One Three-Fourths Cents Per Mile Allowed On Two Trains

AUSTIN, Nov. 20 (AP)—The railroad commission yesterday authorized the Texas & Pacific Railway company to inaugurate passenger rate of one and three-fourths cents per mile between Fort Worth, Dallas and Big Spring and between Fort Worth and Texarkana via Sherman.

The rate becomes effective December 1. It will be in effect on trains 3 and 4 between Dallas and Big Spring.

The present rate is two cents per mile on these trains. The railway company originally asked a rate of one and one-half cents per mile but amended its petition.

Under the new rate fares will be: Dallas-Big Spring, now $5.90, to approximately $5.44; Fort Worth-Big Spring, now $3.30, to approximately $4.85; Big Spring-Abiene, now $2.15, to approximately $1.87.

Kiwanis Club Host To Boys Of Grid Squad

Bristow, Brown And Steers Honored At Evening Meeting

The Kiwanis club entertained Coaches Obie Bristow and George Brown and the 45 members of the high school football squad Thursday evening at the Crawford Hotel.

Enos Ashcraft was the program chairman, Gerald Liberty and his orchestra, which is playing regularly at the Crawford, furnished music throughout the evening. High school songs were led by Dr. C. W. Deals.

Three new members were welcomed on behalf of the club by Garland Woodward. They are Sheriff Jess Slaughter, Jesse Maxwell, terminal manager here for the American Airways, Inc., and Clarkson Bailey, manager of the United Dry Goods store here.

Coach Ben Daniels of the Black Devils, local junior boys' football team, was a special guest as was Bill Oliver, supervisor of buildings and grounds of the local schools.

Speakers were George Gentry, high school principal; Thomas J. Coffey, and Coach Bristow.

Mr. Gentry, saying that he had been interested in high school athletics for 15 years as a participant, observer or administrator, declared that athletics had passed through several stages of development during the past two decades. First school authorities opposed athletics, later tolerated them and now have become convinced that physical education, including competitive athletics, forms an important part of the educational program.

"Athletics ideally administered ought to mean a health and physical education program for all pupils. Most of Coach Bristow's time is spent with these football men and the rest of it, is spent with more than 250 other boys in physical education classes at high school," said Mr. Gentry.

Continuing, he said that "we have not been able as yet to develop our physical education program for all students as we would like to. A favorable sign for this phase of the training of the high school student is that Texas now makes physical education compulsory."

As to over-emphasis of athletics, said Mr. Gentry, "personally I believe most writers on this subject who hold that overemphasis exists to an alarming degree, are misled or misinformed as to the real purposes of competitive athletics. Most of the money taken in at games goes into other school funds for the good of all."

Develops Loyalty
Football, declared the high school principal, develops a fine sense of loyalty on the part of student bodies among players and others and has the effect of causing many individual students to continue their education through high school and into college who very likely would drop out but for their interest in football.

"We are proud of these boys but we are just as proud of them for the fact that the community does not owe them anything for making the team but that as representatives of the school they have a double responsibility. They must conduct themselves in such a manner as to bring honor to the school as well as themselves," he said in conclusion.

Tom Coffey, characterized football as "a grand old game. I once played myself."

Another Kiwanian spoke up to say "Football is good for everybody in the community but especially is it valuable to the boys themselves. They learn to play the game, giving the last ounce of their strength."

W. H. (Dub) Coots, Steer end, responded briefly and his straightforward remarks brought cheers from the hosts.

"We'll try to show our appreciation for this banquet. We will pull some hair out of the Bobcats next Thursday," said Dub.

Coach Bristow, who, Chairman Ashcraft had said, would have something to say about the San Angelo game of next week, opened his remarks by saying, "I don't know any more about the game next week. I'm still thinking about that one of last week."

Bristow Talks
"When I walked in here with these boys I was more glad than ever that I was a Kiwanian," said the coach. "This is an unusual thing. I have been in athletics a long time and it is not unusual to be asked to banquet when you win. But when you lose and the folks honor you in this way it is unusual," he continued.

The Texas Electric Service company is the first Big Spring firm to announce that each of its employees have subscribed one day's pay to the Community Chest.

