MISSING EVANGELIST IS REPORTED FOUND

DETECTIVES SAY WOMAN WAS SEEN AT EDMONTON

Confirmation Lacking
At Late Hour Saturday
Night, There Is Doubt

By United Press.
LOS ANGELES, Calif., June 5.—Amiee Semple McPherson, missing evangelist, has been found in Edmonton, Canada, according to a telegram received here today by Chief of Police James A. Davis.

According to the wire, Mrs. McPherson was positively identified by three operatives of the International Detective Agency. The telegram signed by "Inspector Middleton," international detective, who declared that he knew the evangelist personally, said that "Mrs. McPherson arrived by way of Calgary yesterday in an automobile."

The machine was from Los Angeles and according to a check-up of the license plate belonged to Blanche Potter, of this city. It was followed by another automobile, with license plate said to belong to James H. Gould, of this city. Relatives of both Gould and Mrs. Potter told the United Press that neither were members of Angelus temple, Mrs. McPherson's tabernacle here, and discounted the theory that the evangelist was aided by them in her disappearance.

Mother is Obstinate.
Mrs. Minnie Kennedy, mother of the missing evangelist, refused to believe her daughter had been found. "It is just another publicity stunt and money seeking scheme for the press," said the business manager of the million-dollar Angelus temple, founded by Mrs. McPherson.

"If any one can prove Mrs. McPherson is alive, Angelus temple will pay $25,000 reward offered, regardless of whether or not it is publicly withdrawn," she said.

Mrs. Kennedy has consistently maintained that Mrs. McPherson met death by drowning while bathing at Ocean Park 18 days ago.

NO RECORD IN EDMONTON
OF MISSING WOMAN
Edmonton, Alberta, June 5.—There is no record of Mrs. Amiee Semple McPherson, missing Los Angeles evangelist, according to officers of the Corona hotel here, where she was reported to have been located by a detective agency.

MISTAKEN IDENTITY
IS GENERAL BELIEF
By United Press.
LOS ANGELES, June 5.—Whether Amiee Semple McPherson is dead or alive remained a mystery tonight. Confirmation of telegraphic advices from Edmonton, Alberta, that the noted evangelist had been located there, were awaited in vain by Los Angeles officers. Failure to receive positive information that Mrs. McPherson had arrived in the Canadian city as reported by Inspector Middleton of the Royal Canadian Mounted police, indicated to the police that it was a case of "mistaken identity."

FIRE SWEEPS GRANDSTAND AT FRISCO

By United Press.
SAN FRANCISCO, Calif., June 5.—More than a hundred persons were driven from their homes and damages estimated and hundreds of thousands of dollars were caused by a fire which spread through a large area of the Richmond district to San Francisco this afternoon.

The fire started in the grandstand of the Ewing field, supposedly from a cigarette. The stand and bleachers were wiped out. A general alarm was turned in all the police reserves in the city were rushed to the scenes to suppress the fire fighters. Low water pressure resisted the efforts to check the spread of the flames.

The names of forty persons who have been treated for injuries were listed by first aid station and hospitals.

MINERAL WELLS—Work is now under way for the re-building of the Crazy Well hotel here, which was destroyed by fire. The Crazy Well hotel company has completed its organization and all the financing for the rebuilding of the hotel and pavilion has been arranged.

4 ARE HELD FOR BOMBING LEGATION

By United Press.
MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay, June 5.—The police announced today that they had arrested all persons responsible for the bombing of the American legation here. Four persons are being held.

In raids on the homes of two of the four persons detained, the police found material for making bombs, and also books on infernal machines. The police believe the latest outrages directed against the American buildings in South America were caused by a feeling aroused over the Sacco and Vanzetti cases in Massachusetts.

SENATE FARM BLOC BACKS BROOKHART

By United Press.
WASHINGTON, June 5.—Six members of the senate farm bloc—four of them listed under the republican banner, sent an open letter to Iowa voters tonight, asking that Smith W. Brookhart, ousted insurgent, be chosen as the corn belt republican nominee, in the primary there Monday.

The letter said that the anti-administration candidate should be chosen "so as to convince the country that farmers can no longer be decided by mere gestures from Washington and that their rights cannot be safely trifled with."

By United Press.

The money came from the Federal Reserve bank and was being taken to the plant to meet the payroll, bank officials said.

MAY STRIKE PAY NOT LATER THAN NEXT WEDNESDAY

Drillers Are Busy
North And East Of The Town Of Ranger

With the Hodges heirs well nearing production level, the Hancock well making 175 barrels a day by heads, and more than three million cubic feet of gas, and prospects bright for it becoming a giant, coupled with other activities in the field, including the plans of Howard Heath and J. M. White to bring in another shallow producer in the Mingo area, things are beginning to hum in the Ranger district.

Indications are that the greatest revival in drilling will be conducted in Eastland county since the McCleskey well came in in 1918 and was heard around the world. All eyes are centered on the Hodges heirs tract well, which is down below 3,200-foot level and is due to show something about Monday or Tuesday unless the unforeseen happens. The Hodges heirs tract adjoins the McCleskey well tract and is approximately a quarter to a half mile from it. The log shows similarity in structures penetrated.

Expect Pay Soon
The Texas Pacific Coal and Oil company announced that it is expected to reach pay not later than Wednesday. Should this well come in a producer, another rush is anticipated. This will mean a resumption of drilling in the immediate vicinity of Ranger again.

While the Hodges heirs well is attracting some attention, the Hancock well also is a lodestar for a number of the larger companies. Production already assured, and prospects of a gusher bright, according to some of the wise ones in the game. The Hancock well is in strictly wildcat territory.

The Cheney area also is getting a big play, and the ten square miles of territory included in the shallow district will see numerous derricks arise. Production is obtained at and around the 1,300 foot level. So far as known there has been no duster struck in that territory, with all the wells showing good supplies of gas.

North and East
The territory to the east and north and northeast of Ranger is getting the best play. It is freely predicted that again the harsh grindings of the well wheel, the cough of the gas engine, and the dull thud of the drill again will furnish the music for the weary babe and tired head in the Ranger district.

More than passing interest is being paid the territory adjacent to Mingo, where ten barrel production is found at 473 feet. This makes drilling easy in the area, and it is the purpose of the lease holders to fully develop their holdings. Another well will be started Tuesday.

Other sections of the territory also will be drilled.

The next few days will tell a tale one way or the other about future activities in the Eastland county fields.

In the meantime, Rising Star sector is showing up good, and is due for a big play, while Frankell again will be in the front should the holes now going down penetrate more oil sand.

REVOLUTION BREAKS OUT OVER POLAND

By United Press.
WARSAW, Poland, June 5.—The government today proclaimed a state of siege throughout Posen and Pomorzen.

The newspaper "Kurjerwarski," published an interview with acting Premier Bartel, in which he is quoted as saying, "the proclamation was issued in compliance with the demands of Governor Wachowiak of Posen, who is advised that German Chauvinists in Posen and Pomorzen are plotting to gain a coupe against the Polish state."

The regulations providing for an emergency proclamation include a 9 o'clock night curfew for districts and also authorizes the confiscation of foreign newspapers.

King Of Osage Hills Testifies For Defendant

By United Press.
PAWHUSKA, Okla., June 5.—W. K. Hale, "king of the Osage hills," took the witness stand in defense of Ernest Burkhardt, charged with murdering W. E. Smith. Hale and John Ramsey, his friend, are awaiting trial, also charged with the Smith death.

Burkhardt spent most of the day on the stand in making a general denial of the testimony of the state's witness who implicated him in the state killings.

The state alleges the Smith family was destroyed as part of the plot through which Burkhardt and others would gain the Smith fortune estimated at $2,000,000. Burkhardt and Smith were brothers-in-law.

By United Press.
CORSCANA, Texas, June 5.—State rangers will be on hand when Fred Tilford, negro, goes to trial here Monday, for the slaying of Truett Dukemier, whose bullet-riddled body was found in a creek near Richland, several days ago.

Dukemier's pistol was found in the negro's home by the officers.

CONCESSIONS TO ENGLAND TO BE PROBED

By United Press.
WASHINGTON, June 5.—The senate today adopted the Borah resolution, directing the state and war departments to investigate and report to the senate on concessions acquired by British interests in the Republic of Panama. The resolution was passed without dissent and without a record vote.

The concessions alleged are intended to thwart any great American rubber plantations in Panama, which might interfere with the British world rubber monopoly. The investigation would determine if the concession violate the Monroe Doctrine.

The secretaries of war and state were called upon by the senate through a resolutions by Senate Borah, chairman of the foreign relations committee to reveal any information they have on the British concessions in Panama. These concessions ostensibly for mineral rights, would thwart American rubber growers, there and in some events might endanger the Panama Canal. The state department does not share this eventuality.

The concessions had been investigated by one senator, and he has learned that a British syndicate negotiated more than a year ago to purchase 5,000 acres of land in Panama, some of which borders on the canal property of the United States.

The Panama legislature, Senator Willis said recently ratified the concession which gives the syndicate full ownership of a territory, at the end of ten years.

This information is similar to that of R. V. Marsh, explorer and agent of the rubber interests, who first called the concessions to the attention of the government, but who claims the government indicated that it does not take it seriously.

PRISONERS TELL OF BLACKSNAKE WHIP MAN USED

Wounds Sufficient To Cause Death Says The City Health Officer

By United Press.
HOUSTON, June 5.—Stories of a "reign of terror" in Houston city prison farm, were unfolded at a preliminary hearing of W. J. Hill, guard, charged with beating Wiley Zeigler, city prisoner to death, Friday with a blacksnake whip.

Other prisoners at the farm took the stand and told how at various times, they heard the whip crack and how they dared not lift their eyes, fearing the sting of the bull whip themselves.

Hill, Justice Overstreet, announced, following the hearing was bound over to the grand jury this afternoon. Amount of bail was fixed at $7000 this afternoon.

The grand jury is in session at present and is expected to take early action.

The story of Zeigler's beating and subsequent death was, as told by witnesses, as follows:

Story
Zeigler went out Friday morning to do his usual day's work hoeing crops. In mid-morning Guard Hill told him to "get out his row" which in prison farm parlance means to work harder and faster. Hill then cursed Zeigler and began beating him. The crack of the whip was heard again and again.

Zeigler fell to the ground. Hill had the prisoner taken to the end of the row where the benten man lay in the morning sun. A fellow prisoner, leaving the lash placed his hat over Zeigler's face, to shield it from the blistering rays of the sun. How the witnesses differed as to how long he laid in the open, some saying an hour and a half and some ten minutes.

Witnesses Testify
Five other men who are said to be witnesses to the whipping are Charlie White of La Porte, John Davis of Wichita Falls, Ernest Clauss and Abraham Obay of Houston and Manuel Travnicek.

They told officers he had been whipped for attempting to run away, "probably deserved it," but said other prisoners had been whipped with a bull whip for lesser offenses.

The county health officer stated from the witness stand that the number of cuts and bruises on the body were sufficient to cause death.

Texas Industrial Exposition Will Be Enlarged

By United Press.
DALLAS, June 5.—Plans are being made to make the 1926 exhibit of the Texas industrial exposition bigger and better than ever to keep pace with the past growth of the exposition, according to G. M. Knebel, executive vice president of the Texas State Manufacturers' association.

The Texas industrial exposition is held with the Texas State fair each year.

The manufacturing, mining and power facilities of the state will be featured this year, Knebel said. Although the exhibit is primarily a Texas institution space will be reserved for out-of-Texas labor-saving devices.

Knebel is planning a tour of Texas in the near future to line up exhibitors in order to get them to make their reservations for space early so that there will be no necessity for crowding of exhibits because of last minute appearances.

Government Is After Three Oregon Slayers

WASHINGTON, June 5.—One of the greatest man hunts of history was started tonight for the three De An-tremont brothers, alleged Oregon murderers and bandits, by Rush B. Simmons, chief inspector of the post-office department.

Simmons told the United Press that he had enlisted the aid of federal, state, county and municipal law enforcement agents in a supreme attempt to capture the three young men charged with murdering four railroad employes in a sensational train hold-up, three years ago, more violent than anything since the days of the James Brothers.

While the government hopes, to catch them alive, officers have been warned that they are dangerous men and hold human life of little value. "Shoot to kill," officers have been instructed.

Sanitary Survey Is Now Underway Among Alaskans

FAIRBANKS, Alaska, June 2.—A government expedition to study health and sanitary conditions among Alaska natives in territory seldom if ever visited by white men left here yesterday.

Two trained medical investigators, two trained nurses, a cook, engineer and servant will enter the Yukon via the Tanana river, to be gone at least four months.

According to Dr. H. C. Devighne, the territory to be visited consists of 1,000 square miles on the lower Yukon and its tributaries, inhabited by native Eskimos, Aleuts and Indians. Dr. Desighne is territorial health commissioner.

"What the expedition will find we do not know," Dr. Devighne said. "We hear rumors of epidemics among the natives from time to time and we want to get at the facts. We have planned this expedition for several years. A report will be made to government departments when the survey is over.

A permanent clinic for natives will be set up at Fort Yukon, following the completion of the survey, Dr. Devighne believes.

Shacks On Campus Of University Are To Be Razed Soon

Austin, June 5.—Unshacking the campus of the University of Texas will be done just as rapidly as the erection of new buildings will enable the vacating of these temporary and unsightly structures, it is authoritatively stated. It is regarded as probable that within the next 18 months some of the shacks which now do much to spoil the landscape on the west side of the campus will be removed. It is understood that when the new powerhouse and heating plant is finished, the old powerhouse building will be turned over for class room and office purposes. This building is said to be admirably suited for uses of that kind. Some alterations will be necessary. The building is two-story and of brick construction.

Two Earthquakes Are Reported By Fordham School

NEW ORK, June 5.—Two earthquakes of considerable intensity and estimated at about 1,550 miles from New York were registered today.

The seismograph at the Fordham University observatory registered the first quake occurred at 4:04 and lasted but a few minutes. The second, which was considerably more pronounced, and started at 4:12 and terminated at 4:40.

TAX APPEAL BOARD MEMBERS DISCUSSED

WASHINGTON, June 5.—A sight of over 16 nominations, submitted by President Coolidge for members of the board of tax appeals, occupied the senate for an hour today. Behind closed doors, Senator Couzens argued that at least four of the appointees were former employes of the internal revenue bureau and that their previous work would prejudice them for their new post. None of the nominees were opposed on personal grounds.

Yep, It's Hard to Teach 'Em New Tricks

World's War Gives Motion Pictures Most Of Themes

HOLLYWOOD.—The world war, more than any other theme, is passing into motion picture history. For more than seven years after the conflict ended the movie producers fought shy of war pictures, holding the great military drama was staged on too great a scale and against too large a panorama ever to be adequately handled on the screen.

