maintain such complete offices. With probably one exception—Mineral Wells-there is no city in Texas the size of Ranger that has two complete clinics in operation.

The City-County hospital has long been one of the most popular hospitals in this section and has many times been crowded with patients. The opening of the new hospital will relieve this condition and insure for Ranger ample medical and surgical equipment.

There is perhaps no more marked evidence of the progress of Ranger than the erection of another hospital here, meeting as it does the increasing demands of the public. Ten years ago Ranger did not have a hospital and only three or four doctors, but today the city boasts a professional progress that is in keeping with the other features of local development. Fourteen doctors now maintain offices in Ranger and there are four dentists to serve the public. These include specialists in all departments of the medical profession.

AGAIN DUNLOP TIRES makes the world's FASTEST MILE 207 miles per hour

Driving his giant 900 horse-power Blue Bird shod with Dunlop Tires, Capttain Malcolm Campbell smashed into bits every previous world's speed record.

Captain Campbell's achievement is the 18th Dunlop world's record for tire performance. When lives depend upon tires, experts choose Dunlops. When racers risk ALL, they want all they can get in tire safety, and so they insist upon Dunlops.

That is why we recommend Dunlop Tires and Tubes to you. The world's greatest tire building experience has shown Dunlop engineers how to design tires to meet every possible condition-from the grind of a race course to the day-in, day out requirements of the road. Stop at the store and see pictures of Captain Campbell's thrilling race.

Because she concealed facts about the death of her husband, Ray Raymond, actor, beaten to death in a fist fight with Paul Kelly, Dorothy Mackaye (right) of Los Angeles was sentenced to San Quentin penitentiary. The Smoothness and Snap That All America is Demanding

There's no longer any doubt about it. America is demanding more and more from its automobiles. More power... more style...more speed. And above all else . . . more smoothness and snap.

Smoothness that brings to driving new pleasures and new delights. Snap that responds to the traffic signal as a sprinter responds to the gun. Smoothness and snap that you know are the very essence of motoring satisfaction. Smoothness and snap that you find revealed in the All-American Six.

You find them there because of Oakland's big, impressive brute of an engine which starts so easily 'way below zero. Because of its famous GMR cylinder head...force feed fuel pump...79-lb. crankshaft ... generously oversize connecting rods and other vital parts.

Because of its ruggedly constructed chassis...its bigger clutch and smoothly shifting gears . . . and the super-precision construction demanded in the All-American principle of design.

T was a night such as Dickens might have used for Fagin, and Poe could have used for a ghost story or a tale of horror. But since this night came some years this side of the demise of Messrs. Poe and Dickens, there is no larceny in taking it away from them. Red Scanlon, of Binghamton's Patch—a settlement for Shanty Irish of by-gone days—belongs to the night. He belonged there because it was Saint Patrick's day night. This Scanlon was neither a Fagin nor a ghost. He was a big, red-blooded man in his late forties when this story opens. As a kid he was more or less of a devil, and became the more devilish as the years rolled by. But he possessed in this devilishness of his those good qualities that make good devils. The long and short of it is: He was a damn fine man for men but a damn poor one for women.

Thus ostracized, he was habitually driven to saloons.

Strong drink gave him incentive for strong work, and he took up as a profession the driving of a steam roller. This roller he called Casey—not any relation to Mr. Jones. The night of Saint Patrick's day he and Casey drew up in front of Sullivan's Cafe. And when he—Scanlon—came out, he had as much steam as Casey, who had waited outside.

steam as Casey, who had waited outside. * "Casey," he saluted, "Ye and Oi are now fit for each other's company."

The roller seemed to understand, and replied with a great snort, and as if to emphasize some last remark, shot a stream of sparks high into the air.

TO the traffic policeman on the corner below Sullivan's Cafe this meant only that Casey was coming with a drunken Irishman back of his throttle. He blew his whistle and left the street.

Scanlon thundered by, singing: "When ye land Oi were young, Maggie." On the way Scanlon stopped at many places wherein men drank deep in their cups. And Scanlon picked up the broken threads of romance in his own cup.

Making of them a rein, he went to Casey, after leaving one of these last places, and, throwing the throttle wide open, moaned:

"It's me heart, Casey—me heart that's callin" way up on top of Old Lookout. Do ye think ye can make it?"

Faithful Casey, ever true to his master, did make it. Way up that rugged mountainside into the grim black night, that a man might have the sunshine of his youth.

