CONGRESS ADJOURNS FINALLY IN UPROAR

COURT TELLS EDITOR TO TRY PUBLISH TRUTH

Calls Eastland Oil Belt News on Misstatement of Fact and Asks for Authority.

In an open letter to the editor of the Eastland Oil Belt News, Judge George L. Davenport, in an impassioned but decided manner, calls attention to misstatements of fact in an editorial news story about the trial of the suit of the Eastland county vs. Davison et al., and indicates that it would be desirable to know where the Oil Belt News obtained the information it publishes so glibly as both law and fact. In his letter, Judge Davenport says:

Editor, Eastland Daily Oil Belt News: In your paper of June 6, 1924, appearing in your editorial column was the following: "Although no jury was selected in the suit of Eastland county vs. G. A. Davison et al., who admitted to be a subscriber to the Oil Belt News or a clansman, still, it reports to be true, there came very near being a conviction. It is also stated that the court allowed more challenges to the defense than was admissible in a fair interpretation of the law. What if there had been a jury selected without any such prescription and no extra challenge allowed? where would that bunch be now?"

You are in error in stating that the court allowed more challenges than the law allowed to the defense, in the fair interpretation of the law. In the case above referred to there were a number of defendants, and under the law, by reason of the nature of the answers filed by the defendants, in several instances, seven of the defendants were entitled to six challenges each in the selection of the jury. This is fixed by law, and not discretionary with the court.

When the question was discussed before the challenges were made by any of the parties, it was agreed between the attorneys representing the plaintiff and the various defendants that altogether the defendants would be entitled to forty-two challenges, and there was no controversy as to the correctness of the number to which they were entitled.

However, the defendants, as is disclosed by the records, only exercised 24 of the 42 challenges to which they were entitled. I have communicated with local attorneys representing the plaintiff, inquiring as to where you secured the information upon which you base your editorial referred to, and am advised that no such information was furnished by them. Neither do they occur in your statement, but state to me that unquestionably the defendants were entitled to many more challenges than used by them.

I am at a loss to understand why you are willing to publish such statement when the records would have disclosed to you the utter falsity of the same, unless it is in an effort to mislead the public as to the facts, and thereby prejudice them against the writer.

I am advised that the Rev. Mr. Grimm in his discourse on Friday evening referred to the same matter, criticizing this court severely. I assume that he secured his information from your editorial, or from information furnished by you, as I am unable to find anyone else who is willing to assume the responsibility of that character of information.

Will you be fair enough to examine the records, and to consult the attorneys representing the plaintiff in this suit, and verify my statement, and when you find it correct, acknowledge that the editorial referred to is based upon false statement of facts giving it the same publicity as the editorial referred to.

THOUGHT AND EFFORT LEAD FORWARD

R. L. BATTS, LAWYER AND SCHOLAR, GIVES MESSAGE OF HOPE, VISION, CHARITY TO VARSITY GRADUATES

Special.
AUSTIN, June 7.—Addressing the largest graduating class in the history of the University of Texas, Judge R. L. Batts, of Austin, an ex-student of the law class of 1884, delivered the principal address at the forty-first annual commencement exercises held in the men's gymnasium on Friday morning, June 6 at 8:30 o'clock. The subject of his address was "Cervantes, Don Quixote and Sancho."

Diplomas and degrees were presented to the graduates by Acting President W. S. Sutton. The invocation was delivered by Rev. T. W. Currie, head of the Presbyterian Theological seminary of Austin, and the benediction by Rev. Frank L. Jewett, of the Texas Bible chair, maintained at the university by the Christian denomination. Music was furnished by the Longhorn band.

Speaking of Cervantes, Judge Batts said: "At middle age he had apparently definitely fixed his status as a failure. But this is something further to be inquired into. For there is wealth too intangible to be taxed. And he was rich in experience, in imagination, in wisdom.

"Let us be careful when we say of a man that he has succeeded—his soul may be dead. More careful when we say he has failed—it may be he is now free."

"This success, to whom does it, and when, but the more material success, deserved, may come not at all or tardy come. And so with Cervantes. When misfortune had marked him for its own—the drunk of that which gave him immortality. For Cervantes introduced to the world Don Quixote de la Mancha, knight of the sorrowful figure. And if to Shakespeare the world is indebted for Falstaff; not less does it owe Cervantes for Sancho Panza, the companion of Don Quixote.

"My me is mine," Lanier said, and so may every man assert his claim. But which of them may know the boundaries of his vast estate? For every man had his beginning and each will find his nether limit at the end of all things. A man is a body and a mind—and much more. Of the structure and the substance of his body we may know somewhat. Of his mind we may observe phenomena—whereof there are many conjectures, and much muddled thought, and much controversy and many books. And we may well believe these lacking—the body and the mind—there would be little left of a wherewith to make history or write romances. But it is also not difficult to assume a body functioning normally and a mind stored with much knowledge and capable of logic accurate as the music of a player piano, and all this a Frankenstein—a machine, a thing not human, a thing not made in the image of God—a gross thing of evil.

Spirit of Man.
"Let the scientists go further if they may, but those of us to whom life is a magnificent mystery and man its most glorious manifestation, will be content to believe that which is in addition to the body and the mind is that which makes man the noblest product of the Creative Power. Let us call it the Spirit and let us ascribe to it those functions and qualities which cannot be referable to the physical body and which cannot be the product alone of the mind.

"This spirit gives the qualities that are lovable and the power of love. It gives beauty, for beauty is not an abstract thing, but the power to perceive and appreciate to live, and form and rhythm and grace and the concord of sweet sounds. It gives courage and fortitude, ambition—the desire for noble achievement. From it come kindness, unselfishness, love of fellows, justice, conceptions of good. It gives the power to smile, to enjoy, to be happy, to live.

"And so it may be that with the years come bodily strength and then a decline, and mental strength not so soon to decay; and spiritual strength that decays not at all. And so may the life of which we know grow in usefulness, in beauty, in joy.

"Indeed, Cervantes fell as definitely under the domination of Don Quixote as did Sancho Panza, and as many of us have who can feel the glow of his chivalrous heart through the intervening centuries. They were almost companions, misfortune after misfortune befell Don Quixote; not less frequently and even more cruelly they came to Cervantes; imprisonment, poverty, disappointment. But each of them lived. And while Don Quixote was seeing things invisible to other eyes, Cervantes dwelt also in an enchanted land, and made to the literature of knight errantry another contribution scarcely less fantastic than the books he assumed to ridicule.

"And who can draw the line between the things that are and the things that are not? Who may fix the limits between the real and the unsubstantial. Who may say a thing is not material because it is of the fabric of which dreams are made? Who may question the conclusions of the Spanish poet: All life is a dream.

"And many may question, and none can answer. Wherefore, let those of us who cannot see, not assume that all are blind. And we know or almost know that there are scores of visions, and dreamers of dreams that come magnificently true.

Purpose to Serve
"Wherefore let us not be perturbed if Don Quixote looked poorly after his acres, if he put not out his hundred and fifty ducats at interest, but bought books, if he indulged intemperately in the literature of knight errantry. For with it all was the purpose intrepid and intense to succor the weak, to fight

The president also approved the independent offices bill, carrying $398,776,740, including $359,000,000 for the veterans' bureau, and the war department appropriation bill of $327,570,465.

Senate Committee Told By Witnesses Of False Testimony

WASHINGTON, June 7.—The senate investigation of former Attorney General Daugherty's conduct of the department of justice, was brought to a temporary halt today with further denials for additional testimony. Whether the hearing will be resumed during the summer depends upon the decision of Attorney General Stone regarding several witnesses the committee desires to hear.

One is wanted in connection with checks of George Remus, millionaire Cincinnati bootlegger, now in the Atlanta penitentiary. Remus testified that checks will show that he paid nearly $250,000 to Jesse Smith and others and the committee asks who the others are.