In addition, the company officials announced that the annual gift of the company had been subscribed in an amount equal to that given last year.

Carl S. Blomsheld, district manager, said that the entire staff manifested much interest in the success of the Chest drive and were in accord with the plan of raising the $10,000 through gift of a day's pay by employees of all business concerns, to augment the subscriptions of the firms themselves.

The donations may be made in annual, semi-annual or quarterly installments.

It was learned Friday morning that several other firms would announce Sunday that all their employees had subscribed.

The annual campaign to "fill the chest" will open Tuesday and continue through Wednesday.

"If this chest is filled—and it must be—most of the firms ought to have their complete list of donors ready before Tuesday," said Mr. Blomsheld. "If the merchants do not get out and attend to this matter promptly we are liable to be caught far short of the goal of $10,000."

THEATRES AID
Employees of the Ritz and Queen theatres here will give a day's pay to the Community Chest, Fred Polacek said Friday. He also announced plans were under way to stage benefit performances for the Chest at both theatres.

San Antonio Man Asks His Ashes Be Strewn Over Grave of Dog
SAN ANTONIO, Nov. 20 (UP)—T. J. Colford wants the ashes of his body strewn over the grave of the fox terrier dog that he loved.

This strange request was revealed today by a letter, written by Colford, named some friends who like it would contribute $50 to have his body cremated. The body likely will be exhumed and his wish carried out.

Colford's body was found in a swimming pool here. Notes had been left by Colford telling of being out of work for some time.

The dog's grave is in Brackenridge Park and Colford's friends expect to scatter the ashes of the man over the grave there.

Lindy Pilots Giant Plane To Canal City

Thirty-three passengers, five crew members and thirty-four hundred pounds of mail constituted the load of the big ship. He said that the ship handled well and that he expected to enjoy the trip. He taxied a mile along Biscayne Bay before rising.

A stop will be made at Cienfuegos, Cuba, for lunch and the night will be spent in Kingston, Jamaica. The ship will stop there for four days on business before going to Cristobal later to rejoin the plane.

Germany Asks Proof Of Her Ability To Pay

BERLIN, Nov. 20 (AP)—A German memorandum to the world bank which was made public today applied for convocation of a special advisory committee to examine her ability to pay reparations as provided in the Young Plan and recent agreements. The document will be published in full tomorrow. It reviews recent events in the fight of foreign credits and foreign exchange losses which necessitated the Hoover Moratorium plan and emphasizes the difficulties of meeting the original payment schedule.

Mustangs Favored
While the Mustangs are favored as the result of their win over the powerful Steers the feeling is that Coach Taylor has something in the cat which the public has not seen as yet. If this is true he will not have after the game is over for the Kittens will need to reach back and bring forth everything they have in the way of power plays, tricks and whatnot to turn back the Red and White clad Ponies from Sweetwater.

A general mixup is entirely possible following the game Saturday. In case the Mustangs win it is all over for the Steers and Cats as far as a title is concerned. In the case of a tie, the Bobcats could defeat the Steers and remain in the running, or the Steers could down the Taylormen and give the title to Sweetwater. Looking on the other side of the fence, if the Bobcats emerge victorious and down the Steers on Turkey Day the title will rest with the Angelo entry, but if the Steers trounce the Cats after their victory over the Ponies football will again reign supreme in Howard county for the district will be plunged into a three way tie between the Steer: having an even chance of being crowned champions.

Steers To See Game
Coaches Bristow and Brown will take the Brown south to witness the struggle Saturday to give the boys an eye full of what is coming into Big Spring next Thursday. It is not at all hard to guess which team will have the support of the Bobcats Saturday. The Cats will receive the local support against Sweetwater but what they will get on the 26th is an entirely different matter.

A greatly improved and more experienced team should face the Angolians in the Turkey Day battle as the result of the conflict with the Steers.

Mustangs And Bobcats Meet In San Angelo

Down on the Concho Saturday afternoon two undefeated teams will come to blows to decide the little matter of district supremacy.

