Corporation Taxes Raised By U.S. Senate Amended Bill Would Yield 600 Millions In Revenue

WASHINGTON, (AP)—Moving toward a final vote on the big revenue bill, the senate Thursday held provisions in raising taxes on gifts to a point where they would be three-quarters of the estate tax rates. The latter levies are payable on transfers of estate after death. Gift taxes are applicable to transfers of property before death. As the bill stood shortly before final passage, experts figured it would raise the following additional annual revenue: Capital stock and excess profits taxes—$95,000,000. Increase in estate tax rates—$22,000,000. Changes in income tax structure—$85,000,000. Administrative changes on depreciation—$85,000,000. Capital gains and losses—$30,000,000. Consolidated returns abolished—$150,000,000. Personal holding company tax—$20,000,000. Exchanges and reorganizations—$10,000,000. Partnerships—$5,000,000. Administrative changes on gas and oil—$18,000,000. Miscellaneous—$20,000,000. Total—$160,000,000. Suspect Makes Escape From Two Officers

Prisoners Wanted On Burglary Charge Flees Amid Bullet Shower

COLORADO (Special)—Ed Carey, fugitive from St. Louis, escaped from a special officer and marshal of the supreme court of Missouri and dashed to his freedom early Friday morning here. Wanted in St. Louis on a burglary charge, Carey had been returned from California in custody of John M. Dalton, marshal, and Claude R. Welman, special officer. Too high regard for the prisoner's feelings probably resulted in loss of the criminal. Dalton and Welman had allowed Carey to ride without handcuffs. Arriving in Colorado at midnight, they passed at a service station. Carey suddenly made a break for his freedom. Both officers fired at the fleeing man in an attempt to stop him. They declared they made no effort to kill him. No trace of Carey had been found Friday noon. Both Dalton and Welman are past district governors of Lions International in Missouri, the latter being governor when the international convention was held in Chicago. They appeared before the Colorado club Friday and spoke briefly. Rev. R. E. Day returned Thursday from Fort Worth for the annual state Sunday School convention. While there he went to Dallas to see the famous blackface comedians, Amor and Andy, appearing in person.

15 Passengers Lose $500 And Baggage

Greyhound Bus Held Up On Lonely Road Near Weatherford ROBBERS BOARDED BUS AT FT. WORTH Third Man, With Machine Gun, Awaits For Bus In Seclusion

L. B. Williams, local agent for Southland Greyhound Lines, with headquarters in the Crawford hotel, was notified early Friday morning that one of the company buses was held up near Weatherford early Friday morning. No particulars were given to Mr. Williams. He said the bus was due in Mineral Wells at 3 o'clock, and as the robbery occurred near Weatherford, the hold-up probably took place around 2:30 a. m. The bus is due in Big Spring at 9:35 a. m. It was over six hours late at press time this afternoon. The bus, according to Mr. Williams, left Sweetwater this afternoon at 3 o'clock, westbound. It was learned this afternoon Tom Cooley, Athens, Texas, lost $150 in money and Mr. and Mrs. Jack Kendall, Wrennwood, Oklahoma, saved over $200 by dropping the money back of their seat. They were robbed of $9 left in their pocketbook. The bus was held in Mineral Wells for several hours this morning, while company officials made a check up.

FORT WORTH (AP)—Two men robbed fifteen passengers of a westbound transcontinental bus of $500 in cash and their baggage on a lonely road near Weatherford and fled with a machine-gun companion from a secluded spot. The men boarded the bus at Fort Worth and a short time later forced the driver to turn the machine into a side road, where a third man was waiting. Two men in the bus drew pistols, threatened the driver and looted the passengers of all their cash. A third man covered the bus with a machine gun. After forcing the passengers to drop all baggage on the ground, the robbers ordered the bus driver to move on. Officers found no trace of the trio early Friday.

NOW WE FEEL EFFECTS OF MACHINE POLITICS: All chickens, sooner or later, come home to roost. Sometimes the manner of their return is rather painful.

And since the ordinary city was governed so clumsily and so inefficiently that it just barely got by in prosperous times, the arrival of this delayed second wave means little less than catastrophe.

Here's a sample case—a large manufacturing city in the middle west. The treasury is bare, tax delinquencies are approaching astronomical proportions, fire and police services are being reduced below the safety level, hospitals and other health services are being skeletonized.

Bearing in mind that this is by no means an exceptional case, in the America of 1934, the question most of us are interested in is, Why and how did all this happen?

The answer is pretty clear, we brought it all on ourselves, by putting up with the kind of rotten municipal politics that could not possibly carry on a city government through a storm.

Now we're getting what we might have foreseen, if we had looked at things realistically. Our chickens are just coming home to roost.

PRESIDENTIAL APPROVAL: The president's letter to Senator Fletcher endorsing the pending stock exchange control bill at least ends the uncertainty about the administration's attitude toward this measure.

That uncertainty has become a large and a rather difficult factor in the situation. There were rumors that the president's official family was divided as to wisdom of the measure.

Its friends in congress seemed loath to make a determined fight for it until they knew whether there was any truth in the report that Mr. Roosevelt would be content with the so-called weakened bill.

Now they know. The President wants teeth in the bill, and plenty of them. Whether or not he gets what he wants, at least the cloud of uncertainty has been dispelled.