D. W. Griffith's "Hearts of the World" and Charlie Chaplin's "Shoulder Arms," were about the only war-time screen efforts, aside from newsreel and governmental propaganda films.

Now the war has come into its own as a movie theme and all of the Southern California studios at times this spring have resembled battlefields or training camps.

"The Big Parade," a dramatic spectacle, and "Behind the Front," a comedy film of doughboy life, started the new trend. The business of turning out military films is on now with a rush.

The Lasky company is producing a sequel to "Behind the Front," in which Wallace Beery and Raymond Hatton will be co-starred again. It will be called "We're in the Navy Now," and will have the same comic flavor as the doughboy opus.

The Paramount firm is also about to make a film glorifying the army air service, from John Monk Saunders' story, "Wings." Cecil DeMille has announced plans for "Corporal Kate," a movie of three American nurses in the world war.

Fox plans to film "What Price Glory," the well known stage success, although production has been delayed through difficulty in obtaining marines and marine equipment.

The next big war movie to be released to the public is "The Unknown Soldier," a Renaud Hoffman production. Like "The Big Parade," this picture after previews here has been hailed by the critics as one of the most powerful film productions for the season.

Faster Games Are Wanted In Junior League

NEW YORK, June 1.—Housewives in the Bronx are forced to plan later dinners during the summer than are housewives in Harlem—that is, if you grant that the husbands from those two sections are the ones who patronize, respectively, the ball games played at Yankee Stadium and at the Polo Grounds.

There is no doubt that the Giants play their games on an average of from 15 to 30 minutes more quickly than do the Yanks, and the same holds true for the Yanks, and the same holds true for all of the National League clubs as compared with the teams in the junior circuit.

Probably the reason for the lack of speed in the American League is that the umpires work under different instructions than those handed out by President Heydler in the National League. At any rate the teams are given a longer period to make a change in pitchers and the hurlers themselves are allowed more latitude with the clock.

The club which is the worst offender undoubtedly is Detroit, for the Tigers seldom finish a game in less than two hours. Ty Cobb, the perennial manager, is largely responsible for this. His willingness to argue on every debatable point and his frequent manipulation of pitchers and pinch hitters consume many minutes every game, and the fans seem to resent the dilatory tactics.

The Tigers recently played a four-game series here in which 11 of the games took more than two hours and 15 minutes to complete and one went three hours and seven minutes. In their first 20 games this year the Tigers needed more than two hours in 14 encounters. The Chicago White Sox, probably the speediest team in the American League, used up more than two hours in only six games and two of those were with tie.

From the standpoint of good business procedure, it would seem that the American League magnates would petition Ban Johnson to order his umpires to speed up the games. Even a slugfest can be played in comparatively short time if both clubs are on their toes and are forced to play without unnecessary interruptions.

One of the speediest games the Yanks have played this year was a 13 to 9 affair with Cleveland. The rain of baseballs kept the fans interested, because between each hit the pitchers didn't toss three or four throws to first.

Of course, a winning team is the one that draws the crowd, but it may stand as a truism that the teams at the head of the league usually are the ones which waste the least time in playing their games.

Old Peasant Hated Evolution Lands In Jail

MOSCOW.—The old peasant Ivan Figalencov didn't like being called an orang-outang and also resented having his moonshine liquor taken away from him; and his strenuous method of expressing dissatisfaction in both cases brought him into the clutches of the strong arm of Soviet law.

Trouble started when Ivan's young hopeful banded in from a lecture on evolution at the village club and shouted: "We're all descended from monkeys, so dad must be an orang-outang."

"What's that?" shouted the old peasant, reaching for a handy stick. On being assured that the lecturer had actually uttered these amazing sentiments the old man put on his Sunday shirt and marched down to the club, determined to robe the matter to the bottom. Buttonholing the lecturer, Figalencov burst out: "So we all come from monkeys, eh?"

"Yes," answered the undaunted lecturer.

"Then where do the monkeys come from?" queried Figalencov.

"From nature," faltered the perplexed lecturer.

"Is zat so?" growled the peasant. "And where does nature come from?"

"You're reaching out too far when you ask me that question, brother," replied the lecturer, apparently at the end of his argumentative resources.

"Well, I'll reach for something nearer then," retorted Figalencov, as he landed a right uppercut on the lecturer's jaw.

This episode was brought up when Figalencov with his sons and some of his neighbors had to appear in court on charges of assault and battery, aggravated by interfering with officers in performance of their duty. It seems that the police made a raid on Figalencov's moonshine still; and when they declined the old man's hospitable offer to drink the liquor together a general fracas started in which the police, being considerably in the minority, got the worst of it.

Washington Elm Site Boston Is Marked by Slab

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., June 5.—This city has refused to adopt a "grandchild" of the famed Washington Elm.

An engraved granite slab will mark the site of the historic tree, which was torn down about two years ago as a menace to public safety. The city council has decided to honor the ancient Elm in this fashion instead of supplanting it with one of its descendants.

The "grandchild" was offered for adoption by Mrs. James A. Dorsey of Baltimore. She said many years ago a Baltimore lawyer had obtained seeds from the Washington Elm, taken them home, planted and nursed them until they were ready to be transplanted out-doors.

From one of these little trees, Mrs. Dorsey stated, she obtained a slip, and it was this tree, now three years old, that she wished the city of Cambridge to plant in the place of its "grandfather," the great Elm under which General Washington assumed command of the Continental Army.

Colorado School Athletes Win The Championship

SOLDIERS FIELD, CHICAGO, June 5.—A small but steady band of athletes from Fort Collins, Colo., high school, today won the national track and field championship and by virtue of this victory claimed a distinction never merited before—it was the second straight national title. The youngsters from Fort Collins ran up 18 points in field events held yesterday and added six more points today, making a total of 24 points, enough to capture first honors.

The East High, Columbus, O., carried off second honors, with 17 points and the Senn High School, Chicago, finished in third with 14 points.

Other high point schools were Main Avenue High, San Antonio, Texas, and Vernon, 11 points.

Autos Supplant Camels On Banks Of River Jordan

JERUSALEM, June 5.—No more is it necessary for the American tourist who visits the Holy Land to use the camel with its undulating gait as a means of transportation from one point of historic interest to another. A report issued by the Near East Relief on travel along the Jordan declares that the automobile has now entirely supplanted other means of transport.

"One can now travel anywhere in the Holy Land reclining comfortably on the cushioned seats of first-class American automobiles," says the report. "The cars are of the best type, and are usually operated in caravans. Even across the desert, the balloon tires ride so easily that it is hard to believe how uncomfortable this trip used to be."

The majority of the drivers of the caravan cars are orphan boys trained in the auto and tractor schools conducted by the Near East Relief. The boys, although their average age is less than 20 years, are well grounded in the mechanics of motor transportation and usually have sufficient command of English to act as guides for their passengers.

The regular schedule of automobile Caravan travel between Beirut and Mesopotamia has now brought Bagdad within nine days of London, where it formerly was a 30-day trip.

LARGE EATERS EXPIRE EARLY DOCTORS STATE

CHICAGO, June 5.—Being fat is a more dangerous occupation than that of being a locomotive engineer, and there are more casualties in the elementary canal than in the Panama and all other canals on earth. More people die from over-eating today than died from excessive drink in the westward days before the Volstead act.

Are you carrying a fatal burden of fat? Knowing one's height one can quickly determine. An individual 5 feet in height should weigh 110 pounds and for every inch over 5 feet add 5 1-2 pounds.

Obesity, indirectly, is the most formidable enemy of longevity as it is the greatest predisposing factor in the causation of diabetes, Bright's disease, apoplexy and heart disease; these being the common and dread diseases of adult life and the cause of 80 per cent of the deaths in the United States annually.

Life insurance investigations have definitely shown that weight, especially in relation to age, is a very important factor in influencing the life span. In the young, overweight seems to lessen the mortality, while fat, after 30 years, shortens the span of life in direct proportion to the degree of obesity.

How are we to attain this desirable level? The remedy is a simple one. If, under proper medical supervision, an individual will take less food than is required to carry on the combustion going on in the body, there is no power on earth that can prevent him from losing weight, as he draws upon the excess fat stored away in the tissue for the fuel for necessary combustion, instead of depending upon that supplied by food.

Common Folks Attend Wedding; Smith's Daughter

ALBANY, N. Y., June 5.—A wedding of the people was held here today, when Emily Josephine Smith, the elder daughter of Governor Al Adams Warner, of the New York constabulary.

Probably the most representative throng that ever attended a wedding filled the Cathedral of the Immaculate Conception and crowded the surrounding streets.

Humble people from New York's East Side, who have followed Smith's career for years, were there, so were men and women of wealth and fashion, governors of states, mayors and political leaders.

Bill To Regulate Fortune Telling Before Congress

By CHARLES P. STEWART, NEA Service Writer.

WASHINGTON.—Representative Sol Bloom of New York is ending this session of congress more in the limelight, perhaps, than he expected, as a result of the hullabaloo over the introduction of the name of Coolidge into the committee hearings on Sol's bill to regulate fortune telling in the District of Columbia.

The "presidential spokesman" denied testimony that the Coolidges believe in spiritualism and have seances right in the white house, but that hasn't quieted the row, because the statement was also made that "most senators" are spiritualists, too.

If this is true, the question naturally arises, "How much does spiritualism have to say about the laws we have to live under?" It isn't so very nice to think about being governed by ghosts.

However, "it isn't true," says Sol, with a contemptuous snort. "Here's what happens," he continued: "You can call on one of these fortune tellers and right in the middle of the conversation the fortune teller says, 'Excuse me a minute,' and calls up on a telephone—calls up a confederate, of course—and pretends to discuss an appointment with some senator or representative who wants his fortune told."

"Maybe the darned faker even professes to be talking to the white house."

"It's all to impress the visitor. That's how those stories get started. Bah!"

"I've no quarrel," the congressman went on, "with people who believe live human beings can communicate with the dead. That's a form of religion."

"But when a fortune teller—a medium or any other kind—begins making predictions for the future and advising you how to invest your money or what horse to get on, look out."

"Then again, when people are unhappy or in trouble, they're credulous. The fortune tellers take advantage of them—and, if possible, their last cent."

Judgment Entered In County Road Case; To Appeal

This judgment is in accordance with the jury's verdict of a week ago.

Attorneys for defendants announced that they will appeal and make bond for twice the amount of the judgment.

MAN-EATING LEOPARD FINALLY DESTROYED

ALLAHABAD, June 5.—A man-eating leopard, credited with having disposed of 125 human beings during the past seven years, met its Waterloo, recently in East Garhwal.

British and Indian Shikaris rounded up the beast and riddled it with gun shots. So immune from death had the leopard been previously that it was believed to have supernatural powers by the Garhwalis.

Bullets, traps and poison had no terror for this veritable fiend of the jungle and its name became a by-word throughout the Garhwal country.

*Forty-seven holes only, as Jones picked up here.

Since, on the whole, Jones has performed more remarkably in amateur tournaments during the past five years than Hagen has done in the professional competitions, there are many who will say that Bobby should have a better record than is shown above.

However, the Hagen fans still are cheering over Sir Walter's impressive victory over Jones in the 72-hole match in Florida during the winter. Hagen had the edge all the way and was never threatened.

It is surprising, though, that Bob by, a product of Georgia, has never done particularly well on Florida links. He apparently doesn't like the fairways of the courses in the subtropics, and was off his usual form all winter down there.

Since figures over a period of six years and an out and out result in match play have failed to stop the dispute over Hagen and Jones, it begins to look as though the argument never will be settled.

And it probably never will.

Pacific Coast League Seeks Shorter Series

By United Press.
SAN FRANCISCO, June 2.—Agitation for shorter series has taken a strong foothold in the Pacific Coast baseball league.

Under the plan already widely approved the season would be split into two equal parts, of 14 weeks each. During the first half the teams would play four-game series. Three-game series would be played during the second 14 weeks.

The movement is receiving hearty backing from George A. Putnam, part owner and secretary of the San Francisco Seals; Charley Lockard and "Red" Killefer, owners of the Seattle Indians, and Tom Turner, president of the Portland Beavers.

With Salt Lake City now out of the Coast league the teams are more closely grouped. This would overcome the objection of increased cost of transportation, the sponsors believe.

Fans, just as they tire of too lengthy seasons, tire of seeing the same two teams play seven consecutive games, it is held.

Who Is The King Of Golfers, Jones Or Walter Hagen?

By PAUL W. WHITE
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

NEW YORK—Wherever golfers gather there is always one argument which is good for protracted discussion at the 19th hole—whether Bobby Jones or Walter Hagen is the King of the links.

Other golfing stars have their backers, of course, but Jones and Hagen are far in front in popular favor and their adherents are ready to do verbal battle until one-hot suppers are deplorably tepid in presenting the merits of the two satellites.

Figures which only will serve to spur the debate have been collected by H. B. (Dickey) Martin, writing in the Metropolitan Golfer. He has compiled a list of 10 tournaments in which Hagen and Jones competed and finds that the former is leading the Georgian by five strokes. Following is the list:

Tournament and year Jones Hagen
American open, 1920 299 301
American open, 1921 303 293
British open, 1921 *205 197
American open, 1922 289 291
American open, 1923 296 311
Western open, 1923 291 287
American open, 1924 300 303
American open, 1925 291 293
West Coast open, 1925 309 299
West Coast open, 1926 295 293

Jack Quinn was almost laught out of the American league last year. This season he became the property of the Athletics and was one of the spring sensations. For a time he had the whole of Philadelphia pulling for him, but if he should manage to lose a few consecutively he again would be the target for the boys with ten hammers.

Frankie Frisch is as popular a ball player as is on the payroll of the Giants. But during the recent disastrous western trip of the New Yorks—there were persistent reports that McGraw was displaced far from their usual cordiality when Frisch came back to town. If he had erred badly afield in the face of this indifference, he might have been a fallen idol.

"Lefty" O'Doul, who once tore up the Pacific Coast League, offers another example. When he went to the Cubs, the Chicago papers were sounding the alarm. After a fortnight he was turned back, and it is now understood that the Hollywood Club has asked waivers on him.

Then, too, there is last year's celebrated invalid Babe Ruth, who is enjoying the greatest year in his career. So many swan songs have been sung for him that he must feel somewhat as though he were risen from the dead. But the Babe is the best proof obtainable of the Salvation Army slogan.

Gratitude doesn't figure largely in baseball. One or two fans may remember Art Nehf's one-hit game last year. But none of them peeped when Arthur was sent to the Reds.

