By United Press.
DENVER, Colo., Nov. 19.—The trek of an I. W. W. army of "foot-loose rebels" to Colorado coal fields may end in the city jail here.

Officials tonight prepared cells while magistrates dusted law books dealing with 90-day vagrancy sentences.

All is in readiness to receive the visiting host ordered to the strike zone by the national organization of the I. W. W. Special police have been assigned to watch all gathering places frequented by hoboes.

Authorities Are Probing Arms Smuggling Plot

By United Press.
SAN FRANCISCO, Calif., Nov. 19.—Federal and local authorities tonight were attempting to weave plots involving filleting of arms, smuggling Mexican revolutionists and gangster warfare about John Mannerston, head of the Pacific Arms Corporation of San Francisco.

Two cities of Romance, San Francisco and New Orleans saw the negotiations of Mannerston an alleged Mexican revolutionary agent. An arsenal containing large quantities of arms and ammunition was discovered by authorities in a raid on Mannerston's home in Alameda county across the bay from San Francisco.

Yesterday federal authorities raided two ships in New Orleans and seized a cargo of munitions. The ships were bound from New Orleans to Mexican points and South America.

Moody's Friends Urging Him to Show Some Pep

AUSTIN, Nov. 19.—An aggressive presentation of his own administration is urged by Governor Dan Moody's political friends.

With all the democratic lightning that is likely to be playing loose next year, they want Moody to stand out so prominently that he may easily be struck.

The governor's declaration for a tax reduction has already been followed by his statement asserting that road surfacing is being done under his administration a third cheaper than by his predecessors.

The tax reduction statement, however, is having some political effect. Governor Moody already is being besieged by those urging a special session of the legislature to provide for this or that need, since the state treasury has been pictured as overloaded. If such a session should be called the demands would send state expenditures to unprecedented heights.

Yet for each refusal to call a session and submit such needs, the governor is considered as laying himself open to incurring the opposition of communities where such expenditures are sought.

Ranger to Be Host to Central Texas Methodist Conference

CONVENTION BE LARGEST EVER HELD IN CITY

Meeting One Year Hence Will Bring at Least Thousand Ministers to City.

"We win the 1928 conference," was the message that Rev. George W. Shearer, pastor of the First Methodist church of Ranger, wired M. K. Collier Saturday noon from Fort Worth, where the Central Texas Methodist conference is in session.

The news was received very joyfully in Ranger, as the town as a whole was anxious to entertain the conference next year. Rev. Mr. Shearer's invitation to the conference to meet here in 1928 was backed up by many telegrams from Ranger clubs, churches and individuals.

Among the copies seen were telegrams sent by Fred Yonker, president of the Ranger Rotary club; John M. Gholson, president of the Chamber of Commerce; L. H. Hagaman, president of the Lions club; Ranger Automobile association; Ed Maher, president of the Retail Merchants association; Edwin K. Maher, personal; W. W. Carlin, grand knight, Ranger council Knights of Columbus; C. C. Craig, post commander Carl Barnes post; Parent-Teacher association; Ranger Times; Walter Murray; Rev. M. Collins, pastor St. Rita's church; A. J. Ratliff, chairman of the board of stewards of the Methodist church; Mrs. O. L. Phillips, president of the City Federation. There were many other wires sent, but the copies were not on file at the Ranger Chamber of Commerce.

Rev. H. B. Johnson, who personally went to Fort Worth to do what he could towards landing the conference for Ranger, said that the only question in the bishop's mind seemed to be Ranger's ability to handle 1,000 preachers, as the bishop did not seem to realize that Ranger was such a good-sized city. He said that Rev. Mr. Shearer convinced him that Ranger had taken care of bigger crowds than that and was able and eager to extend its hospitality to the Central Texas conference.

As far as can be ascertained this is the first time that the conference has ever met in Ranger. When the matter of extending the invitation first began to be talked about, Rev. Mr. Shearer said that he would not even ask for it unless he went to conference with everything paid in full, as far as conference dues and assessments were concerned. He turned in a fine report and it evidently carried a great deal of weight.

The conference, which will convene here in November, 1928, will bring at least 1,000 ministers to Ranger and plans for entertaining it will probably be set in motion as soon as Rev. Mr. Shearer returns to Ranger, as it is a foregone conclusion that since Ranger gets the conference, First Methodist church also gets its minister back.

NOGALES, Sonora, Mexico, Nov. 19.—Trapped on a railroad bridge in the southern part of this city, 20 school children and two teachers were run down by a hand car and seriously injured today. A number of the victims may die.

Many of them were trampled under foot and a number of the most seriously injured were crushed beneath the car.

Trainmen stationed near the bridge ran ahead when they observed that the oncoming car could not be halted and rescued some of the children.

AIDING THE FARMER.

It begins to look as though the small town bankers in West Texas have hit upon a solution for one of the most serious problems confronting the farmer and that the farmers, at least those in the section of the country may not be so deeply interested in what farm relief measures congress will adopt, if any.

Of late there have come to light numerous instances where bankers have made certain demands upon farmers to whom they lend money. Of course this is not necessarily new, for bankers have always made more or less demands, but now they have begun to demand that the farmer grow something on his farm besides cotton. There was a time when bankers considered a field of cotton as about the only worth while farm security, but things have changed. They are now asking Mr. Farmer how many dairy cows he has on his farm, how many meat hogs, how many chickens and how much else he has that will go toward sustaining the farm and the farm family. In other words they are trying to make the farmer feed himself and his family from the farm.

In a number of instances bankers have done much further than this. They have furnished farmers money to buy well bred hogs, chickens and dairy cows.

This is indeed very commendable on the part of the banker. He can be the farmer's best friend and make him diversify whether he wants to or not.

A movement has just recently been started in Eastland county to extend the privileges of the Boy Scout organization to the boys of the rural districts. This should have been done long ago. There is no good reason why the advantages of the Boy Scout organization should be confined to the boy in the city. The boy on the farm should be given just as much consideration in this respect as is the boy who lives in the city or the larger town. Give the country boy these advantages and you will see how quickly he will respond to the change in environment. He will be far better satisfied to stay in the country.

A couple that had been divorced for 26 years remarried the other day in Quincy, Ill. The reconciliation was brought about through one of their grand-children. There is no way of telling just how much children and grand-children can be worth to a family.

Famine will in all probability hasten the end of the civil war now raging in China. Many thousands of Chinese are now reported begging for food and hungry people cannot fight nor can they give much moral support to any movement.

We are glad we live in this country where we can support whom we please for president. People living in Mexico don't have this privilege. We are glad we live in this country, where we can do pretty much as we please, which we couldn't do if we were living in Italy under the rule of Premier Mussolini.

The editor of the Country Gentleman on his recent tour over West Texas said some mighty nice things about this section of the state, among them being a statement in substance that Texas and Texans are entirely too modest. He contends that we are not doing what should be done in telling the rest of the world of the wonderful opportunities that exist here. For some time we have been advocating advertising and publicity campaigns for various towns and communities of West Texas. This method would be one of the most effective in carrying out the suggestions of this editor who for the first time has seen and realized just what Texas has to offer in the way of undeveloped opportunities.

Gripings
 By GUS

Well, this is one Saturday we can eat our supper on time. We don't have to write no football story today as our esteemed contemporary, R. C. (Lord Chesterfield) Campbell, sport writer of the Eastland Telegram as well as society editor thereof, is handling the assignment.

If you don't like his story, you wouldn't like ours either because we get about two-thirds of our dope from him any-way.

The editor gets a letter from Pat in which he pans us a la Buzz Johnson. For fear we lose it too we shall run it here, "fifteen men on a dead man's chest—Yo, Ho, Ho and a bottle of rum." I would not date predict here what he would write if he got to the bottle first.

Dear Editor:
 The moral observations of Gus seem to be peculiarly reserved to himself. It is hard to tell where his sense and dullness meet. He does not seem to distinguish any difference between a honey bee and a tumble-bug.

His indignant insolence makes everybody anxious to see what he has to gripe about the next day, as he is ever ready to gripe on a subject upon which he has little or no knowledge whatever.

Take, for instance, football, chasing Murphy's fire wagon or picking a banjo. If a fatality were to occur on the gridiron it would be just like him to write, "fifteen men on a dead man's chest—Yo, Ho, Ho and a bottle of rum." I would not date predict here what he would write if he got to the bottle first.

He still has all the characteristics of an ice man—tells short stories instead of giving short weight, however.

The letter that he claims he lost was a faithful admonition to him to rise superior to the influences of an ice man, but you see what became of it. The only wonder is that he didn't say, "Sorry, Pat, but the weather is hot, it melted."

He doesn't need coaching on telling stories—he dispensed 10 to 20 tons of ice free handed in his early days and got well trained on the story end of it.

Yours truly,
 PAT.

We wish to inform the bespectacled world that we are hardened to all sorts of abuse and rough treatment and are hard to insult, but we feel it becoming in us at this time to say a word in regard to these bespectacled "ice man" gags that continue to be thrown at us from time to time.

The ice man earns every dime he makes through inclining the truth from its true line of geometrical rectitude and don't forget that. He gets lied to so much that he figures he don't draw any off-side penalty for lying himself occasionally.