ENCOURAGING PRECEDENT: The settlement of the threatened auto strike is one of the most encouraging things that has happened in the industrial sector for a long time.

Here was a case in which the clash of the contending factions seemed to parallel that storied collision of the irresistible force with the immovable object. Each side was absolutely determined not to yield.

SPORT SLANTS

One of the few shifts that have stood up under the wear and tear of the major league training route is the comeback of Travis (Stonewall) Jackson.

His replacement of the colorful Bloddy Ryan was the biggest single development in the Giants' camp at Miami Beach.

It was only a year ago that Manager Bill Terry was basing his somewhat slim hopes of a first division berth upon Jackson's ability to play regularly at short.

previous winter and Ryan got the call. The way the ex-Holy Cross star came through, playing a heroic role in the pennant drive, is familiar baseball history.

TRAVIS SEES FULL YEAR: I talked with Jackson during the earlier workouts at Miami Beach, not long after he had been told by Terry that he had regained his old job.

"I don't want to be over-confident about my legs but I really feel they are back in good enough shape to carry me through the full season," said the Arkansas Traveler.

Game Battle Gives Team 7 To 0 Victory

Team Captained By Flowers Wins; Spring Grid Work Done

Fighting and slashing for every inch they made, the Steer intra-squad tilt took on the appearance of a grudge battle Thursday afternoon as the team captained by Bob Flowers walloped down Cor-dill's gridders, 7 to 0.

In spite of the fact that some of the boys didn't know their assignments as well as they should, it was a torrid fracas, with every man on the field putting up a stubborn fight.

The Flowers aggregation started its scoring march by making connections on a couple of passes, and went to within one-half yard of the goal line on the fourth down, but in too close to get out of the squeeze with the Flowers bunch.

Here's FOOD NEWS for Thrifty Shoppers!

Old-Fashioned Is New-Fashioned Now In Clothes, Furniture And Cookery

Antiques—real ones—have always been sought after by collectors and decorators but now it's not only the old but the merely old of grandmother's day that has become fashionable. What was old-fashioned has now become new-fashioned.

Hats look like the nineties, details of frocks look like something out of Godey by Currier and Ives, and even out in Hollywood a famous screen-couple have done the living room in their expensive home in the period of grandmother's day—tidies, whatnots, gilded cupid and all!

The old-fashioned foods too should be in for a revival, and since some of the oldest are some of the best—why not? Grandmother's recipes may have been changed a little to insure success and take advantage of the new discoveries in food, but the old-fashioned remains. Cook them in your shining enamel stove, test with thermometers and serve on black glass—the old-fashioned flavor will cling round them still, if the recipe is right.

Old-Fashioned Gingerbread
Even some of the prepared and packaged mixtures have retained the old-time flavor. Gingerbread mix, for instance, has recently been put on the market which is made from the 200-year old recipe of George Washington's mother. You need only add a cup of water to the contents of the package and bake, but the result is genuine old-fashioned gingerbread like grandmother made (if she was a very good cook) with all its goodness.

Grandmother's Cakes
Some of the finest cakes grandmother made have been forgotten in the rush for new recipes. Who remembers jam cake, potato cake, apple sauce cake? If you don't or if you do, make yourself one.

Mrs. Wheeler's Apple Sauce Cake
2 cups flour
1 teaspoon soda
1 teaspoon cinnamon
1-4 teaspoon cloves
1-2 teaspoon salt
1-2 pkg. pasteurized dates
1-2 cup shortening
1 cup sugar
1 egg
1 cup hot, thick apple sauce
Mix and sift the dry ingredients. Slice the dates and mix through the dry ingredients with the finger tips. Cream the shortening; add the sugar slowly. Add the beaten egg, then the dry ingredients and the apple sauce which has been strained, alternately. Pour into a cake pan which has been lined with paper, or well oiled and dusted with flour. Bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees F.) for forty minutes.

Granny's Marble Cake
4 tbsps. butter
2 cups cake flour
1-4 teaspoon salt
1 egg
1 teasp. vanilla
2 1-2 teps. baking powder
1 cup sugar
3-4 cup milk
1 sq. chocolate

A PAIR OF $25,000,000 SMILES

Favorite Foods Of Comic Strip Characters Inspire Some Good Recipes

Red fruit coloring
Place butter in a mixing bowl; set in warm place to soften (it may be melted but should not be hot while preparing the pans and measuring other ingredients. Sift the flour, sugar, salt, and baking powder into the bowl with butter. Add remaining ingredients. Beat vigorously until smooth. Divide batter into three equal parts, putting each in separate bowl. Melt chocolate and add to batter in one bowl; to second batter add fruit (or vegetable) coloring to make a delicate pink; leave third batter plain. Place in baking tin alternating spoonfuls of plain, pink and chocolate batters. Bake in moderate oven (325-350 degree F.) 45 to 60 mins.

Old-Time Filled Cookies
1 3-4 cups flour
1 1-2 teps. baking powder
1-2 cup fat
1-2 cup sugar
1 egg yolk
1-2 teasp. vanilla
2 tbsps. milk
Sift the flour and baking powder together. Cream the fat; stir

What Skippy or L'il Orphan Annie eat may be of little moment in your life, but it's very important to a vast number of their ardent followers. The children admit their fondness for the comic strip and the "funnies"; some adults do not. But what these mythical characters like to eat is known to millions and it's time some recipe were provided!

