Governor Will Likely Declare Martial Law At Once

DENVER, Nov. 21.—Two striking miners were killed and at least 10 I. W. W. and state police wounded in a clash between the two forces at the Columbine mine early today, according to reports to authorities here.

The fight followed when 500 of the striking miners and their wives, dressed in overalls rushed a force of 15 state guards in an attempt to picket the property.

Immediately after hearing of the pitched battle, William H. Adams ordered the national guard mobilized for immediate entry into the strike zone.

Adam Bell, leader of the miners was one of the men killed.

Twelve miners were injured at Agular when 75 strikers attacked the royal Brinkhead mines and were overpowered by deputy sheriffs who slung clubs and pick handles.

A FLYING FIELD AFLOAT

An armored flying field afloat is the U. S. S. Saratoga, viewed from the bow (left above) as she was formally commissioned at Camden, N. J., as flagship of the United States aircraft fleet. Below Rear Admiral Julian J. Latimer (left) commandant of the fourth district, congratulates Captain Harry E. Yarnell upon his new command. The Saratoga is the biggest vessel ever constructed in America, having a length of 888 feet from end to end of her two-acre flying deck. It can house and service 83 planes; cost $40,000,000; displaces 33,000 tons and can speed through the water at 40 miles an hour. At the right is a stern view of its curious superstructure, which lies entirely to starboard to widen the flying deck. Here you see four of its eight-inch guns, their turrets and, on a fighting top above, two of its anti-aircraft rifles, which are aimed and fired at hostile planes by a "mechanical mathematician." Four torpedo tubes complete its armament.

Paul Chirminise Taken To Hospital At Weatherford

Car Turns Over On Slick Pavement, Chest Badly Crushed, Condition Is Serious

Paul Chirminise, proprietor of the Ghelson Hotel Barber shop, Ranger, is in Dr. Fyke's sanitarium in Weatherford, with a badly crushed chest and possibly other injuries, received early this morning when his car turned over on the Bankhead highway, two miles east of Weatherford. When carried to the sanitarium in Weatherford, after having lain under the car with the weight of it on his chest for some twenty-five minutes, the verdict was "no chance" but later in the day, Paul began to regain consciousness, his pulse became stronger, and some hopes were then entertained for his recovery.

Chirminise, left Ranger about 5 o'clock this morning and was going to Fort Worth. It is reported by a Ranger man who was coming from Fort Worth this morning that several cars were in the ditch along the highway, due, he supposed to skidding on the damp pavement, caused by dew. No one has so far been able to give a detailed account of how the Chirminise car left the road.

Word was received in Ranger early this morning that Chirminise had been hurt and was in a Weatherford sanitarium. Nick Gallagher of the Mission Garage and W. A. Lewis, an employee of Paul's shop left at once for this city. They were to telephone back word of the injured man's condition as soon as such information was obtainable.

Slim Bruce, a Weatherford barber and a friend of Paul's recognized him when he was brought into Weatherford and at once notified his associates here. Later in the day, Wade Swift, talked to Bruce and got the information that some hope was held out for the injured man's recovery.

Chirminise was driving a Buick touring car but it has not been learned whether the car was wrecked.

When the news filtered around that Paul Chirminise had been hurt, wires clicked busily for information regarding his condition as he has many friends here.

Sam Starr, of Ranger, was on the way home early this morning, when his car skidded on the wet pavement and turned over. The car was completely demolished but young Starr was not hurt. The accident happened between 3 and 4 o'clock this morning, about eight miles east of Weatherford.

Report J. H. Mead Has Been Hurt in Auto Accident

Word has been received in Ranger that J. H. Mead of Mead's Art and Novelty company, Ranger, was hurt in an automobile accident near Brownwood, Sunday night. Inquiries at his place of business today as to the truth of the rumor, was that all they had heard was through other parties, and that they had been informed that Mr. Mead sustained a broken wrist and a dislocated shoulder when a car in which he, Marion Glenn of Ranger and W. B. Clapp of the Sinclair camp, were returning from near Mason, overturned.

It is reported that Mead was pinned under the car but the report has not been verified.

The party left here for Mason county Friday for a deer hunt. Mr. Clapp returned to Ranger today but Mr. Glenn and Mr. Mead have not returned. The report was that Mr. Glenn was not hurt.

