Benefits of Good Roads

In good roads, as in so many other ways, the United States leads the world. The splendid, safe highways that are common to us, would in many other countries be considered miracles. We can cross entire states, and go from coast to coast, without encountering dangerous roads.

No public investment pays better. A city with good streets is an attraction to industry and home seekers; our mountain and country highways, aside from their more practical uses, are a constant invitation to investigate new parts. We have come to depend on these good roads and they are now necessities of business and pleasure.

Plans are being made for a highway from this country to South America, to be the longest in the world. The possibilities of such a connection are enormous in building international good will, in making it easy for foreigners to see and understand the United States, and for us to do the same.

Good roads bear the same relation to a nation as the arteries do to the human body; they give us life and national health, industrially and physically.

It's Only Papa

Often things of every-day experience—things that come closest home—once we understand their portent, are surprising. Consider the case of Mrs. Day, whose daughter Theresa, thought to play an "April Fool" joke. Bursting into the parlor where on the afternoon of April 1, Mrs. Day was entertaining "society dames" Theresa exclaimed excitedly: "Oh, mama! There's a strange man in our kitchen I peeped thru the keyhole—and he has Mary our maid on his knees, and he's pettin' her an' kissin' her!" Excusing herself, Mrs. Day started to the kitchen to put an end to such carryings on in her chaste household. Whereupon Theresa danced up and down in glee, crying: "April Fool mama! It's no strange man at all. It's only papa!"

New Gas Laboratory for Public Service

That standards of public service may be elevated, and engineering and scientific research advanced, what is hoped may result from the new testing laboratory of the American Gas Association, now under construction at Cleveland, Ohio.

More than 70,000,000 people in America use gas and are dependent on it to some extent. The gas industry has performed a splendid public service in coordinating its activities for the benefit of the users of gas.

Gas in the past few years has steadily increased in importance; new uses for it have been found with amazing rapidity. Building the new testing laboratory will do much toward making it a still greater industrial giant, and still further improve and broaden its field of use. Possibly no one has sufficient imagination to forecast accurately what gas will accomplish in the next century.

Railroad Record Deserving of Praise

The railroads have always been equal to any demands made upon their service. The percentage of increase in investment has been conspicuously larger than the increase in ton-miles. They have, in recent years, spent an average of 750 million dollars annually in additions and improvements to their properties all of which has resulted in a steadily bettered service to the public.

It is unfortunate from the standpoint of public welfare, that certain legislative action has made their progress infinitely more difficult. An example is their pyramiding tax burden every cent of which must be paid by rates charged the public. The La Follette Evaluation Act, a questionable measure has cost both the government and the railroads many millions of dollars which is charged to the taxpayer and traveling public. It inaugurated a task which can be made endless.

If we want lower rates or still better service, we must all do our part to secure equitable and constructive legislation and reasonable taxation which will encourage railroad investments and construction.

Sullivan's Viewpoint

Dr. Mark Sullivan has another viewpoint. Read it. "It is a well considered view, held commonly by many politicians in both parties, that Heflin is a greater help to Smith than any single agency working in his behalf."

Well, not in Alabama. He is a greater help in the vast stretch of territory lying between Sandy Hook and the Golden Gate, not to doubtful states in November. Speaking of the largest denomination in America, the big world denomination, Dr. Mark has this to say:

"More than that, the largest denomination in America is not a denomination at all. It is composed of those who are not formally attached to any church, or whose attachment is so loose they would never think of voting on the basis of their religious affiliation. This very large group of voters is composed of persons unusually likely to pay weighty attention to religious tolerance, and to support that principle if they think it is in danger. Such voters, because of Heflin's speeches, tend to be pressed toward support of Smith."

Dr. Mark knows his public. He may have rung the bell in the closing chapter of his daily deliverance to the reading world.—Ex.

Toasted Mushrooms Made of Pineapple

Toasted mushrooms may be made of marshmallows just as well as real mushrooms, says this recipe: Slice bread and cut out eight rounds the size of a slice of pineapple. Sauté the bread and eight slices of pineapple in butter until a golden brown, then place a circle of pineapple on each slice of bread.