The Mustangs from the corral in Nolan county will invade the playground of the Bobcats, needing only a win to be the first team to wear the crown as champions of district 4. The Bobcats who have mauled everything that has come their way along the Concho this year will be out there endeavoring to turn back the galloping Mustangs as their only hope of a district title lies in their successful riding of the Ponies.

The two teams take the field undefeated in district competition, but with entirely different records. The Ponies have been on the small end of the count twice during the year while the Taylormen have yet to leave the field of battle with a entry on the losing side of the ledger.

Home Town Talk by Beddy

A significant fact in current reports of trends in the oil industry in Texas is that withdrawal from storage in the East Texas field was 21,520 barrels a day higher during the past week than in the preceding week. Movement of oil exceeded production 45,282 barrels daily compared with 21,520 barrels for the preceding seven days.

If production continues to be held below 400,000 barrels a day in East Texas stocks of crude there will be materially depleted within a few weeks at the present rate of withdrawal.

Opinions of the attorney general's suits to cut off a major oil company, based on their marketing practices, are numerous. Widely divergent views of the action are expressed.

One oil man of long experience said he believed the "moral effect" would be "helpful no matter how the suits were terminated in the courts. Another said he believed the people of Texas would be better off if the fifteen companies were thrown over the state line.

We have heard others question the wisdom of filing the suits. They declare a result would be that the defendant companies would disconnect their pipe lines from Texas fields, move their refineries outside the state, throw hundreds of thousands of men and women out of employment.

After all this had happened, said one observer, "the independents would like the price of gasoline above what it is now."

Every man for his own opinion.

The Oil and Gas Journal, acknowledged as the most authoritative journal of the industry in the entire world, sharply attacks Allied in an editorial in its current issue.

"Let us suppose" says the Journal that young Mr. Alfred could win his suit to drive the oil companies out of that state and consider the result." The companies he names are at present operating 22 large and small refineries scattered throughout the state, with a capacity of 500,000 barrels of crude daily. They represent 70 per cent of the state's total.

"It is largely through the operation of these companies that Texas leads all other states in capacity and volume of refined products."

"No accurate figure is available as to the number of employees in these refineries that he proposes to run out of the state, but it is safe to say the total will average at least 25,000 a day in operation and construction work. The best paid group of workers in the state with a minimum of seasonal unemployment."

Confidence of Its Citizens

THE STATE, says Attorney General Allred, will not sue for recovery of the Landreth strip and in Upton county—and in making that announcement the young attorney general gave expression to a policy that is well nigh perfect. Here it is:
"The most valuable asset the state can have is the confidence of its citizens. This confidence cannot be secured by the state reversing its position every time it becomes most profitable to do so. The state could not expect its citizens to be loyal to a sovereign which could not be trusted."
This same spirit of honest dealing was behind the riverbed land bills and other measures designed to make landowners secure in their tenure against the efforts of land-grabbers. Owners took over the land in good faith, lived on it, improved it, and had not a shadow of a doubt as to their title. But under the law, they could be turned out of house and home—until a spirit of fair play dictated a change in the law.
In the Landreth strip it was contended that the land belonged to the university, although a formal court decision had awarded it to private claimants. This decision was investigated by George T. Wilson, an assistant attorney general, who expressed doubt that the state would be able to recover the land and questioned the policy of the state attempting to set aside a judgment obtained in good faith.
The attorney general is right. The most valuable asset a state can have—more valuable even than pushing oil wells—is the confidence and trust of its citizens. That is something beyond price.

OPINIONS OF OTHERS

The Genesis of Culture

Philadelphia Public Ledger:
WITH the discovery of a Persian cemetery tentatively dated 2000 B. C. by the expedition of the University of Pennsylvania and the Pennsylvania Museum of Art, the archaeologists believe they have found a connecting link between India and Mesopotamia. But even more interesting and important are the statements in the report of Dr. Erich Schmidt, the field director of the expedition, that remains of little children with their toy dishes were found and that strings of beads, bracelets, anklets and finger rings still clung to adult remains. Also that plates, cups and bowls of finished ceramic work were discovered, as well as beautifully shaped weapons and many evidences of both artistic and cultural development.
These old tramping grounds of long forgotten peoples have been rich grounds for the archaeologists. With also every new series of excavations new cultures or new dates have been unearthed. But even in the latest find of the Pennsylvania expedition, each new excavation also unearths proof that mankind of that day had a definite culture and civilization which could not have grown up over night. Man's antiquity is not only being constantly pushed farther back toward the dawn of time, but with it constantly recedes that day when the instincts of crude culture first stirred in ancient man's breast.
With styles reverting to former times, England's roadways are witnessing a comeback of tandem bicycles.