AUSTIN.—Miss Grace McClellan, who is waiting here for an acceptance by Col. W. L. Easterwood of Dallas of her offer to attempt the Dallas to Hong-Kong flight, is not daunted by the prospect.

It is true she has made one cross-country trip by air, and that over the well charted course between Austin and Dallas, but she is confident she can cross the uncharted sea.

Miss McClellan believes that the chances of success depend largely on the airplane. If it can fly the distance over land, it can fly over water just as well, she points out. The air navigator should be able to find his port as easily as the mariner, she added.

Miss McClellan has been solo flying for three months, averaging four flights a week. She will receive her pilot's license shortly but has not yet taken the tests for a transport license.

Gripings
 By GUS

We were perambulating up Marston street this morning when we ran right upon Blair Cherry and we could see that he was worried because he had about a nickel's worth of gum in his mouth and was chewing it with the speed and accuracy of a Will Rogers.

We solicited the cause of his philosophical attitude and he confided in us that he was decidedly worried over the outlook for Thursday's football game.

We had to agree with him that there does not seem to be much interest among the local fans, although the winning of the game means the difference between closing the season in third place and closing in a tie with San Angelo for the bottom place.

It will mean something else, too, because no Breckenridge team has beaten Ranger since Cherry has been coaching the Bulldogs. So if the Bulldogs lose Thursday they will be a blowed up sucker two ways.

The game will be the last scheduled high school game to be played by at least three of the Bulldogs. Seth Hubbard, Byron Reeves and David Whitehall will close their careers, and it is to be hoped that the latter two will be in shape to close their high school careers by putting out a real game of football.

It will be a close game. The teams are about on a par in weight and experience. The Bucks haven't shown a great deal of fire this season and the Bulldogs don't seem to be burning down right now.

Some of the boys have been playing around and are about to flunk in a subject or so. At the first of the season they were making all sorts of good grades. It looks like they are loafing.

We don't like to get personal, but we can count the players on one hand that have put out their best in the season's average. Some of them shine in one game and then go into eclipse on the next.

Orz made 6 out of 8 first downs in the first half of the game Saturday and the whole gang only made one first down in the last half.

We'd like to see them snap out of it and all click together in this last game of the conference season and get the old fire and pep and get out there and win third place.

Anybody's got a right to change their mind and we hereby go on record as changing ours. We don't think that Abilene would clean Cisco's cultivator, but we don't think so now. We don't think that the Lobos will by any means annihilate Abilene, but we are picking the Lobos to win. Now, Buzz, you can go ahead and bet on Abilene.

If we had been going any place in particular and had to be back by a certain time, we would have had plenty to gripe about when the T. P. turned the railroad crossing into a switch yard Sunday noon and tied up traffic 19 minutes and 28 seconds.

If we was running the thing we would have them park that string of empties on a siding and take the engine to the rear end of the train and do the switching instead of dragging a train a mile long up and down and holding a public crossing until they go good and ready to move on.

You ought to hear them yelp when anybody blocks their right of way. You'd think the rotation of the sun, moon and stars depended on their getting a handcar up and down the line.

Expect Many Will Go From Ranger To Breckenridge

It is very probable that a large crowd from Ranger will attend the game Thanksgiving day at Breckenridge between the Bucks and the Bulldogs.

Breckenridge was very courteous to Ranger during the jubilee and sent their high school band and pep squad down here to participate in the parade. This in spite of the fact that they were having a football game in Breckenridge that afternoon.
 The Bulldogs will need all the moral support from local fans that they can get, for the game will be by no means an easy one for them to win, especially with Breckenridge playing on their own grounds.

It being a holiday game and the day upon which big football games are usually played, the football spirit will be in the air and it is expected that Ranger will be practically deserted that afternoon.

Former Resident Of Eastland Dies At San Angelo

Mr. Pendergast came to Eastland some six or seven years ago and engaged in construction work. He helped to build the Eastland county highway system and has been employed by the Atcox Construction company at San Angelo. He had been in ill health for the past two years.

It's better to stop for a minute at a railroad crossing than forever.

Rev. Shearer Back From Conference At Fort Worth

Rev. George Shearer, pastor of the First Methodist church, Ranger, returned this morning from Fort Worth where he attended the Central Texas conference of the Methodist Episcopal church South, and incidentally landed the 1928 conference for Ranger.

