Jack Graham Seeks Re-Election

I, Jack Graham, announce my candidacy for the office of Justice of Peace, Precinct 1, of Eastland County. I have served in this office for the past ten years at the will and pleasure of the voters of Precinct 1. I come to you now asking for your continued support and vote that I may serve you for another term. I stand on my past record for fairness and impartiality in the cases that I hear. "A fair shake" in all matters with equal application of law is what I pledge to you the citizens of Precinct 1. I feel my past history of service to this County reflects my inner desire to continue to serve now and in the future.

Jack Graham - Justice of Peace Precinct 1

My involvement for over 45 years in the Eastland Fire Department, 20 as Chief leading the Department. I have served as President of the North Central Texas District of the State Fireman's and Firemarshalls Association. Served as Fire Marshall in Eastland, as well as President of the Bowling League in Eastland. I retired from Victor Cornelieus Menu's after 45 years of employment. The Justice of the Peace Election 1992 is work that I have really enjoyed. The daily demand and work load as well as emergency actions all hours of the night, weekend and holidays have really been a challenge and I derive satisfaction of doing the best that I can for citizens and people passing through this county.

I am a lifelong resident of Eastland County, I am married to Francis Revels Graham of whose family is from Gorman. I have 3 children and 3 grandchildren.

The recent events of new York City, Noble, Georgia and closer to home, Throckmorton County, reemphasize the need to stay current on laws governing these terrible tragedies. To this end I have strived to remain current through yearly classes and seminars, even exceeding what is required in order that I may not only meet the minimum but provide the maximum level of service that I can to our citizens. Based on this, I feel that I am the best qualified candidate for this office and ask for your vote in the Democratic Primary of 2002.

Pump-Up Your Home's Energy Savings

(HIT)-When it comes to cooling your home this summer, there is one appliance that can help you do it most efficiently - the electric heat pump, according to Edison Electric Institute.

If you are in the market for a heat pump, you should know about recent high-tech improvements that have made them even more energy efficient:

- Electronic, variable-speed fans - continually adjust the compressor's speed to match the desired cooling or heating demand
 - Two-speed compressors - operate at lower speeds most of the time for energy savings
 - Scroll compressors - only two moving parts, making them more efficient and quieter, and giving them a longer life.
 - Integrated heat pumps - can heat water directly for energy efficient water heating.
- For more information about technology advances in electric heat pumps, contact your electric utility company.

Farm Bill Action

With the Senate having finally passed their version of a farm bill, preparations are under way between the House and Senate to prepare for a conference to work out the differences between these two very different pieces of legislation.

The Senate version is more than 1,300 pages long, compared to less than 400 pages in the House bill, and this conference is not going to be an easy one.

The House version of this bill seeks to improve the competitiveness of American farmers and ranchers, strengthen the rural economy, and preserve and protect environmental resources.

It also attempts to provide adequate nutrition to Americans in need, expand markets, promote food security abroad, and continue to ensure an adequate supply of safe, affordable food and fiber for the nation.

On February 28, House conferees were appointed to manage the conference committee and oversee the passage of the bill. As the ranking member of the House Agriculture Committee, I was named a conferee, and I look forward to beginning negotiations so that we can complete a farm bill as soon as possible.

The big question everyone is asking these days is just how long it will take to complete a farm bill. Estimates range from three weeks to six months.

My own preference would be to complete the farm bill by March 22 and have it at the White House for the president's signature by Easter.

It is my hope that we will have a new farm bill by the March 22 Easter recess, but the completion time is difficult to predict.

Among the major differences that must be resolved are the following: payment limitations, the duration of the farm program, and how much money will be directed toward conservation and nutrition versus crop production.

The House version caps farm subsidy payments at $550,000, whereas the Senate bill places a limit at $275,000. The House bill renews farm programs through 2011 with a ten-year bill, while the Senate bill renews programs through 2006.

Last year's budget earmarked $73.5 billion in additional agriculture spending over the next ten years. While the House bill spreads this amount evenly over ten years, the Senate farm bill spends 61% of this amount in the first five years.

