KRON, O., Oct. 27.—President Paul W. Litchfield of the Good-year Tire and Rubber Company, announced today that the Good-year Zeppelin Corporation, a subsidiary of the tire firm, would build here two dirigibles for the navy department.

Work of erecting a huge hangar at the municipal airport will start within three weeks, he announced.

Now He's Rich

Ludwig Martel was a wealthy baron in Germany prior to the war and a bankrupt American immigrant after it. While making a fresh start as superintendent of building at St. Paul's Church in Richmond, Va., his estate in Germany was settled and he received, as his share, an old book of color sketches that had been in the family since 1792. These now have been pronounced the work of the great artist Rubens and experts say they are worth more than $100,000.

CITY LOOKING FORWARD FOR THE AEROCAR

Ranger to Be Honored by Visit of Fifteen Airplanes.

The first aerocar in the state of Texas will arrive in Ranger at 2:30 o'clock Nov. 10, according to word received here by Wayne C. Hickey, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, from D. W. Carlton, aviation activities of the Fort Worth Association of Commerce. The aerocar will leave Fort Worth by 8 o'clock Thursday, Nov. 8. It will remain all night here, on its way back home.

Carlton asks that reservations for 40 people be made and stated that the planes would leave here Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock.
"Your city," Carlton said, "has been selected due to the fact that you have necessary landing facilities and also due to the fact that you would be glad to have the Fort Worth delegation visit your city."

"Here are some of the things we suggest you endeavor to do. We suggest that you give this air tour all of the publicity you possibly can and encourage as large a delegation as possible to be present when we land. We will stay long enough at each place in order that all planes might be inspected. We will endeavor to have 15 planes with a personnel of some 40 people. If you could have some type of platform built, where you might offer a welcome address and have someone designated to make a short talk on the relations of your town and Fort Worth, referring to aviation and in response, we will have one or two who might say a few words in regard to aviation in general.
"It is especially desired that you have policing force large enough to avoid any form of accident and also we would desire to have weather conditions of our next stop from your town. If there are any planes with our aerocar, we would be glad to have their presence. Some of the pilots we have on our tour will be commercial flyers and might desire to give rides to those who desire and they will desire to make a nominal charge. The riding is optional. There will be some courtesy flights to the officials of your city."

"The Texas Pacific Coal & Oil company has offered free oil for the entire tour."

BUCKAROO NO MATCH FOR LOBO

Breckenridge Big Machine Roundly Outplayed in 26-0 Game.

By BOYCE HOUSE.
Gather around closely and you shall hear the story of how Mr. Little proved he could still run and the Cisco Lobos demonstrated, in substance, that the old gray mare is what she used to be. For this is the tale of another good football team—the Breckenridge Buckaroos—gone wrong.
They really never had a chance. Only in the closing moments of the first half did they radiate any flashes that would suggest the sparkle they had shown against less powerful foes earlier in the year, when they were rated as a thunderbolt that would crash all oil belt rivals into oblivion.
The score of the "crucial game" at Breckenridge Saturday afternoon was 26 to 0 in favor of Cisco. Once more, it was a victory for the "under dog." For Cisco, after the startling tie registered against them by San Angelo, was rated as inferior by one or two touchdowns, to the Buckaroos.
On the first play of the game, Thompson of Breckenridge was hurt and had to be taken from the field. And throughout the afternoon, the big Green and White machine cogs were so sorely punished by the Cisco behemoths that man after man dragged his weary frame from the fray. The only way the Lobos could be put out of the game was by the officials. Anthony, the towering center, was banished near the end of the first half and Little followed him into retirement in the third period. It was a rough game. At that, the roughness was not confined to one side, though the heavy penalties and ejections were.
Cisco was on the aggressive throughout the first quarter but not until the period was ending did their drive develop sustained force. When Doon Magness' punt was blocked, it was the Lobos' ball on the Buckaroos' 32-yard line. Van Horn gained four yards off tackle and Edleman hit the line on five plays in succession, then Van Horn picked up four yards off tackle to the 16-yard marker as the first quarter ended.

He said two companions were with him on the night the Hamiltons were slain.

Senator Norris, Republican, Makes Ringing Speech on Issues.

Special to The Times.
OMAHA, Oct. 27.—George W. Norris, Republican United States senator from Nebraska, declared himself for Alfred E. Smith here tonight in a carefully prepared speech of more than 12,000 words. He spoke at a meeting held under the auspices of the Progressive League for Alfred E. Smith, a nonpartisan body of which Frank P. Walsh, chairman and Frederic C. Howe executive secretary.
Senator Norris praised Governor Smith's stand on water-power far relief, and foreign relations, predicted that the would keep his promise to enforce the Volstead act, and closed with a strong plea against permitting religious prejudice to influence the choice of a candidate.
As vigorously as he praised Governor Smith, Senator Norris scored Herbert Hoover for his record on water-power and his silence in the face of official corruption, declared that Mr. Hoover's proposals for farm relief were ineffective and inadequate, and asserted as to prohibition that "there never has been a fair and honest attempt to enforce it."

ALARMING SITUATION DEVELOPS

Chlorine Gas Escapes From Tank in Birmingham Courthouse.

By United Press.
BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Oct. 27. Chlorine gas escaping from a tank in the engineer's office of the Jefferson county courthouse, overcame between 30 and 40 persons in the building this afternoon.
Conditions of the victims of the fumes were not believed serious from early reports at hospitals.
The workers in the building were removed from the range of the fumes by firemen, several of whom were overcome in the task.
Elevator operators in the courthouse were the first to slump unconscious, trapping employes in the upper floor. Many of them were taken down aerial ladders as the stairway became avenues of escape only for the dangerously ill.
Danger from the leaking tank ended when W. E. Hamlin, assistant fire chief, and two others went into the gas filled room, wearing masks, and pulled the tank into an alley where water was poured on it to absorb the fumes.
Word of the leak caused a near panic in the vicinity of the building which is situated in the downtown district of Birmingham.

"WILD BILL" HOBSON
 "Wild Bill" Hobson, one of Cleveland's finest pilots on the Cleveland-New York air mail run, is dead. Flying low through a dense fog over the Pennsylvania mountains, he lost his life when his plane crashed into a wooded knoll.

The mortality rate among the air mail pilots is surprisingly low, considering the amount of flying they do. Probably no aviation service on earth is conducted with fewer fatalities. The pilots are experienced, and every modern safeguard has been adopted. Yet now and then a mail pilot is killed.

Why? Because flying is inherently dangerous, despite its improvements?
 No. Air mail pilots die occasionally because of the high standards of the service. They go aloft at night, in fogs, rainstorms and blizzards that would keep any other aviators on the ground. They are rigidly faithful to their duties. "The mail must go through," is their motto, and they live up to it in a way that arouses our unstinted admiration. If it is humanly possible to fly, they fly; and, once in a great while, one of them gets killed.

The deaths in the air mail service are not a blot on the service's record; they are a tribute to its fidelity and courage.

USE OF GAS INCREASES.

America's natural gas industry today serves 2,516 cities and towns in 22 states, and is undergoing a period of unprecedented expansion, Samuel W. Meals, of Pittsburgh, president of the Carnegie Natural Gas corporation, declared at the convention of the American Gas association in Atlantic City.

According to Mr. Meals, some of the larger interests in the industry are planning to pipe natural gas 600 miles from the western Dakotas through to Minneapolis and the entire northwest. Salt Lake City would be reached by this line. Other operators are planning to pipe the fuel to San Francisco, St. Louis and parts of Tennessee, Mississippi, Mexico and New Mexico.

"Subsequent to the discovery and development of huge new natural gas areas," Mr. Meals said, "the natural gas industry has embarked upon an era of expansion such as has never before been equaled in the history of the industry. From an idea, the long-distance transmission of natural gas has developed into a reality. Where, formerly, gas pipe lines were measured in scores of miles, they are now measured in hundreds of miles. In the near future it may not be unusual to transport natural gas a thousand or even 15 hundred miles.

There are four separate, natural gas zones in the United States, namely the Appalachian, Southwest, Rocky Mountain and California zones. The only important recent development in the Appalachian area is the availability of natural gas service in southwestern Michigan. In the southwest area new natural gas territory is being constantly opened up, with the result that numerous long-distance pipe lines projects are being planned and completed.

"With the completion of natural gas pipe lines to Denver and Wichita, Kan., plans are being rapidly completed to pipe natural gas to Kansas City, St. Louis and eastern Missouri, extending into Illinois, western Tennessee, western Mississippi and eastern Louisiana. The entire state of Texas will soon have natural gas service, including the city of El Paso. Natural gas is already being piped across the border to Mexico, and it is planned to transport it into the interior of Mexico. New Mexico is regarded as having splendid natural gas possibilities.

"Ohio, Pennsylvania, and West Virginia lead all other states as consumers of natural gas. Texas, however, now second in production, is rapidly forging ahead in consumption and will probably outdo West Virginia within the next two years. A number of western states will probably show remarkable gains within the next year, due to the completion of several large long-distance transmission systems. With the vast network of natural gas pipe lines embracing an ever-widening radius it begins to look as though the possibilities of extending natural gas service are practically unlimited.

Progressive Strongly For Governor Al

 principles of the McNary-Haugen bill, Senator Norris said:
 "I want to say to you, particularly to my Republican brethren who have stood for the McNary-Haugen bill, who have advocated its passage all over the country, and who went to Kansas City and demanded to be heard but were turned down—I want to say to them, if you still believe what you have been advocating you haven't a leg to stand on unless you come out in this great contest and support Governor Smith."
 Discussing the oil scandals, Senator Norris condemned the Republican candidate for his praise of the last seven years of Republican administration.

"I cannot forget," he said, "that the men who opposed any investigation, the men who defended Daugherty, the men who defended Fall, who defended Sinclair, who defended Forbes, who defended Miller, are, in the main, the very men who are managing and backing the candidacy of Mr. Hoover. During all the weary grind, when the Committee of the Senate was trying to get the truth about the bribery of public officials, Herbert Hoover sat in the Cabinet of the President. He was in daily touch with the very conspirators who defrauded the Government. I do not charge him with any personal knowledge or in any way participating in the benefits of the crime and debauchery, but from the beginning to the end he has remained as silent as a sphinx and has never condemned any of the men high in official position who were guilty of these crimes.

