

Crystal Mows Down Cosden, 31-26, Taking League Lead

Gehring To Hold Detroit Coaching Job

DETROIT, Jan. 20 (AP)—Charley Gehring, the distinguished Detroit Tiger infielder, finally has reached the end of the baseball trail as an active player.

With the signing of a contract as coach the veteran, ranked as one of the all-time greats, brought to an end a 15-year major league career on second base that had few parallels.

Gehring ceased some time ago to derive any fun from the game. That may sound strange, but for the last three seasons it has just been a series of aches and pains to Gehring.

His back began to trouble him and it took him longer to get into condition. The strain of years of fielding an amazing amount of territory began to take its toll. Finally, his hitting eye dimmed. Last year his average at the plate fell to .250 as compared to a life-time mark of .321.

Last week the Detroit management, in announcing the 1943 roster, omitted Gehring's name. But left the way open for him to remain as coach. Yesterday Gehring, as he has done for years past, was the first to sign a contract, accepting the club's offer.

Asked recently if he would miss playing, Gehring replied: "I don't think I will. But I'm missing getting into good physical condition in the spring, for I have become accustomed to that."

Georgia Ain't Mad At Nobody— Sinkwich Won't Go With The Draft Yet Awhile

ATHENS, Ga., Jan. 20 (AP)—University President Harmon Sinkwich said today that the University of Georgia athletic department is too happy to know of the draft.

Frankie Sinkwich and Company will be back next fall.

University President Harmon Sinkwich brought the news from an Atlanta conference between Georgia selective service officials and heads of private and state-supported colleges. Sinkwich downed the draft executives told him: "If the university system speeded up its academic work to graduate seniors May 2, and pushed juniors through a summer schedule to graduate them Jan. 1, 1943, selective service would look favorably upon allowing such juniors to finish school."

With that, President Caldwell announced: "(1) Georgia seniors will graduate May 2; (2) Georgia, along with the entire state-support-

Carnett's And ABC Also Win Monday Games

Crystal seized the lead in the city fast league Monday evening, mowing down Cosden's Oilers by a 31-26 count.

It was the second time that Cosden had taken the count this season, but the first time Crystal had been able to muster the dose.

In the other fast league game, Carnett's kept going right down the line with a 23-16 win that stopped Vaughn's improvement march quite short. Dawson and Johnson led the deal with 12 and 13 points each.

Ted Phillips warmed up his scoring machinery to toss in 14 points and lead the ABC club to a 23-16 win over the Sea Scouts. Tucker, for the Scouts, didn't do so badly with 10 tallies.

High School Gridders Loaded With Laurels Baylor's Kimbrough Has Praise For Pat Murphy And Game Of Football

Certificates of awards and laurels were conferred upon members of the Big Spring high school football team of 1941 in the third annual grid banquet sponsored at the Bettles Ballroom Monday evening by the Lions club.

Between 175 and 200 were on hand to hear a varied program, featuring Frank Kimbrough, Baylor university coach, who spoke briefly and projected motion pictures of the Texas-Baylor game which ended in a 7-7 upset tie.

But it was Cecil Hunter, Amerville, better known to radio audiences as "Stuttering Sam," who stole the show. For more than half an hour he kept the audience in stitches and had to come back for an encore.

The Rev. Dick O'Brien presided as toastmaster, keeping the program moving along with his flow of stories and wit. The program, in charge of Jack Smith, included talks by Coach Pat Murphy and W. C. Blankenship, and songs by Shirley June Robbins and Mrs. Anne Gibson Houser at the piano.

Both Kimbrough and Blankenship had words of praise for Murphy, and it was Kimbrough who paid him the compliment of saying "I admire Pat Murphy because I know from long years of acquaint-

Steers Face Test Tonight

Big Spring faces one of the most severe tests of the season this evening when the Steers must journey to Odessa for the fifth round of the 9-A basketball season.

Right now the Steers are tied with Abilene, Lamesa, and San Angelo for the league lead. Should they be able to overwhelm the host Bronchos, then they will have a firmer grip on that place.

But the Odessa team, once heralded as the favorite of this area, has been kicked around for the last two games. Too, some of its regulars have been out . . . and psychologically, the odds are with the Horns this evening. However, with Blount and Fallon working as a double threat, Big Spring may be able to continue its surprising record of triumphs.

