sept. 4 homecoming celebration. Norris, finally out of the republican party after years of progressive inactivity, is expected to run for re-election this year as an independent. He will support the Roosevelt - Garner ticket.

The Ickes-Wallace assault on Landon's policies will not mature until next month after the governor has outlined in more detail some of his major policies. But the new deal political research staff has sifted Gov. Landon's utterances since 1932 and is leading its speakers with them. Ickes began using them Monday night in an effort to show that "Governor Landon" was sympathetic to many new deal methods now condemned by "Candidate Landon."

35,000 Lives Lost During Revolution

Bitter Fighting Near Madrid; France Urges Non-Intervention

(By the Associated Press) Reports of fresh successes by liberal forces punctuated Spain's civil strife today as Red Cross officials estimated 35,000 killed and more than 100,000 wounded in conflicts that have gone on for nearly three weeks.

In Paris, the French government proposed a three-power non-intervention pact offered to other European nations by suggestion of Britain, Italy and Germany. France looked to Moscow for support in maintaining a hands-off policy.

Flight Desperate The Spanish government announced numerous rebel strong-

BURGOS, Spain, Aug. 5. (AP)—Any member of Spain's royal family who sets foot on rebel territory will be jailed by General Emilio Mola, northern commander of the fascist revolution, staff officers announced today. The general said the rebellion is a "national, but not a monarchist, movement."

holds could be captured "any day" but that it wished to force surrender of the posts with a minimum of bloodshed.

A radio message reported to have been sent by Burgo's rebels, was interpreted as picturing the insurgents' plight as desperate. Defenders of the republic and fascist rebels fought bitterly in the lofty passes of the Guadarrama mountains last night in what may prove the decisive battle of one of the bloodiest civil wars of modern times.

Other Battles

While the critical engagement was fought in the Guadarrama, throughout most of Spain thousands of troops were marching against each other. There was conflict in the Balearic Islands and in the Spanish Moroccan cities where the revolt started.

Loyalists forced the fighting in the Guadarrama outside Madrid, and nearly 400 were listed dead, Madrid and a military directorate were the fascist goals.

Two German warships appeared in Ceuta, Morocco, held by rebels, and fascist allegations that foreign planes were being used by loyalists added grave international problems.

Fear European War Growing fear all Europe may be plunged into a war of dictatorship versus liberalism added grave import to the Spanish conflict. Two German warships appeared in the harbor at Ceuta, Morocco, and their officers were said to have called on Rebel Commander Francisco Franco.

France met this apparent indication of German interest in the Spanish revolt by dispatching six destroyers to the Franco-Spanish border. They were ordered held on French roll for further instructions.

The planes, the French government explained, were a warning war supplies may be delivered to Spain unless European powers agree to complete neutrality—denying munitions neither to rebels nor to loyalists.

Great Britain's favorable answer to the neutrality proposal was delivered to the French embassy in London yesterday, but there was no reply from Rome.

Affray Case Passed Over

Court Exchange Turns To Pronunciation Of 'Mandamus'

A volley of laughter broke up a verbal exchange over the celebrated affray case when County Judge J. S. Garlington called the county court docket Wednesday.

When he came to his own affray case, the court passed it over on the grounds that it was dismissed—he himself had dismissed it after appealing from a justice court verdict. County Attorney Wilburn Barcus asked leave to make a motion.

After Barcus moved that the court certify his own disqualification to sit in the case, Judge Garlington overruled the motion.

Then to the county attorney he suggested that "your proper procedure would be to 'man-dam-us' me."

Grover Cunningham, attorney and chairman of the county democratic committee, broke in with: "You mean 'man-day-mus' don't you, judge?"

The judge joined with others in the court room in a hearty laugh since it was he who created an humorous situation by insisting on the proper pronunciation of the word in the city's mandamus proceedings against him last November.

RECORD MAJORITY FOR DEMO TICKET IS SOUGHT IN TEXAS

DALLAS, Aug. 5. (AP)—Roy Miller of Corpus Christi, chairman of the democratic national campaign committee for Texas, said today a drive would be begun immediately with the goal of beating the 1932 record when Texas gave Roosevelt and Garner the largest majority of any state.

WATER CONSUMPTION HITS A HIGH MARK

Water consumption in the city of Big Spring made one of the sharpest gains on record in July when patrons used a total of 27,207,480 gallons.

The figures were 8,755,030 gallons more than for June and 8,450,750 more than for July a year ago.

Increased population and dry hot weather were given as the chief contributing causes to the jump in consumption.

Final Plans Made For Shipping Six Billion Gold To New Vault

WASHINGTON, Aug. 5 (UP)—Inability to complete a road needed for transportation was disclosed today to have delayed the treasury in its plans to move $6,000,000,000 of its huge gold stocks into an impenetrable hoarding place in the Kentucky hills during August. The storeshouses—equipped with every known "burglar proof" device—is being finished in the heart of the recently mechanized Fort Knox, Ky., military reservation. Treasury officials, using mighty armored guard forces, had hoped to move the gold from New York, Philadelphia and eastern centers during August. But shipments probably will not begin until September as a result of a delay in finishing a concrete approach road, they said. Meanwhile secret conferences are to be held to guard the most valuable shipment of precious metal in the world's history are on foot. Consider Military Guard It was believed that the task would be assigned to postoffice inspectors and the secret service. Guards will be posted along the route as the heavily armored trains start their trip. Some thought was being given to asking military precautions also. Local police authorities will be asked to cooperate in the shipments of the hundreds of tons of the gold metal, which Uncle Sam took over and melted into bars under the Gold Act of 1934. The Kentucky shipment is in line with the treasury's policy of taking most of its vast $10,500,000,000

Club Official To Visit Here Kiwanis District Governor To Address Local Unit Thursday Leaders are urging a full attendance of the Kiwanis club membership at the weekly luncheon session Thursday, when M. E. Batten of Enid, Okla., district governor of the Texas-Oklahoma district of Kiwanis International, visits the club. Batten, on a tour of this section, will come here from Abilene, where he addressed Kiwanians Wednesday. A special program is being arranged in connection with the district governor's visit. Dr. W. B. Hardy will be in charge, and a musical program will be directed by Ira Powell.

Drs. True and Boyle Form Partnership Formal announcement was made Wednesday of the formation of a partnership by Dr. G. S. True and Dr. Frank B. Boyle, and the two have opened offices on the second floor of the Petroleum building, in quarters formerly occupied by the Hall and Bennett clinic. Dr. True is one of this city's pioneer practicing physicians. Dr. Boyle, who formerly was a teacher in the local schools, received a bachelor's degree from Baylor university in 1925. He taught science here for five years, then took his M. D. degree from Baylor at Dallas in 1935, later serving his internship at the City-County hospital in El Paso. He and Mrs. Boyle recently returned here to establish residence. Dr. Boyle is entering general practice, and is especially interested in diseases of women and children. With opening of the office in 208-9-10-11 Petroleum building, Dr. True is moving from his former quarters over Cunningham & Phillips No. 1.