Rev. Mr. Shearer said that "we got busy and shut the other towns out and got the conference for Ranger by acclamation." He modestly admitted that after they heard his speech of invitation that the assent came very strong.

The Ranger pastor said that all of the ministers he spoke to seemed anxious to come to Ranger to see just what was here and that the conference as a whole is looking forward to the 1928 meet with a great deal of interest.

"It was a wonderful conference," the pastor said, "with very few changes in the Cisco district. Rev. Mr. Andrews, formerly in Breckenridge was sent to Fort Worth to have charge of the superannuated preacher's endowment work and his place was filled by Dr. E. Hightower of Nashville, Tenn., who is a Sunday school literature writer of note."
 When asked about Rev. L. A. Webb former pastor of the Methodist church, Rev. Mr. Shearer stated that he was returned to First church, Ennis.

QUEEN IN DISTRESS HELPED IN BRAZIL

By United Press.
DIO DE JANEIRO.—The life of a queen in Democratic Brazil is not what it was in the days of the monarchy, but when a present day Brazilian queen became distressed and appealed to her subjects, aid for Her Highness was immediately forthcoming.

The royal lady was Noemia Nunes, elected Queen by the Union of Commercial Employees of Rio de Janeiro. A few weeks after the coronation, the queen became ill. She was forced to quit work, and eventually landed in a hospital, without resources.

A royal decree was not necessary to bring the queen's subjects to her side. Some of the Ladies in Waiting told the newspapers about the plight of Her Highness, and the Union of Commercial Employees immediately raised sufficient funds to take the queen to her home, where she received the most goenly attention until she was able to go back to work.

MOTHER OF BOOTLEG KING RULES DESERTED PALACE

George Remus' Aged Mother Carries On In The Mansion Slain Wife Once Ruled

By ALLEN SUMNER
 NEA Service Writer

CINCINNATI, O., Nov. 21.—Mother Remus, the 77-year-old mother of George Remus, bootleg king now on trial for his life, a self-confessed murderer, has come back to her son's Dream Palace on the hill.

And Mother Remus, who preferred her own tiny and shabby Chicago flat in the days when priceless rugs and tapestries and carvings and oils and bits of bronze and marble littered "The King's" mansion of many rooms, now sleeps, or tries to, in a great bare room at the top of the barren palace and trembles to hear the bare boughs of the trees in the park below scrape and grate across her window.

Mother Remus, who preferred her coffee from a thick white mug and her kuchen from a thick china plate to all the squabs and terrapin and truffles and woodcock and caviar served on her son's solid gold service plates, now sits lental soup on the huge kitchen stove of the empty palace where once were cooked veritable Luellian feasts for her son and his guests.

And George, the King, smiles in his cell when "mama's soup" or kuchen or hassenpfeffer is brought him nearly every day.

An Empty Palace.
 And "Mother Remus" who "didn't feel right" in George's house in the days when gold and ruby wines flowed like water at his great feasts, when six maids tried to help her bathe and dress and eat, when five gardeners trimmed the holly and flex and sweet briar in the vast acres about the mansion, now sweeps the cobwebs from the bare tinted walls of George's stripped and gutted home or scrubs on her knees the corners of the priceless marble fireplaces, the sole ornaments in the nurseries. As she scrubs or sweeps or cooks, she mutters words at the dead woman, Imogene Remus, who brought her son so low.

She is almost happy now, because: "Mr. Remus" needs me now." She never calls her only living son anything but "Mr. Remus." To her he is still the pompous, dignified, all-great "King" who staggered his mother and sisters with tales of his wealth, and who laughed at their pleadings to stop spending money "so crazy like."

"Maybe he would not like me photographed in an apron and not dressed up so fine," she said in her broken English. "They got my picture once when I was in just my house apron and 'Mr. Remus' didn't like it at all. He said his mother should not be seen like that."
 But "Mother Remus" does not see that things are different now and that George Remus, attorney as well as prisoner at the bar, wants the world to know that he has a stooped and shabby little old mother who believes in him with all her heart and who lives in his empty, dismal house when all others have fled.

The days when "Mr. Remus" kept mother more sequestered where when Imogene Remus, his second wife, now dead by his own hand, illumined from her house on the hill all Cincinnati with the glory thrown by her $100,000 worth of diamonds, the pearls on her breast and fingers, and the rubies and emeralds in her hair.

Those were the days when the marble swimming pool, which a glass-roofed promenade connected with the mansion, saw hundreds of the world's prettiest girls collected by Remus diving there.