Mix one package of cream cheese, six tablespoons peanut butter, a few grains of salt and enough pineapple syrup to moisten. Spread thickly on the pineapple slices and top each one with a marshmallow. Place under the broiler until marshmallows are slightly browned but not melted. This will preserve the mushroom effect.

Aviator Seeks New Air Route

Selecting an air route for the next Edsel B. Ford reliability trophy event, Ray Cooper, New York is scheduled to land at the Fort Bliss field late last week. He is chairman of the Detroit chamber of commerce aviation committee. The El Paso chamber was advised of his expected visit. Mr. Cooper, it was stated, would visit a number of places in his "pathfinder" machine. The route of the air tour will be announced later.—El Paso Herald.

A Striking Estimate Of Gold Production

According to a German scientist the world is now producing about half the gold it needs. The full extent of the need for gold is not always apparent, because of the great credit systems built up in modern times and the tremendous volume of paper currency in use throughout the world. Even so, each year sees a great growth of the visible, recorded demand for gold. Statistics show that within the memory of living men more gold has been consumed than in all the years before.

Though striking, the German scientist's estimate is perhaps not at all extravagant.

Mrs. A. M. Evans left Friday morning for a several weeks visit with relatives and friends in Dallas and Denton.

SCARES BIRDS FROM ORCHARD WITH RADIO

A cherry orchard owner in Embury, Germany, resorted to radio to solve the problem of keeping the birds away from the trees during the time the cherries were ripe.

Instead of the usual whistles and clappers that the wind shakes the trees, this farmer placed a speaker in the branches of an old tree in the orchard. All day long marinated the day's news and the tone from the tree in the orchard. The birds were driven away from the tree by the violent agitation and finally to some quietude where, but in flying away, they gave the orchard wide berth apparently, leaving the free concert.

Goodrich Silvertowns

By this Discovery

Silvertowns prevent wasteful tread wear on millions of cars!

WHAT you see under the plate glass, happens about 300 times a minute at every point on your tire, when you drive your car. Like a flash, the tread must flatten as it meets the road, for balloon tires are soft. So Goodrich Silvertowns are built to flatten without distortion—free from bulky blocks in the center—protected from "piling up" or uneven choppy wear of the tough tread rubber. As dealers, we know what this means. It means thousands of extra miles of service, if you buy Goodrich Silvertowns. Come in. Let us tell you all the other features of these famous tires. Our expert service and cheerful courtesy make it an added pleasure for you to trade here.

Mrs. Ober listened and said, "Edith, listen, my dear. Every girl has something of charm about her; and it is her duty to study in every way she can to bring it out. Now, your—your dresses ought to be changed; it's not a matter of cost, but of right choice. You see, some women have a gift of figuring such things out; and some haven't. Now, it's my business to help those who haven't; and I suppose we see what we can do?"

Mary's eager agreement made the older woman smile, and they went ahead with their plans.

So the day came when Mary, while Mrs. Ober looked on with interested eyes, faced herself in her mirror in a real party dress. She was amazed at the change. Her bobbed hair had been changed in such a way as to bring out the oval of her face and the curve of her slim neck; and the dress, simple in design, hid the rest.

"You see?" Mrs. Ober said, and Mary turned and rushed into her arms.

She was hurrying down the hall to Mrs. Ober's room for the purpose of having a small change made in the dress when she met Ted at the top of the stairs. He looked at her with keen interest.

"Hallo, Mary, I hardly knew you! What is that—a new dress?" he asked with frank admiration in his eyes.

His glance set something to singing within her. "A real party dress!" she announced, as she slipped by.

Then came Edith's comment later on. "Midget, where did you get that bob? It's the work of an artist!" Then happiest of all, came Ted with his own invitation to join him and his own special group at an evening dance.

It was in the quiet of one of the closets of the beautiful room outside the dance floor that he turned to her. "Mary, you are the same girl and yet you aren't, and I can't figure out what has made the difference. You remember the other time? I enjoyed having you then with me, but I feel now as if it were somebody else." He was smiling, but his eyes were frank and he could not hide his puzzled thought.

Mary was chancing to herself, "I shan't be homesome any more," but she said to him: "The reason—oh, only a woman knows! But you don't think I'm 'impossible'?"