"Again I want to call your attention to the attitude of the immortal Roosevelt on such questions. He said that if he made any difference in prosecuting Republican rascals and Democratic rascals, he prosecuted the Republican rascals a little harder. The public official who will remain silent in derelict in his duty when he does not raise his voice in condemnation of political debauchery even though it strikes at the very head of his political party. Mr. Hoover, measured by this test, fails to come up to the proper level."

Tammany
 "The charge is made against Governor Smith that he is a member of the Tammany organization in New York. I have no more use for Tammany than I have for any other political machine, and I do not believe it is to the credit of Governor Smith that in his early political life he associated closely with the Tammany organization, but I do think it is to his credit that he has risen above its domination and its influence. His record, since he has been governor, shows that Tammany has not controlled his appointments of office. Whatever influence this organization might have had, Governor Smith, by his outspoken and courageous method in official action, has risen way above and beyond the domination and the control of that organization.

"But who is it who is crying out against him on account of Tammany? In the main, it is the same group of leading alleged statesmen who have opposed, at every step, the investigation of the crime and debauchery which has been going on in high places. Let us not forget that at Kansas City, in the Republican convention, at the psychological moment, it was Vane of Pennsylvania who put Herbert Hoover across, Vane, the head of the Republican machine in Philadelphia. And that machine is now turning heaven and earth to secure votes for Herbert Hoover. If you will compare the Vane machine in Pennsylvania with the Tammany machine in New York, as it has existed for the last several years, it will make Tammany appear as a white-robed saint.

"Mr. Vane was refused admission to the Senate. The disclosures of corruption were publicly known before the election. Herbert Hoover knew about it. He knew of the crime and the debauchery in Pennsylvania, where, under this man, the worst political machine that had ever been put together was controlling the state. He sat idly by while the Administration let its powerful influence to secure the election of Mr. Vane. And he has been the beneficiary of the activities of this corrupt machine in the very nomination he now has."

Senator Norris scored the Republican candidate for remaining silent on what he termed the Administration's "indefensible and illegal war down in Nicaragua," and by contrast praised Governor Smith's condemnation of it.

"In no uncertain terms he has condemned this injustice," he said. "In courageous language he has promised that any administration of his shall not leave behind it such a blot of dishonor."

"The cry goes out that Governor Smith is a Catholic, and that we must not elect a Catholic to the White House. What is the greatest fear that these anti-Catholics have? If you ask them and they give any reply, 99 out of 100 will say that the Catholics are opposed to our public school system. Let us see what the record shows about these two candidates in the defense of our public schools. When the Power Trust was stealing into our schools, when it was contaminating the minds of our children with poisoned propaganda, when it was bribing teachers and preachers and professors, what did Hoover do? Again he was following the Hoover policies by remaining absolutely silent.

"But how about the Catholic, Governor Smith? We find him using his power and his influence in condemnation of this unholy attempt at monopoly. He comes to the defense of our public schools and denounces in patriotic language the attempt of the power trust to get control of them. He has come to the whole length.

"He stands today before the American people as a candidate for President, defending our public schools against this attack, while his opponent is so silent that he cannot even be heard in a whispering campaign. Governor Smith stands today before the American people, the greatest defender in the Nation of our public school system.

"Look at the record of Governor Smith while he has been Governor. Look over the appointments he has made to office and you must be convinced that religion has been by him kept entirely separate and apart from his official actions. He has carried out, in spirit and in letter, the Constitution of the United States.

"We are treading on dangerous ground when we object to a man holding office because of his religion. There are men in all religious denominations who are unreasonable,—men who would like to force their particular religion

 BROWNWOOD, Oct. 27.—Thomas L. Evans, of the Evans Polo ranch, near Brownwood, has just cause for taking an unusual interest in the recent international polo match between the Americas, North and South, which was won by the United States team.

Of the 40 horses used by the North American team, representing the Americas, two were bred on his ranch here. Those two were "Lovely Lady" and "Chapp."

Mr. Evans has been raising polo ponies for the eastern markets since 1919 and during that time has furnished many mounts for the leading polo players of the nation. But to have one or more horses selected for international polo matches is something worthy of mention.

In 1927, the International polo committee, selected 50 horses to be used by the American team and of this 50, there were six Texas bred and raised horses. Two of these were from Mr. Evans's stable. Texas led all states for the year in the number of horses selected for the international team. New York was second with five.

upon the State. But, thank God, Governor Smith is not one of them. He is not only opposed to it himself, but he stands out fearlessly and courageously and condemns any attempt that will interfere with the efficiency of our public school system. Under his leadership, in the State of New York, the greatest development took place in the public schools of that state that has ever occurred."

A New Excuse By Traffic Violator

(By United Press.)
 FORT WORTH, Oct. 26.—A boy 18 years old "pursued the villain," was arrested for passing a boulevard stop and was finally dismissed in police court by Judge Cullen Bailey.

The boy's sister, 14 years old, had gone to a dance with an older boy. The "date" promised to have her home at a certain time. He didn't get her there, so "brother" set out after her.

"I saw that by running past a stop line I could catch them," the boy told Judge Bailey. "I took the chance, Judge, in an effort to get my sister and relieve the folks at home of worry."

DYING MAN AT WEDDING

(By United Press.)
 SYRACUSE, Oct. 27.—Rather than force his daughter to postpone her wedding for a month Morris J. Elstein called her to his deathbed, summoned her betrothed and a rabbi and saw the wedding performed.

The wedding was scheduled for the next day but Elstein was not sure he would live that long and according to strict Jewish law a marriage should not be performed until a month after the death of a member of the family.

Elstein died a half hour after he saw his daughter, Alice, united to Nelson Gordon Lanzman, of Coldwater, Mich.

In this district there are thirty-five patrols or a total of five hundred scouts, most of whom are expected to be in Brownwood during the fair and exhibit. There are nine patrols in Brownwood.

Prominent out of town speakers are to be secured, according to Jack Brunberg, scout executive for the six counties. Mr. Brunberg has just recently returned from a scout executives training school held in New York and is prepared to get back into the work here with added enthusiasm.

All exhibits to be presented here will later be presented in each of the five other counties of the district, it has been learned.

BULLDOGS FIGHT IN THRILLING 19-19 GAME

ABILENE IS OUTPLAYED BEFORE BIG CROWD HERE

Hammett's Marvelous Passing and Garland Hinman's Line Work Despite Injuries Stand Out in Ranger's Comeback Against Strong Foe.

By BOYCE HOUSE

Ranger Bulldogs are still undefeated and are still right in the thick of the race for the Oil Belt district championship as the result of a valiant fight to come from behind Friday afternoon and tie the count at 19-19 against the Abilene Eagles, who almost won the state title last year and were rated to win from Ranger by at least two touchdowns. The game, played on Lillard field, was viewed by 4,000.

The Bulldogs, showing a tenacity equal to their names, outplayed the invaders and, had any one of several golden opportunities been realized upon, the Eagles would have not been so fortunate as to escape with a draw.

Hammett, the Bulldogs' triple threat ace, was the most sensational back on the field. He hurled passes, long and short, to the sides and down the middle of the field for a total of 182 yards in the course of the crisp, cool, beautiful afternoon—an almost unprecedented yardage for a single individual to send the ball winging in a game between teams of such caliber. In addition, "Pud" contributed several pretty runs, including one dash for 20 yards. His punting sparkled like a jewel of purest ray serene—one kick going for 77 yards. Many of his punt returns were good for 10 to 20 yards, largely by nullifying the effectiveness of Abilene's punting.

But it was Garland Hinman who turned the tide when it looked as though Ranger's strength was fast ebbing away. Injured at the very close of the first half, the giant fullback was unable to return to the game. But early in the fourth quarter he hobbled to the field and went in at tackle. He fought like a demon. It seemed as though he gave every atom of strength on each play and had to be aided to his feet by his teammates. But the swaying lad, on the next play, would rush in and smother the Eagle attack. Time after time, it looked as though he would have to be taken from the game. In fact, twice the coach apparently started to send in another man but Hinman would not give up. When Ranger had the ball and went into a huddle, it was Garland, whose face was twisted with pain, yet he expressed confidence that the Bulldogs by fight could put over the tying touchdown. And they did.

To open the game, Ranger kicked off and Captain Salkeld let the ball sail through his hands and Ranger recovered on Abilene's 30-yard line. The entire first quarter was played entirely in the Eagles' end of the field until the next to last play when Abilene punted to Ranger's 40-line. The Bulldogs' first touchdown came near the close of the period on a 30-yard pass, Hammett to Hamilton. Hammett twisted and dodged 20 yards behind the line of scrimmage and heaved the ball through the atmosphere for 50 yards into the waiting arms of the halfback, who was over the goal line. Hammett's placekick missed.

Bulldogs Take Lead.
The next score came early in the second quarter after Hammett had punted, Phelps fumbled and T. Hinman recovered on the Eagles' 30-yard line. Hammett took to the air, Mills catching the pass for 28 yards. Two running plays were tried and then again the air was resorted to—Hammett flinging a short one to the line of scrimmage which Hinman took at full gallop and went around left end for the score. This time Hammett's kick was successful and Ranger was leading 13-0.

But glory where glory is due. It must be conceded that the Eagles looked like real champions on a beautiful drive down the gridiron after receiving the kickoff which Kincaid returned 18 yards to his pass from Phelps to Bentley was a big factor as he reeled off 22 yards. Then a pass across midline by Smith to Salkeld helped to the extent of 15 yards. A few running plays sprinkled in between meant that the pigskin was now resting 10 yards from the goal and things were helped along by a five-yard penalty to Ranger so Smith went off tackle for the remaining five. Bennett, sent in to the game for that purpose, then place-kicked goal.

And a couple of minutes later the score was tied. Ranger received. On the second play from scrimmage, Whitehall fumbled and Smith, recovering, carried the pigskin 20 yards for a touchdown. Bennett failed to make goal. Neither team showed an edge over the other for the remainder of the half.

Both elevens came back fighting hard but about mid-way of the third stanza, the Eagles forged to the front after intercepting a pass on their own 37-yard line. Gains by Smith, Phelps and Allen got the ball in scoring position and a behind-the-line pass flung by Smith and clutched by Salkeld accounted for 19 yards and a touchdown. Smith's kick was low.

