HOME TOWN TALK

By BEDDY

Having finished observation of doings of Texas editors at the state convention in San Angelo we return home this morning with these two opinions of our chest:

1. Announcement of the examiner's recommendation on the application of the Texas & Pacific Northern to build a railroad from here into the Panhandle will be announced this month.

2. If Big Spring gets the 1932 convention of the West Texas Press Association, which will meet at Lubbock in August, she's going to have to whip Dorrance Roderick and El Paso.

Another piece of gossip picked up was that when a T. & P. official was asked whether his company still wanted very badly to build the T. & P. N. he said "that's none of your business. We asked for it, didn't we? Grant it and see whether we want it or not."

As to the West Texas Press convention for 1932, El Paso made a strong bid for it in Abilene last year. Charlie Guy of Lubbock, where it meets this summer, is slated for 1932 presidency.

Dorrance Roderick, publisher of the El Paso Times, who is leading the fight of his city for the 32 meeting, informed your humble servant at San Angelo that his city was due the meeting and aimed to get it.

That's that, and not to be sneezed at.

San Angelo is a great town. Down there on the Concho they're hitting the ball harder because business is showing a tendency to slow down.

Instead of waiting for providence to send good times they're executing the inspired teaching that faith without works is dead, and are spending a little money around.

A second bridge in the city is being built over the river. A dam is to be built right in town to form a large and beautiful lake in the heart of the city.

San Angelo's auditorium and city hall building is without doubt one of the most beautiful structures in the southwest. Its value was very clearly demonstrated during the press convention.

Carl Estes, the volunteer savior of East Texas insofar as attempting to hold onto an oil boom is concerned, was at the convention. He's good natured in a crowd like that: if he were not the case he still has to use to get around would very likely have been used on the heads of a few. It was all in a good-natured way you know, but one guy got up in a crowd and said he knew some oil men who would like to take Carl for a ride.

Walter Clinch of Wichita Falls made an excellent speech on the oil situation. He closed by saying he believed the Texas Texas—East Texas new field—would be eliminated shortly. He urged less personal back-biting. "I like Tom Cranfill, head of the Independent organization; he's a little quip on the trigger, talks out of turn sometimes, but is a fine fellow personally and conscientious," said Walter.

"I like Carl Estes. We were together on a Rotary party to Europe once. I don't think he's crazy, he's sincere. Tom Hunter, who officed down the hall from me in Wichita Falls has different ideas than I and is inclined to be a little erratic but I like him a lot," Walter continued.

Walter would; he's that sort of a fine fellow.

Tuesday Due To Be One Of Biggest Days In City's History; All Types Of Stores In On "Downtown Day"

Smitham In Statement

"Misstatement Of Facts" Topic Announced By City Manager

City Manager V. R. Smitham, Saturday afternoon, issued a statement regarding what he termed "misstatements of facts" regarding the $200,000 city bond issue upon which citizens of Big Spring will vote Tuesday.

His statement follows: "It is not my intention to enter into any argument regarding ridiculous accusations against the city administration, but I do feel, as city manager of this city, I owe it to the citizens to correct any misstatements of facts regarding the city's business."

"Some would have you believe the bond issue, to be voted on Tuesday, June 16, is a $500,000 or $700,000 bond issue, when in fact it is a $200,000 bond issue, and over a period of 40 years, the interest at 5 per cent on serial bonds will amount to $234,500, making the total cost of this improvement at the end of 40 years $434,500. This finance plan is used by railroads and other big corporations, as well as all cities, and is the only way municipal improvements can be secured without the cash."

"You have repeatedly been told that a tap, that until recently cost the meter consumer $15 now costs the consumer $25. This is not a fact. The $15 was a charge for a half inch tap, which was discontinued two years ago. A three-quarter inch tap was adopted as a minimum size tap, the increase in size being necessary to increase volume of water to the consumer. The price of a three-quarter inch tap is $17.50, instead of the $25 referred to above."

"You have been told 30 per cent of the 1930 city taxes are delinquent, when in fact 16.84 per cent of the 1930 taxes are delinquent and it was estimated in the beginning of the fiscal year that 10 per cent of the taxes would be delinquent. "All such information is available at the city hall for any one desiring same. A citizen who would make such statements as these without having first inquired at the city hall for the facts could have only one idea in mind, that being, a desire to mislead the people."

Waiting Policy Is Denounced By T. E. Jordan In Statement Urging Approval Of Bond Issue Tuesday

By T. E. JORDAN

As the proposed $200,000 bond issue will come up to be voted on Tuesday, June 16, to determine whether or not Big Spring is to have a new city hall, fire station, jail and city auditorium, and since the appearance of my other article in the Daily Herald I have been approached by a number of my friends, telling me why we should not take this forward step just at this time; I have decided to try and answer some of their objections against the issuance of these bonds.

To listen to their advice, you would think Big Spring and the rest of the United States was on the eve of bankruptcy. You would think that in a few more years Big Spring would be a little incorporated village instead of a growing West Texas city. I know that times are hard, but I have seen them just this bad before. I know that Big Spring will keep on moving forward, and will come out of this depression, a bigger and better Big Spring, as she has in the past.

There are always two sides to every question, and two things to consider in putting it over. These are: Do we need this building? And are we able to carry it through? In this instance, I believe that there isn't a person in the town of Big Spring, who will not say that we need the city hall, fire station, jail and auditorium. "We are able to build it without increasing our taxes right at the time. Of course, some of the opposition tell you that those favoring the bonds have said that we could build these things without it costing the taxpayers a cent, but that is just done to belittle the proposition for all of us know that when bonds are issued they must be paid for."

