Two Youthful Bandits Rob Otto Bank

GET BETWEEN $6,000 AND $7,000 IN CASH

Park Automobile And Stroll Lesurely Into The Bank

OTTO, Texas, Nov. 7.—Two youthful bandits forced four persons in the First State bank of Otto into the vault and secured between $6,000 and $7,000 in cash at noon today.

Witnesses of the robbery said the bandits appeared between 18 and 20 years old.

The two bandits sped south out of town and were believed to have been seen going through Marlin, 20 miles from Otto.

Two customers were in the bank when the youths parked their car outside and strolled in. Flashing guns they ordered the customers and two bank employes into the vault.

Scoping up all cash in sight they walked out of the bank and got away in their car before warning could be given.

Move of Senator Curtis Puzzles To Politicians

By RODNEY DUTCHER
NEA Service Writer

WASHINGTON.—The presidential candidacy of the Hon. Charles Curtis, senator from Kansas, either means that the Apis Bombus Præsidens, commonly known as the presidential bumble bee, is an insect of hitherto unsuspected virulence and potency or that Senator Charlie has something up his sleeve.

The senator's republican leader is a man with as few illusions as a chorus girl in her late forties. Big Bill Borah may believe that it is possible to change a colleague's vote by a passionate, logical speech; George Norris may suspect that the ordinary citizen ought to be represented here; Tom Walsh and Jim Reed may think the country will some day get excited about official corruption; Tom Hefflin may be convinced that the Pope's guns are trained on the capital; some one somewhere may think the senate as a whole will some day show some horse sense and stop playing politics for an instant—but Curtis has been here 33 years and he knows better.

Thus, it seems most unlikely that Senator Curtis suspects that he might become president unless some one has whisked something in his car. There are altogether too many reasons why he isn't likely to be nominated and Curtis knows them as well as anyone. He's old; he's a westerner; he doesn't make an especially good speech; he has no popular following outside Kansas and so on.

But although he insisted that he wouldn't be a "stalking horse" for any other candidate, there is no reason to suppose that Curtis isn't just as willing to be a good old work horse for the party as he has always been. The outstanding fact about his candidacy is that it will make the going just a little easier for the party regulars who expect to nominate their man in the end.

It seems to me that any hopes for an united farm state bloc of delegates at the next convention have gone hokey and that the farm state delegates will be split three ways—among Lowden, Norris and Curtis. Previously we had Lowden, a middle ground sort of politician, and Norris, a radical progressive.

Now we also have Senator Charlie, the regular and the regular republicans in the west who don't want Norris or Lowden and can't deliver a delegation to an eastern reactionary doubtless will assemble under his totem pole. In other words, it looks as if the farmers and western progressives will be as impotent in the next convention as ever. Which is to say that Faithful Charlie is again carrying the hod for his party.

It must be admitted, however, that one can't read Senator Charlie's mind with any definite assurance. He may have his eye on the vice presidency or a cabinet job as a reward for his services before and at the convention—or it may be that the poison of Apis Bombus Præsidens is actually spreading through his system.

What those who point to Curtis as a possibility for election are talking about is what happened to Harding?

AUTOMOBILE ASSOCIATION OF TEXAS TO BE AT HIGHWAY MEET

FORT WORTH, Nov. 7.—Having a vital interest in the matters discussed at the forthcoming Southwestern highway conference, which will be held in Fort Worth, Nov. 28 and 29, a call for its 13,000 members to attend has been issued by the Texas Automobile association, it was announced here today by W. T. Wheeler, general manager of the highway club of Texas.

Invitation to the Automobile association members to attend is being extended by E. C. Bies and W. Hatcher Thomas, of Dallas, its president and secretary who states that the organization is deeply interested in the matters to be discussed at the conference.

Arrangements to have the Automobile association participate in the conference were made at a meeting in Dallas this week between officials of the highway club and the association. The Texas Automobile association is the state branch of the American Automobile association.

Principal items for discussion at the highway conference is to be the Hoover Uniform Motor Code, and an effort will be made to arouse sentiment for its adoption by each of the states to be represented, Texas, Oklahoma, Louisiana, Arkansas and New Mexico. Details of the code and its successful operation in states which already have adopted it are to be discussed by a speaker of national repute.

The uniform code, designed to simplify laws governing the operation of motor vehicles, is divided, for legislative convenience, into four measures, the first covering the registration of vehicles, the second designed to check automobile thefts, the third providing for licensing of operators and chauffeurs and the fourth prescribing rules of the road governing the operation of vehicles on the highways.

The Highway Conference is being sponsored by the leading highway organizations of Texas and Oklahoma, the Highway Club of Texas and the Oklahoma State Good Roads association. All members of these organizations, as well as the highway commissioners, other state officials and good roads enthusiasts of the several states to be represented, also are being invited to attend. Arrangements are being made to entertain 1,000 or more delegates and visitors. After conclusion of the conference the annual meeting of the Highway club of Texas will be held, when a report on its activities during the past year will be submitted by Mr. Wheeler and plans laid for the work of the ensuing year. Lloyd H. McKee of Fort Worth, president of the club, will preside at the session.

Struck By Stray Bullet While On Way to Funeral

PORT ARTHUR, Texas, Nov. 7.—Milton Quebedeaux, 17, member of the Port Arthur high school football team was recovering today from a bullet wound in the head which he suffered Sunday while enroute to the funeral of a cousin who was accidentally shot while hunting.

Quebedeaux was struck by a stray bullet fired by a duck hunter. The wound he received was similar to that which resulted fatally for his cousin.

Postpone Trial of Former Member Of Legislature

AUSTIN, Nov. 7.—Trial of F. A. Dale, former member of the state legislature on a charge of accepting a bribe was postponed by agreement this morning until Jan. 9.