Ranger had been handicapped in the third period by an adverse wind but Hammett's superior punting and punt returning began to tell when they changed goals for the final quarter and the sterling work in the line by G. Hinman, who had come back, helped turn the tide. The Bulldogs worked the ball to their opponents' four-yard line but a pass on fourth down over the goal line was incomplete.

New Hero at New Haven

Here's Johnny Garvey, Yale halfback, whose deeds on the gridiron this year are making New Haven followers forget the great Bruce Caldwell. Garvey's work this year has caused Yale athletic officials to declare that he is one of the best backs ever to wear a Yale football uniform.

And It Is Tied.

After Smith had punted, the Bulldogs started again. Hammett tossed the leather to Whitehall for 13 yards. McLaughlin made three through the line and then Hammett hurled the ball again to Whitehall who stepped off 18 yards for a total advance of 33 yards on the play, scoring a touchdown. Hammett failed on the kick for the extra point. And the score was 19-19.

An intercepted pass by Hammett who was brought down on Abilene's 26-yard line led to the last drive. Hammett threw a pass to McLaughlin for 13 yards and then McLaughlin in two line plays made five yards. Hammett went off tackle for seven yards—to the one yard line—but Ranger was penalized for offside. The quarterback then tried to dropkick a field goal but the ball was two feet low. The game ended a minute or two later with Ranger in possession of the ball on Abilene's 41-yard line.

Smith, Abilene's fullback, was the most brilliant player for the visitors, gaining more ground than any of his associates, doing most of Abilene's punting and laying well on defense. Salkeld, Eagle end, came nearer his 1927 standard than in any game we have seen him this year. He won All-State last season.

On running plays, Abilene gained 150 yards as compared to 108 for Ranger. On passes, Abilene gained 56 yards as compared to Ranger's 182. Total ground gained from scrimmage was in favor of Ranger, 290 to 206 yards. Individual ground-gaining: For Ranger, Hammett 42 yards besides throwing all the passes; Hinman, 28 yards; Phelps 23 yards on a pass; Whitehall 65 yards of which 46 was on passes; McLaughlin, 53 yards of which 29 was on passes; Hamilton 46 yards on two passes; Bowden 25 yards on a pass; Mills 28 yards on a pass; Abilene: Smith 51 yards, Kincaid 23 yards, Phelps 43 yards, Allen 33 yards, Bentley 23 yards on a pass thrown by Phelps, Salkeld 54 yards of which 15 was on a pass from Smith and 19 on a pass from Phelps.

Buckeroo No Match For Lobo

To start off the next stanza properly, Little proved that he has not been erroneously referred to as West Texas' most elusive speedster when he made an old-time sweeping run around left end for the intervening 16 yards. He avoided the secondary by the simple method of running faster than they did and was not touched until he had crossed the goal line. Kellogg missed the try for point.

Breckenridge received but, two plays were stopped cold, so Boon Magness punted. After Little had returned six yards to the Lobos' 34-yard line, Drive No. 2 started. It was Van Horn four and Little three on an end run, then the husky Eddleman through right guard for eight and Eddleman two more, then Little five and Eddleman through for 15 yards, and so on. With the ball resting on the seven-yard line, Van Horn tore around right end for four yards and then Little went off left tackle for the score. Once more Kellogg's kick was no bueno.

The heady little Lobo quarterback caused the graybeards to wobble however when, on his 43-yard line, he tried a pass and Boon Magness, not satisfied with intercepting it, raced to the Lobos' 29-yard line before he was brought to earth. Bus Ligon, who can heave the pigskin, tossed one to Legion, the end, for 11 yards—which was the first time Breckenridge had made a first down in the game. At this point, Anthony was ordered off the field and Cisco penalized half the distance to the goal which left the Buckaroos with only five yards to cover for a tally. Graham made a yard through the line. B. Magness made two yards around left end. Then Magness threw a perfect pass to Graham, over the goal line, but Graham dropped the ball.

After an exchange of punts, the Buckaroos got going again, with Cisco's 46-yard line as the starting point. Bus Ligon shot one to C. Carey for nine yards. Then Boon Magness manifested brotherly affection by tossing the ball to Aubrey Magness for 11 yards. Boon threw another, this time to Graham, who dropped it. Aaron used T. Carey as his next target and the Buckaroos good for 23 yards. Only two yards needed for a touchdown, but two plays gained nothing and the half was up.

As far as Breckenridge was concerned, the game was over. Kellogg returned the kickoff 37 yards and Little went around right end for 16 yards but a punt exchange followed whereupon Little returned a punt 25 yards to the Buckaroo 21-yard line. In eight plays, Eddleman lugging the ball five times, Cisco had the third touchdown. It was the big fullback who carried it over. Kellogg kicked goal. A few short moments later, Coats intercepted a Buckaroo pass on the home team's 37-yard line. Again the Lobo fullback got busy and, in nine plays, Eddleman toted the mail five of them, the Lobos had another score. Eddleman was the boy who took it over. Kellogg had gotten the range by this time and he kicked goal.

A handicap now seemed in order. Anyway, the officials urged Little to leave the field and penalized Cisco to the 24-yard line. Three plays later, Coldwell intercepted a pass on his 17-yard line and Kellogg lost no time in kicking but an 18-yard return by Robinson brought the oval right back as far as Cisco's 32-yard line. However the ball went over on downs on the Lobos' 23-yard line.

Chapman began sending in the reserves—some of whom were taller and heavier than the regulars, who were large enough in all conscience. The remainder of the game was dull and dreary though the irrepressible Eddleman on a fake made 11 yards and the Lobos lost a chance to score when, on the eight-yard line, one of the substitute backs fumbled.

The crowd was the biggest for the season in the oil belt.

AFRICA SLAVERY CHARGE BEFORE MANDATES BODY

League Commission to Scan The Power of Foreign Industrial Capital

GENEVA.—Charges that the native population of Africa are being virtually enslaved with the development there of great industrial enterprises by foreign capital were to be investigated by the Permanent Mandates Commission of the League of Nations when it convened in its 14th session.

The African situation has been especially called to the attention of the commission by the recent book of Prof. Raymond L. Buell, formerly of Harvard but now of the research department of the Foreign Policy Association of New York.

The book has been deposited with the mandates commission in the form of a petition by the International Association at Geneva for the Protection of Native populations.

While the book makes especially serious charges relative to the use of native labor in Liberia resulting from invasion there of American rubber interests this cannot be considered by the commission which can only look into those portions of the book that refer to mandated territories in Africa.

The commission at its present session will examine the annual report of the mandatory powers for Iraq, Ruandi Urundi, British, Cameroons, Togoland, South West Africa, Western Samoa and the Pacific Islands under Japanese mandates.

Among the aspects of the mandatory situation which the commission has been asked by the League assembly especially to investigate is that of assuring absolute economic equality of the native populations, equality of treatment of their products and a more rigid control in certain of the mandated territories of the liquor traffic.

Whoofus Whiffletree's Wozy Wonderings

Prospects for that Abilene-Waco game to settle the state championship are not so bright this morning. Personally, we don't believe Waco can beat Abilene—for the reason that they won't get the chance.

The Eagles have a splendid team and they deserve great praise for the come-back they staged in the second quarter. Any team that can overcome a two-touchdown lead within 10 minutes is a fighting eleven—and no mistake.

But the Abilene machine of 1928 is not the team of 1927 by a considerable margin as we sought to point out last summer but without success.

Did you see Mitchell nailing 'em?

"Which one is Hammett?" asked Supt. B. T. Cook of Breckenridge before the game, apparently desirous of seeing the player whose eligibility had been much before the district executive committee. "Bud" was pointed out. This was before the game. He did not need to be pointed out during the game.

Ranger fans are proud of every led who wore the Maroon and White. They held the team being the colors of last year's almost state champions to a tie—and really deserved to win the game.

This columnist overlooked it but someone told us that Prexy Anderson assailed us in his column because we reported Garland Hinman as weighing 185. We weighed "Ox" on the scales that Prexy weighed Salkold—who weighs 170, according to the Abilene writer.

Max Bentley gained more ground than anyone else Friday. He is the managing editor of the Abilene Reporter and News. He raced up and down the sidelines for sufficient yardage to reach from Ranger to Abilene and half way back, if it was placed in a straight line.

Blondy Cross, sports editor of the San Angelo Standard, viewed the game and declared Ranger should have won by two touchdowns. He will probably be here this week to see Ranger and San Angelo meet.

Wes Hodges of the Breckenridge American was another sports writer on hand. Cooper of Abilene was another. During the oil boom, "Coop" was city editor of the Ranger Times.

The game was broadcast by the Abilene station through a hookup by phone from the press box.

And, speaking of the press box, Fire Chief Murphy receiving a rising vote from the pencil pushers. Due to his vigilance, the press box was made safe for the press men. For the first and only time in the history of oil belt football—at a big game, anyway—there was actually room for the men who earn their living by writing about the games. Heretofore numerous individuals other than newspapermen have been in the press box which meant that the writers had to stand on seats and otherwise be wedged in a space only half large enough. Here's hoping that Murphy will be on hand for the other games and render similar efficient work.

POLLYWOGS IN LATEST TILT SHOW "STUFF"

"Freshman" Phillips of Ranger Praised for Work in 53-0 Victory.

Special to The Times.

FORT WORTH, Oct. 27.—Prospects for a great Frog team next year were brightened this week by the showing of Coach "Dutch" Meyer's team against the Weatherford Junior college eleven. The Weatherford coach brought one of the heaviest junior clubs to play on the Frog field in many seasons, and predictions that the freshmen would spoil their two years' undefeated record were prevalent before the game. When the smoke of battle had cleared away, the Frog first-year men were on the long end of a 53-0 count.

The showing of some of the Wog backs indicates that Head Coach Matty Bell will not be lacking in excellent material in that department next year. Kenneth "Football" Moore, stocky little quarterback from Dallas, flashed some of the prettiest broken field running seen on the Frog field since Jerry Mann and Herman Clark vied for honors. Moore was unstoppable. Time after time, with little interference, he simply outran, outfought and outdisseped the Weatherford defense. His by far the most colorful playing on the field. Old time fans were reminded of Stollenwerk, old S. M. U. star, as the little, bow-legged back swept around ends and over tackles with the speed and dash of a rabbit.

