COOKS AND WAITERS WALK OUT BEFORE CONTRACT EXPIRES

Main Downtown Restaurants Hampered By Strike. It Was Sudden But Not Unanimous

Union cooks and waiters employed in Scott's cafe, the Ranger cafe and Cole's cafeteria are out on strike. They walked out at 5:00 o'clock Saturday afternoon at the command of the business agent, after the union's demands were presented to the employers and a Chamber of Commerce committee Saturday morning.

Service is obtainable at all the restaurants affected, as many of the employees have an interest in the concerns, and these stuck to their posts.

The principal demands of the union are: Six days' work instead of seven. Eight hours per day instead of nine for male employees; for women, eight hours a day (for six days) instead of seven hours and forty-two minutes for seven days. (This length day has been worked in order to comply with the state's fifty-four-hour law for women.)

The day's work must be completed in twelve hours, divided into more than two shifts, with four hours intervening, instead of three shifts with two hours interval between.

Increase of pay for all members, averaging $4 weekly each, divided as follows:

Table waitresses, now $21, $26.25. Counter waitresses, now $22.75, $29.75. Table waiters, now $28.50, $31.50. Counter waiters, now $31.50, $35. Head cooks, now $60, $65. Other cooks, now $50, $55.

These increases in addition to cutting fifteen hours a week from the men's time and six from the women's.

The contract under which the restaurants in Ranger were working terminates on Oct. 10. It provides that it may be changed on ten days' notice.

Quick Action. Saturday morning, it is said, the proprietors were notified of the proposed change. A meeting was held at the Chamber of Commerce between the proprietors and union agents, with Chamber of Commerce men endeavoring to settle the controversy without trouble. At this meeting the proprietors asked for more time to consider the matter. The union men said they would give until 5 o'clock to sign. No specific threat of a strike if the contract was not signed was made at this meeting, and in answer to a direct question the promise was made that there would be none.

At 5 o'clock the business agent entered Scott's cafe. Few of the employees were on duty at that hour. Perhaps eight customers were in the house. Manager Zielos was sitting at a front table studying the contract.

"Is it signed?" the agent asked.

"No," said Zielos.

"That settles it, then," the agent said, at the same time reaching for the contracts. He continued down between the tables, waving his left hand toward the door and shouting, "All out! All out!" The waiters on duty slowly removed their aprons and quit the restaurant. The scene was enacted a moment later at the Ranger cafe. After being ordered out, the strikers congregated on the sidewalk in aimless fashion. "Don't hang around here. Get on up to the hall!" the agent ordered. And they went.

Small Places Sign. The smaller downtown restaurants and those of the outlying districts are reported to have signed the new scale. The three restaurants affected continued short-handed. Several of the employees of each have an interest in the business, and they remained. Of 300 odd members of the local, about forty are out.

The managers of the three cafes say they will fight the new scale. They assert that its adoption would force an unwarranted increase in prices, and have wired to Dallas in an attempt to replace the strikers.

The Chamber of Commerce is striving to patch up the difficulty without paying the way to further strife. A motion was adopted by the chamber's directors which reads as follows:

"That it is the opinion of the board of directors that at this time it is not the province of the Chamber of Commerce to interfere in the controversy between the cafes and restaurants on one side and the cooks and waiters' union on the other; that there now exists a contract between these two parties and it is the belief of the board that this contract should be lived up to to the letter."

It is known that some of the members expressed the opinion that this was a good time to start an open shop movement, but the directors voted it down in the hope of settling the controversy peacefully.

Aside from walking out, the strikers made no move Saturday night. There was no propaganda to be seen and no picketing.

Scott's and the Ranger closed for the night at 11:45 p. m., the first time the doors have been locked in three years.

DEATH OF OIL MAN IN TULSA TO BE PROBED

Stiers, Vice President of Uncle Sam Concern, Thought Suicide.

TULSA, Okla., Sept. 25.—Fred Stier, 45 years old, vice-president of the Uncle Sam Oil company, formerly with offices here and now in Kansas City, shot and killed himself shortly after 1:30 this afternoon. The suicide was committed in the rear of a storage house. Nothing to denote a cause for his death was found. He leaves a wife in Kansas City.

KANSAS CITY, Sept. 25.—A thorough investigation of the circumstances of the death of Fred C. Stier, vice-president of the Uncle Sam Oil company, who was shot today in the rear of a storage house in Tulsa, Okla., will be made by the company, H. H. Tucker, president, said.

Mr. Tucker was inclined to discredit the report from Tulsa that Stier had committed suicide. "I consider it much more likely that some one shot him," Tucker said.

"Stier has had no financial troubles. I knew him intimately and know that both his personal finances and his financial relations with the company were entirely satisfactory."

"I talked to him yesterday noon over the telephone. He had gone to Tulsa to collect $5,000 which was owing to us in connection with a business deal with a bank company, over which we had some trouble. His instructions were to file suit in the case, in the event that he was unable to collect. In our telephone conversation he said he believed he would be able to obtain payment without legal action. I do not believe he committed suicide."

MILLERAND COMES OUT FOR LEAGUE IN FIRST ADDRESS

PARIS, Sept. 25.—Alexander Millerand, the new president, in his first message to parliament urged the league of nations should have power "justice" and advocated "more of justice, humanity and kindness" in social problems. His message was read in the senate and chamber of deputies and was followed by the cabinet declaration of policy which was that it would continue the program of the old government.

Georges Leygues, who yesterday accepted the first premiership under Millerand, agreed to the debate to its interpolations regarding the foreign and domestic of the government.

BORDER SALOONS IN MEXICO CLOSED TO ALLOW ELECTIONS

SAN ANTONIO, Sept. 25.—Acting upon instructions issued by Provisional President de la Huerta, all saloons in Mexican states along the Mexico-United States border closed their doors today to remain closed until next Monday when elections end.

The order, it is understood, will not effect operation of clubs where drinks are served.

GOT HALF OF PLUNDER; ASK HALF OF SENTENCE

DETROIT, Sept. 25.—Advancing the plea that since he had received only half the profits, he ought to be given only half the sentence, James Adams, twenty years old, started something new in court.

Adams admitted he assisted in the hold-up of Abraham Osher on August 24, but said that another man received half of the $15 secured. His plea fell on deaf ears and he was bound over to the grand jury under $1,000 bond.

At the state convention of the American Legion recently held at San Diego, Cal., a proposal was voted down to bar from membership Japanese who served in the world war.

JACOB SCHIFF DIES AT HIS HOME IN N. Y.

Noted Banker and Philanthropist Was Noted for Financial Deals.

NEW YORK, Sept. 25.—Jacob Schiff, widely known banker and philanthropist, died at his home here tonight.

The name of Jacob Schiff has been associated with the financial history of New York and of this country for a quarter of a century. At intervals in that time Mr. Schiff took an active part in the financial development of some of the leading railroads and utility corporations in the United States.

Aided Harriman. Backed by foreign capital, Mr. Schiff and the firm of Kuhn, Loeb and Company supported the late E. H. Harriman in the great financial adventure by which the Union Pacific railroad was reorganized in 1897 and in the subsequent transactions by which the Union Pacific obtained control of the Southern Pacific and other railroads.

This operation is regarded as one of the most important in which Mr. Schiff engaged as a banker. It involved a vast sum of money, possibly hundreds of millions of dollars, gave Mr. Schiff a prestige among New York banking houses which endured for the remainder of his life and it contributed to make E. H. Harriman the best known railroad organizer in the United States.

Another important enterprise which Mr. Schiff undertook as head of his firm was the placing in this country of a large Japanese loan when Japan went to war with Russia. Some years later Mr. Schiff expressed regret that he had been instrumental in providing funds which helped to place Japan among the leading nations of the world as a military power.

Educated in Germany. Born at Frankfurt, Germany, Jan. 10, 1847, Mr. Schiff was educated in Germany and when 18 years old removed to New York, where he entered upon his business career, beginning as a bank clerk. A few years afterward he became a member of the bankers and brokers. In 1875 Mr. Schiff married Theresa, daughter of Solomon Loeb, and became a member of the firm of Kuhn, Loeb and Company, of which his father-in-law was then senior partner.

When Mr. Loeb retired ten years later, Mr. Schiff became head of the firm and has since occupied that position. After this successful share in the financing of the Union Pacific reorganization, Mr. Schiff became one of the most widely known and influential bankers of New York. He has been director of several of the leading banks, trust, life insurance, railroad and utility companies, including the Union Pacific railroad and the Western Union Telegraph company. His firm acted as fiscal agents for some of the leading corporations of the United States.

Noted for Philanthropy. For more than a score of years Mr. Schiff was prominent in various forms of charity and philanthropy. He was vice president of the Baron de Hirsch fund, founder and president of the Montefiore Home for Chronic Invalids, one of the founders of Barnard college and contributed liberally to almost every Jewish movement or charitable institution and to many nonsectarian ones in New York. He gave generously to encourage the study of Hebrew literature, founded the Semitic museum at Harvard and the Jewish Theological Seminary of New York.

William Meadow, then secretary of the treasury, in a tribute to Mr. Schiff on the occasion of his seventieth birthday, described him as "a rare combination of the financier and altruist."

Mr. Schiff had one son, Mortimer L. Schiff, also a member of the firm of which his father was the head, and one daughter, Mrs. Felix Warburg, wife of another member of that firm. He had a home in Fifth avenue, New York, and a country home at Seabright, New Jersey.

MANN ACT CHARGE AGAINST MAN AND WOMAN HELD HERE

Sam and Helen Peltz are in the city jail for conspiracy to violate the Mann act. The arrest was made on telegraphic instruction from Fort Worth. Keith stated that the man and the woman were wanted for violating the act.

Peltz is connected with the Red Front store on Austin street.

SOME PROS IN SWITZERLAND.

BENE, Sept. 25.—The Swiss socialist party is drafting a bill which it intends to place before the Swiss parliament this month proposing a referendum for the purpose of prohibiting the sale of brandy and liquors in Switzerland.

REDS PLANNED TO BRING U. S. INTO SOVIET

World-Wide Campaign to Convert All to Doctrines of Bolshevism Exposed.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 25.—The establishment in the United States of a branch of the Third Internationale with the object of unifying activity of the revolutionary organization which functions on the two American continents, were ordered by the Internationale at its meeting in Moscow in July, it has been learned by officials here.

To further the spread of Bolshevism in the Western hemisphere resolutions were adopted at Moscow, the advice state, pledging support to strikes, either economic or political. Material aid is to be furnished the strikers in money paid by the American banks of the Internationale. Secret instructions adopted at Moscow are said to provide for a general strike of workers, particularly the railroad men and miners "if the capitalists government show any indication to strangle the revolution."

All revolutionary sections, the instructions state, "are formally directed to support the soviet in a revolutionary war." Spread of the soviet to the United States is the object of a world wide campaign, advisors declare. One of the resolutions said that the "activity of the Third Internationale is not to be limited to the territories of Europe, but will spread to Hindustan, Turkey, Indo-China and the Latin-Americas."

In this connection the secret instructions provide for continuation by the Internationale in its activities independently of the treaties of peace which may be signed between soviet Russia and the other powers.

AVIATOR IS HOVERING TO SPY BANDITS

Armed Citizens Surround Corn Field to Capture Daring Bank Robbers.

PITTSBURG, Kan., Sept. 25.—With scores of citizens and members of the Anti-Force Thief Association guarding a cornfield where six bandits who robbed the cashier of the Katy Coal company today of $11,000 pay roll are believed to be in hiding, the capture of the robbers is expected soon. An aviator also is hovering over the field.

DRASTIC MOVE TO PREVENT PARKING NEAR FIRE PLUGS

Drastic measures to punish motorists who park their automobiles within ten feet of fire plugs will be taken by Judge Flevelyn in the future, according to Fire Chief Buttome. This practice has caused untold embarrassment to the fire department, according to the chief, and was the cause of considerable delay in getting hose into operation at the time of the Pine street conflagration some time ago.

This practice is in direct violation of a city ordinance, Chief Buttome asserted.

RED CROSS ROLL CALL DIRECTOR IS DALLAS MAN

DALLAS, Sept. 25.—George G. Briggs, a Dallas banker, has been appointed Texas state director and member of the advisory committee for the fourth roll call of the Red Cross Amistice Week, beginning Nov. 11, it was announced today. A state wide Red Cross convalesce will be held in Waco, Oct. 4-5 and Mr. Briggs urges every Texas chapter to be represented by delegates. National division officer and prominent workers are expected to attend.

SCOTCH AND MAGYARS BELONG TO SAME RACE, SCIENTIST DISCOVERS

BUDAPEST, Sept. 25.—The Scotch and these Transylvanian Magyars known as "Szeklers" are of the same race, according to the conclusions of Professor May Mose of Debrecen university.

Both peoples, according to Professor Mose, are descendants of the same Teutonic tribe that became divided. He holds there are striking similarities in the dialects and customs of the two peoples. It is proposed to use his study in support of the Szeklers' demand for independence.

GEO. T. COOPER OF FT. WORTH ELECTED HEAD OF POLICE FORCE; WILL HAVE RIGID INSTRUCTIONS

Embargo on Booze and Ban on Gambling Orders Given New Police Head; Immoral Women Also to Be Curbed Under New Commission Ruling.

After declaring that whisky was sold openly over bars; that open gambling was being done in Ranger, and that immoral women were allowed to parade the streets unmolested, the city commission yesterday afternoon appointed George T. Cooper of Fort Worth permanent chief of police. Cooper will succeed Eugene Reynolds, who has been acting since the dismissal of Byron B. Parrish three months ago. The final vote of Mayor M. H. Hagaman was the deciding one which gave the appointment to Cooper.

A motion was made by R. D. Lincoln that Eugene Reynolds be maintained as chief, and was seconded by A. Davenport. T. G. Deffebach put Cooper's name before the body and his motion was seconded by M. R. Newnam. When the vote came it was tied, Lincoln and Davenport voting for Reynolds and the remaining two commissioners casting their ballots for Cooper. When it was seen that it would require the mayor's vote to break the deadlock he declared that he was sorry it was so, since it was the only time since the city had been organized that he had had to exert that power.

BUYING IN RANGER IS STIMULATED

Sales of Goods in All Lines Swell Since Trade Carnival.

Stimulated sales to out-of-town buyers are reported by local merchants since the beginning of the Ranger Trade Carnival last week. A wide distribution of the coupons being given away with purchases at local business concerns, also is reported.

"Though the sale of merchandise to persons living within the boundaries of the Ranger trade territory has never been slack, the first week of the carnival indicates that the advertising placed in different parts of the country and the unusually vigorous efforts of the merchants, has resulted in considerably keener buying. This condition encompasses every article sold in Ranger. Especially is it true of clothing and dry goods.

For the first few days of the carnival the distribution of the coupons, which entitle the holder to participation in prize awards to be made at the culmination of the carnival, was not as brisk as it has come to be within the last few days. During the earlier days of the carnival merchants were obliged to call attention to the fact that the coupons had a tangible worth. This is not the case now. With every $1 purchase buyers have learned they are entitled to one of the coupons and have gotten into the habit of asking for them.

A noticeable increase in the number and amount of sales to farmers and ranchmen in the smaller communities around Ranger has been evident. Farmers are laying in their winter supplies and the womenfolk are extending themselves in the purchase of fall and winter clothes.

AMERICAN WAR STOCKS CAUSE FRENCH TO STRAY FROM PATH OF PROBITY

PARIS, Sept. 25.—Two thousand eight hundred and eighty-two government employees and eighty-two government employees suspended in connection with the sale of left-over American, British and French war stocks, since the appointment of Emmanuel Brousse by Premier Millerand, as under secretary of state for the liquidation of war stocks, an official note from that department says.

The American stocks proved a great attraction to employees who were imbued with the idea that liquidation began at home. Many of them are now in La Sante prison.

AMERICAN HOME CANNING ART TO BE TAUGHT TO FRENCH

WASHINGTON, Sept. 25.—The American art of home canning and drying of fruits and vegetables is being taught in France. All classes of French life have been reached by the four American experts lent to the French government by the agriculture department to give canning demonstrations.

During June, July and August, the Americans moved from place to place in France, carrying their work into practically every part of that country. At the first demonstration held in a chateau near Versailles, products canned by the French last year were exhibited. Several commercial canners competed with the housewives, but the latter carried off the first prizes.

Special Stamps for Albert. RIO DE JANEIRO, Sept. 25.—Special postage stamps for use in Brazil only, will be issued during the visit of King Albert of the Belgians to this country. The stamps will be of the 100 reis denomination, and will bear the portraits of King Albert and President Pessoa.

REYNOLDS WILLING TO AID NEW HEAD OF POLICE FORCE

"I am satisfied with the decision of the city commission in choosing Mr. Cooper as permanent head of the police department."

This statement was made last night by Eugene F. Reynolds, acting chief of police, when interviewed by a Times reporter.

"I would have been glad to serve as chief of police since the commission decided that Mr. Cooper was better qualified to fill the place I will do all I can to help him get started in his new duties and anything I can do to help him carry out the wishes of the commission I will gladly do."

The retiring police head said that all his official acts had been done with his idea of what was for the best interests of the city, and if he had erred he was sincerely sorry. He had only one fault to find with the decision of the commission. He had hoped, he declared, that the choice would fall to a Ranger man, if not himself, then someone else, whose home was here.

Mr. Reynolds has been acting as chief of police since the resignation of Byron B. Parrish about three months ago.

Before that time he was desk sergeant at the police station since the city was organized. His future plans have not fully matured.