Baseball Players Careers Subject To A Fickle Public

By PAUL W. WHITE
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

NEW YORK, June 3.—Baseball players have more ups and downs than athletes in any other sport. A man's job on the diamond is approximately as permanent as a paper mache Rock of Gibraltar.

The fans are always hopping on some manager for releasing a player who later returns to another big league team and becomes a star. The critics forget that when these same stars first were doing their stuff they were the victims of vociferous hoots from all corners of the grandstand.

In less than a year a player who now occupies the pinnacle of ball-dom can be relegated to a bush league without a sigh. And a star who once falls need not give up hope—it's quite possible that he will be able to stage an amazing comeback.

Some examples of how quickly fate can get in its queer quirk might be recited at this point.

Jack Quinn

Bud Houser Star Discus Hurler On The Pacific Coast

By United Press.
CHICAGO, June 3.—With the National Collegiate A. A. games less than a month away, one athlete who will come out of the fan west to defend his laurels is monopolizing much of the sport conversation regarding those who are expected to enter the meet.

He is Bud Houser, the University of Southern California track and field man, and Olympic, national, intercollegiate, and world's champion discus thrower.

They seem to be looking to Bud to better his best mark with the discus—a mark he set a few weeks ago at Palo Alto when he led the Trojan track team against Stanford university on the latter's own field.

On this occasion, Bud wound and hurled his pet discus 158 feet 1 3/4 inches and it would not be surprising if he did better than 160 feet at the games here June 11 and 12.

In connection with the pet discus referred to above, that is exactly what Bud's discus is. It so happens that Bud has carried this same discus for five years and whether he was going to a track and field meet for competition or going home for a vacation, the discus always found a place in his suitcase.

It is with this discus that he has set all his records.

Houser, unlike his chief rivals for fame with the weights, is not a giant in stature. His 133 pounds would look mighty small beside Ralph Ross' 280. Then if Houser was put alongside Glen Hartrant of Stanford, Gus Pope of Washington now competing for the Illinois A. C. here, Ralph Hills of Princeton, Herbert Schwarze of Wisconsin who recently set a new world's indoor mark in the shotput, or "Big" Gerkin of the University of California, he would resemble a schoolboy.

It certainly isn't size that makes Bud the incomparable weight man that he is. Neither is it technic, according to Bud and his coach, Dean Cromwell, for they both agree that he would do himself no good by constant practice.

It seems to be Bud's unexcelled competitive spirit that keeps him up there. He is always best under the competitive strain of a meet, seemingly always depending on one last heave to outdo a rival's mark.

Bud was born down in the backwoods of Missouri, Sept. 25, 1902. Then his family moved to Oxnard, Calif., when Bud was 11 and he went along.

Besides his weight feats, Houser is a skilled hurdler, plays center in basket ball, and is a fairly good baseball catcher.

He will be graduated as a dentist this June and will continue his athletic work with the Hollywood A. C.

"LADY WINDERMERE"
The Lamb Theatre is featuring a most remarkable film today and Monday. It is "Lady Windermere's Fan," the Oscar Wilde play which Ernst Lubitsch has pictured for Warner Bros., with a brilliant cast of stars.

Lubitsch has handled the delicate task of giving the screen all the sparkle that Wilde's famous play has had for drama lovers. The direction of "Lady Windermere's Fan," is even superior to his previous screen success.

Irene Rich, Ronald Colman (by arrangement with Samuel Goldwyn) May McAvoy and Bert Lytell play the leading roles in this dramatic story of a charming woman's numerous indiscretions and magnificent sacrifice for her daughter. To Lubitsch will go the praise of all picture fans for the miracle he has wrought with Irene Rich. Gone is the wistful, long suffering and deserted wife. A gorgeously gowned, sophisticated and strikingly beautiful woman of the world is in her place. Miss Rich's characterization of Mrs. Erlynne is the most stirring of her career. The cast is uniformly excellent, looking every inch the English aristocracy they play and carrying along the story with their natural talent intensified by the direction of Lubitsch.

"Lady Windermere's Fan" is an artistic as well as a dramatic treat, a picture that you must see.

"JOHNSTOWN FLOOD"
DECLARED MIGHTY SCREEN TRIUMPH

"The Johnstown Flood," Fox Films stirring picture story of one of the greatest disasters of the world, which comes to the Lamb Theatre Wednesday is one of the finest things in screen history. It was directed by Irving Cummings, who has scores of successful and entertaining productions to his credit. It has a cast can be catalogued in no other manner than brilliant.

George O'Brien, star of "The Iron Horse," "The Roughneck," "The Dancers," "The Man Who Came Back" and "3 Bad Men," is seen in the leading role.

Florence Gilbert and Janet Gilbert are cast in the principal feminine part trivals. Paul Nicholson and Paul Panzer interpret the menacing influences with Anders Randolph, Max Davidson, Walter Perry, Georgie Harris and Elmo Billings in feature roles.

America's Woman Tennis Champion Road to Recovery

By United Press.
 NEULLY, France, June 5.—Helen Wills, America's woman tennis champion, is doing well after an operation for appendicitis, and if her improvement continues she can leave the hospital in 10 days and play tennis with in one and a half months, is the announcement of Dr. Demartel, Miss Wills' surgeon.

After her first good cry, when she learned her tennis would be interrupted, she recovered her traditional calm. She enjoyed an excellent night's sleep, waking at 8 o'clock this morning.

"When will I be able to return to the court?" was the first question she asked her doctor. Other matters did not seem to interest her.

Despite the optimistic prediction of Dr. Demartel, Miss Wills must miss the tournament at Wimbledon as well as the hard courts at Paris.

English Professionals Decisively Defeat American Golfers

By United Press.
 WENTWORTH CLUB, VIRGINIA WATER, England, June 5.—By the decisive score of 13½ to 1½, the British professional golfers today won the Ryder cup in a match play against an American team.

Five foursome matches were won by the British stars yesterday, and today the visitors annexed eight to 10 single matches, halving one and losing the other.

The only American to score plays were Emmett Frank who halved his match with Earl Whiteome, and Bill Alhorn who defeated Archie Compson, two up.

Certified Milk Saves Lives Of Many Babies

By FITCH C. E. MATTISON, M. D. (Member Gorias Memorial Institute) (Written for United Press)

CHICAGO.—The lives of many thousands of babies are being saved every year through the application of knowledge developed by physicians of the country. In a short period of years the infant death rate has been cut one-half. A large share of the credit for this remarkable saving in human life must be given to the dairymen as well as to the medical profession.

In the production of "Certified Milk" few people realize the rigid sanitary and hygienic requirements that are enforced, so that babies and growing children may have fresh, clean, pure milk of highest quality.

The dairy which produces "Certified Milk" is as clean and sanitary as a hospital. Each cow is thoroughly washed and scrubbed with brush and water, rinsed and dried with clean cloth before being milked. No dirt of any kind is allowed to remain. The barns are immaculately clean. Ceilings and walls are painted a bright, clean white. The concrete floors are scrubbed twice daily.

The milkers are as careful about their persons as are the nurses in a hospital. They wear clean, white suits and caps while milking. A clean suit is worn each day. All pails, bottles and apparatus which come into contact with the milk are thoroughly sterilized by the steam sterilizers at a temperature of 212 degrees for two hours. No chance for disease germs with such treatment.

How It's Done

It takes but a few minutes from the time the milk leaves the cow at a temperature of 96 degrees, until it is cooled to a temperature of 36 degrees, automatically bottled, capped and sealed. This accomplishment is worthy of mention because it is one of the secrets of the freshness and wholesomeness of Certified Milk.

The cows which produce Certified Milk must have an absolutely clean bill of health from the Medical Milk Commission's veterinarian. The whole herd must be tested semi-annually for tuberculosis. Each animal is free from this terrible disease which affects such a great percentage of the dairy cows of the United States. All new cows, before being allowed to enter the Certified Milk herd are quarantined and tested for tuberculosis and other diseases.

Because disease may be spread by those handling the milk, even though the milk itself be pure, every precaution is taken with the workers. These precautions are even more severe than those affecting the cows. All handlers of milk must undergo a thorough medical examination upon employment, and this examination is repeated every thirty days.

Cows and men employed in the dairy are clean and healthy. The health of both is watched constantly and as carefully as that of a champion pugilist in training for a combat. They must not develop disease.

The word "Certified" as applied to milk is registered in United States patent office, the object being to protect it from being degraded by dairymen not under contract with a Milk Commission appointed by a Medical Society.

"Certified Milk" through the efforts of the medical profession, has resulted in the education of the public to the necessity of all milk sold for human consumption being fresh, clean, pure and of normal composition.

The decrease in typhoid fever and in children's disease in summer is a direct result of this work.

Eastland All Set For Clash With Magnolias

The Tiger squad is all pepped up, and ready for the invasion of the Ranger Magnolias this afternoon at Comanche Park. The Tigers have past week's practice the Cats have shown a marked improvement that is going to bring results when they meet the strong Ranger aggregation.

By virtue of Ranger's win over Eastland last Sunday, and Thurbers win over Breckenridge, the Magnolias are tied for first place, while the Tigers are still slumping, but eager to topple Ranger from the high position.

Lamar has shown improvement in his stick work, and several other revelations have caused Manager Andrews to make a shift in the batting order to obtain better results.

Witherspoon, who humbled the Miners several weeks ago, will work on the mound for the Tigers, with Blake Bryant behind the bat. Daniel Baker boy has lots of stuff, and is going to be hard to stop. Browning will probably be Ranger's hurling choice, and Griggs, flashy Mag catcher, will direct Lefty's shoots and curves.

The games will be called promptly at 3 o'clock, and a huge crowd is expected out to see the ancient friendly rivals battle.

Veterinarians Of State to Meet At College Station

Special Correspondence.
 COLLEGE STATION, June 5.—Members of the State Veterinary Medical association of Texas will hold their sixteenth annual meeting at the A. & M. college of Texas during the short course for graduate veterinarians which will be held at the college from June 14 through June 19.

Subjects to be featured at the meeting include municipal milk and meat inspection, tuberculosis eradication, control of rabies and diseases of pet animals. Dr. N. F. Williamson, state veterinarian, will discuss "Safeguards Essential for Protecting the Cattle Business Against the Revivings of the Foot and Mouth Disease."

Officers of the association are W. R. Sanderson, Brownwood, president; U. E. Marney, San Antonio, first vice president; R. R. Childers, Beaumont, second vice president; D. Pearce, Leonard, secretary-treasurer.

The short course for graduate veterinarians is planned to provide opportunities for veterinarians to become more familiar with problems which their particular line of work or kind of practice up to this time has not presented. Some of the newer and more dependable methods of diagnosis will be considered.

Lectures, practice periods, laboratory work and clinics will be offered in poultry diseases, practical microscopy, diseases of small animals, diseases of the reproductive organs, animal breeding, feeds and feeding, medicine and surgery, livestock, sanitation, and milk and meat inspection. Evenings will be devoted to round-table discussions and entertainments including motion pictures of educational and entertaining nature. Nominal charges will be made for food and lodgings during the course.

Elliott, who is one of the game's biggest hurlers (standing 6 feet 4 inches and weighing 242 pounds) is having a great season. He opened the chase with nine straight victories. Mayhap the Dodgers could find use for him now.

Editors Trial Manslaughter Comes Up Soon

By United Press.
 LAS VEGAS, N. M., June 5.—When Carl C. Magee, editor of the State Tribune at Albuquerque, goes on trial here June 14, charged with manslaughter in connection with the death of John B. Lasseter, state highway employe, the dingy little courtroom will be the center of a drama that for three years had centered about the "stormy petrel" of New Mexico journalism.

When Judge Luis Armijo calls the court to order, many of the figures that have passed back and forth in the dramatic scenes of former trials will again be represented in the proceedings.

Judge Armijo, elected in 1924 over Judge Leahy, was district attorney at the time Judge Leahy sent Magee to jail on contempt of court charges, in July, 1924. He did not, however, appear in the cases against Magee.

Judge Leahy having appointed C. J. Roberts and U. O. Askren special prosecutors.

Leahy, always presiding in past trials, will appear this time as a witness. It was Leahy's alleged surprise attack on the editor which resulted in the accidental killing of Lasseter, who attempted to intervene and entered the line of fire.

Sheriff Lorenzo Delgado, who escorted the editor up the little side street to jail in 1924, again will be officer of the court.

R. H. Hanna, former supreme court justice, and veteran of many a Magee legal battle, will be in his accustomed place as chief of counsel. Both Hanna and Fred Wilson, Magee counsel, have fought disbarment proceedings as result of previous trials in Leahy's court while representing the editor. Wilson, junior member of the firm, is now withdrawn from the case, having been appointed last winter as attorney general of the state.

In 1923, Magee was sentenced to a year in jail by Judge Leahy on four contempt of court charges growing out of editorials appearing in the State Tribune. Previously, he had been sentenced to a year in prison and fined $4,000 on criminal libel charge. Governor J. F. Hinkle issued a pardon, characterizing the proceedings as a "blot on the state."

In 1924, Judge Leahy sentenced the editor to three months in jail on three counts, contempt of court charges. It was in this trial that the editor became the object of judicial epithets. Magee spent two days in jail before habeas corpus proceedings placed him in jurisdiction of the supreme court which court upheld the power of the governor to issue a pardon for direct contempt.

The editor was bound to the San Miguel county court on bond of $10,000 furnished by Las Vegas citizens charge of manslaughter. The first charge preferred after the coroner's jury had made its findings was that of murder. The lesser charge was preferred when the district attorney filed his information.

Sentiment Dying Says Tombstone Carver In Ohio

By United Press.
 YOUNGSTOWN, Ohio.—"Sentiment is lagging," declares Frank Triggs, 72, who has just completed 47 years work in this district as a carver of monuments and tombstones. People today, are less sentimental about their loved ones than they used to be, he believes.

"Consequently, my business isn't as good as I would like it," he says. Epitaphs on tombstones seem to have passed out of style, Triggs recalls, and suggests that "maybe folks are more truthful today."

"I don't know of any young chap who wants to be a tombstone maker," he said in speaking of the reluctance the younger generation has towards taking up the profession of carving headstones.

"If you want an extra nice monument to mark your grave, put it up before you die, and you'll be sure it's there."

Fort Worth Eat Up Steer Herd In Close Game

Whoa! The Cats' meow! The Fort Worth Cats romped all over the Bovine bulls in the Steer stadium Saturday and won the second game of the series by knocking the Dallasites for a row of fried tamales.