When he leaves you ice and you say "pay you tomorrow," he knows dag gone good and well that you mean you'll pay him if you rely on his memory and not yours, and if you owe him a dime you'll forget it by the third day, and by the fourth day you'll swear you paid him when he left the ice.

And if your kid comes home from school hungry and you have been gadding around all day with your nose in somebody else's business and the kid eats up something from the ice box, you swear the ice man ate those fine foods and cuss out loud as you fry your husband an egg for supper.

If the ice man drink half the home brew that he gets credit for out of his customers' boxes, he'd be tighter than a boot before he covered half his route.

And if there's anything else you want to know about the ice man we can tell you that, too.

What little knowledge we have of human nature was gathered while we was a ice man, and we know the tricks of the trade from the ice man's protective angle and from the customers' too. The ice man is just as crooked as the individual customer makes him be in self defense—that, and no more.

That might give you a little inside on what your ice man thinks of you while you are slinging mud.

National Park In Kentucky Now Is Being Urged

LOUISVILLE, Ky.—A National Park in Kentucky, including world famous Mammoth Cave and the surrounding territory of subterranean marvels and scenic beauties, is planned by the Mammoth Cave National Park association, which is preparing to launch a state-wide campaign for $2,000,000 to purchase the Cave region.

Once purchased the lands, covering 70,018 acres, will be turned over to the United States government to be maintained and developed therefor as a national park. Congress has already authorized their acceptance.

The association sponsoring the project has compiled a list of figures which shows how national parks in other sections of the United States have been the means of attracting an enormous number of tourists, thus adding to the region's economic welfare and general progress.

America's National Parks until this time have practically all been West of the Mississippi with one exception, namely Lafayette National Park, on an island of eight square miles far up along the coast of Maine.

Members of the Mammoth Cave National Park association who have studied the situation carefully declare thousands of tourists who now go to the West will stay in the East, and with such a national park in Mammoth Cave and its adjoining region, so convenient, a multitude of other persons will be influenced to travel. Their visits will not be limited to a day or two in Kentucky. They will remain a week, or a month, visiting the state's other points of interest. This year only about 60,000 persons have visited the cave regions. With the impetus of advertising and development the National Government will give, it is estimated the number will be increased to 300,000 a year within a short time, and of course the growth will be continuous.

WHAT THEY'RE SAYING

By RODNEY DUTCHER
 NEA Service Writer
 WASHINGTON.—The seventieth congress will soon meet and consider various issues of import and if the people of the United States refuse to get excited about these issues, it may be because many of them have been up in one form or another for the last 125 or 150 years. The twentieth century finds May or Bill Thompson of Chicago howling against King George III just as the eighteenth century found the fathers howling likewise. The administration of George Washington had its problems of taxes, debt reduction, federal economy, armaments, third terms, foreign relations and so on, even as the administration of Calvin Coolidge. There were blocs and lobbyists then as now, and there were statesmen to protest them. Washington waited until September, 1796, two months before election time, to decline a third term in his famous farewell address. Incidentally, he used a form of the word "choose" when he apprised the country of his resolution "to decline being considered among the number of those out of whom a choice is to be made." He was not ambiguous; he actually apologized for his decision; he used about 500 words where Coolidge used 10 and everyone knew what he meant. There was no talk of drafting him and the senate had no need to pass any anti-third term resolution.

"Every day the increasing weight of years admonishes me more and more that the shade of retirement is as necessary to me as it will be welcome," he said. "While choice and prudence invite me to quit the political scene, patriotism does not forbid it."

Washington, too, apparently had a "western wing" on his hands, although it may not have resembled the Norris-Borah group which undertakes to array the west against the east.

"In contemplating causes which may disturb our union," he said, "it occurs as a matter of serious concern, that any ground should have been furnished for characterizing parties by geographical discriminations—northern and southern, Atlantic and western—whence designing men may endeavor to excite a belief that there is a real difference of local interest and views. . . . The inhabitants of our western country . . . have lately seen . . . a decisive proof how unfounded were the suspicions propagated among them of a policy in the general government and in the Atlantic states, unfriendly to their interests. . . ."

As for economy, armaments and debts: "Avoid occasions of expense by cultivating peace, but remembering also that timely disbursements to prepare for danger frequently avoid much greater disbursements to repel it; avoiding likewise the accumulation of debt, not only by shunning occasions of expense, but by vigorous exertions in time of peace to discharge the debts which unavoidable wars may have occasioned, not ungenerously throwing on prosperity the burden which we ourselves ought to bear."

Eastland Paving Program About Half Completed

More than 25 blocks, almost one-half of the paving that is to be done on Eastland city streets under the present contract, has been completed and work is going steadily forward on the balance of it.

So well pleased are the citizens generally with the new paved streets, that city officials say it is more than likely that when the present contract is completed additional contracts will be made until virtually all of the streets of the city are paved. Nothing but brick paving and this on concrete base and with concrete curbs, is being put down. And no paving is put down until sewerage and water mains and storm sewers, where necessary, are laid.

Judge J. R. Stubblefield of Eastland, who owns considerable property in the city, is paying for more street paving than any other firm or individual, records at the city hall disclose.

TITLE TILT BETWEEN CISCO AND ABILENE TO DRAW BIG CROWD

CHAMPIONSHIP FOR DISTRICT TO BE DECIDED

Or Paper Abilene May Have Slight Edge But Lobos Have Fighting Spirit.

By GUS COLEMAN.

Football fans of the oil belt, and in fact of all West Texas, will have a treat this week with the closing of the conference schedule for this district and the final game, between Cisco and Abilene, which will decide the championship of the district and determine which team will go on in the race for the high school championship of the state.

The thrill of suspense is as great as was that of 1926, when Cisco and Ranger were tied for top place and a play-off for the district championship was necessary. This year, however, both the Lobos and the Eagles have decisively defeated every team they have met and each stands out as an undefeated team with a very small score having been filed up by their opponents to date.

Comparative scores mean little in this day of upsets in football, for there are too many different factors combined in each game by each team, but the consensus of opinion gives Abilene preference over Cisco by reason of their better showing against the majority of the same teams played by Cisco.

But this cannot be taken as basis for a forecast, particularly in their comparative showings against Ranger. Abilene beat Ranger 33 to 0 but Reeves and Garland Hinman were both crippled. These latter two were in the game against Cisco, yet Cisco beat Ranger 22 to 0.

The total score of the two teams against other teams of the district shows that Abilene has totaled 187 points against their opponents' 14, while Cisco has run up 136 points against their opponents' 7. This 7 points was made by none other than the Breckenridge Buckaroos, who have not been considered seriously as contenders for the flag.

Abilene has an effective passing combination in Walters to Salkeld, while Cisco has one that looks mighty good in Pippen to Keyes and Pippen to Little. Abilene has Smith for line plungers, but what shall we say of Cisco's Eddleman? Then Cisco has Little, who darts and ducks and dodges his way through seemingly impassable tacklers and twists himself loose and drives hard until the

Special Train Over T. & P. To Abilene Game

With the assurance that Ranger and Eastland fans would support the Cisco Lobos in their race for the district championship the Lobo management has arranged for their special train to Abilene Friday to stop in Ranger and Eastland to pick up passengers.

They have made arrangements for 100 passengers to go from each of these towns and the special will run on a comparatively fast schedule.

It will pass through Ranger at 11:30 a. m. and through Eastland at 11:50 a. m. The fare from Ranger to Abilene and return aboard the special will be $1.75 and the fare from Eastland will be $1.60.

It is likely that the space reserved for local fans will prove inadequate to handle all of those who will want to go and it is suggested that fans buy their tickets at the railroad offices early so as to be sure of their accommodations. The train will leave Abilene at 6:30 p. m. on the return trip and will arrive in Eastland at 8:30 and in Ranger at 8:50.

referees' whistle blows. Abilene does not have any such man as Little.

Still, it must be remembered that Abilene has a line that is somewhat superior to that of Cisco's and the average weight of the players is several pounds more. It must be remembered too that the Lobos have a fighting heart and a good coach, but the same may be said of the Eagles.

This will be the outstanding game of Texas for the coming week and Abilene is preparing to handle one of the largest crowds of football enthusiasts that has ever been in town. It is expected that more than 500 will ride the special train out of Cisco, while at least 100 will go from both Ranger and Eastland. This is in addition to the hundreds of fans who will drive to Abilene in their cars.

EAGLES DEFEAT BOBCATS 66-7, ONE SIDED GAME

Abilene Apparently Was Able to Score at Will as Ten Touchdowns Indicate.

Special Correspondence.

ABILENE, Tex., Nov. 19.—The Abilene Eagles ran true to form and in line with expectations Saturday afternoon and swamped the San Angelo Bobcats by a score of 66 to 7.

The lone touchdown for the Bobcats came in the third quarter, when Baldwin went over for a touchdown, but it must be borne in mind that by this time Coach Mayhew had pulled most of his first string men out of the game and had practically all second string men on the field.

Red Haley of the Bobcats played his usual hard defensive game but was unable to get away for any long gains on offense.

The Eagles made 26 first downs to the Bobcats 8 which is supporting evidence of their superiority. The game was one of straight football, the Eagles getting away for good gains from scrimmage seemingly at will. Abilene only attempted three passes, two of which were complete and one intercepted. Thus was their passing game kept under cover from the scouts of the Cisco Lobos, in case any happened to be present.