Flat denials that he had ever discussed the illegal purchase and withdrawal of liquor or any other question with Gaston B. Means was made by S. Parker Gilbert, former under secretary of the treasury in a letter to Secretary Mellon, transmitted to the committee.

Samuel Ungerleider, Cleveland stock broker, in a letter to the committee, branded as false the testimony of Cecil H. Kearns, of Toledo, also serving in Atlanta. Kearns mentioned Underleider in his testimony about various liquor deals.

BRITISH LABOR GOVERNMENT TAKE SHAND IN 'RED' STRIKE
LONDON, June 7.—The British labor government interfered today in the "red" strike of powerhouse workers, which yesterday put most of London's great network of subway systems out of commission. COOLIDGE KILLS SALARY RAISES IN POSTOFFICE

Vetoes Bill to Recompense 300,000 Clerks and Carriers Carrying $68,000,000.

WASHINGTON, June 7.—Dashing the hopes of 300,000 postal clerks, carriers and other postoffice employees, President Coolidge today vetoed the $68,000,000 postal increase bill. In his message to congress, returning the measure without his approval the president said that he could not sign it, because of the expenditure involved.

"Government extravagance must stop," he said. "People of the nation are paying all that it is possible for them today. I have taken my position in regard to government economy which I have restated until it is well known. I feel that this position ought to be consistent."

He pointed out that the bill would add approximately $68,000,000 to the annual expenditure of the government. It makes no provision for raising this amount as postal revenue. The money must come from the pockets of the taxpayers. Concerning the Cables correct practice bill, providing a complete system of campaign expenses, attached to the bill as a rider, the president said that he would have approved it had it stood alone.

TRAFFIC STRIKE LOOMS IN CLEVELAND ON EVE OF BIG CONVENTION

CLEVELAND, June 7.—A strike that will paralyze street car traffic here is scheduled to begin at midnight next Tuesday, the day the republican national convention opens in this city. It was voted almost unanimously by motormen and conductors of the Cleveland Street Railway company early today. The day crews, at a meeting last night, voted to strike, and the night crews, at a meeting this morning, gave similar approval to the strike. The vote was 1,587 to 53.

The decision followed refusal of the company to grant an increase of 12 cents an hour in pay with 15 minutes pay for making out accident reports as awarded the men by the arbitration board.

With hundreds of thousands of visitors and delegates expected for the republican convention, the strike would cause a transportation tie-up unprecedented in the city's history. John J. Stanley, president of the traction company, said today the company stood pat in its refusal to grant the award of the arbitration board, which voted 3 to 2 to grant the increase to the men. "We will hire strike-breakers and have everything in readiness to continue running the cars when the strike begins," he said. Armoring of the cars is under way. They are being covered with steel gauze to protect the glass.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, June 7.—Final efforts to avert a street car strike here during the republican national convention will be made by officers of the international union. The union officials will come here from Detroit and immediately enter negotiations with William Pope, president of the Cleveland union. City officials will participate as will members of the wage arbitration board.

WEST TEXAS INTERESTED IN DIRECT OUTLET TO GULF
AUSTIN, June 7.—On the title page of the brief which has been filed with the interstate commerce commission in behalf of the Waco-Beaumont-Trinity railway company, to extend their line from Livingston to Beaumont and thence to Port Arthur and West Port Arthur, appears to contain excerpts from the Bible. One being Psalms 127, "Except the Lord build the house, they labor in vain that build it."

Copies of the brief were speeded Saturday by the Texas railroad commission before whom the hearing was held. Particular attention was called to the intervention of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce asking that the road be built so as to have a direct outlet to the sea for the great cotton growing section of the country.

DO LESS THAN DO NOTHING OF OTHER YEARS

Scandal Probes and Discord With White House Mark Last Session.

WASHINGTON, June 7.—Congress adjourned sine die tonight amid unusual turbulence. Unless called in special session they will not meet again until Dec. 1.

The session, the first of the sixty-eighth congress, which began amid stormy scenes and raged through six months, went out at 7 o'clock tonight in the mildest fashion. Members have already begun to scatter for their several conventions and then will go to their various states to prepare for the campaign. There is some talk of an extra session to begin in September, but the outcome will await developments of the campaign. The next regular session will begin Dec. 1.

The things for which the session will be remembered above all others are: the scandal investigations, the dogged opposition of congress to the president and the rise to power of the progressives.

Balance of Power.
The session opened last December with a new congress, the republicans and democrats being very nearly evenly divided so that the progressive group held the balance of power. For many days the progressives blocked organization of both houses, refusing to permit the republicans to elect a speaker in the house until they had obtained liberalization of the rules, and in the senate winning their fight to keep Senator A. B. Cummins of Iowa, joint author of the Eech-Cummings bill, from chairmanship of the interstate commerce committee, electing Senator Ellison D. Smith of South Carolina, democrat, to the post.

Not until their wishes in these respects prevail did the progressives permit the business of either house to get under way.

Important bills providing money for first year payments and adjustments of the soldier bonus, reclamation and other urgent expenditures of government did without action, as did the naval reconditioning bill. The senate adjourned promptly at 7 o'clock, but the house remained in session until 7:07 to permit Speaker Gillett to sign last minute bills by the expedient of stopping the clock so as not to violate the terms of the adjournment resolution, which called for the session's end sharply at 7 p. m.

A filibuster was started in the senate this afternoon over the oil scandal report and ended with the protest of western senators against dropping the Nevada reclamation project from the emergency bill. Desperate efforts were made to run through an appropriation of $130,000,000 for the bonus payments independent of the deficiency bill. The house passed the resolution in less than 90 seconds sometime after 6 o'clock, but action on it was blocked in the senate.

Walsh Report Held Up.
The Walsh report denouncing the naval oil reserve leases as corrupt and illegal failed to secure approval, chiefly because of a three-hour speech by Spencer, Missouri, republican. The $350,000 naval reconditioning bill, which passed both houses, was held up by last minute objections by Kane, Utah. Every effort to get separate action on the bonus appropriation failed.

At three minutes to 7 the clerk of the house brought over a resolution authorizing the bonus appropriation as a separate measure. In the final moment before the house adjourned, republican leader Longworth bitterly denounced the senate's refusal to pass either the deficiency appropriation bill or the special bonus resolution.

"A successful session of congress has been marred at the last moment by the refusal of either body to pass the great deficiency bill which provided among other things sums to pay the soldiers' bonus," Longworth said. "The bill failed through the selfishness in a few who were interested in a reclamation project which has no merit."

Failure of the bonus appropriations will act chiefly to hamper clerical preparations for payment. Actual funds for the payment can be appropriated at the December session of congress.

MANIA FOR LAW-MAKING INCREASES DEMAND FOR POP

Speaking in Boston on Bunker Hill day—former United States Senator Albert J. Beveridge characterized in the following unequivocal language the American mania for law-making: "Government supervision of and interference with human life and activities in the United States bid fair to break down our entire experiment in popular self-rule.
 "Consider the appalling fact: One adult out of every 20 persons engaged in business or industry in this country is a government agent, official or employe. I mean, of course, all government, county, city and national.  Today all the gold known to exist in the whole world would barely pay the total cost of government in America for only a single year.
 "Another astounding fact is that Americans are forbidden by law to do more things, and by law forced to do more things than were the Russian people under the czar or the German people under the kaiser. Moreover, nearly all of these repressive, oppressive and autocratic laws and regulations have been forced on the statute books by selfish minorities of whom our lawmakers and administrators are in terror. ***
 "Let our laws be expressions of the will of the majority instead of ukases of the minority; and enforce all laws with absolute equality. Uphold the American constitution—all of it, not merely such parts of it as suit our fleeting whim or passing convenience; support American institutions against every assailant, foreign and domestic, open or covert—all American institutions, not merely some American institutions."