Pop Eye, belligerent soul, thrives on spinach (There's one to imbore on your youngsters!) The love of his side-kick, Mr. Wimpy, for hamburgers is well known. Joe Palooka votes for ice cream cones.

Doughnuts For The Nebbs
Max, in "The Nebbs" likes doughnuts, big fat ones with powdered sugar on them. You'll like these too:

3 eggs
1 cup sugar
2 tbsps. mazola
1 cup milk
4 1-2 cups flour
2 teps. baking powder
1 teasp. salt
1 teasp. grated nutmeg
Beat together the eggs, mazola and sugar. Add milk in thirds alternately with 2 cups of flour which has been sifted with the salt, baking powder and nutmeg. Add enough more flour to make a soft dough. Roll out on board to 1-2 inch thickness. Cut with doughnut cutter and fry in deep mazola heated to 370 degrees F. Drain on unglazed paper and sprinkle with powdered sugar. 3 dozen doughnuts.

Sandy, and Skippy
L'il Orphan Annie doesn't seem particular about her meals, as long as Sandy has a bone; The Katzenjammer Kids will eat almost anything, as long as it's against the Cap'n's wishes. Skippy, the eternal boy, likes what every small boy likes, so these cookies should please him:

2 1-2 cups flour
1-4 teasp. salt
2 teps. baking powder
1-2 teasp. cinnamon
1 egg
1-2 cup shortening
1-2 pkg. pasteurized dates
1 cup brown sugar
2 sq. chocolate, melted
1-2 cup milk
Sift the flour, salt, baking powder and cinnamon. Work in the dates, (pitted and sliced) with the finger tips. Add the sugar gradually to the creamed shortening, then the beaten egg and the melted chocolate. Add the dry ingredients alternately with the milk. Drop the mixture by rounded teaspoonfuls in sugar gradually; stir in unbeaten egg yolk and the vanilla. Stir in about 1-4 of the flour; stir in the milk, then the remainder of the flour. Pack the mixture firmly in butter cartons or shape dough into rolls about 2 inches in diameter, wrap in heavy waxed paper, twisting the ends. Chill molded dough thoroughly until very hard. While mixture is chilling, prepare filling:

1-2 cup pasteurized dates (sliced)
1-2 cup raisins
1-2 cup figs, sliced.
1 tbsps. white karo
1 tbsps. butter
2 tbsps. orange or lemon juice
1-4 cup chopped nuts
Put all ingredients except nuts in a saucepan; stir over low heat until thick paste is formed; cool, stir in nuts. Cut chilled dough in thin slices. Place a level teaspoonful of filling in the center of each slice; cover with second slice; press edges together firmly with finger tips; prick top slice with a fork to allow steam and air to escape. With a spatula lift cookies on to oiled baking sheet. Bake on top shelf in moderate oven (375 degrees F.) 10 mins.

two inches apart on a well-oiled baking sheet or inverted pan. Bake in a moderate oven (375 degrees F.) for ten to fifteen minutes. About 26 cookies.

At The Gumps
At the home of Andy Gump they eat a lot of soup, judging from the frequency with which Tilda, the skulking maid, cries "Soup's on!" What kind of soup Andy likes best is not depicted by the artist but this should be relished by everybody.

Open a can of the French style onion soup and heat. Place a tusk or round of well-toasted bread in each bowl and pour the soup over it, piping hot. Sprinkle the top generously with grated Parmesan cheese and serve.

Cake Lillums and Rosie Can Make
Archie does not like the cake his light o' love makes for him, for Rosie can't make good cake. Harold Teen, when not imbibing one of Pop's specialties, has to struggle with the concrete cake Lillums turns out. Here's a recipe for Rosie and Lillums that anyone can make:

2 cups pastry flour
1-4 teasp. salt
2 teps. baking powder
1-2 cup butter
1-4 cup orange juice
1 cup sugar
1-2 pkg. pasteurized dates
3 eggs
1 teasp. orange rind
Sift dry ingredients; cut the cup of dates in eights; mix dates through the flour with the finger tips. Cream butter. Add sugar gradually, then beaten eggs and grated orange rind. Stir in flour alternately with the orange juice.

Four the batter into a loaf pan which has been greased and lined with greased paper. Bake in a very moderate oven (325-350 degrees F.) for 50 to 60 minutes. 1 large loaf.

The Delight of Mickey Mouse
Minnie's fudge seems to be the fondest thing Mickey Mouse "is of." In fact he can hardly wait for it to cool. Here's a recipe for Minnie and for you, a new kind of delicious fudge:

3-4 cup white karo
2 cups sugar
2 1-2 sqs. cooking chocolate
1-4 teasp. salt
1-2 cup milk
1 teasp. vanilla
3-4 cup nutmeats

Combine the ingredients (except nuts and vanilla) in the order given, and cook until the mixture forms a soft ball when tried in cold water (238 degrees F.); cool until tepid, add vanilla and nuts (chopped) and beat steadily until thick and creamy. Pour into a medium-sized oiled pan, and when almost cold, cut in squares.

