Grant Awarded To Gorman For Community Project

Abilene, Texas—The West Central Texas Workforce Development Board is pleased to announce that the city of Gorman has been awarded a $5,000 grant to be applied toward the renovation and update of the city park located in the downtown area. The city park project is the first phase of a downtown revitalization project that was initiated through a community-wide visioning process. The grant was one of seven grants presented on Friday, June 2, 2006 as the culmination of a two-day community planning retreat hosted by the Workforce Board at the MCM Elegante Hotel in Abilene.

Ten communities in the 19-county West Central Texas region were represented at the retreat, and each team received assistance in developing proposals for community development projects. Project proposals and grant requests were presented and reviewed by a panel of evaluators representing the Workforce Board. Based on an evaluation process that also included input from workshop participants, $25,000 was awarded for a variety of projects deemed to have a measurable impact on the economic development of the sponsoring community. According to Mary Ross, Executive Director for the Workforce Board, "Gorman has been working hard over the past several months and has created a community development plan that is both ambitious and results-oriented. We are pleased to be able to assist them, and we look forward to their continued progress."

The West Central Texas Workforce Development Board is one of 28 boards in the state charged with oversight and policy-making responsibility for workforce and training programs in a nineteen county region. Funding for the community development grants was made available by the Board for economic development efforts. Additional funding has been allocated for three board leadership workshops to be held in Coleman, Cisco, and Snyder on June 27-29. The board leadership workshops will be targeted to volunteer board members of chambers of commerce, economic development corporations, hospital boards, school boards, city councils, commissioners courts, and non-profit boards. Additional information on the Board's economic development efforts or services for business customers may be obtained by calling the Workforce Board at (325) 795-4200 or by visiting the website at www.workforcesystem.org

OUR FUTURE'S SO BRIGHT WE'VE GOT TO WEAR SHADES!! Gorman team members David Perry, Cliffa Vaughn, Lori Dodd, Diane Casey, and Tacy Warren make a presentation before WCTWDB panel and a group of their peers for community development funding. Gorman received $5000 toward Downtown Park improvements currently planned.

Senior Citizens News

We met for pot luck on June 7 with 26 present. Martha Rainey called us to order. No business was announced or cards sent. Willow Rice gave the blessing with her nice words.

We had many good dishes, especially salads. They were so tasty in the hot weather. Wish it would end.

On Friday 9 of us met for games and fellowship. Missed Barbara and Max Bush. They will be gone for awhile on vacation. People come on out, its cool in the center.

Tour of the Peanut Country Bike Ride Doubles in Riders

The 7th Annual Tour of the Peanut Country Bike Ride hosted by the Gorman Lions Club and the Gorman Volunteer Fire Department had its best year since its beginning. The first ride, in 1999, was in conjunction with the Peanut Festival and had 84 riders. This year there were 77 registered riders. That number is nearly double last year's entries.

The weather was hotter than usual, but no one seemed to mind. There was lots of water and PowerAde, and a mister hose set up at the Finish area to help re-hydrate the riders. All the participants complimented on the good snacks, nice clean roadways, and the wonderfully friendly and helpful workers.

This year's ride saw riders on all four routes. Local resident Kayce Dodd was the youngest rider at 7 years of age and rode most of the nine mile route with her dad, Robbie Dodd. Other local residents riding were Victor and Karen Pena, and Joe Williams.

This Bike Ride is the major fundraiser of the Lions Club and VFD and raised approximately $3000 this year to be divided between the two organizations and used for community enhancements in a variety of areas.

EDC Talk

June 1 & 2 five local residents of Gorman traveled to Abilene to participate in the West Central Texas Workforce Development Board's Community Development Workshop. Representing our community was GISD Superintendent David Perry, Gorman EDC Board member and community activist Cliffo Vaughn, Gorman GROW Secretary Diane Casey, City Secretary Tacy Warren, and EDC Director Lori Dodd.

Ten towns within the 19-county area WCTWDB serves were invited to come participate. More than 25 towns applied, but those selected alongside Gorman were Aspermont, Cisco, Winters, Lueders, Munday, Ranger, Knox City, Tye, and Brownwood/Early. Each town was to come with a project to develop fully—from planning, financing, all the way through implementation. We were to consider maintenance and financial sustainability of the project, as well as be able to verbalize the economic impact of the project on the community. WCTWDB provided a personal facilitator with each group to assist in its decisions, organization, etc.