THE VACATION

Every well conducted business organization provides a vacation period as a regular feature of its annual program. And this is done not as a matter of grace or generosity, but as a matter of practical economy and efficiency.
 The vacation season is now at hand and thousands of men and women all over the country are planning how they will spend the period of release from the ordinary round of daily duties.
 Are they planning wisely and with a true conception of the real value of a vacation? Or are they looking forward to it merely as an opportunity for indulgence and excesses with their attendant physical, mental and nervous drains?
 Wisely spent, a vacation, even a brief one, refreshes the jaded brain, recuperates the wearied body and relaxes the over-tautened nerves. And one returns from such an experience with renewed vigor that enables him or her to perform their daily tasks with increased efficiency as well as with greater ease and comfort to themselves.
 Unwisely spent, the late hours, in over-tax of physical and nervous energy, and in thoughtless over-indulgence, it wholly fails of its designed purpose. And the inevitable result is a less capable mind and body for the remainder of the year.
 This is so obvious as to be trite, and yet the little preachment embodied in the mere statement of the well recognized, but frequently disregarded truth may not be ill-timed nor out of place at this time.

 The man was knocked unconscious by a patrolman who attempted to arrest him when Jones dived head first into the brick wall. He was taken to the city emergency hospital and his wounds dressed. Then he walked out of the room and dived into the basement, fracturing his skull.

for the oppressed, to right the wrongs in all the land. And no noble effort, however lacking in success, was ever wasted or spent. Moreover, whatever his lack, he had those qualities which must be provided if balanced progress is to be made, if the veils of ignorance are to be pushed back, if charity and love are to soften and sweeten the lives of men. From the men of his kind, from the men of vision, from the men of abnormal minds, of intense feelings, of unselfish purpose have come those deeds which have marked the progress of the human race.

"And we may well believe that each forward movement has come from the thoughts and the deeds—not of those who measured their steps, who took count of their cattle, who felt of their wallet, who sat placid by the fire, who thought first of their safety—but of those who dreamed, who saw visions, who gave no thought to danger, who tendered their lives that other might live, and love, and carry on."

By United Press.

lerand at the Elysee and accepting a commission from the president, Marsal set about consulting with prominent statesmen regarding the ministerial positions.

VISITING MARINE GREETED BY JURY IN BODY

DALLAS, June 7.—J. W. Kneeland gave his excuse for not wanting to serve on a jury that his son, a member of the marine corps who he had not seen in four years, was to arrive in Dallas for a brief visit and the father wouldn't see his son if jury duty interfered. The judge accepted Kneeland and sent the entire jury to the train to meet the marine.

DAVENPORT HAS HIS MIND FIXED ON RE-ELECTION

His Service on Bench Has Proved Fitness and His Ability Often Demonstrated.

Judge George L. Davenport, who has served three years ably and with distinction as judge of the Ninety-first judicial district, is a candidate for re-election as nominee of the democratic party at its July primaries.

Judge Davenport is a native of Texas, born in Coryell county, where he lived until 1889, when he moved to Eastland county and made it his home until 1905, when he moved to Stamford, Jones county, remaining there until 1918, when he returned to Eastland county and located in Ranger. He obtained his license to practice law in 1898 and immediately took up the work of his profession in earnest, opening an office in Ranger.

Elected county attorney of Eastland county in November, 1899, Judge Davenport held that office two terms. It was after that he moved to Stamford and engaged in the practice of law there, establishing an extensive practice in that portion of the state.

After returning to Ranger in 1919, he continued the practice of law until appointed by Governor Hobby in June, 1920, as judge of the Ninety-first district court. He was nominated for the office by the democrats in the July primaries following and elected, so that he is now serving his first term as the choice of the people.

When the first Chamber of Commerce was organized in Ranger, Judge Davenport was elected its first president and he held that position during the period when the affairs of this city were being handled through that organization and until the city of Ranger was incorporated.

As judge of the Ninety-first district court, Judge Davenport has tried more important cases than any district tribunal in this state. Many new and important legal questions growing out of the oil industry have been passed upon and decided by this court, and in most instances the decisions of this court concerning such new and important questions have been upheld and followed. More cases have been appealed in vain from the Ninety-first court, George L. Davenport, judge presiding, there being fewer reversals from his decisions, than in any other court in Texas.

U. S. BOXING TEAM WEAKENED BY BIG MONEY

NEW YORK, June 7.—With only one outstanding fighter of class, the American Olympic boxing team is not as formidable as the squad that went to Antwerp in 1920. Nearly all of the good amateur boxers that were developed since the Antwerp games turned professional, and left the class in a rather emaciated condition.

Eddie Eagen, former captain of the Yale boxing team, now a Rhodes scholar at Oxford, is the only outstanding boxer on the team. He is not only the best of the American amateurs, but he is about the best in the world. Eagen, who was appointed to the team without qualifying, may be started in both the light heavyweight and heavyweight classes, and he has a fine chance to win the championship in both classes.

The American team won only two championships in the last Olympic boxing matches. Frank de Genaro, who is now one of the headliners of the professional ring under the name of Genaro, won the flyweight championship, and Sam Mosberg won the lightweight title.

Bill Spengler, boxing instructor at the New York police school, had the heavyweight championship practically sewed up, but he had the bad luck to break his hand in his semi-final round and he was forced to default.

The Zivic brothers were headliners of the 1920 team, but they have turned professional. Joek Zivic is one of the outstanding fighters in the lightweight class, and Benny Leonard makes good his threat to retire at the end of the season. Zivic may be able to grab the title.

Eddie Eagen and Harry Mallin, the Britisher, who won the middleweight championship at Antwerp, will be the only two 1920 champions to defend their titles. Mallin is one of the best amateurs in Europe and he is almost certain to retain his title.

Eagen holds the British intercollegiate light heavyweight championship and also the heavyweight title. He is one of the best fighters in the ring having a heavy punch and a lot of boxing skill. He could make good in the professional ring, but he has ambitions to become a lawyer, and he is working his way through college.

Nitros Win 17 to 8; Much Harder Battle Is Expected This Afternoon.

Ranger showed a clean pair of heels to Desdemona in a slow drawn-out swatfest Saturday afternoon at Nitro park at 4 o'clock. Ridings was touched freely for hits but the Desdemona bats could not deliver when hits meant runs.

Ridings for Ranger and Vick and Hale for Desdemona were wild and uncertain at times on account of the high wind. Vick was run to the showers in the third inning and Hale who relieved him stood up until the eighth inning when overcame with a day dream he walked three men and hit two in addition to allowing two hits for a total of six runs. The final count was 17 to 8 in favor of the Nitros.

MISS ROGERS OF GALVESTON WINS GOLF HONORS

WACO, June 7.—Flashing the two true scientific games which she has displayed throughout the tournament, Miss Priscilla Rogers of Galveston won the women's golf championship of Texas here this afternoon by defeating Mrs. May Whitley of Fort Worth in the finals, 3-1, at Spring Lake.

Miss Rogers, playing brilliantly at all times, held the lead from the start, but was closely threatened at different times by the splendid playing of her opponent. Battling against overwhelming odds, Mrs. Whitley played a desperate and risky game. Time after time her shots would hurl her banner down only to rise again.