Davis and Morehead Open New Feed Store J. W. Davis, for two years head of the feed department of the Co-Operative Gin & Supply company, and G. G. Morehead, district representative of W. J. Lawther Mills, with headquarters in Big Spring, have formed a partnership in the ownership of the Davis & Morehead Feed store, which has opened for business at 701 East Second street on the south end of the Benton street viaduct. Messrs. Davis and Morehead are experienced feed men, and they cordially invite the public to attend the formal opening of their business next Saturday, August 8. Morehead will not be actively identified in the business, as he is on the road out of Big Spring most of the time. Davis will be manager of the new concern.

Grady Acuff New Manager for Co-Op Grady Acuff, well-known farmer residing west of Big Spring, has been elected manager of the Co-Operative Gin & Supply company, succeeding Earl Phillips, resigned. Acuff assumed his new duties August 1. Phillips has entered the gin business, having recently purchased gin properties at Fairview, north of Big Spring, and will conduct that business. Phillips retired from the management of the Co-Operative Gin & Supply company after acting in that capacity since 1931.

WOMAN ADMITS SHE DROWNED BABY IN WASHING MACHINE NIAGARA FALLS, N. The woman, held by police, displayed no emotion. She could give no reason for her act, Knowles said.

Empire State Pushes Motor Safety Drive Licensed Autos Approach 2,500,000-Mark, New Traffic Peak ALBANY, N. Y., Aug. 5 (UP)—The state bureau of motor vehicles has embarked upon an intensive campaign to reduce automobile accidents and fatalities to a minimum in New York state, where never in history has automobile and truck traffic been so heavy. Aware that more than 2,100,000 motor vehicles are being operated on New York's highways, the national safety council and the motor vehicles bureau are collaborating with newspapers throughout the state to educate more than 15,000,000 pedestrians and motorists in safety on the streets and highways. Motor Vehicle Commissioner Charles A. Hartnett, leading the safety drive, calls attention to a number of vehicle laws passed by the 1935 state legislature. He asserted that "mere enactment will not solve our problems."

Stress Rigid Enforcement "Enforcement must be more rigid than ever before, or the whole structure of official supervision will fail," he said. Figures show that while motor vehicle registrations are increasing rapidly from year to year, motor vehicle fatalities and accidents are on the decrease. During the last year there were 237 motor vehicle fatalities in the Empire state against 2,915 in 1934, a decrease of 92 deaths, or approximately two per cent—a saving of more than one life a week for the year. In the same period there were 79,592 accidents against 82,875 in 1934, a decrease of 3,283 accidents, or approximately four per cent. At the same time, motor vehicle registrations in 1935 increased 2.77 per cent over those for 1934 and gasoline consumption gained 2.56 per cent. In 1934 automobile registrations totaled 2,330,570. Last year registrations rose to 2,396,144, an increase of 64,574. A corresponding increase in the number of licensed drivers also obtained last year, the total rising from 3,304,501 on Dec. 31, 1934, to 3,395,533 a year later. Revenues jumped from $37,534,359.80 in 1934 to $38,749,767.52, an increase of $1,215,407.62. During the first five months of this year the gross motor vehicle receipts showed a gain of $2,366,008. Receipts were $40,925,794 against $38,559,791 for the five-month period in 1935.

Total registrations in the five-month period of 1936 were 2,134,071, an increase of 104,009 over the corresponding period a year ago. In an annual report, the bureau advocated uniform laws and regulations, asserting that "a multiplicity of conflicting laws and regulations leads to confusion, disregard and violation of law and ordinance." The intoxicated driver was attacked and compulsory safety instruction in state schools was urged.

AAA Benefits To Howard County Are Over $600,000 Howard county has received $601,285.81 in rental and benefit payments in the three years since the creation of the Agricultural Adjustment administration, it has been announced from San Antonio by H. P. Drought, state director of the national emergency council. Rental and benefit payments in this county for the cotton program totalled $398,206.25; corn-hog, $2,080.26. Rental and benefit payments in Texas amounted to $139,412,186.46 for the three-year period, Drought said. Cotton rental and benefit payments made for the entire state aggregated $114,070,536.72; wheat, $16,881,129.10; corn-hog, $4,603,284.44; sugar, $705.98; rice, $1,975,145.03; peanuts, $381,111.19.

A NEW THREAT AGAINST AUTO SPEED RECORDS "Sunshine Mac," Vitamin Baby, Sets Swift Pace To First Milestone DAYTON, O., Aug. 5 (UP)—McDonald Charles Miller, 8 months old, will not have to eat spinach to gain vitality if an experiment being conducted by his parents ends as successfully as it has started. Donald H. Miller, the father of the baby, is a chemist. His occupation provides the answer for the experiment which has been responsible for feeding the child synthetically all the seven vitamins daily. A crushed tablet, containing all the known vitamins, has been placed in the Miller baby's milk since the day of his birth. The child, who has been nicknamed "Sunshine Mac," has thrived on the diet. He is two pounds heavier and three inches taller than normal babies of his age. "Sunshine Mac" cut two teeth when 5 months old. He now has three teeth and is cutting three more. Most babies do not cut a tooth until approximately a year old. The child also has another distinction. He already has had two haircuts. When guided, he is able to walk. "Sunshine Mac" never has been ill, and it is believed his special diet will help him to escape the usual children's diseases. The American Medical association is said to have studied the child's diet and habits and may make a report. The child's health, and not the use he makes of his physical strength, is the aim of his parents. "We do not intend that he should be a prize fighter, football player or engage in any profession in which strength is an asset unless he desires it," the Millers said. "Our only aim is for him to become the 'world's most healthy person.'" STEWART AWARDED SCHOOL AUDIT JOB Contract for annual audit of the Big Spring independent school district's books was awarded by the board of trustees Tuesday night to Merle Stewart, local accountant. Stewart's bid of $250 was the same as that submitted by the F. G. Rogers company of San Antonio, and board members decided the contract should be awarded locally. Only two bids were offered. The board will meet next Monday night, August 10, to study the 1936-37 budget. A short time thereafter, officials said, public hearing on the budget will be held. LOCAL WASHINGTON FARES BETTER THAN GEORGE IN ABILENE Abilene had its ducky George Washington whose plea of innocence was not believed by a jury Thursday. Today Willie Washington, local negro, fared better in the corporation court. Judge Tracy Smith, unlike Judge James Stinson who snored during the Abilene trial, remained alert and did most of the questioning from the bench. In the end he agreed with Willie that the negro had hurt his woman's feelings more than her head in a gentle jab to her "haid." Bob Kerby Weds Flossie Patton Tuesday Evening

Bob Kerby and Miss Flossie Treasa Patton were married Tuesday evening at the parsonage of the First Methodist church by the Rev. C. A. Bickley.