The scoring for Abilene was as follows: touchdowns, Phelps 4, Sellers 3, Walters 1, Salkeld 1, and Smith 1. An unusual incident about the game was that six touchdowns were followed up by an extra point for Abilene.

The winning of the game by the Eagles leaves only they and Cisco in the race for the championship of the district.

HILL BILLIES GO DOWN BEFORE ST. EDWARDS

Not Half Bad

By CLARK B. KELSEY
United Press Staff Correspondent
CHICAGO, Nov. 19.—While Red Grange, and possibly Benny Friedman are growing $1,000 bills on the professional football gridiron, hundreds of other athletes are taking up the pigskin trade, and working it seriously as a business, a United Press survey shows.

When it is considered that total admissions paid for college football games in the United States run over $30,000,000 a year, it is evident that the coaching profession is worth getting into. The Army-Navy game of 1926 brought in $800,000. Ohio State played Michigan in 1926 before 24,000 persons who paid admission. A Yale-Harvard contest attracts a $400,000 gate. The referee of this contest is said to make $500 for his two hours' work.

From these glittering sums we come down to the practical level. High school coaches make from 2,000 to $5,000 a season. College coaches earn from $3,000 and more. In the Big 10 conference the salaries range from $5,000 to $10,000 per season.

Former stars make "side money" by coaching sandlot or semi-professional teams. Others go in for officiating on the same basis. An official in a Big 10 football game makes $75 to $100 per game. One such official goes outside the conference, and starts officiating at high school games in September, and finishes up in California in mid-winter.

When the basketball season rolls around, they can get basketball games to work. Fred, "Buck" Young, Bloomington, Ill., nationally known football and basketball official could toot the whistle every afternoon and evening for five months if he could spare the time from his sports editor's chair for that long a period.

In the high school and semi-pro class, the officials get $15 to $25, and work Saturdays and Sundays during a 10-week season.

BRECKENRIDGE AND RANGER TO PLAY THURSDAY

Bulldogs Have Their Conference Standing at Stake in This Game.

Of course, all eyes are on the game between Cisco and Abilene this week in their game for the district championship, but please don't forget that the Ranger Bulldogs have a little business to attend to in Breckenridge on the afternoon of next Thursday, the same being Thanksgiving day and the business being that of a football game with the Buckaroos of Breckenridge.

And don't get the idea that there's very little involved in the game either, because by winning it the Bulldogs cinch third place in the district and by losing it they tie with San Angelo for the bottom position. Of course, the football rivalry of the county remains between Ranger and Cisco but Ranger's biggest rival outside of the county is Breckenridge.

The Buckaroos have not shown so much this year, but they have scored on Cisco and that's more than any other team in the district can say so far. If the Bulldogs can put over a touchdown in the first quarter they might cage the Buckaroos goat as have the other teams done, but if they don't—there's no telling how many scores those Buckaroos might pile up if they kept going.

It appears however, that the Bulldogs will be in better physical shape for the game than they have been in any game since they played Eastland. Garland Hinman's ankle seems to be in fairly good shape again and David Whitehall is back to where he can get around pretty good. Byron Reeves will be okeh for a good part of the game unless he hurts his knee again in practice the coming week.

It begins to look like Charlie Hamilton is hitting his stride. Judging from reports from Lillard field Saturday, in which case he will be good for some nice playing. We have said before and repeat again that Charlie has the physical qualities to be an all-conference halfback and hard work on his part will make him that in another year or two.

Way back about the first of the season a party whose name we won't mention remarked that Breckenridge had some good men and a good coach and that before the end of the season they would show somebody some football. In case you hadn't thought of it, Mr. P. E. Shotwell is the gentleman who coached the Abilene Eagles to a state championship in 1923.

Breckenridge always turns out a large crowd to see the battle between the Bulldogs and the Buckaroos and always comes to Ranger in full force when the game is played here. It would be a source of great delight to them to be able to say that, although they were not in the running, they defeated the 1926 West Texas champions. They may have been pointing for this game all along—who knows?

A lot of big eastern colleges play their big game of the year on "turkey day." It could be that Shotwell has been saving up for the last few weeks to take a huge poke at Cherry's men on this occasion and re-establish the old rivalry that existed between the Bulldogs and the Bucks in the days of the Zaratofinis boys and Ted Rummage and Tom Yonker.

What this country needs is less talk about evolution and more of it.

Longhorn Aggie Battle Will Be Classic Affair

COLLEGE STATION, Nov. 19.—With the special appeal of the Southwest conference football championship as the fruit of a victory to urge them on the Texas Aggies are preparing with a mounting determination for the annual Thanksgiving game with the Texas Longhorns to be played on Kyle Field here Nov. 24.

Only the short span of two years ago found the Aggies within one victory of the conference championship Thanksgiving Day and when the final whistle was sounded in that game the scoreboard showed: A. & M. 28, Texas 0.

Hoping that history will repeat itself in this instance, the Aggies have been preparing for this colorful, spectacular battle, which is still the Southwest's gridiron classic, with the same determination and enthusiasm that characterized their efforts on the eve of the recent Aggie-Mustang game in which they surprised many followers of the football shrine throughout the nation by winning, 39 to 13. Realizing that the Thanksgiving game will mark the end of a perfect season if victory is achieved, the Aggies expect to amass that fighting spirit that has made Kyle Field hallowed since on it the high hopes of visiting teams have so often been blasted.

Although even victory would not give them the highest conference laurels this year, reports emanating from Austin, the camp of the Longhorns, indicate Texas is going to enter the Turkey Day game with the same resolution exhibited in the fall of 1923 when they bore their Kyle Field jinx for the first time and defeated the Aggies, 6 to 0. It will be recalled that this game was the first time that "Doc" Stewart, then the new Texas coach, had faced A. & M., and his introduction was to be on Kyle Field. Four years later finds another new coach, Clyde Littlefield, facing the Aggies in football for the first time as a mentor, and his introduction, too, is to be on Kyle Field. The Longhorn supporters are hoping that history will repeat itself in this instance.

In addition to the traditionally close games between the two institutions, during which new stars always are created and players of greater prominence achieve their highest heights, the color formed by the 2400 Aggie cadets in formation and by the hundred Aggie band, and by the several noted University of Texas co-eds, the Cowboys, and the Longhorn band, is almost of as much interest to many spectators as the outcome of the contest. With a crowd present almost certain to reach the 25,000 mark, along with the spectacular features, the Thanksgiving game will rival in attendance and interest the big games in the East between the country's best known clovers for which great throngs gather.

Mayor Thompson of Chicago was praised as the senate committee took up the flood situation. He "crystallized public sentiment in favor of flood control," and what a job he must have had of it in the Mississippi valley.

A Matter of Records

The annual national convention of the Amateur Athletic Union at Cincinnati next week will be asked to approve the world's record of 41 seconds for the 440-yard relay, established by a quartet wearing the colors of the Newark Athletic club last July.

This invites attention to the strength of the United States in the sprint and relay events which will be an important part of the track and field program of the IX Olympiad at Amsterdam next summer.

At Lincoln, Nebraska where the national championships of the A. A. U. were held, no fewer than four different teams broke the record for the 440 yard relay before the Newark A. C. flyers finally set the time at 41 flat.

The New York A. C. relay team, Michigan State's quartet and four flyers headed by Charley Paddock and representing the Los Angeles A. C., all bettered the mark established in 1925.

Charley Paddock, incidentally, declined to participate in any individual events. The "fastest Human" is sensitive about his performances on the cinders.

One would imagine that Charley, who has been about a bit and has traveled to two Olympiads as well as having posed, by request, with California bathing beauties, would be calloused and rather hard-boiled about his track honors. But Paddock simply does not like to be beaten, and until recently he had refused to leave the Pacific Coast.

Now Charley has hinted that he will go east this winter and participate in the indoors, if a 100 yard straightaway can be found to suit his purpose. There are two reasons for Paddock's decision, probably. One is his confidence that he can erase from the books certain records now credited to Bob McAllister, the "Flying Cop". The other is that next year the Olympic Games will be with us once more, and then will come Charley's last chance, if he makes the American team, to win world sprint laurels.

By 1932 the youngster will certainly have crowded the "Fastest Human" off the cinders.

America's strength in the sprints, as demonstrated at Lincoln last July, was by no means confined to the relay events.

Consider the fact that six runners finished within a stride in the finals of the 100-yard dash at the A. A. U. senior national championships, and that the winner's time was 9 3-5 seconds. This means that the five others were no slower than 9 4-5.

Chet Bowman of the Newark A. C. former Syracuse flyer and football star, won that race, beating Charley Borah of Hollywood, Roland Locke, Nebraska, Jackson Scholz, New York A. C., Henry Cummings of Newark and Frank Hussey, N. Y. A. C., in the order named.

And a medium sized Indian blanket would cover the sextet.

Other nations may be anticipating the coming of the Olympic games with more elaborate preparations than the United States, but none of them can produce sprinters of that caliber—nor can all of them put together.

The indoor meets this winter may produce some new stars, although the athletic firmament has been pretty thoroughly charted for the time being.