It is quite amusing to the writer of this article, the way some of the opposition tell why they are opposed to the bond issue. They hold fears that we will get up against it for water, and will have to vote more bonds to enlarge our water works system. Seems funny to me, for some of this same crowd that is giving this as a reason, have been opposed to every bond issue that has ever been proposed to improve our water works.

It is quite amusing for them to take such an interest in the water problem right at this time when from all appearances we have an ample supply to last this city many years, or to provide a supply sufficient for a city several times the size of Big Spring for many years to come. Of course, we are glad to see them get interested in some kind of a bond issue, even if it is not in the one which we are to vote for Tuesday. They are waking up to the fact that bonds have to be voted before improvements of any kind can be made, and that is what it takes to make the town grow.

Then, there is a fellow who tells you he would be in favor of a $50,000 or $60,000 bond issue for the city hall, fire station, and jail, but he opposes the building of the auditorium. We have heard that same cry in every bond election that has been proposed since the incorporation of Big Spring. We have only to look at our courthouses, city hall and public school buildings to see that it is a poor policy to just build for our present needs. There has actually been enough money wasted in Big Spring in the past 25 years to build the entire building that this present bond election calls for, because we have built for present needs, only. There is some waste in every administration, but in some there is more than in others.

ACCEPTS POSITION

Mrs. Elra Phillips has accepted a position as dental assistant in the office of Dr. C. D. Baxley.

Transfer of employes of the Texas & Pacific Railway Company from Big Spring will not be done except in cases where condition of business and necessity of reducing operating expenses as much as possible make it absolutely necessary, declared J. L. Lancaster, president of the Texas & Pacific Railway Company, in Dallas Friday when interviewed by C. T. Watson, manager of the Big Spring Chamber of Commerce.

Mr. Lancaster said it was being made necessary for his company to meet existing business conditions by cutting expenses wherever possible.

It is not choice, but necessity that actuates us in planning the transfer from Big Spring to Fort Worth of ten to fifteen men in clerical departments," said Mr. Lancaster. "We naturally wish to do everything we can for the good of Big Spring and will do so. But this matter is one in which our personal choice cannot guide us." Mr. Watson reported Mr. Lancaster as saying.

"And," the rail executive added, "these employes will be sent back to Big Spring as soon as conditions justify that action."

Dynamite Is Discovered Beside Plant

Fort Worth, June 13.—(AP)—Twelve sticks of dynamite and a partly burned fuse were found early today beside one of several cleaning establishments owned by M. E. Roberts, whose home was dynamited and damaged considerably last night. No one was in the building at the time.

Two adjoining residences were damaged by last night's blast. Two of Roberts' plants were dynamited recently. Police thought "main charge" was sent to jail by Judge Debenport Saturday.

A boy with a "racket" who admitted before County Judge H. R. Debenport and Deputy Sheriff Andrew J. Merrick that he had been reading "stories of Al Capone and gangsters" was sent to jail by Judge Debenport Saturday.

For the second time in less than three months the youth and his companions are alleged to have ordered a patented medicine with an alcoholic content from one of the Collins' Bros. drug stores.

When the delivery boy was en route to the address given over the telephone the "gang" stopped him, took the bottle, and administered a lick or two to the boy.

S. E. Walling, the delivery boy, faced the youths that allegedly "kicked" him Friday night. Six of the boys—none of them over sixteen years of age—were brought before County Attorney James Little. All but one was released.

The youth, after charges were filed against him, was brought before Judge Debenport. He had him placed in jail while he "made up his mind."

Later the boy was allowed to go to his home, but will be brought before Judge Debenport Monday.

Continental Oil Company Planes Here

Officials 'Preaching' The Gospel Of Advertising, Sales Effort

Realizing that business doesn't come to the merchant who cuts his advertising budget and then expects customers to beat a path to his door while he sits idly by in an over-stuffed chair, Continental Oil Company sales executive arrived in Big Spring Saturday on an airplane Prosperity Tour that will cover 12,300 miles and touch 31 states.

Landing at Big Spring Airport at 2:45 o'clock, in two airplanes, a Ford trimotor and a Curtiss-Robin monoplane, the Continental party included Harry J. Kennedy, general sales manager; O. B. Lloyd and P. J. Ryan, assistant general sales managers; Frank Moore, special sales representative; O. M. Bounda, manager of aviation sales; Tip Schier, pilot of the trimotor; T. H. Lawson, manager of Continental's Wichita Falls sales division, and his assistants, I. M. Campbell and L. E. Stiles and D. H. Jeffers of Abilene.

"One of the chief aims of this Prosperity Tour is to preach the gospel of advertising and intelligent sales effort," said Mr. Kennedy. "Advertising is accepted universally as a valuable sales aid under normal conditions, and if it is an aid then it certainly should be a vastly better one now."

Continental Oil Company is one national advertiser that has not reduced its advertising budget for 1931. Rather, we have increased our appropriation in the same measure that greater sales effort is necessary to cope with keenest competitive conditions.

"Continental is one company that isn't 'kicked' by this so-called depression," continued Kennedy. "As a matter of fact, our sales are showing a steady increase, and we'll never be willing to admit that we are even breathing hard until the newspapers will not print our advertising, and our sales staff refuses to believe in the value of advertising."

Mr. Kennedy said that Continental's sales in Texas have been very satisfactory, in that they are showing a gradual gain. Volume of sales so far this year have even exceeded the total of 1930 up to this time, he said.