The roar when the game ended could be heard in Ranger and much money changed hands on Main street when the result was known. Dallas used their new pitcher with the Irish name and he was knocked from the box, and Darrough followed suit.

There was joy in the Fort Worth camp. The team has taken heart and still hope to land that pennant for another year.

Another surprise in Saturday's games was the surprising defeat of New York in the American league, the Cleveland pitchers holding the hard-hitting murderers' row, while they hit up a million sound wallops for 15 runs.

In the National league Cincinnati lost again and their hold on the top of the table is getting slim. Docton turned the trick against the Reds, while St. Louis blanked Chicago to strengthen their climb up the ladder.

Spanish Women Adopting Game Of Bull Fighting

By United Press.
 MADRID, Spain, June 5.—The feminist movement in Spain, in most ways far from militant, has reached the point where women are demanding the right to become bull fighters.

Rumor is current in governmental circles that General Primo do Rivera, Spain's Dictator, who is an ardent lover of bull fighting, is disposed to permit women in the arena.

So far women have not been allowed actively to participate in corridas but it is no secret that a number of fashionable young señoritas have performed on private estates before selected assemblages. On these occasions the amateur feminine bull fighters are said to have conducted themselves with admirable grace and courage.

The greatest opposition to admitting women to the professional ranks is understood to come from the professional male toreros who foresee a threat to their own popularity.

CENSORSHIP AND TRUST MENACE ARE PARAMOUNT PROBLEMS THAT CONFRONT PICTURE SHOW OWNERS

By LINCOLN QUARBERG, United Press Staff Correspondent.

LOS ANGELES, June 5.—Censorship and the "trust menace" were paramount problems confronting more than 1,500 representative showmen gathered here recently for the annual convention of the Motion Picture Theatre Owners of America.

Both topics were wrestled with by the organization, composed primarily of independent exhibitors, at the Milwaukee meeting a year ago. They were merely touched upon then in the course of the deliberations, and now the showmen are prepared to take definite action, it is said, to curb what they regard as the two major evils confronting independent film exhibitors.

Evil Magnified.

Instead of diminishing the "trust evil" has magnified during the past year, the independents contend. They point to a series of big mergers recently in the motion picture industry, and "tie-ups" between major producing companies and theatre chains.

The independent exhibitor is fighting a steadily losing battle, it is claimed, with "trust theatres" controlling virtually all "first-run" pictures, and forcing many of the smaller showhouses out of business.

The division between the independent and affiliated exhibitors is not noted in the battle on censorship. Many of the independent exhibitors, contend, nevertheless, that discrimination is practiced against the smaller producing companies, and that they suffer, as a consequence, from an unfair and drastic censorship.

The filmmen arrived in more than a score of special trains.

Lavish Entertainment.

Lavish entertainment has been arranged for them by the various big producing companies in southern California.

Leading stars and producers have combined to furnish daily and nightly entertainment for the visiting showmen, and the film plants will buzz with gaiety throughout the week.

R. F. Woodhull, of Dover, N. J., president of the national organization, said that every state in the union was represented at the convention.

New York, Ohio, Illinois and other eastern and middle-western states sent special trainloads of delegates.

A replica of the Statue of Liberty in New York harbor, has been installed on the front lawn of the fashionable Ambassador hotel, convention headquarters. It will be illuminated at night, like the original.

Gala Festival.

A gala festival at the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studios, with this plant's stars as hosts and hostesses, has been arranged as an entertainment prelude tonight. Tomorrow night, a similar affair will be staged for the visitors at Universal City.

Innovation.

DeMille night will be Thursday, featured by a banquet in front of the Colonial studio building, and embellished by a gay costume ball on one of the big movie stages.

The Lasky studio plans an innovation on Paramount night, Friday, in the way of a featured "shoot-out" of a gigantic mob scene, with the exhibitor-guests participating as actors.

Warner Bros., leading independent film producers, will wind up the convention Saturday night with a big radio frolic, extending throughout the entire evening, and including special broadcasting by many of the guests.

Sidney Cohen is scheduled to broadcast a message of support to movie fans from the exhibitors' organization as the grand finale. It was believed he would surmount that time the results of the association's fight on the "movie trust."

Vacation Bible Class Closes At Eastland

The Presbyterian church was crowded to the doors with an interested audience gathered Friday night for the program and school exhibit by the children of the Daily Vacation Bible school, which closed its two weeks of existence with flying colors, and happy memories.

Extra seats and benches were required for the crowd. The cool night made it a delightful occasion. The church was spaced with bright bouquets along the walls, and the children were gathered in their departments in the front seats.

The program was announced by Rev. R. L. Hogan, pastor of the Presbyterian church, whilst the associate superintendent of the school, Rev. Frank Singleton of the Methodist church, presented the interesting address and explanatory talk as the exercises progressed.

The beginners and primary classes had musical numbers, directed by Mrs. Fred L. Drago, while an attraction was the 10 small beginners, robed in white, carrying lighted candles, who sang, "Jesus Bids Us Shine."

The feature of the primary number was the recitation of twenty-third psalm, Bible verses and two songs. The Juniors, and Intermediates, had their musical numbers in care of Mrs. Hogan, the Juniors presenting a resume of Bible history, naming books and groups, and the memorized nineteenth psalm; the Intermediates, The Apostles Creed, the Beautitudes, and the Books of the Bible.

Scripture verses were sung to musical selections. Mrs. A. W. Johnston led the Primaries and Juniors in two handsome ecsthetic numbers, while following the program, the parents viewed their children's work, which completely covered the walls of the Sunday school room, each child took their own work home, at dismissal.

Of the 200 enrolled, 90 certificates were issued as follows, to those who had not failed in attendance one day, and had completed with all requirements. Where absent one day, honorable mention was given, where work deserved commendation, an all-star work deserved it.

Beginners—Mary E. DESERT SANDS GIVE UP SECRETS OF SPHINX

By United Press.

CAIRO.—For the first time in 2,200 years the Sphinx is now entirely visible.

The accumulation of sand which since Ptolemaic times has been filling up the depression in which the Sphinx stands and which had buried all but the head, back and shoulders of the Sphinx, has been carried away by an army of workers and this seventh wonder of the world today again stands fully revealed.

No less than 800 boys and girls and a large corps of skilled masons have been employed for months in the excavation and renovation of the Sphinx.

These youngsters worked in gangs each with its own special singer who chanted all day long little meaningless Arabic ditties which the gangs of dark-skinned children took up and chanted themselves as they streamed up and down the sides of the ever-deepening hole from which the immense bulk of the Sphinx slowly emerged as the work progressed. Once again the giant paws have come to light in their entirety and between them has been found still intact the tiny shrine built by Thotmes about 2,000 B. C. This was last examined during some minor excavations in 1817.

The memorial stone to this shrine bears an interesting inscription describing how the Sphinx appeared to the prince in a vision when he had fallen asleep in its shade after a hunting expedition. In his dream the Sphinx told the prince that he would become king, but made him promise to clear his image from the sand in which it had become buried. Subsequently the prince came to the throne as Thotmes IV, and the monument records that in the first year of his reign he fulfilled his dream-promise.

Thotmes IV, also caused all but the head of the Sphinx to be encased in limestone masonry about a foot thick to protect it against the wear of time. This masonry covering is still perfect on the enormous paws and lower parts of the monument. Some of the red pigment with which the monument was covered also remains, and on the breast are traces of the huge statue of the king who originally had the Sphinx produced.

The Sphinx was now uncovered is about 240 feet long from the end of the paws to the crown of the head. In the head there is a hollow about six feet deep and another about two feet deep near the left forehead where attempts have been made to discover treasures that were reputed to have been hidden at some unknown period. The Sphinx faces due east and since he was first cut from virgin rock has greeted the rising sun more than 2,000,000 times. Its Egyptian name is Abu Hol, "the father of fear."

Houston Cotton To Be Instructor Summer School

Special Correspondence.

COLLEGE STATION, June 5.—W. E. Dent, member of the United States Bureau of Economics and a member of the Houston Board of Cotton Examiners, will be an instructor in the annual summer school of cotton which will be conducted at the A. and M. College of Texas for six weeks, beginning on June 7.

Mr. Dent, who is also a representative of the government division of cotton marketing, will assist Prof. J. B. Bagley, head of the department of textile engineering of the college, in conducting the cotton school. The government man has arranged for attendance at the school of the following three licensed warehousemen: W. P. Smith, Phoenix, Ariz.; James M. Tongate, Waco; and Floyd Matthews, McGregor.

The summer school of cotton will be held for six weeks and is open to persons interested in learning the cotton business. Objects of the course are to prepare young men to enter the cotton business, training of cotton growers to market their product intelligently and profitably, assisting buyers to become more familiar with the various grades of cotton, and judging staples.

Two courses will embrace grading and stapling, and exporting, under the direction of capable and experienced instructors. In the grading and stapling course, problems of the street buyers will be emphasized, through typical cotton transaction illustrations. Emphasis in the second course will be placed on problems of the freight on board buyers proper, and the exportation business, preceded by a review of the street buyers' problems.

Expenses of the entire school will be less than $80. This will provide for various fees and room and board for the six weeks.

Some Day You May Need Your Credit--Don't Impair It

Credit of an individual is more valuable than his wealth. A leading banker of a large city says: "I care more for character than I do for collateral."

Some day an opportunity or an emergency may arise when you will need to use your credit to the limit. Upon the many records of how you have kept your word in the past, will depend the value and amount of your credit then.

Be careful of the promises you make—to keep them. A verbal promise is more important than a written agreement, for keeping a verbal promise is a mark of character.

If you neglect small bills; if you are simply careless about paying bills promptly because you know you are "good for them and then some;" if you are deliberately careless about your obligations and assume bills which you know you can't pay upon the merchants' terms, you will find yourself temporarily embarrassed even though you may still be rated good; you are being reported as slow or poor pay.

Don't impair your most valuable asset; increase its value. Clean up the old bills. Pay the others Promptly. Pay your bills promptly — It pays in many ways.

Actress Predicts Disappearance Of Fur Animals

By United Press.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., June 3. Furs as adornment of American women will have disappeared by the end of the present century, Mrs. Minnie Madden Fiske, actress, told the General Federation of Women's Clubs in session here.

Mrs. Fiske seeks the elimination from wild west shows of various "cruel stunts," and the abolition of the steel trap in obtaining furs. Present methods of slaughtering animals should be changed also, she added.

"Of course cruelties which the animal trap inflicts on animals she said, "no woman who has been compelled to watch the struggles of a steel trapped animal would refuse to help abolish an instrument which has no place in civilization."

"Frankly I do not believe a piece of fur will be worn in this world 75 years hence. New and beautiful fabrics will appear to take their places," she said.

Smithsonian-Chrysler Expedition in Africa Hunting Rare Aard-vark

The aard-vark, or earth-hog, one of the rarest of all animals in captivity.

AARD-VARK.

Have you any idea what that is?

It is a most curious kind of an animal which the Smithsonian-Chrysler Expedition in Tanganyika Territory in far away East Africa, will try to bring back to the National Zoological Park in Washington. This expedition which was sent out by the Smithsonian Institution in Washington is after 100 species of live, wild animals including some very rare ones.

The aard-vark looks more like a pig than any other common animal and has long-clawed feet. It usually weighs about 300 pounds and lives in a hole in the ground.

The aard-vark detests daylight and never rambles in the open except at night. That is the reason he is seldom seen.

Arthur Loveridge, of the Museum of Comparative Zoology, a member of the Smithsonian-Chrysler Expedition, was deputy game warden in Tanganyika Territory for four years and tells how he spotted an aard-vark in Tanganyika one bright night and how he set eight natives to dig the creature out. They started at seven in the morning and worked in relays until four in the afternoon. For hours the aard-vark worked faster than the natives. During that time they had excavated a furrow some 20 feet in length and varying in depth from 6 to 10 feet. They finally captured the animal.

The aard-vark lives principally on white ants, and the inability of zoological parks to provide such a diet is one of the reasons why the animal is not to be seen in any American zoo. The National Zoo hopes to have one when the Smithsonian-Chrysler expedition returns.

HERRIN, ILL. SITS OVER VOLCANO READY TO BURST

By United Press.

Beneath the apparent peace that prevails in this little mining town, scene of so many bloody riots, ancient hatreds smoulder that may again, without warning, flare up in open warfare.

A desultory move for peace, seeking a permanent truce, has failed. Again Klansmen and anti-Klansmen walk the streets with furtive backward glances and look twice before they turn a corner. The same shiny blue automatic protrude ominously from pockets and belts.

No one hazards a guess as to what will be the next spark to start the guns blazing again. But all elements in the town are fatalistically resigned to another skirmish such as the last one on April 13 which cost six lives.

Shoots To Kill

There is one significant conclusion which may be drawn from all the bloodsheds in Herrin; Herrin shoots to kill. In six riots the toll is 34 dead, and no injured. The 34 were marked for death. If Klansmen, they were marked until such a time as open warfare might break out; if anti-Klansmen they were singled out until chance should give an opportunity for general fighting.

Instead of making eventual peace possible, each riot only adds to the possibility of future bloodshed on a larger scale. The relatives of each slain man swear vengeance against the faction responsible for his death. Blood hatreds, with the promise of future killings, are fomented each time the guns bark out.

By many who have followed the strife closely but have played little or no part in it, prohibition is blamed for the difficulty. This, they say, gave rise to the formation of the Ku Klux Klan, a group who believed that the prohibition law could and should be enforced in Williamson county, and who, moreover, took upon themselves responsibility for its enforcement. Added to this number were those attracted to the Klan by religious feeling.

Klan Influence

Influence of the Klan has fluctuated. At its organization it was all powerful. Then its power waned and anti-Klan officers were elected. At the last election, a week after the rioting of April 13, the Klan again went into power.

There are many men who walk the streets of Herrin now, members of both factions, who know that the seal of death has been put upon them. Their enemies wait only an excuse for a new outbreak.

What the outcome of it all will be no one dares to guess. The presence of nearly 1,000 idle miners, turned off because the mines are closed for the summer, adds to the danger. Many intimate that the end will come only when ancient grudges have settled all grudges—until not

Senate Claims Committee Is One Of Busiest

By PAUL R. MALLON

(United Press Staff Correspondent) WASHINGTON.—The Senate Claims Committee is one of the busiest and perhaps the most historic committee in congress, judged by the number of bills presented to it during a session and the age of some of the measures still pending.

More than 800 claims against the government have reached the senate claims committee already this session and many of them will remain there pigeon-holed, and some to be taken out year after year in futile efforts to have them passed by congress.

Nothing is more pathetic, according to Harry Straight, clerk of the committee for the last quarter century, than to see the claimants haunting the halls of congress year after year in the vain hope that their petitions will be acted upon.