DELAYING PROBE OF CROKERY IN BASE BALL WORLD

CHICAGO, Sept. 25.—Plans to subpoena four members of the Chicago American league club and the wife of one of its players to appear next week before the Cook county grand jury probing the alleged "fixing" of last year's world's series, were abandoned today and Hartley Replege, in charge of the inquiry announced that no members of the team would be called until the end of the baseball season.

"We do not want to interfere with the chances of the White Sox to win the pennant," he said.

The players for whom subpoenas were issued early in the day but held up by Mr. Replege were for John Collins, first baseman, Ray Schalk, catcher, Eddie Murphy, utility outfielder.

Replege said tonight that the probe would not last two months. President Johnson of the American league and President John Heyner, of the National league, will be the witnesses when they reconvene Tuesday.

GUARANTEE INCOME OF TRANS-ANDEAN RY.

SANTIAGO, Sept. 25.—A bill has been introduced in the Chilean house of deputies in furtherance of the long discussed project to build a railway across the Andes connecting Sata, center of a rich agricultural region of northern Argentina, with the Chilean port of Antofagasta. The bill provides that the contractors would receive a state guarantee of 6 per cent of the actual cost of the railway for fifteen years after it is opened. The cost is estimated at $16,000,000.

The Chilean newspapers commenting on the measure say the railway not only would serve as an outlet to the Pacific for products of northern Argentina, such as sugar, but would open to exploitation rich mineral regions of north-central Chile.

The only direct rail route now connecting the two republics is the trans-Andino from Los Andes, Chile, to Mendoza, Argentina.

When the time came for him to cast the deciding vote, the mayor gave as his reason for voting against the acting chief as being the fact that he had failed to stop open gambling.

This fact, added to others, Mr. Deffebach said, disqualified the entire police department in his mind.

Before adjournment Mr. Newnam went on record as advocating a policy of hiring and discharging a chief of police twice each week until one was found who suited the commission.

A persistent rumor was afloat last

Effective at Once. The new chief's appointment becomes effective at once and the commissioners, at Mr. Davenport's suggestion, decided they would go to police headquarters in a body when he takes charge and issue him instructions and then see that they are obeyed.

Both Mr. Newnam and Mr. Deffebach went on record to close the town as tightly as it was humanly possible.

Neither Mr. Lincoln or Mr. Davenport agreed with this stand exactly, each of them saying that something radical should be done but they doubt the feasibility of closing the town as tightly as had been advocated.

The mayor also declared for a closed town.

Criticize Conditions. Mr. Newnam said that Ranger was the rottenest place in the state, and if it ruined the town to close it he was for having it ruined. "We have tried to split the middle of the road," he stated, "and found that it could not be done," and now that he was trying the other method for a while.

"Conditions have gotten so bad in Ranger that I am ashamed to be known as a commissioner," Mr. Deffebach declared, and he agreed with Mr. Newnam that the time had come to try other means.

He was also sure that many good families would move here if the present conditions were changed for the better.

Reynolds Popular Personally. Those of the commissioners and the mayor who voted against Mr. Reynolds all stated that personally they liked him, but the fact, they said, that he did not carry out the mayor's orders to close open gambling houses was enough to justify them in not electing him for the head of the police department.

In calling the meeting to order Mayor Hagaman stated that the purpose was to settle the police situation.

He said that many complaints were coming to him and that the commission was being criticized. The commissioners were asked if they wanted to leave the situation as it was or change it.

Mr. Lincoln suggested that all the applications be considered and a man chosen and then a policy be adopted for his guidance. The names of Eugene Reynolds, C. C. Hamilton, Jim Hunt and George T. Cooper were given as applicants. The mayor, however, stated that several other applications were on file from out of town men.

Reynolds was then nominated by Mr. Lincoln, who declared that he was in favor of retaining all old help when taking over a new business.

He was positive that if Reynolds had his instructions laid down to him by the commission he would make an efficient chief of police. During the meeting he also said that a few nights ago that he had stepped into a place on Main street where corn whisky was being sold for $1 a drink. This, he said, convinced him that something would have to be done to remedy conditions.

Mr. Davenport declared Reynolds had not had any one to tell him what to do. At a question from Mr. Newnam along this line he stated that he had, at one time, had gambling under control. "But," he continued, "what is one man's job cannot be many men's jobs." Both the mayor and Mr. Newnam insisted that they had both told the acting chief to do different things and in each case he had promised, but the conditions were worse now than they had ever been. The mayor declaring that gambling was going on at the moment he was talking.

Mayor Decides. When the time came for him to cast the deciding vote, the mayor gave as his reason for voting against the acting chief as being the fact that he had failed to stop open gambling. This fact, added to others, Mr. Deffebach said, disqualified the entire police department in his mind. Before adjournment Mr. Newnam went on record as advocating a policy of hiring and discharging a chief of police twice each week until one was found who suited the commission. NEW HIGH SCHOOL VITAL NEED OF CITY BEFORE NEXT TERM—CLASSES CURTAILED

A new high school building is being agitated for the city by members of the school board to be completed before the term opens next fall. To carry out the plan, a bond election will have to be called and bonds voted. It is believed that $250,000 would be ample to construct such a building as would fill the city's need for many years.

As is pointed out by those fostering the movement the present high school building is wholly inadequate to care for the attendance which necessitates the using of the temporary structures built last year to care for the increased attendance. These buildings will have to be used until such a time as a new school is built. This is considered a real drawback by the leaders in educational thought in Ranger, ever is what it aspires to be, the leading educational center of Western Texas.

The present structure was built fifteen years ago when it provided ample room for all children who attended school in this city. While being in a fair state of repair, it does not begin to fill the need that exists.

The Tax rolls of E. A. Ringold, tax assessor of the Ranger school district, show that this district has a valuation of $16,000,000. To vote a bond issue of the amount it is thought will be needed will only require the raising of the present school tax, which is fifty cents, two or three cent on the hundred dollar valuation. A raise of two cents would create an income to care for the bonds, if they were voted of $32,000 each year. On this basis the bonds with interest would be carried for ten years.

These are the arguments of those who are agitating the matter.

CLAMP LID ON TOWN, POLICE CHIEF TOLD

might that many citizens of the town were not satisfied with the choice of a police chief because of the fact that he was a non-resident, and that an injunction would be sought, restraining the commission from seating him until the question had been established whether or not he could legally be a chief of police of Ranger under the state law and the city charter. Just where the rumor started and who will take the lead in the matter could not be learned last night. If the injunction is sought the question to be settled is whether or not the commission has authority to appoint a chief of police who is not a legal resident of this city.

Mr. Cooper is in Fort Worth and could not be interviewed, but on making application for the place he stated that he had been an officer for twenty-five years. Commissioner Newnam stated that while in Fort Worth he investigated his record and found it to be clean.

He Was Mistaken.

"What do you mean, sir?" said the angry man in the crowd, "by sticking your umbrella in my eye?"

"Oh, no," replied the offender, cheerfully, "you're mistaken, I assure you!"

"Mistaken?" roared the aggrieved one. "Do you mean to say that I don't know when my eye is hurt? I saw you do it! How can I be mistaken?"

"I assure you that you are, nevertheless," was the calm reply. "You may know when your eye is hurt, but you don't know my umbrella. This isn't mine—I borrowed it!"—Houston Post.

The Limit.

"Smith is a great man to worry over nothing, isn't he?" said Brown.

"Yes," replied Jones. "Why, if he took an ocean voyage, he would worry for fear the sea would dry up and leave him stranded in the mud."—Philadelphia Ledger.

COTTON PICKERS WILL BE ABLE TO MAKE RICH 'STAKE' THROUGH WEST TEXAS DURING SEASON

The cotton growers of Western Texas are appealing to Ranger for help in gathering the largest crop of the staple that has been grown in years. Letters are coming daily to the Chamber of Commerce asking that it do what it can to get pickers into the fields over the western part of the state, and yesterday two farmers from Merkle appeared in person.

The opening price for pickers per hundred at Merkle has been fixed at $2. This means that the average man can earn $6 to $8 each day in the fields.

Families Sought.

However, the farmers are not asking so much for single men as they are for families who can gather a bale or more of the staple each day. In times past, it has been pointed out, families with six or seven children have earned enough money during the bumper crop over West Texas to lay away a handsome sum of money by the time the schools opened in the winter; and many gained the start they needed to get on farms as tenants themselves. This is especially true where there are five or six large boys and 1,500 to 2,000 pounds of cotton can be gathered by the crew each day.

Average Pay High.

This season such families will average $30 to $40 each day for a period of nearly four months, which should leave a net profit of $1200 to $1500 in the family treasury.

J. E. T. Peters, manager of the Chamber of Commerce, declares that over Western Texas the cotton crop is of an magnitude as has not been reached in years.

Porter A. Whaley, manager of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce, who was in the city a few days ago, said that more cotton would be raised in this section this year than has been in case for several past years.

To get it gathered in time for spring plowing, thousands of hands are going to be needed, both men declare. To help as much as possible, the local chamber will make an effort to locate all those in Ranger who care to help gather the crop.

In unusual cases where families wish to go to the fields arrangements can be made for transportation.

WORLD'S STRUCTURAL SCIENCE TO BE REVOLUTIONIZED BY NEW PATENT OF RANGER INVENTOR

A new idea in structural iron construction, especially in its application to bridge building and spanning of space where supports are impossible of placing or not wanted, is the invention of a Ranger citizen.

W. D. Clay of the Clay Boiler works has been granted a patent in a hollow steel structural material capable of standing the greatest stresses, spanning wide gaps without danger to the superstructure it may support and still be put into position at a comparatively low price. It is inevitable that large savings in steel and iron will result from the invention.

Mr. Clay has but recently been granted patent rights and has not thus far attempted to exploit his invention. Before he used his invention elsewhere he used it on the building which houses his boiler works with singular success. The points of structural pieces are welded together by the acetylene method, thus making the whole skeleton-work one piece of metal, with the weight bearing down on the lower ends of the pieces instead of against less firm joints.

Mr. Clay now is contemplating putting in several bridges in the state. It is his claim that spans of his structural steel can be used to bridge spaces 150 feet wide without supports between the ends. If this experiment is successful it will revolutionize the bridge building industry, in the opinion of authorities, and constitute one of the greatest booms to structural engineers since the invention of the steam hoist.

Mr. Clay also is the inventor of a new boiler fire-box, so designed as to save huge quantities of fuel and still produce the required volume of steam. Briefly explained, the fire box and the boiler is made to first convert water into steam and later to super-heat the steam before the steam is dissipated by escaping to the air.

OVERALLS ON FIRE CAUSE FIREMEN TO MAKE RUN; GAS FIRE

A leaky gas main being ignited and a pair of overalls burning caused the fire department to make two runs last night.

The gas main was in a cabinet on Main street. It was leaking and became ignited in some unknown manner. No damage was done.

The overalls caught fire in a garage on the east side of town through causes not known.

Volunteers in the army of Lower California received $25 a day as private soldiers in the recent uprising. Aviators earned $100 a day and machine gunners $50.

We, the undersigned restaurant owners of Ranger, regret that the present cooks and waiters strike will impair our service temporarily. In defense of the stand we have taken, the following explanation is offered for your consideration:

When the new contract was first presented the matter was taken up with the Chamber of Commerce in an effort to make an adjustment to avoid any trouble. Mr. T. D. Wade, financial secretary of the union, attended this meeting and promised that the ten days notice, as stipulated in our present contract, would be given. This promise, as well as the signed contract, was broken and a strike called within approximately eight hours after the first demand was made.

Their demands will call for more money and less work, which under the present decrease in all commodities, is unjustifiable, we believe. If the old scale was good enough during the high prices of the boom days, it should certainly be satisfactory now.

We do not intend to grant the increase, and will ask that the public bear with us such inconveniences as these conditions may bring up.

Jonnard's Pinch Twirling Beats Panthers, 4-3

Free-for-All Fight Is Added Attraction at Little Rock Grounds.

Special to The Times.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Sept. 25.—Little Rock evened up the series with Fort Worth here by winning a hectic battle, 4 to 3. A free for all fight was thrown in as an added attraction to the largest crowd that ever witnessed a ball game in Little Rock. Kraft started the near-riot in the fifth inning, when Yellowhorse bunted down the first base line. The traveler pitcher attempted to knock the ball from the fielder's hand with his elbow, and Moore, the Travelers' third baseman, had gotten away with the trick the day before. Kraft soaked the Indian and Kid Elberfeld rushed to the scene. He attempted to hit Kraft, but players and policemen separated the pair. There was a free for all for a few minutes, then the two teams went on with their ball game.

Both teams scored in the third inning, Fort Worth taking one and Little Rock two. The Travelers added two more in the fifth, giving them just enough to stave off the Panther rallies in the final stages of the game. The Panthers counted in the sixth and seventh.

Jonnard, a relief pitcher who was rushed into the breach in the seventh, was the deciding factor in the game. He relieved Yellowhorse with one run over, the bases full and none out. He fanned O'Brien and Moore and forced Robinson, who was batting for Appleton, to hit weakly to third.

Joe Pate started for Fort Worth, but he was wild and was jerked in the fifth. The two teams left tonight for Fort Worth, where the sixth game of the series will be played Sunday.

St. Louis Players Lead Batsmen in Both Leagues

CHICAGO, Sept. 25.—As the major league clubs swing into the final two weeks of the pennant race, George Sisler, star first baseman with St. Louis, seems certain of carrying off the 1920 batting championship of the American league.

Sisler, according to figures compiled today, is showing the way with an average of .465, with Tris Speaker of Cleveland, six points behind him. Joe Jackson of Chicago is in third place with .381 and Eddie Collins, captain of the Chicago club, fourth, with .371. The averages include games of Wednesday.

"Babe" Ruth, the home run monarch, who went homerless for a week, but got two Friday, failed to shake off his batting slump, but managed to cling to fourth place in the list of leaders with an average of .397, although he made only one hit in six games.

Rice, of Washington is in no danger of being dethroned as the leading base stealer. He has fifty-five thefts to his credit, while Sisler is next in line with thirty-seven.

Other leading batters: Jacobson, St. Louis, .346; Rice, Washington, .341; Judge, Washington, .340; Tobin, St. Louis, .338; Weaver, Chicago, .337; Felsch, Chicago, .334; Menzel, New York, .333; Cobb, Detroit, .337.

The scramble for the batting championship of the National league has developed into a tight race between Roger Hornsby of St. Louis and Nicholson of Pittsburgh, with Hornsby topping the league with .365. Nicholson, who led the race a week ago, is a point behind the St. Louis slugger. Young of New York, is third, with .352, and Roush of Cincinnati, fourth with .340.

Cy Williams of Philadelphia, the leading home run hitter of the league connected with another four base drive, bringing his total up to fifteen. In base stealing, Max Carey of Pittsburgh continues to show the way with a total of forty-eight. Other leading batters: J. Smith, St. Louis, .329; Wheat, Brooklyn, .325; Williams, Philadelphia, .319; Scott, St. Louis, .318; Hallock, Chicago, .318; Konetchy, Brooklyn, .313; Fournier, St. Louis, .309.

CZECHO-SLOVAKIANS HOLD MOTO RSHOW

We have all heard the tales of woe from Europe—how the grown-ups were living from hand to mouth; how the children were dying by the thousands from starvation—but few of us have heard any rumors of prosperity. Yet just to prove that all the expensive hobbies have not entirely died in central and eastern Europe, an automobile show was held during July in Czechoslovakia.—Motor Life.

Why Should It?
"I see some gent," remarked George, "says dancing is simply hugging set to music."
"Well, that won't hurt its popularity any," opined Tricotine.—Judge.

NO CRIME WAVE.

Judging by the letter from the sheriff of Stephens county to the citizens of Breckenridge, the "crime wave" which some made so bold as to assert hung over Ranger seems to have moved to the northward. But the Breckenridge series of burglaries, like the Ranger robberies, if their perpetrators are discovered, will probably be found to be the work of one gang.

Ranger two weeks ago would seem a very wicked place, what with a bold holdup in the early hours of the morning followed by a daylight robbery and street battle with officers. At first thought one might think such deeds were typical of the oil fields, and flourished there. But the developments which followed in rapid sequence have shown otherwise. The men who committed these crimes were not workers in the fields. They were not habitués of Ranger resorts. They were strangers who planned at least part of their campaign of violence in one of the larger cities and then came here to put it into execution. The "crime wave" was no more indicative of life in Ranger than the blowing of the postoffice safe in a small cotton belt town would convict the populace at large of lawbreaking. The system was the same. Vicious men sought something for nothing and came to Ranger to get it.

Likewise, if the Breckenridge burglars are captured, it will be found that the depredations there are the work of one organized band, and not an expression of widespread dishonesty.

Oil field dwellers are lawabiding. They may be violent under emotional stress, as are others. But they are not desperadoes, and the only thing that favors outlawry in this section is the comparative immunity from recognition after a crime is once committed, due to the lack of information which a man has concerning his neighbor.

THE RESTAURANT STRIKE.

It would appear, viewed in the light of the facts at hand, that the cooks and waiters' union has acted in a way which cannot be commended. They have sought to paralyze the restaurant business of Ranger in order to enforce demands sprung virtually without notice. Working under an agreement which expires on Oct. 10, they broke that contract by walking out in support of a scale to go into effect after that date. Their present scale provides that contracts may be opened on ten days' notice. They gave less than ten hours! Rather than negotiate an instrument which upon analysis does not appear in line with the trend of the times, they resort to force to put it into effect. They do this despite their word given this morning that there would be no strike.

