LADY with a PAST BY HARRIET HENRY

her own lack. She would like now to tell Lola exactly how she had run across Guy at the Cafe de la Paix and of their business arrangement but her natural honesty was surpassed by the realization that if Lola once permitted the truth to leak out Venice's past would be as quickly deflated as a balloon touched with a lighted cigarette...

Chapter 29 A SLOGAN FOR MYSTERY It was the youth of the spectacle whom she had met at the Mannings' Colour crept into her face. She felt as if a detective was suddenly spying on her.

"Why, Ernest," she murmured, "I didn't know Nolly's Doctor Price was you."

"No," he said. "It makes it difficult. This remark was ambiguous. You know how lucky you are. Venice succeeded in saying she had no misgivings as to Nolly's marrying him but she wished that Ernest did not invariably seem to see below the surface of things."

"And I didn't save you in time," he said gravely. "Save her from what?" queried Nolly.

"From the blight of society," he said. "Is it a blight?" asked Mrs. Spalding.

"Venice will be able to tell you one of these days," Ernest assured her, helping Nolly to settle herself in a chair.

"Unpacking the next morning Venice became fairly ecstatic over the new clothes. The jangling of the telephone startled her.

"Hello," she called. "Hello, Venice. Welcome home. Oh, Lola! How are you? And innumerable thanks to you and Jerry for the roses."

"Rien, darling. May I come to lunch with you today? I'm pining to see you and I simply have to hear about the Marquis' suicide and that American he spoke of."

"Come along," said Venice. She knew a vague resentment at Lola's evident enjoyment of the gossip about her. She regards me as a naughty peep-show, she reflected humorously, and wants to be the first to get a look inside.

The receiver back in its place, her eyes wandered to the small lacquered figures on the footboard of her bed, patiently crossing their bridges and carrying their long poles. Their minute stolidity knew no surprise of probing curiosity about her. It pleased her to imagine that their indefinite little faces looked brighter for her return.

Lola blew in about one o'clock. "I'm so glad to see you, darling," she kissed Venice in her careless, exuberant way.

"It's nice Lola. And you look more bubbling than ever," she said. "Luncheon is served." Nora sat the door with her habitual air of it's-my-duty-but-I-don't-think-much-of-it.

Sitting at the familiar mahogany table, Venice's mind went back to that day when she and Lola had discussed a recipe for popularity and she had so poignantly admitted press.

Washington observers are inclined to regard the Hefflin-Bankhead contest lightly. As one stated: "Suppose the senate does declare the seat vacant. It doesn't mean anything. Senator Hastings' report may be construed as a model of civic righteousness and virtue, and likewise such action by the senate, but that's all it can mean."

The situation seems to be this: If the seat is declared vacant by the senate, such action doesn't mean that Hefflin will be seated. Far from it.

Undaunted It would mean that the governor of Alabama would have to appoint someone to fill the seat until the next general election could be held.

And the general impression seems to be that John Bankhead would get the appointment with the least possible delay.

Meanwhile Hefflin continues as jubilant as ever. He still has an office in the same building where he worked when he was a member of the senate.

It is on the ground floor—No. 106. By virtue of the fact that he filed the election contest, he could claim office space until a decision.

For months he has been busy with his attorneys, but never too busy to talk with anyone about how he was deprived of his senatorial toga by what he terms "fraud."

you won't marry him." "But he didn't marry," said Venice. "He was fearfully broke and she didn't drive him to it." "That's what you say, darling. But the truth will out. Perhaps you've been fooling us all along." "Perhaps."

Resolution Is Given

The resolution said in part: "Be it resolved that we view with apprehension and alarm the prospect opened up by this suit. Business men must hereafter carry on their activities in uncertainty and fear, menaced on the one hand by federal prosecution for unfair practices and on the other by state prosecution for stating what is unfair. We regard this suit as most untimely during the present grave economic emergency when business is struggling for a profitable existence and in a time of general unemployment, further complicating our labor situation while public spirited citizens are giving their time and money to relieve the distress caused by unemployment.

"We believe this suit will intimidate loyal business men in many lines who seek to stabilize business by reestablishment trade practices and who might be in danger of violating our anti-trust laws without intending to do so.

See Revision Need

"We suggest the probable need for revision of our anti-trust laws in line with modern business progress. We invite the people of Texas, generally the present and prospective members of the legislature, the executive branches of the government and particularly the Attorney General and his staff to give attention to a study of the anti-trust laws of this state in the light of changed economic conditions and to seek a modern and efficient restatement of the state's attitude toward business cooperation."

Home Town

nothing but grass for cows could grow out here, a lot of people of the generation that followed them believed cotton and grain sorghums couldn't be grown. Later, the general belief was that trees, excepting the native mesquite and cedar, would not thrive.

This has been found a false impression. And the Chinese elm has been found the shade tree best adapted to this region.

Planting of 1,000 trees in Big Spring will be an investment that will reap dividends of various kinds in larger and larger amounts as the years go by.

Those who reserved trees should call at the Chamber of Commerce office at once, procure them and begin setting them out.

This editorial, written by President Houston Hare of the W.T.C. C. appears in the new issue of West Texas Today.

We give credit and honor to those pioneers who carved the Empire which we know as West Texas from a wilderness—a Llano Estacado. These pioneers and those who came after them have made it a safe and profitable place for us to live.