He caught her hand in a tense grasp. "Impossible!—I should say not—and it's going to take a darned good man to get you away from me!" he said with decision.

CARS
the cream of the USED CAR market

Two important facts to know about a used car are "who built it" and "who sells it."

Nash is a great name to have on your motor car. It assures you your car was built right, that its performance and appearance are high above the average, and that its manufacturer is in business to stay.

Therefore a Nash used car is always a good buy.

But a Nash used car is a better buy when it has been thoroughly reconditioned by expert Nash mechanics, with great pride in their car and in the character of the work they do.

That's why our Reconditioned Nash cars are easily the cream of the used car market. They are cars you can be proud of and sure of, cars certain to make you another enthusiastic Nash owner.

These Reconditioned Nash models are priced low for quick turnover. The terms on which you can own one, you'll find exceptionally easy.

And you'll also find that, as between a small, low-priced new car and a big Reconditioned Nash at the same price, you would rather have the Nash!

near the North Pole as the proper place for holding the Democratic National Convention. Houston is going to be mighty warm in June without the fireworks which are certain to be a feature of the convention's program.

Railroad officials and oil executives are agreed that oil development in West Texas will continue on a big scale for at least eight or ten years. What other section of the United States can hope for such an extended period of prosperity?

The oldest ant and the oldest wasp known to the world have just been dug from oil shale beds in Colorado.

Returns from Dairying

Having worked up an interest in Lockhart for the building of a modern creamery, Editor Schofield, of the Post-Register, is now confronted with some doubting Thomases that think the lands around Lockhart are too valuable to be used for dairying. Shades of Shyllock! What do they expect to do with their land? Up in the Canadian border states where land is held at from $500 to $1,000 an acre, and cows have to be kept housed in close barns about half the year to keep them from freezing, dairy farmers are getting rich and buying more land when they can find anybody who will sell it.

Unless Caldwell County lands are worth more than that, and winter conditions are harder on the cattle than "up north," dairying will pay around Lockhart. If the lands are too valuable for that they are certainly worth too much to be used for cotton. Only oil gushers and gold mines will beat it, and these "play out" after a while, leaving the dairyman still in clover.

The Gonzales Inquirer, ever "watchful of its country's interests," says that those who did not at first realize the great value of its new creamery industry as a contributor to the prosperity of both the country and the town are now finding it is paying out more than $10,000 a month in cream checks that come right back into business channels, with the business still in its infancy. Three hundred dairy cows of superior strain have been placed in the country by the creamery owners to further increase the interest in and profits from dairying. I have yet to hear of a creamery in Texas that is not making money for its owners and those who supply the milk and cream.

Dr. Clay Lauderdale, a Buda physician, having decided that the people around the village could not make enough growing cotton to pay their doctor's bills, got up in a meeting and began shouting for a cheese factory. The suggestion took, and a subscription for stock in the enterprise was started. Kyle, a neighboring town, decided to help the enterprise along; its bankers and business men taking stock in it. It was a neighborly thing for Kyle to do, but Kyle figured that good roads bring the two towns very close together and that Kyle farmers and dairymen would profit from a cheese factory at Buda about as much as those closer to Buda. And so, thanks to the friendly cooperation, the Buda cheese factory will be built—Ex.

JESUS FACING BETRAYAL AND DEATH

LESSON TEXT—Mark 14:1-12. GOLDEN TEXT—Not what I will, but what Thou wilt. PRIMARY TOPIC—Jesus' Last Supper With His Disciples. JUNIOR TOPIC—Jesus' Last Supper With His Disciples. INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Loyalty in Times of Testing. YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Fellowship of His Sufferings.

I. Judas' Bargain With the Chief Priests (vv. 1-11).

This black crime was committed immediately following the beautiful act of devotion by Mary (John 12:1-8). The motive actuating Judas was avarice.

II. The Last Passover (vv. 12-20).

1. The preparation (vv. 12-16). In reply to the disciples' inquiry as to where they "would prepare the Passover for Him, Jesus told them to go into the city where they would meet a man bearing a pitcher of water, whom they should follow. In the house to which they were thus led would be found a guest chamber, a large upper room where they could make ready the Passover.