The A. A. U. national indoor track and field championships, incidentally, will be held at Madison Square Garden, New York City.

By FRANK GETTY,
United Press Sports Writer.

It is generally conceded, even among the more rabid partisans of Cambridge, Mass., that this is one year when Yale should make mince meat of Harvard in their annual football game.

Yet when the starting signal pipes across Soldier's Field and the hollow boom of the kickoff echoes and reaches through the crowded stadium on Saturday, the Bulldogs advantages will have been reduced to a minimum.

A Harvard-Yale football game is one of those things not lightly to be doped out in advance.

The under-dog fights in a Harvard-Yale football game as in no other contest of its kind. The coaches fear over-confidence on the part of their men more than they fear any other drawback.

The game is a classic, and that means more than just a football contest.

The outstanding lesson of the 1927 gridiron season has been this: You never can tell about a football game.

The word "upset," of course, no longer has a place in the game's vocabulary, for who is to say what constitutes an "upset"—when "upsets" become the rule?

Self-appointed experts make one team a strong favorite and then its opponents trample it into the sod—and the experts holler "upset." About the only actual upset each Saturday is that in which the experts are stood upon their heads.

But they're a hardy tribe; they're back for more each week.

Yale goes to Cambridge with a football team admittedly superior to that of Harvard. But along about 2 p. m. Saturday, that superiority disappears, and must be demonstrated all over again in an hour of combat.

A team's record during the season never yet won it the Harvard-Yale game.

Two years ago, when the Bulldog last rushed growling and snapping onto Soldier's Field, the Crimson appeared hopelessly outclassed. And on that occasion, Harvard's team fought as Harvard teams will under the circumstances, and held a powerful Eli eleven to a scoreless tie.

Harvard has been in the football doldrums for a number of years, but the university has confidence in Arnie Horween to restore something of the prestige of bygone days.

Neither Harvard nor any other school over will reach the lonely heights of football grandeur attained occasionally by teams before the war. The heights will never be lonely again. They will be crowded with rivals.

Football has become a national game in more ways than one. Not only is it played in every section of the land, but it is played well.

But Harvard's ambition does not extend too high. A clean slate for the season, topped off by a victory over Yale, would satisfy.

Before that time comes, Harvard must make some more beatings. Probably the Crimson will take a bad one on Saturday.

Eastland Names New Salvation Army Officers

At the annual meeting of the board of directors of the Salvation Army in Eastland Friday night officers for the ensuing year were elected and plans made for the annual campaign for funds with which to carry on the organization's work during the coming year.

The newly elected officers are: Mrs. W. K. Jackson, president; W. E. Smith, vice president; Mrs. W. Z. Outward, secretary; W. E. Jarrett, treasurer. The board of directors is composed of the following: Mrs. Scott W. Key, Mrs. C. U. Connelley, Mrs. Claire McCormick, H. P. Brelsford, L. J. Lambert, W. E. Davis, M. McCullough, C. G. Norton, T. J. Cunningham.

Tentative plans have been made for launching the campaign for funds for the Salvation Army on Tuesday, Nov. 29, and continuing through to Dec. 3, which day will be "tag day." Campaign headquarters will be at the Eastland Music company on the west side of the square. On Monday, Nov. 28, a committee will do some preliminary work among the business men of the city.

Mrs. W. K. Jackson, although she accepted the presidency rather reluctantly, has gone to work to organize the forces of the city to put the campaign over and raise Eastland's quota. In doing this, arrangements have been made for enlisting the help of the various civic organizations of the city in the move. Horace Butler will address the Rotary club Monday, V. T. Seaberry will bring the matter to the attention of the Lions club Tuesday, Mr. Mahan will speak on the subject before the Elks club Monday night, Mrs. C. U. Connelley will talk to the Parent-Teacher association Tuesday. Other speakers will go before other organizations later.

Manager Smith of the Connelley theatre announced that at Monday afternoon's matinee and Monday night's show at the Connelley he would accept clothing and other useful gifts for the Salvation Army in exchange for tickets to the show. Of course those not desiring to exchange things of this kind may purchase tickets to the show as usual.

BROWNSVILLE.—Charging that that foreign travel in Mexico has decreased because of "alarmist propaganda by some American newspaper men," and on account of immigration law restrictions, the directorial board of the National railway lines has announced that a branch will be established at San Antonio, Texas.

The railroad, affected by the decreased travel, plans to establish its branch in order to furnish ample information of conditions in Mexico and to nullify false reports which, they allege, has been published in the United States.

Immigration restrictions will be modified, officers said. The personnel of the new San Antonio office is to include several newspaper men and commercial experts.

University Has Collection of Manuscripts

AUSTIN, Nov. 19.—A collection of manuscripts and other papers bearing much of interest regarding early day Texas is a gift recently made by Mrs. J. M. Olivari of San Antonio to the University of Texas library. Among the papers are representations of Texas under many different circumstances. One of the papers is a list of the Spanish soldiers stationed at Bexar in 1797. Another paper is an original passport issued by General Martin Perfecte de Cos, brother-in-law of General Santa Anna. This passport was issued to a soldier in the Mexican army whose name was Eduardo Hernandez.

Other papers list the names of soldiers who took part in several of the famous expeditions of Texas such as the Santa Fe and Mier expeditions with a list of the prisoners on the former and also a list of those taking part in the Somerville campaign.

A copy of the Southwestern American, published Saturday, Jan. 19, 1850, in Austin is another of the papers presented by Mrs. Olivari, the benefactor of these papers is a distant relative of John W. Smith, historically famous as the last messenger to be sent out of the Alamo.

These papers were given to the university through Dr. Charles W. Ramsdell, professor of American history in the university. Dr. Ramsdell has also recently secured for the university the loan of a diary or journal kept by Samuel A. Maverick, from Mrs. Albert Maverick of San Antonio. This journal is to be copied and the copy placed with the numerous other papers of Mr. Maverick's which have already been given to the university by other descendants of the pioneer Texan.

This last journal was begun March 16, 1835 upon Mr. Maverick's leaving his home in South Carolina and setting sail for Texas. It traces in detail the happenings in Texas up to January 1, 1835 when the last entry made gives this comment: "Men set out for LaBahia to rendezvous for an attack on Matamoros."

The diary gives the events of 1835 and especially notes on the storming of "Bexar" in the close of 1835. Mr. Maverick spent part of that time in the town of "Bexar" being detained by the Mexicans and part in action against the Mexicans.

Mayor Thompson took 1500 people to Washington with him to impress upon the Congressional committee the need of flood relief. We suspect that before that committee gets through with Big Bill, it will have to call in the Red Cross for its own members.

Professional Golf Stars In Portland Play

By GEORGE D. CRISSEY
(United Press Staff Correspondent)
PORTLAND, Ore., Nov. 17.—Leading professionals of the United States, and many amateurs, started out this morning determined to conquer the "course of a million traps" and to win the Oregon State Golf championship.

More than 100 golfers started in the qualifying round today over the Weaverville Country Club course, as beautiful and tricky a bit of golf ground as there is in America. It lies adjoining the Willamette river and although its traps are far than its nickname indicates, it has plenty of them.

The presence of five starts of professional golfdom added considerable interest to the Oregon open title play which will be in progress today, tomorrow and Saturday. Tommy Armour, national open champion, is among the competitors and is a favorite to win.

Armour, however, has plenty of high class competition as other entries include: Al Espinosa, Chicago; Robby Cruikshank, New York; Leo Deitel, Washington and Bill Melhorn, Chicago, in addition to the stars of the Pacific Northwest and California.

Bert Wilde, Bellingham, Washington, professional, is the defending champion. Wilde is a good golfer but it is doubted if he will be able to retain his title, in view of the power of the competition and the usual inconsistencies of the game itself.

The Pacific Northwest, with its dozens of splendid golf courses, and all year around playing has developed numerous stars, both amateur and professional and it is not at all certain that any of the national experts will have an easy time eliminating the home town boys.

SAN ANTONIO—Abandoned rock quarries, frequently unsightly places, become outstanding beauty spots in San Antonio.

San Antonio plans to spend $300,000 converting an old quarry into a mammoth amphitheater. It is planned to have the conversion made before the national American Legion convention here in 1928. Many of the entertainment features of the convention, including a rodeo and mock bull fight, will be held in the amphitheater.

Decision to convert the quarry was made as a result of the success of the first quarry converted here. It was converted into a sunken garden that has become nationally known for its beauty.

Walter Hagen Is Not Through As Results Show

By United Press.
CHICAGO.—Walter Hagen, the "invincible" in match play is again the American Professional Golfing champion—and, as usual, more because of his head than clubs. Hagen won that title, for the fifth time, at Dallas recently and in doing so demonstrated emphatically that he is not through, as some unkind persons intimated a couple of years ago.

Apparently the "Haig" doesn't have an equal in pro golfing circles when it comes to match play. He may have an off day with his clubs, but on those occasions he merely relies a little more on the Hagen brain. No doubt he has outsmarted twice as many players as he ever outplayed. It may easily be said that he is the champion "goat-getter" of them all. Gene Sarazen once doubted this—doubted it so much in fact that he wrote an article about how easy it was for him to get Hagen's goat. Sarazen and Hagen met in a match not so long after that. Ask Gene who is the champion goat-getter now. Hagen was so far in front that there never was any question as to the outcome.