Both state and defense announced ready in criminal district court for trial of Victoria Wilson, charged for participation in the robbery of the university bank of Austin.

MOODY SHOULD BE IMPEACHED SAYS HAWKINS

Declared Fundamental Rights Were Disregarded in Millikin Case.

By United Press.

AUSTIN, Nov. 6.—"Marshall Hicks says Moody ought to be president—I say he ought to be impeached," declared W. E. Hawkins, recently an attorney for A. V. Millikin this morning.

Hawkins said announcement of his candidacy for governor was made for the purpose of crystallizing the feeling that fundamental rights were disregarded in the proceedings which ended in Millikin's execution for slaying of Mrs. Virginia Petty.

STATE BRIEFS

LUKIN.—The fox and the hounds became the paramount interest here today as the annual fox hunt of the Texas Fox and Wolf Hunters association got underway. It is a four day event. Many of the finest fox hounds in the south were on hand for the hunt and the chase was expected to be a success from every standpoint.

DALLAS.—Highway bandits with dived negro chauffeurs to stand by for them is the latest innovation in Dallas bandit circles.

Two youths who covered their faces with black masks and rode behind a uniformed chauffeur in an expensive sedan effected a midnight holdup of a business man driving home. The well dressed youths found only $2 in their search of the victim.

Police believe the two bandits were sons of wealthy families out seeking new "experiences" in life.

AUSTIN.—Governor Dan Moody expects to spend Armistice Day at Orange. He will be represented in the exercises here by Adjutant General Robertson. The Austin observances will include dedication of the war trophy siege guns which have been placed on the state capital grounds. They are the only World War trophies on the grounds. Monuments have been erected to the military organizations of all other wars.

ABILENE.—Going ahead of the total of the same month last year by $62,356, building permits in this city during the month of October, totalled $294,696. Total of building permits issued during the year to Nov. 1 amounted to $2,879,977. Last year total aggregated $3,721,734.

DALLAS.—I. W. Worden believes he has a tree full of insects that will put professional crum-makers to shame and revolutionize the irrigation systems of the country.

Several days ago Worden discovered continuous rainfall under a box elder tree in his yard. The news spread and hundreds came to witness what at first was considered a phenomenon.

City Forester O. C. Charlton was doubtful however and conducted an investigation. He found the tree full of insects known as giant leaf hoppers or "sharpshooters."

"These insects," Charlton said, "forcibly eject a drop of clear liquid. There were so many of them in this tree that the spray was readily noticed."

Magruder Shorn Of All Official Duties in Navy

WASHINGTON, Nov. 7.—Rear Admiral Thomas P. Magruder who stirred up the ire of navy officials by charging extravagance and inefficiency in the navy department, today was shorn of official duties and given the status of "awaiting orders" following a conference with the secretary of navy Wilbur here.

Wilbur's purpose in taking this course it was learned is to give the admiral opportunity to work out measures to meet the deficiency with which he charged the department.

Swimmer and Her Trainer Fined For Swearing Falsely

LONDON, Nov. 7.—Dr. Dorothy Cochran Logan was fined $500 with $50 costs in police court today for swearing falsely that she swam the English channel.

Hovace Carey, Miss Logan's trainer, was fined $250 and $25 costs in connection with the case.

Both pleaded guilty.

Throw Husband In Jail, Pleads Many Women

"The public would be surprised," remarked Chief of Police Ingram, Ranger, "at the number of wives that call in from neighboring towns asking us to throw their husband in jail because he left and didn't tell where he was going."

Chief Ingram said that many times women become enraged because the force would refuse to lodge the man in jail because of his negligence in telling the spouse of his whereabouts.

The remarks were brought about by a call from Cisco asking the Ranger police force to stop a man driving a sedan, in order to have him call his wife.

CONSULATE OF SOVIET IS STORMED

SHANGHAI, Nov. 7.—Several hundred monarchist Russians tonight stormed the Soviet consulate, stoned its windows, forced an entrance into the building and tore down the red flag flying from it.

Several were injured before the monarchists were dispersed.

Earlier in the day a bomb was thrown into the consulate during a reception to foreign consuls. It did not explode.

Thousands of monarchist Russians today mourned relatives who were killed in the communist revolution whose tenth anniversary is being celebrated by communists all over the world.

Police Advance Murder Suicide Theory In Death

STAMFORD, Texas, Nov. 7.—The bodies of Susie Miller and M. D. Brownlee, both negroes, were found side by side here today.

The woman had been beaten to death with a bed slat. The man's throat was slashed from ear to ear. Police advanced the theory of murder and suicide.

FALL'S CONDITION IS REPORTED UNCHANGED

WASHINGTON, Nov. 7.—The condition of Albert B. Fall, former secretary of the interior and defendant in the Fall-Sinclair conspiracy case was reported today as showing little change since Saturday. He had a severe coughing spell for several hours today but his condition was regarded as generally improved from Friday.

A slight improvement was noticed Saturday and yesterday but it was still not as to when he can return to New Mexico.

RESCUE WORK HAMPERED BY SLEET SNOW

Estimate the Property Damage to Run $100,000,000

BOSTON, Nov. 7.—Snow and sleet today added to the suffering and hampered relief workers in this flood-stricken land.

Slowly receding waters of a score of swollen lakes and rivers made possible for the first time a fairly authentic estimate of damage wrought during the four days of flood.

Seventy-six bodies of flood victims have been recovered and identified.

Reports over patched up telephone and telegraph wires and by airplane and courier told of additional deaths but the exact number could not be definitely determined because of duplicated reports. Military officials in charge of rescue work said they believed the death list would reach 125. Preliminary figures gathered in Montpelier listed 87 dead in Vermont and if reckoning shows those figures are correct the death list will exceed 150.