CONFUSION ENDED ON BRAN

New Ruling Makes Labels Accurate

To protect the buying public, the United States Food and Drug Administration has advised that every package of cereal labeled "Bran" state on the label exactly what it contains.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is labeled "ALL-BRAN Deliciously Flavored with Malt, Sugar and Salt," a statement which describes the product fairly and honestly.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN has won millions of friends because it corrects most types of common constipation safely and pleasantly.

However, ALL-BRAN is not a "cure-all." Certain types of intestinal disorders should be treated only on a physician's advice.

When you buy a bran cereal, for the relief of constipation, read the wording on the package. The facts are there! Make sure by asking for Kellogg's ALL-BRAN. It furnishes "bulk" in a form for satisfactory results.

At all grocers. In the red-and-green package. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

Coahoma School Children Examined In Health Crusade; Big Spring To Conclude County Survey By Schools

Survey of Howard County school children for the Prophylactic toothbrush company under the auspices of the Rotary Club was completed Friday morning, with the exception of the city schools, when dentists and doctors examined 262 children in the Coahoma school.

Dr. C. E. Richardson and C. D. Baxley were the dentists and Dr. P. W. Malone and T. B. Hoover medical doctors. Shins Phillips accompanied the party.

Coahoma school children ran true form in regard to teeth and tonsils. A throat in which the tonsils provided they hadn't already been cut out—were in perfect condition was rare.

Most of the children registered okay for heart and lungs and the worst things with most of their ears was lack of washing.

Few children had perfect teeth. Cavities were the most common fault; one little ten-year-old had six. Occasionally a dentist found a mouth in which the teeth did not even need cleaning, but this was rare; there were even some stages of pyorrhea shown among the youngsters.

The first-graders were deathly afraid of the doctors. They had absolutely no idea of what was going to happen to them and apparently could not tell by watching those being examined that the examinations were not painful.

Some of them cried so they could not travel an eight of a mile and struck an overhead telephone cable, severing the wires.

not be examined; others insisted that their parents objected.

The objection of the parents was the most puzzling thing, the doctors considered. Although the doctors knew and stated that the examinations would be brief and would bring to light only conditions in immediate need of relief, a large percentage of the children—not only in Coahoma but in other schools—insisted that their parents did not want them examined.

Some of the mothers even went so far as to examine the children beforehand and write on the cards what was the condition of their teeth and throat and lungs. In only a few cases did these agree with the findings of the doctors, and in all cases the mothers considered the child in better health and condition than the doctors found him.

The findings showed that 80 percent of the children had bad tonsils and 60 percent of them needed some form of dental attention. Some of this could be remedied by brushing said the dentists, especially if the child would have a good cleaning first; some, such as cavities irregularities, irritated gums, needed treatment and then continuous brushing for the sake of good health.

After the examinations the children were given a talk explaining that the Prophylactic Co. was giving away a tube of tooth paste to each child and that 25 and 35 cent toothbrushes were being sold for a dime.

The same company will conduct another health crusade next year to discover what—if any—improvement in the child's health has been made.

This crusade will be conducted in the Big Spring schools next week.

LINKED IN REPORTS OF ROMANCE

Despite official denial, it was learned from persons closely associated with Scandinavian royalty that announcement of the engagement of Crown Prince Frederick of Denmark to the beautiful Princess Ingrid of Sweden might be expected to follow the return of King Gustaf, Ingrid's grandfather, to Stockholm from his vacation on the Riviera. Midland Seeks Painting, "The Trail Herd" Promised Local Museum, If Big Spring Does Not Raise Money

Midland is now after the painting of Mr. Caylor's "The Trail Herd," an exhibit at Albert Fisher's store. A Midland woman called on Mrs. Caylor this week after seeing the picture and asked if Mrs. Caylor would sell it to her, if Big Spring did not raise the money for it.

Although Mrs. Caylor is asking $500 from Big Spring, she quoted it to Midland at $1500. The Midlander was surprised to find the money not already raised here, when she learned the details. Midland would raise that sum in half a day, she said. To which there was no reply.

An art lover of Sonora, Mrs. Hoover, who is already well known to club women in Big Spring because of her activities in the district club meetings, wrote Mrs. Caylor asking to buy the same painting and another. She did not know then that the picture had been offered the Big Spring museum.

Mrs. J. L. Thomas, chairman of the committee to raise money for the painting in order to start a permanent home for the museum, says that she thinks Big Spring people have been very kind. Few have refused to donate; but the donations have been small—no half-day business. She and the committee members have no objections to that; in fact they prefer that many small contributions be given than few large ones, because the picture will belong to all of Big Spring.

The following have donated toward the Caylor painting this week: R. T. Piner, George L. Wilke, W. H. Holman, A. G. Hall, B. F. Robbins, Cameron Lumber Co., Linck's Groceries, Cash Store, Big Spring Laundry, W. G. Hayden, T. E. Jordan Co., L. S. McDowell and Son, Cathy Implement Co., Courtesy Service Station, A. H. Bugge Grocery Co., Marvin Hull Motor Co., J. N. Caudry, W. S. Ross, Dairyland Creamery, Lee Porter.

Mrs. W. E. Carnrike, A. C. Walker, Mrs. J. E. Brigham, H. E. Devensport, V. V. Strahan, L. A. Talley, Robinson and Sons Grocery, Ruth Edwards McDowell.