The claims grow out of collisions of government automobiles, mail trucks, improper assessment of taxes, lost treasury certificates and even destruction of property from forced landings of government mail planes.

The latest claims still pending in congress are known as the French Spoils and they date back to 1797 (eq.) They have been before congress at one session or another for more than 100 years but have never been acted upon. Repeated decisions of the supreme court have held them to be valid. These claims amount to $3,248,292.47 at the last accounting, and although only the ancestors of the original claimants are still alive they are brought up each session for consideration.

At the present time the bill providing for payment of the French spoils is last on the list of preferred measures arranged by the Republican steering committee and there is every reason to believe it will be tossed overboard at the last minute in the interests of early adjournment.

The largest claim before the committee this session was for $22,575,389.14 instituted by Professor William H. H. Hart, a negro who for many years conducted a government authorized negro school in Virginia, known as the Junior Republic. This claim still is pending.

The smallest claim was for $4.80 by J. M. Holladay, Marion, S. C. This claim has been approved by the house but is pending in the senate. The cost to the government of preparing the papers in the case has amounted to more than $100. It is reported that a certain congressman offered to pay Holladay the $4.80 but he reused on the grounds that he wanted the United States to pay its just obligation. Holladay bid for some government property at an auction in Marion, S. C., on March 25, 1919 and although he lost the bid, through some error the check went to the government. Now he wants his $4.80 back.

But Herrin is somewhat hardened, somewhat indifferent. The new riot may come tomorrow, it may come next month, or next year. But Herrin knows that it will come again.

VERA REYNOLDS and RALPH LEWIS in 'THE MILLION DOLLAR HANDICAP' Released by PRODUCERS DISTRIBUTING CORP.

VERA REYNOLDS IS SEEN AS JOCKEY IN RACING PICTURE

Vera Reynolds, horsewoman de luxe, has added another accomplishment to her long list of achievements when, at the risk of her life during the filming of "The Million Dollar Handicap," she rode one of the fastest mounts in California for the race track scenes in the production.

Cameras were placed in high speed autos, and the race started. Round the track they went, neck and neck, until a shot was fired for the 'wreck' to be staged—jockeys surged toward

Miss Reynolds and her horse—and crash through the fence went horse and rider.

No injury was sustained by Miss Reynolds and when she was advised that another "take" was necessary—did she ask for a double? No.

Edmund Burns appears opposite Miss Reynolds in this smashing comedy drama of the race track and those who follow racing as a pastime. Ralph Lewis, Ward Crane, Tom Wilson, Rosa Gore and a score of jockeys augment the cast. It comes to the Lamb Theatre next Tuesday. Scott Sidney directed the production.

Open Eastland Chautauqua With Gathering Monday

Tickets for the chautauqua, which will be in Eastland, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, June 15, 16, and 17th, will soon be placed on sale, according to the committee having the sale of tickets in charge.

The attractions being offered this season are unusually good, it is stated, and the prices of admission have been put down to within the reach of all, the season tickets for adults being $1.00, and those for children, 50 cents.

The Eastland Parent-Teachers' Association is pushing the sale of tickets, hoping to have enough money left after the expenses of the chautauqua are paid to pay off some obligations incurred sometimes back.

103-Year-Old Mother Still Waits For Son

By United Press.

DE SOTO, Wis., June 5.—Passage of a life-time has not dimmed the hope of Mrs. Julia C. Coon, 103-year-old Minnesota pioneer, that her son, George, reported killed by Indians while on a journey across the plains from the Black Hills, will soon return to his home here.

The son, a grown man, was supposed to have been killed or captured, tortured and scalped while on his way back home from a hunting trip into the Black Hills. But hope remains firm in Mrs. Coon's breast because no authentic word of George's death has ever come from the prairies.

Chautauqua Coming Again Next Year Director States

The Horner-Rodpath Chautauqua will visit Ranger again next year, according to H. H. Kennedy, vice-president of the organization who visited Ranger, Saturday and left for Oklahoma late last night.

Ranger business men have been asked to guarantee the company the same sum next year as this year and early Saturday afternoon the amount required was nearly attained.

Mr. Kennedy expressed to the citizens of Ranger his appreciation for the splendid manner in which the company had been received during their visit to the town, and promised that next year an even better show will be on the road.

Ticket selling next year will take place earlier, he said, thus giving the company a better opportunity to make good.

is strong developed among the waifs. Several of them attacked the leader and beat him so savagely that they broke one or two of his ribs. But he reserved and gradually some of the waifs came to take his side. Finally the workshop, named as it is by former thieves and vagabonds, became one of the model institutions of the city.

IS JUDAS ISCARIOT IN HEAVEN; A MOOTED QUESTION AMONG THE CLERGY OF THE COUNTRY

By United Press.

NEW YORK, June 5. — Is Judas Iscariot in Heaven?

A number of leading American ministers have agreed with Rudyard Kipling, eminent English author, that he is. One, Dr. John R. Straton, fiery Baptist fundamentalist, emphatically disagrees and expresses the opinion that the most notorious of all traitors has not been forgiven.

In an article entitled "The Gate" appearing the June number of McCall's Magazine, Kipling described heaven in fanciful terms of the overgrown governmental departments of war time. The rush of the dead to The Gate had required temporary and emergency measures. And assisting St. Peter at The Gate were not only the great saints of church history but the red headed Judas.

The presence of Judas in heaven has caused the author's fantasy to become a subject of interested discussion in church circles both here and in England with church spokesmen of various denominations, expressing their views on the extent to which man's sins may be forgiven.

Noteworthy among the various comment on Kipling's theory were:

Dr. Newell Dwight Hillis

Dr. Newell Dwight Hillis, of the Plymouth Church, Brooklyn:

"Should the time ever come when any doer of evil turns right about face, revolts the Arctics of evil and marches toward the Tropics of goodness and love, the future holds hope that can never be described in colors too rich. For God is kinder than the kindest, better than the best, full of pity and forgiveness quite beyond anything that man's intellect can describe or his imagination conceive."

Dr. Samuel Trexler, president of the Lutheran Synod of New York and New England:

Lutheran's Views

"When Kipling approaches these problems he does so only in the universal yearning which have ever breathed forth from the human heart. The answer to these longings is in Christ who reveals the mercy of God to be even wider than Kipling has pictured it—more than we are able to ask or thank. The logical and essential condition is that man accepts the hand that is offered to him. This was the true of Judas and it is true today."

Monsignor Richard Bary-Dovle, president Catholic Near East Relief:

Catholic's Opinion

"We do not know what passes between God and the soul at the moment of the particular judgment, but we do know that God's mercy is infinite, something greater than we can understand or attempt to measure. We must not, however, presume on God's eternal mercy and live without avoiding evil things."

"Dante, the immortal Italian, placed Judas in the lowest hell. Kipling, the sane and kind hearted Englishman, places him in heaven. The mystery of his present abode is hidden with God."

John Haynes Holmes, of the Community Church, New York:

"There was no limit to the spirit of forgiveness as Jesus understood and practiced it. He Himself laid down the principle, in answer to the injury of one of his disciples, that we should forgive the sinner, not seven times, but seventy times seven. It is not conceivable that Jesus would have excluded from His prayer even the traitor Judas."

Philadelphia

Rev. Joseph Fort Newton, of the Memorial Church of St. Paul, Philadelphia:

"The suggestion of an all-merciful and ultimately all-forgiving God in the Kipling story is what I have held an preached for more than twenty years. It is, indeed, the basis and capstone of all my faith and hope. Nor is it new in Christianity. It is the heart of the Gospel, as I understand it, which is deeper by far than what we've imagined, much less realized."

Rev. John R. Straton, of the Calvary Baptist Church, New York City:

"Kipling's story, if we are to take it seriously, is an expression of the superficial optimism and the amiable vanity of the present age. Modernism today—alike in the ethical, economic and religious fields—is striving to reduce evil and good to a common denominator, and moral values have been weakened down to the vanishing point. There was a time when black was black and white was white, but the easy-going optimism of the times has changed all this. We have reached a condition of almost complete compromise in the field of ethics. We no longer have black or white."

"Of course, if we are going to abandon our faith in the Bible as a real revelation from the Living God, and our faith in the Divine Christ as the only One who can tell us authoritatively concerning the conditions of the hereafter, and are going, in the spirit of modernism, faintly to throw the ten commandments on the junk-heap, then we can applaud Kipling's rosy, but false hope that workers of iniquity will finally 'get away with it,' by some hocus-pocus,—such as Kipling pictures in the amazing St. Peter of 'The Gate.'"

BOYS HOTEL OPENED BY CANDIAN CHURCH

EDMONTON, Alberta.—The Church of England has opened a boys' hotel here, the first of its kind in Canada. The first lot of boys who will be cared for at this institution will arrive this month under the auspices of the church.

first picture, called "The Bad Boy." Sentiment promoted Colleen Moore to install herself in the little old dressing room. Forced to vacate her beautiful bungalow at the United Studios until the new home of First National Studios is completed in Burbank, Colleen went to the old Griffith studios.

She was offered a luxurious bungalow. She preferred, instead, the dusty and abandoned shack that nine years ago she regarded as a virtual palace.

Between scenes, the little actress, reminiscent, entertained her friends. "It just makes me appreciate so much all the good things that have happened to me," she said. "I never dreamed, nine years ago, I would ever be so famous or make so much money."

"I don't believe in discouraging any young girl with talent to shy from the movies. I believe there's a place in pictures for every girl with the stuff—who is not afraid of a few hard bumps and is willing to work." Colleen estimated that she has made approximately 80 pictures since she donned the grease-paint.

Ross Hodges Family Returns Home From Mexia To Live Here

Dr. Ross Hodges and family have returned to Ranger after an absence of about five years during which time they have lived in Mexia. Dr. Hodges, who is a brother of Mayor Hodges, was raised here but when the boom receded in Ranger and began in Mexia, he and his family moved to Mexia, however, they had never sold their home in Ranger, and now they will occupy this home at 915 Cherry street, as soon as they have made some necessary improvements.

Dr. Hodges is a graduate veterinarian, having his D. V. S. degree and will enter into the practice of veterinary science here. Ranger people are indeed glad to have this splendid family in their midst once more.

Claims $4000 Back Pay When Officers' Commission Found

Colonel Robert D. Gordon, well known Eastland county oil operator, has been an officer of the United States army for the past two years and did not know it.

Just before Colonel Gordon went to California two years ago, his mail was lost and when he closed his office the furniture was sold. He returned to Eastland a few days ago and recovered all his furniture and while going through the desks which still held his papers, found the missing mail which contained a letter from the War Department and his army commission papers signed by President Coolidge.

Colonel Gordon wired his acceptance of the commission and will report to Sam Houston for duty soon. He will also claim $4,000 back pay that has accrued to his account during the years that has elapsed.

PROMINENT OIL MEN TO VISIT EASTLAND

A group of Eastern oil men are now on a tour of New Mexico and Western Texas oil fields, according to information received in Eastland Saturday morning. It is not just what has brought these parties to Texas, but is doubtless the increasing activities in oil development in that section. Whether the trip will include Eastland county towns could not be learned.

Kangaroo Court In Federal Jail Treats All Alike

COLUMBUS.—A Kangaroo court with all the dignity and decorum of higher courts of justice in the land, is in full swing and motion in the Delaware county federal jail. The prisoners have their own rules, fines, and penalties, and represent another phase of self-government in this country.

When a new prisoner is ensconced in the jail, "court" immediately convenes and the man is "fined" $2 for "breaking into jail." If he can pay, the money goes into a general fund. If he is "financially embarrassed," Wayne Moore, the "judge" orders him to work scrubbing floors or washing dishes.

Fines are imposed for indulging in profanity; for leaving a "ring" in the bathtub; for spitting on the floor; for making a noise after 11 o'clock; for "rubbering" when a fellow prisoner has visitors, and kindred other infractions.

Grasshopper Pest Prevalent States Eastland Agent

Extremely favorable crop conditions in Eastland county, and that the rains of the past few days had done little damage, was announced Saturday by R. H. Bush, county agent, at Eastland.

Rain may have done slight damage to ripe crops, he said, but on the whole conditions were favorable for a big season. Wheat, oats, and barley, were exceptionally fine and standing up well, while grain sorghum was a little late but standing up well.

Discussing the cotton situation, Mr. Bush said that cotton was also late but was standing up fine and promised well for a big crop.

Grasshoppers are prevalent in the west and northwest portions of the county. Farmers are fighting the pest with poison, and at present it is hoped that only slight damage has been done.

Senate Doorman Deplores Passing Of The Old Times

WASHINGTON, June 5.—The senate is very much different from the old days, according to D. S. Corser, gallery doorman who has been a senate employe for more than forty years.

The old timers, Corser says, were more formal, more aggressive, less talkative and, on the whole, were "hard drinkers."

Modern senators have abandoned the former style dictates which seemed to require each senator to appear in a Prince Albert and two gallon hat. Business suits, now are generously sprinkled through the chamber, among which a few senators cutaways to which a few senators still cling.

Heflin, democrat, Alabama, who wears white vests all the year around already this season has inaugurated summer clothes with a thin tan suit.

Corser recalls with a sort of reverence the "great fights" of the old days. He remembers when the fiery Engles, Representative of Kansas, charged in the senate that Dan Vorhees, Indiana democrat, was a member of the Knights of the Circles, a southern organization of Civil War origin. Serious trouble was averted when Vorhees was led from the chamber by his colleagues, Corser says.

"The senate today is more business-like, there are not so many fights," says Corser.
The aged doorman believes, however, that there was less talking and more action in the old days.
"The senators wouldn't debate a ball for three or four days as they do now," he points out. "In former times there was more of a tendency to accept the measure as reported by the committee, and to vote on it without extended debate."
Drinking "among the senators once was quite general, according to Corser."
"Many used to tank up pretty well before making a speech," he says. "They drank hard liquor in the old days."

Picnics and Dances To Take Place Of Commencements

And where do we go from here?
Now that commencement is over and the last sheepskin is framed, now that the annual Chautauqua is a thing of the past and the last entertainer has pocketed his pay and moved on to new pastures.

Now that the clubs have thrown away their year-books and recessed for the summer, where do we go socially?
Doubtless fun lovers will find an answer in picnics, swimming parties, and al fresco affairs of different kinds and some hostesses will disregard to summer weather and give a party now and then, however, were it not for one or two card club parties and the Elks dance on Tuesday night, the social calendar for this week would be a blank.