At the end of the second day, each community made a presentation to a panel of WCTWDB members and personnel. Each community participant was also allowed to vote for the projects of other communities. After all the presentations were made, votes were tallied and over $25,000 was distributed among the winners. Only three communities received the highest amount awarded of $5000, one of which was GORMAN!

This grant money will be added to the already existing grants from Texas Yes! and Leon-Bosque RC&D Community Improvement funds we received earlier this year. Look for some lovely yet practical improvements to the downtown area—soon!

Super Notes

I hope that everyone is having a wonderful summer. We are certainly staying busy at Gorman ISD. I know that most folks think that we all have the summers off, but for me and several others it is our busiest time of the year. If you missed the graduation ceremony this year, you missed seeing some of the best young people I've ever worked with celebrate a very important event in their life. Congratulations again to the Gorman High School graduates of 2006! Great job!

Last week, I took school board trustees Melinda Harrington, Jeff Seaton, and Larry Thompson to San Antonio to a Texas Association of School Boards training event for them to secure require school board training. In addition to receiving training, it also gives board members an opportunity to get to know each other a little better outside of the school setting. I believe an enjoyable time was had by all.

We held our regularly scheduled board meeting on Monday, June 12, 2006 at 6pm. Board members present were Bobby Rich, Melinda Harrington, Larry Thompson, Jeff Seaton, and Daryl Hirst. Present and giving reports were Superintendent Perry, Principal Reeves, and Counselor Hampton. The only other guest was Richard Rogers, CADCO architect. There was one hour training on open records prior to beginning the regular meeting. This training is required by law for all board members. The meeting began with the reorganization of officers. The board elected to retain the present officers for another year.

The board then approved the regular consent items before receiving the regular reports. Mrs. Hampton reported that she was in the process of getting ready for the TAKS retesting coming up this summer. There will be some tutoring sessions take place for those taking the tests. Mrs. Reeves reported on all the awards her students received and how well the wound up for the year. She also explained to the board that all of the awards that the students received such as prizes and trips to Six Flags were not paid for with taxpayer funds. All of this money is raised through fund raisers, not taxes.

Superintendent Perry's report began by requesting that Mr. Rogers review with the board the floor plan he had developed for new high school classrooms and a gymnasium. After all was said and done, the board asked Mr. Rogers to add a science lab to the classrooms and a book room that could be used as a future corridor in the event of future expansion. It was also discussed that we would have some public meetings to discuss the needs of the district and the proposed facilities in August and/or September. Other topics discussed were:

1. Possibilities for an electronic billboard
 2. That milk and fuel bids would be accepted through July, 5th 2006
 3. House Bill 1
 4. An advocacy position to send to TASB
 5. A shared services agreement with Region 14/First Financial corporation to act as third party administrators for benefits
 6. the budget
- The board then approved:
1. Sate Waivers Application that will allow for more teachers training.
 2. Our contract with Big Country Library Media Cooperative for the 2006-2007 school year.
 3. The District and Campus Improvement plans
 4. A budget amendment allowing for the purchase of kitchen equipment needed for the 2006-2007 school year.
 5. The hiring of Burl Lowery, CPA to perform the required 2005-2006 audit.

The board then approved the hiring of Erin Loper for the East End Special Ed COOP, Samantha Duke as a coach/teacher at the secondary campus, and Stella Casey as an elementary teacher. The board then adjourned at 10:38pm.

If you drive by the football field or if you frequent the track for walking you will notice that it is being resurfaced. Pro Tech out of Tyler, Texas is the company that won the bid a few months ago, but we needed to wait until after the Relay for Life to begin the work. If the substructure is in good shape, we should be back in business pretty quick. Walkers, please be patient!

Remember, it takes community involvement for a school to be successful and you are welcome to get involved at Gorman ISD anytime. This is your school; these are your children; and these children are your future! Your input is always welcome. Come help us shape the future.

Disaster Aid Tops $5.5 Million For Texas Wildfires

$7.2 Million obligated to Texas for public agencies

AUSTIN, Texas – Families and individuals who suffered damage from Texas Wildfires have been approved to receive more than $5.5 million in disaster assistance, including grants from the U. S. Department of Homeland Security's Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA) and loans from the U.S. Small Business Administration (SBA).