Praises Her Boy.

Those were the days when orchids made the air of the Remus green-whole city and the whole world were houses heavy with perfume, when the trying to part "The King" from his money, charging him 10 times what other men paid for their wife's clothes and jewelry and furniture.

But no word of reproach to "Mr. Remus." Only rhapsodies of praise for the little 4-year-old boy whom she brought with her from Germany nearly a half century ago. The boy who at 13 went to work in his uncle's Chicago drug store when his father, a lumberman, could no longer support his family.

"Such a good boy till he married that woman," the little old woman said.
 "Mother Remus" led me through the half hundred rooms of "The Mansion of Many Rooms," pointing out with anger and disgust traces of the ravages made by her son's wife who looted the house while her husband was securely behind penitentiary bars.

She took me to the old card room on the third floor with its murals of aces of clubs and hearts and diamonds; the billiard room with the massive mahogany claw-footed table.
 "That was too heavy for her to move or it wouldn't be here," she said.

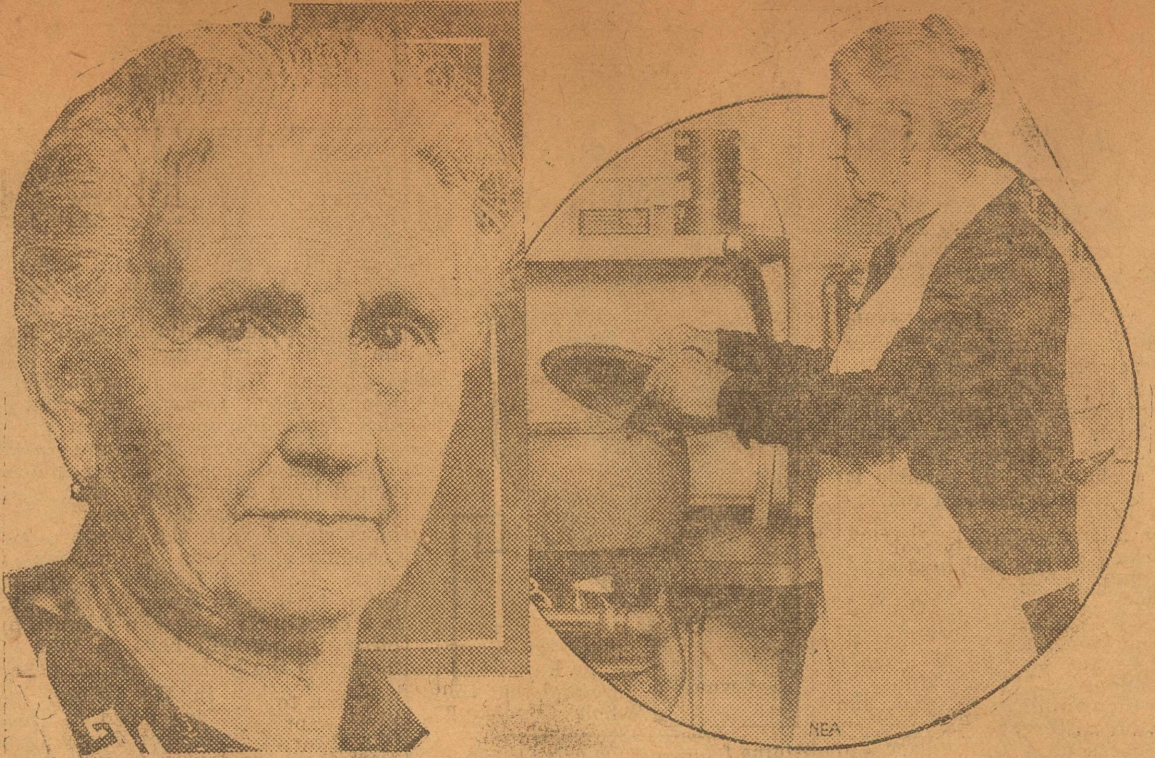

She showed me the vast third floor ballroom and showed me where the leather seats along the wall had been pried from their hinges. She showed me solid old doors, with hollow cavities where plate glass mirrors had been. She showed me jagged corners on fireplaces and mantles from which marble figures had been hacked away.