Several other backs deserve great credit. The defensive work of Hal Wright, Fort Worth, was outstanding. Vance Woolwine, Port Worth, showed the best all-around game of any first year player. Woolfine, playing half, ran, passed, punted and tackled like a veteran. J. W. Hinton, Cleburne back, broke through the Junior college team for 60 yards and a touchdown in the third period. Hinton's ability to pass the ball was also highly pleasing to Frog fans. C. I. Mitchell, Temple, and Harlos Green were also outstanding.

In the line, the end play of Ray McCulloch, Bryan, and Robert Pollard, Dallas, was distinctive. McCulloch plays end much in the same manner as Regis Matthews, and much is expected of him in his varsity years. Aubrey Elkins, Waco; Gordon McMahan, Cleburne; Standard Lambert, Temple, and R. L. Phillips, Ranger, also played great games in the line.

Richard "Red" Oliver, Fort Worth, and Paul Snow, Winsboro, both substitute halves, ran over and through the Weatherford crew at will all through the last half. Both are fast men and are expected to make good backs.

30,000 Fans Will View Aggies And Mustangs Nov. 10

The Southern Methodist university-Texas Aggie gridiron classic promises to be one of the largest attended games in Southwest conference football history. "Preparations are being made to seat 30,000 fans," Dr. R. N. Blackwell, business manager of athletics of S. M. U. said Thursday. Temporary stands are now being built in advance of the ticket sale. "Mail orders for ducats to the A. & M. game will be received and filled up until and through Nov. 3," Dr. Blackwell said. The public is urged to get their tickets early if the more desirable seats are expected.

El Paso to Ft. Worth From Breakfast to Luncheon

M. L. Keasler, local agent of the Texas Pacific Coal & Oil company, announced that the Ryan brougham of the Texas Pacific Coal & Oil company, No. NC5547, arrived in this city yesterday on its 30-day tour of all Texas Pacific Coal & Oil company bulk stations.

According to Mr. Keasler, this ship has been in service for the Texas Pacific, one of the first oil companies to recognize the value of the airplane in modern business. He points out that he was able to leave El Paso after breakfast and arrive in Fort Worth in time for lunch, which is one-third of train time. Mr. Fredell is accompanied on this trip by V. N. Johns, chief pilot and Mr. M. Farnsworth, assistant sales manager. Local agents of the company will also be in the five-passenger plane.

SPORTSMATTER BY FRANK GETTY UNITED PRESS SPORTS EDITOR

The National Hockey League, professional ice hockey's major organization, is looking forward to another banner year. The ten teams in the organization began fall training this week and will open the 1928-29 season November 15.

The New York Rangers, world's champions and holders of the Stanley cup, played to 166,000 spectators in 22 games at Madison Square Garden last year and expect to pass the 200,000 mark this season. The gate receipts last year were $350,000 and indications points to receipts in excess of $400,000 this season.

The ten teams in the National Hockey League are divided into two groups as follows: International Group Montreal Canadiens, Montreal Maroons, Toronto Maple Leafs, Ottawa Senators, New York Americans, American Group New York Rangers, Detroit Cougars, Boston Bruins, Pittsburgh Pirates, Chicago Black Hawks.

Two new managers and eight old ones will be seen around the circuit. The new men are Tommy Gorman, who is replacing Shorty Green as manager of the New York Americans, and Herb Gardner, who will lead the Chicago Black Hawks in place of Barney Stanley.

The eight managers who are back include Les Patrick, New York Rangers; Jack Adams, Detroit Cougars; Art Ross, Boston Bruins; Cleghorn, Pittsburgh Pirates; Cecil Hart, Montreal Canadiens; Eddie Gerald, Montreal Maroons; Connie Smythe, Toronto Maple Leafs, and Dave Gill, Ottawa Senators.

Among the outstanding players in the N. H. L. are Howie Morenz and Aurel Joliat the two high scoring stars of Les Canadiens; Frank Boucher, New York Rangers center, who was the hero of the Stanley cup series, scoring five of the Rangers' six goals; Eddie Shore, Boston Bruins' defense, and "bad boy" of the league, Roy Worters, Pittsburgh Pirates goal tender, rated the best goalie in the league; and George Hay, Detroit Cougars, considered the smartest player in the league. The Rangers have the star brother act in Bill and Ben Cook and an attraction in Myers Lane, all around Dartmouth athlete.

Munro's $9,000 Salary The highest salaried professional hockey player last year was Dunc Munro of the Montreal Maroons who received $9,000 for the season. Many of the stars were tied up to long term contracts several years ago before professional hockey developed into a paying proposition.

Howie Morenz, perhaps the league's most brilliant player, received about half the salary he would have brought in open market. Benny Leonard, the retired undefeated lightweight champion, will make his debut this season as a professional hockey magnate, having purchased a large interest in the Pittsburgh club. The Pirates lost money last year, largely because of their small rink, but Leonard hopes to place them on a paying basis this season.

The name of Gordon Stanley Cochrane has been added to the list that includes George Sisler, Babe Ruth, Walter Johnson, Geo. Burns and Lou Gehrig of the players most valuable to their American League teams.

Cochrane, the "pepper box" catcher of Connie Mack's Athletics, had a narrow margin of two points advantage of Heinie Manush, slugging outfielder of the St. Louis Browns, receiving a total of 53 points to 51 for Manush.

Each player contributed much to his respective ball club for the season just closed. Manush, virtually the leading hitter in the American League, played his first season for the Browns and his terrific hitting converted a mediocre ball club into a team capable of finishing in third place. Manush long has been rated one of the leading hitters in the American League, but the 1928 season was the best he has ever known. Joe Judge of the Washington Senators and Tony Lazzeri, the hard hitting Yankee second baseman tied for third place with a total of 27 points. Judge, at the beginning of the season, was battling for a regular berth with the Senators. George Sisler was listed on the Washington roster and was favored to play first during the season.

Lazzeri Plucky. Judge, however, dispelled all thoughts Manager Bucky Harris might have had of playing Sisler at first, by staging a sensational hitting attack early in the season.

Lazzeri's season was marred by frequent injuries that prevented him taking his place in the lineup in many games. His throwing arm was in poor shape near the end of the season, but when called upon he always turned in a good game for the Yankees. In the world's series, Lazzeri pluckily fought with the rest of the "Crippled Yankees," and was always dependable when the going was toughest.

Mickey Cochrane was born in Ridgewater, Mass., April 6, 1903. He was an all-around athlete at Boston University and after a single year with Portland, in the Pacific Coast League, he joined the Athletics.

Displaced Perkins. The peppery, hard hitting catcher starred from the beginning and in his first year in the major league displaced "Cy" Perkins, one of the leading receivers in the league, behind the bat for the A's. Cochrane's play was so brilliant that he received four votes for the 1926 award and was fourth in 1927 with eighteen votes.

The youthful catcher is the exception to the general run of catchers in that he is a good hitter and a speedy base runner. Cochrane bats third in the lineup instead of being relegated to the end of the batting list where catchers usually hit.

"Father and Son" Banquet At Rising Star Is Success

RISING STAR, Oct. 26.—The "Father and Son" banquet held here recently in the Methodist church basement was a delightful occasion that long will be remembered by those participating. The programs were furnished by Wayne Sellers, a son of M. S. Sellers, publisher of the Rising Star Record. He is a 12-year old boy scout and composed and printed the programs as a test for a merit badge in printing. He won his badge. Music was furnished by the Del-Texans orchestra, J. F. Robertson gave the invocation.

Otha V. Venable was toastmaster; James Irby gave the welcoming address, and M. S. Sellers responded; Walter Harwell of Ranger made a talk on "Scouting," and Robert Buckingham outlined scout work for Troop 15. Some select "stunts" brought the program to a close.

The guests were served watermelon cocktail, stuffed tomato salad and crackers, fried chicken, baked potatoes, scalloped corn, hot rolls and butter, iced tea and iced box cake.

American Girl to Try Ocean Hop

Miss Mildred Johnson of Philadelphia, Pa., has announced she will leave Berlin in November in an attempt to fly to the United States. Her course will be either via the Azores or Halifax. Miss Johnson will make the attempt in a Rohrbach twin-motor flying boat, the Rosta, just completed in Berlin. Captain Spandorf will pilot the craft. Miss Johnson has traversed 16,000 miles of air routes in the United States during the last two years. She is now in Europe.

Radio Push-Pull Amplification Is Big Improvement

When two tubes are connected in "push-pull" arrangement with an input transformer, the signal voltage delivered to the grid of one tube is positive and to the other tube is negative, and vice versa. In the same way, the plate current of one tube increases while the other decreases, and vice versa.

This "push-pull" feature, as incorporated in the 1929 Day-Fan 8-tube set, accomplishes two major results; it furnishes sufficient power to a loud speaker from a source which is well able to supply all the necessary energy without overloading (overloading of the tube causing a distortion); and it eliminates the natural distortion which is caused by certain characteristics of a tube.

"Push-pull" amplification, in a brief explanation sent to the Automotive Appliance Company of Dallas, exclusive factory distributors for the Day-Fan radio sets, employs two tubes in combination, instead of one, in the final stage of audio frequency amplification.

Looks and Slides

Good If You're Good.
It is unfortunate for him, at least, that Bill McKechnie may become the goat of the world series and lose his job as manager of the Cardinals. If fate plays with him as well as it has in the past McKechnie will pop up with another good job but it will not be pleasant to have it in the books that he blew the series with a team that was an overwhelming favorite to win.

McKechnie, during the series, was in the same position that every manager is in almost every game. When his way works he is a wow. When his strategy fails he is a bust. And McKechnie's went wrong in the series.

Wrong Defense.
Smart baseball men say that the two double shtab Babe Ruth hit in the first game and started the Yankees going with a tremendous momentum should have been fielded.

Johnny Evers says that McKechnie made a terrible blunder in shifting his infield and his outfield in the same direction twice for the Babe and that Douthett, if he had not been out of position, certainly should have caught the Babe's second double. Evers is a smart baseball man and his wasn't a second guess. He made the observation to a neighbor when the Babe was at the bat.

So much for that.

Raps For Wilson.
One of the greatest old catchers of all times, now a National League official, said that McKechnie's greatest mistake was in allowing Wilson to remain behind the bat after the judgment he had shown on the batters in the first game.

He said that a peanut boy in the stands could have seen that Gehrig was set for a slow ball and that Menzel was dug in for a fast ball and Wilson permitted Sherdel to serve the order.