The couple was accompanied by Earnest Patton, brother of the bride.

Mrs. Kerby is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. S. Patton of Kermit. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. H. S. Kerby who reside north of Big Spring.

The Kerbys will make their home north of the city.

Mrs. S. H. La Londe has returned from Baird where she attended initiation services of the Order of Eastern Star.

250 Attend Methodist Picnic Tues.

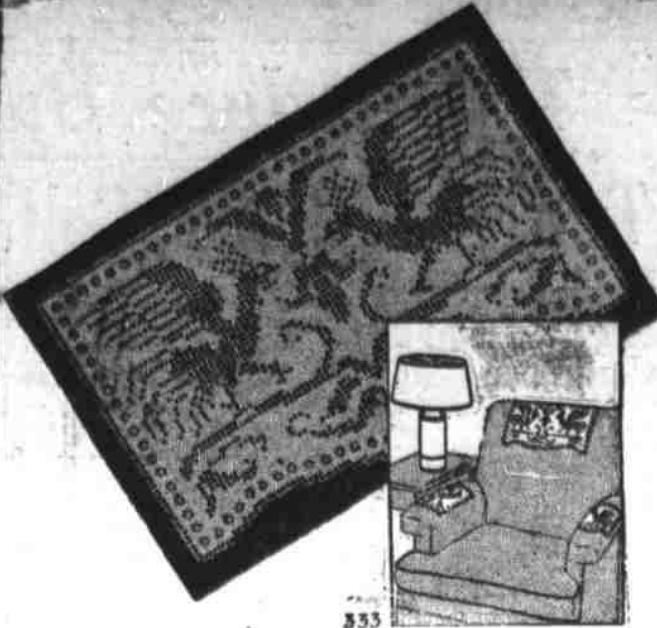

Members And Guests Are Entertained By Class Stunts

Approximately 250 people attended the all-Sunday school picnic given by the First Methodist Sunday school at the City park Tuesday evening.

The group was entertained with stunts given by the different classes. Mrs. A. Schnitzer was chairman of the entertaining committee. Groups and their leaders were: Men's Bible class, Rev. C. A. Bickley; Philathea class, Mrs. J. H. Graves who also accompanied the singing on the accordion; Sunshine class, Mrs. C. E. Thomas; Young People's class, Mrs. Garland Woodward. Mrs. Mary E. Zinn who will be 90 this month, was featured entertainer for Mrs. Fox Stripling's class. She gave a vocal solo. Hugh Duncans' class of young boys also gave a clever number.

After the stunts the basket picnic was served. Following the meal the group enjoyed a fellowship hour.

Chair Set In Filet Crochet

By RUTH ORB
Pattern No. 333

We've discovered that our Wandering Bookworm has a remarkable notebook. It's full of rough sketches of interesting patterns and designs, which she comes upon and she mumbled something about a book on Perugia, but we didn't wait for an explanation. We saw those fighting cocks on a filet chair set; we were sure you'd like them. We worked them out in No. 30 mercerized crochet cotton so that it wouldn't take too long, and here they are, all ready for your hook. And we know where that notebook is kept, against the next time we want to make a raid.

The pattern envelope contains complete, easy-to-understand illustrated directions, with large, complete, stitch-by-stitch working diagrams to aid you; also what crochet hook and what material to use and how much you will need.

To obtain this pattern, send for No. 333 and enclose 10 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred) to cover service and postage. Address: Dept. P. O. Box 200, Station D, Big Spring, Herald, Needlework Dept., P. O. Box 200, Station D, New York, N. Y. (Copyright, 1936, the Bell Syndicate, Inc.)

Cactus Club Meets With Mrs. Short

Mrs. C. L. Browning Is High Scorer For Morning

Members of the Cactus Bridge club were entertained by Mrs. Lee Short at her home Tuesday morning. Summer flowers decorated the rooms.

A Pyrex baking dish was awarded to Mrs. C. L. Browning for having made the highest score.

The hostess served an ice course to Mrs. Browning, Mrs. Clyde Angel, Mrs. C. E. Hahn, Mrs. Harold Parks, Mrs. Larson Lloyd, Mrs. Lindsey Marchbanks, Mrs. H. W. Whitney and Mrs. M. E. Tatum, who will be the next hostess.

Mrs. Vernon Mason Is Hostess For Clever Japanese Fan Party

TO COLORADO

Miss Fern Dehlinger, who left this morning for Trinidad and Denver, Colo., where she will spend the month of August visiting friends. She plans to visit a Frontier Centennial in Fort Worth en route.

A clever Japanese fan party was given for the members of the Happy Go Lucky bridge club and two guests at the home of Mrs. Vernon Mason Tuesday.

Party favors were small fans which the guests found at their places when they had drawn their bridge talles which also carried out the motif.

The hostess carried her chosen theme to the refreshment plate which included fan-shaped cakes upon which she painted by hand beautiful Japanese scenes.

Club prizes of the afternoon were theatre tickets. Three were given Mrs. G. C. Graves for high score, two went to Mrs. Bill Donald for scoring second high and Mrs. Lee Parker received one which was the floating prize. Mrs. Frank Stanfield received a nice gift for her high score for guests. Mrs. T. L. Williams was the other guest.

Members present were Mrs. Parker, Mrs. Graves, Mrs. Ray Patton, Mrs. J. L. Stewart, Mrs. J. E. Brigham and Mrs. Donald.

Mrs. Parker will entertain next.

Barbecue Given For Miss Black At Park

Miss Lennah Rose Webb was honored at a chicken barbecue given by friends at the City park Tuesday evening.

The affair was in honor of her birthday and only intimate friends were present.

Attending were Miss Bernice Haynie, Fred Mitchell, Bennie Heinz, Mr. and Mrs. Searcy Whaley, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Court and the honoree.

City Is Asked To Send Girl Delegate To O'Donnell Event

O'DONNELL, Aug. 5—Officials of the rodeo which is to be held here on Aug. 12-15 have sent an invitation to Big Spring to send a princess to the court of the rodeo queen. The coronation ceremony, which will be followed by the queen's ball on an open-air platform, will be one of the highlights of the Friday evening performance.