The dining room with its huge built-in hand-carved buffet, which once groaned under trays of rich foods and decanters of wine, contained only a bare picnic table. The only other furniture in the house were the three or four cheap beds where "The King's" mother, his sister and her husband and a care-taker slept.

The stone lions which Imogene Remus had torn from their moorings before a Cincinnati store and brought up Price Hill, casually writing a $4,000 check to pay for them, are gone now from their station before the Remus driveway.

Only Desolation Now.
 The park is a tangled, sodden mass of leaves and brambles. The huge servants' clock beside "The King's" bed can summon no servants now.

Last Mistress of Decayed Manor

George Remus' mother; a close-up, and a view of her preparing him a special dish in the empty kitchen of his big mansion on the hill.

The silver fixtures in his bathroom are tarnished, and only black holes in the wall tell where various unique toilet articles of silver and gold and mother of pearl were fastened.

On the wall of "The King's" bedroom is a picture of his mother and one of himself. She likes to sit alone in this empty room and gaze at the two pictures. She is here in his mansion—almost happy, because to her he turned, and the woman who possessed him in days of plenty is gone and sprind.

"Poor boy, he always wanted a home," she moans, "and all he got was this place."

Concert Stars Now Give Movie House Bills

By WILLIAM J. FAGAN,
 United Press Staff Correspondent.
 NEW YORK.—New York's movie war has penetrated into the concert and operatic world. At least, it has penetrated to the extent that the two biggest movie houses, the Capitol and the Roxy, are now pouring a good bit of their gold into the pockets and handbags of concert artists and concert managers.

The rival Sunday morning symphonic concerts have brought before their audiences thus far, such noted concert and operatic stars as Werrenrath, Graveure, Matzenauer, Spalding, Anna Case, Chalfant, Crooks and others. It is an expensive battle for movie patronage which Major Bowes and Roxy are waging, but it has brought unexpected revenue to first-rate solo artists and their managers from an unexpected source.

This is about the most startling feature of the current music season. Thus far it has proceeded with regularity and precision, without particular ostentation.

At the Metropolitan, the first of the season's novelties, "Violanta" by Erich Korngold, proved to be worth little of the trouble taken to stage it. The opera, a one-act curtain raiser, provides Mme. Jeritza with opportunities of which she avails herself generously and with her customary aplomb, but the music is pretty watery stuff. It suffered through juxtaposition on the same bill with Humperdinck's delightful "Hansel und Gretel," a tuneful and utterly welcome restoration to the repertory.

Berlin's "Norma," war-horse for dramatic sopranos for generations, was the second such novelty. The score, taken down from dusty shelves and exhibited once again to an enthralled house, proved that it contains some well worn music. However, it provides Rosa Ponselle with a vehicle for the display of her exceptional vocal attributes and, for that reason, may be countenanced.

The Metropolitan's new singers have been conspicuously successful in their first appearance. Grete Suetekgold, soprano from the State opera, Berlin, made her debut in "Die Meistersinger" most auspiciously, and later proved herself to be a capable Aida. Richard Mayr, veteran bass-baritone from Germany, has demonstrated his authoritative handling of Wagnerian roles, though, as well, a voice which has seen long service.

The most promising of the young American singers, Frederick Jagel, a product of the borough of Brooklyn, made his debut as Rhadames in "Aida." He displayed a voice which, in the main, produced in agreeable fashion, and a distinct knowledge of operatic stage routine. His training in Italy, where he had localized his name to Jagelli, has done well for him.

Other young Americans who have been heard include Margaret Bergin, mezzo-soprano from Paterson, N. J.; Everett Marshall, baritone from Lawrence, Mass.; and Mildred Parisette, a Texas soprano. Their appearances have been thus far so meagre that it is impossible to adequately judge the quality of their work in opera. Jagel is a bit unique in being the first tenor or baritone within recent memory to be assigned a leading role on his debut.

The concert halls have been more or less comfortably filled. The series of recitals arranged by the Wolfsohn Musical bureau has proceeded to establish itself as a New York institution. The series was opened Oct. 30 by Reinald Werrenrath, whose martial difficulties have been aired in Reno of late. Albert Spalding followed Werrenrath on the following Sunday and Frances Alda is to be the third, singing on Dec. 6.