Walter M. Shea, assistant district attorney, was one of the investigators who disclosed suspicious activities of alleged Sinclair agents. Shea led the raid on headquarters of Burns detectives alleged to have shadowed the jurors.

Mason Day, A. Mason Day was the alleged "contact man" between Burns detectives who were shadowing jurors in the Fall-Sinclair conspiracy trial and the detectives' employers, according to the affidavit of Neil Burkinshaw, assistant United States district attorney.

Edward J. Kidwell, according to affidavits is the juror who "expressed great admiration for Sinclair" and said "If I don't get an automobile as long as this block I will be disappointed."

West Texas C of C Poultry - Dairy Bureau to Meet

LUEDERS, Nov. 19.—Lilas Lodge Penick, a vice-president of the West Texas chamber of commerce located near here, will be the scene of an official gathering of the new poultry and dairy bureau of the West Texas regional organization November 22, at which a year's program of work will be outlined. The poultry and dairy conference will call eight prominent West Texas leaders. Besides Col. Penick, the committee chairman, those who have been asked to attend are Col. R. Q. Lee of Cisco, former president of the West Texas chamber of commerce and a present member of its executive board, Gaylord Stone of the Universal Mills, Fort Worth, J. A. Kemo, West Texas chamber of commerce official and Wichita Falls financier, Wilson D. Jordan of Brady, W. P. Hallmark of Dublin, Herbert Jones of Post and R. C. Nicholl of Tutia, all of whom are prominently identified with West Texas chamber of commerce and general West Texas activities. Though the regional chamber poultry and dairy bureau has been organized but a brief time, it is already making itself felt in the western territory and has conducted poultry and dairy organization moves in various points of the section. Swenson, Roby and Rotan are three places which have been assisted by the bureau under direction of Col. Penick and exhibit agricultural manager B. M. Whiteaker of the West Texas chamber. The chief commercial producing apple belt of Texas lies in middle Western Texas in Callahan, Comanche, Erath, Stephens, Parker and adjoining counties.

BULLDOGS BATTLE HOWARD PAYNE TO SCORELESS DRAW

Reserves From Brownwood And Second String Bulldogs Play Fast Game

Before a crowd that was hardly discernible in the stands the Howard Payne Reserves battled a team composed of second and first string men representing Ranger high school to a 0 to 0 tie at Lillard Field, Ranger, Saturday afternoon.

The team started against the Reserves was composed almost entirely of second string men, Alfred Glenn being acting captain of the Ranger team. First string men were sent in for a few minutes of play at intervals in the game but at no time was the entire team composed of first string Bulldogs, Coach Blair Cherry preferring to keep his men in shape for the conference game with Breckenridge Thanksgiving day at Breckenridge.

Charlie Hamilton, Ranger half was the star of the offensive drive the Bulldogs started in the first half. Hamilton made 6 of the 8 first downs made in the first half, making two runs in the first quarter that netted 28 yards, and three in the second quarter for a total of 46 yards and received a pass from Glenn that netted 15 yards. It was Hamilton's half by a good margin.

The Bulldogs seemed certain to score in the second quarter after Hamilton had run the ball to the 13 yard line of the Reserves. But Hamilton fumbled on the first attempt and Nails recovered for Howard Payne. The Reserves punted out of danger to give Ranger the ball on the Reserves 47 yard line. Again the Bulldogs marched and passed the ball to place it in scoring position. Two passes, Glenn to Hubbard netted 35 yards and placed the ball on the Reserves 9 yard line. Three attempts to put the ball over placed it on the Reserves 2 yard line and Hamilton's desperate effort to crash through was broken up by the Reserves' strength.

The Reserves first threat came in the third quarter when Fields and Traywick made two runs netting 50 yards and placed the ball on Ranger's 48 yard line. Marcheck placed the ball in scoring position but the Bulldog line, braced by first string men, held the opposition for downs and Glenn punted out of danger.

Again the Bulldogs threatened to put over the first marker towards the end of the third quarter. A pass, Glenn to Seay, was completed to place the ball on the Reserve 9 yard line. Four attempts to penetrate the tough Reserves' line failed and the ball went over.

Harrell, quarter for the Reserves, really lost the game for Howard Payne. A short pass from Fields went unmolested into the waiting arms of Harrell, who was over the the Ranger goal line, who juggled the ball for an incompletion.

But the lack of the final punch did much to keep the visiting aggregation from carrying off the honors. The inability to make four yards in as many attempts, in the last two minutes of play, dismissed all chances for the team to score the winning marker. The Howard Payne scrubs had advanced the ball to Ranger's 10 yard line only to lose it on downs. Ernest Whitehall fumbled on the first play and Howard Payne recovered on Ranger's four yard line. Four attempts to cross failed and the ball was in Ranger's possession on her own 2 yard line.

Howard Payne made 10 first downs and Ranger 9. The Bulldogs completed 4 passes out of 11 attempts for a total of 59 yards. The Howard Payne eleven completed 2 out of 11 attempts for a total of 35 yards. Both teams suffered 15 yards penalties.

SHREVEPORT, La., Nov. 19.—Those Gentlemen of Centenary College chalked up their ninth victory of the season this afternoon, winning over Louisiana Polytechnic Institute 33 to 0.

With a series of flashing off tackle plays and an aerial bombardment that could not be stopped, the Gentlemen scored three touchdowns in the first half. The ball was carried across the goal line twice during the second half with the entire Centenary second team playing.

Centenary made 11 first downs and Polytechnic made 4.

LET'S TALK THIS OVER

Why are DAYTON "Red Stripe" TIRES So Popular Here and All Over Texas?

There are Reasons—Several of them. You have learned that Daytons are Heavier Tires—

Then—what about the number of PLIES? Would not ONE-THIRD more strength (represented by Six Plies instead of Four) appeal to your sense of safety—as well as to your views on economy? Just that difference which exists between anxiety—or care-free driving—just the cheapest tire in the long run, too.

Dayton "Red Stripes" are built on higher ideals of craftsmanship than other tires. They contain more weight of rubber throughout, and especially on the tread. They have from TWO to FOUR more plies of strongest cord fabric. They contain no Reclaimed Rubber. How reasonable is it, then, to obtain from 5000 to 10,000 more miles from Daytons than from other brands.

Mexico Awaits Leader's Next Step In Battle

By GESFORD F. FINE, United Press Staff Correspondent. MEXICO CITY.—Mexico has been waiting almost a month for the third act of its current political-revolutionary drama.

The second act has ended with two presidential candidates, Gen. Francisco R. Rojano and Gen. Arnulfo Gomez, being executed by federal troops.

President Calles and his ally, Gen. Obregon, the ex-president, are the only important actors left to finish the drama. While it waits for the rise of the curtains on this final scene, the audience that consists of the 15,000,000 citizens of Mexico is asking itself: "What are they going to do?"

Will Obregon and Calles continue their alliance, or will there be further "eliminations" in the contest for power in Mexico?

Will Obregon be the next president of Mexico, beginning in July, 1928, or will Calles prorogue his administration for another two years?—What will happen if Calles decides to continue in office against the possible opposition of Obregon?

The proposal for an increase in the presidential term of from four to six years has not yet been passed by the chamber of deputies. It was passed by the senate on short consideration. Now the word has come out from the chamber that the deputies are going to take their time in considering this question and that possibly no action on the law will be taken until September, 1928, at the opening of the new congress. By that time the presidential election will have been concluded several months.

According to the deputies their reason for delaying is so that they may feel out the sentiment in their constituencies for and against the six-year term. However, they admit that some urgent consideration may hasten the passage of the law during the present session. Although no one has said so specifically it is assumed that the deputies might feel the passage of the law was urgently required should President Calles express a strong preference for it. It is expected that if the law goes in to effect it will enable Calles to continue in office although on its face the measure is meant to apply to the incoming administration. All legal experts are apparently agreed that there is nothing in the proposal which would be a prorogation of the present Calles regime.

General Obregon is now in his home state of Sonora. Almost before the revolution was definitely ended, Obregon departed from the capital. Although he declared at the time he intended to continue his campaign, despite the elimination of the two opposition candidates, he has ceased speech-making and campaigning almost altogether. The Obregon headquarters in the heart of Mexico City present an almost deserted appearance in comparison with the activity which prevailed two months ago. El Monitor Republicano, the chief Obregon organ of the country which reportedly cost a thousand dollars daily to maintain has been suspended.

While Obregon has been away and the embers of the revolution, which were never very hot apparently, have been cooling off, the new American ambassador, Dwight W. Morrow, has arrived. It is possible that if he is able to find a solution for the problems that exist in the relations of the United States and Mexico it will also in some way aid in clearing up the internal situation.

It seems more probable, however, since Obregon and Calles think along approximately the same lines so far as the United States is concerned, that the two situations will not affect each other.

Perhaps the only hope lies in the chance that Morrow may either directly or indirectly do something which will cure some of the economic ills of Mexico and separate industry from politics. Such a step would mean a complete reversal of the present Calles policies but even this would not be impossible in Mexico.