Artie Collins orchestra, appearing here Tuesday night at the Elks club, are peppy entertainers—they have a habit of drawing a crowd to Thurber—and no doubt, if it is music that is the magnet, they will draw the same large crowds to Ranger Tuesday night.

SENIOR CLASS HAS PARTY

At the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Reynolds, on Ranger Heights, Wednesday night, the members of the senior class were delightfully entertained by Mr. and Mrs. Reynolds and Miss Fannie Lois Cox. This lovely home was decorated in purple and white, the class colors. Games were enjoyed on the spacious veranda until a late hour, when guests were invited into the dining room, where a large punch bowl filled with luscious punch adorned the table. The table was gay in its decorations of purple and white. All-day suckers in the two toned colors were given as favors. A delightful event was a mock wedding ceremony uniting in marriage Miss Imogene Seidenburg of Abilene and Doy Lawson, with Jack Sanderford playing the part of the "parson." No sooner were they married than they decide that they wanted a divorce, which was granted on the grounds of desertion, and both were free again. The long dining room table, at which were seated the club members and their guests, Mrs. Skillens, the charming mother of Mrs. Phillips at one end of its length and Mrs. Walter Burden, toastmistress and retiring president at the other end, was laid in an Italian cut work cloth. A RECEPTION HONORS MRS. ROWLEY

A beautiful informal reception was given by Mrs. Burton Stewart, at her palatial home in Strawn, Friday afternoon in honor of Mrs. Oma Link Rowley, who leaves soon to join Dr. Rowley in their new home in Amarillo. The Stewart home, which is located in the restricted Stewart addition of Strawn is ideally planned for an affair of this kind and on Friday afternoon was doubly beautiful in its decorations of hundreds of garden flowers from the hostess' own flower garden, consisting of lilies, sweet peas, nasturtiums, larkspur and many other flowers.

Mrs. Stewart greeted incoming guests and presented them to Mrs. Rowley and after registering in the guest book, the guests moved on to the dining room, where they were served punch, from a punch bowl rising from a mound of ferns and sweetpeas. An informal introduction to visitors was enjoyed in the large living room.

Mrs. Rowley was reared in Strawn, where now live her father and mother, and has been active in every activity that has been for the good of the community. She is a voice, expression and piano teacher of note, as well as an adept in art decoration work and one of her voice pupils is now singing in grand opera. A large number of friends of Mrs.

IN REGARD TO SUMMER CLOTHES AND WRAPS

By HEDDA HOYT
(Written for the United Press)

New York, June 3.—Capes and Spanish shawls are by far the smartest evening wraps this season. Coat wraps of evening variety are rarely seen in fashionable shops. Chiffon capes are perhaps Madame's first preference, with colorful Spanish shawls coming second on her list.
Never had there been more beautiful chiffon wraps; some matching the frock to form the ensemble effect and others being in contrasting colors. The capes may be plain affairs of one layer of fabric or may be several layers of contrasting or shaded chiffons.

One striking model is made of five ruffles of blue chiffon, the top tier being the darkest and each succeeding tier slightly lighter in coloring. Similar to this is a six-tiered cape of accordion pleated chiffon which has to top tier of pale flesh color while each succeeding tier deepens in color until a deep wine shade finishes the hemline. White capes of slender lines scalloped hems and on long scarf ends are very effective with the white evening gown.

While pinks and greens are the favored colors for summer wraps, there are many vari-colored combinations and ombre forming the long cape is of a graduating or contrasting shade. Often the collars of chiffon capes are formed of crushed flowers such as roses or violets. In other instances the wide, crushed scarf with long ends acts as a collar. Fur is seldom combined with chiffon this season.

A fine chiffon velvet cape printed in batik designs are shown in the shops. One black model has huge gold flowers about the full hem line and the garment is lined in gold satin. Some capes of silk crepe are trimmed from neck to hem in fringe about two inches wide. These are very effective. The fringe matches the cape foundation on such models.

"VANISHING AMERICAN" STORY OF DISAPPEARING INDIAN

"The forced retreat into the desert wastes, marked by a trail of blood, is one of the major transgressions of the white man against the red man."

These words of Zane Grey, the novelist, who wrote "The Vanishing American," tell the crux of the story of the Indians which Paramount has made into an epic picture, due at the Capitol on Monday.

The bitter, courageous, determined but hopeless stand of the Indians against the white enemies, their retreat from the green fields and well watered country they had called their home for centuries, into the barren desert is a powerful episode in "The Vanishing American."

The story was filmed in the heart of these very same wastes, on the present Navajo reservation, 165 miles from a railroad.
The tale is told in the sincere, direct, dramatic manner that characterizes all of Zane Grey's works. It is not a tragedy but it does not gloss over the impositions and transgressions of the white man against the red.
The company which remained on the Navajo reservation approximately four months, included Richard Dix, who plays the role of the Indian hero, Lois Wilson, the heroine, No. H. Beery, Malcolm McGregor and scores of others. The whites sent to Arizona were more than 500. Then thousands of Indians in the picture. George B. Stein directed. The adaptation of Grey's novel to the screen was prepared by Lucien Hubbard. Ethel Doherty wrote the screen play.

Athletics Harmful To Most Women Is General Belief

By PAUL W. WHITE
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

NEW YORK.—Women have taken to athletics too swiftly, and in many cases to their detriment, in the opinion of the women's division of the National Amateur Athletic Federation.

While medical authorities have not as yet completed statistics on the value of harm of women's athletics, preliminary investigations have revealed that the strain of seeking team victories has been far too severe for most young women players.

Miss Lillian Schoedler, executive secretary of the women's division, told the convention of the Federation recently that the fault with girls' athletics thus far had been the preponderance of men coaches.

"Men have been trained with but one idea—to win," she complained. "Hence when they take charge of young women and begin to build up athletic teams they concentrate on victory."

"This has resulted, as it inevitably would, in the development of the 'star' system, and according to modern ideas of physical culture this is detrimental not only to the rest of the players but to the stars themselves."

Miss Schoedler, seconded by Mrs. Herbert Hoover, the chairman, attacked the idea of girls' football and basketball teams as conducive to overstrain. Other faults which have been manifested, she said, was the tendency to play under men's rules and to be exploited by school, municipal organizations, churches, etc.

It was charged that one instructor in a mid-western college had been told she would lose her position if the girls' hockey team had a poor season.

The ideal set up by the convention is that of athletics for all but abandonment of intercollegiate competition. Steps already have been made in this direction. Bernard and Teachers College, branches of Columbia University, have thrown over their annual basketball match for the mythical university championship.

"The health of prospective mothers is more important than athletic triumphs," said several physical instructors, and there should be no dissenting voice.

HEREFORD—At a luncheon recently held by the local Chamber of Commerce, Mayor D. S. Ireland urged Hereford to send a large delegation to the West Texas Chamber of Commerce convention in Amarillo, June 21-22-23. Committees were immediately appointed to look after the transportation, the decorations and stunts for the parade.

Stockholm Plans Special Theatre, School Children

By United Press.
STOCKHOLM.—A special theatre for school children, where only the best plays will be presented by a stock company, is being organized in Stockholm as an offset to the influence of the more commercial forms of entertainment.

At the outset only matinees will be given at the Osear theatre in Stockholm. Under the leadership of their teachers the pupils of the Stockholm schools, public as well as private will form an organization, the membership fee in which will entitle each member to attend at a very low cost a certain number of performances. Classical plays, high class comedies, and recitals by capable artists will make up the program. The idea is to train discriminating audiences, rather than amateur performers.

Trade Conditions Good In Ranger, Says Housewright

Trade conditions are good in Ranger, according to W. W. Housewright, vice president of the Citizens State and chairman of the Ranger Trade Extension Committee, Saturday.

Discussing the fruits of the trade trips, Mr. Housewright said that merchants did not realize how much good the trips were to them, or they would all go. He stated that not a day passed but what he did not see some farmer of a community that had been visited during the various tours.

The object of the tours is to bring the farmer in closer touch with business men, and to make the hand of fellowship more tight, that the men in the trade territory would be yet a little closer to the men on the farm.
Four trade trips per month have been made by the city men, and three more communities have yet to be visited before the whole round is planned is completed.

Mr. Housewright said a great deal of the success of the trips must be attributed to the artists and musicians that willingly gave their time and service to the venture.

Arrangements are now being made to complete all the outstanding trips this month he said.

Child's First Year Is The Hardest In Its Existence

By Viola Russell Anderson, M. D.
U. S. Children's Bureau
(Written for the United Press)

WASHINGTON.—For little children, as for married couples, the first year is the hardest!

About one-sixth of the babies occurring among children under one year are from gastric and intestinal disorders. The greatest mortality from these causes usually occurs during hot weather.

Most children, however, are born with healthy bodies, and if cared for properly will safely pass this dangerous period. The great cause of the summer death rate among infants is the ignorance of those to whom the care of children is entrusted, particularly in regard to food. Parents usually can bring their children through hot weather if they will but use proper precaution in care and feeding.

The cardinal rules for mothers during this period are:
Nurse your baby. The child which is fed exclusively on mother's milk has by far the best chance to survive and grow.

If the baby must be weaned before autumn, wean him before the hot months.

If necessary, but only on the advice of a competent physician, give the baby cow's milk, clean milk from a clean herd, modified according to the physician's formula. The milk should be boiled for three minutes for normal babies.

All water given the baby, both in his milk or as a separate drink should be boiled. Certified milk is best and well worth the additional cost because of the extra safety for the baby. The doctor should see the baby at least once a month so that the formula may be changed to meet the growing child's needs.

Be careful not to over-feed the baby. Give plenty of boiled water to drink.

Ramblin' Round' In Ranger

The strife between employer and employee is eternal. One burly truck driver for a local oil company who has been driving trucks over this field since the discovery well way back yonder, called in during the rain storm Friday afternoon and told his employer to send some out to pull him out of a mud hole.

"What's the matter, are you stuck?" employer asked.

"Naw, this sand has blinded me and the hot wind has parched my throat and I'm dying for water," he retorted.

He got pulled out — after the storm.

Wonder what happens when a dentist has to go to a chiropractor whose teeth he has been working on.

"Smilin' Through" brought many a tear to the sentimental when presented Friday night at the Chautauque. One lady looked at two young girls to her left who were giving vent to their tears said, "You silly things, you are crying?" And moving her glasses up a notch she diverted the course of a tear that had started on its downward course across her cheek.

One thing we like about Sunday morning is that we know that it will be six days until we will have to hunt all over town for a parking place Saturday night.

One fellow in order to go to the Lamb theatre last night had to park his car two blocks the other side of his home. And that big block in front of the Gholson is so appealing to the motorists eye.

I would be the umpire if that Lion's game is played in Juarez. Look how many empty bottles would be handy. And not emptied of American soda pop either.

Stolen Buick Can Easily Be Identified

It is always best to use all the safeguards built into your automobile to prevent its theft, but in the event some clever crook does steal it, there is satisfaction in the knowledge that it will be very hard to disguise the car enough to prevent its identification as your property, according to Jack Sivalls of Sivalls Motor Company.

"Insurance companies have endorsed the Buick system of identifying cars as one of the best used by any manufacturer," continues Sivalls. "This system consists of eight numbers, located at various places on the car and all cross-indexed with the serial number on the frame, which is the key to the entire system. The numbering is so arranged that it is only necessary to find one or two of the original numbers to get a complete history of the car. Several of the numbers are very hard to locate unless one is informed as to where they may be found, and one in particular is placed so that a thief would have to take the car apart to find it."

"While it is true that automobile numbers cannot be altered without leaving some evidence of tampering to the eye of the expert, any more than United States currency can be perfectly counterfeited, still it is possible to make changes enough to fool the average persons. For this reason the Buick system of identification not only complicates matter for auto thieves by complicating the numbering system, but also offers a widespread and effective net in which to catch the thief who steals a Buick and to recover the stolen car.

No matter where in the United States a Buick is stolen, word is immediately flashed to the factory at Flint from whence it is relayed back to every branch and distributor in the country. These in turn rebroadcast the bulletin to all the dealers and authorized service stations in their territory. In a very short time every member of the Buick organization is on the lookout for the car.

"The thief stands little chance of driving into a Buick service station with his loot and driving out again undetected, for every employe there is looking for the car which he drives."

"In most cases a theft is reported to the branch or distributor in whose territory it occurs at the same time that word is flashed to the factory, in order to waste as little time as possible in getting the word to the neighborhood in which the stolen car is likely to be found."

"This system of reporting stolen cars, in conjunction with Buick's almost infallible numbering system, has recovered many cars for the owners. But it must be remembered that no numbering system is absolutely unalterable."

They Don't Drink In Russia At Peasant Wedding

MOSCOW.—A wedding isn't a wedding, in the opinion of the Russian peasant, unless it is accompanied by a huge party in the course of which all the guests become thoroughly intoxicated. The favorite drinks at peasant wedding are samogon, a fiery fluid that roughly corresponds to American moonshine whiskey, and braga, a kind of hard cider.

The enterprising authorities in a township of Perm Province recently submitted statistics, showing the amount of liquor consumed at peasant weddings.

The average number of guests at a poor peasant's wedding was given as fifteen; and these fifteen put under their belts one hundred and twenty bottles of samogon and four hundred bottles of braga, at a cost to the host of about forty-five dollars.

The figures for the average middle class peasant wedding were: 23 guests, 360 bottles of samogon and 600 bottles of braga. This feast cost about a hundred dollars. The typical rich peasant family laid out about a hundred and eighty dollars on a wedding party which involved thirty-five guests and the guzzling of four hundred and eighty bottles of samogon and eight hundred bottles of cider.

The total figures for marriage parties and booze in this district over a period of five months were: 7,790 guests; 106,800 bottles of camogon; and 195,800 bottles of braga consumed; total cost $34,000. This last figure exceeds by about five thousand dollars the total amount of the agricultural tax which the district paid the government.

Birth Control Barred In Italy By Mussolini

(United Press Staff Correspondent) ROME, June 5.—The Fascist government, on Mussolini's personal initiative, has decided to place its veto on birth control propaganda in Italy.

Premier Mussolini in a recent speech, boasted of the prolific qualities of the Italian people. "We are prolific, and prolific we intend to remain," he said.

To render practical the Premier's intentions in this respect, a commission of medical, legal and sociological experts has been nominated by Minister of the Interior Federzoni, who presided the first meeting.

The task of the commission, as defined by the originating motion is "to devise and propose administrative and repressive means against the numerous dangers deriving from pseudo-scientific and emphyic neo-Malthusian propaganda."

The well known gynecologist, Professor Pestalozza, one of the members of the commission, has given his views on the subject.