The Continental Prosperity Tour arrived here from San Angelo and left Big Spring for El Paso. The two airplanes, the Ford trimotor, piloted by Tip Schier, and the Cur-

Embarassing To Introduce Governor Of Oklahoma, Says Will; He Might Be Impeached During The Ceremony

Well all I know is just what I read in the papers, or what I happen to run onto. Run onto a queer mess out here in California the other day. You know California is made up of every ingredient in the World but Californians. Well these curious emigrants from their various sections of the Country have a habit of holding a Picnic. The State of Iowa started it, and there got so big they had to hold it in Arizona, then the other States got to holding what they called State Picnics, and then the Counties, and then the various towns, all over the U. S. their Refuges that were here would hold a Rogers, Ark., Picnic. My Wife would be up at daylight so she wouldn't miss that old home town one.

Well the other day Oklahoma had one, and I am sorry to say that it was a success. Had no idea there was that many Renegades had left, but from the looks of things half of Los Angeles come from Oklahoma. Our Governor, Alfalfa Bill Murray come all the way out here to speak to us at this gathering, and they asked me to introduce him. Well it's kinder of a tough job introducing an Oklahoma Governor. You never knew before you get through speaking but what he has been impeached while you was singing his praises. But it looks like they are going to get even with Bill, and let him serve his time out, and many sentence him again.

So I think I will just get down a lot of junk that I used at Camp Meekin, held in Sycamore Grove. As well as I can remember it it run not to wit, but to length, something like this. This is Memorial day, established for two reasons, one to commemorate the passing of our loved ones who have gone before, and the other reason, to try and cheer up in some small way, the misguided Oklahomans, who were misled by a California Chamber of Commerce. Our loved ones past are dead and gone, so we need say no more for them. They were fortunate, they passed away before the last Republican line-Robin, piloted by Mr. Bounda, left Santa Fe, N. M., headquarters of Continental Oil Company on Tuesday, June 2. The itinerary reaches from coast to coast, and will include most of the States along both the northern and southern boundaries of the United States. The trip will require about six weeks.

While in Big Spring the Continental party visited P. D. Smith, local representative and Harold Nime, district superintendent.

Administration. But its for the living, (or rather existing) Oklahomans, who are also dead but living in California, we are gathered here on this beautiful sunshiny day, with a rain coat, on every arm, to console with them.

Our Governor, or that is he was our Governor when he left, come to ring us solace from the Homeland. He has come to pray with us, not for divine guidance, but to find in some way means to getting us back to the Home State, they write home and touch everybody they can think of. They are only now waiting till you make the State so prosperous that their kin folks can send out and get em. But in talking to em Governor, don't believe all they say, some of them have been here so long they lie like a Native.

Now Governor I wouldn't have taken the job of introducing you here today, for it really should be done by some Scholar, some learned person, but I got to thinking over the occasion, and the audience, and I figured that it would take a very bright man to talk to a bunch of people who had left a State like Oklahoma, (with all its natural resources, and opportunities) and come clear out here to see a man grow, and get in the Money. Bill Murray threw down a chance to go to Claremore this same week, they were having their annual, "Take a Bath Week," and he was invited, and come clear to Claremore to learn from going. 22 wired em. "Will come and speak, but take no part." I wired em, "Will come as a Spectator only." Murray sympathizes with you ex-to cross the Desert in a Ford. They know what hardships are, you can see Punctures and blowouts written on every face. You Governor crossed in a beautiful private Car, belonging to the Rock Island, (they want something, and will perhaps get it). But these poor Devils had to Chevrolet their way across.

I will give em credit though, they left Oklahoma at a time when it looked like a Democrat would never get in. They had no idea the old State would return to Christianity. They haven't lost touch with the Home State, they write home and touch everybody they can think of. They are only now waiting till you make the State so prosperous that their kin folks can send out and get em. But in talking to em Governor, don't believe all they say, some of them have been here so long they lie like a Native.

lies, he knows what it is, he started one time to California, took the wrong road at Woodard, and landed in Bolivia. He knew what it is to be out of touch with Civilization, even before he got into the Oklahoma State Capitol. He has been in a Spanish Country, he knows what it is to live on Frejolles, like you all do. I am sorry our Mayor of Los Angeles is not here to welcome you Governor, but he is making friends with France. Nothing worth while has passed in to his lips since he got there and nothing worth while has passed out of his lips.

But you would like our Governor, he is a regular Guy, but he is from Frisco. Frisco is the place that keeps this end of the State in the Union. Its to California what the Cherokee Nations is to Oklahoma. Its the Aristocracy of the commonwealth, its the Tulsa of the works. So I take great pleasure, and pain, (for I had a broken leg at the time), I take great pleasure and pain, in introducing the only man in this entire twenty five thousand who is fortunate enough to have a Ticket back to Oklahoma.

Why Times Are Hard
If you have wondered why merchants, manufacturers and shippers have been having such a hard time during the last 12 months or so, you might be enlightened by figures recently made public by the American Federation of Labor, through its president, William Green.

President Green announces that wage cuts, part-time employment and unemployment, all combined, have lopped more than $500,000,000 from the income of American wage earners during the present year. Granting that this gentleman knows what he is talking about, and that last year's record was probably about as bad, the fall-ure of business to revive quickly is quite understandable.

Knock two and one-half billions from the purchasing power of the nation in less than half a year and you have about all the explanation
you need for "hard times."

An Able Prosecutor
GEORGE E. JOHNSON, federal district attorney at Chicago, deserves all kinds of credit for his effective and unrelenting action against gang leaders. By ringing Al Capone himself under indictment for failure to meet the income tax requirements he has struck a mortal blow against the power of the underworld.

One wonders, though, why Mr.
Johnson seems to be the only effective against the gangsters.
To get that indictment against Capone took months of patient and efficient detective work. Isn't it reasonable to suppose that if state and city officials should display the same kind of ability they might once in a great while, be able to level a murder charge against one or another of Chicago's gangsters and make it stick in court?