The military authorities estimate the total property loss at $100,000,000 spread over six states.

Approximately 50 cities and towns were wholly or partly destroyed, reports showed.

In Massachusetts the flood waters had receded but the situation in some sections remained acute.

West Springfield was under martial law.

FLOOD-STRICKEN AREA THREATENED BY FIRE

LUDLOW, Vt., Nov. 7.—Fire and snow today added their burdens to flood-stricken Ludlow, the home of Attorney General John G. Sargent.

A favorable wind saved the town from possible destruction when fire started at a bakery shop.

FALLING TEMPERATURE ADDS TO SUFFERING

MONTPELIER, Vt., Nov. 7.—Snow and falling temperature today added further discomfort and suffering to the flood-swept Montpelier district.

All city schools were closed. They probably will not reopen before several days.

At Barre, martial law was invoked and the guards patrolling the ruins of that city had orders to shoot looters.

Fear of a typhoid epidemic there was averted today when it was found possible to get a fresh water supply from nearby towns.

Additional State Police Are Sent To Strike Areas

DENVER, Nov. 7.—As additional state police entered Southern Colorado fields today with orders from Governor William H. Adams to halt picketing of coal mines, prospects that all strike leaders would be arrested were seen here.

Twenty men arrived in the southern fields from Denver to augment the force of 60 already under command of Louis N. Scherf, head of the newly created law enforcement bureau.

All of the officers are under orders to scrutinize records of any alien I. W. W. arrested with a view to deportation.

Seeking Repeal of Three Percent Tax On Automobiles

WASHINGTON, Nov. 7.—A small army of industrial captains representing various phases of the motor car business besieged the house of ways and means committee today for repeal of the present three percent tax on automobiles.

The group opposed the suggestion of secretary of the Treasury Mellon that the automobile is a semi-luxury and that therefore the excise tax on it should be retained.

Will Lecture on Beauty

Madame Jeanette Serrec, noted writer and speaker, who will appear at the American Legion Hall in Ranger under the auspices of the Ranger Times and Eastland Telegram for five days beginning Monday, Nov. 14.

NOTED BEAUTY EXPERT TO START LECTURES MONDAY

Real Foundations of Feminine Beauty And Health Will Be Given Free

Eastland and Ranger, cities of beautiful women—will have an unusual opportunity to make possible the perpetuation of the foregoing toast soon, when Mme. Serrec, internationally famous beauty and charm expert, will give a series of lectures at the American Legion hall, Ranger, under the auspices of the Ranger Times and Eastland Telegram, to which all women in Eastland county are invited. The opening date is Monday, Nov. 14.

Mme Serrec is different: That is to say, in addition to giving the benefits of her experience in care of the skin, hair, nails and other external attributes of charm, she also tells how to acquire the radiant personality so greatly desired by women, and is greatly admired by men and women alike when found.

At this series of lectures, which are absolutely free, no obligation of any kind attaching to them, Madame Serrec will teach the correct care of personal appearance, how to subtly create real and lasting beauty, how to care for mind and body, and how to become a poised, magnetic and intelligent individual. The lectures will start at 2:30 each day.

Mme. Serrec's Subjects. Communications and the answers will be included in the lectures.

Beauty experts are unanimous in the assertion that securing Mme. Serrec to give the series of lectures is a master stroke that will be greatly appreciated by Eastland and Ranger women, who will seize the opportunity to learn from this remarkable woman those secrets of personal attractiveness that are unobtainable in the ordinary beauty course and that are so greatly prized in consequence of their rarity.

A walk of three miles when one's automobile is broken down is a hardship; the pursuit of a golf ball for nine holes is joy and relaxation; the pursuit of beauty may be a real joy or unpleasant routine, pending upon the state of mind in which the toilette is performed.

Let me tell you how the minutes in the bath and the ones at the dressing table may be ones of sheer delight, a rest for the body, a tonic for vitality and a balm for the nerves.

Let us begin with the bath; men prefer to take it in the morning, but most women prefer it as preparation for the social hours of afternoon or evening. Business women find the time before dinner the most grateful hour. A morning plunge should be taken for its tonic effect, and to be invigorating should be quite cold, followed by a brisk rub-down; but for relaxation it should be taken in warm water so that the tenseness of the muscles is allowed to relax. The heat will draw out the tired feeling caused by fatigue. Bath salts add tonic qualities, while perfume is generally not enough appreciated for its soothing effect to tired nerves, the same as tincture of benzoin or a few drops of bath ammonia.

Spend some little time in the tub until the pleasant languor soothes the jangled nerves and overtired muscles. Think pleasant thoughts; look forward to the joy of the evening rather than relieving the unpleasant-tries of the day. Then, unless time is

A GREATER TELEPHONE SYSTEM FOR TEXAS

Texas Telephone News
A Journal of Telephone Information Published by the Southwestern Bell Telephone Company
Vol. II No. 11

Telephone Employees Fitted By Training and Experience

Average Service of Texas Telephone Employees is Four Years

The telephone business is a highly specialized industry and in a great many of its departments requires considerable technical knowledge. In most branches of telephone work this knowledge can be gained only through experience and special training. The longer the experience, generally, the more capable a telephone employee is of serving the telephone company and telephone subscribers.

In Texas the Southwestern Bell Telephone Company has in its employ more than 7,100 people. The average length of service of these employees is over four years.

LONG SERVICE RECORDS
More than 900 of these employees have had more than 10 years of telephone service, about 200 have had more than 20 years.

These employees in Texas represent but a small portion of the telephone workers who make possible the telephone service you enjoy today. In the United States there are more than 425,000 men and women engaged in telephone work. Their coordinated efforts make it possible for you to reach by telephone all corners of this nation, as well as Cuba, Canada, Mexico, or Great Britain, from your home or office.