The White House would like to see an even level of spending over this ten-year period and prefers the House bill. While the House farm bill would spend more for commodity support, the Senate bill proposes to spend more on conservation and nutrition programs.

Another issue that must be resolved is a Senate provision that would ban packer ownership of livestock 14 days prior to slaughter.

The administration has still not taken a position on some of the controversial issues in the Senate bill and, hopefully, they will establish a clear position in the near future.

USDA Financial Report Paints Positive Picture

According to USDA's latest agricultural income and finance summary, farmers and farm lenders are in better financial shape than some folks had originally thought.

The report does not take into consideration any of the additional federal payments that farmers will receive as a result of a 2002 farm bill, indicating that the financial picture this year could be even better than expected.

Between October 1998 and August 2001, Congress has enacted emergency farm assistance legislation five times to increase farm spending.

The House and Senate farm bills would add at least $7.35 billion to spending for this year, and the Senate bill includes an additional $2.4 billion in disaster payments.

There could also be some other good news for the U.S. farm industry by way of increased trade with China. According to USDA's Economic Research Service, China's admission to the World Trade Organization should boost the U.S. farm economy by about $800 million annually through 2009.

In addition, U.S. agricultural exports should increase by $1 billion per year.

U.S. Producers Losing Out on Sales to Cuba

On the subject of U.S. trade potential, more news has been released about the impact of the U.S. trade embargo that was imposed on Cuba more than forty years ago.

U.S. producers are losing up to $1.24 billion a year in potential export sales as a result of the economic sanctions that have been in place against Cuba, according to a report released by the Cuba Policy Foundation.

The report was prepared with the assistance of two Texas A&M agricultural economists and indicated that the overall U.S. economy is losing an additional $3.6 billion per year in related economic input as a result of the embargo.

Cuba has a population of just over 11 million, and its close proximity to the U.S. would mean lower transportation costs, providing an advantage for U.S. producers.

Although exports of food were exempted from the Cuba embargo in late 2000, no public or private U.S. financing was allowed for the sales. The Senate farm bill would overrule that prohibition and allow private financing.

The livestock, grain and cotton states, including Texas, would benefit most from sales to Cuba. Stay tuned for further developments in this area.

An Open Letter to the 17th Congressional District from Congressman Stenholm

Last fall, I was very grateful to newspapers across the 17th Congressional District for helping me notify their readers and my constituents about the interruption to Congressional mail service which resulted from the mid-October anthrax attacks. I thought an update of our situation would be helpful to everyone.

I had hoped that matters would return to normal by now but I'm sorry to say that the backlog of mail sent to all Government offices in Washington continues. Even though all Congressional offices have re-opened following the anthrax clean-up, regular postal mail and special delivery packages continue to be significantly delayed by new screening and security measures.

This week, I received December mail along with some more recently postmarked letters; mail is not necessarily arriving in chronological order. Someone mailing a letter from Texas to my Washington office should expect a three-week delivery time at an absolute minimum and it could be much longer until I actually receive it.

That's why I continue to encourage folks wanting to contact me to use one of several other options.

First, constituents can call (202) 225-6605 or fax (202) 225-2234 me at my Washington office. Those with Internet access are encouraged to send an e-mail through my web site at www.house.gov/stenholm.

Also, each of my three District offices are fully staffed and able to respond to or re-direct all inquiries. Those offices are:

I continue to appreciate your patience and understanding as we strive to maintain our open door policy under these new circumstances. I depend on the advice and counsel I receive from constituents and hope everyone will continue to contact me about those issues which concern them.

Sincerely yours,
Congressman Charlie Stenholm

IT'S A QUESTION OF TRUST

Re-elect Mike Siebert Criminal District Attorney

In my recent statement in the paper, I asked you to be aware of misleading statistics. It has now been claimed that Eastland County is the least productive county in the state with regard to dispositions of felony criminal cases. It is more than about the numbers; it is about TRUST.