In other games billed for the evening, very little change in the district picture is expected to result. Seemingly, the only other possibility of an upset would be at Sweetwater where Abilene must test the twice beaten Sweetwater team, one that started great and then faltered. If Abilene handles the Mustangs as other teams after a shaky start, then the title apparently will belong to the Eagles on a platter.

Lamesa is due to experience no

Rogers Hornsby Elected To Baseball Hall Of Fame

NEW YORK, Jan. 20 (AP)—The fabulous baseball career of Rogers Hornsby, the greatest righthanded hitter of all time, carried him into the hall of fame today.

The "Bajab," who performed for five different clubs and managed four of them in a 25-year span in the majors, who batted over .400 in three seasons and twice was named the most valuable player in the National league, who earned perhaps half a million dollars from baseball and lost most of it, received 183 votes out of 233 cast by baseball writers.

As a result a bronze plaque, bearing his dimple-cheeked likeness, will soon be placed alongside those of baseball's other immortals—Cobb, Wagner, Ruth, Matthews and the rest—in the little shrine at Cooperstown, N. Y.

Hornsby, who will be 48 in April, now is the general manager and bench pilot of Fort Worth in the Texas league. He is a jovial, grey-haired minor league executive. But in days that a vast majority of the baseball fans can still remember he was a bright comet shooting an unpredictable course across sports' horizon.

He broke into the National league with the St. Louis Cardinals in 1915 as a shortstop. Later he played every position in the infield, tried the outfield, and moved to the New York Giants, to the Boston Braves, to the Chicago Cubs, to the Cardinals again and finally to the St. Louis Browns. He managed the Cards, Braves, Cubs and Browns, reaching a salary peak of $40,000 a year with the Cubs.

He led the National league in batting for seven years, six of them in succession for the Cardinals from 1920 to 25, inclusive. He batted .401 in 1922, in 1924 reached .426, the modern record for both major leagues, and in 1925 followed up with .408.

He also led the league in 1928 with .387 for the Braves and was voted the most valuable player in 1928 with the Cards and 1929 while with the Cubs.

Hornsby had no faults on the playing field, but the magnates found some with him off the diamond.

Canyon Cage Team To Go East Again

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M., Jan. 20 (AP)—The six-footers of West Texas State, lusty newcomers to the Border conference, swing eastward again next week for their second fling of the season in big-time basketball.

The West Texas Buffaloes from Canyon, billed as the world's tallest basketball team, open their eastern invasion in Madison Square Garden January 28. They meet St. Joseph's college in Philadelphia on January 31.

During the holidays, the West Texans went barnstorming, captured the championship of the Oklahoma City collegiate tournament and defeated Evansville, Ind., college and De Paul university, but lost the only game so far this season at Peoria, Ill., to Bradley Tech, 32-48.

The last Border conference team to receive a bid to Madison Square Garden was New Mexico A. & M., rulers four years on agebrush courts. The Aggies, who were replaced by Texas Mines of El Paso as champions last year, haven't won a conference game this season.

Arizona university defeated Arizona State of Tempe, 50-48, Saturday night to finish the week's play.

During mid-year college examinations, teams are idle this week before beginning a schedule of 10 or more games apiece in five weeks.

SPORTS ROUNDUP

By HUGH FULLETON, Jr.

NEW YORK, Jan. 20 (Wide World)—Rogers Hornsby, baseball's newest hall of famer, is concentrating these days on getting his Fort Worth club into something better than fourth place in the Texas league. He won't even consider the second division.

Hornsby claims he never was bothered much by left-handed pitching. "I always hit at the ball—not at the pitcher's motion," he recently said. "I didn't care if the pitcher threw with his feet as long as the ball came in the strike zone."

In addition to playing its regular tournaments as Red Cross benefits, the New York State Golf Association will ask its 101 members, to hold monthly "Pearl Harbor" tournaments for the Red Cross.

Scotty Monthall, Detroit fight promoter, has shifted his base of operations from the Fair Grounds Coliseum, far from the downtown area, to the close-in Moose Temple—tire shortage.

Greg Rice, distance running champ: "I don't make any great plea for athletics in time of war. But I do think that competition is the easiest way to get a fellow to take care of himself."