The representative will take part in the parades, in the coronation ceremony, and will be guest at various social affairs which are being planned by O'Donnell ladies for visiting royalty.

Promoters of this event are O. L. Harris and L. McMillan, both of whom are members of old-time ranching families of West Texas, and also well known in the rodeo game. Merchants of O'Donnell are cooperating in making up the prize money, and $25 in cash prizes will be awarded winners of the events. Scores of well-known rodeo performers, many of whom are personal friends of the promoters have already filed their entrance fees, and will compete for the prizes.

All the traditional features of the rodeo are to be included in the former Miss Velma Gilmore.

Local Girl Visits Actress-Cousin In California

Miss Virginia Combs, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Combs, who with her grandmother, Mrs. George S. Combs, has been visiting in California for the past eight weeks, didn't break into the movies while in the "starry" state but she kept company with a very promising young thespian. The actress mentioned is Miss Combs' cousin, Miss Christine Gossett, who played her first role in Shirley Temple's latest release, "Poor Little Rich Girl." Miss Gossett played the part of Michael Whalen's secretary.

Mrs. Combs and Virginia spent eight weeks in California and visited in Los Angeles, Beverly Hills, Hollywood and other interesting places. They returned Monday morning.

Mrs. P. H. Liberty Entertains at Hotel

Mrs. P. H. Liberty was hostess to the Petroleum Bridge club at the Settles hotel when the members and two guests met for a round of games.

Mrs. R. B. Bliss and Mrs. Elmo Wasson were club guests, Mrs. Bliss scoring the higher.

Mrs. Fred Read and Mrs. Lee Hubby scored high and second high for the club members.

Other members who attended were Mrs. Sam Goldman, Mrs. Roy Combs, Mrs. Harry Lester, Mrs. Joe Ernest, Mrs. Adams Talley, Mrs. Noel Lawson and Mrs. L. M. Bankson.

Linen And China Get Sea-Going Designs As Ladies Go Nautical

Glasses, plates and napery show seafaring spirit.

By MARGERY TAYLOR
(Copyright, 1936, by McCall's Magazine for The Herald)

We're "all at sea"—it's smart to be nautical in interior decorations these days.

Upholstery, rugs, wallpaper, china, glass, lamps, linens, bath mats, towels—all have sea-going designs, whether they are used in a shore bungalow or in a midwest mansion a thousand miles from the ocean.

You don't have to know the meaning of the code flags used in some designs to enjoy their liveliness. Anchors, compasses, fish and sailors' knots are other popular designs this summer.

"Compass" is an amazing ship design for linens for hot weather entertaining. It is the work of the textile designer, Marguerite Margentime. "Marine Stars" is another—a luncheon cloth in red on white or blue on white, with stars excitingly arranged, and a border of flags with stars and stripes.

Guest towels in the same seafaring spirit come from the same designer—there's a "code flag" series, "midship" and "diagonal stars." They're so gay that you'll want to do over your bath room in red, white and blue.

For the table linens, there is china to match. Very smart are the white plates with wide blue or red border and an anchor or sailor's knot in the center—or a ship in full sail.

For centerpiece, all you need is a pair of white sailor boy figurines—dancing a hornpipe.

LUTRELLS HERE

Mr. and Mrs. R. Million have as their guests Mr. and Mrs. O. B. Lutrell and children, Gloria, Juanita and O. B., Jr., of Boyce, La. They will spend several days here before continuing their trip to California and Washington.

Mr. Lutrell has many friends here having at one time been manager of the T.&P. eating house.

Mrs. Rutherford Scores High At Double 4 Party

Mrs. Ed Allen entertained the members and a guest of the Double Four Bridge club at her home Tuesday afternoon.

Mrs. Frank Rutherford, the only guest, was high scorer. Mrs. E. P. Franklin won the floating prize and Mrs. Watson Hammond was bingo winner.

Mrs. William Dehlinger will entertain the club on August 12. Refreshments were served to Mrs. Rutherford, Mrs. Franklin, Mrs. Hammond, Mrs. Dehlinger, Mrs. R. H. Miller, Mrs. J. L. Terry, Mrs. Richard Lytle and Mrs. Shellie Barnes.

The only gin made by the C.C. process

WE WAIT FOR A SIGNAL from the laboratory—where each gin formula is tested by a complete trial run in a miniature "pilot" still—before we proceed with the distilling. The test run insures the flavor being absolutely right.

EVER SEE SUCH BALANCE?

Perfectly balanced gin flavor is insured by Hiram Walker's exclusive Controlled Condensation process—during which nearly a dozen different flavor ingredients are distilled together. Constant scientific check-up keeps each flavor under control.

UNCHANGING AS THE SPHINX

Gin ingredients vary in flavor strength from month to month, according to soil and sunlight. Hiram Walker's Controlled Condensation process measures and compensates for such variations in each distillation formula. That's why Hiram Walker Gin always tastes the same.

FROM THE LAND OF CHOPSTICKS and from four continents Hiram Walker gathers gin ingredients. Hiram Walker makes it a point to distill its gin from the actual fruits, herbs and berries—together with 100% grain spirits.

1 OUT OF EVERY 4 BOTTLES OF GIN SOLD IN AMERICA IS MADE BY HIRAM WALKER

A GREAT DIFFERENCE, YES—but no greater than the difference between old-fashioned and modern methods of distilling—and between various brands of gin. You can taste the finer flavor in Hiram Walker's Gin, the only gin distilled by the Controlled Condensation process.

OVER 1,000 softball fans were on hand last night for the second game of the crucial Oiler-Chemist series for the city softball crown.

STARS IN every walk of football life, from the battle-scarred crafty professional to the eager high school lad just donning moccasins,

THE WORLD'S fair gridiron season is short, action-packed, sensational. In its brief span of 29 playing days and nights, 41 football games will be played.

THE COTTON Bowl's lead-off game is scheduled for the night of Sept. 7, Labor Day, and will send the Chicago Bears of the National Pro League, runners-up in the 1935 championship race, against one of the most brilliant aggregations of All-American players ever to gather on an American gridiron.

MAJOR GAMES in addition to the Chicago Bear-All-Americans are: Oct. 10, Oklahoma U. vs. University of Texas.

TEXAS HIGH schools which will play games in the Cotton Bowl are: Greenville (there's where they'll have Moffett in a sweat), Beaumont, Sherman, McKinney, Galvestone, Thomas Jefferson of San Antonio, Waco, Denton, St. Joseph, John H. Reagan of Houston and Corsicana.