MEXICO
Mexico is now within sound of your voice. On September 30, long distance service was opened between the United States and Mexico, bringing another nation within reach of your telephone. Just ask for "Long Distance" and give her your call in the usual way.

A POPULAR SERVICE
During the first eight months of this year, 9,990,000 long distance calls were placed by Texas telephone subscribers. Of this number, approximately 1,998,000 were placed after 7 o'clock in the evening, showing the popularity of the reduced rate periods for station-to-station calls, which start at 7 p. m. and continue until 4:30 a. m.

YOU ARE INVITED
In Texas, more than 4,400 operators are required to handle the continuous flow of telephone calls. Why not drop in at your telephone office some afternoon and see just how your telephone calls are handled at the switchboard? You are always welcome, and the visit will be well worth while.

Demonstration In Cooking To Be Given In Ranger

Miss Ella McMaisters arrived in Ranger Monday, representing the Standard Gas Equipment company, makers of Acorn gas ranges.

She will hold a demonstration of these ranges at Killingsworth-Cox company, Ranger, twice daily, Tuesday and Wednesday. These demonstrations will be held from 9 to 11 each morning and from 2 to 5 each afternoon.

On Tuesday she will demonstrate cooking cakes and on Wednesday she will demonstrate full meal cooking, cooking the full meal in the oven at one time through the use of Claus heat control.

An invitation is extended to the women of Ranger to visit the store during these demonstrations and see the workings of the Acorn ranges. Owners of Acorn ranges are especially invited to see Miss McMaisters and consult her on anything concerning the use of their stoves.

Tyler Boy Going Through College On Wheel Chair

DALLAS, Nov. 6.—Forest Clough of Tyler, Texas, is riding a wheel chair through a six year law course at Southern Methodist University here.

Despite total paralysis in both legs, Clough finished high school at Tyler last spring as an honor graduate. He decided he wanted to become a lawyer so he enrolled in the S. M. U. law school this fall.

A jovial fellow, he has won the admiration of every student on the campus. Never is it necessary for him to yell "Hey, Taxi," when he wants to go from building to building or floor to floor for his classes. There is always several fellow students ready to grab the wheel chair and race up or down the steps as Clough jokes with them.

"A little thing like that can't stop a fellow from getting something out of life," Clough said, glancing at his helpless legs.

In his public speaking classes, he wheels himself to the front of the room, gets his speaking "stance" and makes a forceful delivery. His professors believe he will make a successful lawyer despite his handicap.

Clough is a familiar character at all home football games. It is now a campus custom to see that he is wheel chair placed near the S. M. U. band.

It's all right to holler about business being bad when it's bad, but you shouldn't ought to make the noise so loud as to attract the buzzards.

Yesterday there were three big old buzzards perched on top of the Gholson Hotel, surveying the town as if they might be figuring on feasting on the bones of our starving citizenry.

Times must be getting hard somewhere when the buzzards have to look on the main streets of Ranger to see if they can find a feed.

Speaking of buzzards, do any of you-all have a trained one that we could get to put the rope through the flagpole out at the park?

This here Buzz Johnson that was going to write the grapes for us had better be getting some copy in here before he is barred by the statute of limitations.

Dallas Boy Gets Bronze Medal For Saving Couple

DALLAS, Nov. 6.—J. I. thought that had blown over," commented Thomas E. Lemmons, Jr., 16 year old Dallas high school student, when informed that he had been awarded a bronze Carnegie medal for his heroism in rescuing a young married couple from drowning at Mineral Wells, more than a year ago.

"It wasn't much, I don't remember much about the details," he replied to questions. His crum appeared more excited about the matter than did young Lemmons.

Lemmons did not care to go into details about how he broke the death like grip of J. M. Gregory and saved both Gregory and his bride from drowning in a like near Mineral Wells.

A representative of the Carnegie fund came here nearly a year ago, investigated the details of the rescue and returned to the east with a photograph of Lemmons. Since Lemmons had heard nothing further about the matter, he had concluded that it had "blown over" and did not anticipate a reward of any kind.

TRANS-OCEAN PHONE IS SEEN AS BIG WAR AID

Efforts of Scientists In This Direction Appears Very Practical Now.

By United Press.
NEW YORK, Nov. 5.—Transatlantic cable telephony, realization of which for many years has eluded all efforts of electrical engineers, is nearing the stage of practical experiment, the United Press learns.

The "stage of practical experiment" means, in the idiom of engineers, that a theoretical idea of principle has undergone such laboratory tests as definitely indicate its commercial feasibility. And although it will be several years before any transatlantic telephone cable is laid, the progression of researches and experiments to the aforementioned stage is of prime importance.

While not generally realized by the public, transatlantic cable telephony, as contrasted to wireless telephony, possesses enormous commercial and military advantages and motivated largely by this fact, engineers of the Bell laboratories—supported by the American Telephone & Telegraph company and the Western Electric company—are redoubling their researches and experiments.

A prominent engineer, responsible for much of the research work that prefaced the commercial inauguration of wireless telephony over the Atlantic, explained the advantages of submarine cable telephony in this manner:

"The success of wireless telephony—exemplified by the present simplicity and ease of talking between New York and London—has led the public to believe that long-distance telephony is now an accomplished fact. Generally speaking it is an accomplished fact, but the lay public does not appreciate the several drawbacks of the wireless phone, nor the military and commercial advantages of the submarine cable telephone of the future.

"Wireless telephony has had the effect of creating two rival technical groups—one, which is seeking methods of preventing the outside world from hearing the spoken message and the other, which seeks means of 'listening in' no matter what degree of exclusiveness the other group devises.