He said that Wilson was terrible the whole time he was working and that Smith should have been put in for no reason than he was a fighting ball player and an off recognized as a batter. And that Orsatti should have replaced Douthett.

Never Can Tell.
It is easy to realize now that McKechnie should have started Mitchell in one game, but if the ancient southpaw had been started and had been treated as cruelly as the other pitchers were the Cardinal manager would have been ridden into St. Louis on a log.

Everyone in the country expected McKechnie to make a hero out of Old Alex and wanted him as a hero. McKechnie gave him his chance, but he could not hypnotize the Yankee batters.

Who Did It.
In connection with the mention of Jimmy Wilson, who went into the series rated as a star, there was considerable gossip around St. Louis as to what caused the substitution of Smith for Wilson.

It was suggested that the "office" ordered McKechnie to ben him and to take Douthett out and put Orsatti in.

Sam Breardon, however, speaking as one of the "office" said he didn't know Smith was to catch until he saw him out there.

DID YOU KNOW THAT—
One of the important ball players lives in Chicago. He went out on a party one night last winter. It was the night of a big big yard and the party was staged way out where there were not so many houses. There was much whoopee at the party and the athlete got rough and was tossed out. He went down a mile to a street corner to catch a car. And stood for more than an hour freezing. There were no cars in sight and taxis never played the neighborhood. He stood and stood for another hour shivering into death. And suddenly a copper appeared on the scene. The athlete asked the copper in his best and most polite way when he might expect to be accommodated with a street car. And the officer told him he would have to wait a long time . . . Because they hadn't laid the tracks yet.

Never Realized It Until—
When the Yankees mailed out contracts to unsigned players last winter, Joe Dugan, veteran third baseman, sent his back unsigned. Ed Barrow, business manager, phoned him to come in and talk it over.

"What's the matter, Joe?" Barrow asked.

"Not enough money for me," Dugan answered.

"I think it's a lot of money for you," Barrow said. "You don't know this so I'll tell you. We asked waivers on you twice during the season and you weren't claiming. And a few minutes ago over the phone Cleveland refused to consider you at all!"

Dugan reached right over for the pen and stuck his name on the paper and walked out an older man than he was when he walked in.

In a Swell Spot Now
Art Fletcher, coach of the New York Yankees, was one of the baseball men mentioned as a possible successor to George Moriarty in Detroit. Fletcher was asked about it after the world series and he said he knew nothing about it.

"I wouldn't say anything about the Detroit Club because I like Mr. Navin and his players, but I have a job with the Yankees and why should I be looking for another one?" he said.

The truth is that Fletcher has a very good job with the Yankees. He is working for a good salary under congenial conditions and his personal responsibilities are minor compared to those he would have to assume as the manager of an ordinary club.

And there is also the matter of a bonus of $5800 at the end of the year's work when the world series money is divided. He wouldn't be taking any cut like that with the Tigers or the Indians, which he had a chance to manage this year. He is secure with the Yankees and he might be justified in figuring that the Yankees are destined to win some more world series money.

FAMILY LIFE IN CIRCUS IS DIFFERENT, YET MUCH SAME

It is gypsying on a grand scale, begins at their birth, and in the vast majority of cases there is the powerful effect of heredity, which exercises an influence on the child, and helps it to overcome obstacles that would seem well-nigh impossible to others. The chief effort is to create courage and daring, and to develop these qualities, where they already exist. The lungs are expanded by daily exercises, and the muscles are hardened and developed by daily athletic work. And every afternoon, after the matinee, they attend the circus school and recite their lessons.

The domestic instinct is very strong among the circus women, for the reason that they are deprived of home life a great part of every year. They sew much, and many of them do exceedingly pretty fancy work. They do all the mending of personal garments and besides, keep some sort of "pick up" work on hand. There isn't a home of a circus woman that is not furnished with the covers of some sort she has made during the season.

One seldom sees a circus woman in a city after the season is over. She flees from it, for she detests the noise and bustle, and, almost without exception, the Sells Floto women all live in little country towns, where they practice their professional work during the winter, go early to bed and emerge in fine physical and mental condition for the spring call to duty.

Sells Floto Circus comes to Ranger for afternoon and night shows on Wednesday, October 31. The management guarantees that the entire show will positively come here. Nothing will be cut out of the performance.

THE ONE TIRE that is ENGINEERED for All TRUCK and BUS SERVICE

Firestone
Gum-Dipped Heavy Duty Pneumatics
hold all world records for SAFETY, DURABILITY, MILEAGE

How have these records been possible? How have these tires consistently out-performed all others under all conditions—high speed or normal—truck or bus—heavy transport or light delivery?

Is Gum-Dipping responsible? Is it the tough non-skid tread? The powerful twin bead construction? Have these tires been able to break all records because of any one of the many great features of Firestone construction?

Not one feature—but all the features, each adding its share to the extra miles of MOST MILES PER DOLLAR!

safe, comfortable service. Better ENGINEERING—that's the answer.

We know that these tires will give you the same record-breaking results they are giving other operators in this section—more miles, greater safety, maximum riding comfort and protection to vehicle.

Add to these advantages our thorough service, which includes every aid to long tire mileage at the lowest cost. We are trained and equipped to save you money and serve you better on your truck tire purchases.

BREAKING RECORDS and Saving Money for Operators Everywhere

A. J. Mortemer of McBrides, Mich., has to date received 31,000 miles from a set of Firestone Gum-Dipped Tires on his truck. For seventeen months these tires have been every day on a milk route, carrying two and three ton loads.

"Cannon Ball" Baker, in 1927, drove a 2-ton GMC truck, fully loaded, from Atlantic to the Pacific—3,693 miles in 137 hours and 36 minutes. This fastest and longest truck run on record was made on Firestone Gum-Dipped Heavy Duty Pneumatics.

The Parmelee Company of Chicago since 1924 have obtained the remarkable average of better than 35,000 miles from Firestone Gum-Dipped Tires on all vehicles in their passenger and baggage transfer fleets.

Raymond Bros. Motor Transportation of Minneapolis, report record-breaking mileage, as high as 90,000 miles, from Firestone Gum-Dipped Tires on their 25 freight trucks.

The Wisconsin Public Service Corp. of Green Bay, report a total of 395,225 miles from six Firestone Gum-Dipped Tires on their bus No. 301, for the amazing average of 65,871 miles.

City of St. Petersburg, Florida, reports the astounding average mileage of 48,805 received from Firestone Gum-Dipped Tires over a period of two years. The two high records in this service were 87,150 and 86,987. In the second year of operation Firestone economy reduced their cost per passenger bus mile 23%.

2,000 TELEGRAMS URGE COOLIDGE TO TAKE HAND

Citizens of Texas County Want Federal Investigation of Affairs.

By United Press.
M'ALLEN, Tex., Oct. 27.—A federal investigation of the affairs of Hidalgo county was asked today in nearly 2000 telegrams filed here and addressed to the president of the United States.
The telegrams were signed by citizens of this county as a protest to the silence of county officials and their failure to issue a financial statement of the county's affairs during the past several years.
Decisions to ask the help of the federal government was reached at a rally of 10,000 in Edinburg, the county seat, last night. The open-air gathering was the largest ever held in that city and climaxed a series of meetings in all sections of the county.
Charges of incompetency were made by speakers against officials. Grady Galloway, Edinburg attorney, presided at the meeting and introduced the speakers. Judge Griffin, one of the speakers, charged that despite all the charges that have been made against members of the present county administration and pleas of citizens for a statement of the financial condition of the county, the only answer has been silence.
"By that silence, they have convicted themselves," said Griffin.
The call to the citizens who favored a federal investigation to send telegrams was made by D. E. Worley of Harlingen, a contractor. Two thousand prepared messages addressed to the president were quickly signed, each signer paying the cost of his message.
Mayor D. E. Kirgan of Weslaco characterized the meeting as that of the "stockholders of Hidalgo county," who had met to take their property back into their hands. He further charged that not one of the newspapers supporting the administration had attempted to justify the failure of the administration to furnish an audit of the county books.
"The millennium for the oppressed people of this county is near," Kirgan said. A school for the instruction of voters will be opened in each precinct of the county on Monday morning, Kirgan stated. The purpose of the schools is to teach voters how to write the names of candidates of the Citizens-Republican party in event a suit now in the supreme court is not decided in such a manner as to compel the county clerk to print the names on the ballot. Among the voters are about 4000 Mexicans, many of whom are uneducated.
WASHINGTON, Oct. 27.—More than 2000 telegrams were received today by President Coolidge

ATTRACTIVE FARM YARDS ARE DESIRED

Home Demonstration Agent Outlines New Work for Rural Club Women and Club Girls.

(Eastland Telegram.)
"Better looking farm yards" is a new slogan for rural club women and 4-H club girls, according to Miss Helen H. Swift of A. & M. College, district home demonstration agent who was in Eastland Friday conferring with Miss Ruth Ramey, Eastland county home demonstration agent, relative to this latest work undertaken to make farm life more attractive and improve rural home living conditions.
"The general public does not see the inside of the home, and it is well to have an attractive outside as an indication of what may be expected inside the walls," said Miss Swift. She continued:
"All club girls this year will plant flowers—all kinds of flowers. They will come to realize how very attractive a dwelling house may be made with beautiful flowers growing all about and banked up close to them. The proper location about the home for flowers will be discussed by the rural women and club girls at their meetings. They will be encouraged to have more flowers arranged in their homes.
"Since cut flowers that make the best show in the homes are not always the prettiest in the yard, the European idea will be encouraged of growing some of those flowers, together with some varieties of roses, in the vegetable gardens.
"Flowers will be stressed this year. Next year the planting of shrubbery will be emphasized, and vines will have attention the following year. Always trees and more trees are wanted and the planting of trees will be encouraged at all times."

BANDIT LEADER KILLS HIMSELF IN MANCHURIA

Yakoleff, Cornered, Puts Last Bullet Through His Own Heart

By VICTOR DE FRANCK
United Press Staff Correspondent
HARBIN, North Manchuria.—Yakoleff, youthful super-bandit leader of North Manchuria, is dead. He died, as he had said he would, with his boots on and from the last bullet in his own smoking revolver.
The end came at the settlement surrounding the railway station at Handaohedze on the Chinese East-on-Line and a woman was his undoing. Chinese and Russian police surrounded a house where Yakoleff and his paramour were feasting with her mother and friends and fought it out with the bandit. But they did not capture Yakoleff alive, or even kill him. Yakoleff had said he would never be taken alive, and that no Chinese bullet could kill him. He made good both boasts.
When his ammunition was all but exhausted Yakoleff shot his sweetheart, who he believed had betrayed him, and her mother, killed the first policeman who crossed the threshold of the house after the two shots had been fired, and then shot himself through the heart.