HOW'S your HEALTH

Dr. Inge Goldsman
The Growing Child
There are style periods in medicine as in other fields, and it is only now that we are beginning to recover from the disconcerting influences of the "height-weight" period.

By accumulating data on the height and weight of many thousands of apparently healthy children of various ages, it was possible to establish a so-called table of normal development.
As a measure of large groups the table is undoubtedly correct. The difficulty arose when individual children were compared with the so-called normal weight and height for a given age.
Too many individual children failed to conform and were set down as underweight, or underdeveloped.
Frantic efforts were made to push their development.
However, no matter how much one may feed a mouse, it will never grow to the size of an elephant.
At the present time we are fully aware that we cannot evaluate the growth of an individual by a comparison of his status with that of the so-called average.
Each individual is a law unto himself.
A child may be several inches shorter, and weigh a number of pounds less than is the average for his age and still have achieved the full measure of development which nature set for him.
Race and parentage, or heredity, exercise an even deeper influence upon the rate of growth than do the environmental influences.
However, when all has been said on this score, and the reassurance therein has been appreciated, there is still much to be added.
The seemingly underdeveloped child should not be denied all the advantages of good medical care, nor should its seeming retardation be charged to nature.
It might be due to something else.

WASHINGTON DAYBOOK
By HERBERT PLUMMER
WASHINGTON—Drop into the chamber of the supreme court on a day when the tribunal is sitting and after singling out Chief Justice Hughes and the venerable Justice Holmes, more than likely your eye will fall on Justice Louis D. Brandeis.
His likeness to Lincoln is perhaps the thing which attracts you most. But as you watch him while he sits there with his hand shading his eyes, his mop of iron gray hair a bit unruly and his large eyes keenly alert, you somehow forget the Lincoln resemblance and study the man himself.
Brandeis is one of the real personalities of the supreme court. Seventy-five years old this month, he has been on the supreme bench for 15 years. Woodrow Wilson appointed him in 1916.

Dissector

He is one of the famed trio of dissectors of the court—Holmes, Brandeis and Stone. And he is one of the court's great liberals.

LADY with a PAST
BY HARRIET HENRY

SYNOPSIS: Failure follows all of Venice Muir's attempt to learn the secret of popularity. She has loveliness, money and a mother who holds high place in New York society, but she lacks the ability to "express" her charm. Mrs. Muir urges her to try to be attractive. Venice has gained an exaggerated idea of the importance of social success. She finds her one satisfaction in telling fairy tales of her supposed conquests to Nolly Spaulding. Nolly enjoys the vicarious excitement that she cannot have herself; she lives a quiet life, made more restful by a lame leg, which she has named "Pongo." At the Manning's dinner, Venice forces herself to try to interest Ronald Wainwright, whom she thinks looks like a faun. He mocks her attempts. The one man who has seemed interested in her, Dr. Drake Farrelly, has promised to call her, Venice amuses herself by trying to write.