"In the event of future wars, the question of guarding transatlantic conversation from eavesdroppers will naturally be of prime importance. But it is doubtful, because of the very nature of wireless telephony, that this medium of vocal intercourse will ever be developed to a point of absolute exclusiveness.

"Now, with the submarine telephone cable, this question of absolute privacy need never be a problem. So far as privacy is concerned, the same principles apply to a telephone cable as they do to a telegraph cable. Still another advantage rests in the fact that atmospheric and electrical disturbances which sometimes disrupt wireless telephony, will rarely affect the cable.

However, as emphasized by F. B. Jewet, vice president of the American Telephone and Telegraph company, "It is one thing to realize general principles but frequently quite another to realize them practically." And there are many difficult problems to solve, despite its theoretical perfection, before a telephone cable, insuring conversational privacy, will be laid across the Atlantic and Pacific oceans.

At this time there are only two submarine cable telephone lines of any consequence in length, but neither spans a distance at all approximate to transatlantic mileages. The two lines are from Key West, Florida to Havana, Cuba and from Los Angeles, California to Catalina Island in the Pacific.

By the way, what ever became of the starving Armenians?

Half a hundred women in New York City have won notable success in various branches of the electrical industry. There is a woman assistant to an electrical contractor, a woman editor and publisher of an electrical trade journal, a woman who is employed by a public utilities corporation to draw individual plans for home-lighting, a woman expert who solves problems of flood lighting and the illumination of churches, schools, theatres and business houses, a woman who lectures and conducts classes in home lighting, and several women who are employed as lampshade designers.

She leads cheers, and how! She is Miss Ina Williams Southern California co-ed, who is in charge of the "rooterette" section at football games.

If all the engineers who hope to make money out of Mississippi river improvements designed for flood protection were successful, the people of the valley would have to help pay the bill for the next 650 years.

Eastland Officers In Corpus Christi For Lee Ratliff

Members of the Eastland county sheriff's department are in Corpus Christi where they went after Lee Ratliff, Eastland county man, wanted in this county. The Eastland officers went to Corpus Christi on information received from officers at Corpus Christi that they had Ratliff under arrest there.

Ratliff, with his brother, was convicted in 1926 of being connected with a bank robbery in Coleman county, and sentenced to a long term in the state penitentiary. They were both later pardoned by Governor Miriam Ferguson.

According to C. S. Looney, Cisco officer, Ratliff is wanted in Eastland where it is believed he is responsible for a number of robberies.

Report Condition Of Ranger Woman Slightly Better

Mrs. Katherine Williams, who was seriously injured in an undetermined automobile accident early Saturday morning, is somewhat improved, but little can be ascertained as yet regarding her condition, according to a statement given at the City-County hospital, Ranger, Monday morning.

Although Mrs. Williams has regained consciousness she has not yet been able to tell anything regarding the cause of the accident, which occurred as she was returning from the Lone Star plant, where she had taken her husband to his work.

Mrs. Williams was found by Lindsay Walters, driver of a West Texas coach, and she was in an unconscious condition lying under an overturned touring car.

She is suffering from a double fracture of the right leg, a back and head injury and shock.

Gilbert Is Star That Means Much To Michigan

By BILLY EVANS.
 Take one star out of the lineup of a major league club and it makes a tremendous difference. I could enumerate a score of such cases. No second baseman has ever been able to fill the shoes of Eddie Collins when injury or illness has made it impossible for him to play. A lot of outfielders have essayed at various times to take Tris Speaker's place, when for some reason he has been unable to play, but none have delivered in his incomparable style. When Walter Johnson was in his prime, there never was a pitcher who ever came even close to taking his turn on the rubber as the ace of the staff, when Walter was ailing. All of which simply proves that one star can either make or break a ball club.

Gilbert Was Missed.
 While I have always realized that such a happening holds good in most sports, not until the Michigan-Illinois game did I fully appreciate what an outstanding gridiron performer meant to the success of his team. Louis Gilbert, sensational halfback of Michigan, was unable to play against Illinois. Michigan was beaten. Possibly the result would have been the same had Gilbert played but certainly it would have not been so easily accomplished by the proteges of Bob Zuppke.

Gilbert was operated on for an infected arm a few hours prior to the game. The Michigan coaches, while realizing what his absence meant, placed his welfare above the desire to win from Illinois.

Against Ohio State, with Gilbert starring, Michigan looked like a great team. With Gilbert on the sidelines in the Illinois game, Michigan looked very ordinary.

Michigan's offense in the Illinois game never functioned properly, making it seem that much of it was built around Gilbert.

Explains Michigan's Defeat.
 Michigan missed Gilbert in almost every department of play. Illinois enjoyed a decided edge in punting, which might not have happened with Gilbert in the game. His punting against Ohio State had the Buckeyes constantly on the defensive.

Michigan's passing game carried little or no deception, quite the contrary of the previous games in which Oosterbaan alternated with Gilbert in hurling the passes.

In running back punts, Gilbert was also sadly missed. All in all, Michigan was simply lost without him, making it seem that possibly too much dependence has been centered on the elusive Mr. Gilbert.

Watching the Wolverines in action, three players, Oosterbaan, Gilbert and Baer stand out. In the Illinois game, Oosterbaan was not at his best, Baer played himself out and was forced to retire in the final period, while Gilbert could lend but moral support from a seat on the sidelines.

The failure of these three stars to function in high, perhaps best explains the upset of Michigan. In conclusion, don't forget that a potentially great Illinois team trimmed 'em.

Harvard Grid Coach A Midwest Product
 By BERT M. DEMIY (United Press Staff Correspondent)
 CHICAGO.—Middle western football fans are watching intently the showing of Arnold Horween, the middlewesterner who went east to coach Harvard's football team.