Manager Casey Stengel Finds Joe Stripp Valuable In Dodger Lineup

BROOKLYN, Aug. 5 (UP)—It was generally taken for granted last fall that Joe Stripp was through as far as Brooklyn was concerned.

The fans had eared on him, Casey Stengel had given up trying to keep him in line, and the front office would have been happy to see Joe Stripp off the roster.

When contracts were mailed out, one was sent to Stripp as a matter of form. The club was forced to do this to protect its right of ownership.

The Dodgers are going to place this season and Stengel realizes that he will have to replace plenty of the "talent" now wearing Brooklyn uniforms.

Detton got vicious only once against Frenchy, falling him in the face with his fists near the end of the match. La Belle kept nothing back in winning the first and third falls.

AIMS FOR NATIONAL AMATEUR

Oilers Even Series With Cosden Lab.

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 5 (UP)—A lanky, bashful youth from the Midwest whose Louisiana State university as his schooling and lifting grounds suddenly has projected himself into the ranks of favorites to win the national amateur golf crown given up by Lawson Little when he turned professional.

The latest sensation among the simon-pures is young Paul Leslie of Jefferson City, Mo., winner of the recent western amateur at Omaha shortly after he finished the national intercollegiate as runner-up to Chuck Kocsis of the University of Michigan.

In the western at Colorado Springs last year, Leslie was among the favorites, but he was ousted and young Charlie Yates of Atlanta went on to win the title that had been taken the year before by Zell Eston, the slim young pro from Oklahoma City, who was competing then as an amateur, of course.

As a high school boy in Jefferson City, Leslie played on the country club course where Horton Smith was pro for a short time before he became the youthful sensation of the golfing world six or eight years ago.

DICKSHOT IS GOOD PROSPECT

By EDWARD N. FEINEN United Press Staff Correspondent BUFFALO, N. Y., Aug. 5 (UP)—The International League, long the birthplace of baseball stars, is expected to produce a bumper crop of rookies for the 1937 major league races.

Virtually every team in the loop has two, three or more players being groomed for the majors. Buffalo has three men who appear headed for bigger things.

Dickshot, property of the Pittsburgh Pirates, probably is the most likely to stay in the big-time. Batting around .360 and fielding perfectly, the big outfielder has proved to be the necessary spark to keep the Buffalo Bisons in their present pennant-contending position.

Bees Watch Fletcher Elbie Fletcher, the third potential major leaguer on the Buffalo roster, is a farmhand on the Bees. Now he is hitting well over the .300 mark and is a finished fielder.

Indians Still Gunning For The Yankees

By HARRY GRAYSON CLEVELAND, Aug. 5.—ANY American Leaguer what club has the best chance of overhauling the New York Yankees and he will unhesitatingly tell you, "The Cleveland Indians."

Can it be that the Tribe is to fulfill all the rosy predictions of the past three seasons? Steve O'Neill has the hottest array in either major wheel right now. Apparently hopelessly relegated to the second division and 13 games behind the Ruppert Rifles, the Redmen launched their second season's spring at Yankee Stadium on July 9. Their home stand has been none too successful and they had been a notoriously poor road squad for years.

So it was that their bagging nine straight and 10 of 12 on the Atlantic seaboard attracted no little attention. And now that they are back in League Park with all hands drawing heads on the short right field wall anything can happen.

A vote of confidence for O'Neill in the form of another year's contract may have something to do with the Indians' spurt. Cured of a threatened attack of stomach ulcers which caused him to law awake nights last season, Hal Trosky again is pulverizing the pellet at the gate which prompted Connie Mack to nominate him as Babe Ruth's successor in 1934. The big Iowa blond is leading both major loops in the highly important matter of driving in runs.

Race To Build Tankers Gets World Start

American Oil Companies Vie With Japanese, British Firms

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 5. (UP) With every navy-possessing country in the world pushing its storage of oil against the possibility of war in the near future, American shipyards are being swamped with orders for oil tankers.

Not only is the race for oil tankers taking place in the United States alone, but Japan, England and other countries have joined in the competition, it is asserted.

According to figures revealed here by officials of some of the leading American oil concerns, the United States shipyards now have nearly 200,000 gross tons of tankers under construction. Virtually every American oil company has been obliged to increase its tanker building program to meet the demands, largely foreign, for a speedy movement of oil.

Maximum Speed 12 Knots. Current reports of Lloyd's Register of Shipping and the American bureau of shipping show that the Standard Oil of New Jersey is perhaps the heaviest builder at present. It has eight tankers of more than 12,000 gross tons under construction. These are to be steam driven with a speed of 12 knots.

Other American oil concerns that are trying to meet the demand with new tankers include the Gulf Refining, Socony-Vacuum and Pan-American Petroleum and Transport companies. All tankers under construction by them will have about the same speed as those of the Standard. They will also be steam driven.

As a result of this sudden drive to construct enough tankers to meet the demands of foreign countries that are storing oil for future contingencies, it is estimated that 7,000,000 hours of work have been provided for workers in American shipyards and allied industries.

Question of Strategy Arises. The question of these new tankers has become of such sudden importance that it was taken up by J. L. Luckenbach, president of the American bureau of shipping at the recent annual meeting of its board of directors.

He pointed out that of the 19 tankers of more than 2,000 gross tons now being built in United States yards, only one is to be powered by internal-combustion engines while all the others will use steam.

On the other hand, foreign nations, according to the latest information available, are building large fleets of motor driven tankers. He announced that the building of still two more tankers in American yards is under consideration.

The information coming from Japan, oil officials here say, shows that the Japanese are following the same lines in construction of their tankers as they have followed in the construction of the merchant marine fleet the past few years.

Campaign Has Not Produced A Major Issue

Roosevelt, Personally, May Be The Key, Just As Was Hoover in '32

By BYRON PRICE (Chief of AP Bureau, Washington)

It is too early to jump at conclusions, but many of those in the active stream of national politics are wondering whether the present campaign, for all its fury and depth of feeling, ever will produce a genuine "paramount issue."

Certainly there is no sign thus far that any one specific question of national policy is emerging above all others, or is on the way to universal recognition as the hinge on which the election will turn.

The great decisive campaigns of history have produced such issues, and so have some of the lesser campaigns. Slavery, free silver and other definitive topics of dispute have inspired political battles which will live forever. Four years ago an individual—Herbert Hoover—became rather definitely the major issue.

It may be that, before November, Franklin D. Roosevelt will be agreed upon as the paramount issue of 1936. There are those who doubt it seriously, for to a peculiar degree popular opinion often has shown a tendency to distinguish between Mr. Roosevelt and his policies, and to be for one and against the other.