Special Train Bearing Texans Off For Capital

DALLAS, (AP)—A special train bearing a party of nearly 100 Texas publishers, editors and business men pulled out of Dallas Thursday night for the middle west and east.

The train is due to reach Washington next Tuesday, where a luncheon in honor of President Roosevelt is planned. That evening a Texas banquet has been arranged, with Vice President Garner and members of the cabinet invited to attend.

Jesse H. Jones will preside. Among the probable speakers are the vice president, Senators Sheppard and Connally, and Rep. R. Ewing Thomson of El Paso, president of the Texas Society in Washington.

The party will present to President and Mrs. Roosevelt various Texas-made and grown products.

13-Year-Old Girl Inherits $4,000,000

BEAUMONT, Tex. (AP)—Mildred Yount, 13-year-old daughter of the late Miles Frank Yount, Beaumont oil magnate who died last November, will receive an estate of $4,000,000—half of the community estate of the oil man and his widow, Pansy Yount—according to an inventory filed with the county clerk Thursday.

Real estate holdings in Texas and Colorado, stocks in many local corporations, the Texas corporation and the Yount-Lee Oil company and miscellaneous holdings, made up the community estate of $8,020,223.52, according to the inventory.

Paintings Of San Angelo Artists Exhibited Here

The Texas Artists Colony of San Angelo, which has been touring the state since March 21st, is already in Big Spring and began its exhibit here this afternoon at the high school.

The exhibit is composed of about 100 paintings by pupils of the school and professional artists. Four artists are accompanying the exhibit and arranging the hanging of the pictures. They are: Xavier Gonzales, Adele Brunet, Ida Jo Fuller, and Helen King Kendall.

Mr. Gonzales is professor of design at Sophia Newcomb, and Tulane University, New Orleans. Miss Brunet is an outstanding Texas artist with studio in Dallas. These are guest artists of the exhibition. Miss Fuller and Mrs. Kendall are San Angelo artists and "sponsors of the school." Mrs. Kendall was among its founders.

The purpose of the exhibit is to create an interest in Texas art and to let prospective pupils know of the work being done by this group and its nationally known instructors. The exhibit is a money-making tour but must be self-sustaining. Therefore admission prices of ten cents for children and 25 cents for adults is being charged. This will go to pay the expense of bringing the exhibit here, and to the West Texas Memorial Museum.

The exhibit will be open to the public this afternoon and this evening and all day Saturday at the high school building. Special lectures will be given by the artists who are with the San Angelo Art Exhibit at 10, 2 and 4 o'clock Saturday at the high school building. The public is specially invited.

W. H. White, mechanical superintendent of the El Paso Times, is the guest of his mother, Mrs. W. T. White and sister, Mrs. George S. Harwell, for several days. Mr. White reports business conditions in El Paso as making steady improvement.

Fred Roman made a business trip to Tohoku last Thursday. Mrs. Jennie Oliver has her daughter of Colorado as week end guest. J. C. Alfred was in Big Spring Tuesday on business.

Mrs. Ben Samples rushed her baby daughter, Bettis Mae, to the doctor at Big Spring Sunday. To our greatest sorrow we learned the little darling is suffering from inflammatory rheumatism. Mrs. Samples is staying a few days with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Smith.

Mr. and Mrs. M. F. Harnett have as their house guest Mrs. Harnett's sister, Miss Haynes of Ft. Worth, Tex. Mrs. Austin Walker.

Chapter 22
MATHILDE AGAIN

"Mathilde... Mathilde... just a minute," said Judith as if trying to recall the name. "Oh yes, now I remember, he was the gentleman who left town so hurriedly when the last election scandal was being investigated... something about buying blocks of votes from itinerant oil field workers."

"Why... why..." spluttered Eathborne.

"You'll forgive me if I'm wrong, but it seems to me I heard something about a matter of five thousand dollars passing between Mathilde and some gentleman with a name similar to yours, Lampere, I believe, provided the money for the—"

"Mrs. Dale, I didn't come here to be insulted," snapped Eathborne. "There are nicer places, aren't there?" Judith said consolingly, "but suggest to Mr. Lampere that next time he send someone not labeled with a cancelled check."

"Are you psychic?" demanded Justin Cunniff pleasantly, in the silence which followed the slamming door.

"No," Judith laughed with the others, "but I have a friend on a newspaper, which is practically the same thing. She came to the door with me and recognized our departed guest. However," and now she spoke seriously, "it means, gentlemen that Lampere will not hesitate to plant his man in our midst to say, or to cause dissension."

"He was more subtle," said one of the new members, "he tried to minimize your importance in such a gentle way we scarcely recognized his intentions."

The rest of the afternoon passed swiftly, and shortly before sundown, Judith drove to the airport where Slim Sanford awaited her. Judith, seeing the tall Texan, thought he seemed slimmer and browner than ever. Even his smile, which usually showed in such a brilliant flash, seemed strained.

"Hello small-Jude, ready to trust your heart 'n hand to me and my ship?"

"Any time, any place," Judith responded.

"If I thought you meant that," retorted Sanford, "I'd head west then south to a neat little spot near Oaxaca where there are no fortunes, platinum blondes, nor heartaches."

"Did you mention Oaxaca or heaven?" queried Judith, breathlessly, puzzled by his manner.

"It would be both... hon in!" He helped her into the tiny cabin, smiled his queer, tired smile and slid into the pilot's seat.