The professor stated that neo-Malthusian practices were until recently little known in Italy and appeared to have been introduced, at any rate among the working classes, by returned emigrants from France where the influx of Italian laborers during the last three or four years has been very extensive.

Equip Chevrolet Chassis With Library Body

A Chevrolet chassis, fitted with a special 'library' body accommodating hundreds of books neatly arranged on shelves, is entering its sixth year of service with the Evanston, Ill., public library, bringing literature to suburbs during the summer months when the school branch libraries are closed.

The visits of the 'circulating branch' are eagerly awaited by hundreds of children and adults in scores of communities near Evanston, according to Miss Ida F. Wright, librarian of Evanston, and is one of the most popular extension services ever inaugurated by the institution. Patrons wait on the streets for the arrival of the car, forming in orderly queues, to make their selection of books from the open shelves of the car. Withdrawal cards are stamped by one of the young assigned to drive the car and act as librarians en route, and the library then proceeds to its next destination.

For ten weeks during the summer months the Chevrolet is used in this suburban distribution until the school branches open for the winter. It is then returned to headquarters to serve as a utility car for the main library. Evanston is the home of Vice-President Dawes and the location of Northwestern University.

The Chevrolet has given exceptional mechanical service, library officials say, and it has never been found necessary to supplement it with an extra car. Other communities are reported to be considering adoption of similar moving libraries.

You'll Thrill in its Power

your wife will love the luxurious quality of this Studebaker Sedan

This Standard Six Sedan, Unit-Built —the most powerful Sedan of its size and weight, at a One-Price price . . . $1295 f. o. b. factory

Studebaker's lowest-priced Sedan — but all quality

YOU may not often want all the power that is stored away in this smart Studebaker Standard Six Sedan. But just get your foot on the accelerator when you want a genuine thrill. It shoots through traffic with all the snap and vigor of much higher priced cars. It carries a reserve of smooth eager power that makes hills and level stretches look alike.

According to the rating of the Society of Automotive Engineers, the Standard Six is the world's most powerful car of its size and weight. Twenty-eight sedans have less rated horsepower and they sell for $100 to $535 more.

Its design, body finish, upholstery and equipment present a richness appropriate to its remarkable performance. Fastidious women—the keenest judges of quality—are its greatest admirers. That's because the industry knows no higher standards than those maintained where Studebaker cars are built.

One-Price value

The quality-car power and luxury in this fine Sedan at $1295 are due to the savings made possible by One-Price manufacture. But for the enormous Studebaker facilities that make these savings possible, its price would be as high as its quality.

Studebaker builds all its own bodies, all engines, all clutches, gear sets, springs, differentials, steering gears, brakes, axles, gray-iron castings and drop forgings. Only Studebaker in the fine-car field enjoys such complete manufacturing facilities.

These facilities enable Studebaker to manufacture quality cars on a One-Price basis—eliminating outside profits. The savings thus effected are passed on to Studebaker owners in the form of higher quality and lower prices.

Unit-Built construction

Studebaker facilities result, too, in cars designed, engineered and built as units. The hundreds of parts in a Studebaker functioning as a smooth-working unit, resulting in scores of thousands of miles of excess transportation, greater riding comfort and higher resale value.

Always kept up-to-date

Direct manufacturing control enables Studebaker to keep cars constantly up-to-date. We add improvements regardless of the calendar—we do not save them up for spectacular annual announcements which make cars artificially obsolete.

THE fine Studebaker Standard Six Sedan, illustrated, is a luxurious four-door enclosed car. It is upholstered in genuine wool cloth. Carpets are wool. Windows are real plate glass.

The spark is automatically advanced and retarded by the speed of the engine. The spark lever is thus made obsolete and is replaced by the safety lighting control on the steering wheel.

The equipment includes: gasoline gauge, air cleaner and gas and oil filters, rear-vision mirror, stop light, dome light, automatic windshield cleaner, co-incident lock to steering gear and ignition, controlled by same key operating door and spare-tire locks.

But the most important superiorities of this Sedan cannot be seen. They are concealed within the framework of the body and in the chassis.

Body pillars, for instance, are of northern white ash, cross-members of hard maple. We pay a premium for steels of extra toughness.

Run the quiet L-head engine—the most powerful in any car of its size and weight, according to the rating of the Society of Automotive Engineers. Test this car's performance on the road. Note the power, the splendid riding comfort; then realize that you can buy it out of income for the lowest price Studebaker ever placed on a Sedan, at time-payment rates as low as any known to the motor world.

More Forceful Advertising Is Need For Autos

Comparing the automobile advertising manager's job today to that of the passenger agent on a railroad, the advertising managers of the national automobile chamber of commerce, meeting at the Hotel Statler, Detroit, last week, devoted themselves to a study of present-day advertisements with a view to adopting methods and copy appeals for the future.

"Cars are going to be increasingly advertised in relation to the needs of the public for travel," said Alfred Reaves, general manager of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce, addressing the meeting. "By that I mean that the service which the automobile renders will be pointed out more forcefully. That is why the railroad passenger agent works. He has enthusiasm for the appearance and comfort of his train, and quite properly talks about that, but particularly he talks about the convenience and service of his road. I am repeating here simply the consensus of opinion of advertising men as I understand it. The advertising of the idea of two cars for the family, for instance, is a case in point. The father of the family needs his automobile in business, and the other members of the family, especially in the suburban homes, need an automobile for their errands. Advertising copy more and more will point out the many uses of motor transportation."

Edward S. Jordan, president at the meeting, Walter K. Towers and C. E. T. Scharps discussed export advertising. Frederick Dickinson dealt with problems of research. The gathering was in charge of the advertising committee of the automobile chamber, composed of Mr. Jordan, chairman; Mr. Dickinson (Hupp), Mr. Towers (Fairey), A. Brown (Batterton (Buick)), W. A. James (Hudson), and John C. Long, secretary.

New Passport Regulations Are A Bit Confusing

EL PASO, June 2.—New passport regulations governing individual communications between Juarez and El Paso entered the second day of existence here today. Displacing the card bearing the identity of the bearer in former years the new rule calls for a letter carrying the picture of the bearer, together with name and a physician's certificate attesting the healthfulness of the owner. Mystification was present at the city hall in several instances as applicants sought passport privileges under the new regulations. Sam Johnson, negro, queried the clerk as to whether it would be necessary to have a "passport pitcher for mah baby?"

"Is she a baby in arms?" the clerk asked. Sah shifted his feet and transferred his hat from hand to hand. "Well, sometimes," he grinned. "What do you mean sometimes?" rasped the clerk. "Well, I holds her in mah arms when she's in town, but she's out of town just now," Sam blurted out. "How old is she?" patiently asked the clerk. "Twenty-six—same as I is," Sam explained. He was instructed to secure a "pitcher" of his "baby" if he wanted to have her company across the international bridge. A white woman complained that the bridge officials refused to allow her to cross without her husband despite her assurance that she "was boss in the family and her husband admitted it."

Winter Wheat Will Make A Bumper Yield

WASHINGTON, June 5.—The late spring has made the outlook for the principal crops uncertain, with the exception of winter wheat, which will yield a bumper crop $150,000,000 bushels greater than last year, the agriculture department announces. The wheat crop which will be harvested in the next six weeks will be about 549,000,000 bushels, it is thought. The season is late everywhere except on the Pacific Coast. The late spring, however, does not necessarily mean an unproductive season, the department said. Dry weather was said to be still a serious handicap in the Southeast, the Northern wheat belt and parts of the Northwest. It has been too wet, however, in the Southwest. Meadows and farm pastures are generally backward. Corn and cotton crops are finally in the ground, the corn having generally good stands in the Central States. Cotton was said to be looking considerably spotted.

Ohio Hunters Out After 2 Ferocious Alaskan Bears

SEATTLE, June 5.—The city zoo in Youngstown, O., will have two of the largest and most ferocious bears in captivity if the bear hunt of T. B. Bakody and H. C. Linn is successful. These two hunters left here for Kodiak Island, Alaska, intending trap and bring back two of the famous species of bruins. The bears will be shipped to Youngstown via Seattle in the fall, it is planned. In the Ohio city the bears will be housed in a specially constructed cement run containing an ice chamber for summer use, Bakody said.

German Stenos Eschew Men In Shirt Sleeves

By LUDWIG POPPER (United Press Staff Correspondent)

BERLIN.—Introduction of the venerable American hot-weather custom of wearing shirt-sleeves in an office has had a legal aftermath in Germany. It must be realized that shirt-sleeved men are not tolerated in German offices at which women are employed. Courtless is considered akin to nudity. Although the local court prohibited the publication of the names of the principals in this lawsuit, the facts themselves are eloquent: During the recent, premature heat-wave in Berlin a young business man arrived at his office, puffing and moping his brow and, desperately seeking to evade the sweltering heat, took off his coat. His secretary entered the office, saw her boss in shirt-sleeves, shrieked and rushed from the room, never to return. The next day she filed suit against her employer, whom she charged with behaving in a manner calculated to offend the sensibilities of a young lady. The alleged offense comprised appearance without a coat. The judge solemnly deliberated and acquitted the defendant. Thereupon the young lady arose, indignantly, and declared: "I deeply regret the low, depraved moral standards of this court. You are incapable of comprehending the honor and dignity of a lady." Instead of having a warrant issued for contempt of court, the judge smiled as the plaintiff stalked from the courtroom.

Modern Whalers Use Airplanes In Search of Prey
By United Press.
VICTORIA, B. C.—"There she blows." It's the same old cry that used to be heard from the crows nest and the forecastle head of the sailing ships of old. But now the cry is drowned by the roar of powerful airplane engines, and the glad news of the whalers' is signalled from an air instead of being belloyed back to the wheel-house by some husky seaman's lungs. That is the way the whaling will be done in the Bering sea this summer. Captain George L. Marquand, manager of a whaling company here, has chartered an airplane for each whaling venture. Planes have been used with great success off Newfoundland in spotting seals on ice packs, but this is the first time that whales will be hunted from the air, so far as is known here. Rose Harbor and Naden Harbor will be the bases for operations of the one set of planes. The familiar spots of the ocean mammals will be visible from much farther away to the pilot of an aiship than they would be to someone standing watch on the deck or in the rigging of some ship.

Short Measure In Gas Costs Autoists Money
WASHINGTON.—Motorists of the country contribute at least $25,000 a day to the "short measure" robbers at gasoline filling stations. It was stated recently before the nineteenth national conference on weights and measures, in session at the bureau of standards. At least 50 large cities of the United States are known to be with out protection from "careless" dealers who average approximately 2 per cent shortage on their customers. In Columbus, Ohio, a day's inspection by M. A. Bridge, sealer of weights in that city, showed $550 was taken from the motorists' pocket-books by short measure, he told the convention. The maximum shortage found by Bridge was one and two-third quarts in a gallon at a single station. Nine prosecutions were brought as a result of this day's work by one inspector. He figured 200,000 gallons of gasoline a year were thus being diverted from customers. The conference attention to various practices affecting the motorists. In some cases the dealers cheat themselves by their faulty equipment, but in far too many cases it is found the automobile driver is the victim of these "accidents." State and local legislation designed to curb the most widespread of these practices of deception which rob the public of millions of dollars annually is being considered based upon the best experience of states most benefited by adequate supervision. The south and the southwest have suffered the most from the traffic, the east, and midwest and Pacific coast regions having cleared up many of the old forms of short measure muleting.

Americans Now Spend Much Time Dodging Autos

Latest figures show that American pedestrians are now dodging 20,051,276 automobiles all off styles and dispositions.

The quota for each car is six pedestrians, running, walking or lying down.

What we need is a good set of traffic rules like the following for persons who insist on crossing streets in spite of all friendly warnings in the newspapers:

Rules for Pedestrians

Rule 1—All persons desiring to engage in the regular pursuit of crossing streets must take out a license and leave a statement showing name of their favorite hospital. This permit will be revoked after holder has been knocked down and run over three times, unless he gets a license entitling him to additional accidents.

Rule 2.—Pedestrians who start across the street in the middle of the block are allowed three downs. If they can't make the morgue at the end of the third down, they then have the right to take a gun and shoot themselves.

Rule 3.—In being knocked down by an eastbound car, pedestrian must make a left turn. If driver fails to shout, "Look out there," after he has run over a pedestrian the latter is liable to fine and arrest and may, at the discretion of the court, have his name misspelled in the telephone directory.

Rule 4.—In crossing a street slow down to a run. The driver's score does not count unless both shoulder blades of the pedestrian touch the pavement.

Rule 5.—Pedestrians who find themselves unable to get flattened out in any other way have the right to try crossing a street diagonally. Every man must stand up for his right to be knocked down.—Harry Daniel in Thrift Magazine.

Mosquito Car On The Streets Another Year

President, Greer College of Automotive Engineering, Chicago, Ill.

Next year will see the "mosquito" car on the streets.

At present five motor car manufacturers are experimenting with it and at least three of these manufacturers will be in production early in 1927.

At the New York and Chicago automobile shows you will undoubtedly see several samples, for the motor industry has taken seriously to the idea of a small, short wheelbase, narrow-tread motor car.

Returning from France, Harold Wills, president of the Wills-Sainte Claire Company, brought with him one of Europe's best "Mosquito" cars—a small Renault. When he had paid the practically custom-built price, freight, duty and transportation charges from Paris to Detroit, the "toy" motor car had cost him nearly $1,800.

But a similar car—on a good production basis—can be built here for less than $350.

A factory in Europe builds 100 of this type daily. They have a 100-inch wheelbase and a forty-eight inch tread. The car's lines are straight and blunt, with very little beauty.

It has a two-bearing crankshaft, and one of the smallest transmissions ever put into a motor car. It has mechanical four-wheel brakes and balloon tires.

Such a car built here would make the American manufacturer a handsome profit. And the consumer would gain by economical operation, ease of handling, ease of parking, relief from traffic congestion and a low cost of operation.

automobile in a newspaper article, and as a result received hundreds of "kidding" letters. I wonder what the hundreds who wrote these letters will think when they see my "mosquito" brain child on the streets?

And I make further predictions now. The next two years will see the most revolutionary changes known in the history of the automobile industry. The oversize, overweight motor car cannot survive even in the limited quantities in which the higher-priced automobiles are now produced.

The whole industry recognizes the coming of the light, and popular-priced car.

The "mosquito" car will be on the streets in 1927.

Auto Racers Use Chrysler Cars for Personal Use

Chrysler cars are the personal cars of many notables of the automobile racing world. Numbered among these are Ralph De Palma, Frank Elliott, Bora L. Corum, Phil Shafer, Art Klein, Bennett Hill, Leon Duray, Pete Kreis, Riley Brett, Ralph Hepburn, Ira Vail, and many others.