2. The betrayal announced (vv. 17-21).

The betrayal was to be by one of the disciples who was eating with Jesus. This betrayal had been predicted, though such prediction did not interfere with the free act of Judas in the betrayal.

3. The sacrament of the bread and cup.

These were symbols of His broken body and shed blood by which He had made atonement for man's sins.

III. The Cowardice of the Disciples Foretold (vv. 26-31).

In spite of their cowardly turning from the Savior, He assured them that after His resurrection He would go before them into Galilee. Peter protested against such an act of disloyalty by the disciples and assured the Lord that though all the rest would forsake Him, yet he would not. The Lord showed him how little he knew, even about his best resolve, telling him that on that very night he would deny Him thrice.

IV. The Agony in Gethsemane (vv. 32-42).

1. Jesus Christ's suffering (vv. 32-34).

ions of his pure soul coming into contact with the awful sin and guilt of the world.

2. Jesus Christ praying (vv. 35-42).

His only recourse in the hour of supreme need was prayer. In the great crisis of life we can only find help as we go to God in prayer (James 5:13).

(1) The first prayer (vv. 35-38).

a. His posture (v. 35).

He fell on His face prostrate to the ground.

b. His petition (v. 36).

"Take away this cup from me."

By the cup is meant His death on the cross. It was most grievous to Him to face this shame, but He pressed on, knowing that for this cause He had come into the world (John 12:27, 28, cf. Heb. 2:14). He prayed that the hour might pass from Him. The burden was so great that it seemed His life would be crushed out. His prayer was heard (Heb. 5:7). When God hears prayer, He grants the petition desired (1 John 5:14, 15). Angels ministered to Him, giving the necessary grace to endure to the end (Luke 22:43).

c. His resignation (v. 36).

He knew that his death on the cross was the will of God the Father, for He was the Lamb slain from the foundation of the world.

d. The disciples rebuffed (v. 37).

He singled out Peter, since he had been the most conspicuous in proclaiming his loyalty (John 13:35).

e. Exhortation to the disciples (v. 38).

Watch and pray lest ye enter into temptation.

(2) The second prayer (vv. 39, 40).

He withdrew the second time from His disciples and uttered the same words in prayer. This was not vain repetition, but repeated request.

(3) The third prayer (vv. 41, 42).

He uttered the same words in his third prayer (Matt. 26:44). He told the disciples to sleep on and take their rest as the hour had now come for His betrayal.

Benefits of Good Roads

In good roads, as in so many other ways, the United States leads the world. The splendid, safe highways that are common to us, would in many other countries be considered miracles. We can cross entire states, and go from coast to coast, without encountering dangerous roads.

No public investment pays better. A city with good streets is an attraction to industry and home seekers; our mountain and country highways, aside from their more practical uses, are a constant invitation to investigate new parts. We have come to depend on these good roads and they are now necessities of business and pleasure.

Plans are being made for a highway from this country to South America, to be the longest in the world. The possibilities of such a connection are enormous in building international good will, in making it easy for foreigners to see and understand the United States, and for us to do the same.

Good roads bear the same relation to a nation as the arteries do to the human body; they give us life and national health, industrially and physically.

It's Only Papa

Often things of every-day experience—things that come closest home—once we understand their portent, are surprising. Consider the case of Mrs. Day, whose daughter, Theresa, thought to play an "April Fool" joke.

Bursting into the parlor where on the afternoon of April 1, Mrs. Day was entertaining "society dames" Theresa exclaimed excitedly: "Oh, mama! There's a strange man in our kitchen! I peeped thru the keyhole—and he has Mary our maid on his knees, and he's pettin' her an' kissin' her!"

Excusing herself Mrs. Day started to the kitchen to put an end to such carryings on in her chaste household. Whereupon Theresa danced up and down in glee, crying:

"April Fool mama! It's no strange man at all. It's only papa!"

"More than that, the largest denomination in America is not a denomination at all. It is composed of those who are not formally attached to any church, or whose attachment is so loose, they would never think of voting on the basis of their religious affiliation. This very large group of voters is composed of persons unusually likely to pay weighty attention to religious tolerance, and to support that principle if they think it is in danger. Such voters, because of Herd's speeches, tend to be pressed toward support of Smith."

Only a Woman Knows By DUFORD JENNE THE girls followed Mary to her room like a dawning sentence.