Sportswrest
 Southwestern College of Winfield, Kans., sank 29 free throws out of 39 tries against Pittsburgh Teachers the other night and fans are asking if there's a better record than that . . . The story is that Moe Berg asked for a delay in the announcement of his appointment as good will ambassador because of the illness of his father, who died last week. Eddie Collins, who hadn't heard of the request, broke the story. . . . Nick Lukats, the old Notre Dame footballer, is collaborating with Author Bill Brent on the screen play in which Frankie Albert is to make his debut . . . Uncle Sam may get Albert before the movie. He has had some missing teeth replaced and expects to be reclassified as I-A in the draft . . . Joe McCarthy says the big problems next season will be pitching and hitting—for the teams that play the Yanks.

Hoyt's Is An Honest Medicine, Says This Fort Worth Matron

Intense Pain And Suffering Was Almost Instantly Relieved By Hoyt's Compound States Mrs. Collier.

Mrs. O. M. Collier, 2515 N. W. 57th Street, Fort Worth, Texas, has been bothered with my stomach.

"Almost immediately after I started taking Hoyt's Compound, I noticed an improvement in my condition. My stomach quit hurting and I had no more gas. My back quit hurting. I can eat anything without ill effects and also began to lose weight. I feel like an entirely different person and want to say Hoyt's is an honest medicine, honestly advertised."

Hoyt's Compound is recommended and sold by the Collins Bros. Drug Store and all leading drug stores in this area.—adv.

The exciting, different dessert—sizzling fruit for only 10¢ a portion
Here's a new way to "dress up" canned fruit—and make it look and taste like a very "special" dessert. Serve it tonight—it's easy as a-b-c to prepare.

SIZZLING FRUIT
1 (No. 2½) can pear halves
¼ teaspoon each of ground ginger, cloves, and cinnamon (cinnamon spices may be used also)
½ cup KARO (red label)
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1 (No. 2½) can peach halves, drained
1 (No. 2½) can blue cherries, drained
Four syrup from canned pears into saucepan. Add spices, KARO and lemon juice. Cook about 5 minutes. Add whole pieces of fruit; heat again, but do not boil. Remove from heat, and serve hot or chilled. Makes 8 large servings.

KARO adds extra food value as well as extra flavor. It's rich in Dextrose, food-energy sugar.

GOOD TO THE LAST DROP!

Editorial - Only Chiselers Raise Prices Without Cause

Right now the average citizen is being asked to buy defense bonds and stamps. Every appeal is being made for voluntary support. But it is to be expected in due time (and that may be sooner than most of us think) that involuntary purchases of these issues will fall our lot. In short, the government may say to each of us who draw regular salaries and wages, to those who earn so much over a certain period—you must buy a certain percentage of your earnings in bonds and stamps.

What that figure will amount to is conjectural. Some peg the figure at 10 per cent. Previously, the president indicated that 25 per cent of earnings into stamps and bonds would be the goal when he called for paying for half of the war bill with current taxes and the other half in bond purchases. But can this be done without causing economic disruption? It all depends—depends upon two factors. First, whether effective price control legislation takes force; and second, whether people stop raising prices just because they think they can get away with it.

We have to go no further than this general territory to find splendid examples of the latter practice. In recent days we have seen prices raised on items—or raises threatened—because certain things were frozen. Just why freezing or rationing of supplies should make the available supply cost more is not clear—except you can get it if you demand it. A lot of these claims won't stand serious analysis, and it is your duty to analyze them and ask questions.

Patriotic duty indeed, for soon the government may come to you with a request to help more than ever before in its financial program. If you are being penalized on every hand by rising costs, and probably no increase in salary, how are you going to comply with the government's request without serious inconvenience, and even to the point of embarrassment.

Every patriotic citizen wants to do his part, but few can do their part if they are hemmed in by a vicious inflation.

On this point, Donald M. Nelson, chairman of war of the new war production board, has something of interest to say: "There is no room in America today for chiselers or evaders or obstructionists, active or passive, large or small, rich or poor."

NO TIME FOR LOVE

By WATKINS E. WRIGHT

Chapter 22
LONG STORY

Rod switched on the lights in the living room of his cottage. Miss Dorcas looked around her. "Wonderful!" she said. "Young man, if I decide to write my memoirs, you must rent me this place."

