Berlin Raided Heavy Blows Struck To Break Invasion Preparations

LONDON, Sept. 24 (AP) Countering German invasion preparations with all its power, the British air force rapped home blow after blow today, attacking German ships caught in the English channel, carrying out the greatest raid of the war on Berlin and leaving the German-held French coast in flames.

Eyewitnesses saw five British bombers dive in line upon four medium-size German ships approaching Boulogne, on the French coast, and apparently sink them all. The channel was almost as smooth as glass. Geysers of water hid the ship. rom view after a first barrage of combs. When one ship was seen to remain, a second diving attack was made. After the water and smoke had settled, it too had dis-appeared from the view of obrvers on the British coast at Folkstone.

Although torpedo-armed German mosquito boats dashed out of the Boulogne harbor, they quickly put about and returned to their British sources said the attack on Berlin last night was carried out by relays of planes which started and returned like sched-uled trains from a railway station. The German capital's main power station and gas works were bacons which guided the way to subsequent attacks on freight yards, stations and utilities.

South, West To Gain Seats In The Senate

WASHINGTON, Sept. 24. (P)-The 1940 census figures indicated today that the South and Far West would gain eight seats in the house of representatives at the expense of the Midwast and industrial East.

Unofficial computations made on the basis of preliminary figures showed that, under the existing formula, the reappointment due spring may give two extra seats to California and one each to Arizona, Florida, New Maxico, North Carolina, Oregon and Ten-

The same figures indicated losses of one seat each for Illinois Indiana, Kansas, Massachusetts, Nebraska, Ohio, Oklahoma and Pennsylvania. These states either lost population or failed to gain as much as the others.

If preliminary computations stand up, they will form the basis upon which the house of representatives will be elected in 1942 and also will alter the electoral college voting in the presidential election of 1944.

The calculations were based on congress' previously announced intention of keeping the number of seats in the house at 435-the number prevailing since the 1910 cen sus. Legally, congress could adopt a system of adding enough seats to satisfy the gaining states without taking any away from the indicated losers. This was done gen erally before 1910.

Brady Airport Is Given Designation

WASHINGTON, Sept. 24 CTY The war department notified Representative South (D-Tex) today it had designated the Brady, Tex., airport as a national defense project for priority rating in the allocation of federal work relief funds. South said improvements tents tively estimated to cost $311,000 had been proposed for the Brady airport, which is approximately half between Randolph Field in way San Antonio and the new army air training school at San Angelo. The federal share of the total proposed project cost would be $222.000.

Should Hatch Act Apply To Draftees?

WASHINGTON, Sept. 24 (P)-Concern was manifested in the senate today as to whether the Hatch anti-politics act should be applied to the men selected for military service under the peacetime conscription law.

The question was raised by the ivil service commission ruling that national guardsmen, inducted into active service or still attending weekly drill, were bound by the statute which forbids those paid in whole or in part with gov ernment funds discussing political candidates publicly or participat ing in a campaign.

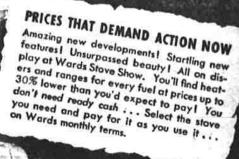

Senator Gibson (R-Vt) said in the senate yesterday that he con sidered this ruling "dangerous" and voiced the fear it would be ex tended to include conscription trainees.

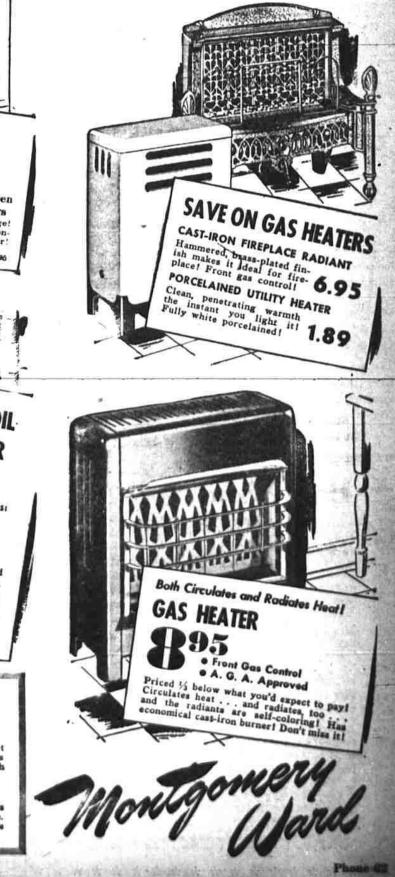

Senators Vanenberg (R-Mich) and Connally (D-Tex) both ques tioned the right of the civil service commission to fix regulations gov erning army personnel.

