"Could see a very beautiful girl."

She dimpled. "Am I beautiful?"

she asked him.

"Of course," he said. "You know what's wrong! I know what's wrong?" she cried.

Her hands shaking, she brushed back her hair.

Wassachusetts.

Burbank was born at Lancaster, Mass., March 7, 1849, son of Samuel W. and Olive (Ross) Burbank, of English and Scotch ancestry. He was the thirteenth of 15 children born on his father's 200-acre farm. He attended the Lancaster academy, from which he was an honor graduate.

Next to the potato, the accomplishment which brought first fame to Burbank was the spineless cactus, whereby he turned a worthless desert growth into a valuable forage and fruiting plant. In recognition of this work he received in 1912 a United States grant, congress under special act turning over 7,680 acres of nonirrigable land to be located either in California, Nevada or Arizona.