The Facts

In 2001 there were 112 felonies filed in the 91st District Court, with 98 felony dispositions. The numbers can be verified with the Court Coordinator at 254-629-1797. It is more than about numbers; it is about INTEGRITY.

The primary responsibility of the Criminal District Attorney is not solely to convict but to see that justice is done. I am doing my best to fulfill that obligation. It is more than about numbers; it is about TRUTHFULNESS.

I WOULD APPRECIATE YOUR VOTE ON MARCH 12, 2002

TRUST - INTEGRITY - TRUTHFULNESS

Call For Entries: New Photo Safari Awards Competition Starts

The Safari Club International Foundation (SCIF), an organization dedicated to wildlife conservation, outdoor education and helping people in need today announced it's seeking entries for the inaugural Photo Safari Competition. The new photography contest gives professional, amateur and youth outdoor photographers capturing the beauty and majesty of nature through the iris of a camera, chances to win $6,000 in prize money and have their work shared with tens of thousands of sportsmen and sportswomen.

Adults and children are encouraged to submit color or black-and-white images in the following categories: Predatory Animals, Prey Animals, Sportsmen, Sportswomen, Outdoor Families, and Natural Settings. A blue-ribbon judging committee of newspaper and magazine editors will review entries received and award three Paragon Awards (and prize money; professional, $400; amateur, $300; youth, $300) per category. The judges also will recognize standout submissions with Gold, Silver, and Bronze awards in as many categories as appropriate.

"Every year, tens of millions of outdoor enthusiasts achieve a greater respect, appreciation, and love of nature simply by experiencing it firsthand," said Barbara Strawberry, Safari Club International Vice President and President of the SCIF Sables group funding the new competition. "We've established this Photo Safari contest to show it's the trip into the outdoors -- whether it be in North America or abroad -- that's so enriching. We're going to celebrate excellent field photography, to encourage families to make time in the outdoors a priority." Deadline for Photo Safari submissions is July 1, 2002. Prints, if not professional quality, must be as close to professional quality as possible, and no smaller than 5-by-7 inches. Slides (35mm or larger) and all large-format, high-resolution digital formats will be accepted. The SCIF Sables is sponsoring this competition to promote wildlife conservation, and to enrich understanding of the great outdoors enjoyed by more than 15 million sportsmen and sportswomen in North America. "We've intentionally structured the Photo Safari contest so children, adults and professional photographers aren't competing against each other," added Strawberry, "and are expecting to receive a great variety of submissions."

Winning photos will be published in SCI's Safari Times monthly newspaper (circ. 42,000). They also will be displayed at the 2003 SCI Hunters' Convention in Reno that will be attended by an expected 15,000 sportsmen; in the International Wildlife Museum visited by more than 70,000 patrons each year; on the popular SCIF Web site, www.SafariClubFoundation.org. A single $25 entry fee is required for each professional and amateur submitting up to six entries. All youth entries are free. All entries must be received by the Safari Club International Foundation, 4800 West Gates Pass Road, Tucson, AZ 85745-9490 by July 1, 2002, and entrants agree that the Foundation and Safari Club International have the rights to use images submitted in print, broadcast, and electronic media without charge. For a more comprehensive description of SCI's First Annual Photo Safari, to obtain an entry form or to view the 2002 Photo Safari Rules, contact SCI/SCIF Marketing and Public Relations at 520-620-1220, ext. 337; E-mail a request to photos@safariclub.org; or visit the contest Web page at <http://209.234.180.134/Photo/Welcme1.asp>.

Natural Gas Is Available

(HIT)-Ample supplies of natural gas at competitive prices will be available to meet the future energy needs of the United States, according to the American Gas Association.

Natural gas is the consumers' best energy choice because of the excellent long-term supply outlook and the price advantage it holds over competing energies, AGA says.

This, combined with high-efficiency natural gas appliances and equipment, makes it possible for consumers to save money on energy bills, according to AGA.

America has at least a 63-year supply of natural gas at current production levels, based on the latest report of the Potential Gas Committee of the Colorado School of Mines. That report says the total U.S. recoverable natural gas resources are 1,258 trillion cubic feet.
