some form or other, it covers just about the four corners of the earth.

As has been the case throughout the history of foreign aid, it is based primarily on ideology. Actually, we are the only people anywhere in the world who are so deeply concerned with Communism. The vast majority of nations, including those of the free world, do not share our pre-occupation with Communism, but rather devote their attention first to the cold economics of national life.

There has been a cliché for the last 15 years or so which refers to the "struggle for the hearts and minds of men," as a main selling point for foreign aid. Minds and hearts are important, but the stomach comes before either.

In the case of the split between Russia and Communist China, we are interpreting it to mean a disagreement in ideology. It is doubtful that it has much, if anything, to do with it. By the same token, Khrushchev's new attitude of sweet reason towards the West should not be interpreted as any change of feeling, but rather as a matter of political and economic reality.

In the first place, Khrushchev must have come to the conclusion that the Chinese Reds are not only willing to risk war, but want to promote it. The only winner in such a war, in which the industry of both America and Russia would be destroyed, would be Communist China. Her infer-riority in industry would be relatively eliminated with nothing to stop her from expanding into Soviet territory and into Southeast Asia.

Khrushchev has now decided to accept the proposal made by the United States and Great Britain some months ago in Geneva. He is not doing so out of any change of economic necessity.

Following the signing of a nuclear test ban treaty, we can watch for overtures from Russia to ourselves and western Europe for increased trade. Since the warm wind from Moscow will touch Western Europe first, those who care less about ideology than they do enhancing their own economic benefits are likely to increase trade, even in strategic material. They are already doing a far greater business with the Soviets than our own Country, but the lessening of tensions will undoubtedly cause an increase in the present level. As the thaw progresses, look for requests from Russia for loans and grants.

The very nature of the situation strongly suggests the likelihood that Khrushchev hopes to get what he wants on the economic front by making a big show in agreeing to the Text Ban Treaty. Some of our own leaders and a great many Americans seemingly want to make a life-raft out of a single straw cast out by the Kremlin. When things are dark, a very faint glow makes a lot of light, but it should not be taken as a guiding beacon.

The aims of international communism have always been the same and can not be changed by the small gestures of its representatives. The giving of a little seems a lot when nothing at all is expected. If Mr. Khrushchev has now decided it is better to be agreeable until the economy of Russia can be improved, it is hardly justification for this jubilation.

While all this is taking place, we continue to pour out our resources in every corner of the earth. The threat of nations that they will look to the Soviet Union for assistance unless it comes from America will continue. The time for a real challenge to this situation is long past due.

7,000 GUARDSMEN ON DUTY TWO WEEKS AT FORT HOOD

NORTH FORT HOOD — Dusty tank trails, sun-scoured hills, Echoing valleys. This is the home — for two weeks — of Texas' 49th Armored Division. The 7000 National Guardsmen of the "Lone Star" Division moved in last Sunday and more than half have already pulled out again for the field.

With the mid-point to be climaxed this Saturday with a division review, the 49th will switch from their sweat-soaked field fatigues to clean crisp khakis and motor march before Gov. John Connally.

This will give Gov. Connally his first look at the 49th Armored Division, the Texas outfit which came off active duty at Fort Polk, La., exactly a year ago — serving 10 months during the critical Berlin crisis.

And this makes the 49th know — better than most National Guard outfits — the value of tough training during their two weeks here at camp. When the motor convoys rolled in last Sunday, the famed "tent city" of North Fort Hood sprang alive. Dusty tent flaps were rolled up. Bunks were issued and set up in neat rows under the sea of olive-green tents.

Trucks were unloaded at supply depots. Men moved about like working ants. Signal elements stretched wire from pole to pole, their men looking like grasshoppers as they climbed up.

Jeeps darting back and forth like busy beetles. Tanks, rolling out of their motor pools spewed gysers of dust behind them, their radio antennas bending like a lance of an armored knight heading for a joust.

More than 100 division tanks rumbled out into field training areas Monday, blanketing Fort Hood's hilly ranges with a fine coat of dust.

Motor convoys of trucks — carrying half of the division — moved out into the night for a tactical movement into forward field areas. They will remain in the field, sleeping under the stars, until Friday. The remainder of the division will make a similar tactical move next Monday and stay for five days.

First units to roll out to the field were the 3d Tank Battalion, 112th Armor, from the Temple area; the 4th Tank Battalion, from the Rio Grande Valley; and the 4th Armored Rifle Battalion, 144th Infantry, from the Valley — all under the direction of the 1st Brigade of Houston.

Also, under the 2d Brigade of Fort Worth, were the 2d Tank Battalion, from the Fort Worth area; 5th Tank Battalion, Corsicana area; and the 1st Armored Rifle Battalion, 144th Infantry, Fort Worth area.

Blackout operations were orders of the night during the first 24 hours of field maneuvers.

Valleys of Fort Hood will really echo with the crash of the division artillery's big guns during the second week.

Also due to hit the hills will be division headquarters of Dallas, the 249th Signal Battalion, Dallas area; and the 386th Engineer Battalion, from the Bryan area.

Combat elements will include the 2d Squadron, 124th Cavalry, from Fort Worth area and Austin, along with 3d Brigade (Dallas) units of the 1st Tank Battalion, 112th Armor, Dallas; the 2d Armored Rifle Battalion, all from East Texas, and the 3rd Armory Rifle Battalion, 144th Infantry, of Northeast Texas. Units of the 49th will return home on Aug. 11.

Facts About RJC

In 1954, the Ranger Junior College Annual, THE RANGER, was dedicated to three persons who had, by their generous gifts, helped the college to make progress and achieve the recognition it now enjoys.

Named in the dedication were Mrs. Dell Newell of Albany, the late Dr. P. M. Kuykendall and the late O. R. Cooper of Tyler, Texas. The men's dormitory, Newell Hall, was the result of the generous gift of Mrs. Newell.

Dr. Kuykendall, longtime Ranger physician and hospital owner is given special recognition for his generosity to RJC.

Mr. Cooper was reared in Ranger and gave the funds which financed the building of Cooper Library, in memory of his mother and his wife. A SAD STORY Behind many "For Sale" signs there is a sad story: A family borrowed more than they could afford to pay for a home, or payments and interest rates were too high; the home had to be sold, often at a loss. This tragedy could often be avoided if the families would seek help from a home loan specialist, such as our Association.

We work with you to arrange for a loan that's as easy to handle as monthly rent.