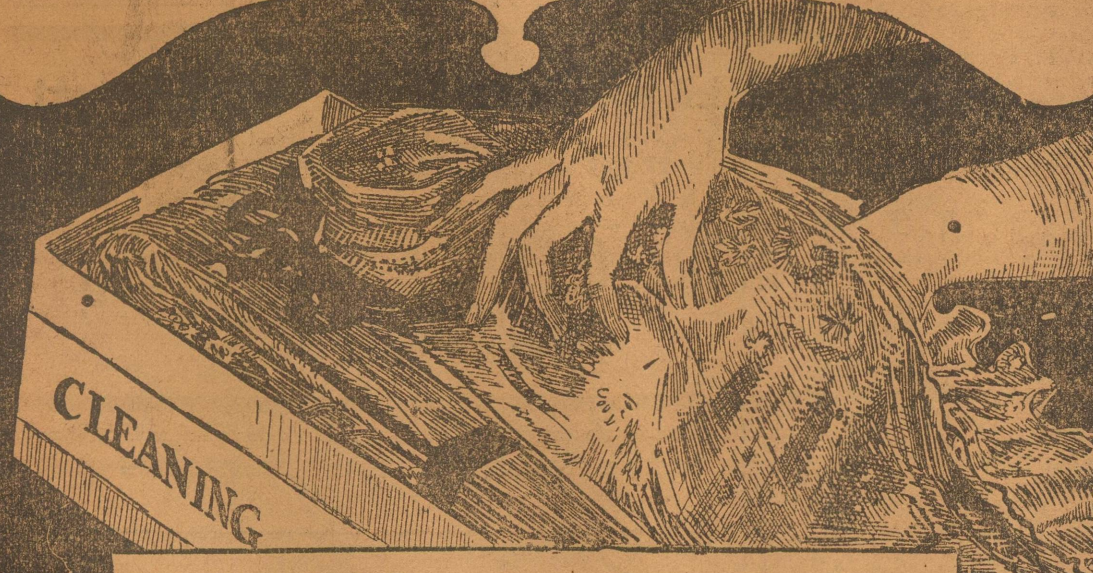

Brilliant golf also flashed in other matches. Mrs. Ralston of Houston won the finals in the second flight over Mrs. Monteith of Houston, Miss Morris of Dallas won the finals of the third flight over Mrs. Davis of Waco.

DRY CLEANING DONE SCIENTIFICALLY

When we use the word "scientifically" we say it advisedly. Years of experience has taught us the right method, the best and safest.

Particularly is it necessary in the cleansing of women's summer garments—for most of them are delicate in fabric and require extreme care. Just a trial is all we ask. Our wagons make the rounds daily.

WHITE AND THALHEIMER WIN CHAMPIONSHIP IN BOYS' SINGLES

AUSTIN, June 7.—Lewis White of Austin and Louis Thalheimer of Dallas, national collegiate double champions, defeated J. B. Adoue and John Barr of Dallas in the finals for the Texas state tennis doubles championship this afternoon, 3-6, 6-1, 3-6, 6-3, 6-3.

The match was featured by sensational field volleying and some of the most brilliant doubles plays ever made in a Texas tournament. In the junior doubles, Bell and Amman of Austin defeated Allison and Gilder of Fort Worth, 6-3, 6-3, 6-0.

Darkness prevented completion of the match in the singles finals for state championship between Thalheimer and White.

By agreement it was called a draw and as a result no Texas state champion in the singles event. Thalheimer led in the first and second 6-3. White took the third 3-7, when darkness called off the match.

SPECIAL OFFER ON Firestone Balloon Gum-Dipped Tires

We have just received authority from The Firestone Tire Co. to furnish, WITHOUT EXTRA CHARGE, new wheels and rims with each set of Balloon Double Gum-Dipped Balloon Tires, making no extra expense over tire cost for change-over from your present tires to the original and superior Balloon Tires.

The Firestone Balloon Gum-Dipped Cord is not merely an oversize tire. It has DOUBLE the usual air capacity and operates on just HALF the usual air pressure. No other tire has such extreme flexibility of carcass and tread. No other tire affords such comfort and car protection.

It is the special Firestone process of Gum-Dipping that makes this thin sidewall, double air capacity, construction practicable. The cords are thoroughly saturated with pure rubber. Besides adding great strength and toughness, this process gives freedom from friction between cords and plies and prevents internal heat and resultant brittleness.

Firestone Balloon Gum-Dipped Cords give ample fender clearance; do not increase gear ratio; do not change the speed of the car; do not cut down power; do not increase fuel consumption; do not decrease tire mileage.

For a limited time, we offer liberal allowance for your present equipment.

Texaco Stars Win From Magnolias In Contest At Olden

OLDEN, June 7.—The Parks camp Texaco Stars, trounced the Magnolias here this afternoon, 6 to 0, in a game featured by the consistent pitching of Stedman, of Parks, and the general wide-awake and snappy play of the entire Star aggregation.

Stedman let Olden down with four hits and only one man reached third base. Circus stops by Hub Hollis and Sisk killed whatever chance the Magnolias had to score. The Magnolias put up a lifeless exhibition, playing a loose feilding game behind Koch, who started in the box.

After a bombardment in the third netting five Texaco markers, Koch appeared to settle down after Sisk first up in the fifth, rattled the boards. Pete Supina came in from right field and stopped the Stars for the rest of the fracas. Supina's pitching was the only bright spot for Olden fans.

CLEVELAND READY TO WELCOME REPUBLICANS GATHERING THERE FOR THE NATIONAL CONVENTION

City by Great Lakes in Holiday Attire; Marvelous Lighting System Devised for Visitors; Radio Will Carry convention Events to Millions Over the Country.

By JULIAN SNYDER (United Press Staff Correspondent)
CLEVELAND, June 7.—Cleveland today was ready to welcome its first great political convention. An air of expectancy pervaded the city. The republican headquarters boomed with activity. Hotels hummed with convention chatter. Already a vast host of stranger were here for the great event.

Sunday and Monday trains will rumble into town with the republican army of delegates from all parts of the nation. Tuesday, John T. Adams, chairman of the republican national committee, will raise the convention gavel in Cleveland public hall. And as the gavel falls, perhaps au-

CONVENTION PROGRAM

Tuesday, the first day of the convention, will be devoted to the "keynote" address by Congressman Theodore Burton of Cleveland, and appointment of the rules, platform and other committees. Wednesday, the report of the committee on permanent organization will be made, naming the man selected for permanent chairman. The permanent chairman then will deliver the second "keynote" speech. This will be followed by reports of other committees. Thursday, the nomination of a vice president will be made. Friday, the nomination for a vice president will be made and a new republican national committee organized.

dible to the 13,000 delegates and visitors jammed in the great auditorium, more than 1,000 trained writers, and, for the first time in history, the radio will start reporting to the world another chapter in American political history. Cleveland today speeded to completion the last minute preparations for the convention. The city put on a holiday garb. The downtown district was decked out in miles of red, white and blue bunting. Flags were flying from most every lamp post and building. Merchants had their store windows scoured and placed their newest stocks in pleasing array to catch the eye, for it is well known that with a national convention comes a deluge of gold. It is estimated that more than half a million dollars will be spent here next week.

Scores of vendors counted their renewed stocks of novelties. Strange out of the state faces thronged the streets—official looking men, nondescript appearing men, handsomely gowned women, gaudily dressed, painted women, cripples and beggars. All were in town for the big show.

Wet or Dry
There was a wide variance today between rumors of bootleggers and predictions of city officials that the convention will be "bone" dry. Rumor said the city will be the wettest in history and that liquor in almost unlimited quantities will be available.

Safety Director Edwin Barry still held to his forecast that the convention will be "the driest in history." Finishing touches in the decoration of Cleveland public hall, where the convention will be called to order next Tuesday, were being rushed today.

The great auditorium—simply an elongated bowl with a roof covering it, is draped outside and in with the national colors. The auditorium will seat more than 13,000. Sixth street, leading to the public hall, is a veritable arch of flags and red, white and blue bunting.

The Lighting Scheme
The hall is lighted by 1,075 lamps of 200 watts each of white light, located behind a field of glass panels in the ceiling 80 feet above the floor. More spectacular is the scheme of colored lights. There are amber, red and blue lights behind the glass screens. All are under control of a dimmer, so that a soft amber or brilliant red may diffuse the great chamber. The lights are so arranged that a section of the hall may be blocked off in white light, a second section in red and a third in blue or amber. Or, the colors may be combined to produce various tints and shades.