Eligible to what his years had brought him, Scanlon stumbled down from his faithful steed and found in the night shadows the ruins of the rustic rest—a pillar here and a pillar there, but mostly dust.

Then under the glow of a match he beheld a worm-eaten scantling covered with partly legible initials and sayings of lovers with which the rest in its day had been covered.

And then he found his-

DAISY AND RED FOREVERMORE

SCANLON sank to his knees, sobered, and kissed the dust of his yesterdays.

With the ash of his love on his lips, Scanlon stood on the crest of Old Lookout and dreamed down at the valley of the Susquehanna; dreamed down at the old home town; dreamed down at Daisy Riley.

From the crest to Casey, Scanlon ran and yelled:

"Down ye go!"

Casey went with no brakes to hold him.

In the first quarter he jounced off his smokestack. In the second he jounced off everything Swinging into Court street—the main street of the town—Scanlon and Casey inadvertently knocked over a silent-policeman with a red lantern for a hat. Making Exchange street, a few blocks east, they inadvertently knocked the fender off a street-car. In graceful curves, some of which were semi-circles, they maneuvered to the town's police station where Scanlon reported two unavoidable accidents.

This police station, years previous to this Saint Patrick's night, had been a school—Washington street school—where as a lad Red Scanlon had spent many a happy day.

Scanlon had never fully recovered from the effects of having this dear old building converted into a police station. On this night it touched the kid of him and made his memory wander back.

Back to little Daisy Riley, who had sat across the aisle from him, and made sheep's eyes; he in his kidhood too bashful to respond to her soul's flashing.

Back to the spring time when he had skipped school and climbed Lookout Mountain, above Ross Park, and had carved under the eaves of the rustic rest up there:

In the third he yanked the steering-gear out of Scanlon's hands and chartered his own joyride. The fourth he did not reach.

In lieu thereof he took to the lawn of an humble cottage.

Scanlon yelled:

come!"

"If ye're goin' to droive, O'm gettin' off!" Casey threw him off, crashed through the front porch of the cottage, knocked down its door and rested his front roller in somebody's reception-hall.

"Ye blastin' idiot!" cried Scanlon, jumping his tender and throwing back the reverse lever. "Ain't ye got the manners to knock first?"

Casey snorted and puffed back onto the lawn.

SCANLON ran forward and peeked in at the reception hall, ready to apologize to its owner.

A woman was there with her back to the disaster, darning hose, and with a pair of radio earphones strapped to her head.

"The static is just perfectly awful tonight," she was soliloquizing.

Scanlon listened-in also—listened-in on the woman's voice. "Daisy!" he yelled, leaping before her. Daisy Ranger Junior college received its affiliation with the state department of education at Austin last year, but owing to the fact that it was late re-ceiving its affiliation with the state department of education, the school lid not make application for admit tance into the association of Texas colleges. This year the Ranger col-lege invited the association to send a representative to inspect the work lone by Ranger Junior college and Mr. Wiseman was sent.

After inspecting the work done by each department and interviewing he head of each department, Wiseman said, "I cannot say for the committee as a whole, as I only have Ranger Junior college should not be admitted into the association of Tex-as colleges at its April meeting. You have not only filed the requirements for affiliation but you have going or affiliation, but you have gon-beyond, you have done more than is required by the association."

Mr. Wiseman spoke highly of the Ranger school system as a whole. He complimented the system of record ing kept by the junior college and the high school.

New Pontiac Six Sport Pheaton For Spring Announced by Factory

Complying with an insistent de-mand for a sport type body of larger seating capacity on the new series Pontiac Six chassis, the Oakland Motor Car company is now building a smart five-passenger sport phaeton. This latest Pontiac Six model er: bodies the same rakish swank of line and contrasting color which has brought the sport roadster into such high favor, particularly with t:

younger generation. The low, graceful sweep of the new body reflects the artistry of the Fisher craftsmen. Extending back from the high narrow radiator, the hood line drops to a long panel of Micanopy Cream, contrasting effect-ively against the Paquot Blue of the body. The hood louvres are edged with the same cream tint, while the black mouldings above and below the color panel also are relieved by cream striping. The same treatment is followed on the Paquot Blue wheel spokes. The beauty of the new model is enhanced further by br'l-liant nickel f. ings and Spanish lea-ther upholstery. Nickel plating also is used on the rim and side arm supports of the one-piece windshield. A convenient pocket is placed behind the rear seat for storing the Pyralin curtains and a boot cover contributes smooth lines to the fold ed top. With the top raised and the Snug curtains in place, the Sport Phaeton affords secure comfort in any weather. The new model is priced $775 f. o. b. factory.

clinic, have many friends in Ranger and Eastland

MRS. LILLIE HARRISON WILL

Although he is one of the youngest physicians in the city he has had experience in medical circles of New York and other eastern states.