Business Meeting Of Eastland Civic League on Monday

"BEAU GESTE" WINS PRIZE

By United Press. NEW YORK.—The motion picture making the strongest appeal to American film fans during the past year was "Beau Geste," the mystery romance of the French Foreign Legion, according to the results of a nationwide vote announced by Photoplay magazine in its December issue.

The announcement carries with it the award of Photoplay's seventh annual medal of honor, a distinction conferred each year on the production voted most popular by the magazine's readers. The previous year's award was to "The Big Parade." "Beau Geste," the film version of the Percival C. Wren novel, was directed by Herbert Brenon and produced by the Paramount-Famous-Lasky corporation. Outstanding in the cast were Ronald Colman, Alice Joyce, Noah Beery, William Powell and Ralph Forbes.

The latest development of the United States signal corps is night flying of pigeons. In Hawaii five army pigeons have already been trained to fly at night from any point on the island to their lofts.

COUNTY FEDERATION HAS MEETING AT RISING STAR

Representatives Of Rural Clubs Make Reports And Add New Interest To Meeting

The Eastland County Federation met at Rising Star Saturday afternoon in the newly erected Methodist church of that city, and had what perhaps was the most complete meeting it has ever held. On this occasion four rural clubs were represented.

These rural club women brought glowing reports of the work in canning that had been accomplished, of garments made and quilts quilted, so that by the time the reports were all given the federation felt that when the district federation next meets, the Eastland County Federation can compete with Mitchell county, which usually carries off the blue ribbons for canning and sewing.

These clubs were urged to join the federation but they carried the matter back to their own clubs for consideration.

When the some 60-odd attendants at Saturday's meeting entered the church, the Rising Star women served them piping hot coffee and homemade cookies, which tasted mighty good after a ride in the chill of Saturday's wind.

Mrs. W. W. Housewright, president of the federation, and its delegate to the state federation of women's clubs at El Paso, gave the club her report of the federation, which was interesting, snappy and well given.

Mrs. Philip Pettit of Cisco opened the meeting with a word of prayer and Mrs. Lexie Dean Robertson contributed several readings to the program. There were several musical numbers but perhaps the outstanding item, other than the delegate's report, was a round-table discussion participated in by representatives of various towns represented at the meeting. The question was "What Do You Consider the Greatest Asset to Your Town?" and the answer in every case was "the good Christian people." Each speaker brought out the fact that it was these people who were the backbone of a community, who stood behind its schools and churches and really were its greatest assets.

The rural clubs represented were organized a little less than a year ago and their achievements in that time were regarded as little short of marvelous. It seemed that the enthusiasm that the rural clubs brought into the meeting as they recounted what they had done, swept over the whole federation and strengthened the tie that binds them more strongly than it has ever before been welded.

A talk on community recreation, its value for enriching family, neighborhood and community life, was given by a Rising Star woman and was greatly appreciated.

EL PASO.—A moment after Judge J. M. Deaver acquitted Margarite Espinoza of carrying firearms on the ground that the gun would not shoot, the judge expressed his fear of unloaded weapons.

"Hey! Be careful where you point that gun; it might go off!" the judge shouted as a court attendant picked up the gun and idly pointed it toward the judge as the latter finished discharging Espinoza. The judge cucked under his bench as he shouted.

Legionnaire Has Photos Of Paris Convention

Al Tunc, who represented Carl Barnes Post No. 69 of Ranger at the second American expedition to Paris, in September, has some very fine pictures of the parade. A photograph of the Texas delegation, just as it marched through the Arch de Triomphe, is very good, and the rest of the delegation are hatted and capped in various ways. The picture shows the guard of soldiers that stood shoulder to shoulder along the line of march.

Mr. Tunc said that the parade was a far different thing from our parades, as it was very decorous and dignified with very little noise other than martial music.

BRECKENRIDGE.—Dressed turkeys valued at $18,000 have been shipped to eastern markets by local produce firms during the past week.

Between six and eight carloads of dressed turkeys will be shipped from here during the remainder of the shipping season.

den of the Oklahoma Good Road association, which organization called the conference jointly with the highway club, is to preside at the opening session. Johnson is a former member of the Oklahoma highway commission.

Governor Moody and Speaker Bobbitt are to speak on the afternoon of the first day's session on some phase of the highway question, but the subject of their address has not been announced.

Colonel Barber's address is to deal with the Hoover Uniform Motor code the adoption of which is to be advocated by the conference. The code was drafted by the national conference on street and highway safety and is designed to make interstate motor travel more safe and enjoyable.

On the second day of the conference the annual meeting of the highway club of Texas will be held, with President Lloyd H. McKee of Fort Worth presiding. General Manager Wheeler is to report on the organization's activities and officers for the ensuing year will be elected. Both the Southwestern highway conference and the highway club meeting will be held at the Texas hotel.

Clear Vision Is Being Sought By Manufacturers

Since no mechanical device can ever eliminate the human equation in automobile driving, automotive engineers seek constantly to make driving as safe and fool-proof as possible. Obstructed vision has been the cause of a great many accidents, according to Chief Engineer E. S. Marks of the Franklin Automobile company of Syracuse, N. Y.

"Realizing that the heavy support posts at the front of closed cars obstructed vision to a considerable degree, Mr. Franklin was the first to conceive the idea of removing this obstruction. A V-type windshield was the result, with the corner posts placed well back from the driver's left or right, permitting an unobstructed view of pedestrians or vehicles coming from either direction.

"This was introduced in 1916 and, while a great improvement, it was still short of the ideal Mr. Franklin was seeking. While considering new ways to enhance driving vision, Franklin engineers recognized the principle that is responsible for the current clear-vision construction; namely, that of a pillar with a transverse dimension less than the interpupillary distance between the eyes. "Franklin pioneered and developed the idea in a straight front windshield and the Airman series presents it in its most advanced form. The cross section of the present corner posts is less than any one of its class. The posts themselves melt out of the driver's consciousness permitting the pedestrian to be seen when six feet from the driver, though the pillar is between. This pioneer effort has been well rewarded in greatly reducing accidents," Mr. Marks claimed.

HINDU TEMPLE GIVEN INDIANS OF LONDON

By United Press. LONDON.—The first Hindu temple in London, result of a gift from Ghanashyamdas Birla, a millionaire merchant of Calcutta, India, will soon be erected. It will be located in West Hampstead, one of the northern suburbs. London already possesses a Moslem mosque, a Buddhist viharā and many other religious temples, but up till now although Hindus form the largest number of British subjects in the east, there has been no established centre for their religion in this country.

Realizing the difficulties of vegetarian Hindu students in obtaining proper food in England, a hostel is to be attached to the new Hindu temple.

DE PAOLA ONCE MORE WINS RACING TROPHY

CHICAGO.—Pete De Paola, nervy little Italian race driver, for the second time has been adjudged the winner of the American Automobile association's annual championship trophy.

Pete started in the driving game as the protégé of Ralph De Palma, one of the greatest race drivers who ever lived.

Early in his racing career he won a race with a pair of his baby's shoes tied on the front of his car. Pete has never entered competition since that time without the baby shoes tied to his car.

De Paola was also champion in 1925 and is one of the six drivers in the history of racing who have won the American championship twice.

SWIMMER'S LUNGS TWO HANDS BREADTHS WIDE

By United Press.

STOCKHOLM.—Arne Borg, Sweden's champion swimmer, is "more fish than fowl," according to Professor Frantz Meyer, famous physician of Germany who recently submitted Borg to an examination.

Whereas the lungs of an average person do not measure more than a hand's breadth at the sixth rib, Professor Meyer found that Borg's lungs are two hand's breadths, 5 1/2 inches. These phenomenal lungs, coupled with the swimmer's slim frame, explain his success in the water.

Surprising, however, is the fact that Borg has a weak left arm. At a power test, the swimming ace managed to lift 140 pounds with his right arm, whereas his left could not pull more than 90 pounds.

TOKIO.—The 50-cent taxi is fast driving the jirikisha from the streets of Tokio and the other large cities in Japan. Ten years ago there were a thousand husky riksha men yelling for fares for one taxi driver. Today the taxis outnumber the rikshas and another picturesque feature of life in the far east is disappearing before the march of western ideas and bus-

The grove will be a heavy producer by the time Betty Jane is old enough to care for it.

Boys living in the country may now become Boy Scouts. Where three or more boys live near enough to each other (with an adult leader) they may organize a farm or home patrol and carry on the same program that the Troop scout has in town. Where there is a boy living too great a distance from other boys to join a patrol he may register as a Lone Scout.

Highway Courtesy Pledge Signed By Nearly 200,000

Special Correspondence.
WASHINGTON.—Nearly 200,000 persons have pledged themselves to use courtesy and caution on the highways during the coming year, the American Road Builders association stated today, in reporting the progress of its national highway safety campaign.

"This 200,000 includes only those persons who have actually signed courtesy and caution pledges, and does not incorporate the members of some 5,000 civic clubs, 10,000 churches, students of schools and automobile clubs throughout the nation who adopted the pledge in a body," the association stated.

"The campaign conducted by the American Road Builders association will be continued during 1928. At the annual convention a summary of the campaign will be reported, together with recommendations for the conduct of the safety movement during 1928.