Lights placed about 12 feet apart under the lower balconies illuminate the arena. A pipe organ of 10,000 pipes and 150 direct speaking stops will furnish music during the convention.

The stage upon which high officials of the government will occupy seats of honor and from which the "keynote" and nominating speech or speeches will be made is exceedingly spacious, measuring 104 by 50 feet. The opening is 72 feet wide and is surmounted by an arch 42 feet six inches high. The opening is fitted with a steel and asbestos curtain weighing 40 tons, with its counter weights. It is operated by hydraulic power.

There are more than 30 private rooms directly off of the stage especially fitted up for the convenience of the republican leaders and distinguished guests.

There will be 70 doorkeepers on duty under the direction of General Wilder Metcalf of Kansas. The doorkeepers have been appointed from all parts of the country. One hundred and fifty ushers will seat the delegates and visitors.

Lafayette B. Gleason of New York is secretary and Colonel Edward P. Thayer is sergeant at arms of the convention.

The decorations downtown, historic Public Square, is perhaps most lavishly festooned. Thirty-two great pillars are wrapped in the national colors and connected by wires strung with hundreds of electric lights.

The most spectacular light effect of the convention will be Wednesday evening, when the likeness of President Coolidge and Secretary of State Charles Hughes and other prominent republicans will be flashed across the sky over the city by fireworks.

Lavish Use of Radio
More people will see, hear and read about the convention than at any convention in history. Hundreds of telegraph wires have been strung into public hall for the use of newspapers and press associations. Fifty telephone booths have been installed. S. C. Moule, division superintendent of the local telephone company, said the wire system is the most elaborate in the history of political conventions.

For the first time the convention will be broadcast by radio. Convention proceedings will be broadcast by three dozen other stations in other parts of the country through continuous long distance service telephones from the convention hall to the radio instruments. It is estimated that 20,000,000 persons will "listen in" on the convention.

Then also for the first time the new system of sending photographs by telegraph wire by means of recently perfected instruments will be used commercially by the American Telegraph and Telephone company. Thus it will be possible for a newspaper hundreds of miles distant to

A car built to fulfill the ideal of producing the greatest automobile value in the $1,000 field—the car which started the stampede from fours to sixes.

A car with a specially designed offset valve motor of remarkable quietness, economy, freedom from vibration—and with tenacious resourcefulness of power on the hills, the straightaway and the pickup!

DR. ELLIS GETS CHAUTAUQUA TO BRILLIANT END

Famous Newspaper Writer and World Traveler Talks on Conditions in Europe.

Dr. William T. Ellis, famous war correspondent and lecturer, closed the final program of the seven-day program of the Redpath-Horner Chautauqua being staged in Ranger. Dr. Ellis' lecture or rather just a plain talk on the conditions of the European nations imparted information on world politics that were hitherto unknown to the average American. He disclosed with candid frankness the fact that America had given until she had pauperized the European minds and that we are the greatest nation in the world.

He pointed out that the United States of America today controlled the destinies of the world and that special attention should be paid to the education of the younger generation of boys and girls so as to enable them to handle the situation, because he did not believe that the grown-up American of today was capable of doing it.

Dr. Ellis has traveled all over the world as a newspaper correspondent. He has interviewed kings, emperors, sultans, etc., all of the monarchs of the European and Asiatic continents. He has traveled in Persia and interviewed the shah of Persia; in India, he interviewed the head of the Buddhist faith, who, he said, looked to America for help. With years of travel searching for facts he has a fund of information regarding general conditions and political and civil questions of the European continent. Coming before the American public to deliver his brief message to the people of the United States he urged them to remember that they control the destinies of the world and more than any other nation or emperor in the world's history and to act wisely and well. He stressed the point that the younger generation of today should be educated to handle the economic problems that will arise before the present generation of Americans can dispose of them.

INTREPID OFFICERS FACE ARMED WOMAN AND DOGS

M'KINNEY, June 7.—When deputies approached the home of Hess Furl while on a still hunt, they were greeted by bull dogs and a woman armed with a six-shooter. Battling through the canine brigade, the officers forced the woman to surrender before she fired a shot. Corn mash was found on the premises, the officers reported.

MRS. BAILEY SEVERELY BURNED BY EXPLOSION OF GAS IN COOK STOVE

Mrs. H. W. Bailey, living in the Tee Pee camp, who was seriously burned Friday afternoon about 2:30 is resting well and the burns are not as severe as first indications foretold, according to Dr. Carl Wilson, attending physician.

Mrs. Bailey was burned about the chest, both arms and around her neck, the gas oven in her home exploding when she started to light it. The gas burner had been turned on in some way and the oven was full of gas, which ignited and the flames leaped out when she applied a lighted match.

Dr. Wilson, who was summoned immediately by neighbors who heard the explosion, dressed the burns there and rushed her to the City County hospital. Some neighbors had presence of mind enough to apply first aid treatment before he reached the house.

Mr. Bailey is with the Texas Pacific Coal & Oil company in the accounting department.

Humble Brings In Gas and Oil Well At Shallow Depth

The Humble Oil and Refining company W. M. Sneed No. 1 came in Saturday afternoon showing about 7,000,000 feet of gas and spraying oil. The well is located about seven miles south of Ranger and is an offset to the Donley Bros. well and about 750 feet southeast of the Williamson discovery well.

Pay was struck at about 1160 and all indications are that the well will average about 200 barrels when drilled in.

WACO, June 7.—When the state democratic executive committee meets at Dallas Monday to certify the names of the different candidates for state offices, the name of former Governor James E. Ferguson will not be among them, due to court proceedings instituted at Houston to keep his name off the ticket.

Mrs. Mariam A. Ferguson, wife of the former governor, will be certified as a candidate for governor along with the others who are seeking the office.

COMMITTEE FINDS NO EVIDENCE SUFFICIENT TO UNSEAT MAYFIELD

WASHINGTON, June 7.—A sub-committee of the committee investigating the election of Senator Earle B. Mayfield decided early today that evidence submitted did not warrant the unseating of Mayfield, according to reports at the capital today. The sub-committee was expected to make its report to the full committee before 7 o'clock, but the full committee will not be able to make its report to the senate until next December.

Leopold and Loeb Take Turns Placing Blame On the Other

CHICAGO, June 7.—"I would not have been capable of killing Franks had it not been for the suggestions and stimulus of Leopold."

This was the statement of Richard Loeb, 19, millionaire son, whose confession that he took part in the murder of Robert Franks, made public today. Loeb, whose tear-stained face trembled as he broke down and made his first confession of crime, laid all the blame on his former friend and college chum, Nathan Leopold, Jr.

Loeb said that he drove the automobile and that Loeb struck Franks over the head with an iron chisel, the blows that ended the life of the victim. Loeb denied Leopold's story. He insisted that Leopold struck the death blow.

NEWS THROUGH THE CAMERA'S EYE

for thugs to lurk in; no safe spot from which to force a lock or break down a gate. The underworld soon learned that there was no telling when a beam of light, followed by a flash of fire and a serious lead pellet, would put an eternal end to the criminal's midnight enterprises. Naturally the crooks sought, and are seeking, new territory. Too much "pitiless publicity" for them, thank you!

Butler's Day Spectacular
Everything is "rush" about the director. His entrances and exits are spectacular and dramatic. Now he appears in a barroom and bartenders tremble. Again he attends a courtroom and watches the finish-men whose daily trudging forms the backbone of General Butler's program—you should go down the corridor to the office of Superintendent of Police William B. Mills. Mills has been on the force for years and has always been one of its outstanding figures.

A Gun and a Flashlight
"There are seven pieces of equipment the patrolmen carry with them on service in the present clean-up drive," says Superintendent Mills. "They are a blackjack, handcuffs, a pad of paper and a pencil, a five cent piece (for a phone call to the station house when necessary) and a gun and flashlight."