The orchestral season is well under way. William Engelberg is conducting the Philharmonic through programs of the type for which he is noted and radio station WOR has secured itself a ten-strike by arranging to broadcast the entire series of Thursday evening subscription con-

Calvin Coolidge has been photographed on very many occasions as he presented medals to various celebrities. Here is the president, immaculately garbed, on the receiving end of such a ceremony. Former Governor William C. Sproull of Pennsylvania is pinning on his breast the gold honor medal of the Union League, famous Philadelphia Republican club, for "distinguished public services." Afterward, Coolidge addressed the club on American progress and prosperity.

Ranger Sunday Schools Plan To Play Football

Plans are under way for the organization of a Ranger city football conference composed of teams of boys from the various Sunday schools.

While no definite information is available in regards to every Sunday school participating, it is practically assured that there will be four teams in the conference, representing the Sunday schools of the Presbyterian, Methodist, First Christian and Central Baptist churches. If possible it is desired to form a six-team conference.

According to a tentative schedule for the city championship: Week ending Nov. 26, Central Baptists vs. Christians, and the Methodists vs. the Presbyterians. Week ending Dec. 3, Presbyterians vs. Christians and Central Baptists vs. the Methodists. Week ending Dec. 10, Central Baptists vs. Presbyterians and Christians vs. the Methodists. In case there is a tie for top place, the game for the championship will be played during the week ending Dec. 17.

It is proposed that the age limit be made as under 19 years of age and no player may participate that has a high school letter or will receive one this year. It will be necessary for a player to attend Sunday school the Sunday preceding the game or he will not be eligible to play.

This will arouse interest in athletics and give the boys an opportunity to play football and at the same time arouse interest in Sunday schools.

It might be remembered by some of the contending teams that some of the ineligible stars of the Ranger Bulldogs are entirely eligible to play on these teams after the high school season is closed. There's Bull Caraway, Floyd Hulén, Rawls Bowden, Gilbert Cook, J. C. Day, Lightnin' Matlock, Love, and a lot of other sure 'nuff football players that could be pulled into some Sunday school team for they are entirely eligible in every way and it ought to be easy to get them to attend Sunday school for the necessary Sundays to protect their eligibility.

Representatives from each team will meet early in the week and adopt a schedule and attend to other routine matters necessary to the organization of the conference.

OXFORD TEAMS MAY BAN RHODES SCHOLARS

OXFORD, England.—A movement is gaining support in Cambridge and Oxford universities to keep the Rhodes scholars from winning positions on any of the varsity teams.

A recent ruling, passed by a committee made up of representatives of both institutions, is to the effect that no student who comes to either university and who is over 20 years old on the first of October preceding the date of his matriculation will be eligible for a varsity team.

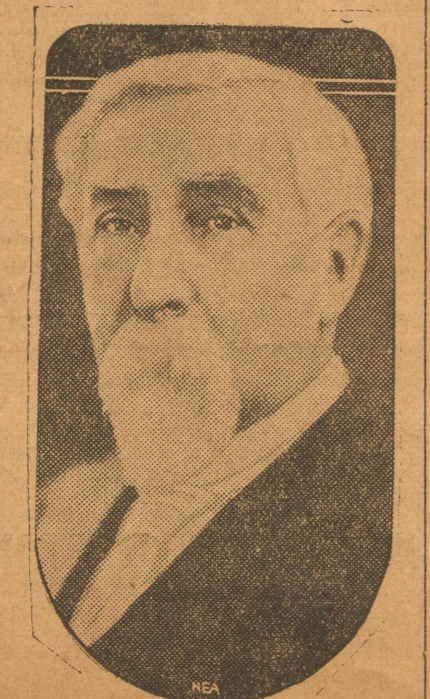

As the Rhodes scholars, who come to Oxford only, are about the only ones who will be hit by this new ruling it appears to be a direct attempt to keep them out of varsity sports.

EL PASO.—Cecil McNutt, 240 pound guard on the El Paso high school football team, apparently is destined to finish the season without pants.

The regular equipment of the school was inadequate to cover McNutt's hulking form and a special pair of pants were ordered for him. They have failed to arrive thus far, however, and no assurances have been received that they will arrive in time for the final game of the season next week.

More than 2600 graduates of Yale are engaged in educational work throughout the world, and 30 of these are now presidents of colleges.

Sues Ford

Henry M. Leland, 85, founder of the Lincoln and Cadillac automobile companies, has filed suit in behalf of minority stockholders for $6,000,000 against Henry Ford, charging Ford's promises to minority stockholders of the Lincoln company, at the time he bought it, have not been fulfilled.