"The American Road Builders association is offering $1,000 in prizes for the best ideas that may be used in promoting safety on the streets and highways. More than 22,000 persons have been killed on the streets and highways of the United States during the first 10 months of 1927," it was stated. "This enormous toll emphasizes the necessity for some novel move in behalf of highway safety."

The Federal Council of Churches in America has taken action to bring the accident situation before the congregations of the nation's churches. The movement, undertaken by the council under its own initiative, has already had a widespread effect in reducing the hazards of motoring.

Graham Brothers Plants Expand For New Business

Present indications point to 1928 as a record year for the motor truck industry and Graham Brothers, the truck division of Dodge Brothers, Inc., will be in a position to meet the greatest demand in its history, according to a statement today by John R. Lee, general sales manager.

"The Graham Brothers line of trucks is now more comprehensive than ever before," Mr. Lee states, "having been augmented by the addition of two new models that should sell in substantial volume. One of these is a two-ton six-cylinder truck designed for heavy service and the other is a light and fast half-ton delivery car that sells in a new field."

"Since the announcement of these new models and of important improvements in the other Graham trucks, sales have mounted rapidly. October, ordinarily a slow month for truck manufacturers, was the best month Graham Brothers have had this year. Sales and shipments of Graham Brothers trucks to dealers amounted to 6,125 units.

"To keep pace with present business and to provide for substantially larger sales next year the company has carried through two major expansion programs. The daily production capacity of the main plant at Detroit has been increased approximately 100 per cent and a new and larger addition to the Stockton, Calif., plant

Penney Company Reports Show Growing Sales

The J. C. Penney Company reports gross sales for October as $17,164,840.26, representing a gross gain of 28.48 per cent or nearly four million dollars over the corresponding period last year. The gross volume for Oct. in 1926 is given as $13,256,483.97.

Cumulative gross sales for the ten months of 1927 are $114,094,370.17 a gain of 30.95 per cent or more than twenty-six million dollars over the same ten months of last year when the cumulative gross sales were reported as $86,363,624.58.

"From reports received from our 889 stores we feel very optimistic for business in general over the balance of the year," stated J. M. McDonald, vice president and merchandising manager, in commenting on the sales figures of the J. C. Penney Company as released for the month of Oct.

"With the volume of business holding up to its present levels and the anticipation of advanced Christmas shopping we expect to reach $150,000,000 figure set for the gross sales volume of the Penney chain for 1927," Mr. McDonald declared.

Penney stores located in all sections of the country now number 889, whereas in 1926 there were 743 in the chain. Recent acquisitions insure a material gain in the number of stores included in the Penney system for 1928.

RANGER SCHOOLS WILL HAVE TWO HOLIDAYS

Ranger public schools will dismiss on Wednesday evening and observe the Thanksgiving holidays by not opening again until Monday morning, Nov. 28.

A number of teachers and school principals are planning to attend the state teachers' institute, which convenes in Houston during next week and by having this holiday they will be enabled to have that privilege.

West Texas Will Be Advertised By New Highway

Folks all over the United States will be told of the Texas section of federal highway No. 80 if the plans of the "Broadway of America" association, formed Nov. 19 at El Paso are put over and from the lineup in that body there is every reason to believe that its objectives will be attained.

The road from Broadway, New York, to Broadway, Los Angeles, by the way of Baltimore, Nashville and Little Rock, then to the Texas line at Texarkana and across the state over state highway No. 1 to El Paso and on through Las Cruces, N. M., and Yuma, Ariz., and intermediate points to the western terminus will be called the "Broadway of America."

West Texas cities along highway No. 1 will, if the plans of the association are successful, receive much benefit. Enlarged movements of traffic will be diverted over the route.

In the advertising to be done prospective tourists will be told of the scenic wonders along the way, of the agreeable weather that will be encountered during all seasons and of the conditions of the road.

The Texas part of this proposed route will be long in its first-class condition.

After leaving Fort Worth travelers over the "Broadway of America" route will have the privilege of going from Mineral Wells to Abilene either by the way of Ranger, Eastland, Cisco and Baird or by Breckenridge and Albany. From Abilene west to El Paso the route will follow state highway No. 1 through Sweetwater, Colorado, Big Spring, Midland, Odessa and Pecos.

Since the idea of such a road was announced several weeks ago much enthusiasm for the project has been shown by representatives of various towns along the way and those active in fostering the new association think that much good will come of the undertaking to advertise and popularize the "Broadway of America."

The Manhunter's Own True Story

As told to Gordon Hines

CHAPTER 44

"See here, Hamlin," I said, "maybe you're right. Maybe there's nothing against you at Fort Worth. But it's a cinch Atlanta wants you, and there's a reward of a hundred for you. You come with me to Fort Worth at once, and if there's nothing against you down there, I'll turn you loose!"

His face fell and he debated the matter.

"I understand Boykin's man is due to arrive here in the morning," I said to spur his decision.

Hamlin turned to the chief of police and said he would waive requisition and go to Texas with me on the first train.

Atlanta was offering a reward of a hundred dollars and I was offering none. In fact, I had no money to pay a reward. I hoped the Oklahoma City officers would release him before Boykin's man arrived, for it would then be necessary for me to meet the reward coming by Georgia. I telephoned Governor Neff, of Texas, asking him for the money to bring Hamlin back to Texas. I told him that I wanted to rush him away before the Georgia officer claimed him. Since I would have half of my reward money coming by Georgia when I delivered Hamlin to the Texas authorities, I saw no harm in asking the state to make it possible for me to get my man back. The governor said he would ride down to the next station with us. When we reached it, he surprised me.

Later that afternoon, the chief of police notified me that the governor had phoned him and said he believed it advisable to let the Georgia authorities have Hamlin.

I was astounded. "Let the Georgia authorities have him?" I shouted. "What does he think I'm made of? Before I'll let anyone have that man, I'll walk to Texas and lead him!"

I was desperate. I telephoned District Attorney Jesse Brown and asked if he could offer any reward or help me to get Hamlin back to Fort Worth or if he could offer any suggestion that would help to get him back. He replied that he could offer no reward and that he had no suggestions.

"Do you think you could make room for him in jail if I brought him back?" I snapped as I slammed the receiver to the hook.

I stomped out into the street in a blind rage. What could I do? The Oklahoma City authorities gave me to understand that I would have to meet the Georgia reward and I'd have to have railroad fare back to Fort Worth.

"Let the Georgia man have Hamlin?—Hell!" I mumbled, half aloud. "Talking to yourself, Frank?" A friendly hand took my arm.

"Hello, Flynn!" I replied, much relieved to see his friendly face and to hear the sincere ring of his voice. I unloaded my troubles on him, sure of his sympathetic attention. I mentioned how deeply Neff and Brown had been interested in helping me get my prisoner back to Texas.

Flynn ripped out a good old cowboy oath and plunged his big rough hand deep into his pocket. He brought up a hundred dollars.

"It's yours, Frank, as long as you need it."

I wanted to say a great deal, but my tongue thickened and I couldn't say it. My troubles began to melt away and my mind cleared.

"Thanks, Bill."

"Now, then, Frank, we'll step into this here dry goods store and tap the till for enough for railroad fare. They know me in there and it'll save time."

Bill soon had thirty-five dollars more and we rushed to the jail. I paid the reward. Hamlin signed the requisition waiver and said his feet were itching to travel, and we left the building. The next train would leave at midnight and we had to loaf for several hours. Hamlin was very agreeable, however, and gave me no trouble. He was so confident that he was dodging the Georgia officer and that he would be quickly released in Texas. Flynn left us at the jail door, but met us at the train, saying he would ride down to the next station with us. When we reached it, he surprised me.

"Shaw!" haven't got a lot to do at home, Frank. Reckon I'll just keep goin' till I hit Fort Worth with you."

I was mighty glad to have him, as we hadn't seen each other in a coon's age. We swapped yarns and enjoyed ourselves quite a bit. We also tried to pump Hamlin a little, hoping to get a word out of him that might lead to Spencer. But we didn't accomplish a thing. Every time Hamlin would get near the point, he would shy off and go to talking of something else.

Next morning we arrived at Fort Worth. Hamlin was handcuffed, and we took him to a private waiting room at the Metropolitan Hotel. He wanted to get in touch with his attorney, A. U. Puckett of Dallas and we agreed to help him. Puckett could not be found so after waiting for some time, we led Hamlin to Jesse Brown's office. I introduced Hamlin, rather elaborately, to Brown and several of his associates. Of course I knew that Brown and the others had seen Hamlin before, but I thought it would be a good thing to let them know he was back in the community.

Then we took our prisoner to the county jail. I knocked loud on the sheriff's office and hollered to ask if they could make room for Reno Hamlin.

Deputy Hardcastle met us and Hamlin was led into the office. Hamlin was cocky and he spoke jovially to Hardcastle.

"I won't be with you long, Hardcastle. There are no charges against me here. Here—see this clipping." He rattled his handcuff, moving it about where it could be easily unlocked.

"Yes, Hamlin, that's right," Hardcastle replied. "That case was dismissed. But there's another one, Number 1007, which is still hanging over you. It was returned by the grand jury lately."