The cooks and waiters ask for approximately $4 a week increase in pay. They ask for a lessening of hours from nine to eight for male employees—two meal periods to be included in the eight hours. They ask for one "split" instead of two—a split being time off between periods of work. These are the essentials. There are a few minor changes.

WHY AN INCREASE?

Men waiters are now drawing $28.50 on the tables and $31.50 a week at the counters—and their meals. Women draw a minimum of $21 a week—and their meals. In addition to this tips form no inconsiderable item. Cooks draw $50 and $60 a week—and their meals. Anyone buying meals knows that this item alone amounts to well over $20 a week. Thus it will be seen that waiters now draw more than $50 a week and cooks $75 or more, which is more than is paid any craft in town, and the other high wage earners, such as the carpenters, plumbers, painters, do not work every day. Furthermore, their work requires years prices. Rents are falling. Clothing is falling. The price of food does not affect the waiters. This being the case, there does not appear to be any reason why wages for this class of work should be increased. If the remuneration was sufficient during the boom days, it is certainly sufficient now.

There is the other phase of the wage question which affects the welfare of the city as a whole. That is, that if the increase should be granted and trouble averted, food prices in Ranger will go up 25 per cent and more. That steak the plumber and the carpenter now pay $1 for will cost them $1.35. Other prices will be in proportion. That is a serious matter at a time when Ranger is striving to build a city and needs to make itself financially attractive to visitors; that is, needs to have prices that the out-of-town customer does not regard as exorbitant. The welfare of the town demands that no steps be taken which will raise prices of commodities.

OPENING FOR STRIFE.

Aside from the merits of their wage demand, the cooks and waiters' union has broken its contract, something no reputable labor organization does except under extreme stress. And there is no urgency in the present controversy. No unusual conditions have arisen to make immediate action imperative. The scale which was in effect until 5 o'clock Saturday afternoon does not expire until Oct. 11. It provides that it may be changed up at any time upon ten days' notice. Yesterday less than ten hours' notice was given. At a meeting at the Chamber of Commerce the document was handed to the proprietors with the invitation to "sign here" before 5 o'clock. It was expressly stated at this meeting that no strike would be called. Nevertheless it was called; called not only in violation of the written contract but in violation of fair play to the proprietors and the public.

This demand for increased wages, many waiters have admitted in private, is unwarranted by conditions. The method attempted in attaining the increase is an insult to a town which has always shown a disposition to meet labor half way. It is a backhanded blow at the self-respecting unions which have kept their contracts. It is liable to stir up trouble not only for the cooks and waiters but for other crafts as well. The open shop association is aching to get a toe-hold in Ranger. It can easily come if labor insists on self-aggrandizement at the expense of the common welfare. That, of course, would mean other and long drawn out strife which fair minded men on both sides of the capital-labor fence are anxious to avoid. Other unions should be considered when a local starts trouble.

WHY NOT?

Our advice to the cooks and waiters—and this is written by a union man who has carried a card for fifteen years—is to promptly repudiate the action of their leaders in this peremptory and unreasonable demand. Go back to work. Negotiate any real improvements with an open mind. The proprietors, we feel sure, will receive their duped employes without ranking. The two sides can then get together and remedy any real grievances. Meanwhile, if the strikers persist in their arbitrary course, they should do it alone. Union labor should not be expected to kiss the hand of its fellow which has struck it in the face.

A LAY SERMON.

"If ten men had stood firm at Waterloo; if a feeble half-score of Napoleon's mighty horde had refused to retreat and, instead of retreating, had charged, the Little Corporal would never have pined at St. Helena."

This statement was made before a class of pupils at a military college some half-dozen years ago by one of the instructors, since hailed as an eminent strategist and disciplinarian during the war.

He made the statement to illustrate the value of courage—morale, as we have learned to call it. And the statement still holds true.

It is applicable to every pursuit of life. It applies to individuals, groups, classes, communities and nations. It applies to Ranger.

Ranger has ceased to be a swaddling babe. Within the next few years it must take its place in the rank of Grade-A cities or regress to the status of a country village.

Ranger was widely advertised by the oil boom. Now the impetus given the city by the oil boom dies down. Something must be found to replace it if the city is to drive ahead. Some hold that the boom was the greatest possible boon to Ranger. Others contend that the city was actually harmed by the oil strike. In the final analysis it is likely that it will be found that Ranger did profit tremendously from the oil boom, not because of the intrinsic value of the oil itself, but because of the class of men and women its discovery attracted here and who are in many instances its leading citizens.

IMPRESSIVE CEREMONIES AT RED CROSS LEADER'S FUNERAL

Floral tributes at the funeral of Miss Jane A. Delano.

The military funeral in Arlington cemetery of Miss Jane A. Delano, head of the Red Cross nurse corps, was both impressive and picturesque. Miss Delano was instrumental in raising a corps of 20,000 nurses during the war and died in France while still in active charge of the corps.

ORGANIZATION.

The merchant prices nowadays, keep tab on all the N. O. jays. There comes to Pruneville-in-the-Vale, a stranger, J. Adolphus Kale. He's no apologetic runt; he puts up quite a gorgeous front; he talks as though he owned a mine that turned out gold or rubies fine. In olden times this sort of bluff was really quite artistic stuff. But now when J. Adolphus goes to stores that deal in furbelows, and says, "I've come to settle down in this, your enterprising town, and need three miles of barb wire fence, which I will pay for three weeks hence," the dealer al lot secondarily. Even that is not true. Ranger is not Utopian, and such conditions are not found outside of that storied estate.

It is not necessary that everyone work in union for the good of Ranger. It will be sufficient if relatively few staunch spirits battle on for the city's betterment.

It is not an exaggeration to say that ten men of average intelligence and enterprising natures would work in absolute union toward the single end that Ranger forge ahead in all the things that go to make a city really great. Ranger would be great. This, even though the rest of the city's population amalgamate into one vast Anvil club.

Ranger needs leadership. And even now men of tested ability are standing forth to assume the responsibilities.

THE WOMAN WHO SAW

Under the Veneer. The Business Girl was obsessed with a sudden desire to revisit a quaint clock shop down in Washington Market section, where, away back before the war, she had found fascinating trinkets in Swiss wood carvin and where she had loved the heaven of tinkly sound at striking time. Hunting for it, she somehow got lost and wandered on and on past wholesale stores, green grocers, nursery salesrooms and queer crockery places. Not a "toop" was in sight anywhere. Suddenly the street was very, very hot and dusty and the Girl was very tired. She decided to hunt the subway instead of the shop, and was looking about uncertainly when a delivery wagon drew up at the curb and the driver alighted. Removing his cap he approached her with a smile.

"Lookin' for something you can't find?" he asked in a friendly voice, and knew instantly when she had described the shop where she had taken the wrong turn.

"I said to myself when I saw you that you'd come a little too far," he explained and touching his cap which he had replaced, he drove off with a great clatter. Silly tears came into the Business Girl's eyes, so strongly rushed back memories of her childhood in the old South where going astray on any byway was a joyous adventure in human kindness and public good will. She smiled through tired tears to recall the grand chariot ride she had had through a mile of fragrant summer twilight—the chariot improvised out of an old hickory chair upborne by two kindly old negro men when her little chestnut horse had shied and thrown her down by the "rick." And then—and then—

—But the Girl was just a little homesick and the memories were too poignant. And, anyway, she decided, folks are just as kind in New York when they desire to be. It's only that the veneer is a little thicker.

Wishing Her Luck.

On her way to see a friend the other day in uptown New York, the Woman was made to appreciate at least one of her blessings—namely, that she has a comfortable roof over her head, even if it does cost more than her income justifies. At a busy crossing a man appeared carrying a large sign. He paused for a moment on the curb and the Woman read plainly on the big board the now almost obsolete words, "For Rent." She was not the only one who had caught sight of the inscription. As the man started to cross the street an excited dame dashed through the throng of pedestrians, and, dodging an automobile, overtook the man and immediately engaged him in lively conversation, unmindful of swift moving cars and the roaring trucks whizzing past them.

The Woman passed on the curb to let a big motor truck thunder by, and when it had passed, she saw the two proceed to the opposite curb and start down the street together, the enterprising one with a springy step and a high bobbed hat. The sign was evidently in an empty house, not her own, and she had office from one already. Any Mother Will Do.

sighs and says, "By Jones, I fear you'll have to show the bones before you park that wire away—you're not renowned as first class pay." Then J. Adolphus leaves the store and kicks himself until he's sore. The Pruneville merchants, when they found the gay Adolphus on the ground, inquired of Mudtown-on-the-Pike, what this Adolphus gent was like, and Mudtown said, "If he's your guest, nail down all things and guard the rest." Thus, nowadays, our records go from town to town, and all men know if we are classed as "good as wheat," or listed "neath the head of 'Beat.'" mal store on the Avenue without stopping to look at the dear funny, fuzzy puppies pommeling and bumping each other in their tiny stalls or rolling over comfortably to take a nap. There were six of assorted sizes and shapes the other day, but no mother to snuggle up against. Instead there was a big white Angora cat, very lazy, very sleepy. She blinked her eyes contentedly while two of the liveliest pups scurried and wrestled energetically on her unresisting back.

A half hour later, when the woman passed on her way home, the white cat was sleeping cozily in one corner of the stall, and evidently the puppies had found her thick fur just as invitingly comfortable as their mother's rough hair, for the six little fellows nestled all about her, asleep, their moist little noses pressing unrebuked against her smooth white coat.

JOHN-A-DREAMS

CXLIX. DREAMS OF A HONEY MOON (1)

This, part I of the chapter of Dreams About a Honey Moon for married women only particularly those whose real honey moon is some years past.

To dream that you are on a honeymoon trip with your husband, and that you are very happy, has a bad meaning. It signifies that love will fly out of the window and that, during many sad hours, dream of the day when you and he were like two turtle-doves. It is not possible to say off hand just what will bring this estrangement about. You will have to give me a detailed account of the dream, then, perhaps I may be able to find something in it that will serve as a hint as to how to avert the heart-tragedy.

If you dream, however, that you are on a honeymoon trip with your husband and are continuously quarreling with him, the sign is good. You and he will undertake a trip, you will have a splendid time and will almost feel as though you had just been married.

A dream in which you are on a honeymoon with a man not your husband, is also a good omen. It hints that someone will admire you very much, that your husband will grow jealous, and that, as a result, he will be more attentive than ever in order to hold your love.

A significant dream is one in which the sleeper believes herself to be in the company of a honeymooning couple. The party of a honeymooning couple, if a couple as guests at your house and that their presence will lead to disagreements between you and your husband.

To dream that your mother is on her honeymoon is a sign that she will not get along with your husband. It does not matter whether your father is alive or dead; the meaning of the dream is the same.

If you have a dream that you are on your honeymoon with your husband and become separated from him in some way you may know that he will be compelled, you for a considerable time.

And if you dream that you leave him in the course of the honeymoon, then a family affair will take you away from home for quite a spell.

Answer to M. A. L.

M. A. L.—A dream of this sort means the contrary of the message, so that the vision advises not to take Fred.

In the next chapter I will tell you of Dreams of honeymoon by single Women.

Some of the country editors are not permitted, it seems, to alter or delete any of the copy sent in by their provincial correspondents—nor to insert parenthetical comments. If they were, we'd expect to read things like this: "Mrs. John J. [and if] at this writing" (and if they were, they should be allowed to say "Any Mother Will Do").

THE ALAND ISLANDS AND THE LEAGUE.

"Geographically and geologically," the Aland islands belong to Finland. In the winter solid ice forms a physical connection with the Finnish shore. The people, originally of Swedish stock, have become reconciled to Finnish nationality. The islands, as a part of Finland specifically mentioned, were ceded by Sweden to Russia in 1809.

That is one side of a famous dispute. The Swedish view is that the larger islands are nearer Sweden than Finland; that the group forms an ideal unit for self-determination; that the inhabitants have already voted for the Swedish flag, and would so vote again if they could; that their leaders have been arrested by the Finns as traitors; that the strategic importance of the islands to Finland might be recognized by continuing the agreement of the Paris treaty of 1856 that they are not to be fortified or used as a military base.

Both sides can appeal to history. Both do appeal to local sentiment, disagreeing as to what that sentiment is. In short, here is an example, rarely perfect, of that kind of European question for which Senator Harding pulls out the tremolo stop when he asks if American mothers want their boys to be killed in settling such disputes.

They do not. Neither do Swedish nor Finnish mothers, for that matter. But not having had the advantage of Front-porch instruction upon this death-threatening League of Nations, the Finns and Swedes are actually appealing to it to settle their quarrel without bloodshed. And the league—which "does not exist," which is "an utter failure," which "entails unceasing warfare"—will probably proceed to do that very thing.—New York World.

"IT'S ALL IN TH' KICKS, KID," SAYS CHORUS QUEEN

Gwendolyn de Snuff.

Languidly toying with her pet boa constrictor, a present from the Rajah of Gysnum during her tour of the Orient, Gwendolyn de Snuff, the vaudeville entertainer who became noted several years ago because of her cultured taste for pig knuckle consented to be interviewed yesterday afternoon as she reclined gracefully on a chaise longue at her hotel. Banked on either side were bouquets of daffodils, little tokens of remembrance from agents of patent medicines, blood tonics, talcum powders and the ear spoon interests for whom she has written testimonials.

"Its all in the kicks, kid," she said, when asked the reason for her canary colored success as the how-cum queen of footlight flappers.

How It's Done.

"All this hop-heavy flappoodle about art on the vaudeville stage is the blue bordered bunk. That's a tip right off the ladle. The gel that c'n kick her Number Seven tooties the highest on-stage and keep her mouth smeared with a smile and her shoulders with talcum powder is the winner every time. I ain't no Anna Held, y'understand. I don't have to take milk baths to get publicity. When I leave the wings and volplane to the center of the stage to do my justly celebrated Dance of the Seven Sins, my sole aim is to pulverize the boards and kick the moulding from around the murals on the ceiling. That's what gives Row Sixteen high blood-pressure and plants the pennies in my purse. If I can make the Bald Headed Row start reaching to see if its tie is straight and begin to dream erise dreams about the reclamation of Youth, I don't worry any more about my daily bread and cold cream supply."

Vamping the Vinegar Squad.

"If I get the old roosters a-pullin' for me their wives will have to follow them to the theatre just to be able to feel sure that the hearth and home isn't due for a migration across the county line at the seductive lure of a chorus queen."

"Naw, I don't make dates with the old toads. Personally, I prefer newspaper men. They'r so genteel like and clever. And they give me so much publicity, doncha? And by the way, if you wanna good picture I've got one here takin on in front of the Pa-lais Royale when I was playing the subway circuit in N'-Yawk."

MOTORISTS KIDNAP CALF, TWIST ITS TAIL TO USE IT AS HORN

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 25.—Four men in a black touring car saved the "juice" of their storage battery by using a calf's bellows for a horn after they had kidnaped the animal from employes of the American Express company at Twenty-second and Eugenia streets at 2:30 a. m. today.

The calf had broken its tether and was dashing about the street with the expressmen in pursuit when the men drove up.

"Let's give the calf a ride," one suggested.

The animal was lifted into the machine and the men drove away. The expressman thought the motorists merely would

German Subs No Better Than American Battleships Lack Accommodations for Crews

By Associated Press
WASHINGTON, Sept. 25.—Detailed examination of surrendered German U-boats built during the war has produced nothing to forecast important changes in American submarines, officers at the navy department assert. After careful study of the German craft and a thorough test in the long cruise across the Atlantic, American experts have found only a few unimportant details worthy of incorporating in new American under-sea craft.

In periscopes and optical fittings the German boats were superior to pre-war American submarines, it was admitted. Periscopes on new navy submarines, however, are superior to the best similar fittings found on the captured vessels, it was said.

U. S. Boats Simpler.

The engine equipment of the German boats was praised by American officers, but it was declared that the mechanical plants of the enemy craft were in no respect superior to those already in use in the United States navy. In many points, particularly that of mechanical simplicity, roominess and comfort for the crew, the American boats are regarded as superior to the German craft.

Examination of the surface vessels surrendered by Germany and brought to the United States recently is now in progress. Other German vessels of all classes had been previously carefully inspected by American officers abroad and officials at the department declared that they did not expect the inspection of the cruiser Okefriesland and the destroyers allocated to this country to develop any important new construction methods in the American navy.

Praise Solid Bulkheads.

In one respect the German ships won the praise of many officers at the department. This was the use of solid watertight bulkheads between subdivisions of the hulls below decks. No doors for communication below were found in the German ships, the members of the crew being forced to go "up and over" to move from one compartment to another.

It was this construction that kept German vessels in the fight at the Battle of Jutland after they had been severely punished by British fire, officers said. The idea has been advocated by a school of American naval officers for years and has been adopted in the newer vessels to the extent of placing solid bulkheads between firerooms.

Opponents of the solid bulkhead theory declare ease and rapidity of communications to prevent the passage of water from one compartment to another in the event of hits below the waterline.

No Comfort for Sailors.

A feature of the German ships that take the calf around the block for a joyride. At each corner one of the automobilists would twist the calf's tail and a resultant "ba-a-a" would be heard.

The expressman waited long for the animal to be brought back and then reported the matter to the police.

somewhat surprised American officers was the lack of provisions for the comfort of the crews. Officers' quarters were found to be about on a par with those in the American navy, but little attention has been paid to the enlisted men. The larger ships had cooking accommodations for but a small part of the battle crew, it was said, and it was believed that the ships were constructed on the theory that any engagement they participated in would be within a short distance of the home port, probably in the North sea, as the bunk capacities were very limited.