The motor roared, spluttered, then to the rhythm of three motors taking their beat the ship taxied down the runway, nosed up and out.

Judith was on her way to Norman! She had no other thought save a sub-conscious enjoyment of the flight. As a child she had always had the highest, most dangerous swings in her various neighborhoods, and with her father had delighted to spin across some chasm in a cable carriage, suspended above rocky gorges by a web-like line.

Now her enjoyment was double for she was on her way to her husband. She would drive back with him. They would stop at the white farmhouse on the Houston highway for their dinner as they had on their honeymoon, and there would be old-fashioned flowers, stalks and cinnamon pinks along the paths, and fireflies would hold their tiny lanterns against the screened windows. Only of course, it was too early for cinnamon pinks and hollyhocks.

Slim Sanford looked back, saw the smile on her face and switched off the motor so they seemed to float in the sunset—"Small Jude," he said, "I'm sore-tempted."

She winked her nose at him and pointed below. Galveston lay there. The long island, thick at its eastern end and thin at the western, looked like an exclamation point.

He nodded and a few moments later they had come to a smooth landing. "I'll wait here until ten o'clock, in case you want to go back," he said, as he helped her into a cab. "Meet me here or telephone."

"Well... well all right!" Judith was positive she wouldn't need him, but he looked as wistful as a tall, sun-bronzed man could look.

She drove directly to the Galvez, dismissed the cab and waved away the bell boys. For a moment she stood looking at the dining terrace. It was too early in the season for it to be in use, but she and Norman had had such delightful times there on their honeymoon.

She started to turn, and in turning her eyes caught two figures seated at a window table in the dining room. Shocked, she scurried along the footpath to the point just below. She looked in.

There sat her husband, Norman, talking and laughing with Mathilde Bevin. She had pushed a cherry parrot to one side and was leaning forward for him to light her cigarette. The flare of his lighter illuminated their faces.

Judith stood staring at the window, too shocked to move. There was something in the intimacy of Norman lighting Mathilde's cigarette that lingered after the flare had died away.

Mathilde looked stunning in her mourning. A severe black dinner gown, with loose sleeves caught at the wrists with silver bands, flowing shoulder drapes, suggestive of veils caught at the shoulder with silver bars.

Judith knew that at the very moment other diners in the big room were remembering the news of the day—"Dale may sue wife to regain fortune for former sweetheart." How could he pretend to love his wife, yet dine publicly with Mathilde at a time like this?

She turned from the window and walked to the seawall, but the sight of the lighted area of the pier, recalled too many poignant memories

Sunny Italy for New Fair

Italian Village for New World's Fair Which Opens May 26. Here visitors will see a leaning tower, an ancient Roman temple to Apollo, streets and courts honoring Italian national heroes, and buildings of the handsome architecture for which Italy is noted, all faithfully reproduced from the originals across the sea. It will be on the Chicago Exposition's street of "foreign villages."

of her honeymoon.

She called a cab, sank into the seat and felt again the queer numb feeling which had come with the shock of Big Tom's death. She wouldn't be fooled this time. She wouldn't think of what happened until she reached home. She might as well go there at once, Clia would send her there if she sought refuge any place else.

Sanford was waiting. He helped her out of the cab, took a look at her face, and suggested they fly to Beaumont or Lake Charles for dinner.

Decorated CCC Mess Hall
CHARLESTOWN, R. I. (UP)—The Civilian Conservation Corps mess hall here is perhaps the most artistic in the country. Alexander Krupka, 19, an amateur artist, with the aid of his fellow workers, has painted murals depicting the camp life. He had some of the boys pose for him while he chalked the outlines on wallboard, later painting them in several colors. One shows two men hauling hewn logs, while another pictures a few before an open log fire in the fireplace.

Defense Attorney Aided
ST. CLAIRSVILLE, O. (UP)—Oscar A. Brown, Cleveland, attorney, started court attaches here when he recommended a damage award be granted his opponent in an industrial commission suit. A miner was seeking damages for blindness suffered in a mining accident. Brown heard the man's testimony and refused to offer his own testimony. He said he was convinced the man had been blinded in the accident.

Cleveland Hushes Rag Pickers
CLEVELAND HEIGHTS, O. (UP)—The cacophonous cry of rag scavengers will no longer be heard in this fashionable Cleveland suburb. Councilmen have decreed that all paper and rag collectors must be licensed. It is believed this will end the supposed nuisance. "We don't want our boulevards full of pushcarts," commented City Manager Harry H. Canfield.

May Raise Prairie Chickens
MARION, O. (UP)—The prairie chicken, native of the western plains, soon may be hunted as game in Ohio. This possibility was indicated by results of a test in this area which indicated the bird can be propagated in this section. Ohio conservation agents found that birds released last fall could be located afield, showing that the birds have found the section habitable.

CROWD HEARS DR. WIRT MAKE REVOLUTION CHARGES

This picture shows the packed committee room in Washington where Dr. William A. Wirt (seated at left) told of a Virginia dinner party last September, at which he heard that the "brain trust" planned revolution. Several of the six persons at the party denied his statements. James A. Reed (standing), former fiery senator from Missouri, appeared as Wirt's counsel. (Associated Press Photo)

The fire is about to go on the anvil. That is the coordination of all home-building and financing activities under a single head. Needless to say this super-builder probably will report to the Emergency Council.