All these boys have contributed to the illustrious history of the international speed classic held at the Indianapolis Motor speedway, the fourteenth of which was run this year on Monday, May 31.

Val Haresnap, member of the contest board of the A. A. A., is also a Chrysler owner.

Asked why this is so, the "boys" gave many good reasons, practically all of which are summed up in the words of one of them, who said:

"The Chrysler factory is the most modern manufacturing establishment I have ever visited. Everything is done with the very latest type of machinery. Practically everything that goes into a Chrysler car is made in the Chrysler factories, with a degree of accuracy that was truly amazing to me."

Plan To Study Traffic To Avoid Auto Accidents

By United Press. DALLAS, June 5.—Plans have been made and agreed to by numerous organization officials here and make a study of traffic conditions with the view of eliminating accidents.

The work will be carried on under the general supervision of the Dallas Automobile club. It follows on a suggestion made recently by Mayor Louis Blaylock of Dallas.

Many suggestions have already come in to the committee in charge of the survey and a set of rules will be drawn up and published soon.

They will embrace the impounding of automobiles, elimination of parking in the business district, a bracket law, age limitation for drivers, and removal of street car tracks on Main street.

TUCKER WELL TO BE DRILLED BELOW 3,000 FEET

The Tucker well that is being drilled by McLester Oil Company of Ranger, is down nearly 3,000 feet, according to latest reports, and the 3,000,000 feet of gas now coming from the well will be shut off in order that the well might be carried down to a lower depth it was stated by Ranger officials last night.

The McLester firm also is drilling on the Moats farm three quarters of a mile north of the Tucker well, and if these two wells come in, the extension of the Chaney pool might be increased to any length, it was said.

In Brown county the same firm is drilling six wells, all of which are expected to reach production within a short time and many other extensions of the Cross Cut field is being planned, according to scouts who are watching developments.

Upward Climb Of Civilization Brought the Auto

The upward climb of civilization has been upon a stairway, the steps of which have been inventions and discoveries. Fire was the first great step, then came the stone age, the bronze and the steel ages, then the era of the steam engine. Today we are in the flower of the age of the automobile, a definite step in the scale of civilization.

These are the reflections of Charles F. Kettering, president of the General Motors Research Corporation and a scientist of world note, as broadcast over WBMB, the Stewart-Warner radio station, Chicago.

In a quarter of a century the horseless carriage has risen from a street oddity, banned in some municipalities because it frightened horses, to the second industry in the nation, where every man, woman and child in the United States has a seat in some automobile, Mr. Kettering said.

Second only in importance to the automobile industry are the industries subsisting on it, the rubber, gasoline, oil, paint and varnish, fabric and

Auto National Asset Declares An Executive

America is a motorized nation. A hundred million people think in terms of automobile transportation. Nearly 20 million vehicles furnish this transportation.

More than three million workers, directly or indirectly employed, billions of dollars invested, and still growing—such, briefly, is the story of this twenty-five-year-old giant of the automobile industry.

According to Colin Campbell, vice president Durant Motors, Inc., "The automobile has multiplied the working or marketing radius and largely increased the earning capacity of the salesman, the physician, the farmer, the business man and the artisan."

"It has relieved city congestion and added hundreds of millions of dollars to suburban real estate values by taking people out of the city into the country. It has made possible the consolsteel business, all more or less dependent on this gigantic factor in the commercial life of the country.

idation of small country schools into larger and better schools and thus raised the standard of education in rural districts.

"It has provided the additional distributive facilities essential to the country's industrial and commercial growth.

"It has created a $34-million-dollar annual export business. As a basic transportation unit, the automobile has been a vital force, improving the efficiency and increasing the production capacity of every interest it has touched.

"Coincident with the growth of the automotive industry has been the nation's growth in resources and buying power.

"During the period of expansion of the automotive industry savings bank deposits have nearly doubled; individual bank deposits have more than tripled, building and loan association assets have tripled, and life insurance in force has increased two and one-half times.

"To suddenly deprive the country of motor-transportation and return to the horse-drawn vehicle would cause industrial stagnation of such magnitude as to paralyze business."

Give New Auto Plenty of Oil To Insure Service

"When the owner of a new car drives away from his dealer's service station he has been fully instructed about the care of the motor," said E. R. Maher of Leveille-Maher Motor Company, "and the most important rule given him by the service manager is 'drain the oil often, and drive slowly for the first 1,000 or 1,500 miles.'"

"Usually the owner keeps this thought in mind for a time, and the stiff new motor has the very best of care, plenty of fresh oil and is never put over the road faster than twenty-five miles an hour. But the urge to step on the gas soon gets the upper hand of the average driver, and after the engine is 'worn in' the service manager's advice is forgotten and the owner starts right to 'wear it out.'

"There is very little reason for a good motor to wear out, providing the oiling system is kept clean and new oil is put in at regular intervals. Automotive engineers and accessory experts have constantly worked to create a fool-proof oiling system, or device, that would automatically protect the motor against the forgetful owner's carelessness, and the efficiency of the Purolator in this respect has been definitely demonstrated. By a process of filtration the Purolator takes out and keeps out all dirt, sand, carbon and other abrasive matter and reduces the wear on cylinder walls."

SWEETWATER—Contract for the sale of the $160,000 issue for a municipal city hall auditorium and fire station bonds has been entered into by the city commission.

WICHITA FALLS—Final arrangements for the construction of a 16-inch gas main from the Shamrock field to Wichita Falls have been completed. This contract involves an expenditure of $4,000.00 and calls for the construction of 175 miles of line from the Wheeler county gas fields to Wichita, furnishing gas to cities en route.

ROSWELL, N. M.—Work has been started making up the list of those going to Amarillo for the convention of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce. The delegation will leave Roswell June 20 and remain in Amarillo the twenty-first and twenty-second, returning the night of the twenty-third.

Interest Shown In Open Cars Is Claim of Dealers

The last year has been a marked revival of interest in open motor cars selling above $1,000.

This was evidenced by the great increase in conspicuous features of the national automobile shows. Also, in the innovations in open car bodies such as the Studebaker with its sturdy upper structure and roller curtains which make it a closed or an open car, at will.

Only a year ago Motor Age, a leading automobile trade journal, called attention to the fact that, whereas all the industry was devoting much time to improving closed car bodies, practically no improvement had been made in a decade in open car bodies until the Studebaker innovation came to light.

It is significant, declares R. N. Newnham, Studebaker dealer, that Studebaker sales for 1925 comprised approximately 50 per cent of all open cars in the Studebaker price class. This is due to the double convenience of the Studebaker body, providing the airiness of an open car or the protection of a closed car in a half a minute, and to the safety of this body.

"While efforts have been made to produce folding tops of such nature as to provide, when in place, the comfort of a closed body, the cumbersome nature of the folding top cannot be disguised and it appears that the Studebaker type of open car body will have a clear field for the coming year."

Improvements In Packing Cars For Export Planned

At a meeting of the export traffic managers of automobile companies, members of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce at New York recently, it was decided to better organize the handling and shipping of automobiles to foreign ports.

Regular meetings of this group will be held at the headquarters of the chamber, 366 Madison avenue. The object is to gather data and present to the steamship companies a common viewpoint on matters of general interest to automobile exporters and the steamship companies.

The conference, jointly sponsored by the traffic and export committees of the chamber, will extend to foreign trade the principles under which the immense traffic of automobiles on railroads is now supervised through monthly meetings of factory traffic managers.

The recent meeting resulted in the appointment of a rate committee and a committee on the handling and stowage of automobile cargo. The rate committee will immediately interest itself in the ocean rates to the United Kingdom, Far East and River Plate ports.

Factories represented at the meeting include General Motor, Dodge, White, International Harvester, Ford, Garford, Marmon, Packard and Studebaker.

J. S. Marvin, George F. Bauer, and John V. Lawrence of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce also participated.

The first thing to do for a bad cold is to look around and see if you can find a handkerchief.

The Torque Tube is a sturdy backbone for BUICK quality

It holds the rear axle firmly and staunchly in true alignment, regardless of road inequalities.

Twist and wear on the drive shaft and axle are eradicated. Two universal joints are unnecessary.

It would be possible, because Buick has the Torque Tube Drive, to drive a Buick from New York to San Francisco with all four springs broken.

The Torque Tube also seals the drive shaft from the dirt and wear of the road. Look at the strength of the Buick chassis and make a comparison with competitive motor cars, before you buy your next transportation. You can see Buick's superiority with the naked eye.

NEIGHBORS' WIVES

BEGIN HERE TODAY
John and Fay Milburn, to whom a baby girl has just been born, buy a home of their own when the advertising agency, in which John is a partner and copy writer, lands an important contract.
Previous chapters told how John, while Fay was in the hospital, met Nell Orme, at a party and was attracted by her beauty and puzzled to hear from Pat Forbes that Nell was having trouble with her husband. Forbes, who has a wife and three children, hints to John that he is dissatisfied with his own marriage.

Dr. Dick Menefee, who is John's best friend, gets married to Margaret Wayne, and Clara Wayne, Margaret's younger sister, runs away and marries Clifton Lane, whom John cordially dislikes.

Working late one evening, John encounters Eleanor Mason, an acquaintance, on his way to dinner, and invites her to come along. Fay learns about it through Mrs. Henry Blodgett, a neighbor, who had seen John and Eleanor together, and there is a quarrel.
Christmas Eve arrives and John and Fay decorate a little tree for Judith. Both are lonely at the thought of spending Christmas away from their people.

for a minute or two and then turned her head away and grabbed John's hair.
"Well, can you beat that!" he exclaimed. He moved up closer to the tree and held Judith up to it. She reached out a tiny hand and got hold of a piece of tinsel. There was an amorous rattling of fragile ornaments and John quickly unclasped the strong little fingers.
"Of course," he scolded her, "you'd like to get your hands on it and smash things up. Why can't you look at it and be satisfied?"
Judith answered him by kicking violently and scowring.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XVIII
John took hold of her hand and squeezed it. "Yes," he asked, "I think I know how you feel," said Fay. "John, do you feel the same way I do—as if you haven't a friend in the world?"
"That's just the way I feel, honey," he answered. "I wonder why it is that Christmas always makes me so lonesome."
"It makes me homesick, John."
"I guess," he said, staring into the fire, "we're all little children inside. We want the old spirit of Christmas, the carefree, happy spirit of childhood days, and Santa Claus." Fay snuggled up closer to him. "It would be nicer if we lived a little closer to our folks. But never mind, John, we have each other, and we have Judith."
"I guess that's plenty, isn't it?" he said, patting her hand.

The next morning they were awake bright and early with Judith, and they hurried downstairs with the baby to let her brink in the wonders of the beautiful little tree.
But if Judith was impressed, she gave little outward sign of it. To her there were many other wonderful things in the world besides the Christmas trees. John's watch chain, for instance, and Fay's rings, and tin little pieces of lint that occasionally gathered on the rug, and specks of dirt. All these things were something to speculate on and to investigate.
She looked unblinkingly at the tree

Laughingly, Clara moved over to him and pressed cool lips to his forehead.
"Who?" asked Fay.
"You'd never guess—Eleanor Mason."
Fay shot John a swift look, but he saw it coming and stared interestedly at his glass.
"Was she—had she been drinking too?" Fay asked.
"What a useless question—in connection with Eleanor Mason," observed Clara Lane. "Why not ask whether a fish swims?"
"Being a lawyer himself," Dick went on to explain, "Paul got off with a fine and managed to keep the thing out of the papers."
"Poor old Paul," said John, shaking his head. "Always getting his foot in it." He raised his glass and drained it. "Oh, well," he murmured softly, "these who dance have to pay the piper."

After they had gone, Fay, gazing wistfully, at them out of the window, said, "It's pretty nice to live in the same town with your parents and not to be tied down with a baby when you want to go somewhere."
"Pretty soft," agreed John. "Well, they'll be having babies themselves pretty soon."
"Yes," said Fay, rather hotly, "and letting their parents take care of them when they want to do something."
She got to her feet and left the room in a huff. John could hear her in the kitchen, preparing dinner.
He joined her. "Help you any?" he asked, anxious to restore her good humor. But she paid no attention to his question. Instead, she said, "I suppose you bought Eleanor Mason a drink when you ate with her that evening."
"Fay!" he said sharply, and eyed her reproachfully.
She said nothing, and he continued to gaze at her. Contritely, she moved over to him and kissed him on the forehead. "Tie up the turkey for me," she ordered.

After dinner, which was far from being the gala event they had planned, they took Judith out in her carriage and walked up and down the quiet little street for an hour or more.
Coming up the walk to the house, they were hailed by a voice from a large sedan that was drawing up to a stop.
"It's the Vaughans," said Fay. "Tell them to come in."
"Don't," he greeted the man at the wheel. "Hello, Helen. Come on in."
Donald Vaughan, a tall, angular man with blond hair, pulled a vacuum bottle from his overcoat pocket.
"Brought over a little egg-nogg; I made myself. Here you are. It's still warm."
"Come on in," invited John, "and we'll drink it."
"My, what a cute baby!" exclaimed Helen Vaughan, stopping in front of Judith's carriage. "Hasn't she grown, though?"
Donald leaned over and wagged a finger at Judith. "By golly," he said, "she's getting to be a regular little lady. Here." He handed Judith a little package, and she grabbed it firmly.
"What is it?" asked John, and began to unwarp it. It was a rattle, with a teething ring on its end.
The Vaughans went in the house and John and Donald spent a merry half hour over the egg-nogg, exchanging good-natured banter.
When they had gone, John said to Fay, "Now there's more or less of a tragedy."
"What do you mean?"
"Well, the Vaughans haven't any children, and, according to Don, they can't have any."
"Why, you never told me that before, John."
"Didn't I," he said carelessly. "Well, I meant to."
"And all this time," she reproved him. "I thought they just didn't want any children."
"Nope. Can't have any. Darn shame, too. Don's just beginning to make real money. If anybody ought to have kids it's those two. Both of them just crazy about them."
He walked over to Judith, who lay asleep in her crib.
"You're a lot of trouble, Judy," he said, softly, "but I guess you're worth it." He felt Fay's hand on his shoulder.

It certainly is nice that every Sunday falls on a holiday.

She got to her feet and left the room in a huff. John could hear her in the kitchen, preparing dinner.

RANGER CAFE

Too Many People Guess About Their Eyes

In fact we believe most folks do that. It seems that they try to make themselves believe they have normal sight rather than submit to an examination to learn the true condition of their eyes. Such an attitude is decidedly unwise. Why not give your eyes the consideration they deserve? Glad to be of service to you.