During periods of inaction the men were housed ashore in barracks and during periods at sea of any duration they were poorly supplied with hot food. Contrasted with the elaborate galleys and bakeries on American ships, with provisions for long cruises at sea and away from supply bases, the German craft were primitive, it was said.

The final disposition to be made of the German vessels has not been decided. They will either be broken up at navy yards or used as targets for the fleets.

INDUSTRIOUS BEGGAR MAY ATTAIN WEALTH

BY LOUIS F. KIRBY,
International News Service Staff
MEXICO CITY, Sept. 25.—Beggars, like all other professions, has a few who are brilliantly successful and a horde who merely exist, and this is particularly true in this land of beggars, where competition is keen.

So many beggars make their appeal throughout Mexico that it seems impossible that any could grow rich, but some of them do, showing skill in handling money that would fit them for a more honorable calling.

A beggar was recently killed in the streets by an automobile. The police found that the ragged old man was worth $15,000, or $30,000 Mex.

Another beggar who was also killed in an accident was the owner of a large hacienda in Michoacan. His was a romantic story, if there is such a thing as romance in beggary. Early in life he adopted the career of beggar. He was an industrious, hard-working beggar and soon made money enough to buy a piece of land in Michoacan. This he farmed successfully, without letting his landed interests interfere with his begging operations. In course of time he married and reared a family in Michoacan, his wife and children having no idea that he was a beggar in the capital. He had been rich many years before his death, but love for his profession caused him to make regular visits to Mexico City for a begging campaign. It was on one of these visits that he was killed.

Not until then did his wife know that she had married a beggar; not until then did his neighbors know that the rich and successful farmer was a noted mendicant. It is said that it is impossible to drive out the professional beggar from Mexico City because they are able to pay tribute to the police. A policeman here, it is said, gets $1.50 Mex., which is 75 cents in American money. That, it is believed, in American money. Few of them are above temptation, it is said, even of a petty kind. Efforts are being made to increase the pay of the policeman to $5 Mex. a day, or the equivalent of $2.50 in American money. That, it is believed, would check graft and cause greater efficiency.

1920 Club Meets at Hagaman Home.

Thursday, Sept. 23, is designated in the calendar of the 1920 club as "president's day," and is eagerly looked forward to by the club. On this date Mrs. M. H. Hagaman, the president, threw open the doors of her beautiful colonial home on Hagaman road to the club members and a few friends. The reception rooms, library and dining room were artistically decorated with cut flowers, while the sun parlor was a bower of loveliness banked with ferns and pot plants. Mrs. Hagaman was assisted in receiving by Mrs. M. H. Smith.

An address by the president was full of gracious welcome to the new members and enthusiastic encouragement for the old, inspiring each member to greater efforts toward making a success of the work to be taken up by the club for the next year.

Mrs. E. B. Reid charmed her friends with two beautiful and appropriate vocal offerings.

Mrs. S. D. Terrell and R. M. Davenport each gave several readings, which were received with the usual enthusiastic approval.

Guests were then invited into the sun parlor, where an ice course was served to the following: Mmes. A. L. Bergere, C. C. Chenoweth, M. R. Collier, G. L. Davenport, N. L. Finley, William Clegg, R. M. Davenport, Norman French, T. A. Gullahorn, Bob Hodges, K. E. Jones, C. C. Maddox, O. L. Phillips, E. B. Reid, Ralph Stockman, S. D. Terrell, C. D. Woods, W. K. WIDOW ILL, DEFIES HOTEL; LEAVES, BUT DEMANDS APOLOGY

CHICAGO, Sept. 25.—Mrs. Mary Bainbridge, frail and petite, and said to be a wealthy widow of New Orleans, has ended a 72-hour siege of her room in the Auditorium hotel. She volunteered to be moved to St. Joseph's hospital on condition police and the hotel management apologize.

Injured Sept. 11, in an accident, Mrs. Bainbridge and her son, 5 years old, refused to leave her room. The hotel company complaining she was in arrears in payment, called the police to oust her. An ambulance called twice daily, Friday and Saturday, but Mrs. Bainbridge refused to leave.

She declared her brother, O. A. Simmons, president of the Industrial Investment company, Los Angeles, or relatives in New Orleans, would take care of her bills.

Anyone knowing the whereabouts of C. W. Brownlee will please communicate with 613 W. T. Waggoner building, Fort Worth, Texas.—Adv.

SIMPLEST DRAPING MAKES THIS FROCK

With a corsetlet bodice of headed cloth and attractive skirt of cherry colored taffeta broadened in silver this frock is made distinctive by the very simple but unusual draping of the skirt. It gives a new silhouette, which is a compromise between the straight slim frock and the puffed hips.

Hunting Bargains in Ranger

Bargains discovered in trips through Ranger shops and department stores are here presented briefly, for the benefit of Times readers. If any of the articles described meets your needs, you may learn the shop where it may be purchased by calling the Times, telephone 224, and giving the shopping editor the number of the paragraph which tells of your particular bargain.

I. A negligee that has all the style and charm of a French product has an over-drape of silk lace and pink ribbon which hangs in five long points over the accented plaited skirt of flesh color crepe de chine. Rose and black satin is the combination of a handsome two-piece suit of pajamas. A wide band of black borders the square jacket and extends bib fashion up the front. A border of checks for the square neck is made of half-inch ribbon. Further trimming and attractiveness is added by a big embroidery design in front and back worked out in rose silk thread and by deep black fringe around the bottom. A Pullman robe that would make parading from dressing room to berth or even climbing into an upper a pleasure is navy satin lined throughout with maize crepe de chine. Hand made roses trim the pockets. A narrow girdle of the two materials ties in front.

II. A practical blouse for the person who doesn't like the georgette exposure and at the same time very pretty and new is the double blouse. The one shown was of navy blue georgette lined throughout with tan, the tan forming the trimming of vest and sleeves and making a very pretty color combination through the blue. An embroidery design in eyelet and satin stitch trimmed the front.

III. A hat of the new military blue duvetyne with a fancy hackle feather in dark blue and brick shade sounds a smart note and the big Gage tag just visible behind the hat stand insures the quality.

BUFFALO WOOL TO BE PUT TO NEW USE—GOVERNMENT ADOPTS TEXAN'S NOVEL IDEA

By BASCOM H. TIMMONS Staff Correspondence. WASHINGTON, Sept. 25.—The United States government has got another idea from Col. Charles Goodnight of Goodnight, Texas, founder of the famous Goodnight Buffalo herd.

Profiting by a hint from the Goodnight ranch, Uncle Sam has determined that the original American, the bison, is going to be asked to pay his board. Supported in royal idleness by the government, the buffalo, once king of the plains, must bow to the changing times and become a producer instead of remaining a mere ornament.

Not long ago a government agent saw a buffalo wool blanket seven feet long and six feet wide, woven from buffalo wool which came from the Goodnight ranch and this blanket weighed only four pounds and five ounces. The government at once decided that a blanket so warm and yet so light demonstrated that it had been overlooking a bet in allowing buffalo wool go to waste.

Buffalo Wool Abundant. Each member of the buffalo family produces annually much fine wool, which in these days of high prices makes them desirable citizens in the best sense of the term. Furthermore, unlike those lesser monarchs who have been forced to flee their realms, King Bison will continue to rule over America's wonderland, Yellowstone National Park, and his pride to adorn the once useful nickel. All the park authorities ask of their star boarder is the old clothes he sheds each spring. The big Yellowstone herd of 500 grown animals turns loose annually when warm weather comes several hundred pounds of wool which could be increased by clipping. Ordinarily, the wool has gone to waste, but recently a collection of some of the finest fibre was made for the purpose of experimenting with the manufacture of coats and blankets for the park ranges.

Cloth Is Light. The Canadian government and private individuals in the United States have been successful in utilizing buffalo wool, official reports showing that the cloth produced from it is lighter in weight and offers greater resistance to cold than material made of sheep's wool. It is these qualities that particularly interest the officials of the National Park Service, for the rangers who guard the Yellowstone from murderous poachers in the winter have to tramp many miles through snow on skis or snow shoes, carrying heavy packs filled with "grub" and bedding, and under such circumstances every ounce that can be saved is of immense importance.

Soldiers at frontier posts have long recognized the warmth of buffalo coats, and the buffalo robe was a feature of the rigorous life of pioneer days. Though of shorter fibre than sheep's wool, the buffalo coat is very fine and fluffy, and can be woven easily by intermixing a small quantity of other wool. The color is of a beautiful glossy brown.

METHODIST CHURCH NEW BUILDING TO BE OPENED TODAY

ASK COTTON STATES TO UNITE IN FIXING PRICES FOR STAPLE

AUSTIN, Sept. 25.—Commissioners of agriculture of practically all cotton growing states have been asked by the Texas department of agriculture to co-operate in securing for cotton growers a minimum price of forty-eight cents a pound for average cotton and fifty cents or more for the better grades. These prices were decided upon at the recent meeting of the State Farmers' institute in Austin, at which the price-fixing committee was organized. The committee stated its research had shown that it cost forty-six cents a pound to produce cotton in Texas this year.

The committee's figures placed the average value of an acre of land in Texas and the improvements on it at $77.44, the value of work stock per acre at $9.91 and the value of implements at $9.08 an acre, making a total investment of per acre of $95.43.

The first item given in the cost of cultivation was 8 per cent of the total investment, or $7.71 an acre. Next in order, all reduced to an acre basis, were included the value of feed for work stock, $7.49; costs of repairs and blacksmithing, 69 cents; depreciation on improvements, $1.87; depreciation of work stock, $1.45; taxes and insurance, $1; and permanent farm labor $26.76. These figures would make the average cost of cultivation of all crops in the state, $90.78 an acre.

Based on the estimate of the bureau of crop estimates of the government, of 174 pounds of lint to the acre, the cost per pound of producing cotton would be 46 cents.

World war material to be distributed by the U. S. Government to various states and territories will include 2,178 pieces of artillery, 3,369 vehicles, 69,464 rifles and 9,916 machine guns. Most of the material will be given to towns, cities and museums.

LARGE DIVIDEND IS DECLARED BY BRECKENRIDGE OIL AND GAS PEOPLE

BRECKENRIDGE, Sept. 25.—Breckenridge Oil and Gas company, the first well to come in in the present townsite, has declared its fourth monthly dividend of 40 per cent payable October 1, which makes 160 per cent to the stockholders.

Central Development company wells Nos. 2 and 3 on the Brown lease, just west of town, are both on the sand and No. 3 will be drilled in tonight. No. 2 would have been brought in tonight but their derrick collapsed today while trying to pull the 12-inch casing.

The Campbell Lewis Oil company had a similar mishap on their block 61 well when their derrick was pulled in while trying to remove the 12-inch casing.

The Fensland well on Walker Caldwell tract, which came in yesterday for 450 barrels, was shot today with a heavy charge of nitroglycerine and is making a thousand barrels.

OIL RIGS LOCATING NEAR NEW TOWN OF JIMKURN, WILL DRILL

JIMKURN, Sept. 25.—With oil derricks being built adjoining the townsite and the carpenters busily engaged in erecting the townsite office buildings here, Jimkurn is taking on signs of life in readiness for the opening of the town on October 4.

With the South Bend oil field extending south towards Jimkurn and the Breckenridge field being rapidly extended northward to the edge of town, it is expected that there will be unusual oil activity centered here from the very day the townsite is opened. Northeast of town the Prairie Oil and Gas company has established a camp and just south of town the Gulf Pipe Line company is putting in a camp preparatory to an active drilling campaign adjacent to the townsite.

Grading work of the W. F. R. and Ft. W. R. K. between here and Breckenridge is nearly completed and ready for the laying of 75-pound steel rails. In anticipation of a heavy freight business as soon as the line is running, engineers of the Hamilton line are planning the yards here so as to do away with all possible delays in the handling of freight. Because of its location as the northern terminus of the W. F. and Ft. W. R. R., Jimkurn promises to be one of the most important shipping points in the North Texas oil fields and many railroad men have already announced their intentions of making their homes here.

OIL RATE ADVANCE TO BE TAKEN UP AT N. Y. MEETING

WASHINGTON, Sept. 25.—Texas bituminous coal mines are now running 76.4 per cent of capacity, the United States geological survey today reported.

Of the 23.6 per cent of full capacity, 11.8 per cent is caused by lack of cars and 11.2 per cent by shortage of labor. The other .6 per cent is caused by strikes. Oklahoma mines are running 76.8 per cent of capacity and Arkansas mines only 60 per cent of capacity.

Throughout the country lack of cars is holding up coal mining activities.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 25.—The meeting of oil men from all over the United States which originally was to have been held Sept. 22, will be held at the offices of the American Petroleum institute in New York on Oct. 6.

The meeting will discuss ways of meeting the recent freight rate advance on petroleum. Many Texas and Oklahoma oil men will attend.

Two big buildings in Washington barracks formerly used as quarters for enlisted men, are being used for storage purposes of the original records of the draft through which millions of Americans were summoned to arms in 1917. These data are to be preserved and carefully guarded. The war department requires the filing of draft papers for emergency use in case of postponing the matter that may come up universally in the ensuing years.

SHALLOW OIL COMING INTO ITS OWN HERE

Continuation of development of the shallow district south of Ranger is reported by scouts recently over that section. Large supplies of casing and other drilling equipment are being shifted from other areas in the North Texas fields to the shallow territory and added impetus is expected to be lent to this development.

With the price of crude on the boost and 65 oil expected within a short time and the promise of a decline in the price of drilling supplies especially casing, larger shipments of which are expected to arrive in the Ranger district in about twenty days, has made the pumping of the heretofore seeming useless shallow wells profitable. The opening of the power plant at Eastland and the discovery that electricity may be used profitably in the operation of pumps, also has caused greater interest to be aroused.

TWO EXTENSIONS MAKE JIMKURN CORE OF RICH OIL AREA

JIMKURN, Sept. 25.—By the extension of the Breckenridge field to the northeast and the South Bend field to the southwest within the past two weeks toward Jimkurn, this town becomes the center of a proven oil field and the heart of new development where several large deals have been closed during the past few days.

As soon as the W. F. and Ft. W. R. R., now nearing completion between here and Breckenridge, is in operation, Jimkurn, which will not be formally opened until October 4, will at once take its place as one of the most important shipping points in the Young and Stephens county fields, now the scene of feverish activity and increased drilling.

Only this week the Chapman No. 2 on the Johnson tract, about nine miles northeast of here, was drilled in, showing 750 barrels of oil in the gauge and thus extending the Breckenridge district as far north as Ellisville. The 1,000-barrel well of the Mid-Kansas, S. R. Hill No. 4, is located about four miles northeast of here and the 3,000-barrel well of the Roxana Petroleum company, brought in at a depth of 2,500 feet, is four miles north and one mile east of here.

Both the Gulf Producing company and the Prairie Oil and Gas company have established camps adjacent to the townsite and are preparing to drill at once. It is also rumored that the Magnolia Petroleum company will follow suit and at once start drilling a short distance south of town. As a result of the present drilling activity around Jimkurn, interesting developments are expected in the very near future.

MOVING PICTURE OF PETROLEUM TO BE RELEASED SOON

WASHINGTON, Sept. 25.—A new four-reel motion picture film telling the complete story of petroleum has just been completed by the United States bureau of mines in co-operation with the Sinclair Consolidated Oil corporation, and will be loaned for educational purposes to those desiring the same after September 1, by applying to the bureau of mines, Washington, D. C.

This interesting story was taken at a considerable expense and it was endeavored to show in this film the entire story of the petroleum industry, including prospecting, production, refining, distribution and its ultimate uses. The film was gotten up with the sole idea that it was to be used for educational purposes, and therefore was made in such a way as to be readily understood by the layman, as well as the engineer student.

This is one of a number of films that have been recently completed by the bureau of mines showing various phases of the mining and metallurgical industry, and it is hoped that the borrowers of these films will treat them with the same care that has been taken in preparing them.

Those requesting the loan of "The Story of Petroleum," or any other films belonging to the bureau of mines, are expected to pay the cost of postage both from the Washington office and return.

Armless Woman Sews, Cooks and Feeds Herself

DENVER, Sept. 25.—An armless woman sewing garments for the little one to come.

Toes, chin and teeth used to take the place of hands in forming the dainty clothes that are an instinct of mother love.

Nurses at the county hospital made the discovery, when Mrs. J. C. Teagarden, 19 years old, 117 1/2 Broadway, arrived at the institution a few days ago. Sunday evening, Mrs. Teagarden, who was born without arms, gave birth to an entirely normal 6 1/2-pound girl.

Mr. Teagarden, a repairer for the Denver Tramway company, told how his wife prepared the infant's wardrobe.

"With her feet, she ran the sewing machine," he said. "She guided the cloth under the needle with her chin and teeth. She can use her feet almost the same as hands, and with them she cut out the cloth with ordinary scissors from standard patterns." For stitching that could not be done with the sewing machine, she used her feet. She threaded the needle with her toes.

Mrs. Teagarden does all her own housework and cooking, her husband says. She writes legibly and feeds herself.

GRIZZLY BEAR CAPE IS LATSET RAGE IN PARIS

PARIS, Sept. 25.—"The grizzly bear" cape made its first appearance at the spectacular opening of the Paris season at Longchamps Sunday afternoon and it became apparent that the fashion artists of Rue de la Paix have staked their all for the season on furs.