OPINIONS OF OTHERS
Oklahoma Tragedy
DALLAS, June 13.—A quiet residence street—three youngsters clustered together—perhaps taking a look at a road map, the map that is guiding them home from school exit in an area of interesting landscape to the approaching frontier there is the quick suspicion of the modern sleek hijacker. Suspicion on their part, too, as an armed man in a none too friendly voice asks what they are doing. He does not know they are foolish—they do not know that he represents the law, even if he displays his badge. Two both sides—then, tragedy. Two youngsters on the threshold of manhood are dead. Regardless of all other facts in the case, the man with the gun fired too easily—on suspicion and not certain.

Possible international aspects complicate this case. One of these youngsters, whose lives have been snuffed out on a peace officer's arrest, is a relative of the President of Mexico. The mistake would be as tragic if they were humble Americans.

The law has not altered its maximum penalty for a man who slays another. It is better that ninety-nine guilty men should escape than that one innocent man should suffer. Death is a drastic penalty, to pay for innocence. When armed men are too quick on the trigger tragedy is far too likely. It was present at Ardmore.

HOW'S your HEALTH

Dr. Inge Quindlen, Academy of Medicine
TYPIES OF ARTHRITIS

In the naming and defining of diseases, modern medicine suffers from a Babel-like confusion of terms.

Some diseases are named according to the organs they involve;
others according to the disease form produced; still others, according to their symptoms.

But some diseases are named according to their discoverers or the germs producing them.

This observation is evoked by the problem represented in an attempt to define arthritis.

Though spoken of as a disease, it is more strictly a disease condition of unknown and varied origin.

The known facts about arthritis are that the disease involves one or more joints and that there are structural changes in the joints, presenting different degrees of de-formity and loss of function.

Arthritis may be caused or associated with a large number of other diseases.

Thus we find arthritis as a complication of pneumonia, measles, mumps, scarlet fever, typhoid and other forms of infectious diseases.

Arthritis is also caused by syphilis and gonorrhea. It is commonly associated with rheumatic fever.

There are many cases of arthritis which exist and are independent of any or all of these diseases.
In fact, the largest number of cases are due to still undetermined causes.

In former times many different types of arthritis were defined and named. In recent years, however, the classification has been simplified and only two great types of arthritis are spoken of.

These are the so-called atrophic and hypertrophic forms.

In the atrophic type the destructive features predominate. There is a marked tendency for the bone and cartilage tissues in the joint and surrounding structures to shrink.

In the hypertrophic type the overgrowth features predominate, the joint becoming enlarged, sometimes to a grotesque size.

Mad Pursuit

By JESSIE DOUGLAS FOX
SYNOPSIS: Favorable reports from the art exhibit staged by Julian Laye bring to his daughter, Nora, the hope of success he had predicted. Now, she reflects, he may provide for her Aunt Emma and cousins, Frances and Halie, with whom she has lived since the suicide of her husband, Nicholas Thayer, the painter. In the meantime, Nora's engagement to Nicholas' brother, Jon, is a step toward her dream of life in the Thayer mansion. But when Nora sees the paintings in her father's exhibit, she knows that he has signed his name to the work of another. Dismayed, she goes with Jon to the Thayer home, where his step-sister, Damon, charges that Julian had stolen the paintings Nicholas had left with him.

Chapter 23
BACK TO AUNT EM'S
NORA swayed slightly at Damon's accusing words, but she rose with a savage will, clutching at the chair back. The walls of the Thayer home were rising and falling toward her life, a mighty wave that crashed on her to suck her under in the crawling undertow.

When she looked up she saw Jon was in the room, looking from her to Damon. Damon was speaking with a voice like splintered glass. The pictures on exhibition were not painted by Julian Laye. Nicholas painted them. And she admits it.

"Nora?" Jon cried. His eyes judged her without pity. "You urged me all along not to let your father have the show. You know that."

"I didn't know! How could I know?" "Then why did you beg me not to have the pictures exhibited?" "I was ashamed. My father's pictures were so—bad."

"You see she must have known all the time," Damon said in a low voice. "God, Jon said as though to himself, 'I couldn't have believed it.' She looked at him, imploring him for understanding. But he would not look at her. Nothing she could say would make them believe."

She stood beside her father in the ranks of thieves; thieves who robbed the dead. She saw Jon fling out of the room. Damon sat very still, looking down at her hands. "I must go."

She must have said it; but her voice sounded very far away as though it belonged to someone else. It must be her body that was walking with such still uncertain steps out of the room. It must be she who had made her way to the high-road and began to walk, not knowing where she was going. A man in an old car saw her moving uncertainly from one side of the road to the other. He stopped and asked her if he could drive her into town. She got in without even answering. He turned to speak to her but he saw then that tears were running down her cheeks. So they drove to the city where she had lived. He left her at her door. She had even forgotten to thank him.

If only she could hide somewhere, she thought, so that never again would she have to meet them face to face. She could not unlock the door; her fingers fumbled so with the key. She began to cry weakly, and then someone had opened the door from the inside and Fergus stood there looking at her. "What's the matter?" "Nothing. Nothing! What could the matter?" she cried wildly.

"It would be better if you would tell me, Nora, I may be able to help you."

"Fergus, don't make me," she said pitifully. "I'm so horribly afraid."

He was not looking at her. That was better. He sat in his chair tilted back, looking away from her to the window.

"If I could go away somewhere—"

"You can face it Nora. You're brave," he said confidently. "If I tell you, Fergus, you won't blame him—oh, Fergus, Julian's like a child who takes anything he wants and uses it."

Little by little she told him the story. She sat waiting for his judgment. But none came. His dark head was bent. The telephone rang. It continued to ring and ring. After a while it stopped ringing. They still sat there.