Chapter II JADE LACE VERSUS BEIGE VELVET

Evidently Drake was still away or wasn't particularly anxious to see her. Just a nice man sorry for a girl who had admitted she rarely had a good time, she came to reflect.
Her flares of writing were the only high lights that broke the monotony of her even-running, uninspired existence. The dazzling young man gave her many chapters. She began to exaggerate his appeal on one hand, his insolence on the other. The desire and the hurt made poignant her recollections. She ran across him at one party or another but he failed to notice her. The occasional visits to Nolly were secondary high lights too. That gray spinning of the glories that she did not share always sent her home afterwards with that happy relief in realizing what she would have liked to actually live.
And even Nolly had something real come into her narrow existence.
"I went to the movies last night," January until June to confirm him. And a subcommittee held hearings for weeks on his qualifications.
Elihu Root, the late Chief Justice Taft and President Lowell of Harvard protested his appointment on the ground that he did not seem to have the judicial temperament.
Today Brandeis—the dissenter, liberal—finds himself on the majority of the court. For to the trio of Holmes, Brandeis and Stone has been added the names of Hughes and Roberts.
His opinions invariably show his passion for getting all the facts and exact information in a case. They are written in careful and eloquent English.
He is not the type of person one could get to know intimately. He lives simply, rarely if ever ventures out into the capital social life, and works almost unceasingly.
Walks For Recreation
He is often seen walking the streets of Washington on one of his long strolls for exercise. Formerly he got his recreation by paddling a canoe on the Potomac or in the Tidal Basin, but he has given that up.
Perhaps his best friend on the court is Justice Holmes. The two formerly took long walks together stopping here and there to look at things which interested them. Of a bit unruly and his large eyes late, however, due to the advancing age of Mr. Holmes, he has walked alone.

unlashed sleek, bronzed bodies sprawling lazily to the bare of sash and drap. The faun looked at her with his sapphire eyes and told her that her dress was a poem.
"What'll I wear, Thursday, Venice? I have only this and a dark blue chiffon that's not long enough for nowadays."
Venice started. Connie's Inn faded and the faun slowly became an indifferent man who preferred cellulose nails and a voice that dripped sweet as honey. She looked now at Nolly's dark red wool crepe. She remembered the blue chiffon. It was not only too short but it was too long waisted.
"Oh," she said quickly, "I have a beige velvet that's too tight for me. Wouldn't you take it, Nolly? You'd look lovely in it. And it's absolutely no use to me any more."
The elfin face stared hard at her to make sure that this was not charity.
"Really, Venice? I'd love it. Oh, I am excited." She clapped her hands like a small child.
Venice had a desire to cry. She looked away.
"You—you wouldn't come and help me dress Thursday, would you? Mother's sweet but she doesn't go about very much and you might give me some smart ideas."
"Certainly I will."
Nolly gave a happy sigh as though spent with pleasure.
"And now go on, Venice. I want to hear more. What else have you been doing?"
"I had a dinner myself last week." Venice's mind went back to the dinner as it had actually been. Lora, Alice Schuyler, Betty Paine, Jerry Ward, two brothers named Grisham, Charlie Muir who was her

MENUS of the DAY

By MRS. ALEXANDER GEORGE Thanksgiving Dinner Aids
If chilled cocktails are served be sure to have them very cold. Do not place on the table until the meal is all ready.

Cranutons are delicious served with soups and they are easily made. Cut slices of bread 1-2 inch thick, spread lightly with butter. Cut off the crusts and cut the slices into 1-2 inch cubes. Toast until well browned. Serve in a bowl with a spoon.

Wafers spread with butter and then sprinkled with grated cheese are excellent to serve with cocktails, soups, or salads.

Remove the cranberry mold from its dish and set in a cold place until ready for serving. This saves time at the last minute.

Pumpkin pie topped with whipped cream and then sprinkled with chopped candied orange peel or a few black walnuts will call forth praises from the guests.

If a steamed or baked pudding is served with hard sauce press it into a deep round bowl and chill until very stiff. Unmold and garnish with halves of pecans and you will have a good looking as well as good tasting sauce. If individual molds are desired roll into balls and press with nuts. Chill and place several "balls" on each pudding serving.

If you like spiked cranberry jelly add 4 cloves and a stick of cinnamon to the berries when they are cooking. If the berries seem too acid in taste add 1-8 teaspoon of soda to them when they are cooking.

If a roasted fowl is served, cover it with a white cloth rinsed out in hot water. This will give a good brown color to the skin of the fowl and it will prevent too hard a crust from forming. Rinse out the cloth every 25 minutes and of course the cloth will have to be thrown away, but the fowl will be baked to the "desired turn."