"The grizzly" model attracted more attention than the races. It is a single bear skin used solely for rugs. The front paws are crossed over the breast of the wearer and fixed with a gold clasp. The hind legs are fastened loosely just below the knee, showing the stockings legs of the mannequin.

The coming of the bear skin and bear neck with the heaviest fur imaginable made even the society onlookers gasp, while rival dressmakers almost mobbed the girl.

Among the fashionables who immediately placed orders for similar coats was Princess Murat, who specified that the bear from which the skin is taken must be shot especially for her. She said she would prefer a Rocky mountain grizzly and is ready to extend her personal thanks to the huntsman who bags a suitable pelt.

The membership of the American Red Cross during the world war was 22,000,000.

Land Dividing United States And Mexico Featured by Wildness of Dry Sands and Rugged Mountains

"No region in all North America is more frequently mentioned or more widely misunderstood, perhaps, than the Mexican border," writes Frederick Simplich, formerly American consul at Nogales, Mexico, to the National Geographic society.

"From the Gulf of Mexico up to El Paso, along the Texas frontier, the Rio Grande forms the boundary between the United States and Mexico; thence to the Pacific coast the line is marked by stone or iron monuments (save a short break at the Colorado), so set that one is supposed to be visible from another. By this plan a soldier, miner, or cowboy (yes, and a mauler, too) can always tell which side of the line he is on; or, if wholly lost and he comes suddenly on a monument, he can soon get oriented.

Few People Attempt Journey.
"Adventurous, colorful, and full of contrasts as it is, the 1,800-mile trip along this crooked, historic line is rough and difficult and has been made by few people.

"The Rio Grande part of the border has caused both Uncle Sam and Mexico much work and mental anguish. During bad floods the line as formed by the river squirms around in so astonishing and lively a manner that what is Mexican soil one day may be in Texas the next, and vice versa.

"Railroads cut this long border line at Brownsville, Laredo, Eagle Pass and El Paso, Texas; at Douglas, Naco and Nogales, in Arizona, and at Calexico and Tia Juana, in California. Only four of these railroads, however, are main lines of through traffic that penetrate the interior of Mexico; these start at Laredo, Eagle Pass, El Paso and Nogales.

Few Habitations.
"You visualize the bigness of Texas when you look at the length of its side that borders on Mexico. You realize its emptiness, too, when you travel through some of its border regions, where the population is less than two per square mile.

"No section of the border has seen so much of adventure, tragedy and turbulent activity as Texas. The flags of France, Spain and Mexico have waved over it; for a time it fled its own Lone Star and also the Confederate flag.

"In Brownsville you hear more Spanish than English, because most of the 8,000 people who live there are Mexicans. "Up the river from Brownsville lies Laredo, most important border town in South Texas, even if an old map does call this vicinity a wilderness filled with wild horses.

"Eagle Pass, on up the Rio Grande, was a favorite camping spot for the California gold hunters in '49.

Windmills Source of Water.
"As you follow the border west, oaks, pines and underbrush decrease, aridity increases and cacti lift their thorny heads. Border counties like Brewster, Presidio and El Paso are of amazing area—larger than some of our smallest eastern states. Windmills are everywhere—big electric fans to keep the cattle cool, a wagging cowboy once explained it at London tenderfoot.

"El Paso is the only large city from 'San Antonio' to Los Angeles, a ride of 1,500 dry, dusty miles.

"The largest irrigation reservoir anywhere is the great Elephant Butte dam, which stores more water than the world-famous Assuan dam on the Nile. This big dam, built in the Rio Grande above El Paso, at a point in New Mexico, holds water enough, we are told, to fill a standing pipe eleven feet in diameter reaching from El Paso to the moon, or to cover

Massachusetts to a depth of six inches.

"From the point at Monument No. 1 where the boundary line crawls out of the Rio Grande (at the southeast corner of New Mexico), it strikes west into a wilderness of singularly dry and empty aspect. For forty miles along this march the traveler must carry his own water.

"To the west lies the rough, hostile foothills of the Dog mountains; near here, in the San Luis range, the line reaches a point of 6,600 feet above the sea, marking the continental divide."

ARRANGEMENTS COMPLETED FOR LEGION MEETING

CLEVELAND, O., Sept. 25.—Everything is in readiness for the opening Monday of the second annual convention of the American Legion, which will be in session here through Wednesday. Plans have been completed to care for the largest gathering yet held of American veterans of the world war. In addition to the 3,500 delegates expected the city has prepared for thousands of visitors accompanying state delegations.

All hotels have been reserved for the Legionnaires and many are guests in the homes of Clevelanders.

National Commander Franklin D'Olier has been in conference with the executive committee of the legion, composed of a delegate from each state, for several days.

National headquarters were moved here from Indianapolis about two weeks ago, with Lemuel Bolles of Seattle, national adjutant, in charge.

No "Battle of Argonne."
The first annual reunion of the Thirty-seventh Division Veterans' association will be held tomorrow. The division had planned to give a reproduction of the "Battle of the Argonne," but owing to the lack of men, it was cancelled, when, it is said, the war department refused to send an additional 8,000 men.

The city is decorated as rarely before in honor of the veterans. Arches have been erected in the downtown district and stores and buildings are flying the American flag, the service flag and the legion pennants. Many amusement features have been arranged.

Special entertainments have been arranged for holders of the congressional medal of honor, the most difficult of all war decorations to obtain. Forty of the fifty-four living medalists have signified their intention of attending, and will be guests of honor of the Cleveland convention committee.

Admiral Grant, of the British grand fleet, will be the personal representative of Admiral David Beatty.

Gen. Marie Emile Payolle, who is said to have had more to do with the direct employment of American troops than any other French commander, will represent the French government.

A parade of the former service men will be the feature of the opening day.

Bonus Question Up.
Many questions including the bonus, relief for disabled veterans, the legion's policy in political affairs, the legion's stand on labor matters, measures pertaining to vocational education and war risk insurance will be discussed, it is expected, during the convention.

Frank D'Olier, national commander, will call the convention to order on Monday at 10 a. m., after which the Rev. Francis J. Kelley of Troy, N. Y., national chaplain, will deliver the invocation. Mayor W. S. Fitzgerald will deliver the city's address of welcome. Then will come reports of the national commander, of Lemuel Bolles, Seattle, national adjutant, of Robert H. Lyndall, Indianapolis, Ind., national treasurer, and of various committees. The parade is set for 1:30 p. m.

Routine business will take up the morning of Sept. 28. In the evening there will be dances, boxing exhibitions and other entertainments.

Unfinished business is scheduled to be cleared on the morning of the Sept. 29. Election of officers will then bring the convention to a close.

RAILROAD CONGESTION WILL SOON CEASE; SHIPMENTS FOR OIL FIELDS TO BE RELEASED

WASHINGTON, Sept. 25.—Although a high government official today declared that the railroads in the United States have practically attained the pre-war level of freight movement, and there no longer exists an emergency necessitating governmental control of freight car movements, reports from Texas today were that the car shortage there is still acute.

From the western and northwestern part of the Lone Star state reports said that much grain still remained to be moved. From the coal producing sections of Texas came reports that the production of bituminous coal was of 11 per cent, due to the fact that no cars were available to take away the mine output.

Oil Fields Suffer.
The oil fields of Texas reported that they are being hit in two ways. First there are insufficient cars to bring in the material needed for development and second there are not enough cars to haul away the output of the fields for which there is a market.

Oil operators, through the American Petroleum Institute, have been urging the Interstate Commerce Commission to modify its order giving coal shippers priority by furnishing them gondola cars. The coal men have come back with the reply that hundreds of mines throughout the country are having their output cut down through the lack of cars.

Oil Supplies Sent.
At any rate the commission has been sufficiently lenient in the enforcement of the original ruling that between Aug. 16 and Sept. 10 it has been allowing the use of sixty gondola cars daily for the loading of oil well casing and supplies from the Pittsburg-Youngstown district. In that time 1,827 cars of oil well material have been shipped out of the Pittsburg-Youngstown district, of which 387 cars went to Texas, 379 to Oklahoma, 200 to California, 101 to Kansas, 72 to Montana, 100 to Colorado, 100 to Wyoming and the other to various small oil fields.

This, of course, has helped the oil situation some, but that the situation is still critical is shown by the following telegram received by the Interstate Commerce Commission from a large Texas producer:

"Large portion of our supplies that are ready for shipment have been ordered as long as three years. Have used practically all surplus material and are forced into shutting down drilling wells at the present time for want of tubing. We are unable to pump producing wells for want of tubing. We have been running short of all oil well material for a period of three years, and now have reached a point where we have no supplies available for the development or production of our properties."

Bit despite these reports and the acknowledged fact that some lines in Texas are still suffering from car shortage, there is no doubt that the car situation in the nation is being cleared up.

Rescind Emergency Order.
In fact, it was predicted today, Interstate emergency order issued May 20 by the Interstate Commerce Commission, in which all rules and regulations governing the movement and routing of both empty and loaded freight and coal cars were suspended, will soon be rescinded.

The prediction is based on the fact that reports by the car service commission show that the movement of loaded freight cars during the week ending Sept. 6 was within 15,000 of the highest war record. Improvement in labor conditions is largely responsible for the fact that much of the congestion has been eliminated.

Labor Is Normal.
That the normal volume of employment on the railroads has been reached is clearly indicated by the priority order issued by the commission last week in which the words "aggravated by unfavorable labor conditions" were omitted in declaring the existence of an emergency.

During the week ending Sept. 4, according to reports reaching the car service commission, the railroads of the country moved 985,000 cars of loaded freight. The highest record ever attained during the war when the car movement was abnormal through the pooling of all facilities and establishment of priorities was approximately 1,000,000 cars. It was said at the offices of the commission today that reports on the week ending Sept. 11, which are just coming in, indicate the million dollar mark may have been passed.

Congestion Reduced.
On May 20, when the Interstate Commerce Commission issued its order suspending all existing orders and regulations the congestion amounted to more than 298,000 loaded cars. In Sept. 4 the congestion had been reduced to 44,000, which is within 20,000 of the lowest number ever existing on the railways. When the government relinquished control of the railroads of the country on March 1, the freight car congestion, according to the report of the director general of the railroad administration, was over 100,000 cars.

As the movement of freight cars becomes normal, however, the question of car shortage becomes more acute as the result of failure to keep up during the war the number of additional freight cars that formerly were placed on the roads every year to replace worn out cars and take care of the increasing volume of freight.

The car shortage on Sept. 1 was estimated at 151,440 cars, with the normal volume of shipping two months away from the peak, which usually is reached about Oct. 15.

"The car shortage on Sept. 1 was estimated at 151,440 cars, with the normal volume of shipping two months away from the peak, which usually is reached about Oct. 15.

HUBBY WORE HER CLOTHES; SHE WANTS DIVORCE

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 25.—When her husband began dressing as a woman, Mrs. Lulu Long decided to get a divorce, according to her complaint on file in the superior court today, against Ernest Long, a marine engineer.

Long, according to his wife, is dark complexioned, with large black eyes and long eye lashes.

"He has been dressing like a woman for several years," said Mrs. Long. "Whenever we would go out together he would always dress in women's clothes and accompany me."

Mrs. Long charges that her husband is far from being effeminate in that he has given her several beatings.

HOOSIER

SAVES MILES OF STEPS

The Model Kitchen

THE Kitchen shown here is an outgrowth of the newest development in home building.

It was deliberately planned with the idea of making house-work easier. A definite, specific place was provided for the Hoosier Kitchen Cabinet, because housewives and home-makers have come to know that a Hoosier functions best when the kitchen is planned to logically focus all of the work on the step-saving Hoosier.

But whether you are planning a new home or not, you need a Hoosier Now. For the Hoosier—already the proud possession of two million American housewives—enables you to do your kitchen work quickly—and easily.

With every tool and utensil in the one place most easy to get at, with foods and condiments right at your finger tips, you sit before Hoosier's big uncluttered work table—at your ease.

No fussing nor fuming—no back-breaking reaching or lifting, not a single unnecessary step. Just easy, comfortable, well-ordered work—that is Hoosier's solution of the Kitchen-work problem.

Come to our store and satisfy yourself that this is so. We'll gladly give you a complete demonstration of the many ways in which the Hoosier excels.

Pauline Frederick in 'Held in Trust'

Eva Novak

A Popular Pair—Madame X—A New Star—Hard Luck—Held in Trust—A Star of Many Plays.

Mr. and Mrs. Carter de Haven have completed the filming of their big stage success, "Twin Beds," and the popular comedian is now supervising the cutting of the Margaret Mayo-Salisbury Field laugh maker. It is claimed that "Twin Beds" is one of the costliest plays ever purchased for screen use, and a vast amount of money has been expended in order to make the production adequate. Mr. de Haven will leave for New York when "Twin Beds" has been titled, and assembled in order to be present at its New York engagement at the Strand theatre. He will then return to Los Angeles to start work on a second special comedy production.

Pauline Frederick. The young lawyer, Raymond Floriet, going to reassure the mysterious "Madame X" on trial for murder does not recognize in her the mother whom his father had driven from her home long years before. She recognizes him and this is one of the most tense moments in the picturization of "Madame X," Alexandre Bisson's famous play. Pauline Frederick is starred, and she achieves one of the triumphs of her career. Gisson Ferguson as the son does splendid work.

Ward Crane's Hard Luck. The title of Champion Trans-Continental Commuter among the actors seems to have fallen to Ward Crane, the talented leading man who was recently seen opposite Anita Stewart in "The Yellow Typhoon," and who will be remembered for his sterling performances, "Soldiers of Fortune," and "Luck of the Irish." Born in Albany, Crane worked in one picture in New York, and then went to the West Coast, where he made the above mentioned pictures, and also played in "Harriet and the Piper," "The Scoffer" and "The Heart of a Fool." Returning to New York, Crane has just finished playing opposite Billie Burke in "The Frisky Mrs. Johnson," and when he received an offer to return West he refused because he wanted to stay in New York for the balance of the Big League Baseball season; but along came an unusually attractive contract to play opposite Constance Binney in "Caldron's Prisoner," which has taken Crane to Cuba, so that he will miss seeing Babe Ruth knock any more "homers" for quite a while.

Eva Novak. Eva Novak is the sister of Jane Novak, well known for her clever characterizations on the screen. In spite of this, diminutive Eva will protest most violently if anyone refers to her as "The Jane Novak's sister."

Not that Eva is ashamed or jealous of the talented Jane, far be it from such, they idolize one another, borrow money from each other and you never can tell whether Jane has on Eva's hat or vice versa. Eva simply wants to make good on her own, without any of sister's star dust blinding her to her own obligations and duties to the world.

A few years ago Eva, like many other women, now stars, was a bathing girl. This slim girl, still in her teens soon excited the interest of the film producers and Eva was approached with many propositions to cast off the one-piece bathing suit, put on long skirts and emot, instead of dive.

At first she was swept off her feet at what seemed wonderful prospects, but calm, deliberate sister Jane told her to be low and not accept any of the offers made for Jane, in her wisdom, was sure that Eva had not secured the right offer yet.

Her first picture is to be "Wanted at Headquarters," in which she is seen as the leader and brains of a gang of super-criminals.

"Eva as a crook!" exclaimed her friends

Nominally she would be the inciter of nothing worse than stolen kisses and from its very tracks and she even—oh, what's the use of telling it all, you're sure to see it and then you'll agree that our superlatives are justified.

Myrtle Stedman. Beautiful Myrtle Stedman, screen star and former prima donna, is to be featured in all-star casts. That makes her a sort of super-star, an ambition not easily realized. She is now playing opposite Wm. S. Hart, in "The Whistle."

May Allison. If you were a salesgirl who never owned a single pretty dress, if you were so tired at night that you could cry, and the only place you could call home, was made intolerable by a drunken, nagging father. And then, if you were suddenly invited to share millions in return for posing as another woman whom you resembled so closely that none could tell the bargain would you go through with the bargain?

Such is the beginning of the intensely dramatic story of "Held in Trust," in which May Allison is starred. As Mary Manchester, the shopgirl who is swiftly transported from poverty to riches because of her startling resemblance to another woman, May Allison is said to give one of the finest performances in her career.

May Allison made her first stage appearance as "Beauty" in "Every Woman." She had the title role in "Quaker Girl," and was with W. H. Crane in "David Harum." Her career dates from 1915. She has been in the following plays: "Governor's Lady," "The Winning Beatrice," "In For Thirty Days," "Peggy Does Her Darndest," "Isles of Intrigue," "Almost Married," "The Uplifters," "Fair and Warmer," "The Walkoffs," "The Cheater." Her latest appearance is in "Held in Trust."

Irene Dalton. Irene is fresh from Chicago. She got her start appearing in commercial films for advertising, and made good for drama and comedies.

RANGER LEADS NATION IN PER CAPITA WEALTH—TOPS BOTH EASTLAND AND CISCO BY FAR

Ranger perhaps leads the world in per capita wealth. With a population of 16,205 as given by the recent census, the per capita wealth of each man, woman and child is $780. While exact figures are not available, this amount is several hundred dollars above that of the United States, and as far as is known no other city approaches it. The result is reached on figures issued out of the city tax assessor's office which show a taxable valuation of $13,000,000 in Ranger.

If the actual selling price was given instead of the taxable valuation it is very probably that the per capita wealth would exceed $1,000. In addition Ranger contributes nearly one-fourth of the county's income from taxes. In Eastland county the valuation has been placed at $52,000,000.