"You're more than welcome to it, Miss Dorcas," said Rod. "I won't be using it again for a long time."

"Why not?"

"That's the long story I've got to tell you," said Rod. "The story you probably came to hear. Would you like something to drink first?"

"Have you any Scotch?"

"Yes, I have."

"And soda?"

"Yes, Miss Dorcas," Rod smiled. "That means you want a Scotch and soda, of course."

"Young man, your powers of deduction are remarkable!"

"Thank you, ma'am," said Rod. "I'll fix the drinks."

He was not gone long, and when he returned Miss Dorcas said:

"I know my niece ran away because of you, but what I don't know is why you ran away."

"I didn't run away—really," said Rod. "I only went down to Boston."

"But why go in such a mysterious sort of way?"

"I went to see my doctor."

"You mean you went ill?"

"No, Miss Dorcas, not exactly that," Rod put down his glass. He leaned forward. "I was told Miss Dorcas, that my heart was in pretty bad shape, and that I also had a very badly injured eardrum. I was told that in later years I might become deaf."

"But—but—there's nothing wrong with your hearing now?"

"Not that I can note," said Miss Dorcas.

"I know, but I was deaf for several weeks after—Dunkirk."

"Dunkirk?"

"Yes, Miss Dorcas. I was there."

"Oh! Miss Dorcas caught her breath. "You poor boy!"

"I was a flyer," Rod went on, speaking quietly. "I went through all that terrific hell—and when I got back to England, I was pretty much of a wreck. Nothing that one could see, but a bad heart, and the ear condition. It looked as though I was done for—that is, so far as my being any real use to the world."

"Yes," said Miss Dorcas very softly. "Go on."

"I had no one—that is, no relatives, and I hated being a burden over there. The British had enough to do looking after their own, and so I came back here—home."

"Yes," said Miss Dorcas. She laid a hand over one of Rod's. They both had forgotten their drinks. "You came here to recuperate?"

"I came here to fight things out with myself," said Rod. "I wasn't even sure I wanted to recuperate—or get well. I had the feeling that after Dunkirk—there was nothing to live for."

"And then?"

"And then I met Lavinia."

"You mean you began to feel differently then?"

"Much differently," Rod smiled. "I began to want to live, to get well, to get back into the thick of things."

"Why didn't you tell her all you've just told me?"

"I couldn't—then. I still didn't want to talk about it. And I hated to sound as though I were pleading for sympathy." Rod paused for a moment, and again looked up his drink. "And the more I saw of Lavinia, the more determined I became not to mention love—not to let myself go—until I was certain I did have a future. Then, like a weak fool, I took her in my arms and kissed her."

"And then told her to forget it," said Miss Dorcas. "Yes, she told me about it. She had to tell someone."

"I never realized at the time," Rod continued, "how Lavinia would feel about it. I was too angry with myself for forgetting who I was, the shape I was in. You see, Miss Dorcas, I still felt I had no right to love a girl, to ask her to marry me. I didn't want to be a burden to a wife—a man with a bad heart, and who might become totally deaf when he was older."

"I understand," said Miss Dorcas. "And so you kissed my niece, and then ran off and left her?"

"I guess it does sound like a contemptible trick, Miss Dorcas," Rod said. "But I certainly didn't mean it that way."

"Of course you didn't. But why the sudden decision to go to Boston?"

"I got a letter in the mail yesterday morning," Rod exclaimed. "It offered me work in a factory where defense manufacturing is going on. Airplanes. And I do know a lot about them, Miss Dorcas. Well, that letter, and the realization that I was in love with Lavinia, did things to me. I caught a train as soon as I could, and hurried off. I wanted to get everything straightened out, if possible—so that I could come to Lavinia with a proposal."

"You said a while back that you went to your doctor."

"I did. I had a thorough going over—and I'm okay!" Rod's eyes were shining. "I mean the weeks here at Harbor Head have done wonders to the heart condition—and the trouble with my ear has entirely cleared up. In other words, Miss Dorcas, I'm—I'm practically as good as new."

"Thank God," said Miss Dorcas. "I can't tell you how glad I am, Rod. You don't mind my calling you that, do you?"