ONE WOMAN'S SECRET

HERS was the most engaging personality in the crowd. She dressed well—always looked well. What was her secret of charm and beauty? She took as much care of the inside of her body as of her face and hands. She ate Kellogg's ALL-BRAN every day. Kellogg's ALL-BRAN provides "bulk" to exercise the intestines. And Vitamin B to tone them up. Both aid regular habits. In addition, ALL-BRAN is a good source of iron for the blood. This delicious cereal is already cooked and krumbled. Two table-spoonfuls daily for most types of constipation. If you suffer from intestinal trouble not relieved this way, consult your doctor. Avoid constipation. It often causes headaches, loss of pep, pimples, premature aging. Eat ALL-BRAN regularly—either as a cereal, or in cooked dishes. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

This And That

By Mark
A blocking halfback is a valuable addition on any club. Eligibility rules deprive the Steers of the services of an A-1 man in this particular. His ability is such that we cannot overlook it, so we nominate for the hall of fame Jess Slaughter, for the wonderful blocking done in the stands during the Steer-Mustang game. Each and every time a Steer set off with the ball the fans near Jess would be sent rolling as the result of his efforts to help advance the ball a few yards further down the field. We suggest however in the interest of the weaker sex that his blocking ability be demonstrated on the male fans in the coming game.

The best deer story of the year has all the fish stories ever told backed off the map. This yarn comes from a highly respected citizen so we will not give his name as we have no desire to lower his reputation for truth and veracity. Said hunter took his field glasses and got out in the wee hours of the morning to lie in wait for the big game. He saw a buck about a mile and a half away, sneaked over close to it and then had to wait until daylight to shoot.

More detailed information concerning the above hunter will be gladly given out if the interested party will call this department between the hours of nine p. m. and three a. m.

Blondy Cross is in a quandry concerning the game tomorrow on the Concho and has wired all the coaches of the district for an opinion as to the outcome of the contest. Blondy would like to have his belief that the Cats are due for a pleasant afternoon confirmed. The coaches have ideas like this:

Ed Hennig of the Mustangs is making preparations for the bi-district tilt with Abilene. He seems not the least bit concerned over the coming game.

Clyde Park of McCamey has laid a small wager that the Mustangs will gallop to victory. He should have a good idea as to the strength of the two clubs as both have eluded his Badgers all over the lot.

Hardy Pearce of Colorado tries to ride the fence but voices the opinion that the Bobcats have something they have not shown so far. He looks for an Angelo victory.

R. C. Hankins speaks for Midland when he says the Ponies will have no trouble chasing the Cats all over the Concho and hanging their hide out to dry.

Millard Cope who makes the daily blunders in the Sweetwater Reporter declares Angelo is the big favorite and the Ponies will be lucky to win, then gives 10 points and bets on the Mustangs.

Obie Bristol got plenty smart when he received Blondy's wire, as his answer will testify: "My opinion is not worth much. I was wrong last Wednesday. The Mustangs should win, but I would not be surprised at a victory for the Bobcats. If my praying can help, the Bobcats are a cinch to win."

Hary Taylor, Bobcat mentor, has little to say except that he intends to play his first string. If his other intentions are as good as this one his boys may do something. We can let him on the matter a little further. He will not only start his first team but he will have to play the big boys every minute if he expects to ride them Ponies.

Amos Melton, who never got one right, picks Sweetwater to win. (We hope he is wrong again.)

This is the first time we have ever heard of a Big Spring delegation rooting for an Angelo team, but such will be the case when the Mustangs and Bobcats take the field tomorrow afternoon. The biggest fan in Angelo will not rejoice more over a Bobcat win than will the Big Spring fans. Just think what it would mean to have that old title settled out here in Steer stadium next Thursday.

Blondy comes out with the statement that the so-called smart money is riding on the Mustangs. We can't see anything smart about betting on either club in a game like the one to be staged tomorrow aft. The smart money in our opinion would be secure in the fortunate one's pocket.

The best crack of the year comes from Amarillo where the fans are promising to give the members of the football team a trip home for a Christmas present in case the Sandies down Lubbock next week. We can think of no better expression of gratitude.