This estimate is based on the population figures which gave Ranger nearly as many people as live in both Eastland and Cisco, and does not take into consideration the vast amount of oil field equipment which is stored here. On this basis one-fourth of the county taxes comes from Ranger, one-fourth from Cisco and Eastland, and one-half from the remaining part of the county.

HAS PLAYING CARDS USED BY GEN. GRANT SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 25.—A deck of cards with which General Ulysses S. Grant, commander of the Union forces in the civil war, used to while away the time during the last campaigns of the war, is now the property of a San Francisco barber, Oscar Hintz, who lives at O'Farrell and Divisadero streets.

Hintz, who is an old soldier, was given the cards by a G. A. R. man a few days ago. To prove their originality Hintz has complete data showing a careful genealogy of the cards from the time that General Grant last played them until they were given to him by the veteran. Grant, according to Hintz, passed the cards to a staff captain, who immediately antographed the pack which had been passed through along several generations, each bearing an autograph. The cards were manufactured on May 1, 1863, by Samuel Hart & Co., of New York, and at that time notified the publisher and firmness to any cards offered on the lie that all their playing cards would be marked. Today the cards are almost worn finished with a new satin surface pre-out.

LAMB.

Scenes of Desert and Oasis Depicted in Filming of Hichens' Romance

By W. K. HOLLANDER

You will find "The Garden of Allah" to your liking, particularly if your tastes run toward the picturesque in the shadow drama.

Thus prepared, you penetrate the orient with Helen Ware and Thomas Santschi, guided by Colin Campbell, the screen craftsman who gave Robert Hichens' book picturization. You become a member of a caravan of tourists about to behold the splendor and mysticism of the Mohammedan orient. Slowly you pass through the village of Beni Mora and witness the busy orientals in their various pursuits. The street beggars make their insistent plea, almost command, for alms, and the bazaars add to the colorful aspect.

Caravan Journey in Desert.

Then the caravan emerges into the vast Sahara. Other tourists are encountered and desert bandits ply their trade successfully, victimizing the unsuspecting travelers. Sturdy Arabians mounted on spirited horses, pass under your admiring gaze. Occasionally magnificent garden spots covered with a variety of foliage interrupt the severe sand scenes and refresh the traveler. A windstorm rises and falls and gives the tourist a momentary thrill, but as a rule the journey is continued calmly and peacefully, save for the tragically growing out of the romantic aspect of the affair.

Miss Ware and Mr. Santschi are the principals in the drama. Each enters the mysterious desert to find solace, only to emerge later with heavier burdens on their minds. Amidst this enchanting beauty and inspired by Larbi's tuneful flute, they fall in love with each other and enter into a forbidden marriage, in spite of former vows.

This picture has been secured for two days run beginning tomorrow at the Lamb.

MAJESTIC.

Funmakers and Musicians Join in Sparkling Bill.

Jennings and Mack are two funmakers on the Majestic bill opening tonight, who are guaranteed to give you a chuckle. They are two gentlemen of color who appear when the curtain rises as hackman and passenger, in a deserted street along in the morning—very a. m., in fact. The hackman tries to wake his fare and failing, seeks a cop. When the two return, the passenger is singing. That is the frame-work on which they hang some of the latest wizzes and a number of the funniest parodies going over the foot-lights today.

Other acts on the bill include a comedy playlet, a Broadway revue with seven girls and three men, all with an entertaining specialty; Bill Small, violinist extraordinary and the Upside-down Millerettes, two trapeze artists with something startling to offer.

OPERA HOUSE.

A novelty spectacular offering under the title of the International Revue will be the headline attraction at the Opera House of the week. It has a cast of eight, who bring to the fore the national songs and dances of the various countries each character is represented. There is a Frenchman, an Irishman, an Englishman, an Italian, a Jew, who now has his native country, an American and a negro and an American Beauty, as the Statue of Liberty. The act is elaborately and magnificently staged on the order of a New York Hippodrome production with its flash.

Harold Nieman and Andy Harris will present their clever comedy slice called "In the Park," with some new song bits and brilliant patter.

Elsie Murphy and Elsie Klein, the artistic musical laughmakers will offer the latest form tin pan alley on the saxophone and piano, intermingling them with semi-classic selections.

The Dixie favorites, Orben and Dixie, the jack and the queen of spades have a new offering this season, with plenty of laughs, clever and original songs, and fancy steps.

Florette, a dainty bit of femininity, a marvelous contortionist and physical culturist of international fame, who demonstrates the healthful benefits derived from exercises will complete the bill.

LIBERTY.

"The Sporting Duchess" Shows Famous Derby Races.

Once a year sportsmen from all over the world gather at Epsom, in Surrey, England, generally on the Wednesday before Whitsuntide to attend the Derby races. They are famed in song and story. Many plays have been written around these races, the most famous of which is "The Sporting Duchess," which will be shown at the Liberty theatre today. This play was written by August Harris, Cecil Raleigh and Henry Hamilton as a mammoth spectacular drama to be produced at the Drury Lane theatre in London. It created such a sensation there that the following season it was brought to New York, where it had a phenomenal run.

The picturization of the story is even greater than the play. It gets the atmosphere of England and the great races founded by the 12th Earl of Derby in 1780. They got their name from the founder, American horses are frequently entered in these races.

The jockey riding the winner of the Derby is bedecked with a floral horseshoe and the track the hero of the hour.

Alice Joyce is seen as Muriel, duchess of Desborough, the owner of Clipstone. This horse is entered in the Derby and upon it the duchess stakes her honor, wealth and happiness.

PRETTY WOMAN TRAVELS ACROSS CONTINENT TO JAIL HER HUSBAND

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 25.—"I came 2,000 miles to get him the full penalty of the law and I am going to see that he gets it."

She was pretty. She was small. She was choking with indignation. But her eye was the calm determination that no matter how long it required to get him there, her husband, Bert A. Allenquist, alias Herbert Floyd Allen, should be made to serve ten years in the penitentiary for bigamy.

After eleven years of stormy life together, during which, she said, her husband failed to support their son, now ten years old, and several times threatened her life, Mrs. Jennie Allenquist told the police she woke up one morning to find her Chicago apartment minus its lord and master. That was four years ago.

Recently, she said she learned that her husband, working as a laundryman in Los Angeles, had bought a home and was making it ready for a bride. The bride's name was Sarah Wright and she was a widow with two children.

Mrs. Allenquist boarded the first train for Los Angeles where she arrived early this week, sought sheriff Cline and had her husband arrested.

Allenquist was released yesterday, on his recognizance. He said he married Mrs. Wright after his first wife had written him she had obtained a divorce.

DICE SHOOTER FAILS WHEN 'NATURAL' WOULD WIN HIS FREEDOM

CHICAGO, Sept. 25.—Thirty Smitty, dice player, trapped in the clutches of the law, had a sporting proposition put up to him yesterday, by Judge Stewart in the Chicago Avenue police court. Thirty, with six other negroes was caught with his dice on him in a raid on a pool room.

"You rolled yourself into a nice mess, Thirty," said Judge Stewart. "Now let's see if you can roll yourself out again. Think you've got those yards, trained?"

"Sho-has, Mr. Boss 'Man," grinned Thirty, gathering up the gallopers. He threw the dice. An eight appeared.

"Come on, yo' babies," he intoned; "come on, yo' babies—thirty-days."

"Eighteen from Decatur," murmured Thirty, as he made the third throw, but he was talking to a stranger. Eighteen from Decatur was not at home. Instead—"Read 'em and weep," said Judge Stewart. "It was the fatal seven."

"You lose," he continued. "Dollar and osts for each of you."

LIBERTY FAILS TO CHARM; BREAKS BACK INTO PRISON

FON DU LAC, Wis., Sept. 25.—Having shortened a seven years' term to three years and nine months by good behavior, freedom pulled on him. William Clouchick returned to Wauquan after ten days of his release into state's prison. He was found in the twine factory. Clouchick scaled the wall by means of a rope. He had two loaves of bread and $165 in money when discovered. Authorities believe him demented.

SCENE:—Johnny's home in the country. Mid-winter.

Militant Pastor on Reform Rampage Finds Much Wickedness in Sportive Tendencies of Connecticut Towns

STAMFORD, Conn., Sept. 25.—His trigger finger trembling, the Rev. G. E. Richter, late of the Bowers Missions and Brooklyn, officially declared war on Stamford and Darien officialdom in the course of a very fervid address on "temperance" at the Waterside chapel here today.

"I am not afraid of God, or man, or the devil or"—Dr. Richter paused, his voice choking—"or the baptism of eggs that has greeted my efforts to purge these communities of low gambling and drinking. And I shall carry a gun, no matter what the officials of Darien may say. I will not kill anybody. I merely want to defend myself against the bullets of Darien—the low gambling element that jered me last night and threw eggs at me night before last, and plastered my roof and windows with tomatoes—I shall carry a gun."

Carries an Ammonia Pistol. What the gaunt, gray-haired crusader failed to tell his audience, but later confided to the World correspondent was that he had already provided himself with a weapon of defense, a water pistol that was charged with ammonia. Furthermore, at night this pistol protrudes from under his long frock coat as he hurries from his duties in this city to the adjacent village of Darien, where he makes his home. And just a little further the Rev. Mr. Richter confessed that the long trigger finger is always advantageously near his back pocket.

And just before giving his preliminary history of the latter battle, it is just as well to add here that the Rev. Mr. Richter will not only wage war with ammonia, but, as he declared in his address, "as man to man." Also he has injected his six feet two inches into a political battle in his efforts to defeat at next week's election Selectman John H. Selleck, who refused to permit him to carry a revolver.

The Rev. Mr. Richter's open enemies are found in the volunteer fire department of Darien. The volunteers hold a carnival each year at which desirable articles are offered to visitors through the medium of a lottery. This, says the Rev. Mr. Richter, is gambling. In any case, his protest caused the authorities to suppress the carnival and the treasury of the volunteers slumped woefully. Previously Mr. Richter had vociferously proclaimed his antagonism to carnivals run by the Knights of Columbus, the Eagles and the Redmen. So Mr. Richter was not at all surprised to learn that the social bloods of Stamford and Darien were just a wee bit piqued.

What Mr. Richter did not expect was the series of egg and vegetable bombardments that greeted his ministerial path Thursday and Friday nights. Nor was he entirely prepared for the hoarse serenade that greeted his cars early this morning. Not entirely flattering was this serenade. Also it was unprintable, as were the remarks that greeted the Rev. Mr. Richter while on his way from home to Stamford yesterday morning.

Denied a Police Permit. Who his militant assailants are Dr. Richter does not know. He has his guess. For the egg throwers who sent their missiles into his windows and upon his gabled roof worked under the cover of night. So he applied to Selectman Selleck for a permit to carry a revolver. Said Mr. Selleck (as he repeated to the correspondent this afternoon):

"I don't put my nose into everybody's business. I don't see why anybody else should, and I have lived in this town for sixty-one years. If I give you a permit someone might be killed. The town would be liable."

The Rev. Mr. Richter waxed indignant. The next night tomatoes were hurled at his dignity, and the Rev. Mr. Richter boiled. He wrote a letter to Governor Holcomb; he conferred with Mayor Treat of Stamford, and he prepared fiery sermons. Also he entered politics, and he is now boosting Edward Bates, opponent of Selleck, for the important post of selectman.

"I Have Courage." "When I began my crusade against gambling in the two communities against all forms of vice, against the illicit liquor sellers," he said, "I said that unless the officials woke up I would stir the state. Now I say that I will stir the nation to make Darien and Stamford toe the line. I am a plain man and I have courage. Why, the other day a man walked into the postoffice where I was standing, and said he would knock my block off if I took off my glasses. I did and he did nothing. He was afraid."

"Let me emphasize this point. I shall carry on my work no matter how great the obstacles. Those culprits who throw eggs. What stirred me was that they were fresh eggs, expensive eggs. At least they could have thrown old eggs. And even the tomatoes were not overripe. But for all these things I would not care. The baptism of eggs does not hinder me. My friends told me that they would push to my aid if I would give them a signal. If I had my revolver I would discharge it in the air, and then my friends would rush out. I see no reason why I should not have my constitutional rights. And I tell you that I will have a revolver" (a real one, Dr. Richter explained later) "and I will fight for my rights in this community."

She Lost Fifty Cents. "What I protest against is gambling. Do you know that a little girl I know had fifty cents, and she went to one of the carnivals. She saw a Teddy bear to be given away in one of those lotteries. And do you know what happened? She did not get her Teddy bear."

"And I know worse things than that—women who squander their money on these lotteries, money that should go to their homes. And with it are men who lose their money, those who do not frequent the saloons still running in Stamford and Darien and drink hard liquor. I fight against all these things, and my war is on."

"The war is on?" queried Mayor Treat when the World correspondent told him about it. "Excuse me, I've got something to do."

TWO-YEAR-OLD TICKLED BY THREE-STORY TUMBLE

NEW YORK, Sept. 25.—Daniel Cogan, two years old, climbed out of the bed on the third floor of 582 Sixth avenue, Brooklyn, yesterday, and ran to the window. He pressed against it and the pane broke.

His mother entered just as Daniel fell out. She screamed and fainted. Neighbors ran into her apartment. The broken window and Daniel's empty bed told the story.

John Kennedy, a tenant, hurried downstairs. He saw Daniel lying face down on a pile of tin cans, stove pipe and old papers. As Kennedy ran toward him Daniel got up and greeted him with a smile. An ambulance surgeon found Daniel unscathed except for a small cut on his cheek.

Mortimer L. Schiff.
The majority of the people of Europe now regard the league of nations as "a Utopian dream, which cannot solve the problems," declares Mortimer L. Schiff, New York banker, who has just returned from abroad. "The impression I received," said Mr. Schiff, "was that Europe is still suffering from the effects of the treaty, which has created artificial economic barriers, has engendered racial animosities and has bred suspicion instead of confidence."

CHECK YOUR SIX-GUNS AT THE DOOR WHEN YOU VISIT ROARING CAMP OF ELKS

"Gentlemen and rough-necks will please leave their six-shooters with the gate-keeper" will be the sign over the entrance to "Roarin' Camp," when it is put into operation by the Elks, Oct. 6.

Roarin' Camp will be a miniature of the mining towns of the days of '49 and will cover an entire city block. Everything that was a part of the boom days of '49 will also be a part of its duplicate to be built by the Elks in Ranger and operated four days, beginning Oct. 6. There will be no factor missing except the funerals.

duplicate Pioneer Days. The Elks have staged the same exhibition in many parts of the country and everywhere it has been a success, and nothing enters into it that might be frowned upon by even the most staid of citizens. There will be a dance hall but its keepers will be Elks and their wives and daughters. There will be all the old gambling games but the money won and lost will have no value. It is Elk money furnished by the Elks. It will be four days of going back and living the life of pioneers for a few hours each day.

Plans Extensive. During the celebration many handsome prizes will be given away. A contest will be staged for the most popular girl, and many others that will create intense interest.

Roarin' Camp will be built by the Elks on the vacant block near the Teal hotel and reach from Main to Pine street. Both sides of the block will be filled in with buildings that will house everything from a hotdog shop to a gilded palace of "iniquity."

ANTI-SALOON LEAGUE TO DECIDE ELIGIBILITY OF FEDERAL JURISTS

WASHINGTON, Sept. 25.—All aspirants for federal judgeships will be required to get the approval of the Anti-Saloon League before they can be confirmed in the appointment by the senate, if plans of the league decided upon today succeed.

The same tactics and pressure used by E. C. Dinwiddie and Wayne B. Wheeler, the chief lobbyist of the league when the prohibition legislation was enacted, will be used on the senate when judicial nominations are pending.

"Punishment to the fullest extent of the law" is what the Anti-Saloon League demands, one dry leader asserted. Congress is to be asked for the "Ouster Law" at the December session. A vigorous lobby will be conducted here to "make congressmen see it as the prohibitionists see it." That is the way the Anti-Saloon leaders put it.

Some of the judicial districts complained of by the Anti-Saloon League are in New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Texas, Kentucky and Wisconsin. The league will ask for more judges so as to keep the dockets cleared. It is asserted by its workers that crowded dockets are ineffective.

A committee of league leaders called on Internal Revenue Commissioner Williams this afternoon and urged him to use every effort possible to obtain enforcement. The members of the committee were not critical, and Mr. Williams assured them that he was doing his best under the circumstances.

Mrs. Maud Wood Park, legislative chairman of the national woman's voters league; Mrs. Annette Abbot Adams, assistant to the attorney general; Miss Adela Potter of New York, Miss Emma Wold of the national woman's party and other prominent women pledged their support to the Anti-Saloon League for the enforcement of prohibition.

"Well, my dear, I've just had my life insured for $5,000." "Oh, how sweet of you! Now I shall have to keep telling you to be in every place you go."—American Weekly.