"Of course not. Only I wish you'd let me call you Aunt Dorcas."

"Goodness me, boy—what else would you call me!"

"You're swell, Aunt Dorcas."

"A mutual admiration society, so it would seem," Miss Dorcas said. And then: "Good heavens!"

"You should be telling Lavinia all this—not me!"

"But she's gone!"

"Oh, yes, so she has!"

Rod was thoughtful for a moment. "Do you think she'll understand and forgive me, if I see her again?" he asked.

"If she doesn't," said Miss Dorcas, "she's a little idiot."

"Funn' thing," Rod went on. "When I got to Harbor Head I was shocked to find it had developed into a fashionable resort. I was a little angry, too—I mean, seeing people so gay, and remembering all I'd seen on the other side. I resented the people at the Inn and I avoided them with a stubborn determination. I wasn't supposed to be dancing or doing anything very strenuous, anyway—so I stayed by myself."

"And gave people the idea you were anything from an escaped criminal to an international spy," said Aunt Dorcas.

"Mystery Man

"Yes," said Rod. "But I got a sort of kick out of having people think me a man of mystery. That is, I got a kick out of it until Lavinia came along. Then I hated having her not know the truth."

"What made you finally go up to the Inn for dinner, and dancing and bridge?"

"I did it for Lavinia, mostly. I was angry over the way she had been treated. I wanted everyone to see her as I saw her."

Miss Dorcas finished her drink, and set down the glass.

"You really love my niece?" she said.

"Of course I do!" said Rod. "She's the most adorable girl I've ever known."

"You love her enough to marry her?"

"Of course. Why do you think I came barging into the Inn tonight?"

"Then what are you waiting for?"

"Why—what do you mean?"

"Why aren't you on the way to New York to see her?"

"I am going—the first thing in the morning," said Rod. "There's no train before then."

"Do you mind my taking the same train?" Miss Dorcas said.

"Mind! I'll be no end disappointed if you don't take it."

"Very well, we will go back to New York together."

"How?"

"By pretending to like me a lot. Maybe then Lavinia will forgive me, and say she'll marry me."

"Rod, said Miss Dorcas, "I'm a poor pretender. But I don't have to pretend I like you. I do like you."

All the way down on the train, Manhattan-bound, Miss Dorcas and Rod talked about themselves. And they enjoyed doing so. Especially Rod. Not that he did so in any egotistical sense. It wasn't that at all. It was rather as though after being shut up inside of himself for so long a time, there was great relief and comfort in talking to someone who understood.

"And you know, Aunt Dorcas," he was now saying, as he and Miss Dorcas lunched in the diner, "the boat in which I escaped from Dunkirk was almost exactly like the one I had used at Harbor Head."

"By the way," Miss Dorcas said, "what became of your boat?"

"I let a fisherman friend have it for several days," Rod replied.

Miss Dorcas laughed. "And that Margaret Linden and a lot of others have been thinking the government men took it, when they took you!"

Hollyw od Sights And Sounds - Alan Hale Is Tough In Pictures Only

By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—This is a cheering note. Alan Hale, a hearty who has never lost a war, is on our side—twice for good measure.

Alan Hale has fought, bled and died on both sides of some of the best and most spectacular wars Hollywood ever declared. He has fought with every lethal weapon known to man, from long bow to P-38, and he always comes out on top. Even when he dies, it's with glory.

Right now he's saying it from the air—in "Captains of the Clouds" (which war he has won through giving his life) and in a new air epic which also celebrates the pluck of the British and Canadian fliers.

Soldier Hale, who stands six feet two and weighs 230 pounds, has fought more battles even than James Cagney, who has fought everybody including, at one time, the Warner Bros. who now pay his weekly fee.

Hale has battled Confederates, Spaniards, Germans, robber barons, British kings, Indians, Yankees and (in various movie bar-room bawls) belligerents of all nations. He has even battled bulls.

The latter adversaries, of course, were scarcely a major foe. They were but incidents in "The Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse," a picture Hale turned out in the twenties with Rudolph Valentino.

He was a United States Marine in "Leathernecks" in which he got kicked out—but only by another Marine, name of Bill Boyd.