A bill pulling all the loose ends into cohesive operation should go to Congress next week. NEC lawyers have been burning midnight oil on the new set-up.

Walker wants primarily to get money into the hands of people who desire to renovate or to build new small-cost homes. Distress mortgages are being handled by the Home Owners' Loan Corporation.

Reports General Johnson will head this new housing drive don't seem to hold water. As long as the General is in public service you will find him at NRA.

A better prospect is John H. Fahey, chairman of the Federal Home Loan Bank Board and the Home Owners' Loan Corporation.

Fahey was brought on from Boston to set these interlocking agencies straight after they got off to a horribly slow start—due largely to an overdose of the spoils system in personnel selection. He has made major strides in a tough assignment.

Assessed—
 Some Wall Street firms have snatched a fifty cent assessment per week on all employees "to fight the Fletcher-Rayburn bill." Even the lowest paid runners are included. Some employees are so unreasonable as not to understand why it's up to them to give until it hurts.

Regulation—
 Iron and steel heads say that an export board is slated for Britain to deal with all foreign orders. The board will handle all orders and regulate the industry so that only enough iron and steel is produced to meet the demand. Competition waste is to be cut down and prices fixed. Wide repercussions are predicted in the industry over here.

Sidelights—
 National Distillers will probably be the first liquor stock to pay a cash dividend. . . . The rate will be around $2.00 a year. . . . Schenley will undoubtedly follow suit. . . . The North German Lloyd has sent over its price publicity expert—Eaton Hodenburg—to try to "create a friendlier atmosphere." (Copyright McClure Newspaper Syndicate)

United—
 You have to look a little deeper to find the causes of United's dole. There are five.

1. The National City influence. The bank's holdings of United by no means amount even to working control but there is a certain community of interest. And bear in mind that National City continues to play the New Deal game straight, place and show.

2. The comparative ease of the unscrambling process. The corporate structure is simple. Each stockholder in United Aircraft will get a proportionate share in all three of the new members—United Air Lines, Boeing Aircraft, Pratt & Whitney. The holding company will bite the dust but nobody will be hurt. Also United Air Lines is eligible to bid for a new contract under its own name. The old franchisees were held in the names of the subsidiaries—National, Boeing, Varney and Pacific.

3. United covers a rich territory and doesn't want to take a chance on losing it by default.

4. There isn't even a problem of taking care of officers and directors who must be eased out because of participation in the "collusion conference." They can simply be transferred to the manufacturing companies. There's nothing in Mr. Farley's ukase to prevent that.

5. Inside estimates indicate that United can make money even if it's paid only the value of the stamps for the mail actually carried.

estates under $20,000, compared with $10,000 in existing law, and graduate up to 60 per cent of those over $10,000,000.

Taxes paid under this schedule are not subject to the 80 per cent credit for similar taxes paid to states. There are two schedules of estate taxes, the present scales running from one to 20 per cent against which the 80 per cent credit is allowed and another from one to 45 per cent on which no credit is permitted. The LaFollette schedule affects only the one to 45 per cent scale.

Notes—
 Two big inflation bills are rushing voleward in the House—one calling for $1,800,000,000 to pay depositors in closed banks and another providing $2,500,000,000 in "new money" to refinance farm mortgages. . . . A showdown vote is due in the Senate on legality of the air mail cancellations. . . . The Stock Exchange control bill has been clipped, shaved and shamed and now brokers can get some of their money back. . . . The House kicks at $125,000,000 added to the tax bill by the Senate and this a campaign year! . . . Auto strikes, coal injunctions and price-fixing squabbles have knocked code compliance silly.

Reagan

Among the first secretaries.

About ten years later the commercial club was replaced with the chamber and Reagan has occupied the presidency of that organization at different intervals.

His chamber of commerce activities are not confined to this city. While spending a year in San Marcos in 1922, he was elected secretary of the commercial body there and continued in the service of that place for a year, finally severing his connections to return to Big Spring and a place in the West Texas National bank, which he helped to organize.

First A Teacher
 He abandoned the teaching profession to go into business, selling out his drug concern to C. W. Cunningham in 1919 after he had received appointment by President Woodrow Wilson as postmaster here.

Record of Fidelity
 "My connections with the bank were such," he recalled, "that my time and energies were more exacting and I did not have as much time to devote to civic enterprise as before." Still there are few men in the city who can boast of as splendid a record of fidelity during the past decade as Reagan displayed to the Chamber of Commerce.

Like the local chamber, Reagan was a member of the regional body before it was known as the West Texas Chamber of Commerce. Its development and history are familiar to him.

Contends For Service
 Reagan is a stickler for his contention that every man in the city should contribute more to the community weifers than simply "to pay his taxes and keep out of jail." Out of the experience of his years he can recall many instances where initiative displayed by those connected with the local commercial organization brought development here that would have otherwise gone elsewhere.

Contrast—
 The contrast in the attitudes of the three major aviation groups towards the cancellation of air mail contracts and subsequent moves to restore them is significant to insiders.