Disaster assistance may include grants to help pay for temporary housing, minor home repair and other serious disaster-related expenses not covered by insurance or other sources. Disaster assistance covers basic needs and does not normally compensate applicants for their entire loss. SBA also offers low-interest disaster loans for homeowners, renters and business owners.

The federal disaster declaration covers 22 counties in Texas: Anderson, Bastrop, Caldwell, Callahan, Cooke, Deaf Smith, Eastland, Erath, Gray, Guadalupe, Hood, Hutchinson, Johnson, Kerr, Montague, Palo Pinto, Parker, Potter, Roberts, Tarrant, Wheeler and Wise.

Recovery Services Summary as of close of business June 8, 2006:

- 516 individuals have registered for Individual Assistance.

Continuing Our Energy Leadership

For more than 100 years, starting with the legendary Spindletop oil field near Beaumont, Texas has been a leading energy producer in the U.S. and the world. Now, a page is turning – and Texas is again in the forefront of global energy developments.

Two Texas cities – Odessa and Jewett – are among the 12 national finalists to host the design, construction and operation of "FutureGen," the world's first near-zero-emissions coal-powered generation plant.

FutureGen is a demonstration project launched by President Bush in 2003 to test new technology in refining coal and generating electricity. If successful, FutureGen technologies could help lower energy costs, increase domestic energy resources and eliminate sources of harmful air pollutants.

Last month, the U.S. Department of Energy selected Odessa and Jewett to compete with cities from our nation's leading coal-producing states, including West Virginia, Illinois and Wyoming. The winning site will be announced next summer.

FutureGen may sound complex, but its concept is fairly simple. It uses a chemical process to release the energy from coal – known as gasification – rather than burning the coal to achieve the same result.

More specifically, coal gasification is an innovative way to chemically break down coal using heat and pressure. The chemical reactions produce clean-burning gases that are used to generate electricity as well as other valuable by-products that can be sold for industrial use.

The FutureGen plant will also use technology to capture and safely store harmful carbon dioxide emissions before their release into the atmosphere. The carbon dioxide can be piped to oil fields, where it can then be used to help extract valuable fossil fuels.

FutureGen, and projects like it, represent a scientific attempt to meet our energy needs. By contrast, Texas' previous success in energy often relied on big dreams and a large dollop of good fortune.

The Tyler Morning Telegraph newspaper described how one major East Texas oil field was discovered:

"Columbus Marion 'Dad' Joiner, a man in his 60s, was broke and depressed when he went to sleep along a seawall in Galveston one night in 1926 and had a vision that he would find the biggest oil field in the world in East Texas.

"When he awoke, he sketched the topography of the place he saw in his dream. He later walked and hitchhiked his way to Rusk County and believed he had found that visionary place on Daisy Bradford's land.

"She leased him the land and he drilled three wells and the third one finally came in – and it was the biggest oil field in the world." The field ultimately supplied vast amounts of energy to the Allies in World War II.

Another great believer, Rupert Ricker, a lawyer in Big Lake, picked a spot to drill in Reagan County where local folks just knew that no oil existed. Well, it did after all.

Santa Rita Number 1 came in on May 28, 1923, giving birth to another Texas behemoth, the Big Lake oilfield, and launching production in the legendary Permian Basin. The state has benefited greatly. Over the years, Santa Rita Number 1 has provided about $1 billion to the state's Permanent University Fund.

Now a new generation of visionaries, which includes local and state leaders and scientists at the University of Texas at Austin, are turning their eyes toward another abundant Texas resource: our coal.

Either Odessa or Jewett is a perfect fit for FutureGen. The Odessa site boasts a strong West Texas expertise in the storage and transportation of carbon dioxide and its use in enhanced oil recovery. The Jewett site, in east-central Texas, offers an abundant supply of coal.

Many people would be surprised to learn that Texas is the nation's fifth-largest producer of coal, the top consumer of coal in the U.S. and has a 200-year reserve of lignite coal. A carbon dioxide storage facility in Texas would help unearth more of our oil and gas reserves, which in turn could boost much-needed domestic production.

Texas is no stranger to alternative fuel technology. Earlier this month, Abilene hosted the nation's largest-ever conference on wind power. With our turbine fields in West Texas, our state runs a close second only to California in generating wind-produced megawatts of electricity.