Don't forget that you will be able to get reports of the Sweetwater-Angelo game from the Herald office tomorrow afternoon after 3 o'clock.

Bill Collins drops us a letter of sympathy from McCamey expressing his regrets that the Ponies trounced the Steers on the 11th. He is comforting though when he says the Bobcats will throw them for a loss tomorrow. Here's hoping, Bill.

Mary Willis Circle Finished Quilt Top

The members of the Mary Willis Circle met at the home of Mrs. J. A. Boykin Thursday and spent a very enjoyable session finishing their quilt top and making plans for the winter work.

The hostess served refreshments to the following: Mmes. W. E. Buchanan, Pearl Hardcastle, John Ory, here.

Mrs. L. O. Rogers of Dallas, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. A. Hatchcock, is visiting her parents here.

THE WINNING PLAY

W. H. "Lone Star" Dietz, crafty coach at the Haskell Indian Institute, is shown above. Sketches show famous "Dead Indian" play, which Dietz has abandoned, but which may be revived at any time for a vital touchdown. The ball carrier shown downed in position 1 passes ball (position 2) while prone before opposing backs have returned to their stations. The trick has earned many touchdowns.

W. H. "Lone Star" Dietz is famous for the football tricks his Haskell Indian teams pull. In this, the fourteenth of a series of football articles written by the outstanding coaches themselves, Dietz explains the old "Dead Indian" play he learned at Carlisle during the regime of Pop Warner.

The defensive backs playing rather deep and the defensive line somewhat scattered.

The back behind center gets the ball on a "job" pass, drives into the line between left guard and tackle and is generally tackled by the defensive right halfback, who plays in front of the hole.

Naturally, the other defensive backs are drawn up to this point in backing up the play.

The offensive line then moves up to the point where the ball carrier is lying on the ground in a rather prone position. Another back, addressing the prone one, says, "Are you hurt?"

The ball carrier gets up slowly and responds, "Oh, I'm all right," and throws the ball to a third back who, with the aid of the flanking linemen and locks, circles around the opponent's end, usually for long gains which have resulted in many touchdowns.

I used this play for many years after leaving Carlisle, in coaching on the Pacific coast, and produced several champion teams. This play was a regular part of our repertoire. It was successfully used time after time with gratifying results.

In late years I have abandoned it, but there is nothing in the rules to prevent a backfield man from acting as a passer of the ball from the end position, and the play is perfectly legal in every respect.

By W. H. (LONE STAR) DIETZ (Head Football Coach, Haskell Indian Institute)

LAWRENCE, Kas. (AP) — The "Dead Indian" play, as it became known, was originated at Carlisle by Glenn S. Warner about 1910 and was successfully used for several seasons thereafter, several touchdowns resulting from its use.

One of the most notable runs scored from this play occurred in the Pennsylvania-Carlisle game in 1911, in which Gus Welch, clever quarterback and open field runner, who at the present time is assistant coach at the University of Virginia, carried the ball 65 yards for a touchdown.

In this game, Jim Thorpe, who at that time was a nationally known star, was unable to play because of injuries, and consequently Coach Warner emphasized that this play should be used to off-set this handicap.

The play is most effectively used in a team's own territory, about the 40-yard line, where a kick formation is a constant threat, with own first cousin, and Horace Totten, a Southerner whom she had never met before, the son of a friend of her mother's. Every one had had a comparatively good time but herself. Courtesy demanded that she, as hostess, should receive attention and the attention had been granted in exactly that way.

tern in the design of her own choosing. Her thoughts played contentedly about the successful dinner she had given. She actually believed it herself by the time she reached Park Avenue. Nora admitted a Venice with a happy, eager face, the droop gone from the immature mouth.
It was that Thursday that Mrs. Muir chose to give a tea, so Venice went to the Spaldings', the belle velvet in a hat, at about three.

to go but I must have you to help me.
Nolly looked thoroughly charming. The velvet frock fell to her ankles and hid the ill-formed leg. It was square-cut at the neck and her small, dark face rose above the soft coffee-colour in flushed excitement.
"And here's a surprise," said Venice, reaching in her bag.
It was a long string of corals.
Nolly reached out for it, then drew back her hand.
"Oh, no, Venice, I couldn't possibly take it."
"You must. It's a coming out present."