American Airways (Aviation Corp.—Cord) says nothing and says wood. Instead of moaning about losses it has quietly increased its headquarters staff as if to prepare for bigger things ahead. Transcontinental & Western (North American Aviation—General Motors) consistently complains to high heaven about the injustice of it all, mobilizes Lindbergh and Rickenbacker, threatens to sue the government and takes no steps to comply with Postman-

Losses—
 United's stress on its losses since cancellation is taken with a by local experts. It was advisable to paint a gloomy picture to forestall objections from stockholders—whose ascent is necessary to the split-up. There's no truly dominating faction in the company and the directors don't want a proxy battle on their hands.

Transcontinental—
 T. & W. A.'s situation is the reverse of United's in two vital respects. Its corporate structure is infinitely more complicated and can't be unraveled without months of higher mathematics—certainly not in time to qualify for a Farley bid. Also it cannot transfer its "collusion" officers to manufacturing units because its manufacturing business is virtually null and void. So these boys will lose their jobs entirely unless that condition of Farley's edict (or of the Black-McKellar bill) is revoked.

Insiders say these points explain the unremitting stream of hostile publicity from TWA headquarters. The company will be left far behind its competitors unless the pre-cancellation status is restored.

NEW YORK
 By James McMullin

Hostility—
 New York aviation interests don't take the Austin-Barbour-Davis substitute for the Black-McKellar bill very seriously. The most they hope is that it will have a nullance value leading to sweeping modification of the Democratic proposal.

But the airplane boys do count on the House to soften the Senate's measure in their favor. Their sarcasm-to-the-ground department reports intense hostility among many House Democrats to anything favored by Farley (because of patronage arguments). Ask yourself whether the aviation folks will do anything in private to encourage

Beer Election To Be Held In Colorado Apr. 21

COLORADO.—Whether or not 12 beer shall be legally sold in Mitchell county is to be determined Saturday, April 21, in a special referendum election ordered Thursday noon by the county commissioners court. Order for the election was passed after petition had been filed with the court by citizens of Colorado and other communities.

Announcement that the election had been ordered was made by County Attorney Dell Barber. Barber expressed hope that qualified voters would go to the polls and express their wishes on the question, in that verdict to be written at the ballot box be representative of public sentiment.

In the referendum election held Saturday, August 26, last year, Colorado polled a majority of 25 votes in favor of beer. The vote was 310 to 285. Voters of the county, however, turned the proposition down by the ratio of 707 to 450.

But the city turned thumbs down on repeal of the 18th amendment by a lead of 16 votes and in the county as a whole anti-repealists ran up a lead of 317 votes.

Problems of the consumer are closely interwoven with compliance. For weeks Frank Walker has been working quietly, but seemingly effectively, to build himself a national organization qualified to direct these two phases of codified industry.

In the end you may see a new governmental agency designed to absorb both NRA and NEC and carry on as a permanent branch of the federal establishment. Current skirmishing appears to be only to gain the upper hand so long as things are on an emergency basis.

More Prosperity and Less Prestige

It is no mere coincidence that the opposition to certain aspects of the New Deal has grown stronger as recovery has gotten under way. At no time since the depression began have the evidences of improvement been so unmistakable or the prospects for the future so good. Yet there is more complaint than at any time since the president was inaugurated. It is a paradox, which is well worth trying to understand, that the prestige of the New Deal should be declining while prosperity is rising.

The first thing to note, it seems to me, is that the measures which were most severely criticized last spring and last autumn, namely the monetary policy as a whole, are no longer under serious attack. The best proof of this lies in the fact that the most spectacular indictment brought against the administration by the Wirt charges—has been launched by the committee for the nation, the same organization which conducted the propaganda for abandoning the gold standard and for devaluing the dollar. This same organization, which brought Father Coughlin to New York to defend the president's gold policy against Al Smith and the "sound money" men, is bringing Dr. Wirt to Washington to prove that the president is in the hands of communists. Three months ago the Committee for the Nation was regarded in conservative quarters as a group of dangerous heretics. Now, in some quarters, they are regarded as the shock troops of orthodoxy.

The attack is directed against a wholly different sector of the Roosevelt program, against that part of it most particularly which involves the public control of private enterprise. It is the A. A. A. and N. R. A., the Securities Act and the Stock exchange bill, which have drawn the fire of opposition. There is no formidable attack on the balance dollar, on the great expenditures for relief, for P. W. A. and C. W. A. These things have worked and are generally approved, even by those who have theoretical misgivings about them or are critical of aspects of their administration. But the measures which tend to restrict, control, contract, regiment private enterprise are the ures of stimulation, they are ceasing to believe in the controls because they no longer think them necessary. The fear of plenty is subsiding, as it has in every period of revival, and with it the characteristic economic delusion of depression, that everything must be contracted.

I do not mean to suggest that the people are rejecting the whole idea of regulating corporate business. Far from it. What they are rejecting are those controls which restrict productive enterprise. Those controls were a phenomenon of the mood of deflation that everything was overbuilt and that little could be sold. And now that the deflation is being overcome, the mood of enterprise is reviving and measures which obstruct it are unpopular.

In so far as the President and his advisers fail to recognize the significance of the revival of enterprise, which they have done so much to bring about, in so far as they attempt to perpetuate in a period of recovery restrictive measures which were the palliatives of the period of panic depression, they will be losing touch with the realities, and their leadership will become increasingly impaired. Unless they can see that there has been a change of phase in the cycle of affairs, they will find themselves losing prestige as the country gains prosperity.