"When the patrolmen are on the hunt for criminals at night two of these objects are in their hands constantly. In their right hands, or where they can be drawn in a flash, are their guns. In their left hands are the flashlights."

"The old-time burglar had his dark lantern and the policeman had only his wits. Nine times out of ten the officer had to manoeuvre in the dark, at the mercy of a finishing blow from an unseen hand. The tables are turned now. The burglar or law breaker is in the spotlight from the moment we find traces of his work."

Most Valuable Weapon
"It is easier to find the trace of his work. A flash will show a jimmied window, a broken gate, or an open cellar door as plainly at night as they could be seen by daylight. Our orders now are to flash spotlights whenever or wherever there is the slightest possibility of a criminal's being at work. The lights are one of the most valuable weapons we have in the present drive. Some think they are as indispensable as a gun."

The writer visited a couple of the formerly most crime-ridden districts of the city.

In that section just east of "Hell's Half Acre," near the location of the notorious Fifth Ward murder, was found a member of Butler's troop of shock fighters, who are transferred about the city to spots where the need seems greatest.

Spotlight Lands Murderer
"There was a murderer from another city killed a man here a little while ago," he said. "We chased him down a number of alleys, over a roof and into a certain house. We saw him go into the house and we didn't see him come out. We couldn't find any passage-ways or sub-cellars. After a thorough search it seemed the murderer had vanished."

"Our flashlights caught him just as we were about to give up!" The patrolman explained. It was early morning and a few rays of light made twilight in the cellar where the search ended. The police men at first thought the light strong enough to spot anyone in hiding. They examined every crevice of the cellar. They prodded with their night sticks into piles of trash, including a pile of old clothes in a small space under the cellar steps. No result.

Shows Up Hiding Place
As a final precaution a spotlight was turned on the more obscure corners. The radiance on the supposed bundle of old clothes under the steps revealed the latter as the missing criminal!

In the old Tenderloin, with its Chinatown, its House of a Hundred Rooms, its tunnels and sub-cellars, you find a district where patrolmen speak with fervor of the usefulness of their secondary weapon, the flashlight.

"For Ways That Are Dark"
"Just the other night we had a little raid in Chinatown," said the sergeant. "We found everything in

"Spotting" Crime in Philadelphia

Armed with Gun and Flashlight General Butler's Police Have Crooks on Run

NINE out of ten crimes, criminologists say, are committed in the hours of darkness, between sunset and sunrise.

That is why the police of Philadelphia, under the energetic direction of General Smedley Darlington Butler, are twinkling through the alleys and dark places of their city now-a-nights, with a flashlight in one hand and a gun within easy reach of the other. The new Director of Public Safety, who, at the request of Mayor Kenrick, has been given leave of absence from the Marine Corps to "clean up Philadelphia," has determined that neither politicians nor crooks shall "keep anything dark" while he is on that job.

Criminals Leaving
Evil doers are learning to fear the beams of light that come sliding into their hiding places. The light comes both figuratively and actually. Criminals are leaving in droves for other and darker pastures. The courts are having less to do than for many months.

Police headquarters at City Hall has been a beehive of activity since the general arrived. Police lieutenants who had commuted crime and vice have been demoted. Diligent sergeants have been promoted. Politicians have got excited and been roundly told their places. Easy going patrolmen have found themselves minus jobs. A galvanic shock has gone through the entire 4,200 members of the force.

Shoot to Kill
At the same time there has been an exhibition of efficiency such as the force has given on few occasions since William Penn landed on the bank of the Delaware. Bandit chasing automobiles have been fitted up and multiplied. Marine Corps discipline has been reborn in a city's corps of crime fighters. Guardians of law and order have had their attention called to their guns and have been told to use them with promptness and accuracy.

One night two citizens were killed by thugs and immediately General Butler, exasperated and determined, decreed the presence of heavy platoons of patrolmen in the streets from midnight on. The cops had their attention called to their flashlights this time, and were told to use them. Bandits were to be spotted. The streets were to be made safe for democracy.

Fire-fly Brigade in Action
The officers took the new director at his word. They had to. The fire-fly brigade went into action. They saw that there were no dark corners ing touches being put to one of his jobs. He is often abroad at night, and, like Haroun al Raschid, sees many strange things, often by the aid of a police flashlight.

He is on the front pages of the newspapers nearly every day, and the reporters kept a constant guard on his movements, standing near his office door as though they were on "death watch." The popular feeling is they are on the death watch of general crime in Philadelphia.

Mills on the Job
But if you want more insight into the ordinary routine of the force—the activities of the 4,200 faithful the place dark. The Chinamen had taken all the electric light globes from their sockets. We would have failed completely without our flashlights.

"You have to move fast up there and see where you are going," he said. "They have heavy wooden doors along the tunnels and hallways. It takes forever to beat them down when they are once closed."

The present day incident of a day's, or a night's work, in a crime drive brought up pictures of the old ten-twenty-third melodrama, in which, at the crucial moment in the poker game, when the nasty word had been said, somebody shot out the oil lamps and in the resulting gloom carnage reigned.

There is no off-hand shooting out of lights now. At least in Philadelphia criminals are in the spotlight to stay—unless they leave town. They're leaving!

Quaint 'New York Coffee House Serves American Coffee Trade

Atmosphere of the Revolution Lurks with Visitors to Massoletti on Water Street.

IN the heart of old New York, just off the busy canyon of Wall Street and hard by Hanover Square, stands a coffee house young in years yet steeped in the atmosphere of Colonial and Revolutionary days on lower Manhattan.

It is the Massoletti Coffee House on Water Street, a stone's throw above the Old Slip, set down amid great warehouses and distinguished as the focal point at lunch time for the whole clan of coffee men whose businesses have flourished for generations in that immediate neighborhood.

The Massoletti Coffee House is indeed the gathering point of New York's coffee trade. Green coffee roasters, wholesalers, exporters, in the aggregate, handle the great bulk of the coffee consumed in America, come from offices, testing rooms and warehouses to satisfy keen appetites and discuss business over the steaming cups or pots of Pequot's famous coffee.

Coffee Chief Topic
Coffee is almost the sole beverage consumed there and coffee the chief subject of conversation. The latest quotation on Santos 6's, an improvement in the Brazilian rate of exchange, an increase in medium grades from Columbia, the new high on May offerings, all Greek to the layman but fraught with importance to those who discuss the subjects.

Masoletti, the proprietor, can name any of his customers to you. Here a leading member of the Exchange, there a South American representing his country's interests in America, elsewhere a fa-

Coffee's Popularity
Three floors of coffee drinking mark the growth of this quaint replica of the past set down amid tall brick warehouses of the Civil War building period. Between four and five hundred cups of coffee are served daily, Massoletti says. The coffee is made often and with great care. That is why it is practically the only drink called for. Customers who come any distance usually take a pot of the beverage; the regulars are satisfied with a cup. With the coffee goes American food, cooked and served "as meals are in good American homes," to again quote the proprietor.

The Massoletti's greatest trade booster is the neighborhood. A visitor who scents the coffee-laden air or blocks about gravitates naturally to the spot where the delightful aroma can be translated into taste.

In Colonial Style
"Our coffee house," Massoletti says, "is our interpretation of the coffee house of Colonial times in our immediate neighborhood." And, mark this, the site of the old Merchant's Coffee House, the most famous in New York, was a scant half block from the present site of its modern descendant.
There is an ancient print of the Merchant's Coffee House on the walls of the Massoletti Coffee House. Old paintings and prints of famous coffee houses of America form, in fact, the sole decorations on the cream tinted walls. But the simile is carried further than framed examples. The Massoletti's stairs and bannisters are Colonial, its chairs Colonial, its tables plain dark oak and Colonial. Colonial lanterns shelter its electric lights and a typical Colonial board sign hangs from a Colonial wrought iron holder over the front door.