"I'll go to see him to-night," Fergus said. "I'll tell him all you have told me. The show must be closed. I'll ask him to promise that the painting shall be turned over to Jon Thayer. He can do as he chooses about it. I'm afraid your father will have to face it."

"He's never faced anything in his life. He's always run away."

"That, too, can be managed."

"You are good, Fergus. Fran used to tell me—but I never knew until now—you don't think Julian is wicked? He isn't—he's only—"

"Pitiful," Fergus said. For the first time tears rolled over her cheeks. "I'm sorry, Nora."

"Don't be sorry for me. I can hear it. It doesn't matter to me. It's for him. He isn't selfish. Fergus. He wanted all this for us. For Fran and Aunt Em, for me. He was going to make us happy. He had such plans—"

"You're going up to bed now. Nora. I'll give you something to make you sleep, or don't want to see your aunt now?"

She only shook her head. He left her at the head of the stairs with two white tablets. She caught his hand and laid it against her cheek. "I hope you'll be happy—you and Fran," she choked.

Then without knowing what she did she tore off her clothes and got into bed. After a night of misery she got up and went downstairs. She could barely meet Halie's eyes, but Halie began to talk rapidly and nervously about a story she was writing. The children were subdued. A cloud seemed to hang over the house. Nora went to the office as usual; but Mr. Dusenbury after one look at her face did not say anything about her absence of the day before. Everyone was solicitous and remarked that she looked ill.

"I see your father has an exhibition of paintings in the city," Miss Brown, the bookkeeper said, but Nora turned away so abruptly the kind little woman was hurt. Somehow she got through the day and when she came down the wooden steps that evening she saw Fergus himself standing waiting for her. Yes, he had seen her father. The show was closed. But Fergus seemed to have little else to say.

"What is he going to do?" Nora gasped. "He's going away. He says he'll let you know later."

"Oh, Fergus! Fergus!" They were in the car now. Fergus brought out something and gave it to her. It was a check. Nora sat looking helplessly down at this money that would mean salvation for all of them.

"Fergus, would you take me out to—Jon's now—I'd like to give them this money. Then I shall see what they want me to do."

"Nora, you're a little rich!" he said. Her eyes looked at him with despair.

"If you only knew—I'm not. I'd rather die than face Damon. She seems to hate me. And they believe that I—that I knew it all the time. You know I wouldn't do a thing like that, don't you?"

"He caught her hand and gripped it hard. "It's better to get it over at once. I'll drive you out there now, if you say."

Nora saw they were going along the river road. She asked him, "Do Halie and Aunt Em know?" "I told them."

"I suppose they think I—"

Nora's eyes burned; she put her cold hands against her cheeks. "I must be brave," she told herself over and over.

Fergus left her at the door of the Thayer house.

"Fergus, do you mind leaving me? I want to do it alone."

How quiet and peaceful the house was. The green tannish of the wisteria vine curled out long fingers and the sun lay on the deep waves of a fine lawn, from which the lovely old home rose.

She climbed the stone steps and forced herself to ring the bell at last. At last she heard footsteps and one of the maids stood there smiling.

It was very strange that she did not ask her to come in.

"Mr. Jon?"

Coach Robert Zuppke of Illinois told the Optimist club of St. Louis that big football gates are a "good sign" because "people should worship the best!"

The maid shook her head. "Miss Damon?" "There was another shake. "But I must see them! Where are they?"

"Mr. Jon and Miss Damon are not here. They were married this morning." (Copyright, 1930, Jessie Douglas Fox)

Unhappy . . . That's Nora's lot, she says tomorrow. Then she meets a stranger in the park.

OLDSMOBILE is THE LOWEST PRICED CAR
WITH the SYNCRO-MESH TRANSMISSION

Among the many important new features now provided in Oldsmobile is the famous, Syncro-Mesh transmission . . . and this is the first time this feature has ever been made available at a price so low.

The advantages offered by the Syncro-Mesh transmission make it one of the most desirable of present day fine-car features. It permits silent shifting through all gears . . . from low into second, from second to high, and from high back to second, as desired.

Gear-clashing is eliminated. And driving in traffic is easier, for the downward shift—from high into second—can be made without reducing car speed. This shift . . . so difficult with the ordinary transmission, and so useful for a quick burst of speed in traffic . . . is also a factor of safety and convenience when driving in mountainous country, where second gear is frequently employed for its braking effect on the car.

Further, the second gear in Oldsmobile's Syncro-Mesh transmission is a new quiet type—assuring smooth, swift acceleration which rivals high gear performance in quietness. Until you have actually driven the new Oldsmobile and experienced for yourself the driving ease and flashing acceleration made possible by the Syncro-Mesh transmission, you cannot appreciate how much this modern fine car feature really adds to driving enjoyment.

"Modern Art, Why, What and How"
By HENRY BANKIN POORE
(G. P. Putnam's Sons)

This book, as the author tells us and the publisher reminds us on the cover, is a discussion of modern art and not a partisan view of it.

Modern art has confused a good many people, including the artists themselves. Laymen hardly know what to make of some of it; conservative artists are enthusiastically pro and con. Mr. Poore tries to see the good and point out the bad.

Local Girl Visits Two African Kings

Miss Lucille Reagan Tells of Some Strange Native Customs She Had Just Discovered

Traveling 150 miles in pursuit of a dentist, interviewing two kings, one with not enough clothes on, and the other with too many, and inspecting a rubber plantation, are some of the incidents which marked one week in the work of Miss Lucille Reagan, of Lagos, Africa. Miss Reagan, who is the principal of a Baptist School in Lagos, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. B. Reagan of this city.