"Oh, we can't ask Mary! Ted wouldn't go with her—she's impossible!" That was all Mary heard, but it was enough.

Mary's heart skipped a beat, and she was almost on the verge of saying "No!" for she knew she was being asked to "fill out."

On the journey to the dance hall, through the crowded subway, Ted's kindness and thoughtfulness warmed her heart and drove away some of the chill the word "impossible" had left.

When the evening was over, however, and Ted had left her with a kindly good-night and in the silence of her room she "took stock," she was aware that he had shown no more than courteous interest in her.

Mary's eager agreement made the older woman smile, and they went ahead with their plans. So the day came when Mary, while Mrs. Ober looked on with interested eyes, faced herself in her mirror in a real party dress.

"You see?" Mrs. Ober said, and Mary turned and rushed into her arms. She was burying down the hall to Mrs. Ober's room for the purpose of having a small change made in the dress when she met Ted at the top of the stairs.

His glance set something to singing within her. "A real party dress!" she announced, as she slipped by. Then came Edith's comment later on. "Midget, where did you get that bob? It's the work of an artist!"

It was in the quiet of one of the alcoves of the beautiful room outside the dance floor that he turned to her. "Mary, you are the same girl and yet you aren't, and I can't figure out what has made the difference. You remember the other time? I enjoyed having you then with me, but I feel now as if it were somebody else."

New Peril Doubtless the height of realism would be contracting a hard cold from the radio announcer's cough. —Detroit News.

Dodging the Real Issue The folly of passing restrictive or prohibitory legislation affecting all the people, on the theory that such action will reduce lawbreaking which is committed by infinitesimal minority of all the people, is illustrated by results secured under anti-revolver laws and restrictions.

Notwithstanding all the different state laws now on the statutes which make it obligatory for persons to first get a permit before they can purchase or carry a revolver or pistol, it is stated by good authority that never yet has a single instance been recorded where a person caught in the commission of a crime has even applied for a permit, let alone secured one.

Our crime reformers are simply dodging the issue and making a false show of activity against the criminal, when they advocate and pass legislation against the law-abiding citizen.

Today these same editors have evolved a little and are carrying those same kind of messages, tho usually by others as we have moved up a notch. We have been dealing with some of the problems of city life of late and are now beginning our educational campaign and naturally have to turn to a progressive editor and people to begin on.

We have several systems for moderating summer weather: One is, build ice houses around your water mains, place something over the storm sewers to hold the water in the streets, open your water plugs and you will settle the dust and wash the streets; cool the air, improve the people's health.

My good people of Big Spring, and in the far reaching influence of this paper, we hope that all will help put on an educational campaign. Will other publishers please copy, and will editors write editorials?

Farmers Are Now Replanting Crops

In the parts of the country where the sandy land abounds farmers are now busily engaged in replanting their crops, which were either washed away or covered with sand in the recent heavy rains. In the lower farms where the land is a bit tight, the planting has not reached such headway, but the majority of the farmers everywhere are getting prepared to plant once more.

There is still a scarcity of seed, we are told, and that is a great inconvenience to those who did not save enough seed for an emergency of this kind.—Coahoma Citizen.

THE COMMONPLACE MAN

At least eighty out of a hundred adults returned in the last census are neither extraordinarily silly, nor extraordinarily wicked, nor extraordinarily wise; their eyes are neither deep and liquid with sentiment, nor sparkling with suppressed wit; they have probably had no hairbreath escapes of thrilling adventures; their brains are certainly not pregnant with genius, and their passions have not manifested themselves at all after the fashion of a volcano. They are simply men of complexions more or less muddy, whose conversation is more or less bald and disjointed. Yet these commonplace people—many of them—bear a conscience, and have felt the sublime promptings to do the painful right; they have their unspoken sorrows and their sacred joys; their hearts have perhaps gone out towards their fellow-men, and they mourned over the irreclaimable dead. Nay, in there not a pathos in their very insignificance. Is our comparison of their dim and narrow existence with the glorious possibilities of that human nature which they share? Depend upon it, you would gain unspeakably if you would learn with me to see some of the poetry and the pathos, the tragedy and comedy, lying in the experience of a human soul that looks out through dull, gray eyes, and that speaks in a voice of quite ordinary tones.—George Eliot.