We're also poised to tap solar power as a serious source of energy. With our vast acreage and sunny climate, Texas solar-resource potential ranks first in the nation. The energy from sunshine falling on a single acre of land in West Texas is capable of producing the energy equivalent of 800 barrels of oil each year.

Texas has long provided America with valuable energy resources. Even as oil and gas reserves in major Texas fields have gradually declined over the years, Texas remains the headquarters of the world's energy industry. It would be entirely fitting if the technology that fuels future generations of our global energy supply is developed in Texas as well – in Jewett, Odessa or elsewhere.

Sen. Cornyn is a member of the following Senate Committees: Armed Services, Judiciary, Budget, Small Business and Entrepreneurship, and Joint Economic. He is the chairman of the subcommittees on Immigration, Border Security and Citizenship and Emerging Threats and Capabilities. Cornyn served previously as Texas Attorney General, Texas Supreme Court Justice and Bexar County District Judge.

House to Debate Progress of Global War on Terror

The House will turn its attention to the Global War on Terror this week. Members of Congress will have the opportunity to express their thoughts on the progress of the war thus far and discuss our nation's future efforts to defend itself against terrorists.

This debate comes on the heels of an important victory in Iraq. America and its allies in the War on Terror won a significant victory when our troops killed the leader of al-Qaeda in Iraq, Abu Musab al-Zarqawi. There will surely be another terrorist who rises to take Zarqawi's place, but the fact that our military was able to take down this important figure shows that our military and intelligence gathering efforts are paying off. As the new Iraqi political structure takes shape and the terrorist networks are dismantled in Iraq, America and its allies come closer to victory.

There are some who subscribe to the theory that the United States would be safer if we pulled our troops out of Iraq and Afghanistan and kept to ourselves. But U.S. troops were not in Baghdad in 1993 when terrorists attacked the World Trade Center for the first time. U.S. troops were not in Afghanistan when terrorists attacked U.S. embassies in Kenya and Tanzania. U.S. troops were not fighting a full-scale War on Terror when 19 terrorists hijacked planes and crashed them into buildings in New York and Virginia in 2001.

Whether it is al-Qaeda or groups like Hezbollah and Ansar al-Islam (a group that has operated in Iraq since 2001), these terrorists share the common goal of bringing the United States to its knees. This will be their goal as long as Americans possess the religious and other individual freedoms that are the essence of our nation's identity. As a result, we must take the fight to the terrorists and ensure that they find no safe harbor.

hold Program. Of that, FEMA has provided $752,935 in Individual Assistance and $688,050 in Other Needs Assistance. The State of Texas provided 25 percent, or $172,012, of the Other Needs Assistance.

- $4,149,100 in loans has been approved by the SBA for individuals and businesses affected by the Texas Wildfires. Of that amount, $3,768,500 was approved for home loans and $380,600 for business loans.

- $2,120 has been disbursed in Disaster Unemployment Assistance (DUA). Texans who worked in the affected counties and are unemployed as a result of the Texas Wildfires may be eligible for DUA benefits. DUA extends coverage to self-employed people, farm workers and others who are usually ineligible for unemployment benefits.

- 284 home inspections have been requested. Of these, 100 percent have been completed.

- $7.2 million in Public Assistance has been obligated to Texas by FEMA. The funds will be used by the State of Texas to reimburse local governments and agencies for eligible expenses associated with the Texas Wildfires.

Homeowners, renters and business owners who sustained damage from the Texas Wildfires may check the status of their applications by calling the FEMA helpline at 1-800-621-FEMA (3362).

USDA Extends CRP Contracts

The U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) decided last Wednesday to allow the option of extending Conservation Reserve Program (CRP) contracts for all Bailey and Kent County farmers with expiring contracts. USDA made the right move by allowing these additional extensions. Bailey and Kent County farmers will now have more time to make the transition away from the CRP land and to better plan for their farms' futures.

USDA's decision means that all farmers in these counties with CRP contracts expiring between 2007 and 2010 can extend those contracts for a set length of time based on the environmental benefits produced from their enrolled land. A large number of those CRP contracts are set to expire beginning in 2007, and the extensions will help prevent large amounts of land from leaving the program all at once, thus providing a smoother transition. Without this change, thousands of acres in 14 counties nationwide, including 40,000 acres in Bailey County alone, would not have had the extension option.