Yakoleff was 25 years old and the only white man who ever rose to be head of a formidable band of huzhude—as the bandit gangs of north Manchuria are called. He was born in Manchuria and in his teens was a poor employee at a railway flag station. He became a friend of powerful bandit leaders and because of his knowledge of railway operations was invited to join one of the bands. He later became its chieftain with power of life and death over a group at times reaching hundreds of men—all desperate criminals who lived by preying on travelers.
It was Yakoleff who was credited with bringing about the recent great raid on Harbin express arranging cooperation between bandit gangs who worked with his men in the operation which netted them thousands of dollars. The train was held up at a lonely station, many of its passengers held for ransom and its strong boxes looted. Police and the military joined hands in hunting down the bandits and following the old slogan of hunting the woman trapped Yakoleff by watching the movements of his sweetheart.

Most Popular Box-Office Star in the Industry in Her Greatest Picture

Colleen Moore in "Lilac Time"

"Lilac Time" is the sort of a story that motion picture actresses' dreams are made of, according to Colleen Moore, who comes to the Arcadia Theatre in the screen version of Jane Cowl's stage triumph, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday.
When Miss Moore and John McCormick, who produces her pictures, read the play manuscript of "Lilac Time," they both knew instantly it was the story of which they had dreamed, but hardly dared hope to find.
Its spirit of youth, its tenderness and its glowing romance gripped them as no other story had ever done, and McCormick immediately opened negotiations with Miss Cowl and Jane Murfin, co-authors of the play. The screen rights were purchased and Willis Goldbeck assigned to adapt the story for motion picture production, with Carey Wilson preparing the script.
"Lilac Time" is a George Fitzmaurice production for First National Pictures, and tells of the romance of a little French girl and a reckless young British war aviator. In the opinion of critics, it more than justifies the producer's judgment and the many months spent in filming it.
Gary Cooper, hero of "Beau Sabreur," "The Legion of the Condemned" and other pictures, appears in the chief supporting role. Other players include Burr McIntosh, George Cooper, Cleve Moore, Kathryn McGuire, Eugenie Besserer, Emilie Chantard, Jack Stone and Edward Dillon.

MANY TURKEYS BEING RAISED NEAR EASTLAND

They Would Be Marketed in Eastland in Large Numbers if Cash Market Provided.

(Eastland Telegram.)
Efforts of the Eastland Chamber of Commerce to get a poultry dressing plant established in Eastland are on the eve of success, according to indications. Especially is such a plant needed to market turkeys, for there is said to be too much loss in the sale of turkeys on the hoof and the buying public now wants them dressed. Very few persons are willing to buy turkeys on the hoof and comparatively few now want chickens unless they are dressed.

Plans on the even of consummation provide for a poultry dressing plant that will require a capital of about $30,000. It is expected to have it in operation in a very short time, for Thanksgiving Day is near at hand and always there is a big demand for turkeys at that time. The Thanksgiving season really marks the beginning of the turkey eating season.

It is believed that a poultry dressing plant in Eastland will be able to buy a sufficient number of turkeys raised in this area of the country to ship out at least ten or twelve carloads of dressed turkeys. The demand for dressed chickens is also large and, as the supply is large about Eastland, it is probable that these too, would be shipped out by the carload.

It is expected that the poultry dressing plant will want only the best chickens and turkeys, for cash is to be paid for all purchases and the cash market sought will require that the offerings be of a high order. No 1 turkey hens should weigh nine pounds and over, No 2 turkey hens under nine pounds.
No. 1 gobblers should weigh 14 pounds and over, and all under 14 pounds will be graded as No. 2. Heretofore that local market has made purchases of turkeys on a basis of eight and twelve pounds for No. 1 hens and gobblers, and it will be necessary for farmers to begin feeding corn at once if they expect their birds to make the weight. The local market is said to range between 27 and 30 cents for No. 1 stock. No. 2 stock ranges eight to ten cents under.

Suggestions for Meals that are Well Balanced

Special to The Times.

DENTON, Texas, Oct. 27.—Planning inexpensive meals is an art that every woman is searching for or has already achieved. The home-maker's work should be carried on in a business-like manner the same as an office. Therefore, she should plan her meals weekly by using the fruits and vegetables that are in season and are available. Then check the day's meals to see if they balance. This eliminates the much-heard question, "What shall I cook for dinner?" that often ends with a meal of meat and potatoes. The following menus and recipes may assist the professional home-maker:

Breakfast—Shredded wheat, cream, sugar, bacon with stewed apples, toast, butter, coffee, cream, sugar, milk.

Dinner—Beef stew with vegetables, brown bread, prunes and cottage cheese salad, rice pudding, milk.

Supper—Vegetable, crackers, stuffed egg salad, bread, ginger-bread, cocoa.

Breakfast—Stewed figs, griddle cakes, coffee, cream, sugar, milk.

Dinner—Bear loaf, tomato sauce, vegetable salad (carrot and cabbage), bread, butter, blackberry tarts.

Supper—Toasted cheese sandwiches, lettuce salad, fruit, wafers, milk.

Recipes.

Bean Loaf: 2 cups cooked beans, 1-4 pound cheese, 3 pimientos, 1 cup bread crumbs, 1-2 teaspoon salt, 1-2 cups sauce. Lima beans are best. Baked beans may be used. Put the beans, cheese and pimiento through a chopper, mix thoroughly and add enough bread crumbs to make mixture into a roll. Taste to see if more salt is needed. Bake in moderate oven about 45 minutes, basting several times with butter and water. Serve with any sauce.

Variation 1. Add one egg, beaten.

Variation 2. Omit cheese, use milk to moisten. If egg is added this is good baked in individual dishes, set in pan containing one inch of hot water. Moderate oven 20 minutes.

Variation 3. Omit cheese and pimiento, add one medium onion, grated, one tablespoon each of minced celery and parsley, 1-2 teaspoon mixed thyme and sage, dashes of pepper. Tomato sauce is good with this.

Tomato Sauce: Pulp of one cooked pepper, one large green pepper, minced, one large onion, grated, 1-4 cup minced parsley, 1-4 cup bacon fat or olive oil, one teaspoon salt, two cups strained tomato. Scrape the pulp of the

Latest Style for Atlantic Flying

Here's Lady Drummond Hay, only woman passenger on the Graf Zeppelin, displaying what the properly dressed woman Atlantic flyer should wear. The coat has heavy fur collar and cuffs designed to keep one warm while flying at high altitudes. This picture was taken by a photographer for the Times and NEA Service at Lakehurst, N. J., just after Lady Drummond Hay had debarred from the huge air liner.

Variation 2. Add to mixture before cooking one garlic clove, minced.

Variation 3. Use all sweet red pepper or pimiento in place of green. Use olive oil for fat and add two garlic cloves, minced.

Variation 4. In any, use unstrained tomato pulp and do not strain sauce.

Boston Brown Bread: One cup

rye flour, one cup cornmeal, one cup wheat flour, two teaspoons soda, 3-4 cup molasses, two cups sour milk, one to 1-2 teaspoons salt.

Sift dry ingredients together into mixing bowl, turn out and sift a second time. Cut the shortening in with two knives, mixing lightly but thoroughly. (A fork may be used for mixing, or one knife, or even the finger tips, but two knives are best, as they make quick mixing possible.) If beaten egg is used, add to liquid. Add liquid to dry mixture, mixing with knife or spoon. Remember to work as quickly as possible.

This is traditionally cooked in round loaves—a pan with a tube in the center is preferable to insure thorough cooking, or a solid round can, such as a one-pound baking powder container. A regular bread pan may be used, however. In any, fill pan 3-4 full, steam two hours or bake in moderate oven one hour (nearly as good). Serve hot or cold. This recipe makes one loaf.

It may be stretching a point, but it is reported that Messrs. Stretch and Strain are automobile dealers in Wichita, Kas.

CONVERSATION IS AN ART TO BE CULTIVATED

A pleasantly modulated voice and a well stocked mind are prerequisites for the person who wishes to converse acceptably. Only by constant use of good English, properly pronounced, does one learn to express his thoughts acceptably. The intelligent listener is not one who maintains dull silence, but one who manifests an grasp of what his companion says, asks intelligent questions from time to time and, possibly, makes pertinent comment.

While the average person is ready to do his share in conversation, one is sometimes encountered who makes no effort to do his part, who wet-blankets every effort.

Such a person, for instance, will curtly reply that the day is disagreeable if an unfortunate acquaintance remarks that the "weather is not bad, considering the season." He declares that "woman suffrage has merely doubled the number of incompetent voters, when it has been suggested that women are taking an intelligent part in some local campaign and no matter what topic is offered, he dismisses it with disparaging finality. The only person more objectionable is the one who asks personal questions that infringe on one's right to privacy in his own affairs.

THE NEW FRIGIDAIRE

The hotter the kitchen... the quicker it freezes ice

Incredibly quiet operation... yet surplus ice freezing power

ONE of the tests to which the New Frigidaire has been subjected time and again is the "hot room" test.

In this test a New Frigidaire is placed in a room with a temperature of 100°. Here its operation is carefully watched for days. The speed with which it freezes ice is checked. Its current consumption is noted.

And this is what the "hot room" tests prove: That despite its incredibly quiet operation, the New Frigidaire has even greater surplus ice-freezing power and even greater operating economy. In fact, the hotter the room the quicker this truly automatic refrigerator freezes ice cubes.

When the New Frigidaire comes into your home there's no more ice to buy. No more food waste due to spoilage. And since the New Frigidaire keeps foods fresh and wholesome 4 to 5 times longer, you can buy in larger quantities. These combined savings are greater than the cost of Frigidaire and the cost of operation.

The New Frigidaire is now on exhibition at our display room. Come in and see it as soon as possible.

Smith Is Indicated As Still Gaining Heavy Republican Support

Hoover is leading in six of the ten States of the "Solid South" as more than 2,500,000 returns from all of the forty-eight States are reported in the Literary Digest's huge national Presidential Poll which is published today. With the vote announced as not yet completed, Smith is carrying only Georgia, Louisiana, Mississippi and South Carolina, while Hoover has substantial margins over his rival in the Democratic strongholds of Florida, North Carolina, Texas and Virginia and sparring leads in Alabama and Arkansas, which leads The Literary Digest classes as doubtful.