Dr. Barnett is a native Texan, born in Nacogdoches in 1897. He received his early education in the public schools of that city and later attended Rice Institute at Houston. He studied medicine at the University of Texas and received his medical degree from that institution. After receiving his degree from the medical branch of the University he took up post graduate work and spent three years in New York City, his time divided between the Knickerbocker Hospital and St. Luke's hospital. For one year prior to the time he came to Ranger he was in private practice in Fort Worth where he was associated with the Coffey clinic.

During the world war, Dr. Barnett enlisted in service and attended the officers' training camp at Waco.

Like his associate, Dr. Lauderdale, he came to Ranger through the influence of Dr. C. O. Terrell, formerly one of the most prominent men of the profession in this vicinity who is now located at Fort Worth.

Since locating here with Dr. Lauderdale he has been meeting with an ever-increasing success in both medicine and surgery, and has built up a big practice which is a tribute to the confidence imposed in him by Ranger people.

Dr. Barnett is an X-ray specialist and surgical specialist as well and is an expert in cystoscopic operations.

The fact that Dr. Barnett is one of the two men who have invested $45,000 in a building and $30,-000 in furnishings and equipment, marks him as a man who has the interest of Ranger's future at heart and believes sincerely that Ranger will prove to be one of the foremost business and medical centers in West Texas.

His coming to Ranger was a substantial addition to the city's population, both in a personal and a professional way. Young, competent and an-bitious, he will doubtless be a great factor in the future development of Ranger, if the years to come bear out the promise of the year and a half that he has lived here.

His foresight and belief in Ranger could not be more clearly demonstrated than in the magni-ficent new building that houses the West Texas Clinic and Hospital which he has helped to make a reality.

The West Texas Clinic and Hospital will be opened today for public inspection between the Dr. Van C. Tipton, internal medicine and obstetdetails.

Refreshments will be served in the clinic lobby and there will be music for entertainment of the patrons and friends of the institution.

DR. A. N. HARKRIDER TO BE LOCATED IN NEW CLINIC

Dr. A. N. Harkrider, who has his dental office in the new West Texas Clinic and Hospital, is widely known all over Eastland county. He came to Ranger on Sept. 1, 1918, and has been practicing his profession here since that time.

When he first came to Ranger he was located in the Terrell building and was associated with Dr. S. D. Terrell, former Ranger dentist. Soon afterwards he moved his office to the Citizens State bank building

Dr. Harkrider is a member of the Rotary club, the Country club and other civic organizations and has been a citizen who has helped push Ranger forward. He is a graduate of Vanderbilt university, re-ceiving his degree from that institution in 1908.

The West Texas Clinic ~An asset to Ranger

The citizenry of Ranger has every reason to be proud of this new hospital.

It is a symbol of the faith its builders have in the permanence of Ranger and in the growth of West Texas.

We congratulate its owners upon their achievement and wish for them the continued success that will surely be theirs. The thoughtful co-operation of all parties concerned in its construction made it a great pleasure to us to have been connected with it.

We acknowledge with thanks the co-operation we have received from the contractors, Bordeau Brothers, who built the building and Wm. N. McDonald who installed the plumbing and electrical work.

We call your attention to the interior decoration which is of Kunite, a natural product, the use of which is just being introduced in this section and manufactured by the Moderite Products company.

Today--From 2 to 6

THE public is invited to attend the formal opening of the West Texas Clinic to be held in the new hospital building Sunday afternoon, March 11th, between the hours of 2 and 6 p.m. The newly completed building will be open for inspection by the public at this time and a corps of attendants will be on hand to show the crowds through.

TOTHING has been spared to make this building and its equipment complete and comparable with hospitals in the larger cities. Its owners take a justifiable pride in offering its services to the people of West Texas, but yet they are deeply appreciative of the manifestations and encouragement and good will from their many friends.