Here is the story in the writer's own words:
"When I went to the dentist, I found he had just left town for a several weeks' business tour in a dentists' section of Nigeria. My tooth was still aching so I caught a ten-thirty train and rode it for 12 hours, then walked 5 miles, since I was unable to get anyone by wire to meet me. I found a motor truck returning to Lagos, so I came back in it.

"We have a man working for us now who has just come from a people whose custom it is that only men may die in the house. Women and children are thrown out on the streets to die. He saved the life of one baby he had picked up on the streets this way, by massaging it. Another time he picked up twins and after they were well, persuaded their parents to take them back again.

"On a recent trip, we went to a town, which is the capital of the Yoruba tribe, whose language I first learned. Their king is supposed to be the father of all kings. We were introduced to him.
"He is a young man who has been king only a few months, since his father's death. He was dressed in his royal robes and had a crown with a cross on it. His robes were of velvet and his crown of cloth. We also saw some of their idols which no Yoruba woman is allowed to look at, because if she does she will never bear children, they believe. Nor was the king allowed to see this particular powerful idol, because the year in which he looks on he is supposed to die. He talked to us in English, for he is a well-educated young man.

"We also saw the king of Benin. Benin fought tenaciously against British protection, so it has a bloody history. The town had enormously thick walls with a moat on the outside, and the wall still stands in places.
"This king was dressed in beads and more beads. His dress had nothing above the waistline but he had on so many beads that I didn't realize there was nothing under them until someone told me. He did wear an enormously high collar, about four inches high and so large that he could have easily dropped his chin inside.

Ritz Opens 3-Day Showing Of Clara Bow Picture

Title Of Film 'Kick In' Very Appropriate

Four Former Directors In Cast With Red-Haired Favorite

Four former film directors are seen in the supporting cast of Clara Bow's new, dramatic picture, "Kick In," which the Ritz theatre will feature for three days, starting today. They are Donald Crisp, Paul Hurst, Wade Boteler and Donald Mackenzie, all retired from active directing by choice, all electing the less exacting and confining careers before the camera.

In "Kick In," Clara Bow makes her bow to the American public as a dramatic star, in a role entirely different than the well-known "It" roles for which she is most famous. The cast of "Kick In" was selected with care to assure the proper protection of Clara's full-blooded, tensely-emotional characterization being sustained in every part.

Crisp, an Oxford graduate and a native of London, directed for Paramount for five years, guiding the screen destinies of such players as Wallace Reid, Theodore Roberts and stars contemporary with them. He was D. W. Griffith's assistant during the filming of "Birth of a Nation." As an actor, he won his greatest fame in "Broken Blossoms."

Paul Hurst started his stage career with a San Francisco stock company. In 1925 he became a film director for Vitagraph, later directing for Metro, Ince and many independents. Recently he has been one of the most active character heavies and "old school detectives" on the screen.

Wade Boteler, the third-director for the American Academy of Dramatic Art. During the war, he was active in producing and directing entertainment for soldiers, and afterwards, he played, wrote and directed Douglas MacLean comedies. He also directed for several independent companies.

Mackenzie is one of the true old-timers of the screen, at one time one of its most famous directors. He left the stage for the films in 1908, and five years later was directing for Pathé. "The Perils of Pauline" was directed by him. Of late years, he has been active as an actor.

Much Talent Concentrated For Picture

Gloria Swanson Stars In 'Indiscreet' On Ritz Bill

"Indiscreet," Gloria Swanson's latest United Artists picture, is the product of an unusual array of talent, the names appearing on the production credit list being sufficient to fill a generous chapter in filmland's "Who's Who."

In addition to the star, there is the combination of De Sylva, Brown and Henderson, producers of the picture, noted for their unbroken success in pictures with "Sunny Side Up" and "Just Imagine."

The director is Leo McCarey, regarded as one of the outstanding of the young directors and whose name is being heard with increasing frequency as a result of his work in the filming of "Let's Go Native" and "Part Time Wife."

The leading men is Ben Lyon, whose engagement for more than two years in a single role, in the making of "It's Like Angels," is something of a record. The cast also presents the names of such established players as Monroe Owsen, whose outstanding characterization in "Holiday" brought him instant recognition, Barbara Kent, Arthur Lake and Maude Eburne.

Miss Swanson's costumes, comprising every type of ensemble essential to the smart wardrobe, were created for her by Rene Hubert, whose ability as a designer is recognized in America and Continental Europe alike.

Photography is credited to Ray June, who was responsible for the pictorial beauty of "Reaching For The Moon" and other recent features, with Greig Toland as second cameraman.

Sets, ranging from a Long Island home to elaborate apartments done in the modern manner, are the work of Richard Day, art director for United Artists.

"Indiscreet," which is coming to the Ritz theatre next Wednesday and Thursday, is a comedy-drama in which the plot revolves around a modern girl's crusade to prevent a rejected suitor from marrying her younger sister, with some times amusing and sometimes tragic results.

Charlotte Greenwood Will Appear

Star Of 'So Long Letty' On Ritz Bill In 'Stepping Out'

Comedy in any medium is still comedy, declares Charlotte Greenwood. Which is why the elegant comedienne of "So Long Letty," "Parlor, Bedroom and Bath" and other hits doesn't care whether she's on the stage or on the screen. The process of getting laughs is just the same, she says, because human nature is human nature, whether looking across footlights or into a camera.

Miss Greenwood proved it in "Stepping Out," Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's filmization of the New York stage hit coming Friday and Saturday to the Ritz Theatre.

"We did everything that was done on the stage," she says. "In fact, the original stage playwright, Elmer Harris, adapted the play to the screen."