At any rate, no such stage has been reached so far. Nearly all political leaders and commentators state the "paramount issue" differently.

This is to place an extreme importance on speed.

Japanese Craft Swifter. All Japanese tankers now being built, it is said, will have a speed of about 20 knots, against the 12 for those being built in the United States. This means, it is argued, that in the event of war, the tankers would be able to keep pace with the fleet, replenishing it with fuel, and enabling it to operate at longer distances from its naval base than would be the case otherwise.

Oil officials here explain that the slow speed of the American tankers now under construction is due to the fact that they are built primarily for commercial purposes. They admit that in the event of war, they would not constitute much of an addition to the strength of the merchant marine as an auxiliary, as they would not have the speed necessary to keep pace either with the fleet itself or the merchant marine which might be converted into temporary armed cruisers.

Group Activity At A Peak

A highly illuminating observation on this subject was made recently by Senator Arthur Vandenberg of Michigan, who predicted that the campaign would be fought out on "a combination of major group issues."

"No one issue is paramount," said Mr. Vandenberg. "This is an interesting campaign in that it presents a series of major issues, each a personal intense challenge to a group of the electorate."

Restoration of the word "group" is significant. There can be no question that group activity, group organization, and group appeal has reached an extraordinary stage. The most intensive efforts are in progress participated in by leaders

In all parties, to consolidate the farmers, the laborers, business, the unemployed, the women, even the young people and the old people for political action.

Each political camp blames someone else for this situation. Appeals to conservatism are denounced by the opposition as efforts of the upper crust to smother the masses, and appeals to the masses are answered with charges of promoting class hatred.

Whoever is responsible the situation presents, as Grover Cleveland would have said, not a theory, but a condition; and all political managers are forced to recognize it, and deal with it.

Politics Sometimes Embarrasses. Such a condition, in which almost every organized group is assumed on general principles to be in politics this year, has had more or less embarrassing consequences in some quarters.

For instance, consider the chamber of commerce of the United States. It was founded as a business venture purely, and heretofore has kept a pretty clear reputation for non-partisanship. One former president of the chamber sits today high in new deal councils. Another is bitterly active against the new deal.

Some time ago, the chamber condemned various new deal policies. Since then, it often has been linked in political utterances with those who are seeking to unhorse Mr. Roosevelt. In that situation, the organization's July statement hailing the advent of a notable business recovery—a perfectly normal and routine thing for the chamber to do under ordinary circumstances—caused much political remark and speculation.

There is sound reason for believing the July statement was issued advisedly, and with keen appreciation of the "group" repercussions likely to follow.

A FIVE-YEAR RECORD

Gene Spence came to Big Spring as city manager August 1, 1931. Thus, a few days ago, he could have observed a fifth anniversary on the job as chief director of this municipality's affairs.

The Herald is not amiss, in noting this occasion, to commend Spence on an excellent five-year record and congratulate the citizens of Big Spring on having supported able administrators in the local government.

Spence took the reins here just as "the bottom was dropping out" of the business world. The period from 1931 until a year or so ago was one of stress for governmental agencies just as it was for private enterprise.

For the five years, expenditures consistently have been kept under revenues. A cash balance is an old story to the city treasury. Water consumption has followed an upward trend while the price remained about the same, showing that water users have gotten more for their money.

The records show these achievements. The auditor who last checked the city's records found reason to laud the local administration and its financing and operating methods.

Spence has been directed by able men in the commission, and the city's record is not solely his. But he carries the executive responsibility, and is due credit for the executive tasks.

It hasn't all been roses. No man in public life, as is Spence, can carry forward much of a program without creating some enmity, without making some mistakes.

It is logical to suppose that some of his policies are not in harmony with some individuals or groups. The time hasn't come when everybody is pleased with everything in government.

Writing a column this year will be much simpler. Madame X has returned, and she is a mine of the sort of information that is looked upon as manna by those who report the nightlife of New York.

Naturally she knows everybody. How or where she gleams so much inside information is one of the exciting things about her. No one knows — yet the fact remains that she can hitch legends and anecdotes to "names" that no one else has thought of before.

Who is Madame X? This much I am privileged to tell you — this and no more:

You have seen her on the avenue in the Easter Parade, and waving from the decks of the big liners, and climbing out of planes at the port across the river.

But after one play she inexplicably departed and never set foot on a stage again.

At 29, it hardly seems possible that she has been a widow for five years — that she could have visited the places she has known, lost her husband in an airplane crash over the Alps, "returned" to the nightlife crowd she knew, and still look so fresh and delightful.

Madame X does not keep a diary. The record of her life is recorded in the minds of friends she has known here and abroad, and in the thousands of paragraphs which columnists have written with her blessing.

A typical example of the carefree existence that has led her into so many intriguing situations is a New Year's Eve party in Budapest several years ago.

"This is Eddie, everybody!" she cried in her quick, excitable way. "Everybody shake hands with Eddie."

So everybody laughed and said hello, and shook Eddie's hand — Eddie who was then the Prince of Wales, later to become King Edward VIII.

Then there was the time a certain lord wanted to marry her and sent her corsages of dozens of orchids. As fast as they arrived she sent them to some girls who worked in a London department store.

Yes, it is exciting to have Madame X back. More than her clothes or her jewels or her reminiscences, she herself is exciting. She is almost tall in her slender, five-foot-six way.

She says: "There are Douglas Fairbanks and the former Lady Ashley at that table. Did I ever tell you about the time we went swimming at Monte Carlo at 3 o'clock in the morning?"

The Daily Washington Merry-Go-Round

By DREW YEAZON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON—Big Jim Farley and his campaign aides privately are in a bad state of the blues over Roosevelt's prospects in Maine.

In the last two weeks, furious behind-the-scenes efforts have been made to bolster the democratic situation in Maine. One was an attempt to persuade Rep. Edward C. Moran, popular liberal, to reconsider his decision not to run again.

Now, with the state in grave danger of reverting to the republican column, Big Jim and the other democratic master minds are pleading with Moran to let bygones be bygones and come to the aid of the president.

In a Washington leading library recently, Edna Edmonds, settlement administrator, selected some reading matter and approached the desk. He inquired, "What must I do to take these books out?"

The young lady at the counter explained: "If you are a permanent resident of the city you merely give me your name, address and place of employment. If you are a temporary resident, you deposit a $1 fee."

"Thank you," said Tugwell, and reaching into his pocket he pulled out a dollar bill.

A former New York City cop may be drafted as a state candidate to bolster Roosevelt prospects in his home balliwick.

He is Edward T. Mulrooney, who rose from harbor policeman to police commissioner in New York, later chairman of the state alcoholic beverages control board, and now state commissioner of correction.