The Effects Of Liquor Cannot Be Repealed

Mortality among barmen is no oriously high, says the Scottish Temperance Reformer. According to a comparatively recent statistical survey by the Scottish Regis-trar General, the deaths of motor vehicle drivers was 826, that of coal miners 1,226, and that of barnen during the same period was 1,955. Very significant figures con sidering the fact that there should e no dangers for a salesman. The mortality dangers attaching to service in public houses is recognized by the British life assurance companies. publicans, 39 offices charge an additional premium. . . , the remain-ing 11 companies have no set rate but judge each case on its ow merits. Barmen are poor risks becaus of the nature of their employment. Alcohol turns the barroom into a dangerous place where anything is likely to happen. The men and women who are drinking are breaking down their inhibitions as the alcohol is carried through the blood into the brain. Sometimes it takes only fifteen or twenty minutes for this to happen and then often the drinkers become quarrel ome and aggressive. The barmen trying to maintain order are quite likely to come in for more than their share of the dangers of the awless place.

Barmen who drink are just that nuch poorer risks because alcohol s responsible, directly or indirectly, for about one in every thirteen deaths at adult age, according to Phelps, an authority on mor-tality statistics. — (Submitted by and published at the request of the al WOTU.)

With the 1940 census practically complete, the figures show a profound change in populatrends. For the first time in many years, the rural population showed an increase as compared with little better than a standstill by the larger urban communities; and the farm population-that is, those living on farms-gained more than 2,000,000, on the count to date.

A superficial analysis would have it appear that the gain is due to the higher birth-rate in the country areas. But, as a matter of fact, one believes the increase has not come from that source, but from the back-to-the-farm movement of the depression on urban employment. The former country boys, out of work in the cities have trekked back to the country, knowing that while wages might be lower, there was a greater cartainty of an income that would keep body and soul together, with lower living costs and easier conditions of living.

On the other hand and contrary to the national trend the states that lost population-a solid tier that ranged from the Dakotas to Okla-

But the obvious explanation of this is that those states comprised the group in which the punishment from the dust bowl was most severe. The heavy gains scored on the Pacific coast are largely the result of that same condition, the hegira from those sections heading principally for the coast states with the Texas Panhandle, which also showed many county losses, contributing materially to the total.

The rural trend of the decade is made all the more notable by the fact that it was during a time of severe depression in farm prices and farm income, Were farm prices and farm incomes back to what they were prior to 1920, there is no telling how much greater the change might have been. SAN JUAN, P. R.-The defense program has given new energy and drive to life in San Juan. This is to be the principal link in a defensive chain of air and naval bases that stretches from Newfoundland to beyond Panama.

You drive along the streets and you see 1 line of big army tanks. Farther on you' see a row of big army tents. Under each of those tents is a 155 mm. gun. You look out over the harbor and your eye picks up a squadron of new destroyers, gray and low-lying in the water. They patrol this part of the ocean ceaselessly.

Just now I stood under a coconut tree and watched four great naval scaplanes alight in the harbor. A few hundred yards away an army bomber came in from somewhere out of the summer skies. Dive bombing practice, probably. You see interceptor and fighter planes roaring into the air. They are small and seem like silver wasps in the sun. They get into the air with incredible speed.