Screen Is Elastic
"The only difference between screen and stage is, of course, that we could use elaborate scenes, actual settings and keep shifting from one scene to the other in a way the stage would not permit. That enables one to get a story moving much faster in fact, the ability of the screen to do this gives it one advantage the stage will never have."

"You can tell a great deal more in a talking picture than in a stage play. There you have to talk about things; in a picture you actually show them. But to the comedian, the technique of getting laughs is the same. The screen's main advantage is that you have more facilities for getting them, more tools to work with."

Important Cast
Miss Greenwood is one of the notable cast in the new production, a hilarious romance of Hollywood and Alcazar Caliente, of oil millionaires who try to produce pictures of blonde women, include wives and all sorts of trials and tribulations, Lella Hyams, Reginald Denny, Ellen Bond, Cliff Edwards, Merna Kennedy, Harry Stubbs, Richard Tucker, Kate Richmond and Wilson Hodge appear.

Charles F. Brainerd, producer of "Caught Short" and "Reducing," directed the new picture, which was staged on a lavish scale, with Hollywood swimming pools, the Caliente race and other spectacular details as incidents to the laughs. Many of the scenes utilized Buster Keaton's famous estate in Beverly Hills as a location especially the swimming pool sequences.

WALLACE REMOVES SKILL
Having proved himself to the American having picture audience as a studio director of power and virility in a series of great commercial productions, the latest of which was Ruth Chatterton's "The Right to Love," Richard Wallace was assigned to guide Clara Bow in her first dramatic picture for the talking screen, "Kick In," the picture in which Miss Bow makes her bow in emotional roles, and it will show at the Ritz theatre today, Monday and Tuesday.

Big Spring Tourist Accommodations Termed 'Best' By El Pasonas

Big Spring holds first place with Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Austin, of El Paso, for first class camp accommodations, according to word just received from the Broadway of America Highway association. Mr. and Mrs. Austin have just completed a 5,500-mile motor tour as far east as Pennsylvania and New York.

"The tourist camp at Big Spring was the best we found on the entire trip," they said. "All along the Broadway we found the camps getting worse and worse. Finally we stopped altogether looking for tourist camps and stayed at hotels. Along the Broadway we found camps equal to or superior to most of the hotels."

"The Broadway of America is now 93 per cent improved from Broadway, New York City, to Broadway, San Diego, according to F. O. Mackey, president of the Broadway. An intensive highway advertising and publicity program is being carried out by the Broadway with a view of attracting more tourists along the southern route."

A. Gorman Hoeftel, field representative of the Broadway, who visited Big Spring recently in the interest of the Broadway, is expected to return soon to confer further with local citizens interested in developing this "highway-high-gas" road.

HOSPITAL NOTES
Audience Denton of Toluca, who has been in Big Spring hospital for the past week undergoing preparatory treatment Friday underwent a major operation.

Everett Tjork of Colorado, underwent a major operation Saturday morning at Big Spring hospital.

Drollery Is Mixed With Fun In Film

Mary Pickford To Be Seen At Queen In 'Kiki'

Bringing to the screen a picture packed with laughter, love interest and droll situations, Mary Pickford's latest United Artists feature, comes to the Queen Theater Monday and Tuesday.

"Kiki" was an international stage success and Miss Pickford has given to the role her own personality in a madcap characterization of the type that first brought her fame. It is a Sam Taylor production with Reginald Denny, himself a comedy drama star, playing the masculine lead, and with a splendid cast including Margaret Livingston, Joseph Cawthon, Fred Walton, Phil Tead, Fred Warren and Edwin Maxwell in support.

Taylor, it will be remembered, directed Miss Pickford in "My Best Girl," "Coquette" and "Taming of the Shrew," the last named having been the only picture in which Mary and Douglas Fairbanks co-starred.

Taylor wrote the screen play as well as directing it. The settings of the story are in modern New York and were created by William Cameron Menzies, supervising art director at the United Artists studios in Hollywood. The background are of a romantic nature and provided a pictorial splendor for the work of Karl Struss, cameraman, who holds the first award from the Motion Picture Academy of Arts and Sciences.

The story is that of a pretty, haughty, scornful girl whose infatuation for a young man causes many ludicrous situations.

"Victor Handall" portrayed by Denny, has been divorced from his wife, "Paulette," because he cannot stand her temperamental outbursts. Paulette uses all her wiles in an effort to win him back, but "Kiki," with a nature even more tempestuous than that of "Paulette" and will not be pried loose.

"Kiki" attempts to make "Handall" love her afford scenes of side-splitting comedy but there is nothing, too, in the seeming hopelessness of her efforts.

Finally "Handall" decides that the divorcing from "Paulette" was a blessing and that, being unable to get rid of the charming rowdy "Kiki," he might just as well give up and admit that he adores her.

Hundreds of players were employed for some of the scenes and two huge stages at United Artists studios were devoted to the numerous settings.

Pythian Sisters In Regular Meet

Mountain View Camp No. 47, Pythian Sisters met in regular session Friday at 8:30 p. m.

During the business hour, Mrs. Felton Smith gave a report of her visit to Grand Temple, which was held in Temple, Texas, recently. The report was very interesting and beneficial to the local lodge.

Mrs. Smith and Mrs. Cate were recipients of gifts from the Temple, Mrs. Smith being presented with a past chair's pin and Mrs. Cate a gift for her infant son.

Mrs. Felton Smith was elected and installed to fill the office of mistress of finance.

Mrs. Wade Clifton, as captain of the "Blues" in a recent contest, announced that all members of the Pythian Sisters and their families would be entertained at the City Park Monday at 8 p. m. with a basket picnic.