The border States of Kentucky, Maryland, Oklahoma and Tennessee give the Republican candidate a comfortable plurality. Of the total of 2,529,997 votes returned in this fifth week's tabulations of The Literary Digest poll, Hoover has 1,593,431 while Smith has 910,234. This gives a percentage of 63 for Hoover to 36 for Smith, which is almost the precise ratio of last week's returns.

Unexpected Lead. Hoover at present shows a lead in this "straw poll" in several of the States that are generally considered doubtful, as in Wisconsin, where he is ahead by 31,351 to 21,847; in North Dakota, where he leads by 5,408 to 2,803; in Minnesota, where his ratio is 52,882 to 29,021; and in Montana, where he is polling 6,750 to Smith's 3,152. The Republican candidate is leading in returns from all the Eastern States from Maine to Delaware by ratios of 2 to 1 and 3 to 1 except in New York, where though he has a substantial lead in the State as a whole, the New York City vote is strongly favorable to the Democratic side, showing Smith with 130,822 to Hoovers 93,974.

Another analysis of "how the same voters voted in 1924" offers the significant shift that for the first time since 1911 "postcard election" was started Smith is polling more of his strength from voters who state that they voted Democratic in the last Presidential election than those who have changed from Republican ranks, although the difference is rather slight. Previously he has had in his column as obtaining the better part of his support from Democratic sources in the States where he shows a lead.

In individual polls of Chicago and Philadelphia, where the entire registered electorate is being polled, the same as in New York City, Hoover shows an advantage of 95,286 to 67,646 in the Illinois metropolis and 68,495 to 47,815 in Philadelphia. Against this Al Smith is shown polling more of his strength from former Republican voters in both of these cities.

"The poll establishes a new record this week," The Literary Digest states editorially, "with 2,529,997 votes recorded as against somewhat less than 2,000,000 when the poll of 1924 had reached the present stage of development."

Smith Gaining. "With the present tabulation the returns may be considered for the first time fairly representative of the country as a whole. The division of the vote is slightly more favorable to Governor Smith than in the earlier tabulations. The wide-spread breaking down of political fences, noted throughout the previous reports, is even more evident in the present tabulation. It may be observed, however, that with fuller reports from the Southern States, there is an increasing switch of Democrats to Hoover, along with Mr. Smith's increasing suffrage from former Republicans.

"For the first time in the poll it will be noticed, Governor Smith draws more of his support from Democrats of 1924 than from Republicans of that year. He still has 334,931 of these 'switched' votes, as against 233,555 former Democrats who are now for Hoover.

"The shift of former Republican voters to Hoover is a significant feature of the present stage of development."

licans, several authorities agree, means merely that Democrats who voted for Coolidge in 1924 are now returning to their home camp, but the fact remains, of course, that there has been a switch since 1924."

ASSOCIATE OF HOOVER GIVES HIS OPINION

Ed Lasater, Famous Cattleman, Once Republican Nominee for Governor of Texas.

Special to The Times.

DALLAS, Tex.—It would be a terrible blow to the hopes and aspirations of the average man and woman of America if Herbert Hoover should be elected president of the United States and his election would work irreparable harm to the American ideal of government, it was declared in a formal interview here today by Ed C. Lasater of Falfurrias, Tex. Mr. Lasater took sharp issue with the declarations of Secretary of the Treasury, Andrew W. Mellon, made in a radio address at Washington on the night of October 11 in which Mr. Mellon gave unstinted praise to the republican party for its "fulfillment of promises" and to Mr. Hoover as the ideal man to carry out the "prosperity program" of that party. In his interview Mr. Lasater was speaking out of the knowledge gained by him as the war time associate and subordinate of Mr. Hoover as United States food administrator. He was speaking as a Texas cowman who perhaps has as intimate knowledge of the live stock industry in all its phases, from birth of the calf to the sirloin steak on the plate, as any man in America. He has for years been one of the biggest producers of high grade beef cattle in the United States, and as a pioneer in the dairy field in Texas has built up the largest Jersey herd on the American continent.

Prior to the World War period, Mr. Lasater had achieved nationwide prominence by virtue of his activities among live stock producers. In Texas he had been prominent in the "Bull Moose" movement that attended Theodore Roosevelt's candidacy for the presidency in 1912. He had been the republican nominee for governor of Texas. He had been among the most active officers of the American National Live Stock association and the Cattle Raisers association of Texas that now is the Texas and Southwestern Cattle Raisers association. He was regarded as a natural choice when as food administrator, Mr. Hoover called him in July, 1917, to be the chief of the division of live stock and animal food products. He had not served in that office quite four months before he was moved to tender his resignation in a two-sentence letter that contained this one declaration: "I do so because I have become convinced that the policies which control it are harmful to the common welfare."

After his connection with the United States food administration had been severed Mr. Lasater wrote: "I was convinced and I am still convinced, that the action of Mr. Hoover as food administrator destroyed the confidence of the farmers and stock raisers in the fairness of their government, caused directly an incalculable loss to them as a body with the effect of financial ruin to many, and have all put this nation in a position where, if the war had lasted the expected five years, or had continued one year longer than it did, it would have been impossible to procure the necessary fats and meat supplies for the allies and ourselves. If Mr. Hoover's slogan 'food will win the war' meant anything, we might well under circumstances have been faced with defeat."

"I sincerely believe," Mr. Lasater said, "that I am no alarmist and I know that I am utterly sincere in the fears I entertain of the domination of this country's affairs by a man of Mr. Hoover's mental attitude. I believe after exercising all of my powers of reasoning, that no more dreadful thing could come to the masses of this country than for Herbert Hoover to be elected the president of the United States. I sat by his side for months. I examined his mind as he examined mine, when we sat in council over the food problems of the war. I believe I know his sympathies—and he has none for the common man. I came to believe, as we sat and tried to solve the problems that came to us, that he looks on the American farmer precisely as he had looked on the coolies who had worked under his direction in China. Mr. Hoover is not a conservationist and he never was. He has been always the exploiter and he knows naught of men as units of society and industry but to exploit them as the agent of big business that he is and ever will be whether as Secretary of Commerce, President of the United States or promoter of mining enterprises. A great number of the people have been hypnotized by a myth of a man who does not and never has existed. Masses Are Ignored.

"The Hoover that I know in 1917 when the producers of agriculture and live stock needed a friend and found none in Mr. Hoover, has not changed his spots. I believe it is conceded now by all persons and certainly Secretary Mellon not only concedes but boasts, that all is well with the commercial and industrial fabric of the country, but no man will say that prosperity has blessed the pocketbook of the man who produces agricultural commodities in any of its forms. For every hour of the time that Mr. Hoover has been a member of the cabinet of two presidents, agriculture has stood in need of a friend in the government. Of all the men who have sat in those two cabinets he had most reason to know and he did know, beyond all peradventure of doubt, that the rest of this country was prosperous at the expense of the producers of our basic wealth. In rapt admiration Mr.

FRECKLES AND HIS FRIENDS

withdrew his resignation when Mr. Hoover in a personal conference led him to believe that he would not long temporize with the packing industry in what he regarded as its oppression of the live stock producers, however, the conviction that Mr. Hoover was to be the friend of the producers, was short lived. Twelve days after he had withdrawn his original resignation Mr. Lasater made his resignation final and definite. Almost coincidental and for the same reason Mr. Gifford Pinchot who had been chief forester under the Taft administration and who later became governor of Pennsylvania, and who at that time was Mr. Lasater's associate in the live stock department, submitted two resignations, the latter of which was made final.

After his connection with the United States food administration had been severed Mr. Lasater wrote: "I was convinced and I am still convinced, that the action of Mr. Hoover as food administrator destroyed the confidence of the farmers and stock raisers in the fairness of their government, caused directly an incalculable loss to them as a body with the effect of financial ruin to many, and have all put this nation in a position where, if the war had lasted the expected five years, or had continued one year longer than it did, it would have been impossible to procure the necessary fats and meat supplies for the allies and ourselves. In rapt admiration Mr.

"I do so because I have become convinced that the policies which control it are harmful to the common welfare."

After his connection with the United States food administration had been severed Mr. Lasater wrote: "I was convinced and I am still convinced, that the action of Mr. Hoover as food administrator destroyed the confidence of the farmers and stock raisers in the fairness of their government, caused directly an incalculable loss to them as a body with the effect of financial ruin to many, and have all put this nation in a position where, if the war had lasted the expected five years, or had continued one year longer than it did, it would have been impossible to procure the necessary fats and meat supplies for the allies and ourselves. If Mr. Hoover's slogan 'food will win the war' meant anything, we might well under circumstances have been faced with defeat."

"I sincerely believe," Mr. Lasater said, "that I am no alarmist and I know that I am utterly sincere in the fears I entertain of the domination of this country's affairs by a man of Mr. Hoover's mental attitude. I believe after exercising all of my powers of reasoning, that no more dreadful thing could come to the masses of this country than for Herbert Hoover to be elected the president of the United States. I sat by his side for months. I examined his mind as he examined mine, when we sat in council over the food problems of the war. I believe I know his sympathies—and he has none for the common man. I came to believe, as we sat and tried to solve the problems that came to us, that he looks on the American farmer precisely as he had looked on the coolies who had worked under his direction in China. Mr. Hoover is not a conservationist and he never was. He has been always the exploiter and he knows naught of men as units of society and industry but to exploit them as the agent of big business that he is and ever will be whether as Secretary of Commerce, President of the United States or promoter of mining enterprises. A great number of the people have been hypnotized by a myth of a man who does not and never has existed. Masses Are Ignored.

"The Hoover that I know in 1917 when the producers of agriculture and live stock needed a friend and found none in Mr. Hoover, has not changed his spots. I believe it is conceded now by all persons and certainly Secretary Mellon not only concedes but boasts, that all is well with the commercial and industrial fabric of the country, but no man will say that prosperity has blessed the pocketbook of the man who produces agricultural commodities in any of its forms. For every hour of the time that Mr. Hoover has been a member of the cabinet of two presidents, agriculture has stood in need of a friend in the government. Of all the men who have sat in those two cabinets he had most reason to know and he did know, beyond all peradventure of doubt, that the rest of this country was prosperous at the expense of the producers of our basic wealth. In rapt admiration Mr.

the United States are worse than idle; they are little short of insults to the intelligence of the American producers of raw material.