But rushing homeward in a taxi she saw that little figure sitting there with pathos in its patient attitude for a dinner that was more than two hours away. Nolly's biggest evening, and it was only a dinner at a young man's apartment with her mother and father accompanying her.
Christmas, Lincoln's Birthday, Washington's Birthday, Easter, marched slowly by. Venice's invitations became fewer, duller, farther apart. Not a word from Drake Farrelly and she had put the thought of his eventually telephoning resolutely from her mind. Sitting with her mother one evening she was surprised to see Mrs. Muir unexpectedly put down her newspaper, eye her with discouragement in her glance and say as though a deep and long-sought-for decision had been reached, "I think I'll take you abroad next month, Venice."

criticism and this court action upon themselves by their tactics of the past few years; they have grown too blatantly intent upon dominating the industry and, instead of allowing the small independent to live and make a little money, have deliberately declared there is no place in the business for the small operator, thus throwing down the gauntlet to those who oppose domination of any industry by any small group of minor corporations.
And as we pointed out a few days ago—if Allred should win these suits he will be one at least who will profit by it. The bulk of voters are against the big business man first, last and all the time, in good times or bad.
Therefore young Jimmy will be a popular guy if he whips the big boys.

Tablequah Bridge Club Meets At The Crawford

Mrs. Martin made high score and Mrs. Bliss second high. There were no visitors present.

SALVATION ARMY DINNER
Mrs. O. F. Grief, of the Salvation Army, suggests that people in town who plan to contribute to the Thanksgiving dinner for the needy telephone her beforehand, if possible, and give her an idea of what they expect to bring. In this way she will know how many to care for. Many people have announced intentions of contributing something and plan to do so the day before. Mrs. Grief will appreciate knowing as early as possible what she can expect.

HEADACHE Due To Constipation
OFTEN one of the first-felt effects of constipation is a HEADACHE. Get at the bottom of the trouble with a dose or two of Thedford's Black-Draught. Don't strangle nature's outcry with mere pain-killers, but relieve the constipation—enjoy the refreshing relief which thousands of people have reported from the use of Black-Draught in such conditions.
Black-Draught is made of finely powdered leaves and roots of approved medicinal plants.
Mr. L. P. Duncan, 329 W. Lincoln St., Tullahoma, Tenn., writes: "A few weeks ago I had headache. Having Black-Draught on hand and knowing it was good, I took it and it relieved me. A few nights ago, I took it again with splendid results."

are 100,000 persons in Texas whose livelihood depends directly upon the operation of these plants.
Counting those employed as indirect result of these operations, the Journal estimated 250,000 Texans would be thrown out of jobs.
The refineries represent an investment of at least $500,000,000 in Texas and pay their proportionate share of taxes. It is further pointed out.
It is not necessary, declares the Journal, that the refining plants be located in Texas.
The oil industry has been the greatest contributor to Texas prosperity in the past 15 years and to cost the companies would mean a far greater loss to Texas than to the companies themselves, it is declared.
There you are!
Take your pick, figure it out for yourself.
There is no doubt but that the large companies have brought this

Pure food, pure milk, pure water—in all the things you eat or drink, you want absolute purity.
Purity counts in cigarettes, too
Making cigarettes as pure as they can be made is our business. And it's your business, too—because you smoke them.
All the materials that go into the making of CHESTERFIELD cigarettes are tested again and again by expert research chemists to see that they are absolutely clean and pure. Just like the things you eat or drink.
The tobacco is pure. The right kind—mild, sweet and ripe! Handled throughout by the most modern machinery.
The paper is pure. Clean. White. The best cigarette paper that money can buy.
There is cleanliness in every step of CHESTERFIELD's manufacture. Old-fashioned methods have been discarded, and CHESTERFIELDS are made and packed in modern sanitary factories where even the air is washed, and changed every four-and-one-half minutes.
Every day more men and women are changing to CHESTERFIELD. And changing for good! Four big reasons clinch the choice: Milder—Taste Better—Pure—Satisfy.