SPORT SLANTS

By Alan Gould

The south contributed one of the brightest stars of the 1928 Olympic games in Eddie Hamm, the Arkansas boy who broad-jumped to world fame while rambling around for Georgia Tech and the U.S.A.

Alabama's favorite hurdling son of those days, Weems Haskin, met with a bad break of racing luck that kept him off the American team at a time when he was one of the two or three very best tilters in the country.

For the Olympics of 1932 Baskin indirectly hopes to strike a blow for Dixie in general and Alabama in particular by developing Percy Beard, the former Alabama Poly star, for the 110-meter high hurdles at Los Angeles.

So influential an observer as Lawson Robertson, Olympic head coach, already has picked Beard as one of the three best high hurdling prospects in the country for 1932. Beard, rates Beard with Lee Schmitt of Illinois and Jack Koles, Ohio State's sensational sophomore. The southern boy is 6 feet 4 inches tall and almost seemingly enough to step over the high sticks in full stride. He was a sensation in indoor meets last winter.

WESTS CHANCE The east will be better equipped to meet the next challenge of far western college talent than it was to cope with the whitening rush of Southern California and Stanford on Franklin Field.

We refer to the Paoli-Keeper results, where the other members of the Pacific coast "Big Four," California and Washington, will meet the powerful naval force of Cornell, Columbia and Syracuse among others.

For a number of years the Naval academy alone of the eastern fleet was able to give Washington's great crew much of a sea-going education. The four-mile route down the Hudson from Kron's Island, California, came along with a record-breaking crew in 1924 to row the two single on the crest of an ebb tide, but the situation has undergone rapid alteration since then.

Columbia stood off Washington in 1929 and last year it was 1-2-3 in the east after a long passage. Cornell, Syracuse and M.I.T. crossed the finish line in that order to the disappointment of a lot of frantic boaters and boater's cheering.

POWERFUL BOATBOATS Washington and California have started westward with powerful experienced crews. The Huskies won the coast championship from the Golden Bears on the Oakland Estuary in record time, 14:52-09 for three miles.

This combination has been kept intact for Paoli-Keeper, barring accidents or illness. California, on the other hand, has broken up its variety head and probably will go on the Hudson. With Reg Rhin, powerful sophomore, straggling the shell, instead of Ed Galt, Duncanson, last year's stroke, into the "engine room" at No. 6.

Both coast crews will average under 180 pounds per man, but big enough as "bushy" of college rowers go, but neither so rangy nor bony as the championship Cornell variety, which averages around 184 pounds of power per man.

College note: The Carnegie Foundation's latest Bulletin No. 23, entitled "Current Developments in Agricultural College Sports," will be spread out for scrutiny June 15. Perhaps it won't be quite so juicy as Bulletin No. 22, which a year and a half ago turned up a flock of annoying details, stimulated simultaneous waves of reform and indignation, and applied the "illy-white" label only to about a score of American colleges and universities.

The most significant trend since the Carnegie report's revelations echoed around the collegiate athletic offices has been the move to "departmentalize" sports, with more or less sharp separation from alumni or outside control. Several eastern schools have taken radical steps along this line.

The idea of giving college athletics back to the students, of abolishing gate receipts or placing less emphasis on football have not taken much root since they came in for study by the Carnegie investigators. Nor has there been any less emphasis placed on or ballyhoo developed by the outstanding performances of individual stars.

The University of Kansas has another foreign athletic star this year—Burt Iloga, Hawaiian baseball player.

Big Spring Firemen Take Fourth Place In Annual Contest

Liquor Charge

Charges of possession of intoxicating liquor were filed Saturday afternoon in Justice of the Peace Cecil C. Collins' court against Otis Robinson. College Station Meeting

AUSTIN, June 13.—A meeting of the directors of the Texas division of the Association for Improved Use of Cotton will be held at College Station June 15 to elect active officers and formulate plans for a sustained campaign to use more cotton in Texas.

Waiting

(CONTINUED FROM PAGE 11) There was a $25,000 bond issue for water mains, etc., and when we got ready to install new mains, a lot of paving had to be torn up. Also, we voted a $60,000 bond issue for the water works, and we got very little for that money. We do not blame anyone who happened to be at the head of the city affairs at that time, it was simply short-sightedness on the part of the citizens in not voting enough bonds to make the improvements permanent and to take care of our future needs.

Need Auditorium

If we should go ahead and vote bonds for only the city hall, fire station and jail, it would only be a year or two at the most, before we would see and feel the need of an auditorium. If we put off building same, it would cost us much more than if we built it all at one time. Big Spring is the only town of its size in West Texas that does not have a place in which to hold a gathering of over 500 people. We know that we have the best town, and most prosperous town in this part of the state, and that is why it is hard for us to understand why some people can think that Big Spring is going bankrupt; if we vote these bonds.

Why Wait?

Yes, just let everybody in this country "wait" until we can see over the hill, and then see if we ever get to the hill and over it. The only way we can ever reach the top is to start going up, and not look back. When you get to the top things will not look nearly so dark as down in the valley. Some talk as if we get stung every time we borrow money on long time bond issues, and that no good business man would do it. How many cities would have been built or how many businesses would have been established if it had not been done on borrowed money? People know this fact is true and yet they say "Let's wait and vote a bond issue for the water works."

As for those favoring the bond issue wanting the other fellow to pay for them, some of those favoring the bonds will pay a great deal more than some of those that are loudest to denounce them. We think it is just another attempt to pour water on the proposition and cause votes against, the proposition by prejudice, not by good sound reasoning. We know that most of the men on the Board of City Development are fair-sized tax covers and none of them want the other fellow to pay for these improvements, when they recommended it to the city commission. Now, regarding the construction right at this time. The city has a pay roll of about $500 or $600 per week for labor that the heads of