Busy with the task of grubbing mesquite, of carving out ranches, and farms, laying out cities and towns, and organizing the fundamentals of community life, our pioneers have left undone only a few of the refinements of modern civilization. These unfinished tasks are ours.

Principally among them is the utilization of the soil and sunshine which they found, and the watering of adaptable trees and shrubs throughout our region.

As we receive the major benefits of the labors of those who pioneered this section for us, so it may be possible that others will receive the greater benefits from the beautification program which we conceive as one of our contributions to West Texas.

Our beautification program, scientifically outlined over a period of five years, should be much more than merely a five-year plan. Once started, its benefits will be so apparent that it will be continued year after year until this section is the greatest example of reforestation in America.

Its benefits in contentment... in enhancement of home and community values, are beyond estimation. What more inspiring task can the West Texas Chamber of Commerce undertake than the re-making of the entire landscape of West Texas? What greater monument can it desire than thousands of living trees?

Ribble, The Florist, Has Opened Shop In Lubbock

Ribble, the Florist, is celebrating his anniversary today both in Big Spring and in Lubbock. An unusual celebration was held in Lubbock Wednesday and Thursday when he opened his new shop in the Hilton Hotel with 5000 visitors present.

In connection with the Lubbock opening he offered a $10 gold piece to the visitor who submitted the best slogan for use in the store, and gave away flowers to all visitors.

The Lubbock store is operated with his brother, O. W. Ribble.

War Inflation Held Cause Of Business Worries By Traylor

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11. (AP)—Melvin Traylor, Chicago banker mentioned as a possible Democratic presidential nominee, told the senate manufacturers' sub-committee today that wartime inflation was the underlying cause of present business troubles. He said that credit was inflated, $200,000,000,000, and denied that a shortage of gold was responsible. Traylor said the foreign investment power of American capitalists is too liberal.

Sweetwater Bank Closed By Officers

SWEETWATER, Dec. 11.—Although the First National bank here closed its doors yesterday morning, the Texas Bank & Trust company, across the street, reported that withdrawals of money there were normal today.

Although closing of the First National was a distinct surprise the action was received with calmness throughout the city. The Texas Bank & Trust company, which customarily closes from noon to 1 p. m. daily for lunch remained open through that hour Thursday after the First National had closed and experienced no abnormal withdrawals or turnover in clearings.

The notice on the door of the bank yesterday morning read: "At a called meeting of the board of directors of the First National Bank of Sweetwater, Texas, at 10 o'clock p. m., December 9th, 1931, it was unanimously stated that on account of the continued shrinkage of deposits and the bank's inability under existing conditions to collect loans, to close the said bank in justice to the depositors."

The statement is signed by R. K. McAdams, president, and Walter I. Boothe, Clyde B. Payne, and C. R. Simmons, directors.

Future Officers Address Kiwanians

When members of the Lubbock Kiwanis Club found it impossible to come here and conduct the week's program for the Big Spring club Thursday at noon the members here held an informal meeting at which newly elected officers were heard in short talks and a special program scheduled for Christmas week discussed.

President-Elect George Gentry and Ray Wilcox and Loy Acuff, respectively named first and second vice-presidents, respectively, for next year, were heard.

Guests of the day were E. B. Ribble, the florist, and John Cummings superintendent in charge of the U. S. weather bureau here.

President-Elect Gentry invited suggestions from members as to the coming year's program of work.

Mr. Wilcox gave the member a complete review of conferences between the Chamber of Commerce special highway committee and the highway commission.

NEW CAR STOLEN

But two or three days after he had bought a 1932 Chevrolet coupe R. B. Bliss reported Thursday to officers that the car had been stolen from in front of the Alta Vista apartments, where Mr. and Mrs. Bliss reside. The car had been driven less than 200 miles.

Just ONE Question..

"HOW GOOD ARE THEY?" — THAT'S WHAT SMOKERS WANT TO KNOW ABOUT CIGARETTES

SMOKERS, nowadays, aren't taking things for granted. They're shopping around... asking questions.

Old man habit has been discarded... forgotten. "How good is it?"... that's what they want to know about any cigarette they smoke.

"HOW good is it?" Brother, you put your finger right on it!

You want a cigarette that's milder. You want a cigarette that tastes better. You want a pure cigarette. And above all, you want cigarettes that satisfy.

Now when you say that, you're talking Chesterfield's language—none other!

IT STARTS with fine tobacco. Chesterfield buyers are experts in the art of judging quality leaf. They can spot the finest tobacco in any country... and they won't take anything else.

You'll find the same painstaking care... the same skillful handling... in the curing, the blending, and the cross-blending.

Blended and cross-blended... that's Chesterfield! And what a difference it makes in the way it smokes and tastes!

FROM field to package, Chesterfields are protected by the strictest purity standards; the most modern sanitary manufacturing methods.

They're rolled in the finest, whitest paper... that burns without taste or odor. Wrapped in a clean, attractive package... neat, fresh-looking; moisture-tight... but easy to open.

And delivered as fast as they're made... from 3 big factories... to every cigarette counter in the land.

THAT'S the story of why Chesterfields satisfy. That's the reason they're milder... that's why they taste better. Light up... and answer your own question!

"No question about it - They really Satisfy"