He is Edward T. Mulrooney, who rose from harbor policeman to police commissioner in New York, later chairman of the state alcoholic beverages control board, and now state commissioner of correction.

The plan of running Mulrooney for lieutenant-governor is in vogue with considerable favor by Big Jim Farley.

During Rev. Gerald K. Smith's Cleveland speech, the "rooin", "tootin'" share-the-weather and latest alibi of Dr. Francis Townsend, roared out:

"I'm from Louisiana, and anybody who says I am not a democrat all through has got me to fight."

Smith was born in Pardeeville, Wis., where his father was a circuit riding preacher and a warm admirer of the elder Sen. Robert M. La Follette, then just launching his spectacular career as a crusading republican progressive.

After Huey's assassination, Smith tried to elbow his way into command of the Kingfish's political machine, but was quickly and decisively squelched by Long's lieutenants. Outside Louisiana, Smith poses as the heir to Huey Long's organization and authority, but in the state he cuts no ice.

Mrs. Roosevelt receives letters every day from unfortunates who ask her personal assistance, but the drouth has added a new element of pathos.

The other day this letter came to her from a woman in South Dakota: "Dear Mrs. Roosevelt: Living in the drouth. Our little crops have failed for three years. I am going to write to you for a little help."

"I was thinking the other day perhaps you would have some clothes you did not wear any more, so I beg of you to send me some. I could fix them over to fit. Please forgive me for asking you for a little help. But you can't understand what a little help would mean to me and my family."

"I am sure you will not throw my letter away and forget it (please)."

John McKee, former chief examiner of the RFC and now a member of the federal reserve board has introduced a new note into the private deliberations of the agency.

A hale and hearty individual, McKee startles his dignified banker colleagues with the bluntness of his speech.

At a meeting of the board, Chairman Marriner S. Eccles asked McKee what he thought of a man who had been recommended for head of a federal reserve bank.

"That guy!" was the explosive reply. "I'll set your hat in the middle of 14th street if I can't prove he is a blank-blank crook."

The candidate did not get the job.

MURDER TONIGHT

BY LAURENCE W. MEYNELL

Chapter 23
THE REEVES

Except as curiosities the photographs could hardly be said to interest him. In his time, in Paris, Port Said and the bad quarter of Marseilles, he had come across some pretty filthy representations, but he had never seen the equal of what he handled now in the old-fashioned kitchen of Enderston Court. He felt slightly sick.

"What's all this?" he asked.

"Mister, those cards haven't anything to do with me," Lumadale said so earnestly as to carry conviction. "I'll swear to that on oath. Those are what the old fool used to like to look at. I had to get them for him. When I first came here he told me that he had important parcels coming from abroad—Paris they came from—and he wanted me to give the names of Langley at the post office and collect anything as came.

Hylton watched the process in silence.

"As first I thought it was all right, but after a bit I saw one or two of these lying about and I soon tumbled to it. Well, if the old fool wanted the things, I wasn't going to lose my job by refusing to get them: from the post office; but when the business happened on Monday and I had to give a timetable like of what I was doing, I left out my visit to the post office. It didn't have anything to do with the murder, and I thought if you found out about it I'd get into trouble."

Hylton thought for a moment. "What are these filthy things doing in a drawer in the kitchen?" he asked suddenly.

"Well, ah don't suppose you'll believe about that, mister, but this is how it is. When I came back on Monday and found the old boy dead almost the first thing I thought about was these here photographs. I thought 'police'll catch everything in this room, bound to, and then it'll get out about the old fool having these. Somehow I didn't like to think about it, so before ever I went down to fetch the sergeant I cleared the drawer out and brought them here.

"Why didn't you burn 'em?"

"I'm going to, mister; but I hadn't seen 'em all, and ah suppose a man's human like everybody else."

"Fitch 'em on the fire now," Hylton ordered gruffly. "It makes me almost ashamed to be human when I see stuff like that."

Lumadale obediently gathered the mass of pornography together and fed the flames with it. Hylton watched the process in silence and when it was over asked abruptly: "Did Mrs. Reeves ever come here?"

"Once or twice she did."

"And her husband?"

"I've never known him come."

"Um." The inspector got up and made for the door, but before he reached it he turned around.

"Now look here, Lumadale," he said, "you're still in a nasty position, and if you want to keep out of trouble just go on telling the truth. Do you get that?"

A somewhat chastened Andrew Lumadale nodded. "All right, mister."

Twenty minutes later Kingsley Hylton was being smiled at by the maid at Ferny House. Yes, Mrs. Reeves was in, and the captain would be please come in.

The inspector found Captain Reeves and his wife sitting in the drawing room with a copy of "Horse & Hound" open between them. Mrs. Reeves gave the inspector an affable welcome; the captain looked at him and grunted.

Hylton refused the offer of tea.

"No; no tea, thank you. I've come on business."

DAYTON KEEPS WEIGHT RELICS

DAYTON, O., Aug. 5 (UP)—Although Henry Ford's recent purchase of the little shop in which Orville and Wilbur Wright constructed some of their first gliders and airplanes took away from Dayton one of the relics of the pioneers of heavier than air machines, it did not leave the city without landmarks made famous by the two brothers.

In addition to the shop which Ford purchased for his Dearborn museum, there are six other places here intimately connected with the Wrights.

One of the landmarks is the home in which Orville was born and where Wilbur died.

Home for Many Years

It was in this home that the brothers planned and accomplished much of their early work, and it was their residence after they returned from France with the first national recognition of their history-making feat.

When Susan Catherine Koerner Wright, mother of the boys, died, her husband, Bishop Milton Wright, divided the property among his children.

A daughter, Catherine, received the homestead, and in 1922 she sold it. It is now owned by Mrs. Lottie Jones, a negro servant who worked for the Wright family for 43 years.

"That's my business."

"And the law's. However, at present all I ask is for you to be quiet whilst I ask your wife a few questions."

"Pat, for heaven's sake don't make things more awkward than they are," his wife begged. "Go on, Mr. Hylton, we may as well get this over, what is it you want?"

"Have you ever been to Enderston Court, Mrs. Reeves?"

Nellie Reeves darted a distressed look across the room at her husband before answering, "Yes—I have—twice."

"Were you there on Monday the 18th?"

"Last Monday? No."

Hylton let that pass for the moment. "Tell me," he said, "were these visits of yours to the court just in the ordinary way of social calls?"

Again that troubled look shot across the room.

"I really don't see that you can pry into private business like that," Reeves broke in angrily, and almost as sharply his wife answered, "Oh, Pat, for goodness sake let's get the wretched thing cleared up and done with."