From Argentina on Horseback

Riding from Buenos Aires through South and Central America, Felix Tschiffely, Argentine horseman, is shown here at Mexico City on his horse "Mancha." He left Buenos Aires two and a half years ago, and, riding leisurely, expects to reach New York in March. "Mancha" is 18 years old, too.

WOMEN INTO OLYMPIC EVENTS AT AMSTERDAM

By United Press.
NEW YORK.—For the first time the Olympic games at Amsterdam, in 1928 include events for women.

The Metropolitan association of the A. A. U. has sent out a call for women athletes to show their stuff in the indoor games this winter. The doubtless something of this sort will be done in other communities.

Five events for women in the IX Olympiad will be: 100 metres dash, 800 metres run, discus throw, running high jump and a 400-metres relay for a team of four women.

Girls and young women over the age of 16 are eligible.

Women athletes have made tremendous strides towards comparative perfection in track and field events during the past few years. It is doubtful, however, if the advance has been more rapid in this country than in Canada, England and several European lands.

With only five events to be contested, the competition should be keen and the supremacy which men athletes of the United States have come to enjoy at the recent Olympic games is by no means assured for our women.

HOUSTON.—Some people have talked their way out of jail but a local negro had better success in darning his way to freedom.

The negro was charged with having no visible means of support.

"Ah's got visbill support, Judge—they's mah feet," the negro told the court. The judge scented a joke and grew stern.

"Ah means it, judge. Ah makes mah livin' as a professnal dancer—an' how."

The judge called for proof. The negro danced, the judge, satisfied, ordered him released.

WHAT THEY'RE SAYING

Harold V. Ratliff in Cleburne Times: Add permanent headlines: "Texas Regulars on Injured List." As usual such a report has come from the Austin institution, stating that Hughes and Estes will probably not get of play against the Aggies and that Baldwin and Rose are on the sidelines nursing injuries with Charlie Reynolds on crutches.

Charley Hall in Amarillo News-Globe: Doak Roberts, president of the Texas league, has been giving out some strong interviews about Tulsa and Oklahoma City not being bound by a constitution, with words to the effect that all these managers have signed with the Western is a schedule agreement from year to year. Now Mr. Roberts if you are going to take in Amarillo too, what is a constitution between friends, but otherwise we will have to take the matter to the highest baseball courts.

Jinx Tucker in Waco-News-Tribune: Football fans down in Houston, both of them, get funny ideas. Now they are trying to put over a post-season clash in the Bayou City between the Texas Aggies and the Centenary Gentlemen. And the funny part of it is that they are serious about it. Now if Houston really wanted a big post-season game, it does seem that they would have mentioned some prominent school, even though they knew there was no chance of landing such a game. They also believe that a big game in Houston would draw 30,000 fans. Why, you could not get 30,000 fans out to a game in Houston if the admission were free, and a $10 football were given as souvenirs to each person attending.

Bruce M. Francis in Brownwood Bulletin: Tad Jones now serving his last season as head football coach at Yale, has taught his players that the roar of the crowd is of minor consequence and that the cheers of today are the "boos" of tomorrow. How true that statement is may be proven by the way fans act following a defeat. An example of that may be had by following the record of the Yellow Jackets this year. All Brownwood felt that the Jackets had a powerful team until the Pirate disaster in Temple.

Following this game gloom was so thick here that one could stir it with a stick. Fans "cussed" coaches and players alike.

Uncle Jake King in Dallas Journal: Everybuddy wants t' know how th' Thanksgiving gains is cumin' out. Why wait until they is played whin ya read rite here an' find out? A. & M. versis Texas—This will be a brisk

U.—Frogs has never gone out on th' first bounce. Mustangs still has chance t' told ont' championship. It 'peers t' me it wud be a popular seleshun t' naim Mustangs. All rite Mustangs you is it.

Andy Anderson in Houston Press: I'm just wondering how scared Jack Kearns has Tex Rickard and his cohorts. They can talk all they want to about Kearns putting up a bluff but the former manager of Jack Dempsey knows some things and will tell them. Incidentally Dempsey's lawyers made a shrewd move when they insisted on a jury trial. Jack Dempsey is still a popular idol and any jury in the land would at least not go into the case in an antagonistic mood.