He was a Union soldier in "Dodge City," a fighting Irishman in "The Private Lives of Elizabeth and Essex." In "The Sea Hawk" he fought shoulder to shoulder with that veteran campaigner, Errol Flynn, who wins girls and bat-

Washington Daybook - Capital Nutsy As Usual In Wartime

By JACK STEINMETZ

WASHINGTON—The capital in wartime:

To see the gang that assembles to skate on the Reflecting Pool these days and nights, you would never think Washington had a care in the world.

I doubt if there's another rink like the Reflecting Pool. You can stand at the one end and say "I'll run you from the Washington Monument to the Lincoln Memorial."

One of the bright young men who cover "the Hill" set out the other day to try to find some new bill that didn't have a thing to do with the war. After diligent search he came on "A bill to appropriate funds to provide for the educational attainment of persons 17 years of age or over, having less than a fourth grade education."

His shout of "Eureka!" died on his lips for the next phrase was, "For the purpose of 'acilitating the National Defense.' It is, too. It's a measure designed to raise the educational status of boys who have been deferred in the draft for failure to meet the comparatively mild educational standards."

Sixty-two bills and some minutes later, he arrived at "H. R. 6322." It looked like a cinch. It was a bill to change the foundations of the Chickamauga-Chatanooga National Park in Tennessee and Georgia. A closer scrutiny let that down with a ploop, too. That's a military reservation.

As a matter of fact this complete occupation with war problems and policies should show how thoroughly congress and Washington has taken over the problem in hand.

In one week of solid sessions, only twice did congress extend itself in the congressional record index on any matters not pertaining to the war.

You'll have to do a lot of digging to find any one who can remember when congress has stayed so solidly on one track so long.

A unique federal office is the Home Listing Office. It has been in operation for about a year and is now setting up on Post Square in the heart of the government building belt.

The idea is to help newcomers to Washington, particularly government employees, get located. For some time now it is locating 20 persons and it is locating homes for incoming flood at the rate of 100 a day.

Nobody will deny that plenty of folk in Washington are working their heads off. However, one of the government personnel experts tells me that after an thorough survey as it is possible to make, he estimates that only one-third of the 200,000-odd government employees here are working more than the regulation 20-hour week.

Coahoma Man Takes Navy Ensign Course

George M. Boswell, Jr., son of Supt. and Mrs. George Boswell of Coahoma, left Tuesday morning for Chicago where he will enter training for an ensign's commission in the U. S. Navy.

A graduate of Texas Tech, George has done two summer's graduate work at the University of Texas and taught at Lubbock high school.

He will be assigned to Northwestern University for a period of four months, after which he will receive his commission as ensign, USNR, and possibly assigned to active duty. In order to qualify as an ensign in the reserve, a young man must have a college degree, backed by certain required subjects in mathematics and science.

So far as could be ascertained, he is the first in this area to be selected for this type of intensive deck training.

Former Local Man Honored

Rupert P. Ricker, a former Big Spring resident and son of Mrs. W. A. Ricker, was honored by officials of the Men's Bible Class at San Antonio Monday evening before leaving to make his home on his ranch near San Angelo.

He was first president of the class and his co-workers paid high tributes to him for his service. He is an oil man and attorney. Several class members spoke at the affair and Felix H. Ulrich, present president, was in charge of the testimonial.

John Deere Has 105th Anniversary The Howard County Implement Co. at 201 NW 2nd in Big Spring carries a complete line of John Deere tractors and farm implements which are products of one of the nation's oldest and largest implement manufacturers.

At one anvil in a little frontier blacksmith shop in 1837, John Deere built the world's first steel plow. They solved one of the most serious problems of pioneer carving out farms in the great agricultural region of America.

From the three plows made by John Deere at a single forge in 1837 to the many thousands of plows and kindred tools now made by John Deere Plow Company is a stupendous jump; yet it was made and the little blacksmith shop soon became a great plow factory - eventually the largest steel plow factory in the world.

Around this factory there grew a group of fifteen other factories each devoted to the manufacture of a particular class of implement to stand with John Deere plows in forming the John Deere full line. The John Deere Plow Company's constant endeavor has been to make John Deere farm implements so good that its first cost is soon repaid in extra service given.