Horween has very nearly revolutionized the style of the play at the eastern university. As his team stands up at present it plays middlewestern football.

Against Holy Cross the Harvard backs flipped the ball around in forward and lateral passes in a manner which was astonishing to eastern followers of the game.

On his staff Horween has Chuck Carney and Duke Dunn, both products of the Western conference.

Harvard set a precedent when it came to the middlewest for its coach. Incidentally it broke all conventions when Horween went to work, for besides being a middlewesterner he was a professional football player.

For several years Horween starred for the Chicago Cardinals, one of the best of the country's pro teams.

The middlewest believes that Horween will be successful in introducing the middlewestern style of play into the east. Whether he will remain to be seen but if he follows up what he has started this year, he seems destined to produce.

No one knows who the two parties will allow us to choose from, but the ordinary citizen has a great hankering for a fight for the presidency between Charlie Dawes and Jim Reed.

Scribe Thinks Oosterbaan Is Great Player

By BILLY EVANS.
 The outcome of the game between Michigan and Minnesota this year has more than the usual importance attached to it for me.

It is always a great game, a fiercely fought battle for the possession of the old brown jug, a coveted trophy. My more than ordinary interest in the result this year is due to the fact that two Minnesota scouts sat directly behind me in the Illinois press box, when Zuppke's team defeated Michigan.

I have always been a great admirer of Captain Benny Oosterbaan of Michigan. It has been my good fortune to have seen him play perhaps 10 games in the three years he has been a member of the Michigan varsity.

In all probability the poorest game I have ever seen him play was in the Illinois contest, where it was apparent the loss of his running-mate, "Loonie" Gilbert, greatly handicapped his offensive methods.

In every other game I can recall he has been an outstanding star. I always have regarded him as one of the best ends I have ever seen in action.

Scouts Scouted Bennie.
 Listening to the conversation of the Minnesota scouts—I couldn't help it, as it was audible all over the press box—I overheard a lot of things about Oosterbaan that were new to me, most of which were decidedly uncomplimentary.

I am inclined to think that if Coach "Doc" Spears sent the gentlemen in question to scout the Michigan team, he will suffer great disappointment at their report. It seemed to me they were scouting only Oosterbaan.

After every play there was much comment about the Michigan captain. This is no brief for Oosterbaan, because I don't even know the gentleman, although I have always been an ardent admirer of his athletic ability.

For that reason I took issue with the Minnesota scouts as to Oosterbaan, expressing the opinion that not in years has the west produced a better end.

My thoughts were not of a soothing nature, rather they stirred up the Gopher scouts, causing them to talk louder and more vehemently.

No Star, Scouts Say.
 Here are some of the things I learned about Oosterbaan from listening to their remarks:

That he is the most over-touted player in the game. That the scribes alone have made him famous by naming him all-America for two seasons, thereby displaying their ignorance. I confess to having made such an estimate of Oosterbaan.

Also that he lacks "guts," refuses to get into the thick of the play, puts

Caused Wilce Anvil Chorus to Stop

This is the young man whose good work for Ohio State against Chicago put a stop to the Jack Wilce anvil chorus. He is Howard Kriss, a back. All he did was catch a 50-yard pass from Robin Bell to score a touchdown and later knock down a pass that would have won for Stagg's Maroon outfit. Ohio State's victory put a stop to the anvil chorus that was howling for Jack Wilce's head.

FRECKLES AND HIS FRIENDS

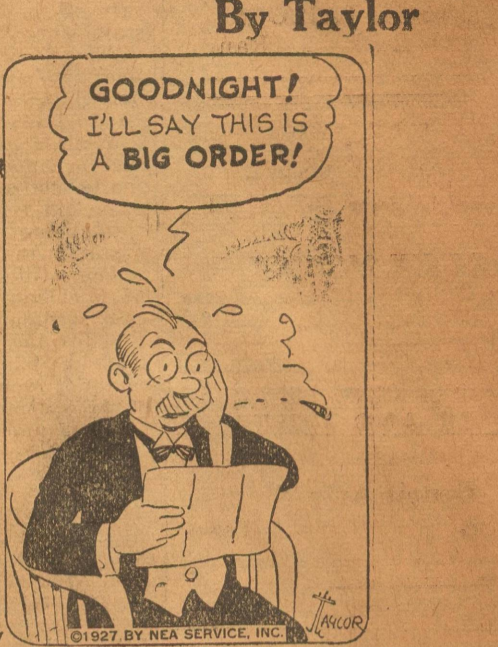

Mom'n Pop

Dear Old Pal:—

This will have to be brief, as I have been ill for a long time, and am very weak. I want you to take care of my son, William, Jr. after I have gone. When you and I parted at college I came to so America, and I parted our boy came, his mother died and I have tried to be both mother and father to him since. Now that I am going, I want you to have him near you and give him the advantages of your association and family atmosphere. I ask this because we vowed to help each other, years ago, no matter what the circumstances might be.