River Niemen, After Years Of War And Prolonged International Disputes Becomes Free Waterway For Commerce

The picture above shows Russian refugees building river huts on the Niemen, a waterway that, passing through three nations, has threatened the peace of Europe more than any other subject of contention since the world war. Considerable sections of Russia and Poland must use it if their products are to have free access to the sea. Its outlet, Memel, was under control of Lithuania, but against the protest of the Allied powers who held title to the territory which had been ceded to them by Germany. Incensed at the Polish seizure of Vilna, Lithuania had kept the lower stretches of the Niemen closed to all traffic from above, and refused to accept the conditions proposed by the Allies for the transfer of title and opening of traffic.

The council of ambassadors, representing the Allies, made repeated attempts to secure a settlement of the dispute, but the interested nations flouted its decisions. In December the problem was turned over to the League of Nations. A commission of three, comprising Norman H. Davis, former Under-secretary of State for the United States, a distinguished Swedish engineer and a Holland business man, began in February of this year an investigation of the merits of the case. The Commission held hearings for all the interested parties, surveyed the harbor of Memel and gauged its importance to all the affected territory. It ruled that the river must be free to all traffic and convinced the Lithuanians that they were cutting off their noses to spite their faces if they persisted in a policy of restricting commerce. The Vilna matter was outside the investigators' province. The 150,000 inhabitants of Memel received an autonomous government under the new settlement and a free zone is declared around the port. On the other hand Lithuania gets her first clear title to the territory, which had been ceded by Germany to the Allies and which had been seized by Lithuania over Allied protests.

Last month the assembly of the League accepted the report of its commission, and the entire dispute is now considered closed.

"Nobody was entirely satisfied with our decision," Mr. Davis said on his return to New York, "but both parties feared the capture of the world, if they defied the findings of the impartial board set up by the League. I am happy, as an American, to have had a part in settling what was admitted to be one of the sorest quarrels in post-war Europe. The peoples participating in the League will never yield their sovereignty but it will become increasingly hard for any group of jingoists to lead a country into war in the face of peaceful and impartial mediation offered through a body representing the enlightened opinion of 54 nations."

The Niemen, Mr. Davis, prophesied, will fast become a teeming trade route, and such obstructions as the one pictured here will be replaced by an open and busy channel.

THE CITY BEAUTIFUL.

The good appearance of a city is essential.

Who believes that untidy yards, filthy streets and dirty windows, attract newcomers?

Every well-informed person, in this day of progress and of enlightenment knows that dirt is the ally of disease.

Disease is the enemy of the race. It is a crime, therefore, for people to be content to live in an atmosphere of filth.

Cleanliness is inspiring and uplifting.

Dirt is the foe of idealism.

Our city's natural advantages are wonderful.

We are moving forward.

We have realized the absurdity of the stagnation of the past.

We now look to the future with high hope and expectation.

Ours is not a dirty city!

We are better off than the average American city in the matter of sanitary conditions.

But our ideals of civic excellence must be high!

As we go forward in the path of progress we must have full realization of all our opportunities and duties.

We must work for an ideal city.

We must work for a perfect city.

We must work for a city beautiful.

Shall we have a great clean up and paint up campaign?

The opportunity is too wonderful to be neglected.—Charlestown (S. C.) American.

"LOVE BOOK" CAUSES ROW BETWEEN YOUNG COUPLE

By United Press.

HOUSTON, June 7.—Answering a hurry call, police found a young married couple quarreling violently over a "love book." The book, consisting of several pages of love letters from girls and with the picture of the owner in front, was the young man's scrap book of affairs with admirers before he married, he explained.

The trouble arose over the fact that he forgot to destroy the romantic volume and friend wife found it.

One Carpet Mill Uses Daily Wool From 30,000 Sheep

The wool used daily in the weaving of carpets and rugs by a New York manufacturer is equal to the shearing from thirty thousand sheep. The soft, rich coats of these animals are turned into the looms at the rate of 120,000 pounds every day.

These and many other interesting facts were revealed recently through the publication of statistics concerning their mammoth mills at Yonkers, N. Y., by Alexander Smith & Sons Carpet company, said to be the largest manufacturer of carpets and rugs in the world.

If all the wool used in these mills were reckoned according to the number of animals from which it is sheared, a year's output at the mills would represent the clip from 9,000,000 sheep—a number which would constitute herds beyond the imagination.

For the manufacturing of all this wool into American-made carpets and rugs the energy and industry of 7,600 employes is devoted with a spirit of co-operation and craftsmanship resembling the loyalty given to his individual loom by the smaller weaver of bygone days.

This army of workers operates 1,500 looms with a total daily production of 90,000 yards of carpets and rugs. Place one day's tremendous output in a continuous line and it would make a strip of carpet 53 miles long. In one year of eight-hour working days, the 1,500 looms turn out 28 millions of yards, making an annual production of almost 16,000 linear miles. The carpet made through a year's effort would reach more than half way around the world.

Every hour this mill produces 11-250 yards, or 187 1-2 yards per minute. The amount of mechanical energy entering the work may be fancied from the fact that the company uses 225 tons of coal every day. And all this activity takes place in mills which occupy 52 1-2 acres of floor space, ample area to accommodate the parking of 40,000 motor cars.

It is interesting to note that the founder of these giant mills was also the inventor of the famous Axminster loom. The institution which has carried on since 1860 is specialized, it is said, in the making of four basic weaves known as Axminsters, Velvets, Tapestry, Brussels and Wilton Velvets.

WOULD CLEAR COBWEBS OFF MOOTED MATTER

John A. Davenport Asks Publication of Comments on Ranger School Problem.

John A. Davenport requests publication of the following letter which he indicates is to clear cobwebs off the face of a matter that is not fully understood by the public. Mr. Davenport finds inference in news reports published in this newspaper which others may or may not have found. As a matter of fact there were no inferences, but everything stated was set forth plainly so that all who read might gain just what information was published and nothing more or less. This newspaper does not deal in inferences in its news reports. Mr. Davenport's letter follows:

To the Editor:

A report of the last meeting of the school board of the Ranger independent school district which appeared in a recent issue of the Ranger Daily Times was somewhat misleading in that some of the statements were incorrect and in that in connection with other statements all the facts in the case should have been given, in order that the reader who is not aware of all the facts might not form incorrect inferences or unfair conclusions. As the article in question reads, the inferences are that J. Pickett, the teacher referred to in the article, has never been, is not, and cannot be eligible to teach in the Ranger schools; that certain members of the board are actuated by the firm intention to observe the school laws in the most minute detail; and that Mr. McNew is certain that the employment of a high school principal who has no degree would injure the school greatly.

In the interest of fairness, the following facts are submitted:

1. Under the old school law, the board of an independent district could conduct its own teachers' examinations and fix the qualifications for its own teachers, within certain limits. This is what has been done in Ranger ever since Mr. McNew took over the superintendency, and it was under this provision of the law that Mr. Pickett was employed.

2. Mr. Pickett did not expect, and no one else expected the board to sign a contract with him until he had secured a state certificate of the first class which would qualify him to teach in any high school in Texas, and the condition that he do so was a part of the motion which was made to elect him.

3. The statement that Mr. Pickett had promised at the beginning of his employment to take the examinations for a permanent certificate is absolutely untrue.

4. The school board has elected teachers, with the recommendations and approval of Mr. McNew, who did not have state teachers' certificates, every year since Mr. McNew has been in Ranger.

5. Mr. McNew has recommended and approved of the election of, and the board has elected, not only teachers but even principals of the Ranger schools, who did not hold state certificates.

6. If it is a violation of the law to elect a teacher with the condition that he secure a valid state certificate before the beginning of the next school year, Mr. Hagaman and other members of the board have violated the law in that respect repeatedly, since teachers have been so elected every year during Mr. McNew's incumbency up to the present year. The information for the teachers elected this year is not yet available.