Hamlin stared as if he couldn't believe his ears. Then his head dropped and he wailed like a punctured balloon. He sank into a chair almost moaning:

"I ought to have known it! I ought to have known the old fox had something up his sleeve!"

Judge Hossey came in and placed his bond at $20,000 and he couldn't make it. As soon as I saw him bedded down for several night, I caught a train for Austin to close up the unfinished contract and to collect the much needed reward. I saw Governor Neff and told him that I had placed Hamlin in the Tarrant county jail. I also told him of my experience in Oklahoma City and mentioned that I had borrowed money to bring the prisoner to Texas.

He said that he would see that the state reimbursed me for the borrowed money. A little later I did receive that and I sent it to Flynn. I mentioned my reward for catching Hamlin, and the governor said that he would take it under advisement.

Possibly it is still under advisement, for, to this day, I've never heard another word on the subject.

Once more my attention was directed to Denver, but once more other circumstances rose to lead in another direction.

A friend of Hamlin's had visited him for a few moments when we were holding him at the Metropolitan hotel in Fort Worth, and I had listened closely to their conversation. What I heard assured me that Spencer's father-in-law, Sam D. Stovetter, was living on North Emporia avenue, Wichita, Kansas. This was the first lead I ever had to which might take me to Spencer. In fact, it was the first indication that he had a family, for I had discounted all the stories he had told me in Dallas and Fort Worth and on the trip to my ranch, believing that he would have faked up those things.

I was keenly interested in getting Spencer. My interest in the possibility of finding a fake exchange in Denver was wholly based on a desire to get a clue to Spencer's whereabouts. Hamlin's inadvertent remark had changed my plans again and I found myself on the way to Wichita. I took Pete along, hoping that the two of us could strike a warm trail and conclude the whole thing quickly. I needed a rest and my own affairs at home needed me badly. We were getting to where there was little left to sell to raise more money and I wondered if I would be able to pursue my determination to land Spencer before I stopped.

We learned that Stover had a young daughter and Pete started making all the public dances attended by the younger crowd, hoping to meet her. It wasn't long until he succeeded and he found her a gracious, friendly girl. He learned that her sister, Mildred, Spencer's wife, lived on the fat of the land and that her husband was supposed to be a very successful business man.

"She's in Montreal now," the sister said, "but probably not for long for she usually spends her winters in Florida."

Montreal! That was a long way, but we figured that she would hardly be away off up there alone, so we struck out for Montreal, hoping that our cash would hold out until we could get back within walking distance of Texas. We stopped in Kansas City and spent a few days with the police department heads. We searched diligently through their rogue's gallery for a photo of Spencer. So far, we had never been able to get a picture of him and I needed one badly. The records revealed nothing that would help and none of the officers was able to give us any enlightenment. Spencer's sister-in-law had mentioned her sister as Mrs. Harris, so we assumed that Spencer had used that as an alias or it was his real name and Spencer a pseudonym. We searched the records for a Harris that would answer Spencer's description, but found none.

I employed and paid the expenses of two detectives to go with us to Excelsior Springs, Missouri, a few hours from Kansas City. The police had declared that Excelsior was a great hangout for con men and we combed the town for Spencer. We did find an automobile thief wanted in Kansas City and the two officers picked him up. It was an odd coincidence that the auto thief looked enough like Spencer to be his twin brother. I mentioned this to the police but it aroused nothing in their memories.

the first anniversary of SNO-FLAKE BREAD

One Year Old and Still Growing

IT'S ONLY been one short year since we entered the business life of Ranger and put Sno-flake bread on the market.

But the demand for Sno-flake has been continually growing and finally reached the point where we had to increase our capacity within the last month.

We are duly appreciative of the generous patronage that has been awarded by the public and for the courteous treatment we have had at the hands of our distributors—the grocers.

We take this method of making public expression of our thankfulness, which is entirely fitting at Thanksgiving.

WE WILL continue to add new equipment as the demand for Sno-flake bread increases.

Sno-flake bread is made of the purest of ingredients and our bakery is kept clean and sanitary, which enables us to put out a high quality bread.

Many people have told us that Sno-flake bread is the nearest approach to the home made bread "like mother used to bake" of any bakery bread they have seen, and we consider this a compliment.

If you are not already one of the users of Sno-flake bread you should try it and be convinced.

WASHINGTON LETTER

By RODNEY DUTCHER
NEA Service Writer

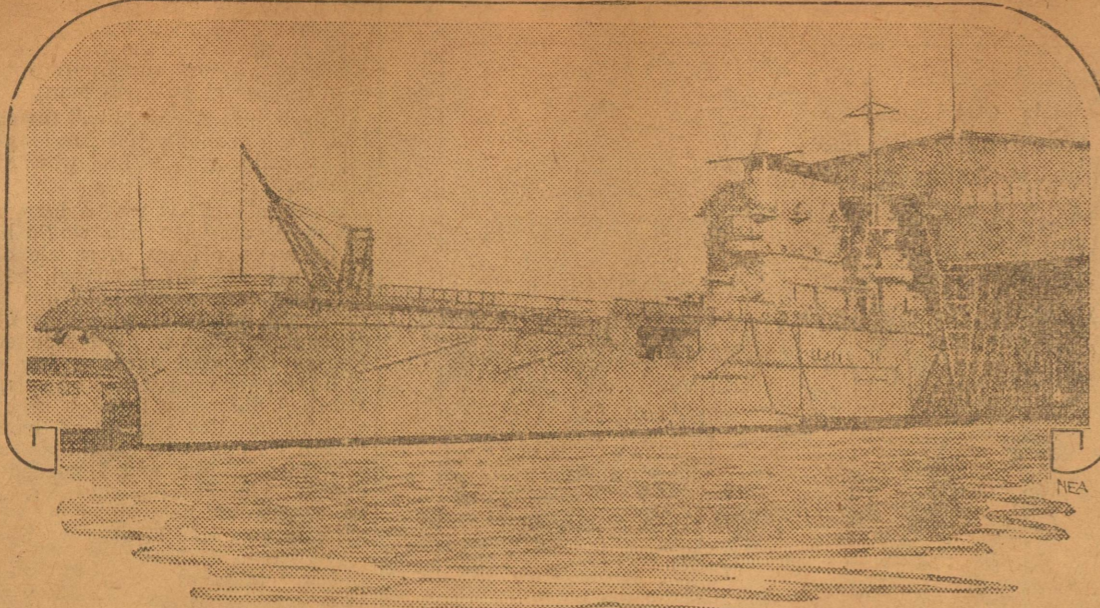

WASHINGTON.—It probably is mere coincidence that the best newspaperwoman in Washington is also the most attractive and the most feminine.

She is one of 13 girls admitted to the house and senate press galleries among more than 300 men. Her name is Ruth Finney and she is correspondent for the San Francisco News and other Scripps-Howard news papers over the country.

Miss Finney found herself in the news last month when the Fall-Sinclair oil trial opened and defense attorneys asked prospective jurors whether or not they had read any of her stories in the case. Miss Finney has a faculty of putting known facts together and letting them draw their own conclusions.

The Fall-Sinclair lawyers didn't want anyone on the jury who might have been impressed by her articles. She is reputed to know as much or more about the oil cases than any newspaperman in Washington. After a mistrial had been declared, and an investigation begun William J. Burns indulged in some fancy cussing during an interview with newspaper reporters outside the grand jury room.

New Airplane Carrier Ready for the Seas

The U. S. S. Saratoga, newest addition to the navy in the line of plane carriers, is shown as she appears nearly ready to take to sea at the American Brown Boveri shipyards at Camden, N. J.

Third Assembly Line Added By Pontiac People

PONTIAC, Mich.—A third assembly line for the Pontiac six, duplicating the arrangement and equipment of the two lines already in operation, is being installed in the Pontiac six assembly building at a cost of $250,000, it is announced by A. R. Glancy, president and general manager of the Oakland Motor Car company.

Sustained demand for the Pontiac six during the season when automobile sales normally are expected to decrease, and anticipation of still greater public acceptance in 1928, have prompted the company again to expand its production capacity, Mr. Glancy explained.

Together the three assembly lines will be able to produce 120 Pontiac sixes per hour or one complete car every 30 seconds. The Pontiac six factory thus will have a production capacity of 1,080 cars per nine hour day. This, together with the 720-car daily capacity of the two new Oakland all-American six assembly lines in the Oakland factory, will give a total capacity of 1,800 automobiles during each nine hour day, or one every 18 seconds.

The car assembly plant, where the third Pontiac assembly line is being installed, is one of the $12,000,000 group of buildings, finished early in 1927 which provided the Pontiac six with a separate factory. In anticipation of the eventual need for higher production, space for a third car assembly line was left between the two present assembly lines. This foresight is reducing greatly the cost of the third line installation.

The $12,000,000 Pontiac six factory group was built simultaneously with the expenditure of $3,000,000 for increasing and improving the manufacturing facilities of the Oakland six factories.

First Christian church of Ranger, attended the Central Texas Methodist Conference in Fort Worth the past week.

Rev. Mr. Johnson stated that this was his twenty-fifth annual Methodist conference, and laughingly added, "That's a pretty good record for a Campbellite, isn't it," and then finished off by saying that the Methodist always had one argument that he liked—fried chicken.