The construction of landing fields and the army airdromes is being pushed 24 hours a day. You can't get into these fields unless you have proper credentials. But all night long you can hear the hammering and see the lights where the men are at work. Sometimes at night you can hear the dull boom and then the high, shrill whistle, or scream, of the big shells in flight. Coastal batteries in night practice. Everyone talks about the trial black-outs, with which all of Puerto Rico is accustoming itself. These blackouts last 45 minutes.

This morning I had the pleasure of flying over the Island and out over the great naval har bor in the Caribbean.

despite claims that there are no snakes in Puerto Rico, he personally has found boa constrictors eight feel long in the hills. The reason there are supposed to be no snakes on the island is that ne time ago a number of mongooses were imported to clean them out. The mongooses prospered and run wild.

Even over the highest ranges of the mountains you are impressed by the many dwellings. Puerto Rico isn't very large-perhaps a hundred miles long and 30 to 40 wide So every inch of space is valuable. This island is one of the most densely populated in the world. They have a saving here that ever, time anyone takes a deep breath a couple of Puerto Ricana are pushed off into the sea-

Hollywood Sights And Sounds

HOLLYWOOD-Those who insist that Hollywood is as blind as justice have a new talking point in Laird Cregar.

Cregar is a huge fellow. It's practically im possible not to see, and yet he had to find his showcase before the town could see him. He found it in the play "Oscar Wilde," but before that, for all his massive hulk, he got fewer jobs in Hollywood than a reasonably lucky midget could expect. A midget, at least, could slip through a studio gate. Cregar, standing six feet 3 inches and weighing some 303 pounds (a point on which he's sensitive) couldn't slip through anything, which means he got into pictures on acting. But not without a struggle.

You'll find him now on the stages of "Hudon's Bay," wearing a heavy beard and the buckskins of a Canadian frontiersman. It's his first movie, but his role is practically as good as Paul Muni's. He'll be wearing beards (he expects) for quite a while yet, because his face isn't as yet aged enough for the character he must play. He's newly 24, a year younger than Orson Welles.

To begin where he did, Cregar went to Philadelphia public schools until he was 8, then to prep schools in England. That's where he decided to become an actor, and he stuck to it in American prep schools. He acted and wrote plays (one a revue for which he even designed the costumes). When he left school, at 14, he got into stock around Philadelphia-successfully enough to win a scholarship to the Pasadena Community

Playhouse. After training he returned to Philadelphia, found actors overly abundant, and settled for a spot in the Federal theatre. Back in Pasadena in 1939, as a professional, he worked steadily from January until July, then accepted a role in "The Great American Family." It closed a month later, and he was on his o' n in a town full of unemployed actors. From September to April, 1940, he worked a total of five days in pictures, and that was all.

"I tried to get any kind of work-digging ditches, dishwashing, anything," he says. "I finally even tried to get on relief, collect unemployment insurance, for while I had earned the necessary $300, it hadn't been within the required period. Without kind friends, I'd have starved. Yes, it's true I was sleeping in the back seat of a friend's sedan, eating where I could, before 'Wilde'.'

"Wilde" was his own idea. Having read the play, he set out to find a producer, and Arthur Hutchinson was his man. Cregar as Wilds got rave notices, but no immediate studio bids play here was no great financial success, but Cregar ate regularly again. And finally the studios stepped in-five offers at once.

For all his size, Laird is soft-voiced and hum ble before his current good fortune. Independent, though, for he rejected a studio which would have paid $50 a week more in favor of one in which he "felt comfortable." The other, he safd, reminded him of a prison.

HIS season the Humble Company again has the privilege of bringing to its friends, customers and employes radio descriptions of Southwest Conference football games.

We hope that you will tune them in, that you will enjoy them as thoroughly as you have in previous seasons.

We also hope that the broadcasts will lead you to see more football games—high school, college and university—with your own two eyes. Week-end after weekend, throughout this season, there will be games worth driving a good many miles to see, thrilling games packed full of red-blooded, American action.

Lay your plans to see as many of them as you can. Drive to them in your car. And to assure that you will have a pleasant, trouble-free trip, take your car by a Humble station for service before you start, fill up with Humble on your way.

Follow the Humble route to football games this fall!