7. Mr. Hagaman and Mr. McNew, at the meeting in question, seemed extremely intent upon obeying the school laws in both spirit and letter to the most minute detail. This seems to be a sudden accession of respect for the law upon their parts, since both of them have approved of and aided in the election of sisters and other relatives of members of the board to positions in the school upon several occasions; and under the anti-nepotism laws of Texas the employment of teachers who are related to members of the board within a certain degree of kinship is a crime punishable by heavy penalties.

8. The realization by Mr. McNew that the employment of a school executive who has no degree is highly injurious to a school is also very evidently a sudden accession. Mr. McNew would not admit that he has ever been other than an efficient executive, and yet was superintendent of the Mineral Wells public schools for a matter of 15 years, without holding a degree of any kind; and he also employed principals or approved of the employment of principals for the Mineral Wells high school who did not have degrees.

In connection with the matter of degrees, some very pertinent questions have been asked by a number of people concerning a matter upon which the general public has not been informed: What degree does Mr. McNew himself hold? Is his degree earned or honorary? Did he secure it by correspondence or by residence work, and if by residence, was it by continuous residence at the college and for how long a period? How creditable and of how high rank among American colleges is the school which granted the degree? How long has he held his degree? Signed: JNO. A. DAVENPORT.

IN PLACE OF ANGEL CAKE

By Helen Harrington Downing, Director of Home Economics, Calumets Baking Powder Co., Chicago, Ill.

The idea of telling others about my delicious White Loaf cake came to me after a neighbor had just dropped in as I was about to make this cake, requesting that I give her some new cake recipe. She said she had made the same three layer cake with chocolate frosting for so long that her family was actually tired of it.

A great many housewives do have this habit. They find some recipe that always turns out pretty well and they bake this same cake week after week. Everyone enjoys a good piece of cake, not any kind of cake you might buy, but a delicious piece of cake that fairly melts in your mouth, either with a chocolate fudge frosting or a plain boiled frosting, or without any frosting at all.

I have been told by a great many women that while their husbands like cake they did not care for the fussy frostings. Some like spice cake, some prefer sponge, others the old fashioned gingerbread, but the majority seem to be in favor of a plain white loaf cake, not unlike to an angel cake.

I have tried the following recipe on my family and find it pleased them more than any cake I have baked in a long time.

White Loaf Cake

- 1-2 cup butter,
- 1-2 cups sugar,
- 4 egg whites,
- 2 cups flour,
- 3-4 cup milk,
- 2 level spoons Calumet Baking powder.

1-4 teaspoon almond extract. Sift flour once and measure; add baking powder and sift five or six times. Sift sugar, then measure. Cream butter, add sugar a little at a time, mixing very thoroughly. Then add milk and flour alternately; fold in carefully the egg whites beaten until very stiff, then add flavoring. Bake in ungreased pans in an oven 350° F., forty to fifty minutes.

I find from talking to women at the various clubs and from reading letters from others, or in conversation, that the majority of them are so rushed when they are making a cake they put it together in a most hurried manner, neglecting to do the things that are so essential to have a perfect cake. They are the little things which do not take much time, but which guarantee against waste of ingredients.

Here are just a few things that will make an ordinary white cake as delicious as an angel cake or even better when you stop to realize that an angel cake is a little inclined to be tough.

Points to Remember

In following this recipe, here are some points to remember. In fact, they hold good for the average cake.

First—Sift your flour before measuring. Second—Tear into squares, sheets of wrapping paper to use in sifting the flour and baking powder together. You will find if you sift them five or six times it will improve greatly the texture and lightness of the cake and it will take only a couple of minutes to do this. Simply sift the flour on one sheet of paper then pour back into the sifter placed on the other sheet and then back and forth this way until completed.

Third—Cream the shortening in the bowl, using a wooden spoon, until it is very soft before adding any sugar.

Fourth—Add the sugar a little at a time while creaming with the butter and not all at once.

Fifth—Add the milk and flour alternately so as to avoid a lumpy batter.

Sixth—Fold the thoroughly beaten egg whites in the last thing, being very careful to fold and not stir. There is a great difference.

Bake in two ungreased loaf pans about 9 inches by 4 1-2 inches wide by 2 1-2 inches deep (top measurements) or nearly that size. The cake seems to bake better in these pans than in one of the large, round, deep angel cake pans and cuts to better advantage.

Before putting the cake batter into the oven, slam the pans down on the table so as to jar out any air bubbles in the batter. This will also prevent the cake from being higher on one side than on the other, providing, of course, you are baking in an oven in which the temperature is even. That is, not hotter on one side than on the other.

Bake by temperature. If you are using a medium acting baking powder and a stove on which there is a Lorain oven regulator, set the temperature for 350° F. and when the oven thermometer registers that degree of heat, put your cakes on the center rack of the oven and do not disturb them until they have finished baking (about 50 minutes for this cake.)

For all baking use an oven thermometer, whether your stove is equipped with an oven regulator or not. One is soon able to learn to regulate the heat of the oven so as to hold a temperature at any desired point.

If you have not already secured a baking chart, I shall be glad to send you one if you care to write me—Calumet Baking Powder Company, 4100 Fillmore Street, Chicago, Ill.

Plays Chinese Role Cooks Chinese Dish

LENITA LANE, leading lady of the "Clame of Love," a drama of the silk weavers of ancient China, believes in carrying out her part—even in real life—so she has learned Chinese cooking and is here seen preparing a Chinese omelette for an after-theatre supper. The recipe which Miss Lane has given us calls for: 1 lb. shelled shrimps, 3/4 lb. mushrooms (fresh), 1 pork chop, 3 eggs, 1 small Spanish onion. Cut the pork chop in very fine pieces. Wash the shrimps. Remove top skins from the mushrooms, parboil in boiling water 15 minutes. Chop the onion, shrimps and mushrooms very fine. Heat a frying pan. Put in 1/2 teaspoonful of crisco. Fry the onion about 10 minutes—a little sugar improves it. Be careful not to burn. Put in the chopped shrimps, meat and mushrooms. Stir constantly 5 minutes. Add a tablespoonful of water, 1/2 teaspoonful of salt and cook another 10 minutes. Break the 3 eggs and beat well with a spoonful of cold water. Then put all ingredients together, heat a clean frying pan, and put in a teaspoonful of crisco. Drop in 3 tablespoonfuls of the mixture at a time, and brown well on both

J. M. WHITE ENTERTAINS STORE STAFF, MAKES TWO NICE ANNOUNCEMENTS

Last Friday evening at the J. M. White & Company store of Ranger, Mr. White entertained the staff with an old fashioned "Dutch lunch." This came at the end of a hard day's work and was very much enjoyed by all present.

Mr. Smith, manager of the sale, made a talk on the duty of the clerks for the coming week, which was well received by those who were to be his helpers in the work.

After this Mr. White made a short talk and announced that W. R. Paschal had been chosen to be manager of the J. M. White & Co. store. This news was received with much applause. Mr. Paschal was introduced to the company of workers and made a happy speech and expressed his appreciation of the honor conferred upon him.

Rev. H. B. Johnson, pastor of the Christian church, was called on and spoke along the line of co-operation between the clerk and the proprietor.

Mr. White announced to the clerks that one afternoon in each month the doors of the store would be closed and all would be at liberty to go fishing or picnicing. This was received with much demonstration of pleasure and good will toward him who made it possible to enjoy such a happy event.

EVANGELIST SCORES LAW ENFORCEMENT FAILURE IN EASTLAND COUNTY

Evangelist B. B. Crimm, who has been engaged for the past two weeks in a revival meeting at the Baptist tabernacle in Eastland, scored both the citizens of Eastland county and its officers in a sermon, Friday night, to a large audience. He charged that the officers, and he named no exceptions, were not enforcing the laws and that the citizens, when they were called upon to do jury service, forgot their oaths and let many equity parties go free because they had money or a political pull.