JIMKURN
(NAMED AFTER PRESIDENT JAMES M. KURN OF THE FRISCO R. R.)
Northern terminus of the Wichita Falls, Ranger and Fort Worth R. R., is 9 miles north of Breckenridge, with which town it is being rapidly connected up.
The Newest Town in Texas
Right in the heart of the new Stephens county oil development and the extensions of the Breckenridge and South Bend fields, where gushers are being brought in daily, with wells now being drilled adjacent to the townsite and new camps being established by the larger oil companies preparatory to drilling.
Will Be Opened Monday, Oct. 4
The JIMKURN townsite is ideally located and perfectly drained, thus assuring healthful conditions lacking in so many oil towns. A running stream of deep, clear water full of fish and swimming holes, flows at the edge of town—affording both food and amusement—and adding to its advantages as a good town in which to live.
Better opportunities for making money were never offered the small investor or persons seeking a new location for any line of business in a new town promising to set a new record in growth. JIMKURN is destined to be the distributing point for a vast oil and ranching territory, it being the nearest railroad town within a radius of a score or more of miles to the north, east and west and the only outlet to the south.
Lots Are Reasonably Priced
The usual oil field prices do not prevail at JIMKURN, where every lot in the townsite has been priced at a figure so attractive that the entire townsite should be sold out on opening day. Lots in JIMKURN range from $10 for residence property to $2,000 for the best business corner and what's more, they can be bought just like paying rent, the terms of sale being: Twenty per cent down and balance in eight equal monthly installments.
JIMKURN is easily reached from Dallas, Fort Worth or Ranger via the W. F. R. & Ft. W. R. R., which, in connection with the Frisco, operates the Oil Fields Special, a through train carrying Pullman sleeping cars, leaving Fort Worth every night at 10:45 o'clock.
The Day Is Monday, October 4
Better take a day off and join the crowd bound for JIMKURN on October 4 and get in on a ground-floor investment that should make you some money in what will probably be the liveliest and fastest growing oil town in North Texas.

American Girls Under Fire Ten Weeks During Turk-Armenian Fight; Typical Relief Worker's Experience

By Associated Press
New York, Sept. 25.—Miss Edith Cold of West Brighton, S. L. N. Y., tells in a letter to the Near East Relief the story of how she carried the white flag between fighting Turks and Armenians at Hadjin in an effort to save Armenian captives under her care.

Miss Cold's letter came from Talas, on the heart of Mustapha Kemal, and was brought out by her sister, Miss Alice Clark of Evanston, American relief worker at Hadjin. Miss Cold is Mary Cold of Pa.

"The Turkish tribesmen) de- camped on April 5," Miss Cold wrote. "The compound where the American flag was flying and where no shot was fired, became the object of a fierce attack."

"After that for ten weeks we lived as the guests of the Chetes. It was not life, however, but a sojourn in the valley of the shadow of death. We worked ceaselessly at the task of making friends with those encamped about our walls. We served them in every conceivable way, especially Miss Super with medical aid. Two lads died from fright and three were wounded."

Ten Weeks Under Fire.

"The Turks had their defenses close to the compound between us and the city and occupied the clinic building outside the gate and always fired from it. The compound was always under fire from Hadjin. Hardly a day passed that we did not have callers from among the leaders of the Chetes."

"Twice Mr. Eby and I had permission from them to go to Hadjin. Each time they proclaimed an armistice and we carried the white flag. The first time was at the end of three weeks of siege and the other five weeks later. The first time we simply stated the conditions for surrender as given by the commander, Dughan Bey. The committee in Hadjin flatly refused to consider."

Carried Peace Overtures.

"The second time we sought to bring about a conference between the opposing forces. We went back and forth seven times, stating Dughan Bey's position, bringing the Hadjin reply, etc. Everything seemed favorable except that the place of the conference could not be agreed upon. Dughan Bey insisted that they meet in our salinbak and the Hadjin committee were equally firm that the place be on our road half way between the defenses. After much parley, Mr. Eby and I finally set out, however, with two Hadjin delegates. Only an hour of the armistice was left. Just as we were climbing over one of the Hadjin defenses a shot was fired and struck between Mr. Eby and me. The Hadjin delegates ran for shelter and Mr. Eby and I proceeded back to the compound alone. Confidence was destroyed. We were unable to locate the source of the shot."

Miss Cold wrote that the Armenians from Hadjin finally captured the compound from the Turks but were driven out of it and most of the 200 inmates of the compound were sent with the Armenians to Hadjin.

"We six Americans and our two Turkish girls took refuge in a dark store room," Miss Cold stated. When the Chetes again recovered the compound they looted and set fire to it. Miss Cold and the other Americans were hurried away by the Turks to a mountain retreat where for two nights they were guests in the commander's tent and then were given an escort to Talas.

The fate of the Armenian children in Hadjin was unknown to Miss Cold, but she feared that all had perished.

STEAMER LINE, GULF TO LEVANT WOULD BENEFIT

By Associated Press
CONSTANTINOPLE, Sept. 25.—Americans are gradually preparing to avail themselves of trade opportunities which will present themselves as soon as conditions become more settled in Southern Russia and the Caucasus.

The Guaranty Trust company of New York opens its Constantinople branch, the first American bank in the Levant, this month. The American Foreign Trade corporation has sold its shipping department to an American organization called the Black Sea corporation, E. G. Booth Jr., formerly representative of the United States shipping board in Constantinople. In head of the new corporation, which has chartered several ships for the Black Sea trade and is designed primarily to assemble freight from the various ports of the Black Sea and make it available for larger American ships at Batum or Constantinople.

F. A. Timmerman, an American shipping agent in Constantinople, that a direct line between New Orleans and the Levant would doubtless be profitable. He would have such a line call in Cuba, Spain, Italy, Greece, Bulgaria, South Russia, Georgia and Turkey.

Line From New Orleans.

It is argued that the proposed line between New Orleans and Black Sea ports would afford a more direct line than now exists for the shipment of coffee and other South and Central American products to the Near East in combination with shoes, hardware, machinery and various other manufactured products from the Mississippi valley, which Americans hope, will permanently replace German and Austrian goods in this market.

Hamburg formerly furnished the Levant most of its coffee. Germany and Austria together in pre-war times supplied the Black Sea area with most of its manufactured goods, but such goods were pouring in here in large quantities from America before exchange became so unfavorable. Supplies of this sort could readily be sent from Mississippi valley points through New Orleans in the opinion of Mr. Timmerman and, on their return trip, ships could carry iron ore and manganese from the Black Sea as a heavy cargo, together with wool, carpets, tobacco, licorice root, dried fruits and other products of the Levant.

As a result of the world war there are still 361,854 men of the French army whose fate is unknown.

AMERICAN NURSING TO BE TAUGHT IN CZECHO-SLOVAKIA
By Associated Press
WASHINGTON, Sept. 25.—An effort to extend American nursing methods to Czecho-Slovakia has been started by the American Red Cross. Bayena Brezenova and Frantiska Rusiova, nurses from that country, are on their way to enroll at the Massachusetts general hospital school for nurses in Boston. The plan worked out by the Red Cross and the Czecho-Slovak government includes establishment of a training school for nurses at Prague. Two American-nurses have been abroad to organize the school on American lines.

CHARGES JAPS ATTEMPTED TO WRECK BOAT

Skipper of the China Confident Nagasaki Lights Were Purposely Dimmed.

HONOLULU, Sept. 25.—What seemed to him to be a deliberate attempt on the part of the Japanese government light-house service to endanger the China mail liner China took place in Nagasaki harbor July 27, declares Captain C. J. Lancaster, master of the vessel, who was in port recently on his way to the Orient.

"Explanations cannot convince me that the Japanese were not making deliberate attempt to wreck my ship," said the captain. "We were to sail from Nagasaki, outward bound for San Francisco, on the night of July 27. During the afternoon I had twenty calls from Japanese officials who asked me if I intended to sail at 11 p. m. I told them I did."

"Lights Out. "We sailed at 11 o'clock that night, and as soon as we had gotten under way I found that the two aids to navigation in Nagasaki harbor, a red light and a white one, were out of commission. "The red light was burning very dimly, but the white light on Io Bana was not showing at all, its mechanism being out of order. It did not begin to revolve until we were clear of the harbor limits."

"How did I get out? I fairly smelled my way out. Knowing the harbor as I did from previous experiences, and during the grounding of the China early in the year there, I was able to get out without wrecking my ship. All the talking in the world will not convince me that the light-houses were not out of commission on purpose to wreck my ship, the Japanese having determined to injure the China Mail Steamship company on account of the Chinese boycott on Japanese goods."

Capt. Lancaster says that when the China ran aground on the rocks in Nagasaki harbor in January, this year, his appeals for assistance were ignored by the Japanese naval officials.

"Tugboat Sent Away. After the China was stranded," he continues, "the only available seagoing tugboat was sent away from Nagasaki harbor and did not return until my ship had been floated by a Japanese salvage concern. I made repeated appeals to the officials of the Sasabo navy yard, fifty miles away, for help, but the appeals were ignored."

"The treatment accorded my ship is in vivid contrast to the help given the Japanese steamer Nippon Maru by the United States navy yard when she ran aground in Half Moon Bay outside of San Francisco early this year. Then, as every shipyard in San Francisco was tied up, because of the strike, the government allowed the Nippon Maru to use the Mare Island drydock for repairs. When the Cuzco, a Norwegian ship, ran aground off Honolulu harbor, the United States navy officials here gave every assistance. Did the Japanese government show the China similar courtesy? It did not! It gave us no help whatever."

More Satisfactory. "You say you are having your revenge on the man who treated you so shabbily. What did you do to him?" "Nothing. But his son has been given a French horn, his daughter is taking singing lessons and his baby has had a bad attack of colic."—Baltimore American.

Woman's Apartment Is Scene of Rivals' Desperate Duel to Death

CHICAGO, Sept. 25.—An unidentified woman is sought by the police in an effort to clear up the death of David Slavins, a wealthy traveling salesman, whose body was found in the apartment of Miss Jean Lawrence.

Max Cohen, son of a wealthy jeweler, is held in connection with the murder of Slavins. In an alleged confession, Cohen admitted choking Slavins in a battle over the affections of Miss Lawrence, according to the police.

Miss Lawrence has admitted, police say, that another woman was with her when the fight was staged.

The woman's apartment presented a scene of disorder when the police arrived. Tables and chairs were overturned in the struggle; a glass in a bookcase had been shattered and several small statues and vases lay in pieces on the floor.

According to Cohen and Miss Lawrence, Slavins for two weeks had persisted in forcing his attentions on the blonde divorcee. Ten days ago Miss Lawrence caused his arrest.

"He had been standing in front of my door attempting to get in the flat," she told the police.

When the case against Slavins was called in the Harrison Street court Miss Lawrence did not appear against him.

According to Cohen, Slavins, whose people are wealthy, appeared outside the apartment, rang the bell and asked to be admitted.

"You can't come in," answered Miss Lawrence. Slavins commenced to pound upon the door, he says, and the man entered.

"The struggle started almost immediately," Cohen told the police. "He insulted her (Miss Lawrence) and insulted me and threw a vase at me. I struck him and then we clinched. Several times vases and chairs were thrown. I heard the bookcase window crash."

"Then we dropped and were rolling around on the bare floor—the carpet had been torn up. We overturned the table and books fell on us."

Dramatic Tale of Death. "Finally I got my fingers around his throat. I choked and choked and choked—gradually he ceased his struggling. Finally his hands fell back. He was dead."

Cohen said he called Dr. John B. Mathewson, and with the physician and the hysterical woman made attempts to revive Slavins.

"Too late—he's gone," said the doctor, winding his way through the overturned furniture to the telephone.

"What are you going to do?" asked Cohen. "I am going to notify the police," the doctor said.

Cohen was waiting with Miss Lawrence when the police arrived.

BELIEVE ALBERT'S VISIT TO BRAZIL WILL BRING NEW TRADE AGREEMENT

RIO DE JANEIRO, Sept. 25.—High political and commercial significance is believed to attach to the visit to Brazil of King Albert of Belgium. It is said that an agreement making the port of Antwerp the chief European deposit for Brazilian coffee, in place of Hamburg, will be signed by the two governments during the king's stay. The conclusion of other agreements regarding customs tariffs and steamship lines is also believed to be probable.

Losses to all nations are estimated at 9,819,000 killed in the world war.

The Ford Motor Company makes this reduction in the face of the fact that they have on hand immediate orders for 146,065 cars and tractors. The company will suffer a temporary loss while using up the materials bought at high prices.

They are willing to make the sacrifice in order to bring business back to a going condition as quickly as possible and maintain the momentum of the buying power of the country.

Henry Ford says:

"The war is over and it is time war prices were over. There is no sense or wisdom in trying to maintain an artificial standard of values. For the best interests of all, it is time real practical effort was made to bring the business of the country and the life of the country down to regular pre-war standards."

Kansas Tired of Political Fuss Over League

A Dead Issue to the Farmers, Either Way It Goes.

KA. Kan., Sept. 25.—Kansas is taking more interest in politics than for several seasons. Not only have the political spellbinders been able to secure large audiences for their party, but the farmers are having this year. During the month of September and October there are to be the dozens everywhere in the state. Gov. Allen had nine invitations to be held on the same day in as many different counties.

While these picnics are arranged by political organizations, they are the focal point of the state. Until a few years ago these organizations would not have dared to talk politics. But politics is the chief subject of all the picnics. Everybody that can make a word is talking politics.

End of League Dispute.

Who attend these picnics are tired of the league of nations political subject. It may be that you don't know much about it, or it may be that they know all about it, and you come to regard it as a subject of political discussion. The fact remains that in Kansas the people are not interested in the league. Republican or Democrat who undertake to lift the lid of the lid for helping make the league a dead letter as far as a political subject is concerned in this state. The republican slush funds, democratic extravaganzas, the industrial court, the Irish or almost any other political topic stir up more interest. The why of the condition in the minds of the citizens of Kansas has not been explained. It is an actual fact that all of the members of congress, nine republican and one democrat, come home laden with a league of nation's speeches. They prepared to tell the folks in their districts all about. But congressmen and the candidates who are seeking jobs have entirely removed the political subject from their speeches and are talking about other subjects.

Always Time Over Politics.

Always takes her politics more seriously and usually has a more hilarious time over political matters. Kansas is taking politics more seriously this year than ever before. They do not seem to be interested in the news in either party. They are anxious for information about almost any subject except the league. They listen for hours to orators from the party until the league is mentioned then the crowd fades away. The orators of both parties assert they had such fine crowds, nor so large. They are having this year. Men and women alike are attending the meetings and men and women of both parties also that they can talk about political subject on earth and have a appreciative and attentive audience. The league is mentioned. Then the speech "goes dead."

Cox and Roosevelt Coming.

Gov. Cox and Franklin Roosevelt are coming to Kansas late in September and early in October. They will have tremendous crowds at the five points where they are to speak and may stir up some enthusiasm over the league. But the common garden variety of political orator, be he or she republican or democrat, congressman, ex-congressman or would-be congressman, cannot get more than a ripple of applause either "skinning" or praising the league of nations. It is a dead letter as far as a political subject is concerned in this state. The republican slush funds, democratic extravaganzas, the industrial court, the Irish or almost any other political topic stir up more interest. The why of the condition in the minds of the citizens of Kansas has not been explained. It is an actual fact that all of the members of congress, nine republican and one democrat, come home laden with a league of nation's speeches. They prepared to tell the folks in their districts all about. But congressmen and the candidates who are seeking jobs have entirely removed the political subject from their speeches and are talking about other subjects.

Some of the Factors.

Norway, like all other neutral countries, was materially affected by the blockade during the war years. It is true that this country was more generously treated by the entente powers than was either Denmark or Sweden, but the shortage was most acute in breadstuffs and potatoes, for both of which the Norwegians are always dependent upon imports. This shortage, together with one other factor to be noticed later, brought to the fore the question of restricting the production of distilled liquors. In Norway, as in both the other Scandinavian countries, the greater part of the distilled liquor consumed is made up of what the Norwegians call "brennvin" or "aquavit," which is distilled from cereals or potatoes. Sweden, which had to meet the same problem of increasing the supply of grain and potatoes available for food and use by reducing distillation to one-sixth of the former amount.

In Norway, however, there was the further factor alluded to. This was a great increase of drunkenness due to the sudden prosperity that came to people who had not yet had time to become accustomed to it. Every neutral country had its quota of people who became suddenly rich, but nowhere else was this prosperity shared by such a comparatively great number of people of formerly humble station. The best restaurants in Christiania are filled daily with men whose heavily tattooed wrists and hands and weather-beaten faces show them to have been simple fisherfolk or sailors before the war brought them riches.

France Didn't Object.

Prohibition in Norway is not merely a domestic question; it is complicated with important questions of foreign relations. In 1909 Norway and France entered into a new commercial and financial treaty.

What have been the results of prohibition in Norway thus far? The respondent put the question first to the inspector in charge at the central police station in Christiania.

SEDUCTIVE SPARROW SHAKES WICKED WING AND LURES THE COLORFUL CANARY FROM PERCH

A gentleman canary bird sat on the porch of a home in Ranger and sang as canaries are supposed to sing. He was a handsome bird with his brilliant yellow plumage flashing in the sunlight. An ordinary little lady sparrow was sitting in a tree nearby listening to the music of the canary. After a while she said to herself, this bird looks good to me.

She was just a little gray, freckled sparrow of no particular charms excepting her enticing way of doing the "shimmy."

She ruffled her plumage and patted her feathers as all ladies on occasion. She also polished her beak until it shone, which is another failing peculiar to the sex. Then she flew over and sat on the porch railing near where the canary sat singing. The sparrow spread her wings, and shimmered back and forth before his gaze. In a moment he ceased singing and watched her performance. All the lady sparrow's feminine charms were displayed. She switched from the shimmy to the grizzly bear then back again. The canary bird looked back at his happy home and said: "Lady, you win."—and they flew away together. All of which goes to prove that clothes is not the only factor that leads to the breaking up of happy homes.

NORWAY NOT THIRSTY, DESPITE PROHIBITION, FIERY 'ACQUAVIT' TRANSFORMS MEN INTO VIKINGS

CHRISTIANIA, Norway, Sept. 25.—The thirsty American who comes to Norway, having only so much knowledge of conditions in that country as he has gleaned from the newspapers has a pleasant surprise awaiting him. Indeed, the surprise is revealed on the Norwegian steamer, which as soon as it reaches the high seas, is constructively Norwegian territory.