"Mr. Hoover is a man of amazing energy. I think I can understand how, though he was inexperienced in politics, he has come to be the candidate of a great party for the presidency. He knows how to exploit men. He knows how to serve great machines of which men are only component and insignificant parts. He does not know how to serve men nor mankind except in the fashion that they may be served by a stroke of promotional engineering. I can understand how Mr. Hoover can do a service to man in the abstract in an hour of peril or emergency. I cannot, by the broadest stretch of imagination, conceive of Mr. Hoover ever rendering a service to the masses of mankind in the solution of the ordinary and persistent problems of human welfare, and this to me is thrown in bolder relief because in my judgment the democratic party has nominated to be president of the United States the greatest humanitarian in government that this material minded period in the history of our government has produced.

America has had opportunity to call to the helm of government a woman in its history with the great heart and the great sympathy for mankind that animates the spirit of Alfred E. Smith, about whom Franklin Roosevelt could say 'Victory is his habit—The Happy Warrior.'

THIS HAS HAPPENED

Sybil Thorne tells her sweet heart, Craig Newhall, of her secret marriage. She tells him also that she is going to have a child. And she tells him something of Richard Eustis, who won her in five days. She describes the horror of the two weeks she spent with him, and Craig, very gentle, when she is through, kisses her good by.

Sybil's family, almost overwhelmed by her astounding revelation, consider ways and means of silencing the gossips and squelching scandal. Mrs. Thorne, fearful of society's scorn, orders wedding announcements and calls on her psychoanalyst for help in dealing with the dreadful problem.

Sybil's adored brother, Tad, is very sympathetic and understanding, but his wife, Valerie, is frankly skeptical.

Mr. Crandon, the analyst, reviews the case.

Now go on with the story:

CHAPTER XXXI

Mrs. Thorne leaned back in her Bosson rocker. Mr. Crandon flowed on. By and by the maid came with tea. Before they knew it the clock on the mantle was chiming four.

"I am sorry," said Mr. Crandon. "I have another appointment now."

And Mrs. Thorne, gathering her meekness about her, apologized and prepared to depart.

"I feel so much better," she told him. "I simply can't thank you enough for all you do for me. It's as if a load were lifted from my mind."

And that night she told Valerie. Mr. Crandon thinks it would be a great mistake to send Sybil away. And he says that the child may be a perfectly marvelous thing for her. He is very anxious to analyze Sybil—for her own good, you know, Valerie. But I suppose she wouldn't hear of such a thing.

"I should say not!" scorned Valerie. "And what's the sense of analyzing Sybil? The girl never had a repression nor an inhibition in her life. It's primitive ego that's Sib's trouble—and there's no substituting that, Mother Thorne. Besides, she'd just laugh at you."

"I suppose so," agreed Mrs. Thorne sadly. "Well, we won't let her go away anyhow, Valerie. Mr. Crandon advised very definitely against it."

Sybil, however, had ideas of her own, and it was Tad who persuaded her at last to stay at home.

"It seems to me," he said, "that it would be a cowardly thing to hide somewhere. Like a confession of fear—fear of what people are going to say. Hold up your head, Sib. There's nothing like facing the music. And tell them all to go to the devil!"

As soon as the announcements were out, the news began to percolate.

"Sybil Thorne's going to have a baby!"

"A baby? My dear, what are you talking about! I just got an announcement of her marriage."

"Well!"

"You don't mean it?"

"I certainly do. Next April I heard."

Women telephoned each other at all hours of the day and night. At bridge parties they forgot to play cards. They met one another for luncheon, and their food grew cold while they talked. The most arrogant of them went to see her. With incredulous exclamations and small gifts they invaded her privacy.

One day she bundled together five little jackets, six pairs of booties, four baby dresses embroidered in Madeira, and a knit bonnet or two. Tying them around with a blue satin carriage ribbon, she laid them on the blazing logs in the library fireplace. And while they burned she held a tiny band of silk and wool, all shrunken with tears, to her lips, and laughed excitedly.

"Look!" she cried, when Tad came in and found her crouched over the ashes. "I've burned all the tickets of admission my friends bought to come to look at me."

Winter dragged on—such a long, long winter. Sybil was very beautiful, but there was no one to see her sadder levelness but her mother, and Tad and Valerie. Her eyes seemed to grow larger, and in their tragic depths there was a sort of Madonna leauly.

She moved quietly with a sort of heavy, peasant grace. And she wore a blue smock of soft wool the color of wild flowers in the country. She looked womanly and full of grace. She seldom went out, being extremely conscious of all that was being said.

Once Craig came to call, but she sent down word that she was out. After that he left flowers with his card occasionally, but never again asked to see her.

Senator Wed 50 Years

Senator Lee S. Overman, 75, for 25 years a member of the United States Senate, and Mrs. Overman, are celebrating their 50th wedding anniversary at their home at Salisbury, N. C. They were married Oct. 31, 1878, when Overman was secretary to Governor Vance of North Carolina. Only two other senators—Warren of Wyoming and Simmons of North Carolina—have served longer in that body. Above are latest photographs of Senator and Mrs. Overman.

Then, at last, it was over. Spring came. And forsythia waving yellow banners. Crocuses, and gay red tulips, and purple hyacinths.

Sybil lay quietly in a small white bed in a big white hospital. The crisp curtains at her window rustled like a small girl's pert petticoats. Spring, with the breath of lilacs, stole through the open window, and the little bundle at her side wailed a mournful wail. . . . Such a funny little bundle.

Sybil cradled it on her arm, poked timidly at the white cloths that swaddled it. They fell back, revealing a small red face, with a bit of nose in the middle of it. There were tight little wrinkles that would undoubtedly disclose eyes later, and a noisy, busy mouth that seemed large for the rest of the features. The head was covered with soft black hair.

A nurse appeared in the doorway, pleasantly professional.

"It's the most beautiful baby I've ever seen," she said. "And absolutely perfect."

Sybil smiled palely. "He's just too beautiful!" she said, and gazed worshipingly on her son.

"Your brother is here," announced the nurse briskly. "He may come in for just a moment if you'll promise not to talk."

Tad came on tiptoe, after the fashion of men approaching recent mothers. He held a brown felt hat awkwardly, rolling the brim, and seemed quite distracted and embarrassed. His face was flushed, and he applied his handkerchief nervously to his forehead. Sybil laughed weakly as he came to the side of her bed.

"Meet the boss, Taddy!" she cried, and drew the sheet gently away. "See um's uncle, Sweet-kins?"

Tad kissed her white forehead, and took her hand.

"Well, Sib?"

"Oh, Tad!" she whispered. "I'm so happy! Just look at him, Tad!"

Then Tad bent and inspected the little bundle, and poked it, and tried to think of something to say.

"Great little kiddo," he said, and wondered if Sybil expected him to say it was good looking. "Isn't he beautiful, Tad?"

"Beautiful!" he echoed solemnly. "He's got a nice head."

"And ears!" she cried. "Did you ever see such beautiful ears in all your life?"

"Never," he assured her gravely. "Beautiful ears."

Then the nurse came.

"You've stayed long enough for today, Mr. Thorne," she told him. And Tad took his hat gratefully and departed.

Two weeks after Sybil left the hospital, she wanted a christening party.

"I know they're old-fashioned," she admitted. "But this is something special."

She bought a christening robe two yards long, and borrowed a silver brazier for a font. Craig was there, and Tad, and Mabel with Jack Moore. It was an evening when Valerie was playing bridge, and Mrs. Thorne had gone to church.

Sybil wore a brief little dress of woody green, with violets at her waist. And the baby, over his baptismal gown, wore a daisy chain.

Mabel held him, and Sybil, dipping her fingers in the font, sprinkled his fuzzy little head.

"I baptize thee," she cried. "Edward Thorne, in commemoration of my father, and to honor his memory. And I renounce for thee, thy father—and claim thee for thy own alone. Edward Thorne, son of Sybil Thorne. . . ."

The lighted candles that flanked the brazier flickered, and burst into brighter flame, so that they held the baby's big-eyed stare. And he waved his little arms, and smiled his first small smile, and cooed in triumph. Sybil caught him to her and kissed him wildly.

"God love him," she murmured reverently.

Then they passed him around, and each of them, like fairies at a christening, made a wish for him. Luck, and love and gold—until Craig handed him back to Sybil, and she cried, like the bad witch in an Irish fairy tale, "Bad cess to your father—and may you never set your beautiful eyes on the face of him!"

Then there were cocktails, and a toast to Edward Thorne, second, who, shortly, like an inebriated host, grew sleepy, and nodding a bit, dropped his chin to his chest—and slept.

Everyone agreed it was strange Sybil had never heard from Richard.

"It's as if the earth opened and swallowed him," declared Valerie incredulously.

And to Tad she expressed open disbelief. "I don't know what Sib takes us for. A bunch of dumb bells, I guess. And of all the big simpletons I ever knew, Craig Newhall is the biggest. Hook, line and sinker, he's swallowed that story of hers."

Tad had come to treat his wife with scant courtesy.

"Oh, keep still!" he exclaimed now. "Your chatter gives me a pain."

Whereupon Valerie packed her bags, and left for New Haven, leaving the conventional note on her pillow.

. . . If you're sick of me, there are lots of people who aren't. . . Plenty of fun in New Haven. . . never take me anywhere. . . old stick-in-the-mud. . . It won't do you any good to come for me. . . stay as long as I please. . .

Please Be Advised That the Moving Pictures of Friday's Football Game Will Not Be Shown as Advertised

Mr. Campbell, president of Campbell Theatres, Inc., assured me that a camera would be in Ranger Friday at 1 o'clock to take parade and game to be shown at the Arcadia today and Monday, but owing to some misunderstanding the camera man arrived too late for the game.

I am making this announcement so you will not go to the theatre expecting to see pictures of the game as advertised.

I have tried in the past and intend to in the future not to advertise something we can't produce.

I am going to try and make arrangement to have a camera to use myself for future games so I will be able to give Ranger not only pictures of Ranger home games but pictures of out of town games and other interesting things that may happen, but I am not sure yet that this arrangement can be made, but announcement will be made later if possible.