"Not a bad idea," Hylton concurred. "Do you mind if I smoke?"

"Sorry—where are the cigarets, Pat?"

"No thanks, I'll have one of these." Carefully he selected and lit one of his thin cigars. "Now let's have it, Mrs. Reeves," he urged.

"Well, it's a beastly story, though of course, in a way, it had nothing to do with me. I'm secretary of the poultry and damage fund in the Hunt, and of course a good deal of the land we hunt over belongs to old Burdett."

Liquor Interests Take Up Drive On 'Sex Appeal' In Advertising

WASHINGTON, Aug. 5 (UP)—Liquor interests are taking up a drive to keep the industry within the bounds of propriety.

The proposition is interesting as evidence that the liquor interests may be wary of the dry's power and are trying to give them no handle upon which to fasten a comeback campaign.

Ernest C. Kennedy, an executive of one of the largest distillers' corporations, told a conference of state liquor administrators of a 14-point code of good advertising and selling conduct his organization planned to adhere to, even if it had to go it alone.

He said large distillers and distributors were disposed to be within bounds of "decent," even though federal regulation of the had been limited by recent Supreme court decisions.

But the big fellows, he said, could not enforce good conduct on a little ones, such as retailers, seemed fearful these would be their eagerness for business led them to use advertising and methods which might bring down upon them the wrath of the dry and the general public.

Urges Code

He asked the administrators to apply the code to the little ones which he said he had planned to summarize, his code proposed: That no illustrations of women be used in liquor advertising; no appeal be made especially to women buyers.

That no appeal be made to children or youths, including college students.

That no liquor advertising be put on the radio or in Sunday papers, and that advertisers avoid a socializing liquor with Santa Claus, Easter rabbits, alluring outdoor bathing scenes, or handsome arm officers.

That no illustrations feature ships' officers, locomotive engineers, aviators or other responsible for human safety.

Dry's Still Strong

Perhaps no irony was intended when Kennedy also urged that liquor advertising be placed in religious publications, "irrespective of the fact that such advertisements are solicited by those publications."

That drys have strength left was indicated in the sweeping primary victory of Senator Sheppard, Texas, co-author of prohibition.

Looking to the future, drys announced long ago they were going to begin the fight for prohibition from the local option districts up. They put no faith in regulation for control of the liquor traffic.

Mr. and Mrs. Ollie Williams took their daughter, Betty Lewis, to Dallas hospital Tuesday. They were accompanied as far as Clasco by Mrs. John Price of Midland.

Agua Caliente Suffers From Gambling Ban

Once Fashionable Resort Rapidly Becoming A Ghost Town

AGUA CALIENTE, Mex., Aug. 5 (AP)—A year after its sudden close last summer, Agua Caliente, formerly one of the smartest watering places in North America, remains unempt and deserted with hope for a reopening becoming dimmer month by month.

Since President Lazaro Cardenas of Mexico issued a stunning notice July 20, 1935, that no more gambling was to be allowed in Mexico, owners of the fashionable resort have from time to time been heartened by reports that they would be able to reopen, but each has proved false.

The buildings themselves remain in good condition, and could be fitted for operation in a few weeks. The grounds, however, have grown up in grass, greens on the popular Agua Caliente golf course, scene of big-money tournaments, are dried up and fairways weed-covered.

The race track, not often host to top-notchers of horsemanship but always in the heavy money from a betting standpoint, is marked by winter rains with little accompanying care. The jockey club and nearby golf clubhouse alike present a dreary appearance.

Jobs Lost By Thousands Closing of the resort affected directly the economic status of some 25,000 persons in the sprawling border town of Tijuana, two miles north of Agua Caliente, which itself consists solely of the resort.

In addition to the hundreds of workers thrown immediately out of employment by the shutdown, almost every merchant in Tijuana felt a sharp drop in business as tourist traffic across the border slumped. Where thousands of persons formerly crossed every day from San Diego, only 14 miles away, and Los Angeles, a two-hour drive up the coast, now only Sundays and holidays see any appreciable influx of visitors.

Government relief projects in some measure have taken up the slack in employment, but cannot take care of all persons out of work. Road projects and the irrigation system being built in conjunction with the new Rodriguez dam are included in the government program.

Efforts have been made to stimulate interest in agriculture, but the greatest percentage of unemployed were men whose lives had been spent on indoor jobs and could not easily be adapted to farming.

Resort Followers Scattered Many crocheters, bartenders, waiters and other resort employees have gone to other cities, some into the United States, in search of employment. Others have jobs in Tijuana, but are discontented with low salaries and absence of generous tips of former lush times.

In a slight degree, gambling restrictions have been eased since the initial decree, but still permit only minor games. Roulette and unlimited betting on horse racing, the two principal sources of income, remain banned and little hope of reopening is seen until they again are legalized.

Latest fear of Tijuana residents is that liquor will be declared unlawful, thus closing one of the remaining sources of income. Present United States customs laws permit visitors to bring back one gallon tax free, and a fair trade in high class liquors has been established. Recently taxes on bars were increased 50 per cent and all places where liquor is sold ordered to close by 10 p. m. on weekdays and all day Sunday.

The Agua Caliente company has been involved in litigation with former workers almost constantly since the close. Workers charge they were not paid the required advance salary when they were discharged.

Jockey Club Changes Hands Latest move in the somewhat tangled legal status of the plant was the purchase of the jockey club by Mrs. Susana Lazaro Regnier, former Mexican landholder, who asserts she once owned the land upon which Agua Caliente is situated. Mrs. Regnier bought the jockey club at government auction in a sale intended to raise money to meet the demands of discharged workers. She paid $5,000 of the reputed $150,000 purchase price for the plant which originally cost more than $1,000,000. Baron Long, Los Angeles hotel owner and chief stockholder in

Agua Caliente, is convinced Mrs. Regnier's title is of doubtful legality and still considers himself the nominal head of the establishment. Mrs. Regnier, however, considers her title clear and has opened negotiations with Mexico City officials in an effort to bring about an agreement whereby race meetings may be held. Meanwhile the grass gets taller around the once-popular resort, and residents become less hopeful the border ever again will hum with the activity of former years.

EXTRA DIVIDEND IS PAID BY STANOLIND

CHICAGO, Aug. 5 (UP)—The Standard Oil company of Indiana today declared an extra dividend of 25 cents and the regular quarterly dividend of 25 cents on the common stock, both payable Sept. 15, to stockholders of record Aug. 15. On June 15, an extra of 15 cents was paid. Edward G. Seubert, president, said the extra payment was "justified" on the basis of earnings for the past six months.