Most Americans have been led to believe that Norway is experiencing prohibition. Much capital has been made out of the alleged fact that the land of the deep-drinking Vikings has seen the error of its ways and joined the Anti-Saloon League.

Once over the magic three-mile line, however, one discovered that the drouth was subject to important qualifications, being alleviated by claret, Burgundy, hocks, Moselles, champagne, beer, ale and porter. All in all, it was a very endurable drouth. Almost all the passengers were American citizens.

Some of the Factors.

Norway, like all other neutral countries, was materially affected by the blockade during the war years. It is true that this country was more generously treated by the entente powers than was either Denmark or Sweden, but the shortage was most acute in breadstuffs and potatoes, for both of which the Norwegians are always dependent upon imports. This shortage, together with one other factor to be noticed later, brought to the fore the question of restricting the production of distilled liquors. In Norway, as in both the other Scandinavian countries, the greater part of the distilled liquor consumed is made up of what the Norwegians call "brennvin" or "aquavit," which is distilled from cereals or potatoes. Royal Decree of 1917.

In January, 1917, a royal decree was issued forbidding the sale of distilled spirits, and in June of the same year a further decree extended this prohibition to all wines having an alcoholic content of more than 12 per cent. This barred all the heavier wines, such as sherry, port, malaga, madeira, etc. Champagne, however, was excepted from the prohibition for reasons which will appear later.

The result was a marked decrease in the number of arrests for drunkenness in Christiania and a small decrease in the other cities and rural districts. Within a year, however, ingenious persons everywhere found it possible to adjust themselves to meet the new conditions, and drunkenness began increasing again. The increase in the rural districts, beginning in the summer of 1918, was very large. This was due in part to a greatly increased consumption of wine, but mainly to illicitly distilled aquavit. Home-made aquavit is a drink of great possibilities, provided only that it has a chance to age properly, but in the nature of things it is always distilled by persons who are in a desperate hurry, and drunk in its primitive and infantile stage, it reeks with fusel oil. Each drink sets the drinker back about two centuries, so that five drinks—as a simple arithmetical calculation will show—transports the Norseman back to the tenth century, where he becomes a Viking, sailing forth from his ancestral halls to inflict grievous bodily trouble upon all who cross his path.

Under it Norwegian bonds were listed on the Paris Bourse. France's import duties on timber, wood pulp and other Norwegian exports were greatly reduced, and tonnage charges on Norwegian shipping were also cut down. In return for these concessions Norway agreed to impose no new restrictions upon the importation of French products. The war years brought a crisis which had not been foreseen, and France did not object when the royal decree of 1917 introduced partial prohibition in Norway. Not only did Norway have the excuse of war conditions, but, since champagnes were expressly exempted from the decrees, these did not seriously affect France, except in the single instance of brandies. It soon became evident, moreover, that the loss of brandies was more than offset by another factor. Under partial prohibition, Norway's imports of light French and German wines have increased nearly 500 per cent.

So far as the work of the police is concerned, it is difficult to see any difference," he said. "Here are the statistics of arrests for drunkenness since 1916. As you will see, there was a big drop in the total for 1917, but the figures are coming up again, and the figures for the first six months of this year indicate that the total will be substantially the same as in 1919.

COLBY DEFENDS CONTINUED OCCUPATION OF HAITI BY U. S. TROOPS; PURPOSE 'BENEVOLENT'

WASHINGTON, Sept. 25.—Announcing that the "benevolent purpose" of this country's occupation of the island of Hayti was "nearing attainment," Secretary Colby declared in a statement that the United States "hopes" to withdraw and leave the island's administration to the "unaided efforts of the Haytian people" when that purpose has been fully achieved. "The relations of the United States with Hayti," the secretary added, "should not be misrepresented even under the temptations that a political campaign presents to irresponsible utterances and conscious untruthfulness."

While not replying directly to recent charges by Senator Harding, the Republican presidential nominee, that the administration was conducting "unconstitutional warfare" against Hayti and San Domingo, Secretary Colby reviewed at length the history of American occupation and defended it as being guided by "no thought except to help" the people. In his statement Secretary Colby said in part:

"The position of the United States with relation to Hayti should not be misunderstood and it certainly should not be misrepresented even under the temptations that a political campaign presents to irresponsible utterance and conscious untruthfulness."

"This country is engaged in a task which has only a benevolent purpose. It is a task which was defined in a treaty entered into by the two countries. The work which the United States undertook is nearing completion and upon its completion this government hopes to withdraw and leave the administration of the island to the united efforts of the Haitian people."

Island Scene of Disorders.

"As is well known, for many years prior to 1915, the island of Hayti was the scene of chronic disorders. The revolutions were sometimes accompanied by wholesale fatalities. The culmination of these conditions came with the murder of President Vilbrun Guillaume Sam, who was dragged by a mob from the French legation where he had taken refuge. This grave affront to the rights of the French government resulted in the landing of French troops in Port au Prince. At this time, Hayti's European creditors were pressing for payment of the foreign debts and fear was generally entertained that murder of the Haytian president would prompt an aggressive program on the part of some European government which would not only challenge the Monroe doctrine, but arraign the United States for a failure to perform duties it had expressly assumed as a part of the Monroe doctrine. These duties have nowhere found more explicit statement than in the addresses and messages of the late President Roosevelt.

Occupied Port in 1915.

"In performance of this duty the United States, with the full assent of public opinion, occupied the city of Port au Prince Sept. 3, 1915. Proclamation of martial law was made by Admiral Caperton, commanding officer of the forces of the United States in Hayti and Haytian waters. It was stated that no interfering would be suffered with the proceeding of the constitutional government and congress of Hayti or with the administration of justice in the courts of law which did not affect the military operations or the authorities of the United States government. All municipal and civil employees were requested to continue in their vocations without change.

"A few days after a convention was signed expressing the mutual desires of both countries to strengthen the amity between them by measures for the common advantage. The United States obligated itself to assist Hayti in three specific ways to cooperate with the Haytian government in placing the revenues and finances on a stable basis, to help the Haytian government to maintain tranquility throughout the republic, and to contribute in other proper ways to advance the prosperity of the republic and welfare of its people.

"The United States has confined its energies entirely to the announced purposes of its occupation and, as a result, complete tranquility exists throughout the republic. The Haytian revenues are greatly improved and much progress has been made in road construction, port works, establishment of telegraphs, etc."

"These results have been brought about by Americans appointed under the provisions of the treaty, and from every quarter in Hayti, with the exception of a few centers of selfish and interested agitation, credit and gratitude are freely manifested and expressed to this government."

"The course of this country has been moderate and dictated only by the desire to meet its duties. Had less been done, this country would have been guilty of a desecration of duty."

"As to assertions that the National City bank of New York has received improper support from this government in the matter of its Haytian branch, the following are the facts:

"No assistance or support has been given the National City bank in Hayti other than that which would be extended to any first-class American bank in any foreign country.

"Far from encouraging the National City bank in obtaining monopolistic privileges in connection with its interests in Hayti, the department has used its influence towards preventing the National City bank enjoying monopolistic privileges."

"The National City bank does not control the customs collections, nor is it the financial arbiter of Hayti. It exercises no control of loans, exchange rates or commercial transactions as has been charged."

GOUGING EYES SAVES MAN IN BAREHANDED FIGHT WITH BULL

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Sept. 25.—An exceptional barehanded struggle against an enraged bull ended only when his brother-in-law came to his aid with a rifle, resulted in saving the life of Howard Richardson, thirty-two years old.

When the animal and other cattle broke into a field on the Richardson farm, Howard Richardson went to drive them out. He was attacked by the enraged bull and thrown to the ground, where the bull proceeded to stamp upon him. Charles Lovejoy, a brother-in-law of Richardson, was passing the house with his family in an auto and witnessed the attack. Lovejoy went to Richardson's assistance while Mrs. Lovejoy ran to the house and got a rifle. Lovejoy found Richardson prostrate on the ground, with the bull backing off for repeated attacks on the man.

Each rush, however, was met by the attacked man gouging his fingers deep into the animal's eyes, staying the advance to some extent. The gouging tactics on the part of Richardson saved his life, for had the enraged animal reached his victim's chest or head with his hoofs death would have resulted.

Lovejoy was unable to shoot the animal in a vital part for fear of hitting Richardson, but finally managed to put three or four bullets through the bull's thighs, forcing temporary abandonment of the attack. Richardson was immediately lifted over the fence and, with a few more shots, Lovejoy killed the bull.

Richardson was badly bruised over his entire body, but it is believed that he will recover.

GOUGING EYES IS SKIRTS WENT HIGHER ON BUSY STREET IN ATLANTA

International News Service.
ATLANTA, Sept. 25.—When several women passing along Peachtree street in front of the Arcade Wednesday morning grabbed up their skirts and scooted for nearby stores a policeman rushed up to find that a little mouse was the cause of it all.

The mouse was in the street and every time it tried to cross the sidewalk, would become frightened and rush this way and that. Finally a man weighing around 250 pounds stepped on it and the excitement subsided.

A big crowd gathered to see what the trouble was about.

Nearly 50,000 Owners Know

Why Essex in 4 Trips Across America
4 Times Broke the Record

Men at first accepted Essex endurance on faith. They wanted its fine car speed, power and riding luxury. These were self-evident. But there was no way to judge the durability of an unproved car.

Yet the performance appeal of Essex was so dynamic that it set a world's sales record.

Now Essex has given the greatest endurance proof ever offered by any car. Four Essex cars, carrying the first U. S. transcontinental motor mails, have each broken the transcontinental records that had stood for four years. These tests imposed more punishment and abuse than a lifetime of ordinary service inflicts. Another Essex record—its 3037 miles in 50 hours, averaging above a mile a minute for the entire distance, was never equalled.

For cars its size it holds all-world speed and endurance records from 1 to 50 hours. And another Essex stock touring car set the world's 24-hour road record of 1061 miles, over snow-covered Iowa country roads.

Do not these marks, coupled with the satisfaction of nearly 50,000 owners, settle the light car question?

Prussia Raises German Imperial When Allied Commissioners Leave; Care not for New Republic

Associated Press
ALLENSTEIN, East Prussia, Sept. 25.—The old German Empire, not of the German Republic, were raised this city when the inter-allied commission, which for six months had been the high government of East Prussia, packed up and left recently on their way to Paris.

The majority of the commission ceased to exist at night and on the morning the German flags were raised at the high school, across the street from the building where the commission had its headquarters. The schoolmaster gathered his pupils and made a speech, in which he said this was a great moment for Prussia, which at last was out from under the yoke of the conqueror. Above his head as he spoke the black, white and red colors of the old empire fluttered, where there was a flag of the German Republic. At the conclusion of his speech the master ordered three "hoops" which were lustily given, and then the children with their eyes steadily upon the teacher, sang "Deutschland Uber Alles." A few Germans who had listened to the schoolmaster joined in the song.

Some prominent citizens were asked why there were no flags of the German Republic.

"We are Prussians and conservatives," they said, "and have not accommodated ourselves to the new regime. The flag of the republic is the flag of a sect. We will fly the old flag."

Ignore Berlin Government.
 While evidently bitter toward the Berlin government they felt their duty lay in ignoring it as far as possible officially and to have little to do with it personally.

On the eve of the departure of the commission, crowds stood for hours in the streets and the station square in a silence so ominous that some inter-allied officers interpreted it as the prelude to a serious demonstration.

The only violence, however, occurred on the steps of the station where Mayor Vladimir Zejgert, who had been ordered out of Allenstein by the commission, was received upon his return from Konigsberg, where he had spent his exile. A reception committee of the more conservative citizens, with whom the mayor was very popular, was receiving him with great formality when a young German communist stepped up and knocked the mayor down. It was a knock-out blow and the reception committee ordered a stretcher upon which the mayor was carried to his home. The assailant was arrested and the incident caused no comment among the crowds.

Beat Up Officer.
 On the outskirts of the town a few communists attacked a reichswehr officer and badly used him. In another section a few shots were exchanged between communists and security police but the communists dispersed and there were no casualties.

When the blue automobiles carrying the personnel and property of the commission went roaring toward the station the crowds gave way, sometimes sullenly, but hardly a word was spoken. Here and there a German hat was raised to an officer in an automobile and the acknowledgement returned.

British Were Popular.

In the hotels there were many handshakings between the British and the Germans and the personal servants of the British said their dejected good-byes, some of them weeping. Many of the officers declared they really were sorry to leave for their work had been pleasant and the people friendly. The French, against whom the sentiment was frankly hostile, held few leave-takings.

A number of German girls kissed some of the officers goodbye at the station and waved them a long farewell.

Major Shoenberg, head of the East Prussian security police, did not take the communists efforts seriously. He said there were only four hundred communists in Allenstein and while all of them possessed guns their names were known and they could always be controlled by the police. His office had the names of virtually all radicals in East Prussia, he said, except in some of the border towns where there is considerable commerce with the Bolsheviks. In his opinion the police could handle any situation brought about by the East Prussian radicals.

STOWAWAYS, RUM, FIGHTS ADD ZEST TO FIRST TRIP OF AMERICAN VESSEL

NEW YORK, Sept. 25.—Thirty stowaways were on the steamship New Rochelle of the Baltic Steamship company, which landed yesterday in Hoboken on its first trip from Danzig. Ship officers said the British soldiers policing Danzig declined to restrain scores of stowaways, mainly Poles, who swarmed aboard.

When the vessel cleared, Aug. 29, it was thought that all the stowaways had been routed, but every day of the voyage one or more reported they were starved. Eight fortunate enough to have passports admitting them to this country, who had taken the arduous role of stowaways to reach this land of promise, had their passage paid by a collection taken up by the passengers.

Two stowaways with unusual staminal did not make their presence known until the ship was at her dock. All the stowaways, with the exception of the eight, were taken to Ellis Island. They will be deported as soon as a vessel returning to Danzig may be found.

It was reported to have been a most eventful voyage. At Danzig thirty of the crew departed. Most of them were said to have been signed on the ship in order to get back to their native land.

Then there was such limited dock space that it was necessary to build a pontoon bridge out to the ship.

The crew smuggled liquor aboard—lots of it. Most of it was confiscated by the ship's officers, but despite their vigilance, about 300 quarts remained in the men's possession. There was much hard drinking, and one free-for-all fight, in which several of the crew were badly cut. Capt. M. W. Baisieux declined to discuss the matter.

MAKING SIXTH RACE FOR MAYOR; WILL RUN UNTIL HE'S ELECTED

ALTON, Ill., Sept. 25.—G. B. Crawford of Alton is in again.

For the last ten years he has divided his time between running a grocery store and running for election as mayor of Alton. When the filing time comes around every two years, he is the first to get in the race, and when election day comes he is the first to get out of it, his principal handicap being the lack of votes.

For the sixth time Crawford yesterday filed as a candidate for the mayoralty, though the election will not be held until next spring. No other candidate has filed.

Crawford says he will continue to run until he is elected mayor. By filing early, he says, he runs longer, if not farther and faster, than all other candidates.

Poor Greenwich Village! It Loses Much Red Ink and Other Joy Waters!

NEW YORK, Sept. 25.—Poor little Greenwich village suffered another heart-break yesterday when prohibition agents descended upon black, green, purple, yellow, cerise, cat and dog inspiration cellars and confiscated thirteen barrels of antiquated red ink, ninety-five boxes of wine, eighteen baskets of the same delectable liquid and six demijohns of assorted booze compounds.

Word has reached prohibition enforcer Boyd that near artists, press agents and shoe clerks had resorted to other stimulants than Isben and the late Mr. Fried as a means of living your own life. So Mr. Boyd sent a posse of agents with search warrants to various harbors of art and other things and the raids followed.

All of the confiscated booze will go to the Knickerbocker warehouse. A report was circulated last night that the villagers would visit the warehouse in mourning costume.

Just as Mr. Boyd, and assistant enforcer Quigley were about to close up shop they received word from special agent Goiding, working under direct orders from Washington, that he had just raided a place on Prince street, where he found 400 cases of whiskey. A truck was immediately dispatched.

AVIATOR'S STUNT RESULTS IN CRASH OF PLANE AND AUTO

Julesburg, Colo., Sept. 25.—George Myers, an exhibition aviator, had a narrow escape from death Friday afternoon when the machine in which he was flying took a short nose dive to earth. With a rope ladder suspended from the airplane, Myers flew over an automobile driven at sixty miles an hour in which "Daredevil" Duncan, his acrobatic partner, and three other men were driving so that Duncan might seize the ladder and be lifted from the machine and climb into the plane.

The rope ladder became entangled with the rear of the automobile before Duncan could grasp it and lifted the car into the air ten feet, spilling its occupants on the ground. The airplane, unable to maintain its balance, nose dived to the ground and was wrecked.

Myers was severely bruised about the

ONE BOY "GANG" LEADER, 12, KILLS LEADER, 11, OF RIVAL

YONKERS, N. Y., Sept. 25.—A feud between two "gangs" of small boys which was conducted without causing public annoyance and without the knowledge of the police has led to the shooting and instant death of William Berrigan, 12 years old.

He was killed by the rival "gang" leader, Frank Ostrofsky, 12 years old, according to the police.

Undecided.

Visitor—Why does your servant go about the house with her hat on?
 Mistress—Oh, she's a new girl. She only came this morning, and hasn't yet made up her mind whether she'll stay.