Always,
Wm. P. Gerrick

NORFLEET

WHAT HAS BEEN TOLD

Frank Norfleet, a Texas rancher, is swindled out of $45,000.000 by a gang led by Joe Furey, and he resolves to destroy the ring. He starts out, following and forward across the country several vague clues, and his pursuit leads him to Jacksonville, Florida, and his young son accompanies him. They find Joe Furey in a Jacksonville restaurant. After a bitter fight which creates a near riot the police lead Norfleet, Pete and Furey to the station where Furey is about to be released on a cash bond when Norfleet shows the sergeant a warrant endorsed by the governor of Florida. He reluctantly surrenders the man over to them. A sheriff's deputy offers to drive them to the Georgia line. Norfleet is anxious to get his man out of Florida to avoid legal complications. After starting with them, the deputy suddenly recalls a previous engagement and gets them to go to another car for the trip. He suggests that they drive to a flag station and wait in the woods there until time to flag a limited train which would be the quickest way out of the state. Norfleet agrees to the plan, and Furey offers to reimburse Norfleet for his losses if he will release him. Furey gives Pete a note to the secretary of the fake stock exchange in Jacksonville, instructing him to pay young Norfleet $20,000 "on account." Pete returns to Jacksonville to get the cash, but the luggage left behind and Norfleet and Furey wait in the woods near the flag station. Furey becomes the fact that they had swindled Norfleet in the first place, saying he had a hunch it would be their Waterloo. By a ruse Norfleet gets a confession from Furey that he had given a $20,000 bribe to the two California officers who had been left by Norfleet to guard Furey's home in Glendale. Norfleet is amazed at the duplicity of the men he had trusted. As the talk there is a ruse of the brush and Norfleet sees a sawed-off shot gun pointing towards him. He quickly places his six-shooter close to Furey's head and Furey screams: "Men! Men! Go back for God's sake! Don't start anything! I'll take my chances alone."

CHAPTER 31

Pete had gone directly to the Mason Hotel and to Room 1000 where he found seven men very busy packing their belongings and all kinds of paraphernalia such as bulletin boards, telegraph instruments and business stationery. The room was a large one the gang had fitted it up as a temporary headquarters.

As Pete entered, one of the men came forward and the boy asked for Mr. Weintrot to whom Furey had addressed the note.

"I believe he's downstairs," the man answered, "I'll run down and get him for you."

Several minutes passed and the man did not return.

Another man, noticing Pete at the door inquired his business and he again inquired for Weintrot.

"I'll get him," the man replied, "I'll get him for you."

This performance was repeated until every man was gone. Pete was quite nervous, realizing that he must get back to me before sundown so he scoured the place for the men to whom he had spoken, but every one had disappeared.

The manager of the hotel told me afterward that twelve rooms were vacated that afternoon within an hour, each occupant grabbing whatever he could get hold of in his rush. Toilet articles and soiled linens were found in every room.

Pete realized that he could accomplish nothing, so he hurried back to the car, picked up our luggage and urged the driver to full speed in order to reach our rendezvous before sundown.

"Furey!" I pointed my thumb across my shoulder. "See that sun!"

The frightened man was almost afraid to look. The crimson ball had slipped more than half out of sight below the horizon. I could almost hear his heart thump, between the wild, jumping beats of my own.

No sign of Pete. My ears were constantly alert for the sound of an approaching car. I almost wished he wouldn't come, for we might find the gang of gunmen too much for us. The tall pines, silhouetted, darkly presaged tragedy.

Still, the boy must come! I had sworn to take a life if he was not back by sundown! My hands were clammy and cold perspiration stood out on my brow.

Furey turned away from the low-lying sun, too frightened to watch it. Long shadows crept closer and closer to us, wrapping us in dark shrouds. The gunmen crept, step by step, into the circle which would surround us and expose my back to a part of them. They were still out of range for their short-barrel guns but, once their circle was complete, they would dash in quickly. I knew I would precipitate a bloody fight if I fired now. I would wait. Something might happen.

"Oh, Norfleet," Furey groaned in a voice that was barely audible. "Wait! He'll come! We'll manage this gang somehow. Wait!" Then he raised his voice: "Men! Why don't you go back? You're going to get me killed! Go back! For God's sake!"

Then an eternity of waiting in deadly stillness.

"Norfleet! Listen!" Furey's voice was almost joyous.

I strained my ears and heard what seemed to be the hum of a speeding motor. It drew nearer. Then a greater fear clutched my heart!

Here was my boy, rushing straight into danger, possibly death! I felt ashamed for having wished that he would come back.

The seven gunmen heard Furey's exultant cry and, at the same time, the hum of the approaching car. They ran quickly to the roadside and lined up, four on one side, three on the other, guns ready.

My heart rose in my throat, choking off my breath.

"Furey, if those thugs harm that boy in any way it's a dose of lead for you!"

He bawled out like a bleating calf, but the gunmen were too far away to hear his stifled voice. The car rushed on and the men stood, guns ready, waiting.

I yelled, foolishly, to Pete, but he could not hear me. I pressed my gun to Furey's car and waited, my trigger finger tensed and ready to press.

I aged ten years in three minutes. My mind pictured gruesome things happening to my boy. I couldn't realize that he was a man and I was full of angry resentment that the thugs should attempt to harm a child.

Actually, the boy was a better man than his father and better equipped to protect himself, for the fluid of life, aggressive youth ran in his veins. He was probably a better man than any three of the gangsters, although he was smaller than any of them. His virile plains life had made him hard as nails.

The car rushed on toward the firing squad. Three of the men turned to watch Furey and me; the others waited, watching the car.

Furey was moaning and groaning and crying out wildly to the men, but they seemed to pay no attention to him. The car drew near the men at the road and I saw Pete sizing up the situation.

Before he could decide upon a plan of action, I saw the wild eyes of the negro chauffeur dilate; then the car swept forward with a new urge of speed, dashing past the armed men and on down the road, crossing the little bridge over the creek at a dizzy pace. The big Cadillac must have been going seventy-five. The chauffeur's cap had blown off and his shining black pate was drawn down between his shoulders like a frightened turtle's head. Pete had leaped forward and was shouting at the driver but the shouting was of little avail. There was one scared nigger! Then I saw Pete's gun barrel flash in a glint of sunlight. The car slowed down.

In the excitement, I had looked away from Furey and the gunmen, but it did not matter. They stood transfixed, eyes riveted on the tussle in the car. I resolved to keep a closer eye on them, however, and let Pete look out for himself.

