MEET AT LUNCH.

Judge Peters, manager of the Chamber of Commerce, proposes that public forums pereafter be held at a noon luncheon, and the idea was indorsed by those present at the meeting last night. It was pointed out that meetings of this kind, with about 20 minutes for satisfying the appetite and 40 minutes for discussion, have proven very successful in other cities, and it is believed they will here.

Arrangements to this end will be perfected before the next meeting.

Discussion at the open forum of the Chamber of Commerce Wednesday night revealed that those present were unanimous in the belief that the paved area of Ranger should be kept clean and the other streets in good repair. It further revealed that citizens believed that this work is the province of the city and that it should be financed through taxation, and not through voluntary contributions. The final act of the forum was passage of a motion that: motion that:

"It is the sense of this body that an amount necessary to clean and repair the streets for 1921 be provided for in the city budget and that it recommends that a committee be appointed by the Charlese be appointed by the Chamber of Commerce to confer with the city commissioners and inform them that this fund should be provided either by a raise in the tax rate or the imposition of an occupation tax."

view of the need for prompt action on the motion, President H. S. Cole, with the consent of seven directors present, appointed a committee composed of Robert A. Moore and M. H. Speaks for Red Cross. Father Charles J. McCarthy of Dallas, who is in Ranger assisting local Red Cross workers in the roll call, appeared before the assemblage and spoke of the work the Red Cross did in France and is now doing at home, and many of those present contributed to the fund.

The action of the forum came after general discussion, which range a general discussion, which ranged from a review of previous efforts at street cleaning to the final conclusion as expressed in the motion. Will H. Moore, Robert Moore, Mr. Hamilton of the Ranger Transfer and Storage company and Bud Polson declared that the work could not be properly and consistently serviced by the state of the and consistently carried out by the use of vagrants nor supported by voluntary contributions, as the merchants felt it was the city's duty to clean the streets. H. S. Cole summed up this argument by saying that the city government was a service account. city government was a service agency and should provide for cleaning as well as for fire and police.

There being no controversy on this view, the forum proceeded to a discussion of ways and means whereby the money could be raised. The mat. ter of raising the tax rate was first right in."

Hunting Bargains in Ranger

Bargains discovered in trips through Ranger shops and department stores are here presented briefly, for the benefit of Times readers.

If we haven't bought the goodlooking clothes we liked because prides were too high, we should surely be able to get what we like now. Half-price and one-third off are everyday shop words now. And I wonder if people realize and appreclate that some of the dresses, etc., marked $59.50 cost $59.50.

One-half price on all silk dresses and one-third off on suits and cloaks are the new prices at Weiss Brothers this morning. Included in the line of silk dresses and crepes. Sinbad crepe, black, with neck, sleeves, wide girdle and panels elaborately beaded in French jet, orignally priced at $159.50, may now be had for just half that amount. MORE ABOUT TALK.

Talk last night demonstrated that Ranger will insist on the streets being cleaned by the city, and not by private enterprise. Talk also led to the outlin- Elade. ing of a plan by which, it is believed, the city can finance the work without taking any new action on the tax rate. It evidenced that the downtown prop- remain.-Washington Star. crty owners are willing to pay the necessary expense in one form if they will not in another.

Without presuming to speak for the city administration. The Times believes the city will be glad to undertake the work if a way can be found to finance it. Longshoremen's Strike Ties Up Lisbon Docks

LISBON, Nov. 18 .- Traffic at this port has been almost paralyzed by strike of the longshoremen and steve ways. Meantime the city has been given an evil appearance by a strike of the garbage wagon drivers and street clean

Several foreign vessels were compelled to leave the harbor without discharging their cargoes of provisions, greatly need ed in this poorly rationed country, because of the harbor strike. Labor troubles spread also to the crews of merchant ships and some officers joine with the men in quitting work on board

Pieces of machinery were removed from boats used for transporting passenger and provisions across the Tagus rive and the boilers of some of the smalle craft were filled with salt water so tha when the government sent naval forces to operate them the boilers would not

As a result of the state railway strik Lisbon was threatened with a dearth of provisions. The streets were cluttere with ill-smelling dirt heaps and filth owing to the strike of the cleaners.

As usual when strikes occur here, r ports were spread that they were due a bolshevist plot emanating from Mocow. Officials of the government issue a note stating that they were inform of the details of a proposed general revolutionary strike but were prepared to take steps to suppress any disorder which might result.

ty jail. Fess Whitaker has probably become more widely noted than any candidate in the country aside from the presidential nominees. The career of Whitaker, soldier of forcune, rough rider, drummer, telegraph operator, school teacher, is the story of a he man who acts as he thinks and thereby has gained the love of the people of the mountains of eastern Kentucky.

When elected, Whitaker was serving a jail sentence for jail breaking, imposed when he walked out after being locked up for fighting.

The fact that he had escaped from confinement by the expedient of the simple use of his own passkey did not lessen the gravity of his offense, the courts held; so back he went, there to conduct a campaign against the man whom he felt to be responsible for his incarceration. He has just been pardoned by the governor.

Fess Whitaker made all his speeches from the window of his work and for the prison was planned to get him out of politics. The point upon which narrators, aisgreeing on other points, agree, is that there was a tremendous fight when the officers arrived. Fess insists that there confinement by the expedient of the simple use of his offense, the fourts held; so back he went, there to conduct a campaign against the man whom he felt to be responsible for his incarceration.