Now on their 105th anniversary we find each of these implements has worked its way to popularity on farms all over the world and they now include a wide variety of farm machinery.

The Howard County Implement Co., for example, can supply you with tractors or farm implements for every need. An example is the Lets feed mill, which is an individual feed mill for the farm which grinds any kind of farm feed.

They carry a stock of parts and maintain a service department in which they can care for every service need of John Deere tractor owners. They take this medium of expressing appreciation for your past business and invite your continued patronage. (Adv.)

Roosevelt Requests Relief For Workers

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20 (AP)—President Roosevelt drafted for transmission to congress today a request for $300,000,000 to ease the plight of workers whose jobs will be suspended while industries convert their facilities to production of war materials.

Under the plan an estimated 4,000,000 men will receive up to $24 a week for 26 weeks during which they will be trained for employment at war production. In states where dislocated workers receive state unemployment compensation the federal government will contribute the difference up to $24. In states where idle workers receive no state compensation, the government will pay the whole sum.

First Baptist Men To Hear O'Brien

The Rev. Dick O'Brien will be the speaker of the evening when the First Baptist Brotherhood convenes for its regular monthly meeting at 7:30 p. m. in the church basement today.

The meeting was postponed from Jan. 12 to avoid conflict with the Texas Home Guard company here a week ago, said George Mclear, president.

A big attendance was anticipated by Mclear at the meeting, and immediately following it there is to be a joint meeting of the finance committee and the board of deacons to consider matters pertaining to the purchase of a church parsonage.

Cooperative Plan Successful

Originally established in 1926, the Cooperative Gin Co., at 511 NE 2nd in Big Spring is owned by some 300 farmer members who save money on their cotton ginning.

Farm crops have been marketed and processed by merchants and middlemen for so long that the agencies of marketing, processing plants and transportation, are now practically controlled by them. The merchant's and middleman's chief interest, of course, is to make a profit, by using as cheaply as possible, and selling for as much as possible. Long established trade practices have naturally caused them to believe that the privilege of handling farm products has become their inalienable right, and in some cases they have used their organized power and financial strength to prevent the introduction of any other plan. Excessive and unnecessary cost of marketing and distribution, as practiced under this system in past years, has caused the farmer to pay more for his supplies and receive less for

FSA Officials To Meet Here

Landlord-tenant problems will be studied here Saturday when tenure and farm debt adjustment committees and other Farm Security Administration officials will confer with landlords and tenants of this county to work on model long-term leases and to study rent paying capacity and farms in this section.

In trying to anticipate needed agreement between parties to the lease, the tenure situation has been investigated. FSA discovered that a more complete lease was needed to prevent economic waste from moving annually, to protect land owners investment, and to conserve the natural resources.

The model lease to be discussed embodies the compensation principle for the construction of improvements by tenant, provision for farm practices which contribute to soil and water conservation and comply with the federal crop program, to provide repairs and improvements for minimum housing standards, to have ample grassland and woodland management and to conserve these resources, to provide security of tenure by a long time farm home program, to provide for clear understanding regarding proper financing of farm operations and improvements, and to make provision for a self-sufficiency program.

The meeting has been set for 10 a. m. Saturday in the FSA office in the postoffice building, and U. D. Kindrick and Mrs. Girdy P. Fische, supervisors, urged land owners, tenants, and others interested to attend.

Forsan Plays Crucial Test This Evening

Outcome of the district 22-B basketball campaign may be in the balance at Forsan at 7:30 p. m. today when Sterling City moves in for a crucial test.

Although this is but the third round of the race, both Forsan and Sterling are looking like the class of the league, what with easy victories to date. Thus, the winner of today's tilt will be stamped as an outstanding favorite.

Last Friday while Forsan was smothering Garden City 39-8, Sterling was giving Garner a 35-15 lesson. But in the Sterling tourney immediately preceding the race, Sterling City won with Forsan being consistent with consolation.

Other games this evening see Garner at Coahoma and Garden City at Westbrook.

In all instances, there will be girls volley games as a part of the league program.

Relieves COLD DISCOMFORTS

MENTHOLATUM

At the first sign of a cold, make your mind to avoid as much of the sniffing, sneezing, runny nose and watery eyes as you possibly can. Mentholatum is the best remedy for colds.