Pete had forced the driver to turn the car about and they were coming back to me. The nigger was begging and praying and tears were streaming from his wild eyes. After crossing the bridge, they swung at right angle from the road and drove through the brush and shrubs to the stump where Furey and I waited. Pete leaped out and ran to me.

"Dad, what's the matter? Why the big gun play?"

"Hurry, son!" I replied, "we must get into the car and get out of this! I've been expecting hell to pop ever since you got joyous."

The chauffeur started to back the car away and I yelled at him. He gasped with fright and jumped out of the car, throwing himself on the ground beneath one of the running boards. He wiggled and groaned, trying to burrow into the leaves and earth.

I told Pete to get Furey into the car. I looked for the driver and he was so near the color of the ground which almost covered him that I had to look twice to see him. I made him get into the car, then spoke to Pete again.

"Put Furey on the back seat and on the right side. You sit by him and, when I signal to you, drive past me with the front door open and I'll get in. We'll have to make it quick if we get to the flag station in time to flag the train. Furey! I'm watching the gang over here!"

I had figured that we would pass to the left of the men so that they would be on our right. Furey would be between them and Pete and I'd try to look out for myself in the front seat. Possibly they wouldn't attempt to shoot, fearing that they might hit Furey.

I walked a short distance toward the gunmen to hold their attention while Pete was getting Furey placed in the car. Glancing backward, I saw that everything was set and I signalled for the car to come on. I jumped in quickly and, before the men could collect their wits, we dashed past them. Another minute found us at the station.

NEGROES PLAY MONTE, THEN PAY THEIR FINES

Two negroes added $41.40 to the coffers of the police department Sunday when they paid fines of $20.70 each for indulging in an intricate gambling game called monte.

The negro gamblers were the only arrests over the week-end by the Ranger police force.

Does Weakness Detract from Your Good Looks?

Paris, Texas—"I was suffering with woman's trouble and after trying several different remedies without receiving any benefit, I decided to speak of, I decided to try Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. I was told that it was the best, and so it benefited me. I had taken only a few bottles of it before I was perfectly well."

"I also took two bottles of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery after an attack of the 'flu' and it built me up in health and strength wonderfully."—Mrs. Gertie Nelson, 161 Graham St. All dealers.

Several Ranger High Students Make Honor Roll

During the last six weeks of school there were seven students in the Ranger high school who made an average grade of four A in their work.
Those who made this high average are excused from attending study hall during the coming two weeks and so long thereafter as they uphold the high average.
Alton Somers, Arthur Deffebach, James Campbell, Kathleen Gunkel, Katie Lou Davis, Graham Segars and Mittie Terry, were the students who made four A or better during the last six weeks, and are placed upon the high honor roll.
Other students who made three A and one C or two A and two B on their work are placed upon the honor roll, their average being just a little lower than the high honor students. As a reward for their work the students who won a place on the list of honor students will be allowed to miss one study hall a day for the next six weeks.
Students who were listed as the honor students are Elbert Pollan, Beuford Anderson, Dee Preslar, Roy Weaver, Edward Kliever, Nellie Barrett, Martha Carroll, Frances Glazner, Alice Hanson, Doris Mitchell, Bernice Shell, Francis Coughlin, Donald Champion, Nell Douglas, Mary Gilmore, Onus Mills, Eula Preslas, Elaine Riddle, Clara Barker, Dorothy Outlaw, Ruby Nell Poe, Estelle Smith, Clara Mae Weaver, Eloise Woodell, Mary E. Campbell, Opal Diltz, Mary Edlo, Davenport, Juanita Hinman, Annie Kimmell, Elizabeth Vallient, Jeanette Yonkers, Roy Jameson, Saunders Gregg, Charlie Black, J. R. Roberts and Mary Lindsey.

Eastland Oil Man Is Seriously Ill In California

C. M. Root, well known Eastland oil operator, is critically ill in a hospital at Pasadena, Calif., where he was operated on a few days ago for appendicitis.
Mr. Root, apparently in good health, left Eastland only a few days ago for California, where he has numerous oil holdings. He was stricken suddenly and rushed to a sanitarium and an operation performed.
Authorities at the hospital where Mr. Root is confined wired relatives of Mr. Root at Eastland Sunday that his condition was grave, but that he had a fighting chance to recover.
Upon receipt of the message stating Mr. Root's condition, Andy Rhodes and wife of Eastland left immediately for Pasadena to be with him. Mr. Rhodes is connected with Mr. Root in the oil business at Eastland and other places.

EASTLAND CHAMBER OF COMMERCE MOVING

The Eastland Chamber of Commerce is today moving its headquarters from the basement of the Texas State bank building to the first floor of the Masonic temple.
Headquarters of the Bankhead Poultry Producers' association, recently moved to Eastland from Cisco, will also be located in the Masonic temple with the Chamber of Commerce.

Ranger's War Time Relic Given Hard Ride From Austin

The big gun that was presented to the Carl Barnes post of the American Legion has arrived in ranger and will be mounted at an early date.
The gun was sent here along with the gun ordered by the Breckenridge post and were loaded into the car without being braced, and, according to W. C. Hickey, secretary of the Ranger chamber of commerce, show signs of having been through a little war all their own. The gun that belongs to the Ranger post suffered a broken wheel en route to Ranger and both guns show signs of having been tangled up with each other.

It will be necessary to work over the souvenir as the whole gun is rusty and shows signs of having been out in the weather. A steel buffet will be run over the gun to remove the rust and it will be oiled thoroughly and cleaned.
It has not been decided as yet where the gun will be placed, however in all probability the gun will be set on the lawn of the Texas and Pacific railroad station or at the park where the swimming pool is located.
The gun will be unloaded and repairs will start immediately.