During the period of American participation in the World War, when fewer than 70,000 fatalities occurred from wounds and sickness in our expeditionary forces of more than 2,000,000 men in France, practically twice that number of people were killed in avoidable accidents in this country. During this same period, when fewer than 300,000 persons were wounded in the war, about 3,000,000 persons were injured from accidents in the United States, most of which might have been avoided.

A certain lurid melodrama had almost reached its conclusion, and the audience was wondering what would happen, when the villain was suddenly confronted by the fair-haired hero.

"Ah," the villain scowled, folding his arms across his chest, "you again, eh? And what is it now, you—"

The hero raised a protesting hand. "Sir Jauper," he exclaimed in threatening tones, "you may have reduced me to beggary, broke the heart of the girl I love, and murdered my aged mother—but beware! Don't try me too far!"

Science Teacher—"Name some liquid that won't freeze."
Bright Pupil—"Hot water."—Answer.

ANCIENT CITY IN GREECE, LONG LOST, AGAIN FOUND

Johns Hopkins Savant Discovers Site of Olynthos, Razed 2,500 Years Ago.

Baltimore, Md.—Dr. David M. Robinson, professor of archeology in Johns Hopkins university, has located the lost site of the city of Olynthos, which was razed by Philip of Macedonia 400 years before Christ, and the exact location of which has been for centuries uncertain.

Backed by cabled authority from a group of Baltimore men, most of whom are connected with the Baltimore Museum of Art, Doctor Robinson has put 100 men at work excavating the site. A cable received recently by Dr. Hugh Young announces that the discovery may be even more important than was anticipated.

The message, signed by Doctor Robinson, reads: "Excavation of Olynthos begun. Fortress, granaries, wine press, many statues, large head of Silenus, many vases, important Greek villa, coins, already found. Most promising. One hundred refugees employed."

It was only on January 15 of this year that Doctor Robinson, who is on a year's leave of absence from the university for study and research in Greece and Macedonia, located the site of Olynthos, which was destroyed nearly 2,500 years ago. On that date he wrote to Doctor Young that "I think I have located the site of ancient Olynthos, about which Demosthenes wrote many orations. It was the most important place in Macedonia from the Sixth century B. C. to Roman days."

Doctor Robinson wrote that the site was located only about forty kilometers from Salonika, and that he expected to get, almost at once, a permit from the Greek government to begin excavations. If possible he wished to press the digging to May 20, he said, after which date climatic conditions are not good.

The cost of the work for the first year he estimated at $10,000. He asked Doctor Young if Baltimore would undertake to finance it; at the start some $5,000 would be necessary, Doctor Young immediately cabled authorization for the expenditure of $5,000, and then took up the matter of raising the money with a group of friends.

Furious Bride Balks at Rules and Leaves Altar

St. Clairsville, Ohio.—Because he laid down ten rules of conduct for his prospective bride as they stood before the church altar, Nick Masciarelli is still a bachelor.

Masciarelli chose the last minute to tell Miss Rose Deveyck what would be expected of her after she became his wife. Hearing the last of the ten rules Miss Deveyck cast away her bridal veil, hurried her courage of flowers at the man and stormed out of the church.

His bride, in the opinion of the would-be bridegroom, should be prepared to wash all the dishes, have meals ready on time, should not walk the streets at night and avoid looking at other men. There were other rules less important.

Now Masciarelli is trying to get his money back for the marriage license.

"This is a lesson to those who would get married," he said. "Always explain just what you are going to require of your wife before buying the license."

Skeletons Remind of Fierce Battle in 1760

Berlin.—Numerous skeletons recently found in the densely populated southeastern district of Berlin in the course of making excavations for the subway are believed to be the remains of soldiers killed during the Seven Years' war.

Colonel Noel of the old Imperial army, who is considered an authority on Prussian history, is of the opinion that the skeletons are the relics of a noteworthy battle that took place between the combined Russian and Austrian forces and the Prussians, October 8, 1760. At that time this spot was far beyond the confines of Berlin and one of the gateways guarding the city which was desperately defended by the Prussian troops against the repeated assaults of the Russo-Austrian army.