Bell And Kubale Work Boys Hard For S. M. U. Game

Special Correspondence.
FORT WORTH, Nov. 21.—Coaches Matty Bell and Ed Kubale of the T. C. U. Horned Frogs are using their entire repertoire of "hazing" stunts in an effort to get their men in a battling attitude for their tussle Thanksgiving day with the S. M. U. Mustangs.

They converted a group of freshmen and varsity reserves into an imitation "Mustang eleven" Thursday to give the Purple warriors a realistic impression of their coming game. The red jerseyed reserve eleven put on a creditable imitation of the various Pony stars.

Using material recorded by scouts who have watched the Mustangs in action this season, the Frog coaches worked out a complete system of typical Mustang plays and formations for the reserves to use. They also expect to use the model Ponies in demonstrating S. M. U.'s style of defense.

Bell used his light and fast backs to represent the versatile Gerald Mann, Redman, Hume, Lynch and other Pony flashes. Much time was taken in demonstrating the mystifying passing system used by Coach Morrisson's men and the many fakes employed by Mann off of passing formations.

Methodists Make Very Few Changes In Cisco District

When the assignment of pastors to various churches in the Central Texas conference of the Methodist Episcopal church south were read Sunday night at the close of the sixty-first annual conference, it was found that there were not a great many changes in the Cisco district. Rev. George Shearer, who came to the First Methodist church, Ranger, in 1926, was returned to Ranger, and Rev. Frank E. Singleton, pastor of the First Methodist church of Eastland, was returned there and will enter on his third year as pastor of that church. Rev. C. O. Shugart, presiding elder was also returned to this district.

The assignments for the Cisco district were:

concluded that he had not reached the station in time to warn them. Pete and I plunged into the crowd after them. We had a slight advantage in that we could follow in the path they cleared. They made no headway in getting away. After we had baffled our way for fifty yards or so, Spencer stopped and spoke into the ear of one of the other men, a tall, heavy-set fellow. Instantly the man threw his hands into the air and uttered a gibbering of idiotic, guttural noises, reeling in the small opening they had cleared for themselves. As Pete attempted to dart past him, the man crushed down on him, mashing him into the snow and holding him there. I watched Spencer who was darting through the crowd as rapidly as possible. I jumped over the fallen man and tore after Spencer, pursuing him to the edge of the crowd. When he reached the open street, he started to run and I yelled at him to throw up his hands. He heard me and turned in his tracks, facing me.

WICHITA FALLS GREAT HOST SAYS BAPTISTS

Rev. J. A. Caraway, pastor of the Central Baptist church, Ranger, and a party of ten from that church, have returned from the late Baptist general convention of Texas, and report a wonderful meeting. The convention had the honor of holding the first service in Wichita Falls' fine new auditorium. There were some 4,000 present and the city of Wichita Falls extended every courtesy possible to these. Courtesy cars were at one's command all during the convention and would take one to any part of the city. Rev. Mr. Caraway stated and the city offered every accommodation possible for the comfort and entertainment of its many guests.

Ford Dealers May See New Cars In Dallas This Week

Probabilities that Ford dealers will know Friday how the new Ford looks, looms large to West Texas dealers who are receiving letters from the Ford branch in Dallas, calling them to a one hundred percent dealers meeting there Friday.

Leville-Maher Motor company of Ranger, has received a letter from the Dallas branch in which all dealers are urged to attend a general dealers meeting to be held in Dallas, beginning promptly at 9 o'clock Friday morning.

The letter states in part that at this meeting full details of "our plans and policies" will be outlined and that the meeting is for Ford dealers only. The writer states that he has just returned from a visit to the factory and goes on to say that he thinks the information and announcements that will be made at this meeting will be very interesting to the visiting dealers.

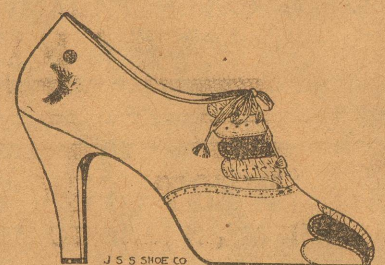

It is believed that on this occasion the new Ford will be on display for the benefit of the dealers and that the meeting will result in the long awaited announcement of the arrival of that much guessed at and talked of car.

Mr. Maher will attend the meeting. WACO.—Local produce firms have purchased more than 60,000 turkeys thus far this month and paid more than $230,000 for them, it is estimated.
